ORDER XXI.

EXECUTION OF DECREES AND ORDERS.

PAYMENT UNDER DECREE.

Modes of paying money under decree.

1. (1) All money payable under a decree shall be paid as follows, namely :—

(a) into the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree ; or

(b) out of Court to the decree-holder ; or

(c) otherwise as the Court which made the decree directs. [S. 257.]

(2) Where any payment is made under clause (a) of sub-rule (1) notice of such payment shall be given to the decree-holder. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope of Or. XXI.—The rules under this Order do not apply to insolvency proceedings under the Provincial Insolvency Act 1907. So when in the case of sale by a Receiver, the highest bidder fails to deposit the one-fourth of the purchase-money, the Receiver cannot proceed under Or. XX, r. 71.—Oheda Lall v. Lachman Prashad, 39 A. 267 : 15 A. L. J. 253 : 37 I. C. 830. See also Ramchand v. Mohra, 30 P. L. R. 320 : 11 L. L. J. 198 : 119 I. C. 427 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 622 ; Shakar Khan v. Sanmukh, 136 I. C. 267 : 33 P. L. R. 332 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 320. The provisions of Or. XXI do not apply to a sale of property under an administration order ; Benarsi Das v. Nathu Mal, 40 P. L. R. 1922 : 69 I. C. 718.

Alterations in this rule.—Sub-rule (2) is new. It has been inserted for the benefit of both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor and to relieve the Courts from the difficulty which generally arises with regard to the decree-holder's claim for costs and interests. After service of notice upon the decree-holder, he will not be entitled to claim any costs or interest.

" Money payable under decree."—Where a party was directed by the High Court to pay the costs of the day, and his solicitor paid the money into Court, held that this rule was not applicable as the order was not a decree.—Shanks v. Secretary of State, 12 M. 120.

A decree for mesne profits is a decree for money ; Lachman Ojha v. Chariter Ojha, 48 I. C. 183 : (1918) P. 257.

Payment into Court is ymment to the decree-
Sankaran v. Raman,

Payment by stranger.—Payment by a person who has got a sham sale-deed from the judgment-debtor does not satisfy the decree unless and until the decree-holder consented to receive the amount deposited in satisfaction of the decree.—Kashuri v. Aruna Chelam, 34 I. C. 350 : (1916) 1 M. W. N. 195.

Payment to decree-holder.—Payment can be made by the judgment-debtor out of Court to the person who has stepped into the shoes of the original decree-holder and is carrying on the execution proceedings. He would obviously require the attaching creditor to deposit in Court the surplus of the amount realised, in case there be any.—Unao Commercial Bank v. Mohar Gobind, 129 I. C. 382 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 659 : 28 A. L. J. 945.

Where a decree for payment of annuities was passed creating a charge on certain properties and a Receiver was appointed to realise the amounts and the Receiver absconded after receiving certain amounts from the judgment-debtor for payment to the decree-holder under the decree : held, that the charge affirmed by the decree was in no way affected or impaired by the embezzlement of the Receiver. The decree provided in express terms that all the annuitants were entitled to recover their annuities from the properties charged. The decree-holder having received no part of the annuity due to her, is entitled to recover by sale of the properties as the payments to the Receiver were made by the judgment-debtor at his own risk, in the absence of an order of Court authorising the judgment-debtor to pay the sums to the Receiver.—Brij Indar v. Jai Indar, 59 I. A. 311 : 7 Luck. 382 (P. C.) : 36 C. W. N. 882 : 56 C. L. J. 48 : 9 O. W. N. 571 : 34 Bom. L. R. 1188 : 137 I. C. 900 : A. I. R. 1932 P. C. 191 (reversing 5 Luck. 80 (F. B.) : 117 I. C. 748 : A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 231).

A judgment-debtor cannot claim to be exonerated from his liability to pay the actual amount due to a joint decree-holder to his share by payment of either the whole or part of the decretal amount to some other of the joint decree-holders. At the same time the judgment-creditor to whom the decree amount has not been paid cannot sue to recover the entire decree amount. In such cases the Court should ascertain the shares of the decree-holder in execution proceedings and permit further execution on that basis.—Surendra v. Abhay, 126 I. C. 124 : A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 78.

Payment into Court.—A payment to a Receiver appointed by Court is as good and valid as to the Court itself, and falls under Cl. (c) ; Muthia v. Orr, 20 M. 224 (231). If the Receiver misappropriates the money, the loss should not fall on the judgment-debtor.—Jai Indar v. Brij Indar 5 Luck. 80 (F. B.) : 117 I. C. 748 : A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 231. This last mentioned decision, however, has been reversed on appeal by the Judicial Committee in 7 Luck. 382 (P. C.) noted above upon the ground that though payments had been made by the judgment-debtor to the Receiver there was no order of the Court ordering or authorizing the judgment-debtor to make payments to him.

If money is brought into Court under process of execution, and the party entitled to it or his vakil is present to receive it, the Court shall cause it to be paid immediately.—Muttuvolu v. Samu Pillay, 5 M. H. C. R. App. 2.

If under a decree in a pre-emption suit, limiting payment into Court within certain date, only a receipt for payment is put in on the date fixed but confirmed on notice to the judgment-debtor later. Held no payment under decree; Abdul Fattah v. Fattah Ali, 35 I. C. 363 : 73 P. R. 1916.

On the death of the decree-holder, the debtor should either pay the decretal amount into Court or ask for directions under Cl. (c).—Narendra v. Charu, 14 C. W. N. 146.

Where a decree is transferred by assignment by the decree-holder but the judgment-debtor having no notice of the assignment pays the decretal amount in full into Court, the payment operates as a satisfaction of the decree and the assignee is not entitled to execute the decree; Tata Iron & Steel Works v. Baidya Nath, 2 P. 754 : 76 I. C. 55 : A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 118.

A payment to one of several joint decree-holders who hold a joint decree is not a discharge of the decree and the certificate given by one cannot bind others in the absence of implied or express authority.—Thimma Reddi v. Subba Reddiar, 49 I. C. 141 (1918) M. W. N. 507. See notes under Or XXI, r. 2.

On the date of the payment of the first instalment the Court was closed and a tender was filed when the Court re-opened. Held, that there was default in payment, as the defendants who had the option to make the payment direct to the decree-holder or to deposit the amount in Court could not take advantage of the circumstance that the Court was closed on the date of the payment.—Kunj Bihari v. Bindeshri Prasad, 51 A. 527 : 27 A. L. J. 236 : 115 I. C. 796 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 207.

Notice—Its effect.—The provision contained in Sub-sec (2) is new. Notice must be in writing; see S. 142. It is the duty of the Court to give notice to the decree-holder though the judgment-debtor may be bound to pay the process fee. In case no notice is served upon the decree-holder, the Court is bound to inform the decree-holder about the payment when he applies for execution; Narayan v. Ganpat Rao, 67 I. C. 242.

When money is paid to a third party without notice of payment to the decree-holder and the decree-holder applies for payment of money to him, the Court cannot refer the decree-holder to a regular suit, but it ought to set aside the ex parte order authorising payment to the third party.—Bithal Das v. Jiwan Ram, 66 I. C. 744 : 20 A. L. J. 353 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 190.

But Or. XXI, r. 1 (2) has been held inapplicable to a mortgage-decree.—Ambi v. Valia Thamburati, 45 M. L. J. 687 : 75 I. C. 566.

Whether interest on the decretal money is payable up to the date of deposit in Court by the judgment-debtor, or up to the date of withdrawal, depends on whether the decree-holder had any notice of the deposit.—Kalee Dass v. Puran Koomares, 16 W. R. 304. Where the decree-holder alleged that he had no notice of the deposit till after some time, it was held that the decree-holder was entitled to interest up to the date when he had notice of the deposit, and that the decree-holder was entitled to the costs of the execution which he bona fide took out.—Ranjapur Rayot Bank v. Hesabuddin, 35 C. W. N. 544.

Tender must be unconditional.—A decree-holder is not bound to him in part satisfaction of this decree; and the refusal to receive a part of what is due to him will not deprive him of his right to interest.—Kunhya Singh v. Tooydun Singh, 7 W. R. 20.

A judgment-debtor must pay the decretal amount to the credit of the decree-holder unconditionally. If he chooses to make a protest, the creditor is not bound to take the money.—Rajendra Kishore v. Sahib Pershad Sen, 2 C. L. R. 183.

Payment into Court by the defendant coupled with a request that the money should not be paid until the decision of certain objections made by him is not legal tender.—Goluckmonee v. Nubungo, W. R. (special number) F. B. 14; Marsh 45: 1 Hay 76.

For Tender and its effect, see S. 38 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) and also notes under Or XXIX, rr 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Limitation.—There is no limitation for an application to withdraw money which is in deposit in Court as unclaimed deposit.—Apurba v. Chunder Money, 10 C. W. N. 354.

2. (1) Where any money payable under a decree of any kind is paid out of Court, or the decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree, and the Court shall record the same accordingly.

Payment out of Court to decree-holder

(2) The judgment-debtor also may inform the Court of such payment or adjustment, and apply to the Court to issue a notice to the decree-holder to show cause, on a day to be fixed by the Court, why such payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified; and if, after service of such notice, the decree-holder fails to show cause why the payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified, the Court shall record the same accordingly.

(3) A payment or adjustment, which has not been certified or recorded as aforesaid, shall not be recognized by any Court executing the decree.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effect.—This rule corresponds to S 258 of the C. P. Code of 1882, with some important additions, alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "of any kind" have been added "after decree"; the words "or of any payment is made in pursuance of an agreement of the nature mentioned in S. 257-A" have been omitted; and the words "and the Court shall record the same accordingly" have been added.

Tender must be unconditional.—A decree-holder is not bound to him in part satisfaction of this decree; and the refusal to receive a part of what is due to him will not deprive him of his right to interest — Kunhya Singh v. Tooydun Singh, 7 W. R. 20.

A judgment-debtor must pay the decretal amount to the credit of the decree-holder unconditionally. If he chooses to make a protest, the creditor is not bound to take the money.—Rajendra Kishore v. Sahib Pershad Sen, 2 C. L. R. 183.

Payment into Court by the defendant coupled with a request that the money should not be paid until the decision of certain objections made by him is not legal tender — Goluckmonee v. Nubungo, W. R. (special number). F. B. 14; Marsh 45: 1 Hay 76.

For Tender and its effect, see S. 38 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872) and also notes under Or XXIX, rr 1, 2, 3 and 4

Limitation.—There is no limitation for an application to withdraw money which is in deposit in Court as unclaimed deposit.—Apurba v. Chunder Money, 10 C. W. N 354.

2. (1) Where any money payable under a decree of any kind is paid out of Court, or the decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree, and the Court shall record the same accordingly.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and their effect.—This rule corresponds to S. 258 of the C. P. Code of 1882, with some important additions, alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "of any kind" have been added after "decree"; the words "or of any payment is made in pursuance of an agreement of the nature mentioned in S. 257-A" have been omitted; and the words "and the Court shall record the same accordingly" have been added.

The substitution of the words "decree of any kind" for the words "a decree" is material, as it has got at rest the diversity of judicial opinions which hitherto existed. The expression "decree of any kind" includes money decree, mortgage-decrees, and all other decrees under which money is payable. The substitution seems to have been made by adopting the principles laid down in 23 M. 473 (F.B.), 30 A. 219, 7 C. L. J. 591 and 31 C. 863. In all these cases it was held that this section applies to proceedings in execution of a mortgage-decree. It has rendered the cases reported 21 M. 412, 8 C. W. N. 103 and 25 C. 703, obsolete and inoperative.

Section 257-A has been omitted from the Code, see note below.

Sub-rule (3).—Some important changes have been introduced, as will appear on a comparison with the provisions of para. 3 of the old section, which ran as follows: "Unless such a payment or adjustment has been certified as aforesaid, it shall not be recognized as a payment or adjustment of the decree by any Court executing the decree." The most important change is the omission of the words "as a payment or adjustment of the decree" after the word "recognized." By the above omission it has now become clear that a Court executing a decree cannot recognize a payment or adjustment made out of Court which has not been certified, for any purpose whatsoever. The above change seems to have been introduced by adopting the principle laid down in Mithu Lal v. Khairati Lal, 12 A. 569; and although that ruling was subsequently overruled by the Full Bench case of Roshan Singh v. Matadin, 26 A. 36, the Legislature has adopted the law as laid down in 12 A. 569, where it has been held that a Court executing a decree is not competent to take into consideration payments made out of Court for the purpose of deciding whether or not the application is barred by limitation. By the amendment the rulings of the High Courts in which a contrary view was taken have been superseded. Those rulings are no longer law and have become obsolete. See notes under heading "Uncertified payments and Limitation," post.

Scope and application of the rule.—This rule provides that (1) where any money payable under a decree of any kind is paid out of Court, or (2) where a decree is otherwise adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder, the decree-holder shall certify such payment or adjustment to the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree, and the Court shall record the same accordingly. Under the Code of 1877, (S. 259), it was held in Daba Mohamed v. Webb, 6 C. 786; 8 C. L. R. 36, that this rule deals with the adjustment of any decree and not merely with the adjustment of a money decree. Under S. 258 of the Code of 1882, which is a verbatim copy of the corresponding section of the Code of 1877, it was held in Sankaran v. Kanara Kurup, 22 M. 182; 8 M. L. J. 175, that the rule referred only to the execution of decrees under which money was payable, and was not applicable to decrees for possession of immoveable property. Section 258 of the Code of 1882 was further amended in the present Code by the addition of the words "of any kind" in order to reconcile the views of the different High Courts. In Abdul Latif Sahib v. Bathula Bibi, 23 I. C. 530: (1914) M. W. N. 346, decided under the present Code, it was held by Wallis and Ayling, JJ., that where there was a decree for the delivery of certain immoveable property and for the payment of money, it was not open to the Court to recognize any uncertified adjustment under Or. XX, r. 2, Cl. (3). This was followed in Sethurama Sahib v. Chhota Raja Sahib, 40 I. C. 820 : (1917) M. W. N. 327, where Sadasiva Aiyar, J., held that where the decree provided for payment of money as well as other reliefs, the adjustment of such a decree could not be recognized unless certified to the Court.

In Vaidhinadasamy v. Somasundram, 28 M. 473 (F. B.) : 15 M. L. J. 126, it was held that this rule applies not only to money decrees but to decrees for the enforcement of a mortgage and other decrees, e.g., a partition decree; Gharry v. Gowrya, 46 B. 226 : 64 I. C. 490 : A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 380; Rama Krishna v. Bala Krishna, 43 M. 476 : 56 I. C. 289. See also Kaka-Ram v. Haveli Ram, 126 I. C. 513 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 814. "The addition of the words "of any kind" after the word "decree" in the second line of Or. XXI, r. 2, was intended to set at rest the difference of views between the Calcutta and the Madras High Courts and the conflicting views as regards the meaning of S. 258 of the Code of 1882. By the addition of the words "of any kind," it cannot be said that the Legislature intended that the adjustment of any decree, whatever may be the relief claimed, should be certified to the Court. We are clearly of opinion that Or. XXI, r. 2, refers to a decree under which money is payable whether there are other reliefs or not, and if no money is payable under a decree, then r. 2 cannot be held to apply to such a decree. The words "payable under a decree" do not mean any money which the party may, if he chooses, pay, but money which is recoverable by a party in execution against the party liable to pay it."—Narayanasami v. Rangasami, 49 M. 716 : 50 M. L. J. 547 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 749 : 95 I. C. 731 (per Devadoss and Waller, JJ.). This case has been dissented from in Niamat v. Jahl, 117 I. C. 833 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 715, which has held, following 6 C. 786 and 46 B. 226, that the rule is not confined to decrees for money but applies to all kinds of decrees.

A decree provided that the defendants agreed to grant and the plaintiffs agreed to take in lieu of the decree amount a lease of the defendant's lands for 21 years and that in the event of the non-compliance with this clause within one year the decree-holders were entitled to recover the money from the judgment-debtors. Held, that Or. XXI, r. 2 (3) had no application to the case and that the Court had power to adjudicate upon the question whether the judgment-debtors had fulfilled the condition or not.—Biharilal v. Wali Shaka, 109 I. C. 386 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 816. A decree which gives the judgment-debtor an option of paying money in order to secure a reconveyance is not a decree under which money is payable within the meaning of this section.—Narayanasami v. Rangasami, 49 M. 716 : 95 I. C. 731 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 749.

This rule does not prevent a Court from trying whether a valid tender by money-order has been made.—Kishan Prasad v. Beni Ram, 24 A. 85.

This rule does not apply where the parties agreed that their debts were to be privately adjusted before any decree came into existence; Contra Banerji, J.—Gauri v. Gajadhar, 6 A. L. J. 403 : 2 I. C. 608.

Before an order absolute has been made in a mortgage decree the Court is bound to consider any allegation of payment by defendant after the decree nisi and before the application for order absolute. But when an adjustment is alleged to have been made after order absolute in answer to an application for sale by the mortgagee, the executing Court determines the question only under this rule.—Hiranmoy v. Musa Khan, 7 I. C. 625 (8 C. W. N. 102).

29 C. 651 relied on; 11 C. L. J. 91: 28 M. 473 (F.B.) folld ; 12 C. W. N. 485 distinguished).

This rule only authorizes the recognition of payment or adjustment. An enquiry into the terms of an alleged compromise and an order on it cannot be made by the executing Court.—Lodd Govindass v. Ramdoss, 24 M. L. J. 88: 28 I. C. 376: 17 M. L. T. 222.

This rule requiring certifying of payment applies only to money payable under a decree, and is not applicable where the decree is for the delivery of rice.—Kristna v. Padmanabha, 21 I. C. 177: 25 M. L. J. 442.

This rule has no application to a compromise arrived at between the judgment-debtor and decree-holder in a proceeding to set aside an execution sale under Or. XXI, rr. 89 or 90.—Gobind v. Narsingh, 118 I. C. 908: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 886. See also Bhawani v. Jitendra, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 400; Seth Nanhelal v. Umarao, 58 I. A. 50: 35 C. W. N. 381: 53 C. L. J. 187: 130 I. C. 686: A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 33: 33 Bom. L. R. 450: 29 A. L. J. 257: 27 N. L. R. 95: 60 M. L. J. 423 (P. C.); Sita Nand v. Jhangi Ram, 136 I. C. 735: 33 P. L. R. 146: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 238.

Where a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit directs payment of money into Court, and the money is not paid into Court, the Court is bound to pass a final decree for sale; and in such a case a payment out of Court cannot be recognised either by virtue of Or. XXI, r. 2 or Or. XXIII, r. 3.—Durga Devi v. Nand Lal, 136 I. C. 732: 33 P. L. R. 138: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 231.

Judgment-debtor.—The word " judgment-debtor " in this rule should be construed as including those who claim through him or in his right, e.g., an assignee from the judgment-debtor of the equity of redemption after decree —Panduranga v. Vythilinga, 30 M. 537: 17 M. L. J. 417. See also Matharasappa Chettiar v. Muthu Chettiar, 50 I. C. 931: 9 L. W. 591; and also his surety. So also a surety cannot plead uncertified payment.—Onkarmal v. Nritya, 67 I. C. 885: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 313; Rajani Kumar v. Mahalukhmi Bank, 36 C. W. N. 663; Tambi Reddy v. Davi Reddy, 49 M. 325: 94 I. C. 522: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 674.

Decree-holder.—Regard being had to the General Clauses Act (X of 1897), the word " decree-holder " in this rule should be read in the plural.—Taruck v. Divendro, 9 C. 831: 12 C. L. R. 566. An assignee of a decree is not a decree-holder until he applies for and obtains an order in his favour under Or. XXI, r. 16, and as such applications are made to the Court as a Court which passed the decree, and not as a Court which is executing the decree, a judgment-debtor can in such a proceeding plead that the decree has been already satisfied even though the formalities prescribed by Or. XXI, r. 2 (1) and (2) have not been followed.—Raghunath v. Ganga Ram, 47 B. 643: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 404. It is illegal for a Court to refuse to certify payment made to the transferee of a decree on the ground that the transfer was not recognized by the Court. In execution proceedings by the original decree-holder, the judgment-debtor can plead payment to the transferee; Bala Krishna v. Mini Reddi, 14 I. C. 702.

Where there has been an adjustment or certification, as between the judgment-debtor and an assignee who has attained the status of a decree-holder by an order made under Or. XXI, r. 16 of the Code, Or. XXI, r. 2 would be clearly applicable. Order XXI, r. 2 is not restricted by its terms to the original decree-holder, but extends also to an assignee of the decree who steps into his shoes, as it were, under the assignment; Brajabashi v. Manik, 31 C. W. N. 921 · A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 694. Adjustment of a decree by a guardian without leave of the Court cannot be certified under this rule; Aruna Chellam v. Ramanadhan Chetty, 29 M. 309.

It is possible to hold that the decree-holder mentioned in Or. XXI, r. 2 must mean all the decree-holders jointly interested for the purpose of the certificate—Unao Commercial Bank v. Mohar, 129 I. C. 382; 28 A. L. J. 945; A. I. R. 1930 All. 659.

"Record."—There was no provision in the old Code requiring the Court to record the payment or adjustment. The word "recorded" in sub-rules (2) and (3) is new. Sub-rule (3) does not require that the payment must be both certified and recorded. It is clear that the term "certified" in it refers to sub-rule (1) and the term "recorded" to sub-rule (2). The judgment-debtor does not lose the protection of this rule merely because the Court fails to perform its duty, viz., to record the payment or adjustment. It is not necessary that the payment or adjustment should be both recorded and certified—what is necessary is that it should be either recorded or certified.—Tarak Nath v. Natabar, 21 C. L. J. 632; 30 I. C. 45. See also Thimma Reddi v. Subba Reddiar, 49 I. C. 141; (1918) M. W. N. 507; but a casual reference has been held to be insufficient; Mahomed Khan v. Nenu Mal, 52 I. C. 901; 13 S. L. R. 130.

Adjusted—An "adjustment" is a transaction which extinguishes the decree as such in whole or in part. A transaction agreeing to vary the date and mode of execution is not an adjustment but a transaction varying the terms of the decree, so as to constitute a new executable decree. Such variation is against the policy of the Code—Lodd Govindoss v. Ramdoss, 24 M. L. J. 83; 28 I. C. 376; 17 M. L. T. 222 (24 M. 1 (P. C.) referred; 15 C. L. J. 45, disented from); Bakshu Ram v. Des Raj, 132 I. C. 670; 32 P. L. R. 365; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 608 (A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 527 referred to); Azizur Rahaman v. Aliraja, 32 C. W. N. 434 · 113 I. C. 9; A. I. R. 1918 Cal. 527. An agreement not to execute the decree cannot be taken cognizance of by an executing Court, the remedy of the judgment-debtors in such cases being to institute a separate suit to restrain decree-holders from executing the decree.—Ibid. The word "adjustment" does not embrace an agreement to discharge the decree which the parties have still to carry out.—Muthu Vaithilinga v. Subbaraya, 123 I. C. 604; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 410; (1930) M. W. N. 137. An arrangement with the decree-holder that if the judgment-debtor make two defaults in the payment of an instalment decree the former should sell only a particular estate, and should be debarred from proceeding with the execution of the balance until further default is an adjustment and must be certified. A mere agreement to give time would be an adjustment.—Per Cox, J., Shamal v. Hazarimal, 15 C. L. J. 451; 13 I. C. 326. Where on the decree-holder in a mortgage suit applying for a final decree for sale, the judgment-debtor pleaded that the decree-holder had agreed to allow him an extension of time for payment, held that the alleged agreement would amount to altering the terms of the preliminary decree and that such an agreement could not be considered unless it has been recorded as certified under the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 2.—Ahmed Rahman v. Chettiar, C. R. 235; 110 I. C. 873; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 194. An agreement to hold property jointly where the decree directs division by metes and bounds falls within the purview of this rule which bars recognition only by the executing Court but not by any other Court.—Sethu Ram Sahib v. Chhota Raja Sahib, 40 I. C. 820 : (1917) M. W. N. 327 ; Niamat v. Jalil, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 715 : 117 I. C. 833. But an adjustment prior to decree is superseded by the decree and a decree-holder who obtains a decree cannot, when the decree is barred by limitation, fall upon a prior adjustment.—Hem Raj v. Dost Muhammad, 57 I. C. 153.

The Civil Procedure Code is not exhaustive and an adjustment of a decree by the surety of the judgment-debtor with the decree holder might be proved unless there is something to bar its proof.—Thakar v. Ram Singh, 108 I. C. 376 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 61.

The words "adjustment in whole or in part" suggest that the Court is not confined to merely entering the figures supplied by the decree-holder. It has the power to ascertain to what extent the decree has been satisfied when the manner of adjustment has been notified ; Lodd Govindoss v. Raja of Karvetnagar, 29 M. L. J. 219.

An oral agreement not to proceed against the judgment-debtor beyond a certain limit is an agreement varying the terms of the decree and is therefore an adjustment which cannot be proved if not certified.—Rajah of Kalahasti v. Venkatadri, 50 M. 897 : 105 I. C. 248 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 911 : 53 M. L. J. 533

Purchase by mortgagee holding decree for sale of portion of mortgaged property, subject to mortgage—Petition by mortgagor under this rule claiming that the mortgagee should be called upon to certify satisfaction of his decree. Quere : Whether the subject-matter of the petition was an "adjustment" of the decree within the meaning of this rule.—Erusappa Mudaliar v. Commercial and Land Mortgage Bank, 23 M. 377. Where on a reference to arbitration during the pendency of execution proceedings, an award is made, it is binding upon the parties as an adjustment of the claim ; Raj Kumar Lal v. Bulaki Miyan, 3 P. L. W. 146 : 42 I. C. 467. In order to make it an adjustment, an agreement must be made after the decree : Chidambaram Chettiar v. Krishna Vathiyar, 40 M. 233 (F.B.) : 32 M. L. J. 13 : 37 I. C. 836. An adjustment prior to decree cannot be said to be an adjustment within this rule and the executing Court cannot recognise such an adjustment.—Hem Raj v. Dost Muhammad, 57 I. C. 153 ; Doraisami v. Subbalakshmi, 46 I. C. 880 ; and Mallayya v. China Kotayya, (1921) M. W. N. 382 : 14 L. W. 317. A pre-decree arrangement by which a decree is not to be executed cannot be pleaded in bar of the execution of the decree.—Ganeshlal v. Sardar Mal, 119 I. C. 704 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 339 (following 11 N. L. R. 110, 29 C. 110, 31 C. 179 ; and not following 49 M. 513 and 23 B. 463). A pre-decree arrangement does not come within the terms of Or. XXI, r. 2 and a suit brought on the basis of such an agreement for recovery of money realised in execution of the decree is barred by S. 47.—Narayanan v. Damodaram, 130 I. C. 187 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 26. Payments made prior to the decree cannot be pleaded in bar of execution.—Eutchieh v. Tayar, 54 M. 184 : 129 I. C. 818 : (1930) M. W. N. 1152 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 399 : 60 M. L. J. 721. An agreement arrived at prior to the decree, in other words an agreement not to execute the decree which would be passed in future cannot be taken cognizance of by an executing Court, but to avail of it the judgment-debtor will have to institute a separate suit to restrain the decree-holder from executing the decree.—Azizur Rahman v. Ali Raja, 32 C. W. N. 434 : 113 I. C. 9; Moolla v. Chartered Bank, 5 R. 685 : 107 I. C. 860 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang 36.

Adjustment need not be in writing—A completed compromise is sufficient adjustment.—There is no justification for holding that an adjustment must be in writing or that the judgment-debtor must have carried out all the terms of the arrangements made by him with the decree-holder to satisfy the decree. The question really depends upon the intention of the parties at the time when the agreement is entered into, and if they make a final and binding agreement with regard to the decree, then it amounts to an adjustment; Samer Chand v. Chiranjil Lal, 102 I. C. 753 : A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 544. The words "otherwise adjusted" are wide enough to cover an oral adjustment of a decree.—Anandapriya v. Bijoy, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 643 : 91 I. C. 705. An inchoate agreement to adjust cannot be pleaded as a bar to execution.—Matadat v. Ram, 113 I. C. 238. An oral agreement that the decree is to be paid in instalments coupled with actual payment of at least one instalment at or before the time the application was made to have it certified amounts to an adjustment of the decree, and is capable of proof.—Hatchand v. Premchand, 131 I. C. 710 : A. I. R. 1931 Sind 42 : 25 S. L. R. 29 (relying on 50 M. 897). A contract by which the judgment-debtor promises to do something at a future date can be accepted by the decree-holder as a legal and immediate acceptance of his decree and can form the basis of an application for entering satisfaction of the decree under this rule.—Ramanarasu v. Venkata, (1932) M. W. N. 840 : 63 M. L. J. 598. See also Ma Shwe Pee v. Maung San Myo, 6 R. 573 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 316 (dissenting from Lachman v. Baba Ramnath, 44 A. 258 : 64 I. C. 990 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 13).

Adjustment in part.—Where the decree-holder enters into an agreement with some only of the judgment-debtors by discharging them from liability, it is an adjustment, in part, of the decree and must be certified to the Court under this rule.—Mahomed Khan v. Mahamed Munawar, 31 M. 467

Where a judgment-debtor has out of Court partly satisfied his decree-holder, subsequent to the transfer of the decree to another Court for execution, but before actual execution has been applied for, he is entitled, on execution in full being demanded, to an order of the Court, to which the decree is transferred, calling upon the decree-holder to certify the fact of such part-payment.—Rajendra v. Chunnoomul, 5 C. 448.

sump-unjus-

the Court at the pre-
it would be the decree-holder to take advantage of his own omission.—Chango v. Kaluram, 4 B. H. C. R. A. C. 120.

Effect of certifying satisfaction, though amount not paid.—If a decree-holder forgives the defendant and certifies satisfaction without receiving payment, a creditor of the decree-holder attaching the satisfied decree cannot prove that it was made fraudulently; Subbia Pillai v. Alliar, 2 I. C. 523 : 6 M. L. T. 72.

Certificate—Where to be filed.—Under this rule the certificate of payment or adjustment should be filed in the Court whose duty it is to execute the decree. The filing of a compromise petition in the appellate Court cannot be treated as the filing of a certificate of satisfaction in the Court of first instance; Kelu Nair v. Meenakshi, 25 M. L. J. 586. But in Biroo Gorain v. Jaimurah, 16 C. W. N. 923; 16 C. L. J. 174 it has been held that where the judgment-debtor having appealed against the decree sought to be executed withdrew the appeal upon an adjustment come to with the decree-holder, and the fact of such adjustment was stated before the appellate Court and was recorded in its order, the application by the judgment-debtor to the Court in which execution was subsequently applied for by the decree-holder praying for an investigation as to the fact of the adjustment was in substance one in continuation of the application before the appellate Court and the two applications together constituted a sufficient compliance with the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 2 (1), and the fact of payment should be inquired into by the Court.

Where an agreement of adjustment has been brought to the notice of the appellate Court and the same is not objected to by the decree-holder in these proceedings the same can be pleaded as a defence before the executing Court.—Azizur Rahman v. Ali Rajah, 32 C. W. N. 434; 113 I. C. 9; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 527.

Application for certificate of adjustment—How to be made and what is.—It is not prescribed that the certificate of payment shall be made in any particular form or with any particular details. The information may be conveyed by the decree-holder to the Court even incidentally in his application for execution, the details of payment may be furnished even after the original application for execution has been made.—Daw Ywet v. U Tin, 8 R. 310; 127 I. C. 600; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 329.

This rule contemplates a definite proceeding with a petition by the decree-holder and a formal act by the Court. A decree-holder must do it in some well defined speech or writing. Where a decree-holder stated in an unusual place in his petition for execution that the defendant, had paid some money as interest, held this was not a certificate; Gokul v. Bhika, 12 A. L. J. 387; 23 I. C. 753 (referred to in Bhajanlall v. Cheda, 24 I. C. 215; 12 A. L. J. 825). The mere statement in an application for the execution of a decree that payments towards satisfaction of the decree have been made out of Court, does not amount to an application for certification.—Dwarika v. Bepin, 64 I. C. 32; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 200 (following Bireswar v. Ambika, 45 C. 630 and Bahuballur v. Jogesh, 23 C. W. N. 320 and not following Tukaram v. Babaji, 21 B. 122). But see Eusuffzeman v. Sanchia, 43 C. 207; 20 C. W. N. 272; 23 C. L. J. 390; 34 I. C. 606, where it has been held that the decree-holder may either apply to certify payment before execution or may do so on his application for execution, and the notification to the Court of the receipt of the sum paid is all that he has to do to certify payment.

A petition signed and filed in Court by a judgment-creditor, certifying payment of the amount due to him is sufficient.—Saadollah v. Kalee Churn, 12 W. R. 358.

Where an application is made by the decree-holder alleging that the decree has been satisfied by payment outside Court, and praying for the execution proceeding to be closed, the Court has no other alternative except to record full satisfaction. It is not the duty of the Court to satisfy itself if the statements in the petition are true or if the payment has in fact been made. If the decree-holders had been induced to present their application by a fraud of the judgment-debtors, they have a separate cause of action but the Court has no jurisdiction to refuse to record satisfaction where such an application is made or re-open the execution proceedings subsequently.—Maung Kyaw Min v. Ma Hpaw, 134 I. C. 213 : A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 332.

A letter from a decree-holder to his Vakil to put in an acknowledgment into Court is not a settlement out of Court certified to the Court.—Thakoor Lall v. Kanye Lall, 7 W. R. 510.

Endorsement of payment by decree-holder on the back of an office copy of the decree is sufficient, and no separate petition is necessary; Lakhu Narain v. Felamani, 20 C. L. J. 131 : 18 C. W. N. 196-n. (referred to in 29 M. L. J. 219).

Effect of certifying by one of several decree-holders.—The question whether one of several decree-holders can enter satisfaction on behalf of all, is one of procedure, and a rule of decision must be looked for in the C. P. Code. Order XXI, r. 15, and Or. XXI, r. 2 appear to have shown that it is not the act of joint-decree-holders, but the act of the Court executing the decree that is intended to operate as a valid discharge.—Seshan v. Rajagopala, 13 M. 236.

Satisfaction of the entire decree certified by one only of several decree-holders, is not binding on the others unless he was authorized by the other decree-holders to execute the decree on their behalf and to give a valid discharge to the judgment-debtor in respect of their shares as well; Karan Singh v. Tailor, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 462. See also Bharatswari v. Bhagawan, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 759 : 33 C. W. N. 193; Moti Ram v. Hannu Prasad, 26 A. 334. See also Sultan Moideen v. Savalayammal, 15 M. 343; Tarruck Chunder v. Divendro Nath, 9 C. 831 : 12 C. L. R. 566 and Dhanraj v. Ujain Singh, 34 P. R. 1906 : 93 P. L. R. 1906. Nor can one of several partners or even the manager of a joint Hindu family legally certify so as to bind others unless anything on behalf of others is proved. In the absence of any evidence that they hold any special and definite shares each, such certificate, if any, has not the legal effect of satisfying or adjusting the decree even in part, Mahomed Silar Sahib & Co. v. Nabu Khan Sahib, 31 M. L. J. 93 : 35 I. C. 157.

One of two joint decree-holders of a mortgage decree cannot alone certify satisfaction of the whole decree, though he may do so in respect of his own interest. The other decree-holder who refuses to recognise the certificate is entitled to obtain an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property in respect of his own share of the mortgaged-debt.—Taman Singh v. Lachhmin Kunwari, 26 A. 318. See also Budhun v. Hafesah, 4 C. L. R. 70; Brojeswari v. Tripoora Soondaree, 3 C. L. R. 513; Motiram v. Honnu Prasad, 26 A. 334 (15 M. 343 : 9 C. 331 referred to; 22 W. R. 77 not followed); Karam Singh v. Tailor, 119 I. C. 426 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 462.

A mortgaged property burdened with the payment of a mortgage by two share-holders :

the lien of the other on property pledged to both as security for a joint-debt.—Inderjeet Koonwar v Brij Bilas, 3 W. R. 130

See also notes to r. 15.

Effect of payment to one of joint decree-holders.—See notes to r. 15. Where shares of the decree-holders are not specified in the decree but are not incapable of being determined, payment to one decree-holder gives a valid discharge to the extent of the share of the decree-holder to whom payment is made, and it is open to the judgment-debtor to show that the decree has been adjusted in whole or in part to the satisfaction of the decree-holder — Kaka Ram v Haveli Ram, 126 I. C. 513 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 814.

Distinction between sub-rule (1) and sub-rule (2).—Sub-rule (1) contemplates a certification of payment by the decree-holder to the Court and a record by the Court of the payment; it does not provide for any notice being given to the judgment-debtor; while sub-rule (2) does contemplate an application by the judgment-debtor; further it provides for notice being given to the decree-holder and it affords an opportunity for the decree-holder to appear and it involves a judicial decision by the Court whether the payment should be recorded — Prakash v. Allahabad Bank, 56 I. A. 30 : 3 Luck 684 : A. I. R. 1929 P. C. 19 : 56 M. L. J. 233 (P. C.). A certificate by a decree-holder under Or. XXI, r. 2 (1) is not an application and can be made at any time. A mention in Col. 5 of the application for execution is sufficient certification under the law.—Ram Sarup v. Mohammad, 124 I. C. 22 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 123

Application under sub-rule (2)—An application stating that the judgment-debtor had paid to the decree-holder a certain sum in different instalments and that he out of kindness agreed to have the execution struck off, is not an application under sub-rule (2) as it did not recite the terms of the adjustment; Jogendra v. Provath, 19 C. L. J. 126. A judgment-debtor's counter-petition alleging adjustment may be treated as an application to certify but it must be within ninety days; Budrudeen v. Gulam, 36 M. 357. The written statement under r. 2 (2) alleging adjustment, should be treated as an application; U Po Thaing v. Maung Ba U, 11 I. C. 780.

The decree-holder is not bound to certify in writing a payment or adjustment of his decree. It may be done orally either by himself or by a person representing him; Mahabir v. K. E., 20 C. W. N. 520. Mere notifying to the Court that the judgment-debtor has done a particular act which he was bound to do, in accordance with the provision of the decree, is not sufficient; the allegation, may be proved; Ram, 30 C. L. J. 118 : 53 I. C. 892.

An application by the judgment-debtor praying for an adjustment to be recorded need not be a document separate from the objections filed by him on the ground of such adjustment. It was held that A. I. R. 1924 All. 706 : 46 A. 635 has been overruled by 51 A. 237 (F. B.) : A. I. R. 1928 All. 629 : 112 I. C. 73.—Ganga v. Ram, 113 I. C. 760 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 79. See also Rajendra v. Chunnoomul, 5 C. 448.

So long as the judgment-debtor applies under Or. XXI, r. 2 (2) within the time allowed for him to do so, he has the right to have his application heard.

Technically the correct procedure would be for the judgment-debtor to make an application to the Court under sub-rule (2) and then to file a separate application in the execution proceedings asking that they may be stayed until his other application is heard. But the judgment-debtor's right should not be defeated merely because he did not follow this correct procedure but applied in the execution proceedings itself to record the adjustment of the decree.—Maung Tin v. Ma M², 5 R. 833: 110 I. C. 123: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 62.

Rule 2 (2) has no application where the execution has come to an end. It has application only where there is a pending execution in Court.—Bhawani v. Jitendra, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 400.

... missed for default, the judgment-debtor may apply to the Court that the previous application be dismissed. The Court might adjudicate on his objection to the execution on the ground that the decree had been adjusted: held that the latter application was in the alternative a fresh application and the Court should have adjudicated on the merits of the application subject to such objection as might be open to the decree-holder.—Lakhyat v. Bella Mall, 132 I. C. 206 A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 505.

"Show cause"—It does not mean merely to allege causes, nor even to make out that there is room for argument, but both to allege causes and to prove them to the satisfaction of the Court. In such an investigation evidence may be given either orally or by affidavit.—Rung Lall v. Hem Narain, 11 C. 166 (referred to in Shaik Davud v. Paramasami, 31 M. L. J. 207)

If the decree-holder fails to appear or to show cause on an application by the judgment-debtor for certification of payment, the Court is not bound to record the payment when it is not satisfied that the payment has been made.—Maung Chir Pe v. Narayan Chettiar, 6 R. 218: 111 I. C. 371: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 185. Even where the alleged adjustment is disputed by the decree-holder the Court can enquire into the matter and record the adjustment if it is proved. "Fails to show cause" does not merely mean fails to appear but would include "fails to satisfy the Court."—Ganga v. Ram, 113 I. C. 760: A. I. R. 1929 All. 79 (following 44 A. 253). See Hatchand v. Pramchand, 25 S. L. R. 29: 131 I. C. 710: A. I. R. 1931 Sind. 42.

The Court has to ascertain in case of dispute whether there was any compromise, whether the compromise amounted to an adjustment of the decree and what is the effect of the adjustment on the decree. There are no other questions for it to decide.—Baga Mal v. Shib Parsad, 120 I. C. 686: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 334.

The Court executing the decree and, in case where the decree has been transferred to another Court for execution, the transferee-Court, is the only Court which has the power to inquire into the truth of the payment or adjustment, when the application is made by the judgment-debtor within the period of limitation.—Ram Gopal v. Shiv Narayan, 34 Bom. L. R. 203: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 202.

Limitation for an application under sub-rule (2).—The judgment-debtor must apply within ninety days from the payment or adjustment, for the issue of a notice to the decree-holder to show cause why payment or adjustment should not be recorded as certified. See Art. 174, Limitation Act, 1908. An application by the judgment-debtor made after ninety days is not an application under Or. XXI, r. 2 (2) and even if it is, it would be barred by limitation under Art. 174 of the Limitation Act.—Frank v. Mufassil Bank, 115 I. C. 139 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 674. See also Budrudeen v. Gulam, 36 M. 357. The object of Or. XXI, r. 2 (2) is to prevent execution proceedings from being unduly prolonged by the judgment-debtor setting up old payments. Objection to the

Panchanon, 9 P. 521 : 126 I. C. 159 : 11 P. L. T. 763 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 526. If the judgment-debtor is not able, by reason of lapse of time or for some other reason, to obtain an order under Or. XXI, r. 2, the surety of the judgment-debtor is also prevented from obtaining the relief by applying under S. 47.—Rajani Kumar v. Mahaluksmi Bank, 36 C. W. N. 663 (following 49 M. 325).

"Uncertified payments shall not be recognised by the Court executing the decree"—Section 47.—Under this rule any payment or adjustment made out of Court and not certified cannot be taken into account in execution proceedings; Kamini v. Aghore Nath, 11 C. L. J. 91 : 14 C. W. N. 357; Nistarini v. Kasim, 12 C. L. J. 65; Monmohan v. Dwarkanath, 12 C. L. J. 312; Heramoney v. Musa Khan, 7 I. C. 625; Trilochan v. Bakkeswar, 15 C. L. J. 423; Janki Prasad v. Thakur Das, 13 I. C. 21; Prosanna v. Lal Mia, 55 I. C. 669; Radhakanta Lal v. Parbati Koss, 63 I. C. 535 : 6 P. L. J. 337; Taj Sing v. Jagan Lal, 14 A. L. J. 370; Jogendra v. Ashutosh, 24 C. L. J. 462. It has been further held that the rule is applicable where, in answer to an application for execution, an uncertified adjustment is set up; the executing Court is not bound to recognise and to enquire under S. 47 notwithstanding fraud on the part of the decree-holder; Badrudeen v. Gulam, 36 M. 357 (Veerappa v. Punnayya alias Armugam, 17 M. L. J. 527, Ganapathy v. Chenga, 29 M. 312 and Periatambi v. Vellaya, 21 M. 403 followed); Ramayyar v. Ramayyar, 21 M. 356 commented on and disapproved). See also Biroo Gorain v. Jaimural, 16 C. W. N. 923 : 16 C. L. J. 174; Shamlal v. Hazarimal, 15 C. L. J. 451. The provisions of this rule are express and no payment or adjustment which is not certified shall be recognised; it is no answer under S. 47 to an application for execution of a decree; in this case the judgment-debtor pleaded that by fraud he was prevented from learning that the adjustment had not been certified by the decree-holder in accordance with his promise; Bajrang v. Lachmi, 15 C. L. J. 88; Sejhra v. Changomal, 63 I. C. 239; P. Chetty Firm v. G. Lon Pow, A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 103 : 1 Bur. L. J. 226; Frank v. Mufassil Bank, 115 I. C. 139 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 674; Azizur Rahman v. Ali Rajah, 32 C. W. N. 434 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 527 : 113 I. C. 9. See, however, Gadadhar v. Shyam Churn, 12 C. W. N. 485, which lays down that where the judgment-debtor complained that the decree-holder had by fraud kept them in ignorance till within a month of the application, of the fact that the satisfaction of the decree had not been certified, the matter could be investigated under S. 47. But see Taj Singh v. Jaganlal, 38 A. 239 : 35 I. C. 234. Such uncertified payment or adjustment cannot be recognised by the Court even to guard against the end of giving an opportunity to dishonest decree-holders to commit fraud by denying adjustments which are not certified.—In re M. D. S. Ela Nidhi Co., Ltd. v. Subramania Pillai, 40 I. C. 889. Omission on the part of the decree-holder to certify does not amount to fraud and the executing Court can on no account entertain directly or indirectly an objection regarding an uncertified adjustment of a decree; Imamuddin Khan v. Bindu Bashini Prasad, 55 I. C. 890: 5 P. L. J. 70, Gharry v. Gowrya, 46 B. 226: 23 Bom. L. R. 981; Mehbunnissa v. Mehmedunnissa, 49 B. 548 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1925 Bom 309 (overruling 40 B. 333 and 34 B. 575); Ganesh v. Yeshwant, 25 Bom L. R. 247: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 253; Parna Ram v. Lehna Singh, (1919) 135 P. R 1919: 53 I. C. 443; Jagrani v. Moona, 110 I. C. 244: 5 O. W. N. 452, Meyappa v. U. Tun Hla, 9 R. 104: 132 I. C. 713: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 148 (57 C. 403 (F. B.) approved); Fatimunnissa v. Asghar, 3 Luck. 170 (F. B.): 108 I. C. 105: A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 135. An agreement to adjust must be certified if it is to be used as a bar in execution; if it is not certified the judgment-debtor has no locus standi to oppose a transfer of the decree—Gnanamma v. Raja Seetharama, 119 I. C. 480: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 429. Where the decree-holder admits that payments had been made but states that they were not certified, held that the Court executing the decree is not precluded from inquiring into payments admitted, although there was no direct certification.—Chinna v. Somasekara, (1929) M. W. N. 713: 119 I. C. 594: A. I. R. 1929 Mad 783.

The weight of authority is decidedly against the contention that such uncertified payments may be investigated and recognised when the decree-holder is guilty of fraud in suppressing or omitting to certify such payment; but there are some cases in which executing Courts have allowed the judgment-debtor to raise such plea in execution on the principle that decree-holder cannot be permitted to obtain an unjust order from Court by false statements. See the case of Hansa v. Bhawa, 40 B. 333: 18 Bom L. R. 22: 33 I. C. 232 (overruled by 49 B. 548 (F. B.)); Ghasi Ram v. Dale Singh, 45 I. C. 222, where an execution sale was held to be a nullity as the decree was satisfied and the decree-holder, in failing to certify payment, had committed a fraud on Court. These cases are not good law.

Where by a consent decree the judgment-debtor agrees to pay a certain sum of money not to the plaintiff but to be a third party, such payment to a third party, if uncertified, cannot be recognised by the Court executing the decree.—Mahadeo v. Hamidan, 45 A. 304: 71 I. C. 457: A. I. R. 1923 All. 271.

A sum paid under a void agreement cannot be acknowledged or recognised in execution of a decree under this section, unless it has been certified within the proper time.—Durga Prasad v. Lalit Mohan, 25 C. 86. See also Chedumbara Pillai v. Ratna Ammal, 3 M. 113.

In the course of execution proceedings the parties entered into an agreement which was registered and filed in Court and the decree-holder filed a petition stating that as the judgment-debtor had made over to him a bond he could realize his debt by bringing a suit upon it. On this the execution case was struck off. Afterwards the decree-holder applied for execution of the decree, alleging that the judgment-debtor had failed to make over the bond to him. Held that the decree was not superseded by the agreement, and was, therefore, capable of execution.—Fateh Muhammad v. Gopal Das, 7 A. 424.

A kistibandi or instalment bond was executed by way of adjustment of a decree, and this was not certified. Held that a Court executing the decree was not competent to take cognizance of the kistibandi under S. 47 and the decree must be executed notwithstanding the adjustment.—Ram Doyal v. Ram Hari, 20 C. 32. But see Gadadhar v. Shyam Churn, 12 C. W. N. 485.

Where payments towards a decree for a monthly family allowance were made by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder after the latter's adjudication as an insolvent, such payments not having been certified to the Court, they cannot be recognised against the receiver by the executing Court.—Nilakanta v. Ramachandra, A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 250.

If the adjustment or payment pleaded by a judgment-debtor be admitted by the decree-holder, then the executing Court cannot proceed to execute the decree, though such payment or adjustment be not certified, as the jurisdiction to execute the decree ceases as soon as the Court is informed by the decree-holder that the decree has been adjusted. The intention of this rule is to avoid enquiry into uncertified and disputed adjustments or payments, but there is no time limit for the decree-holder to certify, and if a decree-holder admits satisfaction, the Court should not proceed in execution any further. So it was held that a Court should not confirm sale, if the decree-holder admits satisfaction of decree, as confirmation of sale is a proceeding in execution.—Nilkanta v. Yeshwant, 65 I. C. 331.

The Court is not bound to take account of an adjustment out of Court by agreement to receive a smaller sum in satisfaction of the decree unless such adjustment is certified under this section.—Veerappa v. Punnayya alias Arumugam, 17 M. L. J. 527; Rajah of Kalahasti v. Venkatadri, 50 M. 897; 105 I. C. 248; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 911; 53 M. L. J. 533.

A decree-holder was opposed by the judgment-debtor on the ground that the decree had been sold by the Deputy Collector in execution of a decree of his Court, and that he (judgment-debtor) had become the purchaser thereof. Held that these proceedings amounted to an adjustment out of Court, which could not be recognized by the Court, unless certified by the judgment-creditor himself.—Bharat Chunder v. Nuzir Ali, 10 W. R. 354.

A judgment-debtor cannot plead uncertified adjustment in opposition to an application under Or. XXI, r. 16 by the transferee-decree-holder (47 B. 643 not followed; 119 I. C. 480 approved).—Subramanyam v. Ramaswami, 137 I. C. 28; (1932) M. W. N. 190; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 372; 62 M. L. J. 562 (F. B.).

A decree being attached, as directed by S. 273, C. P. Code, 1883 (Or. XXI, r. 53) its adjustment subsequent to such attachment cannot be recognized by the Court.—Gopal Nanashet v. Joharimal, 16 B. 532.

Agreement between judgment-debtor and proposed assignee of decree before assignment.—Such an agreement can be pleaded in bar of execution without certification, for the assignee had not then attained the status of the decree-holder and so Or. XXI, r. 2, would not apply to the case; Brajabashi v. Manik, 31 C. W. N. 921; A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 694; 104 I. C. 694. See also Rama Ayya v. Sreenivasa, 19 M. 230; Ponnuswami v. Latchmanan, 35 M.

659 : 12 I. C. 657. This rule does not apply where the payment out of Court was made by a third party and not by the judgment-debtor.—Ibid.

Uncertified payments and limitation.—The omission of the words “as a payment or adjustment of the decree” from the last para. of the old section has made it clear that the Court cannot recognize a payment or adjustment which has not been certified, for any purpose whatsoever. It follows that an uncertified payment or adjustment cannot operate to prolong the period of limitation for applying for execution under the Limitation Act.

As the section stood before, it provided that an uncertified payment could not be recognized as a payment or adjustment of the decree ; so it was formerly held that if a decree-holder sought execution of a decree and was resisted by the judgment-debtor by the plea of limitation, in deciding the question whether it has become time-barred or not it was competent to the Court to take evidence about an uncertified payment made out of Court and to take it into consideration, as every payment gives a fresh starting point for limitation (Tukaram v. Babaji, 21 B. 122; Roshan v. Matadin, 26 A. 36; 23 A. W. N. 179; Hurri v. Nasib, 21 C. 542).

Under the present rule uncertified payments cannot be recognized for the purpose of limitation or for any purpose whatsoever, e.g., extending the limitation; see Kutabullah v. Durga, 16 C. W. N. 396; 13 I. C. 424; Bhajan v. Cheda, 12 A. L. J. 825; 24 I. C. 215; Narsoomal v. Tirathmal, 30 I. C. 51; Amir Singh v. Ghattar, 13 A. L. J. 666; 29 I. C. 274; Bireswar v. Ambika Charan, 45 C. 630; 42 I. C. 472; Kamini v. Aghore, 14 C. W. N. 357; 11 C. L. J. 91 (Ram Dayal v. Ramhari, 20 C. 32; Bairagulu v. Bapanna, 15 M. 302 relied on; Nistarini v. Kazim Ali, 12 C. L. J. 65; Monmohan v. Dwarkanath, 12 C. L. J. 312; Golam Majafar v. Goloke, 25 I. C. 884. Or for deciding whether the application for execution is within time; Ram Sarup v. Jaggannath, 15 I. C. 523; 15 O. C. 234. Or for showing that the decree has been satisfied; Romesh v. Kala Ganji, 50 I. C. 331.

Even if the decree-holder certifies, the judgment-debtor can show that no such payment was made, or that such payment did not extend the period of limitation.—Haider Mirza v. Kailas, 47 I. C. 177. An application to set aside an ex parte order certifying adjustment of a decree is maintainable.—Ghulam v. Qutbuddin, 30 P. L. R. 512; 115 I. C. 467.

The omission of the words has rendered the following decisions nugatory :—Kishan Singh v. Aman Singh, 17 A. 42; Bhubaneswari v. Dina Nath, 2 B. L. R. 320; 11 W. R. 232; Bishto v. Uma, 15 W. R. 459; Fakir v. Madan, 4 B. L. R. 130 (F. B.); 13 W. R. 40 (F. B.); Juggut Mohunee v. Madhub, 15 W. R. 66; Purmanand v. Vallab, 11 B. 506; Tukaram v. Babaji, 21 B. 122; Hurri v. Nasib, 21 C. 542; Rajeswara v. Hari Babandhu, 19 M. 162; Roshan v. Matadin, 26 A. 36; 23 A. W. N. 179 (12 A. 569 overruled); Zahur Khan v. Bakhtawar, 7 A. 327.

Suit by judgment-debtor based on uncertified payments is barred.—Where a decree is alleged to be satisfied by an agreement out of Court but satisfaction is not certified, a subsequent suit on the agreement is not maintainable for a declaration that the amount payable under the decree has been paid and satisfied and for an injunction restraining the decree-holder from executing the decree. Section 47 is a bar to such suit; Denobundhu

v. Hari Mati, 31 C. 480: 8 C. W. N. 395. See also Azizan v. Matuk Lal, 21 C. 437; Bairagulu v. Bapanna, 15 M. 302; Palaneappa v. Somasundaram, 29 I. C. 468. But see Iswar Chandra v. Haris Chandra, 25 C. 718: 2 C. W. N. 247; Mukund v. Hari Das, 17 B. 23. See also Asaram v. Yesha-wantrao, 50 I. C. 956. In Punjab it has been held that a suit lies for a declaration that a decree has been satisfied. Diwan v. Amir, 16 P. R. 1910: 5 I. C. 814 (C); Mt. Jamna v. Belram, 190 P. W. R. 1913; Jan

No separate suit will lie to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree on the ground that the decree had been adjusted out of Court, when, in fact, no such adjustment of the decree has been certified in the manner provided by this section.—Jaikaran Bharti v. Raghunath, 20 A. 254; Prasunno v. Kalidas, 19 C. 633; Mothura v. Akhoy, 15 C. 557; Yellappa v. Ramchandra, 21 B. 463.

Where an application for recording adjustment out of Court has been rejected, the decision cannot be attacked by a regular suit.—Abdulla v. Kanhya, 14 I. C. 751: 92 P. W. R. 1912: 141 P. L. R. 1912.

Suit lies by decree-holder on uncertified adjustment.—In execution of a decree a compromise was effected and the judgment-debtor executed a bond in favour of the decree-holder in satisfaction of the judgment-debt. The compromise was not certified to the Court. Held that the bond was not void, but was binding on the obligor; and a suit upon the bond was therefore, maintainable.—Ramghulam v. Janki Rai, 7 A. 124 (5 B. L. R. 223: 20 W. R. 150, 3 C. L. R. 414, 4 B. 295, 3 A. 533 and 538, followed; 6 B. 146, and 8 B. 300, dissented from). See also Hukum Chand v. Tahar-runnessa, 16 C. 504; Sellamayyan v. Muthan, 12 M. 61; Hara Gobind v. Issuri Dasi, 15 C. 187; Swamirao Narayan v. Kashi Nath Krishna, 15 B. 419; and Tukaram v. Anant Bhat, 25 B. 252. See, however, Thirumalai v. Sundara, 11 M. 469; Abdul Rahiman v. Khoja Khaki, 11 B. 6 (F. B.), and Heeranema v. Pestonji, 22 B. 693 (F. B.) (followed in Dhanram Ragho v. Ganpat Sadashiv, 27 B. 96).

The repeal of S. 257-A makes no agreement to pay any sum in excess of the decretal amount void, and such decree-holders who have obtained bonds in adjustment of decrees may enforce them.

Non-certification is no bar to a suit for damages.—The provision in this rule which forbids any Court to recognize a payment under, or an adjustment of, a decree unless certified to the Court executing the decree, does not debar a suit for damages for breach of contract to certify.—Periatambi Udayan v. Vellaya Goundan, 21 M. 409; Hanmant v. Subbhat, 23 B. 394; Krishnasami Ayyangar v. Ranga Ayyangar, 20 M. 369. See also Virarayhava v. Subbakka, 5 M. 397; Mallamma v. Venkappa, 8 M. 277; Kunhi Moidin v. Ramenunni, 1 M. 203; Davlati v. Ganesh, 4 B. 295; Guni Khan v. Koonjo Behary, 3 C. L. R. 414; Chembrakandi Musutti v. Shekharan, 6 M. 41; Sitaram v. Mahipal, 3 A. 533; Shadi v. Ganga Sahai, 3 A. 538; Tegh Singh v. Amin Chand, 5 A. 269; Ishan Chunder v. Indro Narain, 9 C. 788: 12 C. L. R. 390; Poromanand v. Khepoo, 10 C. 354; Medai Kaliani, In the matter of, 30 M. 545: 3 M. L. T. 15; Gendo v. Nihal Kunwar, 30 A. 464 (3 A. 533 and 21 M. 409 followed); Krishna v. Savirimuthu, 42 M. 338: 50 I. C. 584: 36 M. L. J. 376. The remedy of the judgment-debtor lies in a suit for damages or refund.—Ganesh v. Jeshwant, 25 Bom. L. R. 247; Maung Myo v. Maung Kha, 70 I. C. 115; A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 88. But see Patankar v. Devji, 6 B. 146, and Hormasji Dorabji v. Burjorji, 10 B. 155. To pursue this remedy the judgment-debtor need not wait till the decree is executed, because his cause of action arises as soon as the decree-holder files his application for execution.—Media Kaliani, In the matter of, 30 M. 545.

A judgment-debtor paid the decretal amount out of Court, but the decree-holder did not certify, and executed the decree again. The judgment-debtor paid the amount over again to save his property from attachment. Held that he was entitled to recover the money paid out of Court by a suit.—Shyama Charan v. Chaitanya, 11 I. C. 1 (13 W. R. 69 (F. B.)) : 5 B. L. R. 233 folld.). see also Sayyid Mahomed v. Ko Law Pan, 22 I. C. 963; A. K. R. etc., Chetty Firm v. Maung Tha Din, 7 R. 310 : 119 I. C. 742; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 269; Ma Shwe Pee v. Maung San Myo, 6 R. 573; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 316; Mahbub v. Muhammad, 50 A. 111 : 104 I. C. 419; A. I. R. 1927 All. 710 : 25 A. L. J. 823.

If the judgment-debtor has overpaid any sum under the orders of the lower Court, it is open to him to make an application to that Court for its refund.—Akhil v. Mathuria, 11 I. C. 200.

Uncertified adjustment may be recognized by Courts other than the Court executing the decree—That is to say, such payments may be proved when the cause of action is based on uncertified payments, e. g., the plaintiff had been surety for the defendant on a bond of Rs. 50. The creditor obtained a decree against the plaintiff on this bond, and the plaintiff paid Rs. 38 in full satisfaction. The payment was made out of Court and not certified. The plaintiff now sued the defendant to recover the money so paid by him to the creditor. Held that the last clause of this rule did not apply and that the payment to the creditor might be proved.—Balaji Lakshman v. Dada Joti, 12 B. 235; Noor Mahomed v. Dhaniram, 96 I. C. 234; A. I. R. 1926 Sind 105

A suit will lie to recover money paid or property delivered; Amir Lal v. Ramji Lal, 39 I. C. 15 12 P. L. R. 1917. In a mortgage suit, when the plaintiff applies for a final decree, the Court can take notice of uncertified payments as such proceeding is not an execution proceeding.—Mangar Sahu v. Bhatoo Singh, 1 P. L. T. 416 : 57 I. C. 472; Rasan Chettiar v. Rangayan, 30 L. W. 551 : (1929) M. W. N. 867. But see Piran Bibi v. Jitendra, 21 C. W. N. 920, where it has been held that uncertified payments made after the preliminary decree in a mortgage-suit cannot be proved to oppose the passing of a decree absolute.

The prohibition to take cognizance of uncertified adjustments and payments in this rule relates only to the Court executing the decree; such adjustment may be recognised by a Civil Court except in execution.—Kalyan Singh v. Kamta Prasad, 13 A. 339. See also Ghansham v. Kashiram, 16 B. 589; Azizan v. Matuk Lal, 21 C. 437; that the prohibition is only for purposes that the executing Court cannot inquire proceeding under S. 476, Cr. P. Code.—132 I. C. 713; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 149.

Where a decree has been satisfied out of Court, and the payment has not been certified, it is nevertheless open to the quondam judgment-debtor, when suing, to have a sale made by the quondam decree-holder, after satisfaction of the decree, set aside, to prove the payment of the decretal money otherwise than by a certificate under this rule.—Pat Dasi v. Sharup Chand, 14 C. 376. See also Ramayyar v. Ramayyar, 31 M. 356; and Tegh Singh v. Amin Chand, 5 A. 269. But see Mothura v. Akhoy, 15 C. 557.

Criminal proceedings.—This rule does not debar a Criminal Court from recognizing an uncertified payment, where the decree-holder is charged with fraudulently executing a satisfied decree.—Q. E. v. Pillala, 9 M. 101; Q. E. v. Bapuji, 10 B. 288; Q. v. Mutturaman, 4 M. 325; and Madhub v. Novodeep, 16 C. 126; Trimbak v. Hari, 34 B. 575.

A mere application for execution is not an offence under S. 210, I. P. C. The decree must have been caused to be executed.—Shama Charan v. Kasi Naik, 23 C. 971.

Appeal.—An order under this rule, allowing or refusing an application to record an adjustment of a decree falls within the terms of S. 47. Being made on a question arising between the parties to the suit such an order falls within the definition of "decree" and is appealable under S. 96.—Gurwayya v. Vudayappa, 18 M. 26; Lingayya v. Narasimha, 14 M. 99; Jamna Prasad v. Mathura Prasad, 16 A. 129; Rangji v. Bhaji Harjivan, 11 B. 57; Raja Kamlessuri Prasad v. Sukhan Singh, 7 C. W. N. 172; Biroo Gorain v. Jaimurat, 16 C. W. N. 923; 16 C. L. J. 174; Jadunandan v. Sheonandan, 1 P. 644; (1922) P. 200; 68 I. C. 645; A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 276. An appeal does not lie from an order refusing to restore an application under sub-rule (2) which has been dismissed for default.—Lakhpal v. Bella Mall, 132 I. C. 206; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 505 (relying on 63 I. C. 855 and 45 A. 148). See also Qutab Din v. Hazuri Mal, 105 I. C. 724; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 809.

Time within which decree-holder shall certify.—No time is fixed within which the decree-holder is bound to certify a payment out of Court.—Tukaram v. Babaji, 21 B. 122. He can certify part-payments at any time.—Lakhi Narain v. Falamani, 20 C. L. J. 131; 18 C. W. N. 196 (notes); Hridaymohan v. Khagendra, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 687; Goti Prasad v. Baru Singh, 132 I. C. 426; A. I. R. 1931 All. 219; Joti Prasad v. Srichand, 51 A. 237 (F. B.); 26 A. L. J. 966; 112 I. C. 73; A. I. R. 1923 All. 629; Daw Ywet v. U Tin, 8 R. 310; 127 I. C. 600; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 329; Jalimchand v. Yusuf Ali, 54 C. 143; 86 I. C. 1051; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1012. But a payment cannot be certified after the decree has become time-barred.—Bhajan v. Gheda, 24 I. C. 215.

The decree-holder may certify payment either prior or subsequent to the application for execution by a separate application or he may do so on his application for execution.—Eusuff Zeman v. Sanchia, 43 C. 207; 23 C. L. J. 390; 20 C. W. N. 272; 34 I. C. 606; Madan v. Harulal, 26 C. W. N. 534; Bahy Mahammad v. Aijanamai, 26 C. W. N. 529; 35 C. L. J. 71; A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 30; Masilamani v. Sethuswami, 41 M. 251; Pandurang v. Jagya, 45 B. 91; Maung Law San v. Maung Po Thein, 2 R. 393; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 26; Ghinnaswami v. Periatambi, 117 I. C. 790; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 811; Chotirmal v. Rupchand, A. I. R. 1931 Sind 23; 129 I. C. 929; 25 S. L. R. 360. The Allahabad High Court took a contrary view and held that the certification must be a distinct and prior proceeding; that is, it should be made prior to the application for execution; Bajinath v. Pannalal, 46 A. 635; A. I. R. 1924 All. 706; Chattar Singh v. Amir Singh, 38 A. 204; 32 I. C. 590; 14 A. L. J. 132; Bhajan v. Chheda, 12 A. L. J. 825. It has now held in the recent Full Bench case of Joti Prasad v. Srichand, 51 A. 237, noted ante, that a decree-holder can certify payment in his execution application and can also certify payment after execution application but before objection is taken either by an officer of the Court before issue of notice, or by the judgment-debtor when he appears to contest the application. It has also been held in this case that a certificate of payment given by a decree-holder to the Court is merely an intimation that he has received a sum of money and that the decree to that extent has been satisfied. In the F. B. case Shafi Mahomed v. Choithram, 52 I. C. 804; 13 S. L. R. 37, it has been held that there was no period of time within which such payments have to be certified by the decree-holder and that he may certify by mentioning the fact in his petition for execution and that the object of sub-rule (3) is not to provide a sanction for the obligation imposed on the decree-holder. See also Sheik Elahi Bakhsh v. Nawab Lall, 50 I. C. 364; 4 P. L. J. 159; (1919) P. 260. But the decree-holder must certify before the decree is barred by limitation and an uncertified payment cannot be taken notice of to save limitation; Bahu Bulla v. Jogesh Chandra, 23 C. W. R. 1922 Cal. 30. The alleged payments must be made within three years from the date of the decree and the application to certify must be made within three years from the date of payment; Jatindra v. Gagan, 46 C. 22; 45 I. C. 903; Madan v. Harilal, noted ante; Amar Singh v. Ram Dei, 47 A. 873; Maung Law San v. Maung Po Thein, 2 R. 393. A. I. R. 1925 Rang 26. These rulings so far as they held that the application to certify should be made within three years from the date of payment are no longer good law in view of the Privy Council decision in Prakash v. Allahabad Bank, 3 Luck. 684 (P. C.). See notes under heading "Limitation and step-in-aid of Execution" below. When a decree-holder has made certification he is entitled to prove the payments even if the payments were made more than 90 days prior to the certification; the certification therefore lets in evidence in proof of the payment.—Joti Prasad v. Baru Singh, 132 I. C. 426; A. I. R. 1931 All. 219. (following 51 A. 237 (F. B.); A. I. R. 1928 All. 629).

Part payment, made within time but certified after time, saves limitation.—Rajam Aiyar v. Anantharathnam, 29 M. L. J. 669 (20 C. L. J. 138; referred to).

Jurisdiction of executing Court to order refund of money paid to decree-holder in excess.—When one of several debtors had paid the decretal amount to the decree-holder and got the payment certified under Or. XXI, r. 2, and another judgment-debtor in ignorance of the satisfaction of the decree paid money into Court and it was withdrawn by the decree-holder, and having discovered that the decree had been previously satisfied, the judgment-debtor made an application to the executing Court.

for refund of the money: Held that the executing Court had jurisdiction to entertain such an application.—Gopal v. Rambhanjan, 65 I. C. 307.

Reversal of decree and refund of uncertified payment.—If a decree is reversed on appeal the judgment-debtor is entitled to get back what he had paid to the plaintiff under the decree whether certified by the Court or not.—Vasudeb v. Vishnu, 11 B. 724.

Limitation and step-in-aid of execution.—An application by some of the judgment-debtors, signed by the decree-holders, to have certain payments made out of Court certified under this rule and that time be allowed to pay the balance of the decree, is a "step-in-aid of execution," such as will keep the decree alive within the meaning of Art. 179 of the Limitation Act, 1877.—Vasi Imam v. Poonit Singh, 20 C. 696; Sujan Singh v. Hira Singh, 12 A. 399 (F. B.); Muhammad Husain v. Ram Sarup, 9 A. 9; Tarini Das v. Bishtoo Lal, 12 C. 608; Akbar Jamadar v. Kali Krishna, 4 C. W. N. clii (152); Kasumri v. Beni Prasad, 26 A. 19.

The payment of part of the judgment-debt by the judgment-debtor with the acknowledgment of liability by his pleader, is sufficient under S. 19 of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877), to give a fresh period of limitation.—Trimbak v. Kashi Nath, 22 B. 722. See also Muhamad Said v. Payag Sahu, 16 A. 228, where the acknowledgment was made in the presence of the Collector and it was held to be a valid acknowledgment for all purposes and sufficient under Ss. 19 and 20 of the Indian Limitation Act to save limitation in respect of the execution of the decree.

Certification to the Court under Or. XXI, r. 2 by a decree-holder of a payment made to him out of Court, even if made in the form of an application, is not an "application within Art. 181 of the Limitation Act, 1908, so as to be barred unless it takes place within three years of the payment certified; nor is there any article which limits the time.—Prakash v. Allahabad Bank, 56 I. A. 30: 3 Luck. 684 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1929 P. C. 19: 56 M. L. J. 233 (P. C.): 33 C. W. N. 297: 27 A. L. J. 33: 114 I. C. 581.

It cannot be laid down as a matter of law that the decree-holder's certification is in itself a step-in-aid of execution and can afford a fresh starting point of limitation. In order to save limitation the payment must fall within the provisions of S. 20 of the Limitation Act. Such a certification is not an application to the Court; Prakash v. Allahabad Bank, noted ante relied on.—Amar v. Jagat, 59 C. 760 (F. B.): 35 C. W. N. 1192: 54 C. L. J. 201: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 719: 134 I. C. 922; Maung Tun Hlaing v. U. Aung Gyaw, 126 I. C. 540: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 64. It is the payment that keeps the decree alive; and it is a mistake to regard the process of certification as a revival of the decree.—Ohotirmal v. Rupchand, 25 S. L. R. 360: 129 I. C. 909: A. I. R. 1931 Sind 28. The view expressed in Peare Mohan v. Raghunath, 50 A. 259: 107 I. C. 40: A. I. R. 1928 All. 55, that where a payment by the judgment-debtor is relied on to save litigation for an application for execution, an executing Court must compute limitation from the date not of payment but of certification, seems to be no longer good law in view of the Privy Council decision quoted above.

Omission of S. 257-A from the C. P. Code.—Section 257-A, which had a place in the Code of 1882, has now been omitted. It ran as follows:—

"257-A. Every agreement to give time for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt shall be void, unless it is made for consideration, and with the sanction of the Court which passed the decree, and such Court deems the consideration to be under the circumstances reasonable. Every agreement for the satisfaction of a judgment-debt, which provides for the payment, directly or indirectly of any sum in excess of the sum due or to accrue due under the decree, shall be void, unless it is made with the like sanction. Any sum paid in contravention of the provisions of this section shall be applied to the satisfaction of the judgment-debt; and the surplus (if any) shall be recoverable by the judgment-debtor."

The section was first enacted by Act XII of 1879, with a view to protect the interests of judgment-debtors against the exercise of undue pressure by decree-holders. It gave rise to conflicting decisions and as interpreted by the majority of the High Courts was found in practice to be of little service to the judgment-debtors. Section 16 of the Indian Contract Act as amended, appeared to the Special Committee to afford adequate protection where it was required.

The reason for the omission will be clearly understood on reading the Full Bench case of Atma Singh v. Banke Rai, reported in 61 P. L. R. (1907) : 71 P. W. R. 1907, where all the cases decided by the High Courts under the old section have been referred to, discussed and explained. The Full Bench said :—

"A contract under undue influence as under fraud, coercion or misrepresentation is only voidable, and it is left to the Courts to decide the question upon evidence aided by certain presumptions in particular cases. But here simply because the debt has been the subject of a decree, a contract between a debtor and his creditor relating to the liquidation of the debt by which any time is given for its payment, or any sum however small, is agreed to be paid in excess of the decree, is by inflexible fiat of the Legislature pronounced as a nullity unless made with the sanction of the Court that passed the decree. The effects of such a rule in the substantive law of Contract is far-reaching indeed."

"The first part of S. 257-A is, however, clearly and admittedly an invasion of ordinary Contract Law. Such an agreement without consideration would clearly be void under S. 25 of the Contract Act. But if for any reason, poverty, misfortune, illness, or so on, the judgment-debtor can induce the decree-holder to give him time, and the Court which passed the decree endorses the indulgence, the contract which under substantive law would be void, becomes valid under this special enactment."

"Under the ordinary law, Contract Act, S. 25, an agreement for the satisfaction of the decree, which provides for the payment of a sum in excess of the decree, but does not extinguish the decree, is clearly void in the immense majority of cases, as it is absolutely without consideration. The decree remains in force and executable and the judgment-debtor gains nothing whatever. Such an agreement is void without the intervention of S. 257-A."

The effect of the omission of S. 257-A, from the present Code, is, that now no agreement to give time to the judgment-debtor without any consideration and without the sanction of the Court, or any agreement which provides for the payment of any sum in excess of the sum due or to be due under the decree, would be void except in so far as such agreements may be affected by the provisions of the Indian Contract Act.

For contracts induced by undue influence, see notes to S. 9

COURTS EXECUTING DECREES.

3. Where immoveable property forms one estate or tenure situate within the local limits of the jurisdiction of two or more Courts, any one of such Courts may attach and sell the entire estate or tenure. [New.]

Lands situate in more than one jurisdiction.

COMMENTARY.

Object.—The introduction of this rule settles a point on which decisions were not harmonious. It provides for cases where estates are situate within the jurisdiction of two or more Courts and definitely lays down that any of such Courts may attach and sell the entire estate. The principle was acted upon in various cases and they are noted below.

Sale of property situate in more than one jurisdiction.—A suit was instituted, on a mortgage of a single revenue-paying estate, part of which lay in Bakherganj and part in Fareedpore, in the Sub-Judge's Court at Bakherganj under S. 17, and a decree was obtained for sale of the mortgaged property. Held that the Court was competent to order a sale of the whole of mortgaged property, though only a portion of it was situated in the district of Bakherganj.—Shurroop Chunder v. Ameerunnissa, 8 C. 703; Shama Charan v. Kasi Naik, 23 C. 971. See also Ram Lall v. Bama Sundari, 12 C. 307 (11 B. L. R. 56; 19 W. R. 434 followed); Shib Narain v. Gobind Dos, 23 W. R. 154; and Gunga Narain v. Annunda Moyce, 12 C. L. R. 404. See, however, Unnool Chunder v. Hurry Nath, 2 C. L. R. 334.

In execution of a mortgage decree in a suit brought under the provisions of S. 17 in the Court of the Sub-Judge of Rajshahye, properties situated in the districts of Rajshahye and Nyadumka were sold by the Rajshahye Court.—Maseyk v. Steel & Co., 14 C. 661 (referred to in Gopi Mohun v. Doybaki Nundun, 19 C. 13). The latter case has been followed in Tin Couri Debya v. Shib Chandra, 21 C. 639, and also in Jagernath Sahai v. Dip Rani Koer, 22 C. 871. See, however, Prem Chand v. Mokhoda Debi, 17 C. 699 (F. B.).

Change of territorial jurisdiction.—When during the pendency of execution proceedings, there was a change of territorial jurisdiction of the executing Court, pending proceedings are by operation of law transferred to the Court having jurisdiction and if in spite of such change, property is sold by a Court which initially had jurisdiction, but subsequently had ceased to have jurisdiction owing to such change; held, the sale was invalid.—Kasi v. Murugappa, 33 M. L. J. 750 : 43 I. C. 79.

4. Where a decree has been passed in a suit of which the value as set forth in the plaint did not exceed two thousand rupees and which, as regards its subject-matter, is not excepted by the law for the time being in force from the cognizance of either a Presidency or a Provincial Court of Small Causes, and the Court which passed it wishes it to be executed in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, such Court may send to the Court of Small Causes in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay or Rangoon, as the case may be, the copies and certificates mentioned in rule 6; and such Court of Small Causes shall thereupon execute the decree as if it had been passed by itself.

[S. 223, PARA. 5.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to para. 5 of S. 223 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Scope.—A Small Cause Court executing the decree of another Court has the same powers as it possesses in regard to its own decree; Gunaputty v. Thakurdye, 34 C. 823.

5. Where the Court to which a decree is to be sent for execution is situate within the same district, as the Court which passed such decree, such Court shall send the same directly to the former Court. But, where the Court to which the decree is to be sent for execution is situate in a different district, the Court which passed it shall send it to the District Court of the district in which the decree is to be executed.

[S. 223, PARA. 6.]

COMMENTARY.

Transfer within district.—Direct transfer of decrees within the same district is not illegal; Kelu v. Vikrisha, 15 M. 345.

Direct transfer outside district.—A decree for money passed by a Munsif in one district was sent for execution to a Munsif in another district directly. Held that the latter Court had no jurisdiction to execute it without an express order of the District Judge.—Debi Dial v. Moharaj Singh, 22 C. 764.

The Judge of Gaya sent a decree direct to the Sub-Judge of Palamau: another district for execution who dismissed the application. Held, that he should have returned the papers to Gaya for retransmission to the proper Court instead of dismissal; Prakash v. Baldeo, 22 I. C. 682.

As to the power of the Court to which a decree is transferred for execution to determine the question of limitation, see notes under S. 42.

6. The Court sending a decree for execution shall send—

(a) a copy of the decree ;

Procedure where Court desires that its own decree shall be executed by another Court.

(b) a certificate setting forth that satisfaction of the decree has not been obtained by execution within the jurisdiction of the Court by which it was passed, or, where the decree has been executed in part, the extent to which satisfaction has been obtained and what part of the decree remains unsatisfied ; and

(c) a copy of any order for the execution of the decree, or, if no such order has been made, a certificate to that effect. [S. 224.]

COMMENTARY.

Applicability.—The documents required to be transmitted for the purpose of obtaining execution are a copy of the decree and a certificate of any sum remaining due under it, together with a copy of any order for execution that may be passed.—Venkata Subia v. Sivaramappa, 4. M. H. C. R. 331.

Where the two Courts were presided over by the same Judge, it was not necessary to transfer the decree to himself with all the necessary documents.—Ko Sit Kaung v. Periakaruppan, A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 15.

The words "a copy of any order for the execution of the decree" mean a copy of any subsisting order.—Hathibhai v. Patel, 13 B. 371.

The omission to transmit to the Court executing the decree the certificate required by this rule is a mere irregularity, which would not vitiate the sale.—Abubaker v. Mohidin, 20 M. 10; Lokenath v. Mahim, 35 C. W. N. 308; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 649; 134 I. C. 944.

7. The Court to which a decree is so sent shall cause such copies and certificates to be filed, without any further proof of the decree or order for execution, or of the copies thereof, unless the Court, for any special reasons to be recorded under the hand of the Judge, requires such proof.

Court receiving copies of decree, etc. to file same without proof.

[S. 225.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration and effect—Enquiry into jurisdiction.—The words "or of the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it" which occurred after "copies thereof" have been omitted, on the ground that an executing Court ought not to go into any question as to the jurisdiction of the Court which passed it. The result is that the judgment-debtor cannot now raise any such objection as to jurisdiction in the executing Court.—Bhagwantappa v. Vishwanath, 28 B. 378; Haji Musa v. Purmanand, 15 B. 216; Imdad v. Jagan, 17 A. 478.

The executing Court has no power to question the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree under execution; Hari Govind v. Narsingrao, 38 B. 194: 16 Bom. L. R. 30: 23 I. C. 123. See also Kasturshep v. Rama Kanhoji, 10 B. 65; Ekram Hussain v. Mt. Umatul Rasul, 9 P. 829: 129 I. C. 138: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 27 (where the contention was that the decree was a nullity for want of plaintiff's succession certificate); Govindan v. Natesa, 34 L. W. 806: 61 M. L. J. 520 (defendant was a lunatic and unrepresented at the time of the decree and so decree invalid); S. A. Nathan v. S. R. Samson, 9 R. 480 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 252 (which has held that a Court to which a decree has been transferred must take the decree as it stands and is not entitled to question the validity of the decree upon the ground that the decretal Court had no jurisdiction, territorial, personal or pecuniary to pass it, 8 R. 544 overruled); Shiddappa v. Revappa, 31 Bom. L. R. 1254; Pran Nath v. Maha Dyal, 138 I. C. 376: 33 P. L. R. 725: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 601. But see Sheo Jahal v. Binaek, 29 A. L. J. 653: A. I. R. 1931 All. 689, where Sulaiman, J. expressed a doubt on the point.

The Calcutta High Court has held that the executing Court would be competent to refuse to execute the decree only when on the face of it it would appear that the Court which passed it had no jurisdiction whether pecuniary or territorial or in respect of the judgment-debtor's person, to make it. Within these narrow limits the executing Court is authorised to question the validity of the decree.—Gorachand v. Prafulla, 5 C. 166: 43 C. L. J. 1: 948. But if there is a clear statement upon a plaint which gives the Court jurisdiction to entertain a suit and if upon the basis of that jurisdiction the decree is passed by the Court without any challenge by the defendant as regards the territorial jurisdiction of the Court to pass the decree, it is not open to the defendant in the course of execution to question the jurisdiction of the Court.—Amalabala v. Sarat Kumari, 54 C. L. J. 593: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 380.

As to the powers and functions of such Courts, see notes under S. 42, ante.

It has been held that before issuing execution, the jurisdiction of a foreign Court to pass the decree sought to be executed can be questioned; Veeraraghava v. Muqa Sait, 39 M. 24: 27 M. L. J. 535; Jivappa v. Jeerji, 18 Bom. L. R. 496.

Execution of decree or order by Court to which it is sent.

8. Where such copies are so filed, the decree or order may, if the Court to which it is sent is the District Court, be executed by such Court or be transferred for execution to any subordinate Court of competent jurisdiction.
[S. 226.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 226, C. P. Code, with some modifications. The words "be transferred for execution to any subordinate Court of competent jurisdiction," have been substituted for the words "by any subordinate Court which it directs to execute the same."

Scope.—As to the powers of the Court to which a decree is sent for execution, under this section, see Manorath Das v. Ambika Kant

13 C. W. N. 533, and notes to Ss. 38 and 42 The Court to which a decree is sent for execution may not be competent to execute it before a copy of the decree is received, but once an order is made sending a decree to another Court for execution, that by itself is sufficient to entitle the decree-holder to apply for rateable distribution under S. 73, C. P. Code, to the Court to which the decree has been ordered to be sent; Arimulthu Chetty v. Vyapuri Pandaram, 8 I C 852: and it is not necessary for the decree-holder to apply afresh to the Court to which the decree is transferred, for execution, if he had already applied for execution and transfer to the Court which passed the decree; Dutt v. Taraprasanna, 2 P. 909: (1923) P. 280: 74 I. C. 753.

See notes under heading "Court of competent jurisdiction" in S. 39, ante.

Executing Court cannot extend time of payment.—Where a High Court decree is sent to a Munsif for execution, he has no power to extend the time of payment allowed in the decree. The Court which passed the decree can only grant such extension; Mohideen v. Maria Kami, 21 M. L. J. 1018

9. Where the Court to which the decree is sent for execution is a High Court, the decree shall be executed by such Court in the same manner as if it had been passed by such Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction. [S. 227.]

Execution by High Court of decree transferred by other Court.

COMMENTARY.

Applicability.—The functions of the High Court in respect of the execution of decrees of other Courts are limited to effecting execution, and to matters arising out of the proceedings in execution.—Jadu Ray v. Farrell, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 65.

APPLICATION FOR EXECUTION.

10. Where the holder of a decree desires to execute it, he shall apply to the Court which passed the decree or to the officer (if any) appointed in this behalf, or if the decree has been sent under the provisions hereinbefore contained to another Court then to such Court or to the proper officer thereof. [S. 280, PARA. 1.]

Application for execution

COMMENTARY.

Decree-holder.—A "decree-holder" is the person in whose name the decree was made, or some person whom the Court has by order recognised as the decree-holder from the original plaintiff or his representatives.—Paupayya v. Narasannah, 2 M. 216. A decree-holder, includes any person to whom the decree has been transferred.—Dwar Buksh v. Fatik Jali, 26 C. 250: 3 C. W. N. 222. See also Vishnu Sakharan v. Krishnarao, 11 B. 153 and Chathoth v. Saidindaride, 26 M. 258. See, however, Amar Chundra v. Guru Prosunno, 27 C. 488 and Tameshar Prasad v. Thakur Prasad, 25 A. 443.

But a person who is a stranger and not a party to the suit, cannot apply for execution of the decree merely because he has got certain rights under the decree; he may bring a separate suit; Dil Afza Begum v. Deputy Commissioner, Bahraich, 37 I. C. 133.

As to the right of the decree-holders' representatives to execute the decree without a certificate of heirship, see notes under Or. VII, r. 4.

"Court which passed the decree."—See S. 37 and notes.

If the decree has been sent to another Court.—Where the decree of a District Court has been sent to the Court of a Munsif for execution, and has not been returned to the District Court, the proper Court within the meaning of the Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 182 (5), in which to apply for execution of the decree, is the Court of the Munsif; Maharajah of Bobilli v. Narasaraju, 43 I. A. 238: 39 M. 640: 31 M. L. J. 300: 18 Bom. L. R. 909: 14 A. L. J. 1129: 36 I. C. 682. See also Dewan Chand v. Rallia Ram, L. R. 1931 L. 313: 130 I. C. 521: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 14.

See notes under rule 7, ante and S. 47, ante.

Where terms of decree are ambiguous.—See notes to Or. XX, r. 6 under "Construction of Decree."

11. (1) Where a decree is for the payment of money the Court may, on the oral application of the decree-holder at the time of the passing of the decree, order immediate execution thereof by the arrest of the judgment-debtor, prior to the preparation of a warrant if he is within the precincts of the Court. [S. 256.]

Written application. (2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-rule (1), every application for the execution of a decree shall be in writing, signed and verified by the applicant or by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case, and shall contain in a tabular form the following particulars, namely:—

- (a) the number of the suit;
- (b) the names of the parties;
- (c) the date of the decree;
- (d) whether any appeal has been preferred from the decree;
- (e) whether any, and (if any) what, payment or other adjustment of the matter in controversy has been made between the parties subsequently to the decree;

- (f) whether any, and (if any) what, previous applications have been made for the execution of the decree, the dates of such applications and their results;
 - (g) the amount with interest (if any) due upon the decree, or other relief granted thereby, together with particulars of any cross-decree, whether passed before or after the date of the decree sought to be executed;
 - (h) the amount of the costs (if any) awarded;
 - (i) the name of the person against whom execution of the decree is sought; and
 - (j) the mode in which the assistance of the Court is required, whether—
 - (i) by the delivery of any property specifically decreed;
 - (ii) by the attachment and sale, or by the sale without attachment, of any property;
 - (iii) by the arrest and detention in prison of any person;
 - (iv) by the appointment of a receiver;
 - (v) otherwise, as the nature of the relief granted may require. [S. 235.]
- (3) The Court to which an application is made under sub-rule (2) may require the applicant to produce a certified copy of the decree. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and scope—The old section has been re-cast, and some material changes have been introduced. The important changes are given below and they should be noted.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "for the payment of money" have been substituted for "passed for a sum of money only"; (2) the words "and the amount decreed does not exceed the sum of one thousand rupees," and the sentence "issue of a warrant directed either against the person of the judgment-debtor if he is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court or against his moveable property within the same limits" have been omitted; and (3) the words "arrest of the judgment-debtor prior to the preparation of a warrant if he is within the precincts of the Court" have been added.

Sub-rule (2).—The words "save as otherwise provided by sub-rule (1), every" have been added in the beginning.

But a person who is a stranger and not a party to the suit, cannot apply for execution of the decree merely because he has got certain rights under the decree; he may bring a separate suit; Dil Afza Begum v. Deputy Commissioner, Bahraich, 37 I. C. 133.

As to the right of the decree-holders' representatives to execute the decree without a certificate of heirship, see notes under Or. VII, r. 4.

"Court which passed the decree."—See S. 37 and notes.

If the decree has been sent to another Court.—Where the decree of a District Court has been sent to the Court of a Munsif for execution, and has not been returned to the District Court, the proper Court within the meaning of the Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 182 (5), in which to apply for execution of the decree, is the Court of the Munsif; Maharajah of Bobilli v. Narasaraju, 43 I. A. 238·39 M. 640; 31 M. L. J. 300; 18 Bom. L. R. 909; 14 A. L. J. 1129·36 I. C. 632. See also Diwan Chand v. Rallia Ram, L. R. 1931 L. 313; 130 I. C. 521; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 14.

Where terms of decree are ambiguous.—See notes to Or. XX, r. 6 under "Construction of Decree."

11. (1) Where a decree is for the payment of money the Court may, on the oral application of the decree-holder at the time of the passing of the decree, order immediate execution thereof by the arrest of the judgment-debtor, prior to the preparation of a warrant if he is within the precincts of the Court. [S. 256.]

(2) Save as otherwise provided by sub-rule (1), every application for the execution of a decree shall be in writing, signed and verified by the applicant or by some other person proved to the satisfaction of the Court to be acquainted with the facts of the case, and shall contain in a tabular form the following particulars, namely:—

- (a) the number of the suit;
- (b) the names of the parties;
- (c) the date of the decree;
- (d) whether any appeal has been preferred from the decree;
- (e) whether any, and (if any) what, payment or other adjustment of the matter in controversy has been made between the parties subsequently to the decree;

- (f) whether any, and (if any) what, previous applications have been made for the execution of the decree, the dates of such applications and their results;
- (g) the amount with interest (if any) due upon the decree, or other relief granted thereby, together with particulars of any cross-decree, whether passed before or after the date of the decree sought to be executed;
- (h) the amount of the costs (if any) awarded;
- (i) the name of the person against whom execution of the decree is sought; and
- (j) the mode in which the assistance of the Court is required, whether—
 - (i) by the delivery of any property specifically decreed;
 - (ii) by the attachment and sale, or by the sale without attachment, of any property;
 - (iii) by the arrest and detention in prison of any person;
 - (iv) by the appointment of a receiver;
 - (v) otherwise, as the nature of the relief granted may require. [S. 235.]

(3) The Court to which an application is made under sub-rule (2) may require the applicant to produce a certified copy of the decree. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and scope.—The old section has been re-cast, and some material changes have been introduced. The important changes are given below and they should be noted.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "for the payment of money" have been substituted for "passed for a sum of money only"; (2) the words "and the amount decreed does not exceed the sum of one thousand rupees," and the sentence "issue of a warrant directed either against the person of the judgment-debtor if he is within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court or against his moveable property within the same limits" have been omitted; and (3) the words "arrest of the judgment-debtor prior to the preparation of a warrant if he is within the precincts of the Court" have been added.

Sub-rule (2).—The words "save as otherwise provided by sub-rule (1), every" have been added in the beginning.

Clause (e).—In Cl. (e) the words “payment or other,” have been added: and the word “controversy” has been substituted for the word “dispute.”

“The Committee have not given effect to the suggestion that this should be limited to payments and adjustments which the creditor executing the decree is bound by law to recognize, as this would remove a valuable incentive to state truly what payments have been made (see 10 B. 288).”—See also the Report of the Special Committee.

In the case of Queen-Empress v. Bapuji Dayaram, 10 B. 288, referred to in the Report of the Special Committee, it has been held that under S. 235, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI. r. 11), the decree-holder or the party who applies for execution, is bound to state in his application any adjustment between the parties after decree, whether such adjustment has or has not been previously certified to the Court. Intentional omission to make such statement amounts to an offence under S. 193 of the Penal Code (XLV of 1860).

Clause (f).—In Cl. (f), the words “dates of such applications” have been added

Omission to specify all the previous applications with their dates and their results is not a material irregularity such as would render the whole of the execution proceeding illegal—Saudamini v. Jessore Registered Loan Co. Ltd., 96 I C 554: A. I. R. 1926 Cal 1146.

Clause (g).—In Cl. (g), the words “together with particulars of any cross-decree whether passed before or after the date of the decree sought to be executed” have been added. By the changes this clause has been rendered more general. The change seems to have introduced in adoption of the principle laid down in Damodar v. Vyanku, 31 B. 244 (249), where it has been held that a debt or compensation cannot be attached until ascertained.

Clause (j).—Sub-Cl. (ii) of Cl. (j) has been substituted for the words “by the attachment of his property.”

Sub-Cl. (iii) of Cl. (j) has been substituted for the words “by the arrest and imprisonment of the person named in the application.” The omission of the words “named in the application” seems material, inasmuch as the decree-holder, under the provisions of the old Code, was bound to name the person to be arrested in his application for execution, and thus giving sufficient opportunity to the person named to evade the process. But under the present Code the decree-holder is not bound to disclose the name of the person to be arrested in his petition for execution. He can give the name of the person to be arrested, at any subsequent stage of the proceedings, when he may find the opportunity for arresting the judgment-debtor. This is for the benefit of the decree-holder.

Sub-Cl. (iv) of Cl. (j) is new. Decrees may be executed by appointment of Receivers in cases where such appointment is just and convenient as for instance in Administration Suits.—Maung Po Win v. Ma Tin, 36 I. C. 385. A Receiver may be appointed in execution of money or other decrees. See other cases under Or. XL, r. 1, C. P. Code.

No second appeal lies from an order appointing a Receiver on an application under this rule.—Vishnu v. Jashakut, (1928) M. W. N. 390.

Except in the case where the decree itself directs the appointment of a Receiver to work out the relief, no decree-holder has a right to ask for appointment of Receiver only under this sub-clause. It would always be an alternative mode to the relief mentioned in Sub-Cl. (2) of Cl. (j) i.e., attachment and sale.—Cheria Kumhi v. Valia, 114 I. C. 839 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 20.

In Sub-Cl. (v) of Cl. (j) the words "relief granted" have been substituted for the words "relief sought," which occurred in the old Code. Any method suggested by the decree-holder for the satisfaction of his decree, which method is not actually prohibited by law, falls within the purview of Sub-Cl. (v).—Ghanaya Lal v. Punjab National Bank, 111 I. C. 259 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 7 (relying on A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 616).

Sub-rule (3).—This is new. Under the old Code, it was optional with the decree-holder to file a copy of the decree with his application for execution. But under the present Code, it would depend entirely upon the discretion of the Court.

For the mode of execution of a mortgage-decree and limitation, see notes under Or. XXXIV.

Sub-rule (1).—The Court has a discretion, see rr. 21 and 37.

Form.—See Appendix E, No. 6.

Date of decree for purposes of execution.—This must be taken to be the date of the judgment for the purpose of Art. 179, Limitation Act. Time runs therefore not from the date when the decree was actually signed but from the date of judgment; Rakhal v. Jogendra, 10 C. L. J. 467; Afzul v. Umda, 1 C. W. N. 93; Golam v. Goljan, 25 C. 109; Yamaji v. Antaji, 23 B. 442. See Or. XX, r. 7.

Verification.—An application for execution verified by a general attorney of the decree-holder is a proper verification, notwithstanding that his principal may be residing within the jurisdiction of the Court; Bakar v. Udit Narain, 26 A. 154 (23 A. 499 distinguished). One of several decree-holders may verify.—Bhagwat v. Dwarka, 74 I. C. 174. Verification by a person other than the decree-holder, but who is well acquainted with the facts of the case, is valid. It is not necessary that the verification should be made in open Court or after obtaining permission of the Court.—Khararia Mejazilla Zemindari Syndicate Ltd. v. Omed Sheikh, 28 C. W. N. 687 : 80 I. C. 313 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 811.

As to the mode of verification, see notes to Or. VI, r. 15.

Arrest.—In authorizing immediate execution of a Small Cause Court decree by the issue of a warrant either against the person or the moveable property of a judgment-debtor, the Legislature never intended that the debtor should be protected from arrest until he had a reasonable time for returning home.—De Penning v. Debendronath, 9 W. R. 549.

As to privilege from arrest, see notes under S. 135.

Sub-rule (3)—Copy of Decree.—Formerly applications for execution need not have been accompanied with the copy of decree (see Gunga v. Makhun, 9 W. R. 362; Khetur v. Ishur, 11 W. R. 271; Modhoo v. Nobin, 16 W. R. 25; Dhanpat v. Lilanand, 2 L. B. Ap. 18 : 11 W. R. 28; Rajkumar v. Rajlakhi, 12 C. 451; Rajaram v. Banaji, 23 B. 311. Now under the new Sub-Cl. (3) the discretion to dispense with the copy of the decree rests with the Court. It is perfectly clear that the Code does not require that a copy of the decree is to be attached to the application; Raj Gir v. Iswardhari, 11 C. L. J. 243. As the Code does not require a copy to be attached the decree-holder cannot get the cost of the copy; Raghubar v. Jadunandan, 16 C. W. N. 736: 15 C. L. J. 89.

An order for a copy of the decree is wholly needless, when the Court in which the application is made is the very Court which made the decree; so that if any reference to the decree is needed the original could easily be examined, especially in a case where the cost of procuring a copy was prohibitive.—Mathuranath v. Janakinath, 57 C. 996: 129 I. C. 780: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 804.

Before a decree-holder can obtain execution of a decree affirmed by the Privy Council, he must produce, on the application for execution, a certified copy of the order passed by the Council—Juggernath v. Judoo, 5 C. 329: 4 C. L. R. 387. See also Joy Narain v. Goluck Chunder, 20 W. R. 444.

Where the original order of Her Majesty in Council (given to the successful party) had not been filed in the High Court, so as to enable the proper officer to supply a certified copy: held that a copy, though not certified by him, might accompany a petition for execution.—Hurrish v. Kali Sundari, 10 I. A. 4: 9 C. 482 (P. C.): 12 C. L. R. 511.

Lost or destroyed decree.—A Court has inherent powers to restore its record when it has been lost or destroyed and application for execution may be made before reconstruction of the decree. The contents of the lost record may be proved by secondary evidence under S. 65 (c) of the Evidence Act; Raj Gir v. Iswardhari, 11 C. L. J. 243. See also Narsingh v. Harkhu, 8 C. L. J. 521.

Applications for execution not containing the particulars mentioned in sub-rule (2).—An application for execution not containing the necessary particulars required by this rule, is a mere scrap of paper and does not amount to an execution application.—Ramdhun Roy v. Abdool Gunnee, 9 W. R. 390; Oodoy Chand v. Nobo Coomar, 10 W. R. 428; and Gouree Sunkur v. Arman Ali, 21 W. R. 309; Bhupendra Narain v. Janeswar, 90 I. C. 761: 7 P. L. T. 350: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 533. But every omission in an application for execution is not necessarily a material irregularity, such as would vitiate the execution proceeding. Whether an omission is or is not material, will depend on the particular circumstances of the case; Saudamini v. Jessore Registered Loan Co. Ltd., 96 I. C. 554: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1146.

If it does not specify the mode in which the assistance of the Court is sought the application is defective; Karamchand v. Ghela Bhai, 19 B. 34; Prolay v. Peary, 9 C. L. R. 453: 8 C. 174; and should be dismissed without deciding whether the decree is capable of execution; Satish v. Purna, 11 I. C. 696.

Where an application for execution omits to give the names of all the parties, even if it shall appear from the other parts of the proceedings who those parties are, the parties named must be understood to be the parties defendants against whom the execution is sought.—Abdool Kureem v. Jaun Ali, 18 W. R. 56.

Where an execution Court held that the application was not in accordance with law in view of mistakes made in filling up the columns and gave the decree-holder repeated opportunities of either correcting the alleged mistakes or of pointing out to the Court that it was in error and he ignored the Court's order altogether, held that the decree-holder was bound by the view the Court intimated to him and which by his silence he must be taken to have accepted.—Suddeshwari v. Paljhan, 131 I. C. 33 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 722.

It is nowhere laid down that the omission on the part of a decree-holder to state in his application the names of all the persons who are interested in the decree is such a defect as would invalidate execution proceedings. It is in the discretion of the Court to give notice to the other decree-holders or to the judgment-debtor before making an order for execution and it is not for the judgment-debtor to raise an objection that sufficient steps have not been taken to safeguard the interests of the other decree-holders when they themselves have not made any complaint (32 P. L. R. 290 followed).—Nasruddin v. Dost Mahomed, 33 P. L. R. 549.

Where an application for execution is not complete in itself, so as to show in what manner execution is to be taken out, still it is capable of being acted upon, if it refers to the former application in which the mortgaged properties were set out, and prays that the decree may be executed by sale of those properties.—Wajihan alias Alijan v. Bishwanath, 18 C. 462. See also Asgar Ali v. Troilokya Nath, 17 C. 631 (F. B.). An application to amend a petition for execution, though not in the form required by law, but which when read with the original application supplies all the information, should be treated as a first application and allowed to proceed.—Haridas v. Raj Kumar, 53 I. C. 111.

Where the decree gives reliefs of a different character, separate and successive applications in respect of each relief may be made.—Radha Kishen v. Radha Pershad, 18 C. 515; Sadho v. Hawal, 19 A. 98 (F. B.). See also Fulchand v. Bai Ichha, 12 B. 98.

A decree-holder who has attached before judgment, and who is desirous of sharing in the distribution of sale-proceeds under S. 73 must make an application for execution under this rule.—Pallonji v. Jordan, 12 B. 400. An application, praying only for rateable distribution for execution. The C. P. Code does not require distribution as such. A decree-holder to obtain distribution under S. 73 must make an application for execution praying for execution of his decree in one of the ways mentioned in this rule, before the receipt of assets by the Court.—Balaji v. Gopal, 25 N. L. R. 94 : 116 I. C. 655 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 148.

As to the right of the decree-holder's representatives to execute the decree without a certificate of heirship, see notes under Or. VII, r. 4.

A decree declared null and void against one of the parties to it, is not susceptible of execution against others.—Parupati Nath v. Nando Lal, 30 C. 718 (10 B. 338 and 25 M. 426 referred to).

Continuance of execution proceedings after death of judgment-debtor.—Execution proceedings already commenced continues after the death of the judgment-debtor by substitution of the name of the legal representative and no fresh application under this rule is necessary.—Purushottan v. Rajbai, 34 B. 142.

Clause (i)—Execution against Benamdar.—A decree cannot be executed against any one not a party to it, nor a representative of the judgment-debtor, on the ground that he is a benamdar.—Jadu Nath v. Premmoni, 14 C. W. N. 774.

Execution against a transferee.—The mere fact that the transferee from the judgment-debtor takes up the position of a representative of the judgment-debtor bound by the decree does not entitle the decree-holder to proceed against him in execution. Sembla: In a suitable case the Court, even apart from the provisions of adding a party for purposes of execution, may have the power to allow execution against a transferee.—Hem Chandra v. Annapurna, 36 C. W. N. 93: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 423.

Where a transferee of the defendant's interest after decree of the first Court, not made liable under the decree, got himself impleaded in appeal as an appellant and contested in appeal and second appeal and the decree of the first Court was confirmed, held that the executing Court had no power to go behind the decrees and so the decree could not be executed against the appellant transferee.—Ishwar v. Ramrao, 34 Bom. L. R. 948: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 462.

Clause (e).—The decree-holder is bound to state any adjustment between the parties after decree, whether such adjustment has or has not been previously certified to the Court. Intentional omission to make such statement amounts to an offence under S. 193, I. P. Code.—Queen-Empress v. Bapuji, 10 B. 288 (2 M. 216 followed). See, however, Shama Charan v. Kasi Naik, 23 C. 971.

Clause (g).—If the decree awards interest and the application for execution specifies the interest from the date of the decree to date of application, execution may be ordered for future interest also up to the date of the sale, even though that is not specifically included in the application.—Basanta v. Baikuntha, 36 C. W. N. 404.

Clause (j).—Upon an application for execution of a decree for removal of a building the mode in which the assistance of the Court was required was stated to be by giving the decree-holder possession of his wall by pulling down the wall. Held that the decree-holder's application could not be granted in that form, and that he should have asked the assistance of the Court in the way provided by S. 260, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 32).—Protap v. Peary, 8 C. 174: 9 C. L. R. 453.

Execution in part.—See notes to rule 15 under "Execution of Part of Decree."

Then, if and when.

such an order is obtained after determination of any objection of the defendant, application may be made in the usual way for execution of the order.—Sudevi v. Sovaram, 10 C. W. N. 306.

A conditional decree directed that if the defendant deposited the amount within three months he would be liable to pay interest at 12 per cent. (the claim was at 30 per cent.) and would be exempted from further liability. It was affirmed by the High Court and Privy Council. Held that the time for payment must be calculated from the date of the decree of the first Court and not from date of the Privy Council decree.—Ghanshyam v. Ram Narain, 31 A. 379.

Who may apply for execution.—A decree was passed in favour of a firm with the name of an agent. The application for execution was made by an agent other than the agent named. Such proceedings, however irregular, were not invalid.—Lachman Bibi v. Patni Ram, 1 A. 510.

The person appearing on the face of the decree as the decree-holder is entitled to execution, unless it be shown by some other person that he has taken the decree-holder's place.—Jasoda Deye v. Kirtibash, 18 C. 639.

What applications are "in accordance with law."—The following applications for execution have been held to be "in accordance with law" within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act.

By legal representative of a decree-holder without a certificate under Act VII of 1839.—Balkishan v. Wagarsing, 20 B. 76. See Hafizuddin v. Abdool, 20 C. 755 and Adhar v. Lal Mohun, 24 C. 778. So an application without probate.—Hari Badani v. Gobinda, 9 C. L. J. 382. By a representative of the decree-holder whose name is not brought on the record.—Algirisamy v. Venkatachellapathy, 31 M. 77. By a mere benamdar.—Balkishen v. Bedmati Koer, 20 C. 388 (4 B. L. R. Ap. 40; 14 B. L. R. 425-note; 19 W. R. 255, followed). But see Denonath v. Lallit Coomar, 9 C. 633; 12 C. L. R. 146, and Gour v. Hem, 16 C. 355.

An application for execution, made through mistake, against the minor's mother personally, and not as his guardian.—Hari v. Narayan, 12 B. 427.

An application for execution not accompanied by a copy of a decree.—Ramachandra v. Lazman, 31 B. 162; 8 Bom. L. R. 892 (28 M. 557 followed).

An application for execution by the party entitled to make it, although by mistake the deceased judgment-debtor is named as the person against whom execution is sought.—Samia Pillai v. Chockalinga, 17 M. 76.

An application in which there is non-compliance with certain formalities regarding execution is none the less an application in accordance with law; Srinivasa v. Tirumalai, 23 I. C. 99; 15 M. L. T. 337. Where the decree-holders have not expressly asked the Court to execute the decree of the appellate Court, yet they had mentioned that an appeal was preferred by the judgment-debtors and was decided in favour of the decree-holders; held that this amounted to an application to execute the appellate decree and not the decree of the first Court.—Ekram Hussain v. Mt. Umatul Rasul, 9 P. 529; 123 I. C. 138; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 27. Showing the date of the decree wrongly is an immaterial irregularity which does not affect the validity of the application.—Volkart v. Achrajram, 134 I. C. 1182; A. I. R. 1931 Sind 160.

An application for execution though not duly signed and verified by the decree-holder, but if it is actually signed and verified by the pleader in the original suit, is in accordance with this rule; Hassan v. Ramchandra, 31 Bom. L. R. 355; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 196; 117 I. C. 526. An application signed and verified by a pleader who was acting as next friend to the minor plaintiff in the original suit and who signed it in the bona fide belief that the plaintiff was still a minor and whose act was subsequently ratified by the plaintiff when objection was raised by the judgment-debtor, held that the application is in accordance with law and not liable to dismissal.—Madho v. Ghanaya, A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 603.

Applications not "in accordance with law."—By a guardian of a minor who was major at the time of the application.—Saramma v. Seshayya, 28 M. 396. But see Madho v. Ghanaya, ante.

By the general attorney of a decree-holder at a time when he himself is resident within the jurisdiction of the Court executing the decree.—Murari v. Umrao, 23 A. 499. See also Kasumri v. Beni, 26 A. 19. But see Bakar v. Udit, 26 A. 154, and Autoo v. Bidhoomookhee, 4 C. 605.

An application against the judgment-debtor's surety while the judgment-debtor's application for declaration of insolvency was pending.—Langtu Pande v. Baijnath, 28 A. 387.

Irregularities—Defective execution was :

presente rule not having

The am : but after the expiry of three years, a fresh application was presented in due form with the defective application that was returned for amendment. Held that the execution was barred as the defective application was not made in accordance with law.—Gopal Sah v. Janki Koer, 23 C. 217 (explained in Mathura v. Anurago, 14 C. W. N. 481). See also Asgar Ali v. Troilokya Nath, 17 C. 631 (F. B.) (14 C. 124 overruled), where the application was defective in not complying with the provisions of r. 13. An application not properly verified was held to be a defective application.—Raghunatha v. Venkatesa, 26 M. 101. But see Gopal Chunder v. Gosain Das, 25 C. 594 (F. B.) : 2 C. W. N. 556; Rama v. Varada, 16 M. 142; Ramanadan v. Periatambi, 6 M. 250; Mahomed v. Abedoolah, 12 C. L. R. 279; Fuzloor Ruhman v. Altaf Hossein, 10 C. 541; Jibhai Mahipati v. Parbhu Bapu, 1 B. 59; Hurry Charan v. Subayda, 12 C. 161, and Kalka Dube v. Bisheshar Patak, 23 A. 162. In these latter cases it has been held that an informal application for execution filed within time, but not amended till after that time is not valid. The decree is not dead. The decree is still alive. An application for execution is sufficient to save the decree. The addition of sub-rule (2) in rule 17 has settled the point that where a defective application is amended it shall be deemed to have been presented on the date when it was first presented. A defective application thus amended will save limitation. See Gnanendra v. Rishendra, 22 C. W. N. 540; 27 C. L. J. 398; 44 I. C. 553; Natesa v. Ganapathia, 40 M. 949; 38 I. C. 136; Kanji Mal v. Kedar Nath, 49 I. C. 982. The law casts upon the Court a duty to ascertain if the application for execution is in order; if it is not, then either to reject it or to allow it to be amended.—Ganesh v. Fatteh Chand, 55 I. C. 16; Bhagwat v. Dwarka, 74 I. C. 174: 2 P. 809: A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 23: (1923) Pat. 229. See notes to r. 17.

In considering an application or not the substance and form to. Where the application was not in form of Practice but it was filed under Or. XXI, r. 11 with the main particulars required by the rule and the Court overlooked the want of form and passed an order granting the relief prayed for; held that the application was one in execution, (per Devadoss, J., contra, Jackson, J.)—Abdul Salam v. Veerabhadra Raju, 107 I. C. 298: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 129 (34 M. 25 dist.). Where a tabular statement in accordance with Or. XXI, r. 11 was filed before the Master who issued notice to the other side, held, that it amounted to an application to the Court within the meaning of Art. 183 of the Limitation Act read in conjunction with S. 3 of that Act and that limitation was saved thereby.—Atarmoni Dasi v. Bepin Behari, 55 C. 1341: 115 I. C. 83: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 193.

An application for execution to obtain relief not given by the decree is not an application in accordance with law, and does not keep the decree alive—Pandarinath v. Lala Chand, 13 B. 237.

Where the moveable property of the judgment-debtor is outside the jurisdiction of the Court, an application in execution to sell such property is not an application in accordance with law, unless the application was made on a bonafide belief that moveable property did exist within the jurisdiction of the Court.—Volkart v. Achrajram, 134 I. C. 1182: A. I. R. 1931 Sind 160.

An application for execution, without specifying the proper mode in which the assistance of the Court is required, but asking the assistance of the Court in an improper mode, is not an application in accordance with law, so as to keep the decree in force.—Muhammad Umar v. Kamila Bibi, 4 A. 34. Where the application for execution was in form except that it did not describe the mode in which the assistance of the Court was required and it appeared that the object was to realise the decree amount by sale of property: held, that the application was valid in law so as to extend limitation.—Ghanaya Lal v. Punjab National Bank, 138 I. C. 249: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 534.

An insufficiently stamped application for execution of a decree may suffice to keep the decree alive.—Ramasami Ayyan v. Seshayyanagar, 6 M. 181.

An application for execution by attachment of the judgment-debtor's property was dismissed for non-payment of process-fees. Held that the application was in accordance with law, and kept the decree alive.—Kerala Varma v. Shangaram, 16 M. 452.

This rule is no bar to the maintenance of concurrent execution-Courts. The Court may allow amendment of the application for execution already filed by addition of other properties to the list.—Ram Sumran v. Ram Bahadur, 71 I. C. 741: 2 P. 328: 4 P. L. T. 99: (1923) P. 61: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 224.

Where a decree was by mistake dated 16th February, 1929, instead of 11th February and the decree-holder being misled thereby, applied for execution the 15th February, 1933, held, actus curiae neminem gravabit, and that the decree ought to be regarded as having been passed on the 16th February, 1929.—Nalini Kanta v. Kamareddi, 56 C. L. J. 185.

Omission to give the date of disposal of a prior application is not fatal, but omission to mention existence of cross-decrees may be fatal.—Prosanna v. Jotindra, 71 I. C. 1054.

Validity of application—Burden of proof.—The burden of proving that the application for execution is not time-barred and is in accordance with law is on the applicant.—Volkart v. Achrajram, 134 I. C. 1182 : A. I. R. 1931 Sind 160.

12. Where an application is made for the attachment of any moveable property belonging to a judgment-debtor but not in his possession, the decree-holder shall annex to the application an inventory of the property to be attached, containing a reasonably accurate description of the same. [S. 236.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope.—This rule refers to an application for attachment of moveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor, but not in his possession. Rules 43 and 45 prescribe the attachment of moveable property in his possession.

Where the father of a joint Hindu family was sued and a money-decree was passed and he having died his sons were brought on record and the plaintiff sought to attach the moveables belonging to the family in execution ; held that in such a case it was not necessary for the decree-holder to put an inventory.—Gopal Rao v. Hari Lakshman, 31 Bom. L. R. 1291. See also Bridichand v. Badesaheb, 28 Bom. L. R. 1322 : 98 I. C. 941 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 52.

"Failure to annex inventory"—Inventory must be delivered into Court along with the application. Yusoof, 7 C. 556, p. 559. See also Dhonkal v. F, failure to annex an inventory with the application for execution makes it not in accordance with law under Art. 182, Limitation Act ; Abdul Rafi v. Maula Bakhsh, 37 A. 527. See also 13 A. L. J. 706.

13. Where an application is made for the attachment of any immovable property belonging to a judgment-debtor, it shall contain at the foot—

(a) a description of such property sufficient to identify the same and, in case such property can be identified by boundaries or numbers in a record of settlement or survey, a specification of such boundaries or numbers ; and

Application for attachment of immovable property to contain certain particulars.

Failure to give particulars.—An application which does not contain the particulars required by this rule cannot be treated as "an application in accordance with law " for the purpose of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act.—Sakkar Gauda v. Bhimappa, L. R. 1931 B. 143: 129 I. C. 159: 32 Bom. L. R. 1368: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 138.

- 14. Where an application is made for the attachment of any land which is registered in the office of the Collector, the Court may require the applicant to produce a certified extract from the register of such office, specifying the persons registered as proprietors of, or as possessing any transferable interest in, the land, or its revenue, or as liable to pay revenue for the land, and the shares of the registered proprietors. [S. 238.]

Power to require certified extract from Collector's register in certain cases.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—Under the old section it was compulsory that the application should be accompanied by a certified extract. This restriction has been removed, and it has been left to the Court to determine whether such an extract should be asked to be produced.

Certified extract.—In attaching an estate paying revenue to Government, the attaching creditor must give also the special information required by this rule.—Ajoodhya v. Sheo Pershun, 11 W. R. 175. See also Laek Ram v. Mohesh, 12 W. R. 488.

It is unnecessary to specify in the sale notification the names of the mouzas included in the property sought to be sold. All that is necessary is to specify the estate or shares of estates, and the number they bear in the Collector's Office.—Amirunessa v. Secretary of State, 10 C. 63: 13 C. L. R. 131.

The circumstance that a sale-notification contains only the name of one, and not the recorded proprietors of a revenue-paying estate, does not amount to an irregularity.—Secretary of State v. Rashbehary, 9 C. 591: 12 C. L. R. 27.

In addition to the information required by Or. XXI, rr. 13 and 14, the area of a revenue-free tenure and the amount of an annual revenue should be stated in the application for attachment.

- 15. (1) Where a decree has been passed jointly in favour of more persons than one, any one or more of such persons may, unless the decree imposes any condition to the contrary, apply for the execution of the whole decree for the benefit of them all, or, where any of them has died, for the benefit of the survivors and the legal representatives of the deceased.

(2) Where the Court sees sufficient cause for allowing the decree to be executed on an application made under this rule, it, shall make such order as it deems necessary for protecting the interests of the persons who have not joined in the application. [S. 281.]

Application for execution by joint decree-holder.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This rule corresponds with S. 281, C. P. Code, with some changes. The words "unless the decree imposes any condition to the contrary," have been added in subrule (1). The addition seems to have been made in accordance with the principle laid down in 6 A. 69, noted below. The words "or his or their representatives" have been omitted, as this will be covered by the general clause (S. 146).

Scope.—The Code does not expressly lay down the rules as to the course to be pursued by the Court, if several persons who have rights in a decree all seek to execute it. Rule 15 provides for cases where a decree has been passed jointly in favour of more persons than one; Ammaha v. Mangaraj, 17 I. C. 323; 13 M. L. T. 297.

The deposit of pro-emption money in a suit for pre-emption within the time fixed by the Court is neither a proceeding in execution nor a step towards execution. Or. XXI, r. 15 does not apply to a deposit of purchase-money—per Sulaiman, J. [contra Boys, J.].—Aurup v. Ram Harakh, 51 A. 993; 1929 A. L. J. 1049; A. I. R. 1929 All. 953.

Joint-decree.—This means a decree passed in favour of two or more persons although their share or interest in the decretal amount or property may be different. When a suit is brought by a firm and the partners of the firm have not been disclosed, the decree in favour of the firm cannot be said to be a joint-decree. Consequently payment of the decree amount to a partner of the firm after dissolution of the firm operates as a valid discharge of the decree amount—Yusuf Mahbub v. Sallah Mahomad, 105 I. C. 802; A. I. R. 1928 Sind 37. A firm's name is only a method of writing in shorthand the names of all the partners and a decree in the name of the firm must be held to be a decree passed jointly in favour of all the partners. Consequently some of the partners can take out execution for the benefit of the remaining partners also.—Abdul Hamid v. Dhanpat, 131 I. C. 376; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 507.

A joint-decree remains a joint-decree notwithstanding the acts of the decree-holder in realizing his money from one or more of the judgment-debtors separately.—Wahed Ali v. Mullick Enayet, 12 B. L. R. 500; 20 W. R. 31; Sreenath v. Sahib, 12 B. L. R. 504-n; 12 W. R. 305; Krishna v. Ram Lochun, 2 W. R. Mis. 49; Gopal v. Ramanooora, 5 W. R. Mis. 9; and Roghoonath v. Alladeen, 8 W. R. 201; Jugurnath v. Ahmedollah, 8 W. R. 132; Oudhbehari v. Broja Mohan, 4 B. L. R. Ap. 41; 13 W. R. 124; and Nunkoo v. Dhunesh, 17 W. R. 497.

In the case of a joint-decree any arrangement made by the decree-holders amongst themselves or to their relative shares in the decree would not alter its character; Indurjeet v. Mazum, 6 W. R. Mis. 76; Brijjo Coomar v. Han Bukh, 1 W. R. Mis. 1.

The term "joint-decree" is wide enough to apply to a case where the rights of the several parties have been determined by one and the same decree.—Brichandra Chur Deo v. Bhyam Kumari, 11 P. 445; A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 251.

Application for execution of the whole decree by one of several joint-decree-holders.—Under ordinary circumstances all the decree-holders must join in the execution. Where some of the joint-decree-holders apply for execution, the application may be refused or granted at the discretion of the Court, which is bound to protect the interests of the absent decree-holder, but whether the Court does so or not, all recoveries in execution so made must be for the benefit of all the decree-holders.—Shib Chunder v. Ram Chunder, 16 W. R. 29. See also Tara Sundari v. Beharilal, 1 B. L. R. 28, and A. J. Meik v. The Midnapur Zamindari Co. Ltd., 53 I. C. 803; Arunachala v. Virappa, 112 I. C. 410; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 800. It is immaterial whether the judgment-debtors pay the whole or any portion of the amount into Court or outside the Court during the pendency of the execution application in the hands of the executing creditor; and the fact that one of the joint-decree-holders can apply with the permission of the Court for execution for his share does not stand in the way of his claiming by a suit his share of the amount realised by another decree-holder who executes the decree on behalf of all.—Ibid. See also Gauri Shankar v. Kunwar Jang, 2 Luck. 259; 97 I. C. 896; A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 605. So also a transferee of the interest of some of the joint-decree-holders ought to apply for the execution of the decree for the benefit of himself and others.—Thima Reddi v. Subba Reddiar, 49 I. C. 141; (1918) M. W. N. 507. The omission, on the part of an applicant for an execution of a joint-decree, to mention the names of the other joint-decree-holders and the interests which they have in the decree, is not such a defect as would be sufficient for holding that the proceedings are incomplete and therefore invalid. It is not obligatory upon the Court to issue a notice before making an order under this rule on the other joint-decree-holders of each case.—Nawab Nuzhat-ud-dowla v. Beni Madhab, 30 C. W. N. 562; 96 I. C. 692; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 811; Durga Das v. Dewraj, 33 C. 306; 10 C. W. N. 297; 3 C. L. J. 112. It is nowhere laid down that the omission on the part of the decree-holder to state in his application the names of all the persons interested in the decree is such a defect as would invalidate the execution proceedings. It is in the discretion of the Court to give or not notice to the other decree-holder or to the judgment-debtor; nor is it for the judgment-debtor to raise any objection that sufficient steps have not been taken to safeguard the interests of the other decree-holders when they themselves have not made any complaint.—Ghanaya Lal v. Madho, 32 P. L. R. 290; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 600; 135 I. C. 207. Although under rule 15 there is no duty cast upon the Court receiving the application for execution to examine the application in so far as the requirements of the rule are concerned and to have the defects remedied, it does not follow that if any requirements of rule 15 are not complied with by inadvertence or otherwise, the Court when its attention is drawn to the defect cannot allow amendment. The Court may allow amendment without infringing any rule at later stages even before the Court of appeal.—Dharamdeo v. Jwala Prasad, 28 A. L. J. 474; 122 I. C. 179; A. I. R. 1930 All. 188. It is not necessary to state in the execution application that it is being made for the benefit of all. The Court can impose conditions if necessary in the form of security or the Court may give notice to the other decree-holder either to ratify the action of the person applying or to join in the execution of the decree. The application for execution should not be dismissed on the ground that the name of one of the decree-holders is not mentioned in it.—Madho v. Ghanaya, A. I. R 1930 Lah. 603. See also Rameshwar v. Ram Ratan, 13 P. L. T. 579. It has a discretion, and the other decree-holders ought to be heard before execution; Umrith Nauth v. Chunder Kishore, 21 W. R. 31 and Ahmed Chowdhry v. Shahzada Khatoon, 7 C. L. R. 537.

When one of several joint-decree-holders applies for execution on behalf of himself and the other decree-holders, and alone obtains leave to bid for the property and purchases it, the co-decree-holders are in equity entitled to recover their share of the property; Kesri v. Ganga, 33 A. 563 (F. B.): 8 A. L. J. 616.

Any one of several joint-decree-holders may, unless the decree imposes a condition to the contrary apply for execution of the whole decree; Gajadhar v. Bindubashini, 29 I. C. 181. In case of death of one of several joint-decree-holders, the other decree-holders may apply for execution for their own benefit and for the benefit of the representatives of the deceased joint-decree-holders; if any person claims to be brought on the record as the heir of the deceased, the Court should inquire into the matter and dispose of it according to law; Bottamma v. Audinarayana, 43 I. C. 1008; Ganga v. Banwari Lal, 34 A. 72.

Execution against one of joint judgment-debtors.—A decree-holder is entitled at his pleasure to execute the whole decree against any one of the joint judgment-debtors. A release of one judgment-debtor under a joint decree does not discharge the other judgment-debtors. When there has been a partial payment towards the decree by one debtor, the decree-holder is not entitled to ignore it and claim satisfaction of the whole against the other judgment-debtor. He may proceed for the balance; Bhawani v. Darsan, 14 C. L. J 354: 11 I. C. 450.

Execution must be for the whole decree.—Though one of several decree-holders may, with the permission of the Court, take out execution of a joint decree, the execution must be for the whole and not for any fractional share and the Court may admit the application after making proper orders for protecting the interest of other decree-holders.—Thakoor Das v. Luchmeput, 7 W. R. 10; Jugjeebun v. Goluck Monee, 22 W. R. 354; Indro v. Mohinee, 15 W. R. 159; Ausemoonnessa v. Ameeroonnessa, 22 W. R. 204; Faez v. Sadut, 23 W. R. 282; Abid v. Munnoo, Agra 183.

Where two out of several decree-holders petitioned the Court to execute their share of the decree, which was for possession and mesne profits, and the other decree-holders though they virtually joined in the application by signifying their consent and the original applicants declined to proceed with the execution of the decree for mesne profits; held that there was no application on the part of all the decree-holders to execute the decree for mesne profits nor any application by some of them for execution of the whole decree.—Seetaput Roy v. Ali Hossein, 24 W. R. 11.

Application by one of several decree-holders for execution in respect of his share of the decree.—A joint decree cannot be executed by one of the several joint-decree-holders in respect only of his share of the decree.—Banarsi Das v. Maharani Kuar, 5 A. 27 (1 A. 231, 4 A. 72, and 3 B. L. R. 114, followed); Muthusami Ayyar v. Natesa Ayyar, 18 M. 464; Collector of Execution by one of several decree-holders for execution in respect of the joint decree cannot be executed by one of the respect only of his share of the decree.—Banarsi Das v. Maharani Kuar, 5 A. 27 (1 A. 231, 4 A. 72, and 3 B. 11, 114, followed); Muthusami Ayyar v. Natesa Ayyar, 18 M. 404; Collector of Shahjahanpur v. Surjan, 4 A. 72; Dali Chand v. Bai Shivkor, 15 B. 242; Meik v. The Midnapur Zemindary Co. Ltd., 4 P. L. J. 575: (1919) Pat. 349: 53 I. C. 803. But if the decree specifically determines the extent of the share of each decree-holder, one among the joint-decree-holders may take out execution in respect of his share only.—Hurrish v. Kali Sundari, 10 I. A. 4: 9 C. 482 (P. C.): 12 C. L. R. 511 (followed in Fazal v. Habib, 7 I. C. 474: 61 P. R. 1910). A decree may sometimes become divisible and executable in part to the extent of such severance when by operation of law or by act of parties, the judgment-debtor has acquired the interest of one of the joint-decree-holders; Periasami v. Krishna Ayyar, 25 M. 431 (F. B.): 12 M. L. J. 166. Separate execution may be taken for costs; Sukha Sindhu v. Jageswar, 5 I. C. 480.

If all the decree-holders file a petition that they have no objection to executing the decree by one of them, then the decree may be executed at the instance of one only.—Krishna Kishore v. Sukha Sindhu, 10 C. W. N. 1000 (1002).

This rule of law which forbids an application for execution of part of a decree does not bar an application for all that remains due upon a decree where the rest has been previously satisfied.—Tej Narain v. Ram Tunoo, 12 W. R. 370. A judgment-debtor cannot be harassed by different applications for execution by different decree-holders for their respective shares of the decree amount. But if some of the joint-decree-holders apply to execute the decree in respect of a portion, making the other joint-decree-holders parties to the application, and these do not object to the giving up of the rest of the decree, the application is not liable to be dismissed. The judgment-debtors cannot however be harassed by any subsequent application for execution of the balance of the same decree.—Gopendra v. Matilal, 56 C. 12: 117 I. C. 677: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 559.

When a decree is of a complex nature and grants different kinds of reliefs to be obtained by processes of different kinds, there is no valid objection to separate applications for partial execution of the decree.—Ram Buksh v. Madat Ali, 7 N. W. 9. See also Johnson v. Madras Ry. Co., 28 M. 479: 15 M. L. J. 363.

“Unless decree imposes any condition to the contrary.”—The provisions of this rule are not applicable to the case of joint-decree-holders whose decree is conditional on their joint performance of a particular act.—Farzand v. Abdullah, 6 A. 69.

Effect of payment by judgment-debtor out of Court to one of several decree-holders.—If a payment of a portion of the decretal amount is made by judgment-debtor bona fide to one of several joint-decree-holders and duly certified to the Court by the latter for the benefit of all the decree-holders, the other joint creditors cannot execute the decree for more than their share; Taruck v. Divendro, 9 C. 831: 12 C. L. R. 566. If such payment to one of several joint-decree-holders is not certified it cannot be regarded as made in satisfaction of the decree except for the purpose of determining what orders should be passed under this rule; Sullan v. Savalayammal, 15 M. 343. One of several joint-decree-holders is not competent to grant a full discharge of the decree out of Court, or to certify to the Court complete satisfaction of the decree, without the concurrence of the other decree-holders, though he may certify satisfaction in respect of his own share therein.—Lachman v. Chaturbhuj, 29 A. 252; Moti Ram v. Hannu, 26 A. 334. Tamman Singh v. Lachmin, 26 A. 318; Umrao v. Mukhtar Beg, 45 A. 401: A. I. R. 1923 All. 494. 74 I. C. 687: 21 A. L. J. 308; Pitchallutliya v. Doraiswami, 47 M. L. J. 498: 82 I. C. 588: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 230. Although a payment to one of two joint-decree-holders of the whole decree amount does not, even when certified, absolve the judgment-debtor from liability to the other decree-holder, such decree-holder is not bound to proceed against the judgment-debtor, but he may sue the other decree-holder to recover his share.—Somasundaram v. Krishnasamy, 29 M. 183. See also Arunachala v. Virappa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 800: 112 I. C. 410.

A payment to two out of three partners who are joint-decree-holders does not bind the third unless the former are his agents; Mahomed Silar v. Nabikhan, (1916) M. W. N. 471.

"Any one or more of such persons."—This includes persons claiming under such persons. A transferee of a decree within the meaning of r. 16 below, is such a person; Dicar Buksh v. Fatik, 26 C. 250. The assignment of a personal decree does not require registration.—A. Krishnayya v. T. Sriramulu, 106 I. C. 485: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 142.

Effect of payment to a joint-creditor.—The sum due upon a mortgage was paid to one of the two mortgagees and he gave an acquittance without the knowledge of the other mortgagee, who now sued upon the mortgage. Held that the mortgage had been discharged and the plaintiff was not entitled to sue.—Barber Maran v. Ramana, 20 M. 461: 7 M. L. J. 269. The payment to one of two joint mortgagees does not necessarily operate as a discharge of the debt to the other mortgagees; Husainara v. Rahamannessa, 38 C. 342: 13 C. L. J. 3. See also Sitaram v. Shridhar, 27 B. 292 [25 M. 26 (39) referred to]; Umesh v. Dinabandhu, 21 C. L. J. 570.

Appeal.—An order under this rule allowing or disallowing one of several joint-decree-holders to execute a joint decree is a decree under S. 47 and is appealable when the contest is between the decree-holder and judgment-debtor; Lakshmi v. Ponnassa, 17 M. 394. See also Gooroo Dass v. Ram Runginee, 17 W. R. 136; Odhoya v. Mohadeo, 17 W. R. 415. But where the contest relating to the execution of the decree is between the decree-holders themselves (and not between the decree-holders on the one side and the judgment-debtor on the other), no appeal lies against an order; Ratanlal v. Bai Gulab, 23 B. 623. Where four only, out of eleven joint-decree-holders, applied for execution, and no objection was raised by the judgment-debtor in the executing Court, which therefore passed no orders under this rule, held that he cannot contend in appeal that the executing Court's order allowing execution is barred; Yaramath Khan v. Amir-ul-umra, 24 L. W. 711: 97 I. C. 375: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1198.

Effect of application by one of several joint decree-holders on limitation.—See the amendments in the Limitation Act (IX of 1908) S. 182 by the amending Act (IX of 1927).

Every application made by one or more out of several decree-holders is an application made in the interests of all, and every proceeding, taken by one is a proceeding taken for the benefit of all to enforce the judgment or to keep it in force—Roy Preonath v. Prannath, 8 W. R. 100; Dhunesuree v. Goodhur, 11 W. R. 421; Bhoobunesuree v. Chunder Monee, 21 W. R. 243; Huruck v. Zuhooree, 22 W. R. 468; Oudhbehari v. Brajamohan, 4 B. L. R. Ap. 41; 13 W. R. 128; Johiroonissa v. Ameeroonissa, 6 W. R. Mis. 59; Indurjeet v. Mazum, 6 W. R. Mis. 76; Azizunnissa v. Sashi Bhusan, 2 B. L. R. Ap. 47; 11 W. R. 343. But if the decree gives separate sums to each of the decree-holders separately, proceedings taken by one cannot keep the decree alive for the benefit of the others.—Chooa Sahoo v. Tripoora, 13 W. R. 244.

Where a joint decree is obtained by several persons, and afterwards some of them die, the execution may be taken by the survivors of the original decree-holders for the benefit of all the parties interested in the decree in order to keep the decree alive.—Teja Singh v. Rajnarayan 1 B. L. R. A. C. 62 10 W. R. 95. See also Jogendra Chandra v. Sham Das, 9 C. L. J. 271

An application to execute an aliquot part of a decree, though irregular and ineffectual for the purpose, must, if made bona fide under a misapprehension of the law, be regarded as a proceeding which keeps the decree alive—Koylas Nath v. Nitya Shama 15 W. R. 449; Shib Chunder v. Ram Chunder, 16 W. R. 29; Pran Kishore v. Kishen Chunder, 16 W. R. 267; Doyamoyee v. Nilmonce, 25 W. R. 70.

7 A. 282. See also
Ponnampilath Parapravan v. Ponnampilath Parapravan, 3 M. 79; Dali Chand v. Bai Shikor, 15 B. 242. See, however, Ram Autar v. Ajudhia Singh, 1 A. 231; Collector of Shahjahanpur v. Surjan Singh, 4 A. 72.

If an application for partial execution is not objected to by the judgment-debtor and allowed, it will keep the decree alive, Nanda v. Raghunandan, 7 A. 282; Dali Chand v. Bai Shikor, 15 B. 242, Nepal v. Amrita, 26 C. 888. An application by one of such joint-decree-holders for execution of the decree in respect of so much of the relief granted to all as he considers appertains to him individually, though not allowed by law, may keep alive the whole decree, when such application is accepted by the Court and an order is made thereon for execution after service of notice on the parties and without any objection from the judgment-debtors.—Kanak Prava v. Dharendra, 32 C. W. N. 1107; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 861; 118 I. C. 337. See also 3 M. 71.

Minor.—Where one of several joint-decree-holders was a minor and the remedy of the major joint-decree-holder was barred: held that the remedy of minor decree-holder was not time-barred under S. 7 of the Limitation Act, 1877, and that he was entitled under this rule to execute the whole decree, as although the remedy of the major decree-holder was barred, his right was not extinguished.—Anando Kishore Das v. Anando Kishore Bose, 14 C. 50 (4 C. 350, distinguished). See also Govindram v. Tatia, 20 B. 383 (followed in Zamir Hasan v. Sundar, 22 A. 199 (F. B.)).

Where one of several joint decree-holders is a minor, S. 7 of the Limitation Act saves an application for execution by the minor decree-holder from being barred by limitation—Surya Kumar v. Arun Chunder, 23 C. 465 5 C. W. N. 767 (20 B. 393 and 22 A. 199 followed; 13 M. 236 and 17 M. 189 dissented from). But see Periasami v. Krishna Ayyan, 25 M. 431 (F. B.), where it has been held that S. 7 of the Limitation Act, 1877, only applies where all the joint-decree-holders are under disability at the time when the period of limitation begins to run (29 C. 463 dissented from; 13 M. 236 and 16 M. 436 approved).

Application for execution against some only of joint-debtors—
Effect of.—Where there has been a joint-decree against more persons than one an application for execution against some one or his representatives will keep the decree alive against all persons jointly liable under the decree.—Subramanya v. Alagappa, 30 M. 269; 2 M. L. T. 189; Barada v. Nabin, 11 C. L. J. 83; 14 C. W. N. 465. See also Jogendra v. Rasik, 2 C. L. J. 4-n, Ramanuj v. Hingu, 3 A. 517; Krishnaji v. Murarrav, 12 B. 48. But see Harendra v. Sham Lal, 27 C. 210.

Where a decree was passed against several defendants, each of whom is declared to have a separate liability in respect of a definite amount, execution against one or more of such judgment-debtors keeps the decree in force against all simultaneously. — Mohesh Chunder v. Mohun Lal, 8 W. R. 80. See also Mohesh Chunder v. Taramonee, 9 W. R. 240; and Stephenson v. Unnada, 6 W. R. Mis. 18. But see Wise v. Rajnarain, 10 B. L. R. 259 (F. B.); 19 W. R. 30; Khema Debea v. Kumola Kant, 10 B. L. R. 259-n.; 10 W. R. 10; and Hurkoo Singh v. Ram Kishen, 6 W. R. Mis. 44.

16. Where a decree or, if a decree has been passed jointly in favour of two or more persons, the interest of any decree-holder in the decree is transferred by assignment in writing or by operation of law, the transferee may apply for execution of the decree to the Court which passed it; and the decree may be executed in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application were made by such decree-holder :

Application for execution by

Provided that, where the decree, or such interest as aforesaid, has been transferred by assignment, notice of such application shall be given to the transferor and the judgment-debtor, and the decree shall not be executed until the Court has heard their objections (if any) to its execution :

Provided also that, where a decree for the payment of money against two or more persons has been transferred to one of them, it shall not be executed against the others. [S. 232.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration and effect.—The important changes in para. 1 are the addition of the words "or if a decree has been passed jointly in favour of two or more persons, the interest of any decree-holder in the decree is"; and the omission of the words "if that Court thinks fit" which occurred in the old section. As to their effect, see below.

"Decree"—The word "decree" in para. 1 and proviso 1 of this rule includes a mortgage decree; Sarju v. Thakur, 42 A. 544 : 58 I. C. 743; Kudhai v. Sheo Dayal, 10 A 570. The second proviso is limited to money decrees only.

Where a decree is subsequently amended it is necessary that fresh notice is taken out under the first proviso to Or. XXI, r. 16. But where the irregularity is of a technical nature and does not affect the merits of the case it is cured by S. 99, C. P. C.—Mammad v. Mugaseth, (1930) M. W. N. 106.

"If transferred by assignment in writing or by operation of law."—The only persons competent to apply for execution under this rule are:

(1) The transferee of a decree under assignment in writing. A transferee under an oral assignment is not competent to apply; Parvata v. Digambar, 15 B. 307.

(2) The transferee of a decree by operation of law. Such a transferee includes the legal representative of a deceased decree-holder, the Official Assignee in the case of an insolvent decree-holder, or the purchaser of a decree at a Court-sale in execution of a decree against the decree-holder; Gour Sundar v. Hem, 16 C 355. A transfer by operation of law means a transfer on death, or by devolution, or by succession.

(3) A transferee (under an assignment in writing or by operation of law) from any of the transferees mentioned in (1) and (2) above; Amar v. Guru Prosunno, 27 C. 488; Ganga v. Yakub, 27 C. 670.

This rule is intended primarily for those cases where the name of the applicant for execution does not appear as a decree-holder in the decree. It does not apply to a case where the applicant is one whose name is already in the decree as one of two brothers in whose favour the decree has been passed, and who claims on the death of his brother and the devolution of the brother's interest by survivorship to execute the decree as the sole surviving decree-holder.—Rameshwar v. Ram Ratan, 13 P. L. T. 579.

This rule does not recognise an equitable assignment of a decree. See Mathurapore Zemindary Co. v. Bhasaram, 51 C. 703 : 28 C W. N. 626 : 39 C. L. J. 373 : 80 I. C. 881 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 661; Malik Fazlul Rahman v. Must. Kokila, 5 P. 511 : 96 I. C. 446 : A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 320.

Execution by transferee a matter of right.—The omission of the words "if that Court thinks fit" from the rule has an important effect. Formerly it was held that the Court had an absolute discretion to allow or refuse execution at the instance of the transferee (see Shama v. Nobin, 16 W. R. 293; Krishna Mohini v. Kedarnath, 15 C. 446; Balkishen v. Belmati, 20 C. 388; Parvata v. Digambar, 15 B. 307; Ohagan v. Lakshman, 31 B. 462; Javermal v. Umaji, 9 B. 179). The omission now makes it clear that the transferee can proceed with execution as a matter of right. It does not depend upon the discretion of the Court; Asad Ali v. Haidar Ali, 38 C. 13 at p. 21. A transferee of a decree must prove his right before he can be allowed to execute; Mohamed Bether v. Pichari, 4 L. W. 534. The assignment of the decree is not affected by a subsequent order for attachment.—Lakshminarayan v. Ganesh Chandra, 26 S. L. R. 158.

“The transferee may apply for execution of the decree”—Part transferee —“Transferee” does not mean only a transferee of the whole decree. It includes a transferee of a portion of the decree, and also where the decree is a joint one, the transferee of the interest of any one of the joint-decree-holders; Kishore v. Gishornes & Co, 17 C. 341; Endoori v. Venkatachinnulu, 33 M. 80; Muthiah v. Govindas, 44 M. 919; 69 I. C. 337; Muthunarayana v. Balakrishna, 19 M. 306; Jaswant v. Lajwanti, 107 I. C. 603; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 70; Raja of Kalahasti v. Venkatasappa, 27 L. W. 544 (P. B.); 103 I. C. 872 A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 713. This rule applies to the assignment of even a fractional interest in a decree; Ram Sahai v. Madan Lal, 48 A. 432; 24 A. L. J. 430; 95 I. C. 376; A. I. R. 1926 All. 346. But see Mazhar Husain v. Amtul Bibi, 66 I. C. 679; A. I. R. 1922 All. 101, where it has been held that unless the whole interest be exhausted there is no transfer within the meaning of this rule. The words “transfer by assignment in writing or by operation of law” do not include the transfer of rights in a decree by means of a mortgage.—Ibid.

But a decree for payment of money and costs is one and indivisible, and the transfer of the right to realize costs only does not give any right of execution to the transferee; Ram Chandra v. Abdul, 35 A. 264; 19 I. C. 301; Ahmad Shah v. Faujdar, 2 L. L. J. 1; 55 I. C. 983.

“Transferee” within the meaning of this rule does not mean a person to whom a party to a suit agrees to transfer any decree that may be passed in the suit, Basroovittil v. Rama Chundra, 17 M. L. J. 391.

The transfer of a decree under attachment is valid and the transferee is entitled to be substituted in place of the transferor and to apply under this rule for execution.—Hazariram v. Kedar Nath, 7 P. 726; 113 I. C. 673; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 1.

An application for execution of the decree by an assignee, pending suit, of the rights of the plaintiff in whose favour a decree is subsequently passed, is not one made in accordance with law. The necessity for an assignment prior to an application for execution is one which the law, as embodied in this rule, requires, as a condition precedent; Genaram v. Hanmantram, 23 Bom. L. R. 761; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 406; 96 I. C. 833.

Transfer of a decree by a decree-holder after insolvency cannot have any effect and the transferee cannot execute the decree.—Periathambi v. Gundhunada, 109 I. C. 832; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 360.

The assignee of a decree for arrears of rent (under the Bengal Tenancy Act) is not entitled to apply for execution of that decree even as a simple decree for money under the O. P. Code. The application is barred by S. 148, Cl. (c) of the Bengal Tenancy Act.—Rahimuddin v. Jogendra, 64 O. L. J. 596.

The assignee before decree of a certain property with a right to all arrears of rent is not entitled to apply under this rule for execution of the decree for rent subsequently passed (Mathurapore Zemindary Co. v. Bhagaram, 51 C. 703 followed).—Prabashinee v. Rasiklal, 59 C. 297 : A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 439. See the cases noted under heading "Assignment of Rent-decree," post.

Sale of property does not give right of execution.—If a decree-holder holding a decree for possession of immoveable property sells a portion of such property, the sale does not, without express provision to that effect, give the purchaser any right to execute the decree himself.—Hansraj Pal v. Mukhraj Kunwar, 30 A. 28 : 27 A. W. N. 280 (7 A. 107 referred to) ; Vithal v. Mahadev, 80 I. C. 249 : 26 Bom. L. R. 333 : A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 426 ; Perumal v. Marukrithammal, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 240 : 98 I. C. 856 ; Genaram v. Hanmantram, 28 Bom. L. R. 761 : 96 I. C. 833 : A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 406.

The sale of a mortgaged property by the mortgagor does not entitle the purchaser to execute a redemption decree obtained by the mortgagor before the sale unless the sale-deed expressly includes the decree.—Ahmed Shah v. Fauzdar, 55 I. C. 983. But when, in execution of a mortgage decree, the mortgaged properties were sold together with "all arrears of rent," the purchaser was held to be entitled to execute all decrees for rent obtained against the tenants of the mortgaged properties by the mortgagor ; Ananda Mohan v. Promotha Nath, 57 I. C. 874 : 25 C. W. N. 863. A purchaser of a portion of a mortgaged property, who subsequently purchased the mortgage-decree, was held entitled to execute the decree against the judgment-debtors personally as well as against the portion of their property in their hands.—Nafer Chunder v. Barkanto Nath, 4 C. L. R. 156.

Pledge of decree—This rule seems to recognise the validity of a pledge of a decree as security no less than the validity of its sale ; Subbaraya v. Kuppusamy, 1 I. C. 535 : 5 M. L. T. 278

Where a mortgagee mortgages his mortgage decree with specific provisions that the subsequent mortgagee should be competent to realise the sum of his mortgage by being made a party to the execution proceedings and should have full powers to withdraw the deposit made by the mortgagor-judgment-debtor and that if the original mortgagee failed to pay the money due within a certain period, the subsequent mortgagee would be competent to realize the sum due by bringing a suit against his borrower or by the execution of the mortgaged mortgage decree, the subsequent mortgagee has the decree assigned to him within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 16.—Nagendra v. Ambica, 33 C. W. N. 958 : 50 C. L. J. 12 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 676.

Transfer when takes effect and when complete.—When a decree is transferred by an instrument in writing, such transfer takes effect from the date of the instrument, and not from the date of the Court ; Sadagopa v. Raghunatha, 33 M. 62 ; Nil . C. 54 : A. I. R. 1928 Sind 71. The transfer is complete when the assignment is in writing. It does not depend on the sanction of the Court ; Subba Naicker v. Saminatha, 5 M. L. T. 260 : 1 I. C. 353.

Registration of assignment.—Assignment of a personal decree against one defendant does not require registration, though in the same decree there is also a mortgage-decree against another defendant.—Krishnayya v. Sriramulu, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 142. An assignment of a decree does not require registration when it has been incorporated in a decree and the assignment of a decree though it is one for possession of immoveable property is.

not equivalent to a transfer of property (23 C. 450; 35 A. 524, and 94 P. R. 1952 followed).—Jawant v. Lajcanti, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 70; 107 I. C. 603.

General rights and liabilities of transferee of a decree.—This rule should be read with S. 49, which lays down the respective rights and liabilities of transferees and judgment-debtors. See notes ante.

A transferee cannot apply for a mere recognition of his right to execute the decree without asking for execution; Alagappa v. Ramaswami, 14 M. L. T. 513

The assignment of a decree is one approved by law as contained in this rule and the transferee of a decree gains by the transfer the rights of the transferor.—Fishnu Saktharam v. Krishnarao, 11 B. 153.

The transferee of a decree for costs is entitled to realize the amount in execution of the decree and not by a separate suit.—Ram Bakhsh v. Panna Lal, 7 A. 457.

There is no provision of law to the effect that the assignment of a decree has no legal force until the assignee is brought on the record under the provision of rule 16.—Co-operative Town Bank v. Raman, 5 R. 595; 6 Bur. L. J. 221; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 25; 106 I. C. 853.

Assignment must be in writing.—An assignee of a decree under an oral assignment has no locus standi at all to apply for execution of a decree; Parvata v. Digambar, 15 B 307; Ramanathan v. Sokkanatha, 2 M. W. N. 559; Ramanathan v. Ragavendra, 16 I. C. 807.

As writing is essential in a transfer of a decree, a mere agreement to transfer, does not entitle the intended transferee to apply for execution.—Jatindra Nath v. Peyerdeye Debi, 43 I. A. 109; 43 C. 990 (P. C.); 24 C. L. J. 67; 20 C. W. N. 866; 34 I. C. 69; 18 Bom. L. R. 509; 14 A. L. J. 527; 31 M. L. J. 248.

If a liquidator has transferred a decree before the company is dissolved he may execute a written assignment for the purpose of this rule after dissolution and after he has ceased to be liquidator.—Krishnaswami v. Andi Chetti, 51 M. 681; 109 I. C. 563; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 478.

As a transfer of a decree must be in writing a transferee under an oral assignment has no right to execute the decree. A person to whom a decree is agreed to be transferred is not a transferee. A transfer of property during the pendency of a suit, does not entitle the transferee to execute the decree unless he has taken steps to get himself substituted in the suit in place of his vendor, nor can an assignee of a property with all its future and back rent, execute a decree for rent subsequently obtained by the landlord when the decree itself has not been transferred.—Mathurapore Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Bhasaram, 51 C. 703; 28 C. W. N. 626; 39 C. L. J. 373; 80 I. C. 881; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 661.

A transfer of a decree by an unrecognised transferee is seldom objected to in practice and is recognized by the Courts as passing a good title.—Mian Sahib Levvai v. Gopalier, 33 I. C. 553 But if the transferee is not recognised by Court, the decree-holder on record can execute the decree in spite of the transfer; Ari Chetty v. Theerthamalai Chetty, 34 I. C. 791.

Rights of transferee by operation of law.—As to right of the representative of a decree-holder to execute the decree without a certificate of heirship, see notes under Or. VII, r. 4, under the heading "Right to Execute Decree Without Certificate."

The words "by operation of law" cannot be invoked so as to make an assignment operative to transfer the decree and the right under it, which would upon the true construction of its terms, otherwise be inoperative in that regard. Where a person assigns all his property it may be taken that there is a valid assignment of a decree in his favour.—Abdul Kader v. Daw Yin, 128 I. C. 584; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 308.

The succession of a son to the estate of his deceased father is succession or transfer by operation of law.—Umasoondury v. Brojonath, 16 C. 347. See also Raghunatha v. Venkatesa, 26 M. 101.

The right to execute a decree obtained by a Hindu widow, would not pass to her heirs or assigns, but would revert to her reversionary heirs.—Hriday Kant v. Behari Lal, 11 C. W. N. 239.

The representatives of the original decree-holders are transferees of the decree by operation of law.—Purmanandas v. Vallab Das, 11 B. 506; but a person, by being a decree-holder of the decree-holder, does not become a transferee of the decree-holder by operation of law; Fazlul Rahman v. Musst. Kokila, 5 P. 511; 96 I. C. 446; A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 320.

The holder of a certificate of administration under S. 7 of Reg. VIII of 1827 is a transferee by operation of law of a decree obtained by the deceased.—Khanderav v. Ganesh, 11 B. 368.

Where the estate of an insolvent is assigned to his surety, the surety is an assignee by operation of law.—A. B. Miller v. Abinash Chunder, 4 C. W. N. 785.

A person attaching a decree under Or. XXI, r. 53 is a representative of the decree-holder within the meaning of that term as used in S. 47, and in every case is entitled to enforce execution of the decree which he has attached.—Peary Mohun v. Romesh Chunder, 15 C. 371; and Rangasami Chetti v. Periasami Mudali, 17 M. 58. See also Adhar Chandra v. Lal Mohun, 24 C. 778.

A mortgage suit, even after an order absolute, is a pending suit up to the time of sale. An application for substitution, by legal representatives of the decree-holder, after order absolute for sale, but before actual sale, is governed by Or. XXII, r. 10, and not by Or. XXI, r. 16.—Bhugwan v. Nilkanta, 9 C. W. N. 171.

Certain persons sought to enforce a decree on the ground that they were transferees thereof by operation of law. The transfer was disputed and the matter was sub-judice in another suit. Held that the Court has discretion both under Ss. 232 and 234, C. P. Code, 1882, either to stay execution or dismiss the petition.—Vakulabharana v. Rangaiayan Chetty, 29 M. 357.

Application by transferee for execution must be to "the Court which passed the decree."—As to definition of "Court which passed the decree," see notes to S. 37.

It includes the Court, which by reason of a transfer of jurisdiction, has jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of the suit.—Udit Narain v. Mathura, 35 C. 974 : 12 C. W. N. 859. But where after a decree was transferred to another Court for execution and the interests of the judgment-creditor vested in another person by operation of law he can apply for execution to the Court to which the decree was transferred and obtain afterwards a certificate from the Court which passed the decree; Manorath v. Ambika, 13 C. W. N. 533 : 9 C. L. J. 443.

An application by the transferee of a decree for execution after substitution of his name can be entertained only by the Court which passed the decree, and the Court to which the decree has been transferred for execution has no jurisdiction to entertain it.—Amar Chundra v. Guru Prosunno, 27 C. 488. See also Manorath v. Ambika, 13 C. W. N. 533 : 9 C. L. J. 443 (14 W. R. 65, 5 Bom. L. R. 497, 9 B. 46, and 2 A. 293, referred to), Sucha Singh, President v. Saran Das, 132 I. C. 183 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 499; Prithvi Chand v. Satya Kinkar, 11 P. 91 : A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 168.

The Court to which a decree is transferred for execution has no power to entertain the transferee's application for rateable distribution under S. 73. Such application can be entertained by the Court which passed the decree.—Tameshar Prasad v. Thakur Prasad, 25 A. 443 (27 C. 488 and 16 A. 483 referred to) But see Chathoth v. Saidindavide, 26 M. 259.

Where an order of the Privy Council was transmitted by the High Court to the District Court as the Court which passed the first decree, the latter has jurisdiction to entertain an application made by an assignee and to allow him to execute the decree; Krishna v. Raja of Vizianagaram, 38 M. 832.

Proviso (1)—Notice of application shall be given to judgment-debtor and transferor.—The notice required by the first proviso to this rule is not notice of the assignment but notice of the application for execution of the decree; Musst. Bhagwanta v. Dewan Zamir, 3 P. 596 : 78 I. C. 766 : A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 576. The provision as to notice is imperative and no execution by the assignee can proceed unless notice has been served both upon the judgment-debtor and the transferor. Notice upon the judgment-debtor alone is not enough; Sreenath v. Achutananda, 11 C. L. J. 354 : 6 I. C. 262. If execution is issued without notice, the proceedings in execution are void; Gulzarilal v. Daya Ram, 9 A. 46; Musst. Gulab v. Syed, 6 P. L. J. 358; Notan Das v. Lachhman, 2 L. 230 : 63 I. C. 884; and all subsequent proceedings dependent upon them; Abdul Samad v. Kamaruddin, 131 I. C. 171 : (1930) M. W. N. 1187 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 192; Umamoyee v. Jatan Bewa, 54 C. 624 : 105 I. C. 193 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 781. The object of the notice is to enable the transferor and the judgment-debtor to raise such objections regarding the assignment as may be available to them; Sheo Prasad v. P. E. Lall, 4 P. 120 : 86 I. C. 564 : A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 449. See also Brajabashi v. Manik, 31 C. W. N. 921 : 104 I. C. 4 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 694; Kussum Goolum v. Dayabhai, 36 B. 58 and Partap Singh v. Gurdutta Mal, 39 I. C. 952. A notice under S. 158, B. T. Act, will not dispense with the necessity of a notice under this rule.—Maharaja Sir Rameshwar Singh v. Harihar Jha, 57 I. C. 250. But if no objection be taken in prior execution proceedings, the judgment-debtor cannot plead want of notice under this rule when a subsequent execution is proceeding.—Brajlat Martwari v. E. M. Atkinson, 5 P. L. J. 639 : 57 I. C. 707. Notice or application for execution and not of transfer is to be given. So where during the pendency of an execution proceeding, the assignee applies for continuance of the execution, he does not apply for fresh execution and no notice is necessary.—Golab Kuer v. Mohammad Zaffar Hassan, 62 I. C. 30. The provisions of this rule are mandatory and non-compliance with them renders the proceedings void.—Notan Das v. Lachhman noted above and Ramdeo v. Frank Combs, 117 I. C. 614: A. I. R. 1929 All. 437. In the latter case it was held that where the first mortgagee sued the mortgagor and the second mortgagee and got a decree for sale, the second mortgagee was a judgment-debtor within the meaning of r. 16 and so a failure to serve notice on him would make the whole execution proceedings void. On appeal however it was held that the omission to issue notice to the subsequent mortgagee is not sufficient for holding the auction-sale invalid as against the mortgagor. The result of the omission is that the auction purchaser only acquires the right of the mortgagor.—Ram Deo v. Frank Combs, 129 I. C. 445: A. I. R. 1930 All. 627: 28 A. L. J. 1265.

The notice required by this rule need not be in writing; Musht. Bhagwanta v. Dewan Zamir, noted ante. The Official Receiver represents an insolvent decree-holder. So he is entitled to notice under this rule and he is also entitled to object to the execution on the ground that he never had any notice of the transferee-decree holder.—Perrathambi v. Gundhunada, 109 I. C. 832: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 360.

A notice under this rule can be issued only by the Court which passed the decree. An application for transmission of the decree for execution can be treated as an application for execution.—Nando Lal v. Chutterput, 29 C. 235.

Where on an application by the transferee of a decree to have his name substituted, an objection is taken by the judgment-debtor, the judgment-debtor will be precluded from making an application by the transferee for execution of the decree; Taj Singh v. Jagan Lal, 38 A. 289; Dwarka Das v. Muhammad, 47 A. 86: 80 I. C. 722: A. I. R. 1925 All. 117.

Where the judgment-debtor is dead, no such notice can be sent until his representatives are brought on record.—Mahalinga v. Kuppanachariar, 30 M. 541: 17 M. L. J. 485. Notice of the transfer may be served on the legal representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor.—Khushrobbhai v. Hormazsha, 11 B. 727.

A decree is not a "debt" within the meaning of that word as used in S. 131, Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1881), so as to make a transfer thereof void without express notice. When a decree is assigned, a notice under this rule is sufficient.—Dagdu v. Vanji, 24 B. 502. See also Afzal v. Ram Kumar, 12 C. 610.

Proviso (1)—"Objections" to be heard before attachment.—Upon an application by the judgment-debtor's object before hearing the judgment-debtor's objection, the attachment is illegal and should be set aside.—Rasum v. ..., 10 B. L. R. 913.

The fact that when notice under Or. XXI, r. 16 was given to the judgment-debtor of the application for execution, he failed to file any objections as to its executability before the decree was transferred for execution, does not prevent him from raising an objection to the right of the transferee of the decree to execute the decree before the Court to which the decree has been transferred for execution. Ram Sural v. Satruhan, 101 I. C. 616; 8 P. L. T. 163; A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 170 (12 C. L. J. 312 distinguished).

The judgment-debtor cannot plead an uncertified adjustment in opposition to an application under this rule by the transferee-decree-holder.—Subramanyam v. Ramaswami, 137 I. C. 29 (F. B.); (1932) M. W. N. 190; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 372 62 M. L. J. 562.

Benamdar—Where a decree has been transferred to a particular person under an instrument in writing, no other person claiming that he was the real owner under the transfer, and that the transferee named therein was a mere benamdar for him, can apply for execution of the decree under the terms of Or. XXI, r. 16. Gurdial v. Gurbakhsh, 8 L. 35; 100 I. C. 515; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 110; Palaniappa v. Subramania, 48 M. 553; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 701; 88 I. C. 409 (dissenting from 21 M. 388 and 5 C. L. R. 253); Official Receiver v. Lalchand, 119 I. C. 542; A. I. R. 1930 Sind. 1; Chellam Chetti v. Seeni Chetti, 43 I. C. 801; (1918) M. W. N. 226; 7 L. W. 201. But it has been held also to the contrary that a true owner can execute a decree obtained in the name of his benamdar.—Nil Kanta v. Ram Chand, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 835; 114 I. C. 495 (dissenting from 48 M. 553 and following 5 C. L. R. 253). See in this connection Bada Kristam v. Duvvada, 105 I. C. 405; 53 M. L. J. 568; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 903. If the transferee is a benamdar for one of the judgment-debtors, he cannot execute; Ramanaya v. Krishnamurthi, 19 M. L. T. 124; Mohamad Rowther v. Pichai Rowther, 35 I. C. 624; Gian Chand v. Sunder Das, A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 666.

But the absence of consideration for the assignment of a decree is immaterial and will not deprive the assignee of his right to execute the decree provided the assignment is not a sham transaction; Thimma Reddi v. Subba Reddiar, 49 I. C. 141; Rami Reddi v. Venkatanarasimhulu, 109 I. C. 617; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 458; Venkataramanujamma v. Chinna Venkata, (1932) M. W. N. 326; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 327.

It is permissible for the Court to enquire, if a transferee is a benamdar for the judgment-debtor. If the transferee is found to be a benamdar for a judgment-debtor, the Court is bound to refuse execution in his favour; Gurditta Mal v. Partab Singh, 54 I. C. 944; Gurdial v. Gurbakhsh, 8 L. 35; 100 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 110; Surjan v. Tegh Bahadur, 131 I. C. 229; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 545.

But a purchase by a pleader of the judgment-debtor, in the name of his wife, does not satisfy the decree and release the judgment-debtor from liability, although the pleader holds the decree assigned to him in trust for his clients and if called upon by his clients to do so, is bound to assign the decree to them, on equitable terms; Nagendra Bala v. Debendra Nath, 22 C. W. N. 491; 27 C. L. J. 388. A benamdar may otherwise be permitted to execute the decree; Lall Dwarka Das v. Burma Railways Co., 62 I. C. 299.

Award.—A transferee of an award filed in Court under the provisions of the Arbitration Act, 1899, is entitled to apply for execution under this rule; Gladstone Wyllie & Co. v. Joosub, 27 C. W. N. 666: 77 I. C. 868: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 117.

Proviso (2)—"Decree for the payment of money."—The second proviso applies only to decrees for money personally due by two or more persons, and it does not apply to mortgage decrees.—Lalla Bhagun v. Holloway, 11 C. 393. See also Laldhari v. Manager, Court of Wards, 14 C. L. J. 639: 16 C. W. N. 132: 12 I. C. 70; Jagabandhu v. Haladhar, 27 C. L. J. 110; Chidambara v. Subbarayar, 49 M. 503: 93 I. C. 58: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 623. The phrase "a decree for payment of money" means a personal decree for the payment of money by two or more defendants jointly. The proviso does not extend to a decree against the estate of a deceased person, where the personal liability of the representatives is to be determined by the Court.—Panachand v. Sundarabai, 31 B. 308: 9 Bom. L. R. 409.

Proviso (2)—Effect of transfer of money-decree against two or more persons to one of them.—The proviso does not make an assignment of a decree in favour of one of several judgment-debtors invalid in law. It only provides that the transferee is not entitled to enforce his rights by execution.—Arumugha v. Yagamba, 17 I. C. 323: 13 M. L. T. 227. See also Annabattula v. Annabattula, 28 I. C. 906. The proviso is one of procedure only and does not create either rights or liabilities.—Abdul Kader v. Daw Yin, 128 I. C. 584: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 308. The proviso does not mean that a judgment-debtor purchasing a decree will have no relief against his fellow judgment-debtors. It provides that he shall not execute the decree against the others. The proper procedure would be to bring a suit for contribution, for if execution was allowed, a purchasing judgment-debtor might execute the whole decree against one of his fellows who might then purchase it and execute the whole against another and so on; Ram Lal v. Khiroda, 18 C. W. N. 113; Anant Vinayak v. Nagappa, 32 B. 195, p. 197. See also Kalyan v. Damber, 6 A. L. J. 564: 2 I. C. 626. There is a distinction between purchase of the whole decree and purchase of a partial interest. When one of several joint judgment-debtors, acquires the position of a decree-holder in respect of the whole judgment-debt, by operation of law or by transfer, the effect is to extinguish protanto the liability of other judgment-debtors, and the decree cannot be executed against them. But when one of them so acquires only a partial interest in the decree the effect is not to extinguish the entire judgment-debt, but so much only of it as such judgment-debtor has acquired.—Banarsi Das v. Maharani Kuar, 5 A. 27 (7 W. R. 136: 25 W. R. 343: 9 W. R. 230: 6 N. W. P. H. C. R. 1, referred to). See also Kudhai v. Sheo Dayal, 10 A. 570 (followed in Fazal v. Habib, 61 P. R. 1910: 7 I. C. 474), and Pogose v. Fukurooddeen, 25 W. R. 343.

Rule 16 prohibits the execution of a decree by one judgment-debtor against another, but where by an agreement between the decree-holder and some of the judgment-debtors it was settled that the decree-holder should pay the amount to amount in advance to him, the agreement does not fall under the prohibition of r. 16; Ramanathan Chetti v. Muthu Valliappa, 93 I. C. 902; 62 M. L. J. 59; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 322.

A decree directing separate amounts with separate sets of proportionate costs to be recovered against defendants, is not a decree passed jointly against several persons and this rule is not applicable.—Anant Vinayal v. Nagappa, 32 B. 195 (9 W. R. 230, referred to in argument).

The purchase of the benefit of a decree by one of the joint-debtors, although it has the legal effect of satisfying the judgment-debt which the decree creates, cannot affect the decree itself.—Abul Munsoor v. Abdool Hamid, 2 C. 98.

Transfer of a decree to a relative of a judgment-debtor does not amount to a transfer to a judgment-debtor.—Darbari Lal v. Damodar, A. I. R. 1929 All 792.

The proviso cannot apply where the decree-holder by inheritance acquires an interest in the estate of one of the judgment-debtors. The doctrine of complete merger explained.—Asia Bibi v. Aziz, 137 I. C. 50; 30 A. L. J. 230.

Attachment of decree by a co-judgment-debtor.—When a person attaches a decree against himself and several others in execution of a decree obtained by him against his decree-holder, the ownership does not vest in him, and he is competent to take out execution against his co-judgment-debtors. Kalyan v. Damber, 6 A. L. J. 564; 2 I. C. 626.

Assignment of rent decree.—See S. 148 (h), B. T. Act, which provides that notwithstanding anything contained in this rule, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him. See also Dino Nath v. Golap Mohini, 1 O. W. N. 183; Monmotho v. Rakkhal, 10 C. L. J. 396, Shamhu Nath v. Sheo Pershad, 40 C. 462 (F. B.); 17 C. W. N. 276; 16 C. L. J. 227 (Dwarka v. Peari, 1 C. W. N. 694 overruled); Koulash v. Jodu Nath, 14 C. 380; Karuna Moyi v. Surendra, 26 C. 176; Ohhatrapat v. Gopi Chand, 26 C. 750; 4 C. W. N. 446; Nagendra v. Bhuvan, 6 C. W. N. 91; Hem Chunder v. Mon Mohini, 3 C. W. N. 604; Forbes v. Maharaj Bahadur Singh, 41 I. A. 91; 41 C. 926 (P. C.); 18 C. W. N. 747; 23 I. C. 632; 12 A. L. J. 653; 27 M. L. J. 4 (Maharaj Bahadur v. Forbes, 35 C. 737 reversed).

As to what is a rent decree and what is not, see 27 C. 827 (F. B.); 4 C. W. N. 357, 4 C. W. N. 605.

Substitution of name of assignee in execution proceedings not in the Code which renders necessary the of an assignee or legal representatives for proceedings; all that this rule provides is that an assignee should apply for execution of the decree and that his name should be brought on the record; Monmotho v. Rakkhal, 10 C. L. J. 396. See also Jogendra v. Shyam, 36 C. 543; Syud Nadir v. Pearoo, 19 W. R. 255; Shama v.
Nobin, 15 W. R. 283; Javermal v. Umaji, 9 B. 179; Sailendra v. Surendra, 57 C. 1137; 34 C. W. N. 437; 129 I. C. 572; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 614.

Record decree-holder entitled to proceed.—The person appearing on the face of the decree as the decree-holder is entitled to execution, unless it is shown that another person has taken his place as assignee; Jasoda v. Kirtibash, 18 C. 639; Khettur v. Ishur, 11 W. R. 271; Monmotho v. Rakhal, noted above; Gopi Chand v. Mehr Chand, 134 I. C. 194: 31 P. L. R. 961: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 116.

Fresh attachment not necessary.—If at the date of the assignment of a decree the judgment-debtor's property is already under attachment in execution of the decree, a fresh attachment by the assignee is not necessary; Hafiz Suleman v. Abdullah, 16 A. 133 (12 B. L. R. 411 referred to).

Fresh application not necessary.—It is not necessary for an assignee of a decree to present a fresh application if the execution initiated by the transferor is pending at the time of transfer; Monmotho v. Rakhal, 10 C. L. J. 396, p. 400.

Decree-holder dying pending execution—Legal representatives must apply for execution afresh.—There is no rule of law which enables the legal representatives of a deceased decree-holder to apply for mere substitution of names. He must apply, whenever he does apply for fresh execution, in the usual form of ten columns, when his predecessor's application is pending; Akhoy v. Surendra, 30 C. W. N. 735: 96 I. C. 378: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 957; Bay Nath v. Ram Bharos, 49 A. 509 (F. B.): 104 I. C. 116: A. I. R. 1927 All. 165; Mirza Mahammad v. Sajjad Mirza, 3 Luck. 126: A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 30: 105 I. C. 611. An application made by one of them takes effect in favour of all—Ibid. An application for substitution of names in place of the original decree-holder and for continuation of the execution proceedings is a step-in-aid of execution.—Mohan Singh v. Jagat Singh, 50 A. 621. 109 I. C. 412: A. I. R. 1928 All. 299: 26 A. L. J. 417.

Where after the decree is transferred, the decree-holder dies, the legal representatives may apply to the executing Court for carrying on the proceedings and may subsequently produce from the Court which passed the decree the necessary order under this rule. But the failure or omission of the legal representatives to produce such an order from the Court which passed the decree at the moment of his application to the executing Court does not entirely vitiate his application to that Court. Where the executing Court ordered substitution in spite of the objections raised by the judgment-debtor, but no appeal was preferred as against the order; held, that the validity of the order for substitution could not be raised in a subsequent application for execution.—Sailendra v. Surendra, 57 C. 1137: 34 C. W. N. 437: 123 I. C. 572: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 614. See also Kacharabhai v. Kacharabhai Vadilal, 134 I. C. 720: 33 Bom. L. R. 818: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 423. But a Full Bench of the Madras High Court has held that the legal representative of a decree-holder who died during the pendency of an execution petition filed by him, can be substituted in his place and be allowed to continue (50 M. 1 overruled: 60 M. L. J. 628 approved).—Venkatachalam v. Ramaswami, (1931) M. W. N. 1209 (F. B.): 34 L. W. 866.

Right of assignee to sue for refund of price or for declaration of right.—A suit lies at the instance of the assignee of a decree for a declaration as to the validity of his assignment. Section 47 is no bar.—Bomanapati v. Chintakunta, 26 M. 264 (14 M. 478 referred to).

An assignee of a decree who was refused execution is entitled to sue his assignor to recover the amount paid by him for his assignment; Ramasami v. Basavarappa, 16 M. 525. The assignee is also entitled to sue for the cancellation of the order refusing execution and for a declaration of his right to execution. Such a suit is not barred by S. 47.—Raman v. Muppil, 14 M. 478. Where an application by the transferee was dismissed on the ground that his purchase was bona fide for some of the judgment-debtors, he was entitled to bring a separate suit for a declaration of his right to execute the decree.—Halethkar v. Harasobhand, 12 C. 105. See also Shcoray v. Aminuddin, 20 A. 539, and Ram Bakhsh v. Panna Lal, 7 A. 457. But no suit will lie to establish a right to execute a decree when an order dismissing an application under this rule has been allowed to become final.—Imanatullah Khan v. Sardha Prasad, 28 A. 613 : 3 A. L. J. 429 : (1906) A. W. N. 133 (20 A. 539 distinguished). See also Kunhammad v. Arad, 16 M. L. J. 27.

A transferred a decree to B, who recovered part of the amount due under it, and was prevented from recovering the balance by an attachment in execution of a decree against A. Held that A was liable to pay compensation to B.—Puthandi v. Avalil Meidin, 20 M. 157.

A suit brought for a declaration that a decree purchased in the name of the defendant who had wrongfully taken out execution of the same in his own name had been really purchased by the plaintiff for his own benefit is not barred by S. 47.—Gour Mohan v. Dino Nath, 2 C. W. N. 76. See also Sethurayar v. Shanmugam Pillai, 21 M. 353.

Appeal.—A transferee of a decree is a representative of the decree-holder ; hence an order refusing to recognize the transferee of a decree or dismissing his application for execution on the objection of the judgment-debtor is a decree and appealable as such; Subbuthayammal v. Chidambaram, 25 M. 383; Ganga Das v. Yakub, 27 C. 670; Harditta v. Nigahaia, 4 L. L. J. 259; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 396; Badri Narain v. Jai Kishen, 16 A. 483; Tameshar v. Thakur, 25 A. 443.

Step-in-aid of execution.—The mere issue of a notice under this rule does not operate as a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Arts. 182 and 183 of the Limitation Act.—Monohar Das v. Fulleh Chand, 30 C. 979. But see Mohan Singh v. Jagat Singh, 50 A. 621; 109 I. C. 412; A. I. R. 1928 All. 299; Pitam Singh v. Jota Singh, 29 A. 301; Mahalinga v. Kuppanachariar, 30 M. 541; Annamalai v. Ramaier, 18 M. L. J. 24.

17. (1) On receiving an application for the execution of a decree as provided by rule 11, sub-rule (2), the Court shall ascertain whether such of the requirements of rules 11 to 14 as may be applicable to the case have been complied with; and, if they have not been complied with, the Court may reject the application, or may allow the defect to be remedied then and there or within a time to be fixed by it.

(2) Where an application is amended under the provisions of sub-rule (1), it shall be deemed to have been an application in accordance with law and presented on the date when it was first presented.

(3) Every amendment made under this rule shall be signed or initialled by the Judge.

(4) When the application is admitted, the Court shall enter in the proper register a note of the application and the date on which it was made, and shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, order execution of the decree according to the nature of the application :

Provided that, in the case of a decree for the payment of money, the value of the property attached shall, as nearly as may be, correspond with the amount due under the decree. [S. 245.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This rule corresponds to S. 245, C. P. Code, 1882, with some changes.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "may allow the defect to be remedied" have been substituted for the words "may allow it (application) to be remedied." The last sentence of the old section, viz., "If the application be not so amended, it shall be rejected," has been omitted. Sub-rule (1) states the procedure that a Court should adopt on receiving an application for execution and empowers the Court to reject the application if not properly drawn up or to allow the defect to be remedied. Where an application is not signed, it should not be rejected but should be allowed to be amended; Ohowdhuri v. Monmohini, 1 P. 149 : 69 I. C. 200 : A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 409; Ganesh Das v. Fattah Chand, 2 L. L. J. 104 : 55 I. C. 16. The Court has an option under Or. XXI, r. 17 either to reject the application or to allow the defect to be remedied within a time to be fixed by it. If it rejects the application, the order is not illegal; Sankaran Nair v. Ambu, 49 M. L. J. 699 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 260 : 92 I. C. 109. It was held in Pitchayya v. Ankineedu, A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 367 : 76 I. C. 750 : 45 M. L. J. 651, that where an application for amendment is filed after the expiration of 12 years provided by S. 48, the Court may accept it or reject it.

Order XXI, r. 17 does not contain anything to prevent the amendment of an application for execution after it is filed, by correcting a statement therein to the effect that the transferee had become entitled by succession and substituting the statement that he had become entitled by survivorship, with the object of making a succession certificate unnecessary (17 C. 631 (F. B.) distd.).—Naurangelal v. Charubala, 36 C. W. N. 618.

The Court is competent at any time before the execution proceedings terminate and before the decree becomes barred by limitation, to allow the decree-holder whose application for execution is pending, to amend his application by addition of the name of the other executor also where originally he named only one of two executors as his judgment-debtors by a bona fide mistake (2 P. 328 fold).—Brajasunder v. Radha Prasad, 11 P. 508.

preclude questions of validity being raised at subsequent stages.—Abdul Kharim v. Lakshmanaswami, 27 L. W. 475; 112 I. C. 36; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 440. See also Pitambar v. Damodar, 53 C. 664; 30 C. W. N. 918; 93 I. C. 166; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1077.

A decree-holder applied for execution of a decree, and the Judge ordered the application to be amended within seven days. This order was disobeyed, but no order rejecting the application was passed. Subsequently the applicant prayed for leave to make the amendment, which prayer was granted. Held that the order of the Judge granting leave to amend was not ultra vires under this rule.—Kaminy Mohun v. Gopal, 8 C. 479 : 10 C. L. R. 519. Where an application is returned by the Court for amendment and is re-presented long after the time allowed for that purpose, the case does not fall within Or. XXI, r. 17 (2) (26 M. 101 : 12 M. L. J. 435 followed).—Sangiliya v. Muthu, 34 L. W. 546 : 61 M. L. J. 516. An execution application, which is neither signed nor verified by the decree-holder, but which is signed by his vakil, who however, does not profess to be acquainted with the facts of the case, is not in accordance with law within the meaning of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act, and consequently does not save limitation.—Ibid.

A decree-holder made several applications for execution giving a wrong date of the decree in each. On the third application the judgment-debtor objected that the application was barred. The application was allowed to be amended, but the amendment took place after the expiry of the period of limitation. Held that the amendment would relate back to the preceding applications, and the execution of the decree was not barred.—Jivat Dube v. Kali Charan, 20 A. 478; Gnanendra v. Rishendra, 22 C. W. N. 540; 27 C. L. J. 398; Maheswaran v. Velappa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 24; 107 I. C. 303; 54 M. L. J. 154; 27 L. W. 796.

has been registered, no amendment is to file a fresh list of properties against is not an amendment of the execution petition; Chaurasi v. Bhagan, 2 P. 787 : 74 I. C. 144. The Court can, so long as the decree is alive, allow an amendment of an execution petition which is still pending by the addition of other properties to the list of properties sought to be attached.—Ram Sumran v. Ram Bahadur, 2 P. 328 : (1923) P. 61 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 224 : 71 I. C. 741. The principle upon which amendments of pending execution petitions are allowed is based upon the fact that if the amendment had been entered before the execution could have been entertained or if the amendment was filed; an application for amendment of execution made after the decree sought to be executed had become barred by limitation cannot be entertained.—Jagannath v. Chamu, 8 P. 462 : 119 I. C. 411 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 407. But the Madras High Court has held that rule 17 does not take away the power of the Court to allow amendment of execution petition at any time before final disposal and that an amended application must be deemed to have been made in accordance with law when it was presented, though the amendment was made after the period of limitation; Pitchayya v. Ankinneedu, A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 367 : 45 M. L. J. 651 : 76 I. C. 750.

An order for amendment may be made when the defect in the execution application is brought to the notice of the Court. It is not as if the amendment can be ordered by the Court only when the application is presented and not at any subsequent date (22 C. W. N. 510 folld.)—Sheojobind v. Kishunbasi, 13 P. L. T. 318. Where an application for execution of a decree was presented against the judgment-debtor who, it was subsequently ascertained, was dead at that time, and with the permission of the Court the application was amended by substituting the name of the legal representative and at the time of the substitution more than three years had elapsed from the date of the decree: held, that the effect of the amendment was to treat the application as presented on the date when it was presented and the application was not barred by limitation.—Ibid.

Value of property attached shall correspond with decretal amount.—Under this rule the value of the property attached shall, as nearly as may be, correspond with the amount for which the decree has been passed; Saadatmand v. Phul Kuar, 25 I. A. 146: 20 A. 412 (P. C.): 2 C. W. N. 550. See also Madarsah v. Palaniappa, 23 M. 623; Sirasami v. Ratnasami, 23 M. 563, Sunderabai v. Bapuna, 116 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 305

See notes to Or. XXI, r. 66

If the order for attachment is wrong and excessive the attachment actually put is not null and void or without jurisdiction; Sorabji v. Govind, 16 B. 91 (114).

Execution of declaratory decrees.—Execution cannot be obtained on a merely declaratory decree.—Muniyan v. Periya, 1 M. H. C. R. 184; Jeora v. Thakoree, 2 N. W. P. 303; Tata Chariar v. Singara Chariar, 4 M. 219. See, however, Kishore Bun v. Dwarkanath, 21 I. A. 89: 21 C. 784 (P. C.).

A decree, so far as it is a mere declaratory decree, cannot be enforced in execution.—Janakiram v. Thiruvazh Kodu, 2 M. L. T. 94 (5 B. 80; 3 M. I. A. 359; 23 M. 298, and 18 C. 448 (P. C.), referred to).

A declaratory decree cannot be executed in a Revenue Court; Anupa Kuar v. Achhaibar, 37 A. 97: 26 I. C. 597.

Execution of rent decrees.—A landlord who has obtained a decree for arrears of rent of an under-tenure is at liberty to execute the decree in the ordinary manner against the person or other property, whether moveable or immovable, of his judgment-debtor. He is not restricted by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act to executing such decree in the first instance by sale of the under-tenure.—Fotick v. Foley, 16 C. 492 (14 C. 14 explained); Tariniprosad v. Narayan, 17 C. 301; Bhabani v. Pratap, 8 C. W. N. 575; Sourendra v. Surnomoyi, 26 C. 103: 3 C. W. N. 38 (folld. in Aosub v. Bisseshuri, 8 C. L. J. 554).

Execution of maintenance decrees.—If in a maintenance decree property is charged with payment of the allowance, to make a fresh suit unnecessary in case of default in payment of the instalments, a Receiver should be appointed under the decree itself with directions, in case of default in payment of the maintenance to take possession of the estate and sell the same, and out of the sale-proceeds to pay the allowance for maintenance.—Hemanginee v. Kumode, 26 C. 441. See also the following cases: 2 B. 494; 9 B. 109; 9 A. 33; 19 C. 139 (F. B.); 10 M. 283 (F. B.); 16 A. 179; 22 C. 903; 2 C. W. N. 33; 12 B. 65 and 416; and 12 M. 183.

A decree for maintenance can be executed after the death of the person against whom it was passed, and also against other members of the joint family, where the decree created a charge on the joint family property.—Subbanna Bhatta v. Subbanna, 30 M. 324: 17 M. L. J. 180.

Execution of satisfied decree.—This rule has nothing to do with the invalidity of a sale made to a stranger, who purchased without notice of the fact that the amount realised by the previous sale of other plots of the property attached was more than sufficient to satisfy the decree in execution.—Surendra v. Bola Ram, 45 I. C. 699.

Mortgage-decree.—See the cases under Or. XXXIV.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is not appealable as a decree: Pattah Verran v. Veethil Appu, 9 I. C. 760: 9 M. L. T. 347. An order allowing the decree-holder to withdraw execution is not appealable; Kenaram v. Kailas, 18 C. L. J. 53.

18. (1) Where applications are made to a Court for the execution of cross-decrees in separate suits for the payment of two sums of money passed between the same parties and capable of execution at the same time by such Court, then—

Execution in case of cross-decrees.

(a) if the two sums are equal, satisfaction shall be entered upon both decrees; and

(b) if the two sums are unequal, execution may be taken out only by the holder of the decree for the larger sum and for so much only as remains after deducting the smaller sum, and satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered on the decree for the larger sum as well as satisfaction on the decree for the smaller sum.

(2) This rule shall be deemed to apply where either party is an assignee of one of the decrees and as well in respect of judgment-debts due by the original assignor as in respect of judgment-debts due by the assignee himself.

(3) This rule shall not be deemed to apply unless—

(a) the decree-holder in one of the suits in which the decrees have been made is the judgment-debtor in the other and each party fills the same character in both suits; and

(b) the sums due under the decrees are definite.[S. 246.]

(4) The holder of a decree passed against several persons jointly and severally may treat it as a cross-decree in relation to a decree passed against him singly in favour of one or more of such persons. [NEW.]

Illustrations.

(a) A holds a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. B holds a decree against A for the payment of Rs. 1,000 in case A fails to deliver certain goods at a future day. B cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this rule.

(b) A and B, co-plaintiffs, obtain a decree for Rs. 1,000 against C, and C obtains a decree for Rs. 1,000 against B. C cannot treat his decree as a cross-decree under this rule.

(c) A obtains a decree against B for Rs. 1,000. C, who is a trustee for B, obtains a decree on behalf of B against A for Rs. 1,000. B cannot treat C's decree as a cross-decree under this rule.

(d) A, B, C, D and E are jointly and severally liable for Rs. 1,000 under a decree obtained by F. A obtains a decree for Rs. 100 against F singly and applies for execution to the Court in which the joint-decree is being executed. F may treat his joint-decree as a cross-decree under this rule.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations and effect.—This rule corresponds with S. 246 of the C. P. Code of 1832, with some modifications. The meaning of the rule has been made more clear by use of appropriate words.

Sub-rule (1).—The words "where applications are made to a Court for the execution of cross-decrees," and the words "in separate suits," have been added after "cross-decrees," in order to indicate that this rule is applicable to cross-decrees obtained in separate suits and not cross-claims under one decree, for which provision is made in rule 19. The addition seems to have been made in adoption of the principle laid down in Kalka Prasad v. Ram Din, 5 A. 272.

Sub-rule (4).—This is new; it has been added in accordance with the principles laid down in Ram Sukh Das v. Tota Ram, 14 A. 339 and Hury Doyal v. Din Doyal, 9 C. 479: 13 C. L. R. 93. The illustration (d), which has been newly added, clearly explains the meaning of sub-rule (4).

Applicability.—The words "where applications are made to a Court for the execution of cross-decrees in separate suits" clearly indicate that this rule contemplates applications by both persons for execution of both decrees passed in separate suits, viz, A against B and B against A, A being the decree-holder against B in one suit, and B the decree-holder against A in another. That is, both the decrees sought to be set off must be before the same Court and under execution at the same time. If one decree-holder only applies for execution and the other has not applied, set-off cannot be allowed and execution must proceed for the full amount; Chajmal v. Lal Dharam, 24 A. 431 [13 I. A. 106 (110) refd. to], followed in Ponnusamy v. Doraisamy, 32 M. 336: 1 I. C. 247.

The words "separate suits" signify that for the purposes of set-off a counter-claim is not an independent action. For all purposes except those of execution a claim and a counter-claim are two independent actions; per Lord Esher in Strumor v. Campbell & Co., (1892) 1 Q. B. 317.

This rule is applicable to cross-decrees and not to cross-claims under one decree.—Kalka Prasad v. Ram Din, 5 A. 272. As to cross-claims, see r. 19.

The provisions as to set-off contained in this rule are exhaustive and no set-off on grounds other than those mentioned in r. 8 is permissible. Nor can S. 51 be invoked for such purpose.—Shankar v. Amrit Lal, 138 I. C. 285; 33 P. L. R. 671; A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 537.

Requisites for right of set-off of cross-decrees.—In order that this rule may apply the following elements must be present: (1) The cross-decrees must be passed in separate suits; (2) The cross-decrees must be for payment of two sums of money passed between the same parties; (3) The cross-decrees must be in the same Court for execution at the same time, i.e., both decree-holders must apply for execution; (4) They must be capable of execution, (5) The sums due under the decrees must be definite; (6) The decree-holder in one of the suits in which the decrees have been made is the judgment-debtor in the other, and each party fills the same character in both suits. The existence of one without the other does not justify the application of the rule. They will be considered under separate heads:—

(1) Cross-decrees in separate suits—Rule 18 applies even though one decree is in a suit and the other is in a proceeding under S. 144. Where A attached, in execution of a decree against B, a decree for mesne profits obtained by B under S. 144 of the C. P. Code against C, though the case may not strictly fall under Or. XXI, r. 18, the Court has inherent power to allow C to set off as against A executing the decree for mesne-profits against him (as B's assignee) to a decree for a larger sum which he holds as against B; Adwaita v. Chittagong Co., 28 C. W. N. 988: 84 I. C. 747; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 102.

(2) "Two sums of money"—Mortgage-decrees.—A decree in a mortgage suit directing the plaintiff to recover the amount by sale of properties but not directing payment by the defendant, is essentially a decree for money. The provisions as to set-off, in this rule will apply to such decrees.—Krishnan v. Venkatapathi, 29 M. 318 (28 M. 476 followed). See also rule 20 of this Order which seems to have been framed in adoption of the principle of this ruling. But see Burma Oil Company v. Ma Tin, 7 B. 505, which held that a mortgage-decree is not a decree "for the payment of sums of money" within the meaning of rule 18 and consequently the decree-holder cannot set-off the claim thereunder as against a personal decree against him. Rule 20 of Or. XXI merely applies the provisions of rule 18 to a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage and where the latter rule is not applicable the former cannot be invoked.

"Between the same parties."—In order to admit of a set-off being made when there are cross-decrees, the parties must be the same, and the sum due under each decree or decrees must be definite.—Rechaoooden v. Fuzloonissa, 5 W. R. Mis 12.

Where a decree-holder holds a decree against several persons jointly, one of whom holds a decree against him singly, both decrees being executable.

in the same Court, it is competent to the holder of the joint decree to plead such decree in answer to an application for execution of the decree against him singly.—Ram Sukh v. Tota Ram, 14 A. 339. See also Hury Doyal v. Din Doyal, 9 C. 479; 13 C. L. R. 93. See, however, Murli Dhar v. Parsotam, 2 A 91.

(3) In the same Court and under execution at the same time.—See notes under "applicability," above. Before a cross-decree can be set-off, the one against the other, it is necessary that both the decrees should be in the same Court for execution: For instance, A obtaining a decree against N in the Court of S, in execution prays that another decree obtained by N against A in the Court of B should be set-off against A's decree. This cannot be allowed as the two decrees were not in course of execution in the same Court; Afsalunnissa v. Nurul, 11 A. L. J. 763; 21 I. C. 32. See also E. I. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 3 N. W. P. 104; D' Silva v. Ameer Shaha, 16 W. R. 303; Salig Ram v. Ishar Das, 126 I. C. 516; A. J. R 1930 Lah. 508. They must be under execution at the same time.—Judoonath v. Ram Buksh, 7 W. R. 535. See also Chajmal v. Lal Dharam, 24 A. 481 (followed in Ponnusamy v. Doraisamy, 32 M. 336; 1 I. C. 247; Rukmani v. Seethamul, 22 I. C. 73).

A in execution of his decree against B secured the attachment of a decree obtained by B against A. B then applied for execution of his decree against A. Held, as there were applications for execution of both the decrees, this rule applied and the Court could set-off smaller amount due from B against the larger amount due to him from A, although A had already secured attachment of B's decree against himself.—Firm Soba Ram v. Tarachand, 117 I. C. 103; A I. R. 1929 All. 502.

But when the Court directed that a decree for rent should not be executed until the amount of mesne profits due under a decree against the rent decree-holder has been ascertained, evidently the intention was that the decrees should be set-off against each other and set-off was allowed though the judgment-debtor did not apply for execution of his decree; Hira Lal v. Ramjiram, 52 I. C. 746; (1919) P. 372.

The provisions of this rule apply only to cross-decrees of the same Court between the same parties, or to cross-decrees between the same parties, though of different Courts, which had found their way for execution to the same Court.—Ram Coomar v. Gobindnath, 7 W. R. 480 (reversing on review 6 W. R. 21). See also Hadoo Sirdar v. Jadoo Monee, 17 W. R. 46. Where on application for execution of a decree in the Court of a Sub-Judge, it was sought to set-off a decree obtained in the Judge's Court which has not been sent to the Sub-Judge for execution: Held that this rule was inapplicable.—Girish v. Fakir, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 503; 6 W. R. Mis. 72.

(4) Decrees capable of execution.—A decree which is incapable of being enforced cannot be set-off against a decree which is alive.—Huro Pershad v. Fool Kishoree, 16 W. R. 308.

A set-off is not admissible, except upon a cross-decree which the decree-holder is seeking to execute, and not upon a cross-decree incapable of execution by lapse of time. A cross-decree must be kept alive by action of the party entitled under it.—Anund Mohun v. Huro Chunder, 5 W. R. Mis. 16; Prosunno Coomar v. Sham Lal, 5 W. R. Mis. 8; Himraj v. Asoodun,

5 W. R. Mis. 43. But where in one suit judgment is given in part for the plaintiff, and in part for the defendant, the decree for the smaller sum becomes absorbed in the one for the larger and no question of limitation can therefore arise in respect to the execution of the decree for the smaller sum which became incapable of execution as soon as the decree for the larger sum was passed.—Nubo Lall v. Maharanee of Burdwan, 9 W. R. 590.

(5) The sums must be definite.—The principle of setting off cross-decrees between the same parties and ordering execution only for the surplus that may be found due to one of them cannot be applied where the defendant has only got a preliminary-decree for sale in a mortgage suit against the plaintiff, because until the accounts are taken, the amount cannot be said to be ascertained.—Galstaun v. Radhakissen, 57 C. 855 : 129 I. C. 420 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 23.

(6) Each party fills the same character in both suits.—For the meaning of these words, see illustration (c) of this rule and illustrations (a) and (b) of Or. VIII, r. 6. See also Abdul Hasan v. Zohrajan, 5 A. 299, where it has been held that in a suit by the creditor of a deceased debtor to recover his debt, an amount due as manager cannot be set-off, against a personal liability. For instance A obtains a decree against B as executor to the estate of C, and B obtains a decree against A personally; the two decrees cannot be set-off, as A and B do not fill the same character in the two suits.

In the case of ordinary money decrees, even when the parties are not identical, but the decree is joint and several against the decree-holder of the other decree, set-off may be allowed; Ram Chander v. Mahabir, 39 I. C. 560. But the matter is different when the decree is a mortgage decree particularly when there is no personal liability; ibid. See also Sheo Sankar v. Chunn Lal, 38 A. 669 : 36 I. C. 948.

Decree for sale on mortgage against puisne encumbrancer—Personal decree in favour of puisne encumbrancer against mortgagee—Different capacities; Sheo Shankar v. Chunni Lal, noted above.

A decree against a firm can be set-off against a decree in favour of a partner, for a firm's name is only a description of the individual partners.—Administrator-General v. Sultanalli, 29 Bom. L. R. 396 : 104 I. C. 319 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 255.

When two sums are unequal,—execution should be issued for the difference. The smaller decree being absorbed in the larger, it cannot be executed separately; see Sinnu v. Santhoji, 26 M. 428. See also Haro Sanker v. Tarak, 3 B. L. R. A. C. 114.

Where property sold in execution of valid decree, under the order of a competent Court, was purchased bona fide and for fair value. Held that mere existence of a cross-decree for a higher amount in favour of the judgment-debtor without any question of fraud would not support a suit by the latter against the purchaser to set aside the sale.—Rewa Mahton v. Ram Kishen, 13 I. A. 106 : 14 C. 18 (P. C.) (followed in Mothura v. Akhoy Kumar, 15 C. 557; and in Yellappa v. Ram Chandra, 21 B. 463). See also Sinnu v. Santhoji, 26 M. 428 (13 I. A. 106 : 14 C. 18 (P. C.)), explained).

Where there are essentially cross-decrees, the decree for the smaller amount becomes absorbed in the one for the larger, and the order of attachment under Or. XXI, r. 46, can have no operation or affect the legality of the set-off.—Bujhawan Lal v. Sukhraj Rai, 2 A. 866.

When the two sums are unequal, execution may be taken only by the holder of the decree for the larger sum. See notes to r. 19.

Though the holder of the decree for the smaller amount cannot apply for execution, his right and priorities should be decided as if the decree for the larger amount was attached at his instance as soon as application for execution is made; Armugha v. Yagamba, 17 I. C. 323.

Rights of assignee of decree to set-off.—A and B had obtained a decree against K and J. After partial satisfaction A and B assigned it to D. Prior to the date of assignment, K and J had instituted a suit against A, B and D, and ultimately obtained a decree against them. Held that K and J were entitled to set-off their decree against the unexecuted portion of the decree which had been assigned to D.—Kristo Ramani v. Kedar Nath, 16 C. 619.

Attaching decree-holders are assignees within the meaning of sub-rule (2) of this rule. X, who has obtained a decree against Y, attaches in execution of his decree a decree held by Y against Z; X is an assignee of Y's decree within the meaning of sub-rule (2); Adwaita v. Chittagong Co., 28 C. W. N. 938; 84 I. C. 747; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 102.

A, by deed or zur-i-peshgi, let certain land to B to secure a sum advanced by him to her. B covenanted to pay certain dues annually to A. On failure of B, A obtained a decree against him for the amount. In execution of a decree against B, C purchased his interest in the sum secured by the zur-i-peshgi deed, and sued A to recover the sum. Held that A was entitled in such suit to set-off the amount of the decree obtained by her against B.—Bhagawani Kunwar v. Lala Baijnath, 2 B. L. R. A. C. 84; 10 W. R. 380.

The purchaser of a decree held by A against whom B holds a cross-decree takes it subject to a set-off on account of B's decree.—Kasim Ali v. Lakhikant, 1 B. L. R. 23 (F. B.); 10 W. R. 32 (F. B.); Nundo Coomar v. Koonjo Kishore, 6 W. R. Mis 73; Doorga Churn v. Debnath, 18 W. R. 442; Oopendro Mohun v. Poorno Chunder, 19 W. R. 85; and Ram Chunder v. Mohendro Nath, 21 W. R. 141.

Cross-decree for mesne-profits.—Where there are cross-decrees for possession and mesne-profits in respect to the same land, the earlier decree comprehending only a part of the land embraced in the latter, each party may take execution and be entitled to receive mesne-profits separately.—Anund Mohun v. Shibo Soonduree, 16 W. R. 256. See also Ram Coomar v. Gobind Nath, 12 W. R. 391.

When both the decrees are for mesne-profits, the amounts of which have not been ascertained, the right of set-off does not arise until the amounts due under the decree are definitely ascertained and after ascertainment of the amounts due, the provisions of this rule can be applied.—Matadin v. Chandi Din, 10 A. 188.

Appeal.—An appeal lies against an order under this rule as under S. 47; Kristo Ramani v. Kedar Nath, 16 C. 619.

19. Where application is made to a Court for the execution of a decree under which two parties are entitled to recover sums of money from each other, then,—

Execution in case of cross-claims under same decree.

- (a) if the two sums are equal, satisfaction for both shall be entered upon the decree; and,
- (b) if the two sums are unequal, execution may be taken out only by the party entitled to the larger sum and for so much only as remains after deducting the smaller sum, and satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered upon the decree. [S. 247.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope—Applicability.—This rule is applicable to cross-claims under one decree only and not cross-decrees in separate suits.

The object of this rule is to prevent each side executing a decree in respect of sums due whether for costs or otherwise under the same decree.—Bhagwan v. Ratan, 16 A. 395; Venkatanarayana v. Puuvada, 44 M. L. J. 590 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 638 : 72 I. C. 865. There is nothing in the rule to prevent a plaintiff who holds a joint and several decree against two defendants (who under the same decree are individually entitled to different amounts for costs which in the aggregate exceed the amount due to the plaintiff), from taking out execution against one defendant alone for the balance due to him by both defendants until the other defendant applies for execution against the plaintiff. Thus A gets a joint decree against B and C for Rs. 1,200, B gets Rs. 400 as costs against A, and C gets Rs. 1,000 as costs against A. A can execute against B for Rs. 800; Rangiah v. Narasayya, 3 L. W. 267 : 34 I. C. 389.

The words "a decree under which two parties are entitled" suggest the simultaneous birth of two sets of rights under the decree. A judgment-debtor objected to the attachment of certain property, and his objection having succeeded obtained a decree for costs against the decree-holder. When the judgment-debtor sought to execute his decree for costs, the decree-holder asked for a set-off for the decree for costs against the amount due to him under his decree in the suit; held, that r. 19 would not apply as the two claims were not under one decree.—Bisheshwar v. Narmadeshwar, 127 I. C. 525 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 726.

To make this rule applicable in the case of cross-claims under one decree, the parties entitled thereunder to recover from each other must hold the same character and possess identical rights of enforcing execution, and enforcement of the decree can only be refused, or satisfaction entered up, when this is the case.—Kalka Prasad v. Ram Din, 5 A. 272. But this view is no longer maintained and it has now been held that rule is not limited in its application to cases in which the remedy of each party against the other is of precisely the same nature or where the parties fill the same character. Thus, where one party was entitled to recover certain costs by means of the sale of hypothecated property, and the other party under the same decree was entitled to recover a smaller sum as costs from his opponent personally, held that this rule was applicable.—Bhagwan Singh v. Ratnan, 16 A. 395 (5 A. 272 dissented from, approved in Sankara Menon v. Gopala Pattar, 23 M 121, referred to in Mirza Sadik v. Hashin, 24 I. C. 376).

"Two parties"—mean the two parties or sets of parties who are parties not only to the suit in which the decree was passed but also referred to in the opening sentence of the rule; Ranjiah v. Narasayya, 3 L. W. 267; 34 I. C. 388.

"Execution may be taken only by the party entitled to the larger sum."—It follows from this provision that the party who under a decree is entitled only to the smaller sum has no right to apply for execution. The rule contemplates that the decree should be regarded as a single indivisible order, enforceable only for the difference between the two sums awarded. When two unequal sums are awarded, the smaller sum must be taken to have been entered as satisfied under the provision "satisfaction for the smaller sum shall be entered on the decree." Thus if A is awarded Rs. 50 against B, and B is awarded Rs. 100 against A as costs, and A applies to execute the decree against B, he cannot do so even if B's claim against him is barred by limitation; Madappa v. Jaki Ghosal, 40 B. 60; 17 Bom. L. R. 689; see notes to r. 18. If in violation of this rule, a decree-holder takes out execution without setting-off the dues of the judgment-debtor, the Court can under its inherent power compel a refund of the sum taken in excess.—Annanda Mohan v. Atul Chandra, 24 C. W. N. 465; 56 I. C. 753.

Set-off in cross-claims under same decree—Where two parties have to recover sums from each other under the same decree, the party entitled to the lesser sum cannot be allowed to take out execution against the party entitled to the larger sum, and the Court is bound to direct a set-off, or to enter satisfaction of the smaller sum upon the decree.—Jugo Mohun v. Soorendronath, 13 W. R. 106. See also Ram Lal v. Asutosh, 44 I. C. 445.

Under this rule all that the decree-holder is entitled to enforce execution of is the difference between the amount found recoverable by him and the amount which the judgment-debtor is entitled to recover against him.—Giribala Debia v. Rani Mina Kumari, 5 C. W. N. 497. See Amjud Ali v. Fazul Hossein, 19 W. R. 187; Issur Chunder v. Mun Mohun, 12 W. R. 303.

A decree in a pre-emption suit directed that the plaintiff should obtain possession and recover costs from the defendant on payment of the purchase-money within a fixed time. Held, applying the equitable doctrine of set-off, that the plaintiff was entitled, when depositing the purchase-money under the decree, to deduct therefrom the sum which the decree awarded to him as costs.—Ishri v. Gopal Saran, 6 A. 351. See also Kapurja Mal v. Wali Muhammad, 2 L. 294; Hemendra Nath v. Tulshi, 126 I. C. 831; A. I. R. 1930 All. 413, in which the costs and mesne profits till the date of delivery of possession were allowed to be set-off against the deposit of purchase-money.

20. The provisions contained in rules 18 and 19 shall

Cross-decrees apply to decrees for sale in enforcement of a and cross-claims mortgage or charge. [New.] in mortgage suits

COMMENTARY.

Object—Mortgage-decrees.—This rule is new. It is inserted in order to make it clear that the provisions as to cross-decrees and cross-claims apply to the case of mortgage-decrees. The rule also makes it clear that the expressions "decree for the payment of money" and other similar expressions in the Code do not include a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge.—Report of the Select Committee.

This rule seems to have been framed in accordance with the principle laid down in Krishnan v. Venkatapathi, 29 M. 318, where it has been held that a decree directing the plaintiff to recover the decreed amount by sale of properties but not directing payment by the defendant is essentially a decree for money and the provisions as to set-off in S. 246, C. P. Code, 1882. (Or. XXI, r. 18), will apply to such decrees (following Vaidhinadasamy v. Somasundaram, 28 M. 473 (F. B.) which overruled 24 M. 412).

The mortgage decree must be a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage, otherwise rule 18 will not apply.—Burma Oil Company v. Ma Tin, 7 R. 505, noted under rule 18 ante. Rule 20 will not apply where only a preliminary decree for sale has been made in a mortgage suit.—Galstaun v. Radhakisen, 57 C. 855: 129 I. C. 420: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 23, noted ante under rule 18.

It has been held that a simple decree for recovery of money can be set-off against a decree for recovery of money by enforcement of a mortgage or charge; Nagar v. Ram Chand, 33 A. 240: 7 A. L. J. 1179; Venkata Reddi v. Dorasami, (1932) M. W. N. 1187: 36 L. W. 644: 63 M. L. J. 722 (even if under the mortgage decree the mortgagor is personally liable for the deficiency).

The costs awarded to a judgment-debtor can be set-off against the money recoverable under a mortgage-decree; Mirza Sadilk v. Hashim, 24 I. C. 376.

21. The Court may, in its discretion, refuse execution at the same time against the person and property of the judgment-debtor. [S. 230, PARA. 2.]

execution.

COMMENTARY.

Simultaneous execution against person and property.—This rule should be read with r. 30, which says that a decree may be executed both by attachment of person and property.

Though the Court has discretion to refuse execution against the person and the property simultaneously, it has no power to refuse execution against the person of the judgment-debtor on the ground that the decree-holder must in the first instance proceed against the property of the judgment-debtor; Hargobind v. Hakim Singh, 6 L. 548: 93 I. C. 54: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 110; Hiralal v. Lalchand, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 86: 110 I. C. 185.

Appeal.—An order under this rule, refusing execution of a decree simultaneously against the person and property of judgment-debtor, is appealable as a decree—Chena Pemaji v. Ghelabhai, 7 B. 301.

22. (1) Where an application for execution is made—

Notice to show cause against execution in certain cases.

- (a) more than one year after the date of the decree, or
- (b) against the legal representative of a party to the decree, the Court executing the decree shall issue a notice to the person against whom execution is applied for requiring him to show cause, on a date to be fixed, why the decree should not be executed against him :

Provided that no such notice shall be necessary in consequence of more than one year having elapsed between the date of the decree and the application for execution if the application is made within one year from the date of the last order against the party against whom execution is applied for, made on any previous application for execution, or in consequence of the application being made against the legal representative of the judgment-debtor, if upon a previous application for execution against the same person the Court has ordered execution to issue against him. [S. 248.]

(2) Nothing in the foregoing sub-rule shall be deemed to preclude the Court from issuing any process in execution of a decree without issuing the notice thereby prescribed, if, for reasons to be recorded, it considers that the issue of such notice would cause unreasonable delay or would defeat the ends of justice. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Principle—Scire facias.—"Writs of execution must be sued out within a year and a day after the judgment is entered otherwise the Court concludes prima facie that the judgment is satisfied and extinct; yet, however, it will grant a writ of scire facias, for the defendant to show cause why the judgment should not be revived and execution had against him."—(Stephen's Commentaries on Blackstone, p. 421, Vol. 3, 15th Ed.). The provisions of this rule have been borrowed from the English procedure for a writ of scire facias; Jogendra v. Shyam Das, 35 C. 543 : 9 C. L. J. 271; Livinia v. Madhabmoni, 11 C. L. J. 489, 498 : 14 C. W. N. 560. A scire facias is a judicial writ issued for the purpose of substantiating and carrying into effect an antecedent judgment.

Alterations—Effect.—This rule corresponds to S. 248, C. P. Code, 1882, with several alterations and additions. The old section has been re-arranged and the language re-cast in order to make the meaning more clear and intelligible.

Sub-rule (2) is new. It has given full discretion to the Court to issue process in execution before issuing a notice under this rule, if for any reason the Court is satisfied that the issue of such notice would cause unreasonable delay or would defeat the ends of justice. But before doing so, it shall record its reasons. The addition is no doubt an improvement and it has done away with the stringent rule which hitherto existed that omission to issue a notice rendered the execution proceedings null and void; see 20 C. 370; 21 B. 424 (F. B.); 21 C. 19; 6 C. 103; 3 A. 424. See notes, post under "Effect of omission to issue notice to the judgment-debtor."

The explanation attached to the old section has been omitted as unnecessary in view of S. 37 in which the expression "Court which passed a decree" has been clearly defined.

"The Committee have omitted the reference to a decree passed in appeal, for that is ordinarily the decree to be executed (Kristo Kinkur Roy v. Rajah Burrodacant Roy, 14 M. I. A. 465 and Muhammad Sulaiman Khan v. Muhammadyar Khan, 11 A. 267 (F. B.))."—Report of the Special Committee.

Rule 22 does not apply in the case of the summary procedure contained in S. 111, Madras Estates Land Act.—Subba Reddi v. Marga, 118 I. C. 818; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 517.

Object of notice—is to prevent undue surprise to a judgment-debtor, when more than one year has elapsed between the date of the decree and the application for execution, or when the decree is sought to be enforced against the legal representative of the party against whom the decree was originally made—Jogendra Chandra v. Shyam Das, 9 C. L. J. 271; 36 C. 543.

A notice under r. 22 is necessary in order that the Court should obtain jurisdiction to sell property by way of execution as against the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor.—Prish Chandra v. Rahatannessa, 53 C. 825; 133 I. C. 670; 35 C. W. N. 220; 53 C. L. J. 46; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 555.

The object is not merely to give an opportunity to show cause why the decree should not be executed because, for instance, it is time-barred or has been adjusted, but also to give him an opportunity to satisfy before issue of execution; Erava v. Sidram Appa, 21 B. 424 (F. B.); Ajyun v. Gunendra 20 C. L. J. 341; Livinia v. Madhabmoni, 11 C. L. J. 489, 497; 14 C. W. N. 560; Lakshmi v. Sris, 13 C. L. J. 162; Tara Prasanna v. Jnanendra, 88 I. C. 1039; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 86; Gurudas v. Bhowanipore Zemindary Co., 25 C. W. N. 972.

Proper notice.—An insolvent's estate vested in the Official Assignee and a notice was served upon him to show cause why he should not be substituted for the judgment-debtor. Held that this was not a proper notice under this rule and a notice to show cause why the decree should not be executed against him ought to have been issued; Raghunath v. Sunder, 41 I. A. 251; 42 C. 72 (P. C.); 18 C. W. N. 1058; 20 C. L. J. 555. 24 I. C. 304; 27 M. L. J. 150; 13 A. L. J. 154; 16 Bom. L. R. 814. See also Smith v. Kailash, 11 P. 24; 138 I. C. 99; A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 199.

An application for transmission of a decree is not an application for execution, and no notice under this rule can be issued upon it; Chutterpat v. Saita, 20 C. W. N. 889 (F. B.); 23 C. L. J. 645. The Registrar of the High Court cannot order execution to issue, as an order for execution to issue is a judicial act which cannot be delegated to the Registrar under S. 637 of the old Code; Ibid.

In case of instalment decrees, notice under this rule is necessary if execution is sought for one year after the decree, though the date of default is within one year of the execution of the petition. The terminus a quo is the date of decree and not the date of default; Keralal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 5 L. L. J. 67.

Where one of several judgment-debtors has ceased to have an interest in the property, a failure to serve him with notice does not vitiate the execution proceedings in view of a definite provision to that effect in Art. 182 of the Limitation Act: Tara Prasanna v. Jnanendra, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 86; 89 I. C. 1039.

On the application of a decree-holder the executing Court directed simultaneous issue of three things: (1) notice under rule 22; (2) notice to show cause why the judgment-debtor should not be arrested; and (3) a warrant for the arrest of the judgment-debtor. The Court-peon was prevented from arresting the judgment-debtor. A prosecution under S. 353, I. P. C. having been launched, held, that the order for arrest was not illegal and that the accused were liable to be convicted for the offence.—Rajani Kanta v. Emperor, 58 C. 940 35 C. W. N. 228; 33 Cr. L. J. 886; 1931 Cr. C. 595; 132 I. C. 214 A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 443.

Proof of notice.—A notice under this rule stands upon a different footing from a summons or other notice which a party is bound to serve, and it must be presumed that a Court, until the contrary is proved, has duly issued such notice when required by law to do so.—Bimola Soonduree v. Kalea Kishen, 22 W. R. 5.

Court's duty to issue notice.—It is the Court's duty to issue notice upon the judgment-debtor when the decree is more than one year old even though the decree-holder may not formally ask and it is not obligatory upon him to do so; Stevens v. Kamta, 10 C. L. J. 19; 2 I. C. 941 (29 C. 580 refd. to).

Order XXI, r. 22 is not confined to those cases in which the execution is taken out against the representative of the judgment-debtor in the first instance. It applies as well to a case where execution has been taken against a judgment-debtor, and on the death of the judgment-debtor it is sought to be taken against the legal representatives, (42 C. 72 (P. C.) folld.; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 275, not folld.).—Smith v. Kailash, 11 P. 241; A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 199; 138 I. C. 99.

Effect of omission to issue notice to the judgment-debtor.—The question arises whether a sale without notice to the judgment-debtor is null and void by itself or voidable? It was held in Gopal v. Gunamoni, 20 C. 370, that the issue of notice is a condition precedent to the issue of execution in order that the Court should obtain jurisdiction to sell the property by way of execution, and omission to issue such notice renders the sale null and void. The decision was approved by the Privy Council in Raghunath v. Sunder Das, 41 I. A. 251; 42 C. 72 (P. C.); 24 I. C. 304; 27 M. L. J. 160; 16 Bom. L. R. 814; 13 A. L. J. 154; Shyam Mandal v. Satinath, 44 C. 954; 38 I. C. 493; 21 C. W. N. 776; 24 C. L. J. 523; Ram Kinkar v. Sthiti Ram, 27 C. L. J. 528; Fani Bhusan v. Surendra, 35 C. L. J. 9; 64 I. C. 25; Rajagopala v. Ramanuja Chariar, 47 M. 288 (F. B.); 80 I. C. 92; A. I. R.

1924 Mad. 431; Sarada v. Krishna Dome, 91 I. C. 711: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 539. The sale is a nullity whether it is purchased by the decree-holder (Ramessuri v. Doorgadass, 6 C. 103; Gurudas v. Bhowanipore Zemindary Co., Ltd., 25 C. W. N. 972); or by a third party (Imamunnissa v. Liakat Husain, 3 A. 424; Sahdeo v. Ghasiram, 21 C. 19; Parashram v. Balmukund, 32 B. 572). In a case which went to the Privy Council, a decree was sought to be executed against the estate of a deceased judgment-debtor and a person described in the application as the legal representative was served with notice under this rule, who objected that he was not the legal representative. The executing Court ruled that he was the legal representative. The execution went on and the property of the judgment-debtor was sold. It turned out afterwards that the person served with the notice was not the real representative. It was held by the Privy Council that the Court having determined for the purpose of execution proceedings that the person served was the legal representative, it had jurisdiction to sell although the decision as to who was the legal representative was erroneous. The omission to serve notice on the right person was a serious irregularity and the sale was voidable under Or. XXI, r. 90 or by an independent suit brought within a year as provided by Art. 12, Cl. (a) of the Limitation Act. But the sale was a reality and was valid so long as proper action under the law was not taken and it was not set aside—Malkarjun v. Narahari, 27 I. A. 216: 25 B. 337 (P. C.): 5 C. W. N. 10: 2 Bom. L. R. 927: 10 M. L. J. 363. The point was raised in Lvinia v. Madhabmoni, 11 C. L. J. 489: 14 C. W. N. 560, where all the cases were discussed and the principle enunciated above in the Privy Council case was affirmed, and it was held that omission to serve notice is a grave irregularity sufficient by itself to justify the reversal of the sale if a proper proceeding is taken in that behalf. It was said there that 25 B. 337 (P. C.) is an authority for the proposition that a sale held without issue of notice under this rule is not a nullity and cannot be ignored by the party whose property has been sold as if the sale had never taken place: but such omission is a serious irregularity. This principle was applied in Lakshmi v. Sris, 13 C. L. J. 162; Kumed Bewa v. Prasanna, 40 C. 45. Sham Sundar v. Jhumak, 20 C. L. J. 337: 11 I. C. 893. See also Arjun v. Gunendra, 20 C. L. J. 341: 18 C. W. N. 1266.

In accordance with the principle laid down in the cases cited above, it has been held in Kumad Bewa v. Prasanna, 40 C. 45 (21 C. 19 not followed), that omission to serve notice is not by itself sufficient to render a sale subsequently held, void. In order to justify the setting aside of such a sale it must be proved that the omission resulted in substantial injury; see also Lakshmi v. Sris, 13 C. L. J. 162, 164.

The Privy Council case of Raghunath v. Sundar, 41 I. A. 251: 42 C. 72 (P. C.): 18 C. W. N. 1058: 24 I. C. 304: 27 M. L. J. 150: 13 A. L. J. 154: 16 Bom. L. R. 814, seems to have changed the situation. There it has been laid down (approving Gopal Chunder v. Gunamani, 20 C. 370) that a notice under this rule is necessary to confer on the executing Court jurisdiction to sell property and the Privy Council decision in Malkarjan v. Narahari, 27 I. A. 216: 25 B. 337 (P. C.): 5 C. W. N. 10: 10 M. L. J. 363, was distinguished as one where notice was actually served on a person whom the Court decided to be the legal representative. If there is no jurisdiction to sell without service of notice, it must follow that the subsequent sale without notice is not merely an irregularity but a nullity. The Calcutta High Court followed Raghunath v. Sundar, 41 I. A. 251, in Moharaj Bahadur v. Surendra, 19 C. W. N. 162, and held that non-service of notice vitiates the sale. In Shyam Mandal v. Satinath, 44 C. 954: 24 C. L. J. 523: 21 C. W. N. 776: 38 I. C. 493, also, it has been held that omission to give notice is not a mere irregularity which makes the proceeding voidable, but is a defect which goes to the root of the proceeding and renders it void for want of jurisdiction. See also Ram Kinkar v. Sthiti Ram, 27 C. L. J. 528. Das Narayan v. Mir Muhammad, 6 P. L. J. 319: 61 I. C. 823. See also Rajagopala v. Ramanujachariar, 47 M. 288 (F. B.): 80 I. C. 92: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 431: 46 M. L. J. 104, where 42 C. 72 (P. C.) has been followed and 45 M. 875 overruled and 25 B. 337 (P. C.) and 14 C. 18 (P. C.) distinguished. See also Manmatha v. Lachmi, 55 C. 96: 46 C. L. J. 579: 105 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 60; Smith v. Kailash, 11 P. 241: 138 I. C. 99: A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 199; Chandi v. Jamna, 49 A. 830: 102 I. C. 239: A. I. R. 1923 All. 74; Ramdas v. Kannamal, 7 R. 110: 117 I. C. 245: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 161. The mandatory character of the provision as it stands only applies when the application is being first taken out.—Ramanathan v. Ramanathan, 30 L. W. 995: 117 I. C. 705: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 275. But see Smith v. Kailash, 11 P. 241: A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 199 noted ante. It has been held by a Special Bench of the Patna High Court that the rule applies to every application for execution and not merely to the first application, and that in every case where an application for execution is made more than a year after the last order made against the judgment-debtor in any previous application a fresh notice must be issued (overruling Mahadeo Singh v. Dhobi Singh, 2 P. 916).—Aditya Prasad v. Ram Narayan, 5 P. 1 (S. B.): 87 I. C. 531: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 474: (1925) P. 121.

Service of notice.—A mere issue of notice is not sufficient, service of such notice is essential, otherwise the order for execution is without jurisdiction and the sale void; Gurudas Biswas v. Bhowanipore Zemindary Co., Ltd., 25 C. W. N. 972. Where notice was served on an undivided brother and on his refusal to accept it, it was affixed to the outer door of the cutchery ghar in the outer apartment, held, that it was proper service.—Sarat v. Joy Sankar, 134 I. C. 80: 35 C. W. N. 332: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 546. Where the notice was issued but was suppressed and the sale was set aside and a re-sale was held to the knowledge of the judgment-debtor, it was held that the re-sale was not rendered invalid on the ground that a fresh notice under Or. XXI, r. 22 was not issued.—Fakhrul Islam v. Rani Bhubaneshwari, 7 P. 790: 117 I. C. 648: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 79. Where the notice was not served but the judgment-debtor appeared before the executing Court and showed cause against execution, it was held that the objection regarding the non-issue of notice could not be given effect to.—Chandra Nath v. Nabadwip, 35 C. W. N. 9: 53 C. L. J. 329: 131 I. C. 702: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 476.

A notice, in order to be valid must give sufficient time to enable the judgment-debtor to come and oppose the application (2 B. 449 followed).—Lakshmanan v. Palaniappa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1052.

But the rule is sufficiently complied with if notice is given to the adult co-tenants in a case where they and the minor co-tenants live in the same house and the minors have no guardian ad-litem on record; Fani Bhusan v. Surendranath, 35 C. L. J. 9: 64 I. C. 25.

Proviso.—Where the proceedings are in fact proceedings in continuation of the prior execution cases no notice is necessary to the judgment-debtor under the provisions of this rule.—Sultan Hasan v. Nanki Bibi, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 241. The expression “last order against the party” includes not merely a subsisting order but also an order which has been vacated.—Bibi Wakilan v. Bibi Kasiman, 9 P. 499 : 125 I. C. 793 : 11 P. L. J. 859 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 536. An application by the decree-holder to continue the execution proceedings against the legal representatives of the deceased judgment-debtor, need not necessarily be made by a fresh application for execution, but it may be made by an application in the pending execution against the judgment-debtor. Such an application, if made, is not a fresh application within the meaning of S. 48.—Shankar Balchand v. Hiralal, 134 I. C. 730 : 33 Bom. L. R. 853 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 425.

Where the last order passed against a judgment-debtor within one year of the subsequent application for execution is passed behind his back, the case does not come under the proviso, and notice must issue.—Satish v. Pabna Dhana Bhandar, A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 348 : 51 C. L. J. 197 : 125 I. C. 655.

Judgment-debtor dying during execution—Person already on record sufficiently representing the estate—Fresh notice under this rule not necessary.—The initial notice under this rule must be issued at the time of the application for execution, to the judgment-debtor if he is alive, if the application is beyond one year from the date of the decree, or to his legal representatives in all cases if he is dead before the application is put in ; and the omission to do so is an illegality which render the sale void unless sub-rule (2) of this rule applies. When such a notice has been initially issued, no fresh notice is required by law to be issued on the death of the judgment-debtor during the pendency of the proceedings, if some one who can represent and is representing the estate is already on the record, even if he be a wrong legal representative or a legal representative brought on by the wrong procedure. Where an adult legal representative is already on the record and initial notice has gone to him under this rule, it is not necessary that notice should also go to others, Ramanathan v. Ramanathan, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 275 : 30 L. W. 995 : 117 I. C. 705. During the suit the son was represented by the father as guardian. At the time of execution the son became a major but that was not brought to the notice of the Court. Notice under r. 22 was served on the father but not on the son. Held that the son, having waived notice, cannot be heard to say that its absence is an illegality so as to vitiate the sale.—Ibid. See also Kunhammad v. Kutti, 12 M. 90 ; Azizannessa v. Dwarika, A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1227 : 86 I. C. 745.

Remedy when property has been sold to a third party by the judgment-debtor.—See notes under r. 22. It has been held that an application for setting aside the sale made by the judgment-debtor after the sale has been published or conducted is not maintainable if that rule does not apply. The proper remedy is to apply under S. 47 as the question arises in execution. The question may be raised in a separate suit ; Lakshmi v. Prayanna, 40 C. 45 ; Lacina v. Madhavmoni, 11 C. L. J. 489 : 14 C. W. N. 550 ; Parashram v. Balmukund, 32 B. 572 ; Rajagopala v. Ramanuja Chariar, 47 M. 238 (F. B.) : 80 I. C. 92 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 431 : 46 M. L. J. 104. But in Surja Kanta v. Jogendra, 54 C. L. J. 591 : A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 381 : 137 I. C.

378, it has been held that an application to set aside sale under Or. XXI, r. 90 on the ground of non-service of the notice as provided for by Or. XXI, r. 22 should be made within 30 days from the date of the sale; if it is an application under S. 47, it must be made within 3 years from the date of the sale; but the time may be extended by the Court in appropriate cases under S. 18 of the Limitation Act.

Rule applies to moveable property or to strangers.—It makes no difference in the application of this rule, if the property sold without notice is moveable property or if the auction-purchaser is a stranger and not the decree-holder; Sahdeo v. Ghasiram, 21 C. 19; Shyam Mandal v. Satinath, 44 C. 954; 24 C. L. J. 523; 21 C. W. N. 776; 38 I. C. 493.

Where the judgment-debtor had no knowledge of notice or does not object.—Where notice was not personally served on the judgment-debtor and he came to know of the execution proceedings only when his property was attached, he is entitled to prefer objection against execution at that stage; Mochai v. Meseruddin, 13 C. L. J. 26 (the principle enunciated in Mungul v. Grija, 8 C 51 (P. C.) explained).

Although a judgment-debtor does not contest a notice under this rule, he can put in objections when his property is attached; Chatterput v. Daya Chand, 23 C. L. J. 641.

Irregular service of notice.—Irregularity in the service of notice as distinguished from non-service is a material irregularity within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 90; Das Narain v. Mir Muhammad, 6 P. L. J. 319; 61 I. C. 823. In such a case a sale can only be avoided. In order to affect the jurisdiction of the Court to execute the decree, it must be shown that the notice was either not issued or not served and in such a case the execution sale is null and void and need not be avoided.—Moinuddeen v. Mohamad, 119 I. C. 891; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 153.

Appeal.—An order refusing to set aside a sale without notice is an order unconditionally appealable; Kumed Bewa v. Prasanna, 32 B. 572. An objection as to non-service of notice can be taken in appeal although not taken in the first Court; Lakshmi v. Sris, 13 C. L. J. 162.

Effect of issue of notice of execution on limitation.—The issuing of a notice under this rule gives a fresh starting point for limitation under Art. 182 of the Limitation Act, 1903, whether such notice is issued on a valid or invalid application for execution.

Where notice under this rule is issued, the time provided by Art. 182 of the Limitation Act, runs from the date of the order directing issue of notice; actual service of the notice is not necessary.—Damodar v. Sonaji, 27 B. 623 and Govind v. Dada, 23 B. 416. See also Hari v. Yamunabai, 23 B. 35 and Jumai v. Abdul Karim, 30 A. 566. In Cheruvath v. Nerath, 30 M. 30: 16 M. L. J. 548. In Koonj v. Girdharee, 22 W. R. 484, and in Sheo Sahoy v. Birj Beharee, 23 W. R. 195, it has been held that time should be reckoned from the date of actual service of notice upon the judgment-debtor.

But the filing of an affidavit to prove service of notice under this rule has been held to be an application to take a step-in-aid of execution; Pran Krishna v. Pratap, 21 C. W. N. 423 : 38 I. C. 536.

An order for execution of a decree, made after notice to the judgment-debtor under this rule, has the effect of such a revivor of decree as prevents the execution of the decree from being barred by Art. 180 of the Limitation Act, 1877.—Ashootosh v. Doorga, 6 C. 504 : 8 C. L. R. 23 ; Jogendra v. Sham, 9 C. L. J. 271 : 36 C. 543 (followed in Kamini v. Aghore, 11 C. L. J. 91 ; Futteh v. Chundrabati, 20 C. 551 ; Suja Hossein v. Monohur Das, 24 C. 224 (reversing on review, 22 C. 921), and Umrao v. Lachmi, 26 A. 361). See also Desoo Venkatesa v. Ranga Row, 33 M. 187. See, however, Monohar Das v. Futteh Chand, 30 C. 979 : 7 C. W. N. 793.

Revival of decree by notice to one judgment-debtor.—Revival of decree of the Original Side of the High Court on notice to one only of two judgment-debtors does not keep the decree alive against the other judgment-debtors; McLaren v. Veeriah, 38 M. 1102. Where there are more than one legal representative to a deceased judgment-debtor and a notice under Or. XXI, r. 22 is not issued to one of them, the sale is not void in its entirety; it is invalid only as against the person to whom notice was not given.—Srish Chandra v. Rahatannessa, 58 C. 825 : 133 I. C. 670 : 35 C. W. N. 220 : 53 C. L. J. 46 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 555.

Reasons for dispensing with notice to be recorded.—The omission to record the reasons for dispensing with the notice as required by sub-rule (2) is a mere irregularity; Rajagopala v. Ramanujachariar, 47 M. 288 (F. B.) : 80 I. C. 92 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 431. Where the decree-holder expressly requested the Court to exercise its powers under sub-rule (2), alleging the ground therefor and the Court granted the request but failed to record the reasons for its order; held that the failure to record the reason under the circumstances was a mere irregularity and the order was not vitiated on that ground.—Somu Ayyar v. Chelliah, 30 L. W. 230 : 119 I. C. 43 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 718. The mere fact that the Judge has omitted to record reasons cannot make the act entirely invalid.—Rajani Kanta v. Emperor, 58 C. 940 : 35 C. W. N. 228 : 132 I. C. 244 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 443. Sub-rule (2) is not mandatory (approving 45 M. 875).—Shaikh Yakub v. Mahadev, 34 Bom. L. R. 987. But it has been held in Ramdas v. Kannamal, 7 R. 110 : 117 I. C. 245 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 161, that where a Judge records no reasons for issuing an order of arrest of the judgment-debtor in an execution case instituted after one year from the date of the decree, the failure was not a mere irregularity but a defect which went to the very root of the proceedings and rendered them void for want of jurisdiction; where however no objection was raised to the committal to jail and the question of legality was not then raised, held that the order could not be subject-matter of an appeal, but the High Court could interfere and set aside the order in revision.

23. (1) Where the person to whom notice is issued under the last preceding rule, does not appear or does not show cause to the satisfaction of the Court why the decree should not be executed, the Court shall order the decree to be executed.

Procedure after issue of notice.

(2) Where such person offers any objection to the execution of the decree, the Court shall consider such objection and make such order as it thinks fit. [S. 249.]

COMMENTARY.

Court shall consider objection.—When objection is filed under this rule, the Judge is bound to take it into consideration, and pass order notwithstanding the absence of the judgment-debtor and his pleader, for the decree might be prima facie unexecutable.—Rajballab v. Ramsaday, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 65: 14 W. R. 155. An objection need not be verified; Sunt Gopal v. Jugut, 8 W. R. 200.

When, after issue of notice, the legal representative of the judgment-debtor neglected to appear and raise objection to the execution, and certain property belonging to him was sold without opposition, and the sale was duly confirmed and the purchaser was put into possession he cannot afterwards come and ask to have the sale set aside as a nullity.—In the matter of the petition of Samuel Cochrane, 15 B. L. R. 330: 23 W. R. 310.

Appeal.—An order by a Munsif refusing to execute a decree transferred for execution, or an objection raised by the judgment-debtor under this rule, is appealable.—Perumal v. Venkatarama, 11 M. 130. Where an order was virtually under this rule and by a clerical mistake r. 25 was quoted, it was held appealable; Angne Lal v. Jagdish, 9 I. C. 431.

PROCESS FOR EXECUTION.

24. (1) When the preliminary measures (if any) required by the foregoing rules have been taken, the Court shall, unless it sees cause to the contrary, issue its process for the execution of the decree. [S. 250.]

Process for execution.

(2) Every such process shall bear date the day on which it is issued, and shall be signed by the Judge or such officer as the Court may appoint in this behalf, and shall be sealed with the seal of the Court and delivered to the proper officer to be executed.

(3) In every such process a day shall be specified on or before which it shall be executed. [S. 251.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 250 with the omission of the words "subject to the provisions of S. 245-A and S. 245-B" (S. 56 and r. 37 of this Order) as unnecessary. In sub-rule (2) process has been substituted for warrant, as the former word is more comprehensive. The latter portion of S. 251 has been omitted and reproduced in rule 25.

"Shall issue process."—It is not open to the Court to refuse to execute a decree against which no appeal has been preferred, and the time for appealing against which has expired.—Ishan Chunder v. Ashanoollah, 10 C. 817.

"Shall bear date—Execution of time-expired warrants."—This rule requires the Court to specify in a warrant for execution of a decree, the day on or before which the warrant must be executed. It cannot be executed after expiration of the date. A person resisting a time-expired warrant is not guilty of any offence.—Abinash v. Ananda, 31 C. 424; Anand Lall v. Empress, 10 C. 18; Sheikh Nasur v. Emperor, 37 C. 122; 14 C. W. N. 292. But a warrant may be executed till the date it bears although the nazir who makes it over to the peon fixes an earlier date for execution and return; Subed v. Emperor, 40 C. 849.

If a warrant is extended, the date must appear on the warrant; Sheikh Nasur v. Emperor, 37 C. 122.

Where a warrant bears no date upon which or before which it was to be executed it was bad and resistance to execution was no offence; Mohini v. K. Emperor, 36 I. C. 871. 1 P. L. J. 550.

"Shall be signed by the Judge or such other officer as the Court may appoint."—A warrant for arrest may be signed by the Judge himself or by the sheristadar who must be duly authorized.—The Deputy Legal Remembrancer v. Mir Sarwar, 6 C. W. N. 845. See also Q. E. v. Janki Prasad, 8 A. 293. But the word "signed" does not include initials.—Abdul Gafur v. Queen-Empress, 23 C. 896 and Ram Dayal v. Mahtab Singh, 7 A. 506. If the warrant of attachment was not signed by the Judge and did not bear the seal of the Court, held that the attachment was bad and resistance to such attachment was not an offence.—Khudir Bux v. Emperor, 49 I. C. 171; 3 P. L. J. 636.

An execution sale was set aside on the ground that the warrant had not been signed by the Judge, but by a Munsarim of the Court.—Ram Dayal v. Mahtab Singh, 7 A. 506.

"Shall be sealed"—The provisions of this rule are mandatory, and omission to affix the Court's seal on the warrant renders the attachment illegal; Khudir Bux v. K. Emperor, 3 P. L. J. 636; 49 I. C. 171; Badri Gope v. Emperor, 5 P. 216; 7 P. L. T. 30; 93 I. C. 146; A. I. R. 1926. Pat. 237.

Delegation of authority to execute.—The officer to whom a process is delivered for execution may delegate it to another officer for execution; Abdul Karim v. Bullen, 6 A. 385; Dharam Chand v. Q. E., 22 C. 596 (distd. in Subed v. Emperor, 40 C. 849); Sheo Prakash v. Bhoop Narain, 22 C. 759; Jagannath v. Emperor, 30 A. L. J. 179; A. I. R. 1932 All. 227; 140 I. C. 118.

Arrest or attachment without warrant.—The arrest of a judgment-debtor in execution of a decree without the officer making the apprehension.

having the warrant in his possession is illegal.—Empress v. Amar Nath, 5 A. 318. The judgment-debtor is entitled to see the warrant; Sheikh Nasur v. Emperor, 37 C. 122 (126).

When a public servant attaches property under a warrant in execution of a decree, he must have the warrant with him, otherwise the taking of the property is not lawful.—Emperor v. Ganeshi Lal, 27 A. 258.

25. (1) The officer entrusted with the execution of the process shall endorse thereon the day on, and the manner in, which it was executed, and, if the latest day specified in the process for the return thereof has been exceeded, the reason of the delay, or, if it was not executed, the reason why it was not executed, and shall return the process with such endorsement to the Court.

(2) Where the endorsement is to the effect that such officer is unable to execute the process, the Court shall examine him touching his alleged inability, and may, if it thinks fit, summon and examine witnesses as to such inability, and shall record the result.

COMMENTARY.

“Officer entrusted with execution”—means the person who actually conducts execution, i.e., seizes property. Such a person is known in English law as “Bailiff.” In mofussil Courts such work is done by persons called “Peons.”

The words “officer entrusted with execution” clearly indicate that such officer is the peon and not the nazir; Subed Ali v. Emperor, 40 C. 849.

Endorsement on process—Delegation.—The Code does not prohibit a nazir from delegating a subordinate to execute a warrant for him, and his endorsement is prima facie evidence of the authority of the person to whom the warrant is delivered for execution.—Abdul Karim v. Bullen, 6 A. 385. See also Dharam Chand v. Q. E., 22 C. 596; and Sheo Prakash v. Bhoop Narain, 22 C. 759. In Subed Ali v. Emperor, 40 C. 849, it has been held that the fact that processes are actually addressed to “bailiffs” shows that the peon executing derives his authority from the Court and not from the nazir who endorses it. It is the nazir’s duty to distribute the process among the peons and this does not amount in any way to delegation. See notes to r. 24.

Proof of execution of process.—A return by the nazir to the effect that the peon swears that a process has been served is insufficient in law to prove the service without the deposition on oath of the peon taken before a competent authority.—Raj Kishore v. Bydonath, 12 W. R. 365. The nazir’s return is no legal evidence of the service of process.—In the matter of Nil Kant, W. R. (1864), Mis. 9; Okhoy v. Erskine, 3 W. R. Mis. 11; Srenath v. Watson, 4 W. R. Mis. 4; Ram Soondur v. Kalee Komul, 6 W. R., Act X. 92; Koondun v. Noor Ali, 10 W. R. 3; Meah Khan v. Narain, 18 W. R. 197; and Megh Lall v. Shib Pershad, 7 C. 34, p. 38. See also Subed v. Emperor, 40 C. 849.

STAY OF EXECUTION.

26. (1) The Court to which a decree has been sent for execution shall, upon sufficient cause being shown, stay the execution of such decree for a reasonable time, to enable the judgment-debtor to apply to the Court by which the decree was passed, or to any Court having appellate jurisdiction in respect of the decree or the execution thereof, for an order to stay execution, or for any other order relating to the decree or execution which might have been made by such Court of first instance or appellate Court if execution had been issued thereby, or if application for execution had been made thereto.

(2) Where the property or person of the judgment-debtor has been seized under an execution, the Court which issued the execution may order the restitution of such property or the discharge of such person pending the result of the application. [S. 239.]

(3) Before making an order to stay execution or for the restitution of property or the discharge of the judgment-debtor, the Court may require such security from, or impose conditions upon, judgment-debtor, the judgment-debtor as it thinks fit. [S. 240.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope.—The stay of execution contemplated by this rule, if allowed, will only be for such a period as is necessary for applying to the Court which passed the decree or to the appellate Court for any order relating to the execution of the decree.

Stay of execution.—Where, in the opinion of the Court, sufficient cause has been shown against the execution of a decree transferred for execution, the Court should follow the procedure prescribed by this rule. But it is beyond its jurisdiction to question the correctness or propriety of the order under which the decree has been transferred to it for execution.—Beerchunder v. Maymana, 5 C. 736. See also Mulla Abdul v. Sakhinaboo, 21 B. 456; Ram Chunder v. Mohendro, 21 W. R. 141; Dhuresh v. Oolfut, 21 W. R. 219; Ram Lal v. Radhey, 7 A. 330.

Under this rule a Court to which a decree has been transferred may refer the objector to the Court which passed the decree.—Jassoda Koor v. Land Mortgage Bank of India, 8 C. 916; 11 C. L. R. 348.

A Court is competent to stay execution of decree of the High Court for a sufficient time to enable the judgment-debtor to apply to the High Court for a new trial, on the ground that the decree had been obtained ex parte without his knowledge.—Mirtoonjoy v. Cochrane, 8 W. R. 202.

An order for stay under r. 26 cannot be made on the application of a decree-holder.—Allah Bakhsh v. Karam Chand, 133 I. C. 643; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 690.

Costs.—Where the defendants applied to the appellate Court for stay of execution of the decree pending the appeal they must pay the costs of the application.—Chuni Lal v. Anantram, 25 C. 593.

As to the jurisdiction of the Court to which a decree is sent for execution to try the question of limitation, see notes under S. 42.

As to the extent of liability of a surety and the mode of enforcing a surety bond, see notes under S. 145, and Or. XLI, rr. 5 and 6.

Appeal.—Formerly, under the old Code, an order relating to stay of execution was held to be appealable as a decree under S. 47; see Steel v. Ichchamoyi, 13 C. 111; Kristomohiny v. Bama Churn, 7 C. 733; Ghazidin v. Fakir, 7 A. 73; Lingum v. Kandula, 20 M. 366; Ishwargar v. Chudasama, 12 B. 30; Udeyadeta v. Gregson, 12 C. 624; Luchmeeput v. Sita Nath, 8 C. 477. The omission of the words "or to the stay of execution thereof" from Cl. (1), S. 47 of the present Code, does not bring an order relating to stay of execution, within S. 47. Even in a decision under the old Code it was held that an order relating to stay of execution does not come under S. 47 and is not appealable (see Nihal Chand v. Rameshvari, 9 C. 214). It has been held that an order for security to stay execution is neither an order under S. 47 nor a "decree" within S. 2 (2) and is not appealable; Saraswati v. Golap Das, 41 C. 160 (Deoki Nandan v. Bansi, 14 C. L. J. 35; Srinibash v. Kesho Prasad, 38 C. 754 referred to).

27. No order of restitution or discharge under rule 26 shall prevent the property or person of a judgment-debtor from being retaken in execution of the decree sent for execution. [S. 241.]

Liability of judgment-debtor discharged.

COMMENTARY.

Scope—This is an exception to the ordinary rule. Cf. S. 58 (2).

A judgment-debtor, once arrested and imprisoned in execution of a decree, cannot, under the Code, be again arrested under a fresh writ of attachment on the same decree; Secretary of State v. Judah, 12 C. 652 (followed in In the matter of Bolye Chund Dutt, 20 C. 874; distinguished in Rajendro v. Chunder, 23 C. 128). But see Shamji v. Poonja, 26 B. 652, where it has been held that re-arrest is not forbidden (20 C. 874 dissented from; 12 C. 652 distinguished).

28. Any order of the Court by which the decree was passed, or of such Court of appeal as aforesaid, in relation to the execution of such decree, shall be binding upon the Court to which the decree was sent for execution. [S. 242.]

Order of Court which passed decree or of appellate Court to be binding upon Court applied to

COMMENTARY.

Principle.—The transfer of a decree to another Court for execution amounts to a qualified delegation of the powers possessed by the Court that passed the decree in discharging its functions relating to the execution of that decree. Such delegation, however, is not complete, nor does it entirely divest the Court which transfers the decree, of its powers and functions in relation to the execution of such decree; Ghazidin v. Fakir Bakhsh, 7 A. 73 (76).

Where a Sub-Judge's Court in one district executes a decree of a Sub-Judge's Court in another district, it is bound to comply with a requisition from the latter Court to transmit to it the record of the case.—Indur Chunder v. Gopal Chand, 11 W. R. 230.

For the powers and functions of the Court to which a decree is transferred for execution, see notes to S. 42.

29. Where a suit is pending in any Court against the holder of a decree of such Court, on the part of the person against whom the decree was passed, the Court may, on such terms as to security or otherwise, as it thinks fit, stay execution of the decree until the pending suit has been decided. [S. 243.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration—The words "either absolutely" in the old section have been omitted.

Scope—There is no provision in the law which empowers the Court passing a decree to set aside the proceedings under which the decree-holder has already been placed in possession in execution of his decree. The provisions of this rule have no reference to a case in which execution has already been carried out, and the decree-holder has been placed in possession of the property decreed to him.—Ghazidin v. Fakir Bakhsh, 7 A. 73.

Rule 29 refers only to the Court and not to the personality of the Judge presiding over and the Court in which the proceedings are pending before in the Court of and the latter; no indication in the rule that the order should only be passed by the Court before whom the execution proceedings are pending.—Narsidas v. Manhar-sing, 132 I. C. 507 : 33 Bom. L. R. 370 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 247.

The Court has ample power to stay execution under S. 151, in cases not provided for by this rule; Bhagwan v. Harnam, 82 P. R. 1910. As for instance, when the ex parte decree is obtained by fraud; Fitzholmes v. Waryam Singh, 75 I. C. 419 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 514.

"Such Court"—The words "such Court" do not limit the exercise of the powers only to decrees passed by the Court in which the suit is pending, but that Court is empowered to stay execution of decrees transferred to it for execution from either a Court of co-ordinate jurisdiction or a Court of appeal.—Kassa Mal v. Gopi, 10 A. 389. A obtained a decree against B which was transferred to another Court for execution. In the latter Court B filed a declaratory suit for injunction to be issued against A restraining him from taking out sale proceedings. It was urged that that application should be treated as if it had been made under rule 29. Held that rule 29 did not apply to the facts of the case as A was not the decree-holder of a decree of the Court in which the suit was pending and to which the application was made. Rule 29 was only applicable to the holder of a decree of "such Court."—Inayat Beg v. Umrao Beg, 123 I. C. 182: A. I. R. 1930 All. 121. But see Cooke v. Hisceba Beebe, 6 N. W. P. 181.

"Until the pending suit has been decided."—These words mean after all rights of appeal have been exhausted and not merely until a decree has been passed by the Court. The word 'decided' means finally decided.—Mahesh Chandra v. Jogendra, 55 C. 512: 32 C. W. N. 181: 107 I. C. 79: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 232. This case has been dissented from in Radha Ballav v. Pyarilal, 58 C. 1113: 134 I. C. 939: 35 C. W. N. 540: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 19, where it has been held that if an order of stay is made with express reference to Or. XXI, r. 29, the order does not operate to stay execution until the claim in the suit has been disposed of after exhaustion of all rights of appeal; the order can have reference only to the actual proceeding referred to in the order.

Whether provisions relating to execution of decrees apply to awards.—An award filed in Court under S. 11 of the Indian Arbitration Act (IX of 1899) is nothing more than an award although it is enforceable as if it were a decree and execution of such award cannot be stayed under this rule; Tribhuwandas v. Jivan Chand, 35 B. 196. See also Gajjar v. Dharam Chand, 12 Bom. L. R. 860. It has been held by the High Courts of Calcutta and Allahabad that an award filed in Court under S. 11 of the Arbitration Act being enforceable under S. 15 of that Act, as if it were a decree, the provisions of the Code applicable to the execution of decrees apply to an award so filed; Gladstone Wyllie & Co. v. Joosub, 27 C. W. N. 666: 77 I. C. 868: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 117; Sital Prasad v. Clement Robson & Co, 43 A. 394: 61 I. C. 401.

Revision—Amount of security.—Security for the full amount of the decree under rule 29 being within the discretion of the Court, High Court will not interfere in revision, unless the discretion was improperly used.—Jiwandas v. Khem Chand, 116 I. C. 101: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 110. The phraseology of the rule indicates that it is not necessary that the Court should pass an order for security for the whole amount. The Court has ample discretion in regard to the terms on which the execution of the decree could be stayed.—Narsidas v. Manharsing, 132 I. C. 507: 33 Bom. L. R. 370: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 247.

Limitation.—Where the execution of a decree is stayed under this rule an application for execution of such decree, after disposal of the suit is governed by Art. 178 and not by Art. 179 of the Limitation Act.—Rungiah Gounden v. Nanjappa Row, 26 M. 780.

MODE OF EXECUTION.

30. Every decree for the payment of money, including a decree for the payment of money as the alternative to some other relief, may be executed by the detention in the civil prison of the judgment-debtor, or by the attachment and sale of his property, or by both. [S. 254.]

Decree for payment of money.

COMMENTARY.

Alteration and scope.—The language of the old section has been recast and made more explicit. The word order has been omitted, as S. 36 says that provisions relating to execution of decrees shall apply to execution of orders.

See r. 21 which lays down that Court may refuse simultaneous execution against person and property.

This rule does not constitute a limitation upon the general right conferred by S. 51, Lahani v. Harakchand, 31 I. C. 285 : 11 N. L. R. 113.

Alternative to some other relief.—See Or. XX, r. 10. An order made under the Land Acquisition Act, directing a party, to whom a sum of money was awarded as compensation, to refund the money, may be enforced under this rule.—Nobin Kahi v. Banalata, 32 C. 921 : 2 C. L. J. 595.

Where a decree is for the delivery of moveable property, and states the amount to be paid as an alternative the goods must be delivered if capable of delivery, but if not capable of delivery, then assessed damages should be paid.—Kashee Nath v. Debkisto, 16 W. R. 240.

Option as to mode of execution.—Under this rule a judgment-creditor has the option of enforcing his decree against the person or property of the judgment-debtor, and the fact that such decree is an ex parte one makes no difference.—Raj Chunder v. Shama Soondari, 4 C. 583.

It is for the decree-holder to decide whether he should execute the decree for payment of money by the arrest of the judgment-debtor, or by the attachment and sale of his property, or by both. While the Court has discretion to refuse execution against the person and property simultaneously under Or. XXI, r. 21, it has no authority to refuse an order of commitment to prison on the ground that the decree-holder should proceed in the first instance against the property of the judgment-debtor; Hargobind Kishan Chand v. Hakim Singh, 6 L. 548 : 93 I. C. 54 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 110. Where a decree-holder wants to execute his decree by arrest and detention of the judgment-debtor, the executing Court cannot deprive him of his right and compel him to accept payment in instalments instead.—Bhagwan v. Girdhari, 125 I. C. 61 : 30 P. L. R. 736 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 220.

In a suit for damages for ex parte order of arrest applied under Or. XXI, r. 30, it was held that the requirements of the law were satisfied by the plaintiff showing that it was the invariable practice of the Court only to make an order of that kind when special circumstances are alleged and that the defendant had alleged maliciously such a circumstance, viz., that the plaintiff was about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court, without reasonable or probable cause. It is not necessary for the plaintiff to show that the order was wholly wrong or without jurisdiction, or that the proceedings terminated in his favour.—Sudhangshu v. Hari Charan, 36 C. W. N. 809.

"Decree for payment of money."—The words "decree for payment of money" include all sorts of decree for payment of money, except mortgage-decree. See notes under rule 20.

A suit on mortgage-bond was adjusted by the defendant agreeing to pay the amount claimed and costs, with interest, by instalments within a fixed time, and that, in the event of default, the plaintiff should be at liberty to bring such property to sale. Held that such decree was a mere money-decree, and not one which gave the plaintiff a lien on such property.—Janki Prasad v. Baldeo Narain, 3 A. 216. See, however, Debi Charan v. Pirbhu Din, 3 A. 388, and Jagannath v. Debi Pursad, 2 P. 768: 73 I. C. 598, where it has been held that no attachment is necessary in the case of a decree for money when it is provided that if it is not paid by a certain date specific immoveable property should be sold.

Where a landlord obtains a decree, for rent against his tenant without creating a charge and which is on the face of it a decree for money, he is at liberty in execution to bring to sale the property of the judgment-debtor other than the tenure.—Tarini Prasad v. Narayan Kumari, 17 C. 301. See also Fotick Chunder v. Foley, 15 C. 492 (14 C. 14 explained). See also Bhabani Charan v. Pratap Chandra, 8 C. W. N. 575 and Sourendra Mohan v. Surnomoyi, 26 C. 103: 3 C. W. N. 38.

Detention in civil prison.—The High Court's power to imprison for contempt is a jurisdiction inherited from the old Supreme Court, and it has not been affected by the Code.—Martin v. Lawrence, 4 C. 655. See also Hassanbhoj v. Cowasji, 7 B. 1; and Navivahoo v. Narotamdas, 7 B. 5.

An insolvent, who has obtained a protection order, is not liable to arrest or imprisonment for arrears of maintenance included in the schedule filed by him.—Tokee Bibee v. Abdool Khan, 5 C. 536: 5 C. L. R. 458.

31. (1) Where the decree is for any specific moveable, or for any share in a specific moveable, it may be executed by the seizure, if practicable, of the moveable or share, and by the delivery thereof to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he appoints to receive delivery on his behalf, or by the detention in the civil prison of the judgment-debtor, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

(2) Where any attachment under sub-rule (1) has remained in force for six months, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, such property may be sold, and out.

of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder, in cases where any amount has been fixed by the decree to be paid as an alternative to delivery of moveable property, such amount, and, in other cases, such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

(3) Where the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or where, at the end of six months, from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made, or, if made, has been refused, the attachment shall cease. [S. 259.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—In sub-rule (1) the words “or for the recovery of a wife” which occurred after “any share in specific moveable,” in the old section have been omitted; for there can be no such decree under the law, as a wife cannot be treated as a chattel to be delivered over to the husband. Where any third person prevents the wife from returning to her husband, the latter may obtain an injunction against him, which may be enforced in case of disobedience, either by the imprisonment of the defendant or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

Applicability.—This rule is not applicable where the property sought to be attached is not in the possession of the judgment-debtor, e.g., with the Bank.—Pudmanund v. Chundi Dal, 1 C. W. N. 170.

“Specific moveable property”—This means the property recovered in specie, i.e., the very property itself, not any equivalent, substitute or reparation. It does not include money; Sankunni v. Govinda, 37 M. 381. As to what entitles the plaintiff to obtain delivery of specific moveable property by suit and to enforce the decree, see Jaldu Venkatasubba v. Asiatic S. N. Co., 39 M. 1.

Where a decree directs recovery of moveables and recovery of price thereof if the moveables be not delivered and there is no question of deterioration in value of the articles to be recovered, the decree-holder is not entitled to execute the money part of the decree before applying for delivery of the articles (Manavikraman v. Moyan Kutti, 13 M. L. J. 444 applied).—Balmakunda v. B. N. Railway, 55 C. 26: 31 C. W. N. 850: 103 I. C. 740: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 652.

A decree for certain moveable and immoveable property was given, and it was directed that the amin was to ascertain the extent of the moveables. Held that the Court in execution could not enquire into the value of such of the moveables as could not be found in order to give alternative damages.—Dhobun Mohinze v. Gobind Chunder, 19 W. R. 82.

See S. 11 of the Specific Relief Act,

32. (1) Where the party against whom a decree for the specific performance of a contract, or for restitution of conjugal rights, or for an injunction, has been passed, has had an opportunity of obeying the decree and has wilfully failed to obey it, the decree may be enforced in the case of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights by the attachment of his property or, in the case of a

Decree for specific performance, for restitution of conjugal rights, or for an injunction decree for the specific performance of a contract or for an injunction by his detention in the civil prison, or by the attachment of his property, or by both.

(2) Where the party against whom a decree for specific performance or for an injunction has been passed is a corporation, the decree may be enforced by the attachment of the property of the corporation or, with the leave of the Court, by the detention in the civil prison of the directors or other principal officers thereof, or by both attachment and detention. [New.]

(3) Where any attachment under sub-rule (1) or sub-rule (2) has remained in force for one year, if the judgment-debtor has not obeyed the decree and the decree-holder has applied to have the attached property sold, such property may be sold; and out of the proceeds the Court may award to the decree-holder such compensation as it thinks fit, and shall pay the balance (if any) to the judgment-debtor on his application.

[PARA. 2, S. 260.]

(4) Where the judgment-debtor has obeyed the decree and paid all costs of executing the same which he is bound to pay, or where, at the end of one year from the date of the attachment, no application to have the property sold has been made, or if made has been refused, the attachment shall cease.

[PARA. 3, S. 250.]

(5) Where a decree for the specific performance of a contract or for an injunction has not been obeyed, the Court may, in lieu of or in addition to all or any of the processes aforesaid, direct that the act required to be done may be done so far as practicable by the decree-holder or some other person appointed by the Court, at the cost of the judgment-debtor, and upon the act being done the expenses incurred may be ascertained in such manner as the Court may direct and may be recovered as if they were included in the decree. [New.]

Illustration.

A, a person of little substance, erects a building which renders uninhabitable a family mansion belonging to B. A, in spite of his detention in prison and the attachment of his property, declines to obey a decree obtained against him by B and directing him to remove the building. The Court is of opinion that no sum realizable by the sale of A's property would adequately compensate B for the depreciation in the value of his mansion. B may apply to the Court to remove the building and may recover the cost of such removal from A in the execution proceeding.

COMMENTARY

Alterations.—In sub-rule (1) the words, “or for an injunction, has been passed,” have been substituted for the words, “or for the performance of, or abstention from, any other particular act has been made,” and the words, “detention in the civil prison,” have been substituted for the word “imprisonment.” The italicized words in sub-rule (1) were inserted by Amendment Act XXIX of 1923.

Sub-rule (2) is new ; there was no similar provision in the old section.

Sub-rule (5) with the illustration is new and corresponds with the English Or. XLII, r. 30 ; see notes.

Scope and applicability—This rule applies equally to cases where a party is directed to carry out something as well as to cases where he is directed to abstain from doing an act, Manikaran v. Somayajipad, 6 I. C. 299 : 7 M. L. T. 227. It applies also to cases where the injunction restrains certain persons from doing certain things in perpetuity and not only to cases where the imprisonment or attachment can be continued until the decree has been executed ; Aiyana v. Vathar, 32 I. C. 698 : 19 M. L. T. 132.

The provisions of this rule are intended chiefly to provide something in the nature of a penalty for breach of an order of Court, though sub-rule (3) does provide that some portion of the price realised by sale may be allocated as compensation to the decree-holder in the suit. In such a case the judgment-debtors have no locus standi to apply to set aside the sale under Or. XXI, r. 89. (Semble, the only remedy is to obey the decree and pay all costs of executing the same).—Gahuruli v. Asia Khatun, 56 C. L. J. 140.

Incidental to the relief to which a plaintiff is entitled in a decree for specific performance arising on a contract for sale, the Court has a right to grant possession of the property. A contract for sale includes not only the execution of the necessary document but also putting the vendee in possession of the property. Therefore, if there is an omission in the plaint or in the decree about possession the executing Court is not debarred from granting the plaintiff the possession of the property (39 M. 693 disputed from ; 5 P. L. J. 314 followed).—Atal Behary v. Barada, 131 I. C. 629 : 12 P. L. J. 636 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 179.

"Decree for restitution of conjugal rights."—These words were added in the Code of 1877, as S. 200 of the Code of 1859 was held to be inadequate for enforcement of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights (see Gatha Ram v. Moohita, 14 B. L. R. 298, 23 W. R. 179). It was however held that a decree for restitution of conjugal rights between Mahomedans or Hindus may be enforced under this section—Yamunabai v. Narayan, 1 B. 164. See also Chotun Beebe v. Amcer, 6 W. R. 105, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 317. The introduction of rule 33, now gives the Court a discretion where executing such a decree.

In an application for execution of a decree for restitution of conjugal rights, the Court will not issue an attachment, without notice to the defendant. The Court must also be satisfied on affidavit that the decree has been served on the defendant, and that he has had an opportunity of obeying it, that the plaintiff has a house to take her to, and that he has given her notice thereof, and that she had refused—Troylukho Nath v. Radharani, 3 C. W. N. xxxix (39).

A mother directed by a decree to refrain from preventing her daughter returning to her husband, permitted her to reside in her house. Held that such conduct does not justify execution of the decree against her under this rule—Iynasi Kuar v. Suraj Prasad, 1 A. 501.

A plea by a wife that sexual intercourse is impossible owing to her incurable disease or physical malformation, is not a good defence. A Judge has no discretion to refuse a decree for restitution of conjugal rights for other causes than those which in law justify a wife from refusing to return to live with her husband—Purshotamdas v. Bai Mani, 21 B. 610. See also Dadaji v. Rukhmabai, 10 B. 301 (reversing 9 B. 529).

Where it was the universal custom that a child wife should remain away from her husband until a certain event had occurred, a Court was held to have been justified, while such contingency had not happened, in refusing to order such a wife to go to her husband.—Suntosh Ram v. Gera Pattuck, 23 W. R. 22.

The effect of a Civil Court Decree in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights, is to supersede the order of the Criminal Court for maintenance.—Nur Muhammad v. Ayesha Bibee, 27 A. 483 (23 B. 484 followed).

Form of decree in suits for restitution of conjugal rights.—A decree should be passed in the form that the husband is entitled to conjugal rights, that his wife do return to live with him, and that the parents do not interfere in any manner to prevent her so doing.—Ram Tahul v. Madho, 2 Agra 111; Koobur Khansama v. Jan Khansama, 8 W. R. 467; Jaffree Khanum v. Imdad Hossein, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 314; Kuroonamoyee v. Gungadhur, 20 W. R. 50; Lall Nath v. Shoburn, 20 W. R. 93; Toofeah v. Jussauda, 2 Agra 337; and Imamum v. Mahomed, 3 Agra 98. A decree that "the case be decreed awarding the plaintiff to take the defendant as his married wife," is not a proper form of decree.—Gatha Ram v. Moohita, 14 B. L. R. 298; 23 W. R. 179.

As to the discretion of Court while passing a decree for restitution of conjugal rights, see r. 33, which is new.

Sub-rule (1)—Decree for injunction.—Sub-rule (1) applies to both prohibitory and mandatory injunction; Sachi Prasad v. Amarnath, 46 C. 103 : 22 C. W. N. 851 : 27 C. L. J. 506 : 45 I. C. 864. Where a decree for perpetual injunction was made restraining a party from erecting a pucca building and he in defiance erected it; held that it was not obligatory on the Court to make an order of attachment under this rule against the judgment-debtor without previous service of notice upon him, calling upon him to comply with the order; Durga Das v. Dewraj, 33 C. 306 : 10 C. W. N. 297 : 3 C. L. J. 112.

A decree ordering the removal and pulling down of a wall should be executed by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor or by attachment of his property, or by both—Protab v. Pyari, 8 C. 174 : 9 C. L. R. 453 (followed in Khatriya Bibee v. Hurry Das, 2 C. L. J. 59-n). See also Bhoobun Mohun v. Nobin, 10 B. L. R. Ap. 12 : 18 W. R. 282.

Held, that a decree, directing performance of specific acts, and also declaring rights of the decree-holders was not incapable of execution on the objection that it was only declaratory.—Kishore Bun v. Dwarka, 21 C. 784 (P. C.)

A compromise decree in a suit relating to a right of easement by which it was provided that certain things should be done and certain other things not to be done, can be enforced under this rule as being a decree for an injunction and execution might be ordered as under sub-rule (1) or under sub-rule (5).—Sampath v. Sankara, (1930) M. W. N. 809.

It was held under the old section, that an order directing a defendant to render accounts within a specified time was "an order requiring the performance of a particular act" within the meaning of that section, and that disobedience to the order was punishable under that section; Degambar v. Kallynath, 7 C. 654; Rajhunath v. Ganpatji, 27 A. 374.

Where a decree directs particular acts to be performed in the management of a temple, it may be enforced by the imprisonment of the defendants, or by the attachment of their property, or by both.—Damodar Bhat v. Bhogi Lal, 24 B. 45.

A decree restraining a defendant in his use of certain land, cannot be executed against the purchaser of the said land, as the injunction does not run with the land—Dahyabhai v. Bapa Lal, 26 B. 140. See also Jamsetji v. Hari Dayal, 32 B. 181. But in Sakarlal v. Parvatibai, 26 B. 283, it has been held that such a decree can be executed against the heirs of a deceased person against whom the decree had been made.

The plaintiff obtained a decree for mandatory injunction directing the defendant to remove a wall erected by him within two months. Two years after the plaintiff sued for damages alleging his cause of action to be defendant's disobedience of the mandatory injunction. Held that the suit was not maintainable as the plaintiff's remedy was in execution.—Jawfiri v. Emile, 13 A. 98.

A suit is not maintainable for enforcement of a prohibitory injunction embodied in decree but the remedy lies by execution under Or. XXI, r. 32 of the C. P. Code; Sachi Prasad v. Amarnath, 46 C. 103 : 22 C. W. N. 851 : 27 C. L. J. 506 : 45 I. C. 864.

A decree for injunction passed against the father as the manager and representative of the joint family can be executed against the son who, on his father's death, represents the joint family (26 B. 293; 33 Bom. L. R. 266 and 51 B. 37 followed, 42 B. 504 distinguished).—Ganesh v. Narayan, 55 B. 709; 134 I. C. 961; 33 Bom. L. R. 1144; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 484; Manilal v. Kikabhai, 134 I. C. 968; 33 Bom. L. R. 1118; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 482.

Sub-rule (3).—The rule is a highly penal one and must be construed strictly. Under it the following conditions must exist before a sale is ordered: (a) a valid original attachment; (b) application within one year of that attachment by decree-holder for sale; (c) lapse of one year from date of attachment; Badri v. Fakira, 10 I. C. 34; 170 P. L. R. 1911.

Sub-rule (5)—Disobedience to order for injunction or for specific performance of contract.—This sub-rule is new. It has been borrowed from Or. XLII, r. 30 of the English rules, and supplies a distinct want. The illustration, newly added, clearly explains its meaning. Under the old Code, it was held that a decree for injunction could only be executed by the imprisonment of the judgment-debtor or by attachment of his property as laid down in the old section. That relief was not adequate; Protap v. Peary, 8 C. 174; 9 C. L. R. 453; Durgadas v. Dewraj, 33 C. 306; 10 C. W. N. 297; 3 C. L. J. 112; Sakaral v. Parvatibai, 26 B. 283. The new provision will give immediate relief wherever possible by causing the decree to be executed through the agency of the decree-holder so far as practicable or by appointment of some officer of the Court by removal of the obstruction or building.—Sachi Prasad v. Amarnath, 46 C. 103; 22 C. W. N. 851; 27 C. L. J. 506; 45 I. C. 864. But the Court has no power under this rule to order the police to see that its decree is carried out; Goswami Gordhanlalji v. Goswami Maksudan, 40 A. 648; 48 I. C. 26.

This new sub-rule is likely to facilitate the execution of injunction decrees against the legal representatives or persons other than the original judgment-debtor.—Amritlal v. Kantilal, 193 I. C. 244; 33 Bom. L. R. 266; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 280.

The expression "the act required to be done" in sub-rule (5) means what has to be done to enforce the injunction; Sachi Prasad v. Amarnath, noted ante.

Disobedience to order of injunction—Contempt of Court.—The proper remedy for disobedience of an order of injunction passed by a Civil Court is committal for contempt.—In the matter of Chandra Kanta, 6 C. 445; 7 C. L. R. 350. See also Pran Jivan Das v. Mayaram, 1 B. H. C. R. 148 and Advocate-General of Bombay v. Gangji Akhai, 19 B. 152.

Where a plaintiff has once obtained a perpetual injunction directing the defendant to refrain from certain acts, it is not necessary for the plaintiff to sue again for similar relief, if in future the defendant ignores such injunction. Disobedience is contempt of Court, and the Court can take proceedings to the Limitation Act, 1877.—in Bhagwan v. Sukhda.

Even a temporary disobedience is punishable; Aiyana v. Vathiar, 32 I. C. 648. The procedure is to punish for contempt and not to discharge the decree so as to prevent a decree-holder from taking further steps; Ahmadi Begam v. Amanat, 1 A. L. J. 431.

As to failure to carry out the Court's order and contempt of Court, see Dharmapal v. Krista Dayal, 10 C. L. J. 631.

Limitation.—Where a perpetual injunction has been granted, on each successive breach of it, the decree may be enforced under this rule by an application made within 3 years of such breach under Art. 178 of the Limitation Act, 1877. The decree-holder is not bound to take action in respect of every petty infringement; and the injunction does not by his inaction become inoperative after 3 years from the date of the first petty breach so as to disentitle him to take action where a serious breach is afterwards committed.—Venkatachallam v. Veerappa Pillai, 29 M. 314. See also Bhagwan v. Sukhdei, 28 A. 300 : (1906) A. W. N. 10 : 3 A. L. J. 836.

"An opportunity of obeying"—Notice not obligatory.—Before issuing execution the Court is to see whether the judgment-debtor has ample opportunities of obeying the injunction or decree, and has wilfully disobeyed it. Where there was opportunity of obeying but the defendant wilfully failed to obey, no notice is necessary. It is not obligatory to issue any notice before execution under this rule. It is in the discretion of the Court; Durgadas v. Deoraj, 33 C. 306 : 10 C. W. N. 297 : 3 C. L. J. 112. See also Bhagwan v. Sukhdei, 28 A. 300 : (1906) A. W. N. 10 : 3 A. L. J. 836. The proper course is to issue a notice first, fixing a time within which to comply with the order; Protap v. Peary, 8 C. 174 : 9 C. L. R. 453 (distinguished in 33 C. 306). Where an application has been dismissed on the ground that the debtor has had no opportunity of obeying, there is no bar to a subsequent application after such opportunity was given; Kishore v. Dwarka, 21 C. 784.

33. (1) Notwithstanding anything in rule 32, the Court, either at the time of passing a decree against a husband for the restitution of conjugal rights or at any time afterwards, may order that the decree shall be executed in the manner provided in this rule.

Discretion of Court in executing decrees for restitution of conjugal rights.

(2) Where the Court has made an order under sub-rule (1), it may order that, in the event of the decree not being obeyed within such period as may be fixed in this behalf, the judgment-debtor shall make to the decree-holder such periodical payments as may be just, and, if it thinks fit, require that the judgment-debtor shall, to its satisfaction, secure to the decree-holder such periodical payments.

(3) The Court may from time to time vary or modify any order made under sub-rule (2) for the periodical payment of money, either by altering the times of payment or by increasing or diminishing the amount, or may temporarily suspend the same as to the whole or any part of the money so ordered to be paid, and again revive the same, either wholly or in part as it may think just.

(4) Any money ordered to be paid under this rule may be recovered as though it were payable under a decree for the payment of money. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the rule.—The italicized words, "against a husband" in sub-rule (1) were added by the Amendment Act XXIX of 1923 and the words, "shall be executed in the manner provided in this rule," were substituted for the words, "shall not be executed by detention in prison." The words, "and the decree-holder is the wife," which occurred in sub-rule (2), were omitted by the same Act.

34. (1) Where a decree is for the execution of a document or for the endorsement of a negotiable instrument and the judgment-debtor neglects or refuses to obey the decree, the decree-holder may prepare a draft of the document or endorsement in accordance with the terms of the decree and deliver the same to the Court. [PARA. 1, S. 261.]

(2) The Court shall thereupon cause the draft to be served on the judgment-debtor together with a notice requiring his objections (if any) to be made within such time as the Court fixes in this behalf. [PARA. 2, S. 261.]

(3) Where the judgment-debtor objects to the draft, his objections shall be stated in writing within such time, and the Court shall make such order approving or altering the draft as it thinks fit. [PARA. 3, S. 261.]

(4) The decree-holder shall deliver to the Court a copy of the draft with such alterations (if any) as the Court may have directed upon the proper stamp-paper if a stamp is required by the law for the time being in force; and the Judge or such officer as may be appointed in this behalf shall execute the document so delivered. [PARAS. 3, 4, S. 261.]

(5) The execution of a document or the endorsement of a negotiable instrument under this rule may be in the following form, namely:—

"C. D., Judge of the Court of.....
(or as the case may be), for A. B., in a suit by E. F. against and shall have the same effect as the execution of the document or the endorsement of the negotiable instrument by the party ordered to execute or endorse the same. [S. 261.]

(6) The Court, or such officer as it may appoint in this behalf, shall cause the document to be registered if its registration is required by the law for the time being in force or the decree-holder desires to have it registered, and may make such order as it thinks fit as to the payment of the expenses of the registration. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule embodies the provisions of Ss. 261 and 262, C. P. Code, 1882, in a re-arranged and modified form. Throughout, the word 'document' has been substituted for "conveyance." The rule has been brought into conformity with the chronological order of events, and a provision has been added to meet the requirements of the Indian Registration Act (see sub-rule 6). It was pointed out, in decisions under the old Code, that the endorsement by the Judge on the back of a mortgage-deed of over Rs. 100, showing its transfer to an auction-purchaser requires registration; Kanhia v. Kali Din, 2 A. 392.

Execution of document or endorsement by Court.—This rule prescribes the machinery for enforcing a decree, which directs the execution of a conveyance, and the form and the effect of such a conveyance.—Atul Kristo v. Mutty Lal, 3 C. W. N. 30.

Where a decree directed the defendant to execute a conveyance and provided that if he failed, the Court would execute it, and the conveyance was executed by the Court, nothing further remained to be done in execution proceedings, and if either of the parties wanted to enforce his rights under it, a separate suit was maintainable; Kali Narain v. Harinath, 12 C. L. J. 599.

Where a decree based upon a compromise directed that one party should execute a kobala in favour of another within a certain time after the date of the decree; held that the proper course for the parties would have been to proceed regularly as if a decree for specific performance was made. Either party ought to have submitted to the Court a draft of the kobala to be served on the other side, the other side having the right to object to the terms of the draft. Then the matter should have been taken up by the Court, or by a proper officer of the Court to settle the terms of the kobala and then the person who was to execute the document should have executed it and filed it in Court and the execution should have been attested by persons known to the recipient of the kobala or by other respectable persons.—Hare Krishna v. Priya Nath, 10 C. W. N. 345.

Where in a suit for declaration of title, a compromise-decree was passed under which the respondents were directed to execute a mortgage-bond a suit must depend upon the facts of each case and in the present case, the decree was capable of execution under this rule; Soudamini v. Behary, 25 C. W. N. 68.

The provision in a solenama, which solenama has been embodied in a decree, that one of the parties shall execute a patta in favour of the other, can be executed under Or. XXI, r. 34; Ashwini v. Ram Gopal, 95 I. C. 179; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 975.

So also a decree directing transfer of shares may be executed under this rule; Brojendra v. Kalinath, 41 I. C. 77.

The Registrar of the High Court has authority, when so directed, to execute a conveyance on behalf of a party refusing to do so, so as to pass his estate, if any, but has no authority to bind him by entering into any conveyance on his behalf.—Ram Chunder v. Dwarka Nath, 16 C. 330.

In a suit for specific performance of an oral agreement, if the defendant fails or refuses to comply with the decree, the Court shall proceed to exercise the power under this rule for carrying out the conveyance.—Chunder Kant v. Krishna Sunder, 10 C. 710.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract of sale and to execute a sale-deed, the Court ordered the defendant to execute a deed of sale. On failure of the defendant to do so, the Court executed a deed of sale in plaintiff's favour under this rule.—Nathu v. Budhu, 18 B. 537.

Courts in British India cannot direct an agent to convey to the principal properties situate outside jurisdiction. The only way to grant relief is under Or. XXI, r. 52; Ramasami v. Karuppan, 29 M. L. J. 551.

Form of decree.—Form of decree under this rule pointed out.—Goffur v. Bhikaji, 26 B. 159. See also Sarju Prasad v. Wazir Ali, 23 A. 119.

Registration.—See notes under heading "Alteration," ante.

Appeal.—An order on an objection to a draft conveyance or endorsement under this rule, is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (i).

35. (1) Where a decree is for the delivery of any immovable property, possession thereof shall be delivered to the party to whom it has been adjudged, or to such person as he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf, and, if necessary, by removing any person bound by the decree who refuses to vacate the property. [S. 263.]

(2) Where a decree is for the joint possession of immovable property, such possession shall be delivered by affixing a copy of the warrant in some conspicuous place on the property and proclaiming by beat of drum, or other customary mode, at some convenient place, the substance of the decree. [New.]

(3) Where possession of any building or enclosure is to be delivered and the person in possession, being bound by the decree, does not afford free access, the Court, through its officers, may, after giving reasonable warning and facility to any woman not appearing in public according to the customs of the country to withdraw, remove or open any lock or bolt or break open any door or do any other act necessary for putting the decree-holder in possession. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds with S. 263, C. P. Code, 1882 with some verbal changes only.

Sub-rule (2) is new. It makes provision for delivery of joint possession of immoveable property, to the owner of an undivided share or the purchaser of the rights of a co-sharer, as there was no such provision in the old Code.

Sub-rule (3) is also new. The provision is made in this rule for delivery of khas possession by removing or opening any lock or bolt or by breaking open any door, etc., etc.

"Bound by the decree."—In delivering possession the first thing to be seen is, whether the person who refuses to vacate is bound by the decree or not. If he is not bound by the decree and is a stranger, then he cannot be removed, nor his doors can be broken open.

This rule should be read with S. 146, and proceedings under it may be taken against persons claiming under the judgment-debtor, e.g., the representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor.

A landlord obtaining a decree for ejectment against his lessee can execute the decree against the sub-lessee also, because he is bound by the decree and it is not necessary in such a case to institute separate proceedings under r. 97 of Or. XXI.—Yusuf Sheikh v. Jyotish Chandra, 35 G. W. N. 1132.

Delivery of possession—Symbolical and actual.—Possession may be delivered in two ways, viz., delivery of actual or khas possession and delivery of formal or symbolical possession. Sub-rules (1) and (3) speak of actual possession, and sub-rule (2) contemplates symbolical possession. Rule 95 contemplates actual possession. Rule 36 (next rule) and r. 96 contemplate symbolical possession. Rules 95 and 96 deal with possession to be given to the auction-purchaser.

Distinction between actual or khas possession under this rule and formal possession under r. 36 explained and the mode of taking possession under each of the above rules pointed out by Edge, C. J.—Sitaram v. Ram Lal, 18-A. 440 (F. B.) (pages 449, 450 and 451).

"Constructive" possession by receipt of rent from tenants is not physical possession.—Batul Begum v. Mansur Ali, 20 A. 315 (F. B.).

Symbolical possession does not amount to dispossession as contemplated by S. 335, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, rr. 97, 103).—Ibrahim v. Ram Jadu, 30 C. 710.

Where the service-report states that symbolical possession was delivered, it may be presumed in the absence of anything to the contrary, that the requisites as to fixation of warrant had been complied with.—Chhajju v. Kirpa Ram, 132 I. C. 181 : 31 P. L. R. 1001.

Effect of symbolical possession.—Delivery of symbolical possession in execution operates in point of law and fact, as between the parties, a complete transfer of possession from one party to another, and forms, as against the judgment-debtor, a fresh starting point for limitation in respect of a suit for possession of the property, although such possession is of no avail as against third parties.—Juggobundhu v. Ram Chunder, 5 C. 584 (F. B.); 5 C. L. R. 548; Juggobundhu v. Purnanund, 16 C. 530 (F. B.) (10 C. 402 overruled); Shama Charan v. Madhab Chandra, 11 C. 93; Janaki Nath v. Baskunthanath, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 176; Radha Krishna v. Ram Bahadur, 22 C. W. N. 330 (P. C.); 27 C. L. J. 191; 34 M. L. J. 97; 20 Bom. L. R. 502; 16 A. L. J. 33; 43 I. C. 263; Mahadevappa v. Dhima, 46 B. 710; 66 I. C. 320; 24 Bom. L. R. 233; A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 27—28; Ranganatha v. Srinivasa, 49 M. L. J. 656; 90 I. C. 1037; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 42; Jogendra Krishna v. Joy Shib, 96 I. C. 481; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1172; Ali Husain v. Afzal Husain, 3 L. 130; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 8; 105 I. C. 781.

Though symbolical possession is delivered whose actual possession should have been given, still so far as the judgment-debtor and other persons bound by the decree are concerned, it operates as delivery of actual possession; Maharaja Pratap v. Bhaiani Sunder Bans, 71 I. C. 999. Formal delivery under rule 35 (1) amounts to actual delivery; Pandurang v. Sampat, 72 I. C. 318; A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 237; Babu Edal Singh v. Babu Ram Bahori Lal, 2 P. L. T. 743. But the delivery of symbolical possession is effective only in cases where C. P. Code recognizes such possession. Such symbolical possession does not affect persons impleaded as parties to the suit against whom, however, there is no decree for possession; Raghunath v. Kondiba, 46 B. 932; 68 I. C. 91; A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 2; 24 Bom. L. R. 499.

Where a decree-holder is under the terms of his decree entitled to khas possession, he cannot take by way of first instalment symbolical possession only and thereafter apply for supplementing what he has got by being given actual possession. His remedy is only to institute a fresh suit, if he has not repudiated the delivery of symbolical possession by the Court-peon.—Jagadish v. Nafar, 35 C. W. N. 12; 131 I. C. 698; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 427.

Symbolical possession and limitation.—Merely formal possession of immoveable property by a purchaser at a Court-sale cannot prevent limitation running in favour of the judgment-debtor, where the latter remains in actual possession. Janu Namji, 36 B. 373 (F. B.); 1 m. L. R. 499; 68 I. C. 91; A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 2; Shridhar v. Ganpati, 43 B. 559. The effect of this decision is that symbolical possession given in circumstances in which actual possession ought to have been given is a nullity, and the period of limitation for a suit for actual possession is 12 years from the date of sale. The Allahabad High Court in Jang Bahadur v. Hanwant, 43 A. 520 (F. B.), took the same view as the Bombay High Court. The Madras High Court in an earlier case (Govind v. Venkata, 17 M. L. J. 598), took the same view as the Calcutta High Court, but in later cases (Dharmala Kamayya v. Dhimarasetti, 49 M. L. J. 303; 86 I. C. 439; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1140; Govinda Sami v. Petha Perumal, 44 I. C. 829), it followed the Bombay decisions. A contrary view has been taken by the Calcutta High Court where it has been held that a suit by an auction-purchaser who has obtained symbolical possession for actual possession of land, brought within twelve years from the date of symbolical possession is not barred by limitation; Harī Mohan v. Baburali, 24 C. 715; Bhulu Beg v. Jatindra, 27 C. W. N. 24: 77 L. C. 1035: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 138. See also the Calcutta cases 'noted above under "Effect of Symbolical Possession."

It should be noted that symbolical possession though effective against the judgment-debtor, is of no avail against third persons or strangers; Harī Mohan v. Baburali, 24 C. 715; Giri Narain v. Modhusudan, 17 C. W. N. 324; see cases noted above under "Effect of Symbolical Possession." Thus D conveys his property to A but remains in possession. A sells the property to P. In execution of a decree against D the property is sold as D's property and purchased by Q. P then sues A and D for possession, and gets a decree in execution of which he obtains symbolical possession. When he went to take actual possession he was resisted by Q whose adverse possession was for more than twelve years including D's adverse possession against A. P then brings a suit against Q. The suit is barred, as the symbolical possession obtained by P did not break the continuity of Q's possession; Harjivan v. Shivram, 19 B. 620. In Kocherlakota v. Vadrevu, 27 M. 262, it has been held that symbolical possession will affect even a third party when it is delivered with his knowledge and in his presence. See also Lakshman v. Moru, 16 B. 722; Namdeb v. Ram Chandra, 18 B. 37; Doyanidhi v. Kelai, 11 C. L. R. 395.

Symbolical possession, such as may be given by sticking a bamboo into the ground or the like, of a dwelling-house of which actual possession might have been granted, is not such bona fide possession as will save limitation.—Shotee Nath v. Obhoy Nund, 5 C. 331.

It has been held that when the lease purports to be a perpetual lease without reversion to the grantors, the title is reserved to them but only a nominal reversion. The grantors would not be effective against the grantee. — Gossain Dalmar Puri v. Dipin Senary, 15 C. 520 (4 C. 327 referred to).

If a person obtaining formal possession in execution of a decree, allows 12 years to elapse without taking any steps to acquire and assert actual possession, he loses the title conferred by the decree.—Pearce Mohun v. Jugobundhu, 24 W. R. 418. See also Bagdu Majhi v. Durga Prosad, 9 C. W. N. 292, Ramlal v. Masum Ali, 25 A. 35.

Where a decree declared that the plaintiff was to get possession of certain land after batwara being made, and the decree-holder, after allowing his right to be barred by lapse of time, applied to the Collector, had a batwara effected and obtained merely formal possession; held that such possession gave him no fresh cause of action.—Kishore Singh v. Gobind Singh, 24 W. R. 33.

Where formal possession has been given under a final foreclosure decree but the mortgagor continued in actual possession, the remedy is by a suit and not under S. 47 of the C. P. Code, consequently the law of limitation applicable is that governing suits, and not execution proceedings—Jagan Nath v. Milap Chand, 28 A. 722; 3 A. L. J. 504: (1906) A. W. N. 213 (11 C. 93; 24 C. 715; 19 A. 499, referred to).

Delivery of actual or khas possession.—A decree, which is not a decree for possession, cannot be executed by an order for delivery of possession of property in the possession of a third party who has acquired a title subsequently to the institution of the suit.—Ameeroonnissa v. Abedoonnissa, 16 W. R. 307.

The delivery of possession under this rule contemplates the decree-holder being placed in actual possession by possibly dispossessing, in the eye of law, a third person who is not affected by the decree. The mere formal delivery of possession cannot of itself effect such dispossession, unless the deprivation of possession be complete as a fact, a conclusion which the Court has to form on the whole of the evidence.—Ram Chandra v. Rajji, 20 B. 351 (F. B.) (13 B. 213 referred to).

If in execution of a decree for khas possession, it is necessary to remove any of the defendants from the land covered by the decree, the Court, on application, is authorized to remove such person; but if the decree is silent as to the building situated on the land, it is not within the province of the Court, which executes, to direct that the building be pulled down.—Radha Gobind v. Brijendro Coomar, 18 W. R. 527.

Where plaintiff sued defendant as trespasser, the prayer in the plaint being for khas possession and the defendant set up adverse title, the decree given against the latter for possession was held to give the judgment-creditor the possession sued for, i.e. legal possession as provided by this section (i.e., this rule).—Raj Mungul v. Anund Moyee, 11 W. R. 63.

Delivery of possession of land under a decree for redemption, includes standing crops thereon.—Aung Bow v. Tuno Gaung, 3 L. B. R. 129.

Second application.—A decree-holder who has been put in possession under this rule and has been obstructed by a third person on behalf of the judgment-debtor cannot put in a second application for possession under this rule; Thandavaroya v. Subramania, 29 M. L. J. 504.

But a decree-holder in a partition suit who has been given partial possession of portion of the property allotted to him in an execution case which was dismissed after delivery of formal possession, can maintain a second application in execution for actual possession under this rule; Khetra v. Jogendra, 45 I. C. 7.

Joint possession—Undivided share.—When in execution of a decree held by her, the decree-holder purchased an undivided share in a house which the judgment-debtor owned jointly with S a third person, and the judgment-debtor resisted the decree-holder when attempting to get possession—held on a construction of this rule and r. 95, he was entitled to have the judgment-debtor removed from the premises; Sarvi Begam v. Taj Begam, 36 A. 181.

The provisions of this rule clearly show that a plaintiff who is entitled to joint-possession can be granted decree for joint-possession, whether he was originally in joint-possession, and was subsequently dispossessed, or whether he had never been in possession; Jagarnath v. Ramphal, 34 A. 150 (Phani Singh v. Nawab Singh, 28 A. 161 dissented from); Hanuman Prasad v. Mathura, 51 A. 303 (F. B.): 26 A. L. J. 992: 112 I. C. 143: A. I. R. 1928 All. 472. The Court has discretion in the matter, but it is not to be guided by any other consideration than the rights of the parties. If the plaintiff is entitled to a decree in accordance with the principles of justice, equity and good conscience, the Court must give him a decree, whether it believes that it would be useful or not.—Ibid.

Per Oldfield, J.—An usufructuary mortgagee of the share of a co-parcener in a joint-family property is not entitled to a decree for joint-possession.—(Per Napier, J., contra) in Kota Balabhadra v. Ketra, 16 M. L. T. 229.

Break open.—In a case in which the officers of a Court were unable to give possession on account of the house being locked up by the judgment-debtor; held that the Court was bound to remove the lock and to place the decree-holder in possession of the house—Gunesh Chunder v. Ram Dhunee, 22 W. R. 283.

Where a decree only directed plaintiff's right of passage through a doorway, and to remove the brick-work with which it was filled: Held that, in executing it, the decree-holder was not authorized to remove a wooden door in existence there—Rookene Kant v. Nund Lall, 25 W. R. 120.

Use of force in giving possession.—A bailiff authorised to give possession may use a reasonable degree of force in order to effect the removal of persons bound by the decree and refusing to vacate the same. If the writ simply authorizes "to give possession" and there are no words expressly authorising forcible removal, the omission is immaterial; Meredith v. Sanjibani 42 C. 313: 19 C. W. N. 273.

Resistance or obstruction to delivery of possession.—See r. 97 et seq and notes.

36. Where a decree is for the delivery of any immovable property in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same and not bound by the decree to relinquish such occupancy, the Court shall order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the warrant in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or other customary mode, at some convenient place, the substance of the decree in regard to the property. [S. 264.]

Procedure for delivery of possession.—This rule imperatively requires that a copy of the writ of delivery of possession should be affixed in some conspicuous place on or near the property, the object of the provision being that the co-sharers and tenants may know that possession has been transferred to the decree-holder. Failure to comply with this procedure is fatal to the delivery of possession; Jauhari v. Peman, 55 I. C. 19; Nidhiram v. Parsaram, 74 I. C. 1; Harnam Singh v. Miekhi Ram, 11 L. L. J. 146: 118 I. C. 391; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 545.

Applicability of the rule.—Order XXI, r. 36 applies only to a case where the property is in the exclusive possession of a person not bound by the decree and entitled to remain in possession. It does not apply to a case of a joint-holding which is covered by r. 35; Devi Sahai v. Ramji Lal, 27 P. L. R. 617 · 97 I. C. 170: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 668.

Delivery of property in occupancy of tenants, etc.—Where a decree is partly for a share of land in the khas possession of the defendant, and partly for a share of land in the possession of the ryots, the decree as to the former can only be executed under r. 35 and as to the latter according to this rule.—Shama Soonderee v. Jardine Skinner & Co., 7 W. R. 376 (reversing 3 W. R. 144).

If there is a decree for partition and the lands are in the possession of tenants, delivery can be given under this rule.—Uppala Raghava v. Uppala Ramanuja, 26 M. 78.

An order for delivery of possession of a house according to this rule is correct when the objector asserts that he has a right of residence in it; Jiban v. Simrikha, 20 I. C. 571.

A person disturbing the possession of another, without any right legitimately derived from any competent person to do so, is not a "person entitled to occupy" the property within the meaning of this rule; Ibrahim v. Konammal, 43 M. L. J. 179: 70 I. C. 755: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 25.

Possession without the intervention of Court.—The Code of Civil Procedure does not limit the applicant to any particular manner of obtaining possession, and there is nothing in the Code to prevent the decree-holder or auction-purchaser to obtain possession without the assistance of the Court. Possession actually taken without the intervention of Court is equally effectual.—Obhoya Churn v. Rajendro Coomar, 22 W. R. 406; Salig Ram v. Meheen Lall, 2 Agra 235; Lillu v. Annaji, 5 B. 387; and Bandu v. Naba, 15 B. 238.

Suit for khas possession after symbolical possession.—A suit by an auction-purchaser to obtain possession of lands the subject of his purchase, will lie when it is shown that an attempt has been made to obtain possession in execution proceedings, and that such attempt has become unsuccessful.—Iswar Pershad v. Jai Narain, 12 C. 169 (10 C. L. R. 258 distinguished). See also Seru Mohun v. Bhagoban Din, 9 C. 602; Balvant Santaram v. Babaji, 8 B. 602; and Sevu v. Mutlu Sami, 10 M. 53. A plaintiff who has obtained only symbolical possession in execution of a former decree, is entitled to maintain a fresh suit against the same defendant to obtain actual possession.—Shankar Bisto v. Narsingrav, 22 B. 667; Jagadis v. Nafar, 35 C. W. N. 12: 131 I. C. 698: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 427.

Magistrate to give effect to Civil Court's decree for possession.—A magistrate is bound to give effect to the decree of the Civil Courts and to maintain the party in possession, who under the decree has already been put in possession of the property in dispute.—Kunja Behari v. Khetra Pal, 29 C. 208: 6 C. W. N. 38 (26 C. 625 referred to; distd. in Ragava v. Krishnasami, 31 M. 416).

It is duty of the Magistrate in proceedings under S. 145, Cr. P. Code, to find possession in accordance with the decree of the Civil Court under which possession has been delivered.—Gulraj Marwari v. Sheik Bhatoo, 32 C. 796 (22 C. 297 cited; approved in Kulada v. Danesh, 33 C. 33: 10 C. W. N. 257: 2 C. L. J. 271; Akhoy v. Basu Rai, 37 C. L. J. 256). The weight to be attached to such previous orders depends on the particular circumstances of the case; see Parmeshwar v. Kailaspati, 1 P. L. J. 236. See also Krishna v. Abdul, 30 C. 155 (F. B.).

There having been considerable conflict of authority the Calcutta High Court has settled the question in a Full Bench decision in which the majority (Mukerji, J., dissenting) has held that the words "actual possession" in Sub-sec. (1) of Sec. 145, Cr. P. C., mean actual physical possession even though wrongful, e. g., that of a recent trespasser in actual physical possession at the time of the proceedings under S 145; that the word "dispute" in the same sub-section means actual disagreement existing between the parties at the time of the proceedings under S. 145 even though the question as to the right to possession has already been decided by a Civil Court. See also the dissentient judgment in which the previous authorities have been referred to and it has been said that the words "actual possession" in Sub-sec. (1) of S. 145 mean actual physical possession even though wrongful, e. g., that of a recent trespasser in actual physical possession at the time of the proceeding under S. 145, but the words have this meaning only in cases in which the dispute as to possession has not been determined by a Civil Court as explained below; that the word "dispute" in the same sub-section does not mean any dispute but dispute as to actual possession. It further means actual disagreement existing between the parties at the time of the proceeding under S. 145 but when there has been a previous decision of a Civil Court it has this meaning if the decision of the Civil Court amounts only to a determination of the right to possession. It has not this meaning where such right and a consequent claim to possession have been negatived by a decree which is either inter partes or may be treated as such and where khas or actual possession has been delivered by the Civil Court either inter partes or between parties who may in effect be regarded as parties to the proceeding.—Agni Kumar v. Mantazaddin, 32 C. W. N. 1173 : 48 C. L. J. 193.

ARREST AND DETENTION IN THE CIVIL PRISON.

37. (1) Notwithstanding anything in these rules, where an application is for the execution of a decree for the payment of money by the arrest and detention in the civil prison of a judgment-debtor who is liable to be arrested in pursuance of the application, the Court may, instead of issuing a warrant for his arrest, issue a notice calling upon him to appear before the Court on a day to be specified in the notice and show cause why he should not be committed to the civil prison.

(2) Where appearance is not made in obedience to the notice, the Court shall, if the decree-holder so requires, issue a warrant for the arrest of the judgment-debtor. [S. 245-B.]

COMMENTARY.

Notwithstanding anything in these rules.—See rr. 11 and 21 of this Order.

Issue of warrant when judgment-debtor does not reside within the jurisdiction of the Court.—The fact that the judgment-debtor does not reside within the jurisdiction of the Court is not a sufficient reason for refusing to issue a warrant for his arrest, although such a warrant can be executed only within the Court's territorial jurisdiction. In such cases the Court should fix a date for the return of the warrant; Krishna v. Bidya, 44 I. C. 296 : 3 P. L. J. 95

Arrest of a judgment-debtor in execution of a mortgage-decree.—In a mortgage-decree, execution of which is being taken with a view to bring the mortgaged property to sale, it is not competent to the executing Court to direct the arrest of the judgment-debtor.—Bhagirath v. Bank of Northern India, 31 P. L. R. 143 : 121 I. C. 293 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 103.

"Issue notice".—The Court may issue notice against a judgment-debtor who in other execution proceedings has applied for insolvency; Ganpat v. Mahadev, 22 B. 731.

The issue of a notice under this rule is not a revivor of a decree for purposes of limitation; Chatterput v. Daya Chand, 11 I. C. 216.

The Court may choose between two alternative courses. It may issue a notice to show cause or it may issue at once a warrant of arrest. It cannot issue a notice and a warrant at the same time.—Puna Mahton v. Emperor, 13 P. L. J. 502.

Appearance after notice.—See r. 40 for procedure to be followed after appearance.

Undischarged insolvent can be arrested under civil warrant in absence of protection order.—As S. 28 of the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1920 does no longer protect the insolvent from arrest, an adjudged insolvent has to apply for protection from arrest or detention under S. 31 of the Act and in the absence of a protection order, he can be arrested in execution of a decree against him; Roshan v. Gulam Mohiddin, 31 Bom. L. R. 206 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 136; Hari Ram v. Sri Krishan Ram, 49 A. 201 : 100 I. C. 320 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 418.

38. Every warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor shall direct the officer entrusted with its execution to bring him before the Court with all convenient speed, unless the amount which he has been ordered to pay, together with the interest thereon and the cost (if any) to which he is liable, be sooner paid. [S. 337.]

Warrant for arrest to direct judgment-debtor to be brought up.

39. (1) No judgment-debtor shall be arrested in execution of a decree unless and until the decree-holder pays into Court such sum as the Judge thinks sufficient for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor from the time of his arrest until he can be brought before the Court.

Subsistence allowance.

(2) Where a judgment-debtor is committed to the civil prison in execution of a decree, the Court shall fix for his subsistence such monthly allowance as he may be entitled to according to the scales fixed under section 57, or, where no such scales have been fixed, as it considers sufficient with reference to the class to which he belongs.

(3) The monthly allowance fixed by the Court shall be supplied by the party on whose application the judgment-debtor has been arrested by monthly payments in advance before the first day of each month.

(4) The first payment shall be made to the proper officer of the Court for such portion of the current month as remains unexpired before the judgment-debtor is committed to the civil prison, and the subsequent payments (if any) should be made to the officer in charge of the civil prison. [S. 339.]

(5) Sums disbursed by the decree-holder for the subsistence of the judgment-debtor in the civil prison shall be deemed to be costs in the suit :

Provided that the judgment-debtor shall not be detained in the civil prison or arrested on account of any sum so disbursed. [S. 340.]

COMMENTARY.

Arrest.—Subsistence money must be paid into Court before the order for arrest can be made; Kastur Chand v. Ravji, 4 B. 65.

Subsistence money to be paid in advance.—Subsistence money for a month must be paid in advance; a similar payment must be received in advance every successive month pending the imprisonment; and if any such payment be not made, the prisoner is entitled to be released and further detention is illegal.—In re Kanoy Lall, Bourke, O. C. 51; Aga Ali v. Joydayal, Bourke, O. C. 52. See also Speyer v. Janssen, Bourke, O. C. 28; In re Sumboo Chunder, In re Doorga, Bourke, O. C. 59; In the matter of Thompson, Bourke, O. C. 421; Dutt v. Cornelius, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 79. Subsistence money must be paid before the commencement of the month for which it is paid; Haladhar v. Ambika, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 80.

Arrest before judgment.—Where a defendant is arrested before judgment, his subsistence money is to be fixed in the same way as in the case of an arrest in execution of a decree; and if the plaintiff fails to pay the subsistence money fixed by the Court, the defendant is entitled to his discharge from prison.—In the matter of Callachand Das, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 327; Bourke O. C. 423.

40. (1) Where a judgment-debtor appears before the Court in obedience to a notice issued under rule 37, or is brought before the Court after being arrested in execution of a decree for the payment of money, and it appears to the Court that the judgment-debtor is unable from poverty or other sufficient cause to pay the amount of the decree or, if that amount is payable by instalments, the amount of any instalment thereof, the Court may, upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit, make an order disallowing the application for his arrest and detention, or directing his release, as the case may be.

(2) Before making an order under sub-rule (1), the Court may take into consideration any allegation of the decree-holder touching any of the following matters, namely:—

- (a) the decree being for a sum for which the judgment-debtor was bound in any fiduciary capacity to account;
- (b) the transfer, concealment or removal by the judgment-debtor of any part of his property after the date of the institution of the suit in which the decree was passed, or the commission by him after that date of any other act of bad faith in relation to his property, with the object or effect of obstructing or delaying the decree-holder in the execution of the decree;
- (c) any undue preference given by the judgment-debtor to any of his other creditors;
- (d) refusal or neglect on the part of the judgment-debtor to pay the amount of the decree or some part thereof when he has, or since the date of the decree has had, the means of paying it;
- (e) the likelihood of the judgment-debtor absconding or leaving the jurisdiction of the Court with the object or effect of obstructing or delaying the decree-holder in the execution of the decree.

(3) While any of the matters mentioned in sub-rule (2) are being considered, the Court may, in its discretion, order the judgment-debtor to be detained in the civil prison, or leave him in the custody of an officer of the Court, or release him on his furnishing security, to the satisfaction of the Court, for his appearance when required by the Court.

(4) A judgment-debtor released under this rule may be re-arrested.

(5) Where the Court does not make an order under sub-rule (1), it shall cause the judgment-debtor to be arrested if he has not already been arrested and, subject to the other provisions of this Code, commit him to the civil prison. [S. 337-A.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 337-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with a change of wording. It was added to the C. P. Code of 1882, from the Debtor's Act VI of 1888 (S. 4).

"May disallow arrest."—A judgment-debtor who is not able to get in his assets readily may be unable to escape arrest and imprisonment. But the Court is armed with sufficient power under this rule to prevent such a debtor from being unnecessarily harassed; Ponnuswami v. Narayanaswami, 21 I. C. 298: 25 M. L. J. 545.

After notice the judgment-debtor appeared and pleaded poverty. The Court after enquiry under this rule disallowed the objection and directed his immediate arrest and commitment to jail. If the cause is insufficient the Court is bound to order arrest; Gubboy v. Ram Doyal, 2 C. W. N. 588. Lunacy is a good cause for refusal of a warrant for arrest; Bhanabhai v. Chotabhai, 23 B. 961.

Where a decree is passed against three persons, and the Court is satisfied that one of them is really unable to pay while the other two possess property, the Court may reject an application made by the decree-holder for the arrest of the judgment-debtor who is unable to pay; Lala Das v. Mina Mal, 4 L. L. J. 266: 79 I. C. 551. A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 259.

Where a judgment-debtor against whom a warrant is issued applies to the Court for an enquiry into his pauperism after the issue of a warrant against him without notice and before he is arrested, it is not necessary to invoke the provisions of S. 151, as it is still open to him to surrender himself in Court and then to move it to pass an order under r. 40 (3).—Jiwandas v. Khemchand, 116 I. C. 101: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 110.

Insolvency.—An insolvent, who has not inserted in his schedule a debt for which a decree is subsequently obtained, is not protected from arrest in execution of such decree, merely because his property is in the hands of the Receiver; Panna Lal v. Kanhaiya, 16 C. 85. There is nothing to prevent the Court from issuing a warrant of arrest against a judgment-debtor at the instance of one decree-holder pending an enquiry into the judgment-debtor's application for insolvency in execution of a decree of another decree-holder; Ganpat v. Mahadev, 22 B. 731. Where a judgment-debtor was arrested in execution of a decree while all his properties were put into the possession of the ad interim Receiver appointed in the insolvency proceedings, held that the Court ought to have given him the benefit of r. 40 so long as the property was in the hands of the Receiver and should not have arrested him and sent him to jail.—Tarachand v. Jawahar Mal, 131 I. C. 208: 32 P. L. R. 311: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 121

Failure to apply for Insolvency—Surety.—A judgment-debtor applied under S 55 (4) and a person stood surety to. Before the due date, the judgment-debtor of applying for insolvency. The Court postponed the date subsequent to the date finally fixed for his appearance; but on this date the judgment-debtor remained absent. Held that the surety was absolved from liability as the original date fixed for the judgment-debtor's appearance was, no longer to be regarded as the date fixed for his appearance and no proceedings took place on that day; Bhagwan v. Bhagat, 61 P. W. R. 1910.

Transfer, concealment, removal or any other act of bad faith.—The Code contemplates a case of active concealment, or removal of substantive property since the institution of the suit in which was passed the decree in execution of which the judgment-debtor was arrested or imprisoned, with intent to deprive the creditors of available assets for division; Sukrit Narain v. Raghunath, 7 A. 445. The Court must take into consideration any allegation of the decree-holder touching the fact of the concealment, removal, transfer etc. before releasing the judgment-debtor. If the lower Court fails to do so, the High Court in second appeal may either remand the case to the lower Court or decide it itself on the evidence under S. 103 of C. P. Code.—Bank of Behar v. Bihari Prasad, 118 I. C. 312 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 728.

The words "bad faith" mean bad faith in respect of the debt for which he has been imprisoned and with regard to which the application has been made.—See Oriental Bank v. Mani Madhab, 3 B. L. R. Ap. 14; In re Guru Das Bose, 7 B. L. R. Ap. 23; Butler v. Lloyd, 12 B. L. R. Ap. 12; Anonymous, 1 Ind. Jur. N. S. 8. See, however, Smith v. Boggs, 5 B. L. R. Ap. 22, where it has been held that the words "bad faith" meant bad faith not only in respect of the application but included bad faith on previous occasions. In In re Soopersaud, 2 Ind. Jur. N. S. 91, and In re Sub Chunder, 2 Ind. Jur. N. S. 93-note, it was held that the acts of bad faith are not limited to acts of bad faith committed by the prisoner in his application for discharge, but included acts of bad faith in the manner of incurring his original liability. Acts of bad faith must be done wilfully.—Karim Baksh v. Mirilal, 7 A. 295.

Acts of bad faith towards creditors just at the period at which the applicant may be held to be a part of the matter of v. Pierce Leslie & Co., 2 M. 219. See also G 118, where it has been held that the expression "any other act of bad faith" not only means any act of bad faith which bears directly upon the conduct of the debtor in the matters leading up to his application for insolvency but also includes acts of bad faith committed by the applicant for declaration of insolvency antecedent to his application. Followed in Gaya Din v. Hira Lal, 26 A. 517.

The bad faith, the reckless contracting of debts, the unfair preference of creditors, the transfer, removal or concealment of property, the making of false statements in the application, are all acts of misconduct that will debar the applicant from obtaining the relief and the protection he seeks.—Salamat Ali v. Minahan, 4 A. 337.

The test of good faith is whether the transaction is genuine or colourable; Mahammadunissa v. Bachelor, 29 B. 428 (434).

Undue preference.—Cl. (c) applies to cases where the transfer would, under any enactment for the time being in force, be void, as a fraudulent preference, if the debtor were adjudged an insolvent. As to when a transfer of property by a debtor may be avoided as a fraudulent preference, see S. 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), and S. 53 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882).

A debtor, who gives an unfair preference to one creditor by giving him a large proportion of his property, so as to reduce the aliquot share of the other creditors, acts fraudulently; Dadapa v. Vishnudas, 12 B. 424. But in Brown v. Ferguson, 16 M. 499 (following Butcher v. Stead, L. R. 7 E. & I. Ap. 839), it has been held that a mortgage by the debtor to one of his creditors to secure a barred debt, since renewed, did not amount to an act of fraudulent preference within the meaning of this section. See also Joakim v. Secretary of State, 3 A. 530, where it has been held that an assignment by a debtor of all his property to one of his creditors, did not amount to an "undue preference" within the meaning of this section.

In deciding whether or not a payment made to a particular creditor amounts to an unfair preference, the Courts may fairly refer to, and be guided by, the provisions of the Insolvent Act, which treats a transaction as an unfair preference only when it has occurred within a limited time before the insolvency proceedings.—In the matter of William Hastie, 11 C. 451.

For the meaning of the word "creditor," see In the matter of Chunni Lal, 29 C. 503.

Refusal or neglect to pay the amount of the decree.—Reckless trading, although unaccompanied by any legal or moral fraud, is a ground for suspending protection.—In re Baggot, Bourke Ins. 5.

A Judge would not be exercising a right discretion, if he refused relief in the case of persons, who, although knowing that they had no means of paying at the time the debt was contracted, yet honestly believed upon reasonable grounds that they would have the means of paying eventually.—Bavachi Packi v. Pierce Leslie & Co, 3 M. 219.

"Some part thereof" in Cl. (d) refers to decrees for payment of money generally and not only to instalment decrees; Cowie & Co. v. Skidmore, 7 Bur. L. T. 242.

Clause (3)—Security—The security to be furnished by a judgment-debtor must be proper and not illusory.—Dharani v. Kshitipati, 54 C. 782; 106 I. C. 66; A. I. B. 1928 Cal. 62.

Likelihood of the judgment-debtor absconding.—A person must go away from his place of business for the purpose of being absent in order that it may be impossible or difficult for his creditors to find him, and a mere retirement to the private part of the house would not necessarily be such departure.—In re Dhunput Singh, 20 C. 771.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order made under this rule disallowing an application by a decree-holder for the arrest and imprisonment of the judgment-debtor, such an order being appealable as a decree under S. 47; Raj Karm v. Karm Ilahi, 1 L. 77; Lala Das v. Mina Mal, 4 L. L. J. 266; 79 I. C. 551; A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 259. Similarly, an appeal lies from an order granting an application for release under this rule; Abdul Rahaman v. Mahomed Kassim, 21 M. 29.

ATTACHMENT OF PROPERTY.

41. Where a decree is for the payment of money the decree-holder may apply to the Court for an order that—

Examination of
as to his property.

(a) the judgment-debtor, or

(b) in the case of a corporation, any officer thereof, or

(c) any other person, be orally examined as to whether any or what debts are owing to the judgment-debtor and whether the judgment-debtor has any and what other property or means of satisfying the decree; and the Court may make an order for the attendance and examination of such judgment-debtor, or officer or other person, and for the production of any books or documents. [Cf. S. 267.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This rule has been substituted for S. 267 of the O. P. Code of 1882, which has been recast and changed. The main distinctions between this rule and the old section, are (1) that this rule refers to a decree for payment of money, but the language of the old section covered all sorts of decrees; (2) this rule provides for the examination of the judgment-debtor or any other person at the instance of the decree-holder but under the old section the Court had power to act on its own motion.

Object.—The object of this rule is to obtain discovery for purposes of execution, to avoid unnecessary troubles in obtaining satisfaction of money decrees. But orders for discovery or personal examination may operate harshly and ought not to be made unless the Court is satisfied about the bona fides of the application and its urgent necessity; National Bank Ltd. v. Ghuznavi, 43 C. 285: 34 I. C. 287 (on appeal, see 20 C. W. N. 562).

"Any other person."—This rule is applicable to all the property of the judgment-debtor out of which the decree can be satisfied either by delivery in obedience to the decree or by sale. A person may be examined in respect of property which is prima facie the property of the judgment-debtor even though such person may allege that he is a mortgagee in possession of the attached property.—In re Premji Trikum Das, 17 B. 514. See also Assur Purshotam v. Ruttonbas, 16 B. 152.

Production.—On an application by the decree-holder for execution of the decree by attachment of a debt, the Court may require the production in Court of the judgment-debtor's books of account; Adjoodhya v. Middleton, 3 N. W. P. H. C. R. 334.

Attachment.—In the normal course of things, attachment does not per se create or confer a title. It only prevents an alienation of the property during the subsistence of the attachment.—Shanker v. Mahomed Ismail, 125 I. C. 28: A. I. R. 1930 All. 552.

Attachment in case of decree for rent or mesne profits or other matter, amount of which to be subsequently determined

42. Where a decree directs an inquiry as to rent or mesne profits or any other matter, the property of the judgment-debtor may, before the amount due from him has been ascertained, be attached, as in the case of an ordinary decree for the payment of money.

COMMENTARY.

Attachment after preliminary decree.—A decree for possession and mesne profits to be ascertained after enquiry is a decree for money, and there is no irregularity in the decree-holder applying for attachment of the judgment-debtor's property, pending the ascertainment of mesne-profits.—Sharoda Moyee v. Wooma Moyee, 8 W. R. 9 (folld. in Kishory v. Mahomed Muzaffar, 18 C. 188; reld. to in Ramasami Naik v. Ramasami Chetti, 30 M. 255).

If the judgment-debtor dies after preliminary decree and before final decree, his representatives will not be bound unless they were brought on the record at the time of the ascertainment of the mesne-profits; Radha Prasad v. Lal Sahab Rai, 17 I. A. 150; 13 A. 53 (P. C.).

43. Where the property to be attached is moveable property, other than agricultural produce, in the possession of the judgment-debtor, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the attaching officer shall keep the property in his own custody or in the custody of one of his subordinates, and shall be responsible for the due custody thereof :

Attachment of moveable property other than agricultural produce, in possession of judgment-debtor

Provided that, when the property seized is subject to speedy and natural decay, or when the expense of keeping it in custody is likely to exceed its value, the attaching officer may sell it at once.

[S. 269, PARAS. 1 and 2.]

COMMENTARY.

C. P. than the 1 para. 1 of the old section.

as. 1 and 2 of S. 269, ins. The words, "other" the words "other than 66," which occurred in Moveable property.—Under the present Code moveable property includes growing crops. See S. 2, Cl. (13); but money is not "moveable property."—Maung Lun Bye v. Maung Po Nyun, A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 21.

Property outside jurisdiction.—The attachment under this rule can be effected only when the property is situate within the jurisdiction of the Court issuing attachment; Degg Dunlop & Co. v. Jayannath, 39 C. 104, 110.

Actual seizure.—A warrant of attachment was executed by affixing it to the outer door of a warehouse in which goods belonging to the judgment-debtor were stored. The door was not broken open nor was physical possession taken of the goods inside. Held that this in effect, was actual seizure within the meaning of the Act. Lachmand v. Bank of Madras, 27 M. 346. Where the cattle it is not always necessary that there should be actual seizure of the cattle by physical contact. Thus where the cattle have already been tied and secured it is sufficient if the officer goes sufficiently near them to explain to others that he has come to attach the property and to intimate his intention to do so.—Rajamraju v. Tirapatiraju, 126 I. C. 601: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 670. Removal of articles by the Amin with the help of coolies is seizure.—Narasintham v. Narasimhamurthy, (1930) M. W. N. 487.

Where after the removal of attachment and delivery of the property to a third person, a suit was brought by the decree-holder for a declaration that the property belongs to the judgment-debtor and the suit was decreed, the attachment cannot be restored by the mere force of the decree. A first seizure and custody are necessary for the attachment.—Lakshmichand v. Chettyar, 8 R. 401: 126 I. C. 223: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 247.

"Shall be responsible for the due custody thereof."—An attaching officer deputed to attach moveable properties before attachment, having attached the properties, entrusted them to a third person without the permission of the Court. The property was lost. Held that the attaching officer must make good the loss and not the third person entrusted with the property, and the Court had power under Or. XXI, r. 43 to make the order; Badri Prasad v. Chokhelal, 24 A. L. J. 561: 48 A. 510: A. I. R. 1926 All. 406. But where a person to whom goods attached were made over for safe custody by the attaching officer, on his executing a bond undertaking to produce them in Court, fails to produce the goods when required by the Court, the decree-holder is not competent to proceed against the surety under S. 145; Raja of Venkatagiri v. Sura, 39 M. L. J. 472: 60 I. C. 134. The Allahabad High Court, in Madho Prasad v. Pearey Lal, 19 A. L. J. 247: 62 I. C. 719, held that the surety could be proceeded against under S. 145. Where the petitioner was given the custody of certain cart-loads of timber and tiles belonging to the judgment-debtor on executing a bond to produce them before the Court when required, and subsequently, when required by the Court to do so, represented that he would deliver the goods to the purchaser at the Court-sale whoever he might be, and the Court therefore forfeited his bond, held, that having regard to the nature of the goods, the Court went wrong in ordering their production in Court, that the goods must have been sold on the spot where they were stored and the order of forfeiture of the bond should be set aside.—Alagappan v. Sankarakailasan, (1927) M. W. N. 919. So far as the question of the responsibility of the attaching officer is concerned there is no conflict between rr. 43 and 122 as added by the Allahabad High Court. It is his duty to make the most convenient and economical arrangement but his legal responsibility will continue till the Court approves of the arrangement. When the Court has approved of it his responsibility comes to an end, but pending approval it subsists (48 A. 510 overruled).—Shakir Husain v. Chandoo Lal, 134 I. C. 836 (F. B.): 29 A. L. J. 865: A. I. R. 1931 All. 567.

Attachment of property by the attaching officer is illegal.—Emperor v. ... 113 I. C. 572; 48 C. L. J. 288; 33 C. W. N. ...

Attachment of agricultural produce

44. Where the property to be attached: in agricultural produce, the attachment shall be made by affixing a copy of the warrant of

(a) where such produce is a growing crop, on the land on which such crop has grown, or

(b) where such produce has been cut or gathered, on the threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like or fodder-stack on or in which it is deposited, and another copy on the outer door or on some other conspicuous part of the house in which the judgment-debtor ordinarily resides or, with the leave of the Court, on the outer door or on some other conspicuous part of the house in which he carries on business or personally works for gain or in which he is known to have last resided or carried on business or personally worked for gain; and the produce shall thereupon be deemed to have passed into the possession of the Court.

[New.];

COMMENTARY.

Growing crops.—"Growing crops" are moveable property. See the definition in R. 2 (13). The definition of moveable property, as given in the present Code, has rendered the following cases obsolete and inoperative; 5 I. L. R. 104; 10 W. R. 275; 14 A. 30, 15 A. 394, and 6 B. 592.

Agricultural produce—As to exemption, see S. 61.

Property passing from the judgment-debtor.—Where the attachment of moveable crops is made merely by beat of drum and the procedure prescribed by this rule is not followed, the produce cannot be deemed to have passed from the possession of the judgment-debtor into the possession of the Court.—Ann Sakal v. Emperor, 129 I. C. 715; A. I. R. 1931 All. 142.

45. (1) Where agricultural produce is attached, the Court shall make such arrangements for the custody thereof as it may deem sufficient and, for the purpose of enabling the Court to make such arrangements, every application for the attachment of a growing crop shall specify the time at which it is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered.

(2) Subject to such conditions as may be imposed by the Court in this behalf either in the order of attachment or in any subsequent order, the judgment-debtor may tend, cut, gather and store the produce and do any other act necessary for maturing or preserving it; and if the judgment-debtor fails to do all or any of such acts, the decree-holder may, with the permission of the Court and subject to the like conditions, do all or any of them either by himself or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and the costs incurred by the decree-holder shall be recoverable from the judgment-debtor as if they were included in, or formed part of, the decree.

(3) Agricultural produce attached as a growing crop shall not be deemed to have ceased to be under attachment or to require re-attachment merely because it has been severed from the soil.

(4) Where an order for the attachment of a growing crop has been made at a considerable time before the crop is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may, in its discretion, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the crop pending the execution of the order of attachment.

(5) A growing crop which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be attached under this rule at any time less than twenty days before the time at which it is likely to be fit to be cut or gathered. [New.]

46: (1) In the case of—

debt, share and other property not in possession of
judgment-debtor.

(a) a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument,

(b) a share in the capital of a corporation,

(c) other moveable property not in the possession of the judgment-debtor, except property deposited in, or in the custody of, any Court, the attachment shall be made by a written order prohibiting,—

(i) in the case of the debt, the creditor from recovering the debt and the debtor from making payment thereof until the further order of the Court ;

(ii) in the case of the share, the person in whose name the share may be standing from transferring the same or receiving any dividend thereon ;

(iii) in the case of the other moveable property except as aforesaid, the person in possession of the same from giving it over to the judgment-debtor.

(2) A copy of such order shall be affixed on some conspicuous part of the Court-house and another copy shall be sent in the case of the debt, to the debtor, in the case of the share, to the proper officer of the corporation, and, in the case of the other moveable property (except as aforesaid), to the person in possession of the same.

(3) A debtor prohibited under clause (i) of sub-rule (1) may pay the amount of his debt into Court, and such payment shall discharge him as effectually as payment to the party entitled to receive the same. [S. 268.]

COMMENTARY.

"Debt."—The term 'debt' in this rule is used in its legal sense of a debt either due or accruing due. An annuity not yet due is not a debt and cannot be attached, Padmanund v. Rama Prasad, 14 C. L. J. 127. A debt is a sum of money which is now payable or will become payable in future by reason of a present obligation—Per Lindley, L. J., in Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518; 52 L. J. Q. B. 584. See also Bancharam v. Adyanath, 36 C. 936 (F. B.): 13 C. W. N. 966. An existing debt though payable at a future date is attachable; Tuffuzzool v. Rughoonath, 14 M. I. A. 40, 50. A sum payable upon a contingency, however, is not a debt and does not become a debt until the contingency happens. Thus when A is bound under a deed to pay to B a monthly allowance during the lifetime of the latter, there cannot be a valid attachment of any portion of the allowance by a prohibitory order issued to A on a date anterior to the time when the same falls due to B; Haridas v. Baroda, 27 C. 38. See also Padmanund v. Rama Prasad, 14 C. L. J. 127.

Attachment of debt payable by person outside jurisdiction.—It is not competent to a Court, in execution of a decree for money, to attach under this rule, at the instance of the decree-holder, a debt payable to the judgment-debtor outside the jurisdiction, by a person not resident within the jurisdiction of the Court. Thus J, in execution of a decree against H in the Burdwan Court, applied there for an order of attachment of Rs. 6,750 alleged to be due to H from a firm in Calcutta and a prohibitory order was issued upon the said firm. Held that the debt could not be attached by the Burdwan Court; Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Jagannath, 39 C. 104 (Obiter dictum in Re Hollick, 2 B. L. R. 108; 10 W. R. 447, not followed). An order under this rule can be justified only if the Judge issuing the order has jurisdiction over the place where the attachment is to be made.—Nazarali v. Bala, 107 I. C. 663; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 210. Payments to be made to a railway contractor for work done as well as the salary and the allowance of a servant of a railway company cannot be attached under Or. XXI, r. 46; the Station-master of the place where the contract work was done is not the proper person to address in the matter.—Ibid. See also Bilas Mal v. Hari Das, 118 I. C. 908; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 645, and Or. XXI, r. 48, post; Haridas v. National Insurance Co., 35 C. W. N. 1096, noted under the heading "Other moveable property not in possession of judgment-debtor," post.

Effect of attachment.—This rule does not mean that, while a debt is under attachment, the person to whom the debt was originally owing should be debarred from bringing a suit in respect of it. What it prohibits is the recovery of the debt and the payment of it by the debtor to the creditor. An order of attachment under this rule is not an injunction or order staying a suit within the meaning of S. 15 of the Limitation Act.—Shib Singh v. Sita Ram, 13 A. 76 (followed in Collector of Etawah v. Beti Maharani, 14 A. 162; affirmed by the P. C. in 17 A 198 (P. C.)). See also Musst. Sheoraja v. Jagan, 49 I. C. 88.

An order of attachment under this rule only operates so as to give the judgment-creditor certain rights in execution. It does not operate, when those rights are not exercised before the presentation of an insolvency, so as to create in favour of the judgment-creditor a title which prevails against that of the Official Assignee, under the vesting order in insolvency made after the order of attachment.—Krishnasawmy v. Official Assignee, 26 M. 673. The effect of attachment is only to prevent private alienation, it does not confer title. But a vesting order passed by a competent Foreign Court (Secunderabad) is a transfer by operation of law and the rights of the Official Receiver override those under an earlier attachment in British India (41 I A. 251 · 42 C. 72, referred to; 29 C. 428 explained and 26 M. 673, relied on).—Official Receiver of Secunderabad v. Lakshi Narayana, 54 M. 727; 132 I C 297; (1931) M. W. N. 444; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 474; 61 M. L. J. 774.

An attaching creditor is not in the same position as an assignee for value without notice of a prior assignment but stands in respect of prior assignments in no better position than his judgment-debtor; Mejji Hansraj v. Ranji Joita, 8 B. H. C. R. O. C. 169.

Requisites to make a debt attachable.—It is essential that the relation of creditor and debtor should exist between the judgment-debtor and the garnishee (judgment-debtor's debtor), and two practical tests are applied: (1) Could the judgment-debtor sue the garnishee for the amount and recover it? (2) Would the debt vest in the judgment-debtor's trustee in the case of bankruptcy?

Annuity.—Annuities payable by trustees are attachable; Nash v. Pease, 47 L. J. Q. B. 766, but the money must have reached their hands and be also payable. Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518; 52 L. J. Q. B. 584. Annuity not yet due is not a debt; Padmanund v. Rama Prasad, 14 C. L. J. 127.

Life policy.—Where a life policy is payable "on proof to the satisfaction of the directors of the death of the assured," the policy amount cannot be said to be a "debt" due by the Company before such proof is given.—J. D. John v. Oriental Government Security Life Assurance Co., 56 M. L. J. 299; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 347.

Right to receive debt or rent.—A right to receive a debt or to collect rent can be attached under this rule; Basavayya v. Syed Abbas, 24 M. 20 (dissented from in Ohidambara v. Ramasamy, 27 M. 67).

Rent due can be attached; Mitchell v. Lee, (1867) L. R. 2 Q. B. 259. But it is not attachable unless it becomes payable by the tenant; Barnett v. Eastman, (1898) 67 L. J. Q. B. 517.

Where after the Court-sale and before its confirmation the judgment-debtor was shown to have leased the property and realised a portion of the rent, and thereupon the purchaser applied for a prohibitory order against the judgment-debtor and the tenant as regards the paying and receiving of rent:

held, that though the prohibitory order could not be issued under S. 47 or Or. XXI, r. 46, it could be passed under S. 151 as the ends of justice required the same.—Abdul Ghani v. Simla Banking and Industrial Co., 33 P. L. R. 435 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 295 : 136 I. C. 4.

Monthly allowance.—Monthly allowance payable to a judgment-debtor is a debt, and is attachable under this section.—Maharani Dambar Koeri v. Rai Sham Kissen, 9 C. W. N. 703.

Debt payable by instalments.—A garnishee order can be made where the debt, is payable by instalments, for payment of the accruing instalments as they become payable from time to time; Tapp v. Jones, (1875) L. R. 10 Q. B. 591.

Decree—A decree of a Revenue Court stands in the position of an ordinary debt, and may be dealt with under this rule.—Aulia Bibi v. Abu Jafar, 21 A. 405 (7 B. L. R. 318 : 15 W. R. 34 ; 2 A. 290 referred to).

Attachment of debt already paid by cheque.—If the attachment is made after a cheque for money due on contracts has been delivered, the payment of the cheque cannot be stopped.—Bhagvan Das v. Abdul Hussein, 3 B 49

Where the judgment-debtor has been paid by cheque which is stopped by the garnishee upon his being served with a garnishee order nisi, there is an attachable debt, Cohen v. Hale, (1871) 3 Q. B. D. 371 ; but not if the garnishee does not stop the cheque, nor is he bound to do so ; Elwell v. Jackson, (1835) 1 Times L. R. 454 C. A.

Debt not immediately payable.—An attaching creditor can attach any debt though not immediately payable. Money deposited by the judgment-debtor as security for the due performance of a contract can be attached, though it is not payable to the judgment-debtor till the completion of the contract and may even be liable to forfeiture ; S. B. Das v. Muthia Chetty, 56 I C 948.

A Court cannot make an order on the garnishee to pay the money into Court before the debt has become actually payable.—Jelka v. Durgadutt, 29 Bom. L. R. 416 : 102 I. C. 418 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 365.

Joint-decree against two or more persons.—A judgment-creditor who has got a joint-decree against two or more persons, can attach a debt owing to any of his judgment-debtors (Miller v. Mynn, (1859) 28 L. J. Q. B. 521) by a third person, but not apparently by one judgment-debtor ; Chapman v. Callis, (1862) 6 L. T. 282.

Attachment of mortgage debt.—It was held that if the property to be attached is a mortgage debt, where the mortgagee is not in possession nor is entitled to possession, it is attachable under this rule and not under r. 54 : Aulia Bibi v. Abu Jafar, 21 A. 405. The question was considered in a recent case in Madras and it has been held that the words "debt not secured by a negotiable instrument" are secured by a hypothecation bond or of execution, a debt due to a judgment-debtor is moveable property within the meaning of the rule. The rule is applicable to moveable property within the meaning of the rule. Order XXI, r. 54 is not applicable to such cases though the General Clauses Act and the T. P. Act speak of such debt as an interest in immoveable property; Nataraja v. South Indian Bank of Tinnevely, 37 M. 51: 10 M. L. T. 503: 2 M. W. N. 590 (Sami Ayyar v. Krishnaswami, 10 M. 169 and the view of the majority in Appaswami v. Scott, 9 M. 5, not followed). See also Venikalakshmi v. Mathurbutham, (1929) M. W. N. 138, which held that a debt under a usufructuary mortgage deed can be attached under Or. XXI, r. 46 as moveable property and not under r. 54 as immoveable property; Sri Ram v. Nanhu Mal, 28 I. C. 274: 7 O. W. N. 944: A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 473. This decision follows and is in agreement with the earlier decisions in Debendra v. Ruplall, 12 C. 546; Kashinath v. Sadasiv, 20 C. 805; Bajinath v. Binoyendra, 6 C. W. N. 5; Baldev Dhanrup v. Ram Chandra, 19 B. 121; Tarvadi v. Bai Kashi, 26 B. 305; Muniappa v. Subramaniya, 18 M. 437 (12 C. 546 and 20 C. 805 approved); Karimunnissa v. Phul Chand, 15 A. 134; Satya Charan v. Madhub, 9 C. W. N. 693; Lal Umrao v. Lal Singh, 22 A. L. J. 840: 80 I. C. 890: A. I. R. 1924 All. 796. The same view has been taken in Chullile v. Nambiar, 27 M. L. J. 239, where it has been held (following 37 M. 51) that the attachment of a mortgage debt should be made under this rule. The fact of the mortgagee being in possession, actual or constructive, of the mortgaged property makes no difference. There is a diversity of judicial opinion on the question; and in another series of cases it has been held that a debt secured by a mortgage of immoveable property cannot be sold in execution under the provisions of the Code applicable to moveable property but that such interest is immoveable property for the purpose of attachment and sale; see Srinath v. Gopal, 9 C. 511: 12 C. L. R. 445; Parashram v. Govind, 21 B. 226; Appasami v. Scott, 9 M. 5; Sheo Charan v. Sheo Sewak, 18 A. 469; Sewa Ram v. Dheru, 18 I. C. 318: 125 P. L. R. 1913. It would appear that the weight of opinion is in favour of the first view. See also Shah Mohammad Yusuf v. Lachminarain, 50 I. C. 157.

A debt secured by a usufructuary mortgage cannot be attached as if it were a simple debt under Or. XXI, r. 46. Where in accordance with the document the mortgagee cannot claim to recover any debt from the mortgagor nor the mortgagor claim to make any payment to the mortgagee, it would seem that the attachment of rights arising under such a document cannot take the form contained in Or. XXI, r. 46, for that form consists of prohibitions from making and receiving payments; it would be meaningless to prohibit persons from making and receiving payments when their relationship is such that no payments are contemplated (35 B. 288, (1918) M. W. N. 672. and 39 M. 389 at 394 rel. on; 27 M. 526 (F. B.). A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 513 and 27 M. L. J. 239 dist.).—Subraya v. Subramania, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 648. There is a distinction between a purely usufructuary right in the judgment-debtor where he cannot realise a debt and the case where the debt is realisable. If a debt is realisable then the procedure under Or. XXI, r. 46 is the correct procedure to apply. In the case of the former or a purely usufructuary mortgage, the proper procedure for attachment is under Or. XXI, r. 54.—Gajadhar v. Bechraj, 130 I. C. 265: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 63; Monilal v. Motibhai, 35 B. 288 (26 B. 305 explained).

A debt secured by a mortgage of property under the management of the Court of Wards should be attached and sold by the Court within whose jurisdiction the Manager of the Court of Wards resides and not by the Court in whose jurisdiction the mortgaged property is situated, because what is attached and sold is not a mortgage-debt but a right to receive payment from the said manager (39 C. 104 and 4 P. L. J. 141 rel. on).—Khantabala v. Baijnath, A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 148.

When a debt which is not secured by a negotiable instrument is attached under this section a claim may be preferred by a third party and may be investigated under r. 58; Chidambara v. Ramasamy, 27 M. 67.

It was held under the corresponding section in the Code of 1877 (S. 268, under which an attachment could not remain in force for more than six months) that bonds on which recovery will be time-barred before the date on which a sale can be legally made, cannot be made available for the satisfaction of a judgment-creditor's debt, by a Court of Small Causes; Nursingdas v. Tulsiram, 2 B 558.

See notes to r. 53, under the heading "Attachment of Mortgage Debt."

Shares—A deed of transfer of shares in a Company which does not comply with the formalities prescribed by the Indian Companies Act and the Articles of Association of the Company, is invalid as against a person who has purchased the shares in execution of a decree against the share-holder; Nagabhushanam v. Rama Chandra, 45 M. 537; 70 I. C. 659; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 241.

Other moveable property not in possession of judgment-debtor.—This rule provides for the attachment, in execution of a money-decree, of moveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor in the possession of a third person, while r. 52, applies to a case where the property of the judgment-debtor is deposited in or in the custody of any Court or public officer.—Padmanund v. Chundi Dat, 1 C. W. N. 170.

Rule 46 provides means for dealing by the attaching officer with goods which are in the physical possession of a third party whether or not the ownership of the goods be in the judgment-debtor or in the third party and whether or not the legal right to possession be in the judgment-debtor or in the third party. It is only intended to deal with the case of physical possession by a party other than the judgment-debtor. The rule does not authorise the attaching officer to seal up premises other than that used by the judgment-debtor—Nagarmal v. Emperor, 11 P. 493.

Money deposited as security for the performance of the duties of a servant may be attached subject to the employer's lien, but cannot be sold or realised until the deposit is at the disposal of the judgment-debtor freed from the lien; Karuthan v. Subramanya, 9 M. 203.

Money deposited with a third person for a special purpose which fails, is attachable in his hands; Stumore v. Campbell, (1892) 1 Q. B. 314 C. A. Money standing at a bank to the judgment-debtor's credit is attachable; see Rogers v. Whiteley, (1892) A. C. 118. Money placed on deposit at a bank is not an attachable debt until notice of withdrawal has been given; Cowley v. Taylor, (1908) 121 L. T. J. 569. Money is not attachable in the hands of the police, which was found upon a judgment-debtor when arrested, who is afterwards convicted; Jervis v. Peel, (1885) 1 T. L. R. 306.

If the moveable property such as money, against which execution is sought, is not within the territorial limits of the executing Court, the only other way in which the Court may have jurisdiction to execute the decree is when the person against whom the execution is sought resides within the jurisdiction of the Court. Where neither of these circumstances exist, the proper course would be for the Court to transfer the case under S. 39. An attachment and sale in contravention of this is invalid.—Hari Das v. National Insurance Co. 35 C. W. N. 1096.

Form of prohibitory order.—See App. E, Form No. 17, First Schedule.

Unlike a garnishee order nisi in England is of a purely negative character. It does not in from paying, and his debtor from receiving Official Receiver of Secunderabad v. Lakshmi N 297 : (1931) M. W. N. 444 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 474 : 61 M. L. J. 774.

Where garnishee denies debt.—He cannot be asked to pay; Kishen v. Bhowya, 18 W. R. 40.

If the property of which the sale is sought, is a debt, and the Court receives notice from the alleged debtor that no debt exists, the Court should satisfy itself as to the existence or otherwise of the debt, and, if it comes to the conclusion that no debt exists, it should abstain from proceeding to sale.—Hari Lal Amthabhai v. Abhesang, 4 B. 323.

When a debt alleged to be due by a third party (garnishee) to the judgment-debtor has been attached by a prohibitory order, the Court may make an order to pay the debt to the judgment-creditor in case he admits the debt; but if he denies the debt, there is no other course open to the judgment-creditor than to have it sold or to have a Receiver appointed; Toolsa v. Antone, 11 B. 448; Maharaja of Benares v. Patraj Kunwar, 28 A. 262: (1905) A. W. N. 277; Nanak Chand v. Chheda Lal, 97 I. C. 467: A. I. R. 1927 All. 41; Ma Saw Yin v. Hockto, 4 R. 100: A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 175: 97 I. C. 247.

Where the debt is not due, there is nothing to be attached.—Webb v. Stenton, 11 Q. B. D. 518 C. A. Where in spite of the objection of the garnishee that nothing is due from him, the order of attachment is made absolute, the order is not conclusive of the rights of the garnishee for the simple reason that it is not the business of the Courts in attachment proceedings to determine whether the debts are really due. All that the Court can do is to attach the debt at its face value and the effect of attachment would be to prevent any subsequent transfer.—Seshagiri v. Ramachandra, (1931) M. W. N. 259; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 570; Alwar v. Subramania, 34 L. W. 906; 61 M. L. J. 863. If the garnishee denies the debt he can make an application under r. 58 of Or. XXI and the Court can pass an order under r. 63 (38 B. 631 rel. on).—Maruti v. Ramchandra, 133 I. C. 248; 33 Bom. L. R. 396; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 288.

"May pay into Court"—Where attached debt is not paid into Court.—A sued B and obtained attachment before judgment of a debt on the allegation that B was the real creditor. The debt was ostensibly due from C to D. The Court issued a prohibitory order on C and called on him to pay the money into Court which he did, on a conditional order that it would he retained till the adjudication of the question whether B or D was beneficially interested therein. A obtained an ex parte decree against B and withdrew the money. D subsequently sued C and got judgment. C now sued A to recover the money withdrawn. It was incumbent on the Court to enquire as to who was the real creditor of C and it had full authority to compel the defendant (A) to bring back the money; Harinath v. Haradas, 20 C. W. N. 188: 23 C. L. J. 163.

Where the debt was fraudulently sold at an undervalue with the connivance of the judgment-debtor, although the garnishee was willing to pay the money into Court, it was held that the remedy of the decree-holders claiming rateable distribution was in a suit for compensation.—Nanak Chand v. Chheda Lal, 97 I. C. 467 · A. I. R. 1927 All. 41.

A voluntary payment by a debtor of his own choice and at his own risk, into a Court of inferior jurisdiction with full knowledge of the attachment by a higher Court will not discharge him; Ramasamy v. Chakrapany, 17 M. L. J. 488.

Where A has been ordered to pay money into Court, a third party cannot be compelled by garnishee proceedings to pay into Court a debt owing from him to A; In re Greer, (1893) 2 Ch. 217.

Where a debt attached under this rule was not paid into Court, the Court cannot call on the person to pay or to show cause why he should not pay his debt into Court. The Court is bound to satisfy itself that a debt is due; the debt then must be sold and delivery made; Siriah v. Muckanachary, 10 M. 194.

It has been held in Bombay that the Court may make an order for payment of the debt into Court, which the person is to obey, as also an order for payment to the judgment-creditor; Toolsa v. Antone, 11 B. 483.

Payment out of Court.—Where a debt, attached under this rule was paid out of Court to the only person who, had the money due been paid into Court as required, would have been entitled to withdraw the said money from Court, and such payment was certified to the Court, it was held that this amounted to a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this rule; Fida Husain v. Moula Bakhsh, 21 A. 145.

Garnishee's right to set-off.—If a cross-debt is due to the garnishee at the date of the attachment, from the judgment-debtor, the garnishee has a right of set-off; and the equity can be set up without payment of Court-fee; Tayaballi v. Almaram, 38 B. 631, 636 (Tapp v. Jones, L. R. 10 Q. B. 591, 593 followed).

Service of prohibitory order.—When the service of the prohibitory order was effected by affixing it to the wall of the dwelling-house of the person on whom it was intended to serve, it was not a sufficient service. It ought to have been served by delivery, or by registered letter.—Gobind v. Kherode, 10 B. L. R. Ap. 12. Until notice is given, the debtor is bound to pay the debt to the creditor, and it is no part of the duty of the debtor to make enquiries whether his creditor is or is not entitled to receive money.—Thakoor v. Luchmeeput, 7 W. R. 10.

Where the Company, being a private one, has no Secretary, the Managing Director is the proper officer of the Company within the rule, and the prohibitory order served on the attorney of such a person is duly served though it is addressed to the Secretary of the Company.—Moola v. Chartered Bank, 5 R. 695 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 36 : 107 I. C. 860.

Notice to debtor.—Where the decree-holder attached certain money held in deposit by him on behalf of the judgment-debtor, no notice on the judgment-debtor is necessary as the property was not in his possession; Rajab Ali v. Upper India Copper Mills Co., 15 O. C. 289.

"Copy of order shall be affixed in Court-house."—Omission to comply with this invalidates an attachment as against a subsequent assignment; Satya Charn v. Madhub, 9 C. W. N. 693.

Where the legal mode has not been followed, there is no legal attachment, and a conviction for dishonest removal of property attached is bad.—Mya Gyok v. Emperor, A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 285 : 117 I. C. 243.

Procedure where debtor of attached debt admits liability but does not pay—The procedure to be followed when a debtor who admits that he owes money to a judgment-debtor, but does not pay it into Court is indicated in Or. XXI, r 46 (a), and was added to the Code by the Chief Court of Lower Burma. All that can be done is to warn him that if he fails to pay the amount due by him, he may be subject to a suit; P. L. M. Firm v. Daisy M. Stacey, 33 I. C. 169.

47. Where the property to be attached consists of the share or interest of the judgment-debtor in moveable property belonging to him and another as co-owners, the attachment shall be made by a notice to the judgment-debtor prohibiting him from transferring the share or interest or charging it in any way. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Addition.—This is a new rule.

This new provision has been made because a share or interest in moveable property is incapable of actual seizure. There is nothing in Or. XXI, r. 60 preventing the Court from releasing the entire property from attachment. Where on objection under Or. XXI, r 58 the Court finds that the claimant has a half share in the moveable property attached it would be the better course for the Court to release the entire property and to proceed by way of attachment under Or. XXI, r. 47.—Rajendra v Chairman, Jessore District Board, A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 408

Where the undivided interest of a co-parcener in moveable property belonging to a Hindu joint family is sought to be proceeded against to recover a fine levied by a Criminal Court the proper procedure is that prescribed by Or. XXI, r. 47. The Court can either appoint a Receiver or issue a prohibitory order in respect of the delinquent's share, but it cannot attach such property by way of seizure.—In re Marina Narasama, 55 M. 1041 : 138 I. C. 548 : (1932) M. W. N. 457 : A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 538 : 63 M. L. J. 142.

48. (1) Where the property to be attached is the salary or allowances of a public officer or of a servant of a railway company or local authority, the Court, whether the judgment-debtor or the disbursing officer is or is not within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction, may order that the amount shall, subject to the provisions of section 60, be withheld from such salary or allowances either in one payment or by monthly instalments as the Court may direct; and, upon notice of the order to such officer as the Government may, by notification in the Gazette of India or in the local official Gazette, as the case may be, appoint in this behalf, the officer or other person whose duty it is to disburse such salary or allowances shall withhold and remit to the Court the amount due under the order, or the monthly instalments, as the case may be.

Attachment of salary or allowances of public officer or servant of railway company or local authority.

(2) Where the attachable proportion of such salary or allowances is already being withheld and remitted to a Court in pursuance of a previous and unsatisfied order of attachment, the officer appointed by the Government in this behalf shall forthwith return the subsequent order to the Court issuing it with a full statement of all the particulars of the existing attachment.

(3) Every order made under this rule, unless it is returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (2), shall, without further notice or other process, bind the Government or the railway company or local authority, as the case may be, while the judgment-debtor is within the local limits to which this Code for the time being extends and while he is beyond those limits if he is in receipt of any salary or allowances payable out of His Majesty's Indian revenues or the funds of a railway company carrying on business in any part of British India or local authority in British India; and the Government or the railway company or local authority, as the case may be, shall be liable for any sum paid in contravention of this rule.

Attachment of salary of public officer, etc.—This rule is not altogether new. It was embodied in the provisions contained in the last three paras. of S. 269, C. P. Code, 1882, with considerable additions and alterations. It is on the lines of S. 151 (3) of the Army Act (44 and 45 Vict., c. 58) which applied only to officers of the Army. It has been made applicable to all public officers and servants of Railway Companies or public authorities.

Under the law as it existed before the Code of 1909, it was held that the salary of a public officer or Railway servant, could not be attached, unless the disbursing officer was within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court executing the decree; see Rango v. Bal Krishna, 12 B. 44; Sayad Khan v. Davies, 23 B. 193; Abdul Gafur v. Albyn, 30 C. 713; 7 C. W. N. 821 (6 A. 43 and 3 C. L. R. 30 followed). This led to considerable difficulties in the execution of such decrees, and in most cases yielded no result although the expense was great. The Legislature has by this rule provided a less expensive and at the same time a more effective remedy.

The Court has now full power to attach the salary of a public officer or of a Railway servant, whether the disbursing officer or the judgment-debtor is or is not within the local limits of its jurisdiction. It overrides the decisions noted above. A Court to which a decree is transferred for execution has the same power.—Kunwar Lal v. Lala Beni, 1 Luck. 46; 91 I. C. 1043; A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 112.

This rule as well as r. 3 is an exception to the general rule that a Court cannot attach the property of a judgment-debtor situate beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court executing the decree. See Begg Dunlop & Co. v. Jagannath, 39 C. 109, noted under r. 46.

The salary of a public officer is to be attached under this rule and not under r. 52 which does not allow of an anticipatory attachment of money expected to reach the hands of a public officer, but applies only to moneys actually in his hands—Tulaji v. Balabhai, 22 B. 39.

It does not apply to the wages of persons who are in private service.—Byramji v. Virasami Mudali, 21 M. 393. It does not apply to persons who are in private service.—Byramji, 13.

Where money deposited with a Railway Company by one of its servants as a guarantee for the due performance of his duties, is attached by a judgment-creditor of such a servant, the creditor is not entitled to have his decree satisfied out of the deposit but is entitled to a stop-order and also to payment of the interest, if any, due by the company on such deposit to the servant.—Karuthan v. Subramanya, 9 M. 203.

A compulsory deposit under the Provident Funds Act (IX of 1897) is not liable to be attached under this rule—Veerachand v. B. B. & C. I. Ry. Co., 29 B. 259.

Extent of attachment.—See S. 60 (h), (i).

An order on the 23rd of a month attaching the judgment-debtor's pay for the whole of the month, is illegal as the pay that would fall due on the first of each month is not a debt on the date of the order, nor can the pay of the 23 days be attached as an employee engaged by the month is not entitled to wages for the current month if he wrongfully leaves employment during the month and so the right to receive pay for 23 days is contingent on the due performance of service for the entire month (27 C. 38 and 13 C. 80 rel. on).—Byramji v. Khemkaran, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 333.

Pay or pension for the month is due on the last day of the month even though it is not paid till the first of the next month and can be attached on the last day of the month.—Imperial Bank of India v. Muthiya, 126 I. C. 643; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 161.

Sub-rule (2).—In case of a previous attachment, the return of the subsequent order suggests that there can be no rateable distribution of the salary already under attachment. The attachable portion can be attached again, after the satisfaction of the decree in execution of which it was attached before.

It has however been held that where the salary of a Government officer is once attached and then another attachment takes place, the party attaching subsequently is entitled to claim rateable distribution under S. 73 because it amounts to assets within the meaning of that section. There is no inconsistency between the explanation to S. 64 and Cl. (2) of this rule; Velchand v. Nussan, 14 Bom. L. R. 633.

Sub-rule (3)—indicates that if the judgment-debtor lives beyond the limits of British India, and receives salary or emoluments from the Indian revenues or from the funds of a Railway Company in British India, they will also be available and unless the order is returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-rule (2) it will bind the Government or the Company.

When an officer commanding, refuses to comply with an order under this rule, the Civil Court should proceed to recover from Government the sums which should have been paid from the judgment-debtor's pay leaving the Government to settle up as it pleases with its officer and the judgment-debtor; Oakes & Co. v. Discarrie, 5 I. C. 802: 10 P. R. 1910. No order can be made against Government without bringing it on the record. Therefore Government money cannot be attached on an application in which the debtor alone is impleaded; Nadar v. Biddulph, 14 I. C. 737: 93 P. R. 1912

49. (1) Save as otherwise provided by this rule, property belonging to a partnership shall not be attached or sold in execution of a decree other than a decree passed against the firm or against the partners in the firm as such.

(2) The Court may, on the application of the holder of a decree against a partner, make an order charging the interest of such partner in the partnership property and profits with payment of the amount due under the decree, and may, by the same or a subsequent order, appoint a receiver of the share of such partner in the profits (whether already declared or accruing) and of any other money which may be coming to him in respect of the partnership, and direct accounts and inquiries and make an order for the sale of such interest or other orders as might have been directed or made if a charge had been made in favour of the decree-holder by such partner, or as the circumstances of the case may require.

(3) The other partner or partners shall be at liberty at any time to redeem the interest charged or, in the case of a sale being directed, to purchase the same.

(4) Every application for an order under sub-rule (2) shall be served on the judgment-debtor and on his partners or such of them as are within British India.

(5) Every application made by any partner of the judgment-debtor under sub-rule (3) shall be served on the decree-holder and on the judgment-debtor, and on such of the other partners as do not join in the application and as are within British India.

(6) Service under sub-rule (4) or sub-rule (5) shall be deemed to be service on all the partners, and all orders made on such applications shall be similarly served. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Addition.—This rule is new. Sub-rules (1), (2) and (3) have been taken from S. 23, English Partnership Act, 1890 (33 and 54 Vict., c. 39), with variations, and the rest from Or. XLVI, rr. 1-A and 1-B of the English Rules.

"Shall not be attached or sold in execution of a decree, etc."—This rule provides that no execution can issue against any partnership property except on a decree passed against the firm or against the partners of the firm as such; Karimbhai v. Conservator of Forests, 4 B 222; but the decree-holder of a partner in a firm can under sub-rule (2) apply for an order charging the interest of such partner and for the appointment of a Receiver. The share of a partner in the partnership business is liable to attachment. Jagat v. Iswar Chandra, 20 C. 693. The Court cannot, however, appoint the Receiver as the manager of the entire partnership which will involve the consequences of the dispossessing of all the other partners. It is only the interest of the partner in the partnership property which vests in the Receiver and which can be dealt with by the Court and not the entire partnership itself.—Lachmi Narain v. Pearey Lal, 30 A L J. 516 A I. R. 1932 All. 469.

"Against the partners in the firm as such."—These words in sub-rule (1) do not occur in the English Act. They are added to make it clear that this rule is applicable even if the decree is passed not against the firm but the partners as such. Execution under this rule can therefore issue only when the decree is against the firm or against the partners in the firm as such. But a judgment-creditor of a partner in a firm may apply for an order charging that partner's interest.

Decree against individual partner.—A decree against an individual partner can be made; such a decree is contemplated by Or. XXI, r. 49, C. P. Code, and the Court can also direct accounts to be taken; Krishnadhan v. Sanyasi, 23 C. W. N. 500 29 C. L. J. 280. An assignee of a share in a partnership who has also obtained a decree against a partner cannot (except to the limited extent provided in r. 49) force the other partners to account especially when the partnership is or has been dissolved.—Goa Petha v. R. 1932 Pat. 15: 12 P. L. T. 361.

"Direct accounts."—The discretion given to direct accounts should only be exercised under special circumstances, e. g., with a view to dissolution; Brown Janson & Co. v. Hutchinson & Co., 1895, 2 Q. C. 126.

50. (1) Where a decree has been passed against a firm, execution may be granted—

firm.

(a) against any property of the partnership;

(b) against any person who has appeared in his own name under rule 6 or rule 7 of Order XXX or who has admitted on the pleadings that he is, or who has been adjudged to be, a partner;

(c) against any person who has been individually served as a partner with a summons and has failed to appear :

Provided that nothing in this sub-rule shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect the provisions of section 247 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872.

(2) Where the decree-holder claims to be entitled to cause the decree to be executed against any person other than such a person as is referred to in sub-rule (1), clauses (b) and (c), as being a partner in the firm, he may apply to the Court which passed the decree for leave, and where the liability is not disputed, such Court may grant such leave, or, where such liability is disputed, may order that the liability of such person be tried and determined in any manner in which any issue in a suit may be tried and determined.

(3) Where the liability of any person has been tried and determined under sub-rule (2), the order made thereon shall have the same force and be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise as if it were a decree.

(4) Save as against any property of the partnership, a decree against a firm shall not release, render liable or otherwise affect any partner therein unless he has been served with a summons to appear and answer.

[New.]

COMMENTARY.

Similarity.—This rule corresponds with Or. XLVIII-A, r. 8 of the English Rules.

"Where a decree has been passed against a firm."—Execution under this rule can only be granted where a decree has been passed against a firm in the firm's name.

This rule applies to an award obtained without the intervention of the Court and made a rule of the Court under the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act.—Firm of Manghirmal v. Akbarali, 112 I. C. 126: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 28; Bombay Co. v. Kahan Singh, 134 I. C. 1026: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 736; Firm of Shiechandra v. Shivaldas, 131 I. C. 712: A. I. R. 1931 Sind 82.

Sub-rule (1).—Execution under this rule may be granted against the partnership property or against the partners themselves. In the latter case, their separate property will be liable. Where a decree has been passed against a firm, execution will be granted as a matter of course against a person referred to in Cls. (b) and (c) of sub-rule (1), but where the decree-holder claims to execute it against any person other than those mentioned in Cls. (b) and (c) as being a partner, he is enabled by sub-rule (2) to apply for leave, and that sub-rule provides the procedure then to be applied; Jagat Chandra v. Gunny Hajee, 53 C. 914: 30 C. W. N. 11: 91 I. C. 824: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 271.

Where a judgment is against a firm, execution may issue only against any property of the partnership, so far as partners, who are not individually served and those who have not appeared, are concerned; Sahib Thambi v. Hamid, 2 M. W. N. 534.

In a suit against a firm, the names of the partners were not disclosed in the plaint, but summons was served by order of Court on B as a partner of the firm. A decree was passed against the firm—Held that execution could be proceeded with against B under sub-rule (1), Cl. (c); Baishnab Charan v. Bank of Bengal, 19 C. L. J. 581. Per Beachcroft, J.—Sub-rule (2) is only applicable in the absence of the conditions in sub-rule (1). But see Jetha Devji & Co. v. Javhersing, 26 S. L. R. 228, where it has been held that a person who has been served as a partner and has entered his appearance under protest denying that he is a partner is not entitled to an issue in the suit to try the question of his partnership; the proper stage at which the question can be determined is after the passing of the decree, in execution proceedings.

But a decree against a firm as such will not affect a partner who has not been served with summons to appear and answer so far as his other property is concerned.—Jitraj v. Bhagavan Das, 68 I. C. 627: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 66: 24 Bom. L. R. 1037. Where summons in a suit against a firm was duly served upon a person who had a power of attorney executed by the partners of the firm which empowered him to act not only on behalf of the firm but on behalf of each partner individually and jointly, service must be deemed to have been made on each partner individually. In such a case the decree passed in the suit against the firm can be executed against the partners personally without the leave of the Court under this rule.—Lal Chand v. Firm of Dwarka Das Badri Prasad, 109 I. C. 528: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 528.

Sub-rule (2).—Execution by leave.—Sub-rule (2) applies to the case of persons against whom a decree-holder seeks to execute the decree other than the persons mentioned in Cls. (b) and (c) of sub-rule (1). Clauses (b) and (c) refer to persons who have appeared or who have been individually served as partners and who have failed to appear. The intention of sub-rule (2) is that when an application for leave mentioned in the sub-rule is made, it should be on notice to the person who is alleged to be liable as a partner; he is to be served with a summons and called upon to answer the application. Then if the Court finds that the liability is not disputed, the Court may grant leave to execute the decree against the person who does not dispute the liability. If the person who is sought to be made liable as a partner, having been served with the summons and having appeared to answer, disputes his liability, then the issue is to be tried in any manner in which any issue in a suit may be tried and determined. "In my opinion the meaning of sub-rules (2) and (4) is that a decree obtained against the firm cannot be forced except as to partnership property against a person alleged to be a partner, and against whom an application has been made under sub-rule (2), unless he has been served with a summons to appear and answer the application and has had an opportunity of disputing his liability as a partner if he desires to do so."—Per Sanderson, C. J., in Jagat Chandra v. Gunny Hajee, 53 C. 214 : 91 I. C. 824 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 271. The executing Court would have power to determine the question under this sub-rule whether a person is a partner in a firm or not.—E. D. Sassoon v. Shiyji, 115 I. C. 536 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 228. Where a party elects to go against a firm, the question whether a particular person is or is not a partner of such firm and is bound by the decree or the award as the case may be, is a question which can be dealt with either in execution proceedings or in a separate suit.—Babu Kirparam v. Jawahar, 34 Bom. L. R. 737 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 375. The decree-holder, however, is not entitled to cause the decree to be executed against a partner who left the firm to the knowledge of the plaintiff before the institution of the suit. Leave cannot be granted in such case, in view of the proviso to Or. XXX, r. 3. If there has been a dissolution to the knowledge of the plaintiff, he cannot make an out-going partner liable unless he serves the writ upon him. If he omits to do this, and applies under this rule for leave to issue execution on the ground that he was a partner when the debt was contracted, the Court will refuse to issue execution against such partner because he was not made liable by being served with the writ; Wigram v. Cox, 1894, 1 Q. B. 792. The wording of sub-rule (2) is wide enough to cover the case of a deceased partner; Jivraj v. Bhagvandas, 24 Bom. L. R. 1037 : 68 I. C. 627 : A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 66. In such a case a combined notice under sub-rule (2) and Or. XXI, r. 22 may be given; Jagat v. Gunny, 53 C. 214 : 30 C. W. N. 11 : 91 I. C. 824 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 271. But see Mahmud Yusuf v. Mahammad Sadulla, noted under the next heading. If a decree against a firm makes a partner personally liable under sub-rule (1) (a) or (1) (b), it may be executed against his legal representative after notice under r. 22—Jagat Chandra v. Gunny, 53 C. 214, 225 : 30 C. W. N. 11 : 91 I. C. 824 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 271.

Rule 50 (2) applies only where members of a partnership who have not been impleaded as such are sought to be arrested in execution of a decree against the firm; Bank of Bengal v. Ramanadhan, 28 I. C. 260 : (1915) M. W. N. 180. It is intended to apply to cases where in a decree obtained against a firm, it is sought to make a person alleged to be a partner in the firm personally liable—Lal Chand v. Ghanaya Lal, 120 I. C. 611 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 243. This rule is not controlled by Or. XXX, r. 2 (3).—Natwarial v. Sassoon & Co., 51 B. 794 : 103 I. C. 256 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 447 : 29 Bom. L. R. 921.

Notwithstanding the wording of Or. XXI, r. 50, a Court to which a decree is sent for execution has power to decide whether a particular person against whom it is desired to proceed is a partner or not. Where a decree has been passed against a firm and an application is made to execute it against a particular person as an individual partner of that firm, no separate application for leave to execute the decree against the partner need be put in as the application for execution against that particular person necessarily implies such a prayer for leave to proceed against him as an individual partner.—Bombay Co. v. Kahan Singh, 13 L. 327 : 134 I. C. 1026 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 736.

No doubt when an award is filed in Court it becomes enforceable as a decree, but the proceedings leading up to the decree cannot be said to be a suit so as to attract the provisions of Or. XXX or Or. XXI, r. 50 (1) (c) ; and consequently before a partner can be proceeded against in execution as an individual partner, the Court passing the decree in accordance with the award or the Court to which a decree has been transferred for execution, must decide the liability of the person as an individual partner.—Ibid.

A proceeding in which leave is applied for to execute the decree under r. 50 (2) is not a suit but is an application in execution, and it can be made at any time during which the decree remains capable of being executed. A decree-holder can proceed first against the partnership property and need not apply for leave under sub-rule (2) of r. 50, against any individual partner until he has exhausted all his remedies against the partnership property. When these remedies are exhausted he can then apply for execution against one or all of the individual partners, at the same time obtaining leave, if necessary, under sub-rule (2), and he could do this even if more than three years have elapsed since the passing of the decree, provided always that the execution has not become barred in any other way —Ibid. See also Kanji v. Jivaraj, 123 I. C. 17 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 412.

The executing Court to which the decree has been transferred has the power to grant leave to execute the decree against any particular person as a partner.—Abdul Hamid v. Dhanpat, 131 I. C. 376 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 507. But see Shivchandra v. Shivaldas, 131 I. C. 712 : A. I. R. 1931 Sind 82, where it has been held that an application for leave to execute a decree is in no sense an application for execution of the decree, it is only a subsidiary or preliminary application which should be made to the Court which passed the decree and not the Court to which the decree is transferred for execution. The application under Cl (2) for leave to execute is also made under r. 50, Cl. (2) is not barred so long as the decree against the firm is alive —Bhaqvan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom L. R. 1112.

The words " the Court which passed the decree " do not include the executing Court. They refer to the original Court which actually passed the decree (27 C. 488 and 25 A. 443 follid. ; 61 I. C. 401 dissented from).—Kalu Ram v. Firm of Sheonand, 11 P. 580.

Representatives of a partner dying before institution of suit can be proceeded against in execution of such decree.—Where a decree is obtained against the firm in a suit brought against the firm, the legal representatives of a person who was a partner in such firm at the time when the cause of action arose, but who died before the institution of the suit, can be proceeded against in execution of such decree under Or. XXI, r. 50 (2); Firm of Gokaldas Khataoo v. Lachmandas, A. I. R. 1927 Sind 130 (F. B.); 23 S. L. R. 137. The sons of a deceased partner are liable for debts to the extent of their father's assets.—Rajmal v. Isherdas, 107 I. C. 221. A Full Bench of the Madras High Court has held to the contrary that the legal personal representatives are not liable; sub-rule (2) would apply only when the decree is sought to be executed against a person as being a partner in the firm. Order XXX, r. 4 only gives the legal representatives a right to apply to be a party to the suits in the name of firms. It has been enacted in the Code evidently to obviate difficulties that might otherwise be suggested having regard to the provisions of S. 45 of the Contract Act. But it does not enable a decree-holder to claim the right claimed in the present case—Mahomed Yusuf v. Mahammad Sadulla, 52 M. 885: 119 I. C. 603: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 733: 57 M. L. J. 344 (F. B.). Sub-rule (2) is subject to Or. XXX, r. 3 and it does not empower the Court to give leave to execute the decree against the legal representatives.—Mathuradas v. Ebrahim, 51 B. 986: 105 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 591.

"Execution may be granted."—As to subsequent proceedings, see Or. XXX, rr. 6-8. Where judgment is recovered by a firm suing in the firm's name, and afterwards one partner dies, the surviving partner may issue execution by leave, Davis & Son v. Andrews, (1884) W. N. 94.

"Against any person who has appeared, etc."—As to the effect of entry of appearance, see Or. XXX, rr. 6-8.

"Has failed to appear."—Where one person is trading as a firm, execution cannot issue against him under Cl. (c) unless he has been individually served (either personally or by substituted service) and the judgment in default is based upon such service or leave has been obtained under this rule. See Or. XXX, r. 10.

"Claims to be entitled to cause the decree to be executed."—See notes under the heading "Execution by leave."

Where such liability is disputed.—This rule is to be read subject to the provisions of Or. XXX. It is not open to a partner, against whom execution is applied for of a decree obtained against the firm, to deny in the first instance that he is a partner and then if that be found against, to plead, in the alternative, that none of the partners had any authority to enter into the transaction which gave rise to the liability.—Malabar Forest and Rubber Co. Ltd., In re, 34 Bom. L. R. 617. In the absence of fraud or collusion on the part of other partners resulting in a decree against the firm it is not open to any partner who has not been served in the said suit to sue for a declaration "that he is not a partner in the firm." The proper course for him is to dispute the liability made under Or. XXI, r. 50 (2).—

The liability can be disputed, not only by proving that he was not a partner at all, but on the basis of any appropriate defence, as for instance that though he is a partner, he is not bound by the reference to arbitration consented to by his co-partner and the award or the decree passed in pursuance thereof.—Ibid.

Minor partner.—Where a decree has been passed against a firm having a minor partner who is admitted to the benefits of a partnership, execution may be granted against the property of the firm including the share of such minor partner in the partnership property, but it cannot be executed against the separate property of the minor, see Sanyasi v. Krishnadhan, 49 I. A. 108: 49 C. 560 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 237.

Sub-rule (3).—An ex parte order granting leave to apply for execution is not a decree nor has it the force of a decree because sub-rule (3) indicates that only such order granting leave as is passed after dispute and after the question has been tried and determined as if it were an issue in a suit, is to have the force of a decree; G. Atherton v. S. Habib Baksh, 27 A. L. J. 553: A. I. R. 1929 All. 390: 115 I. C. 865.

A proceeding in which leave is applied for to execute a decree under r. 50 (2) is not a suit within the meaning of S. 33 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1892—Kanjiv. Jivraj, 128 I. C. 17: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 412

An appeal against an order under Or. XXI, r. 50 (3) requires an ad valorem fee—Punjab National Bank v. Ranchoredas, 127 I. C. 704: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 255.

Sub-rule (4).—"The summons to appear and answer" mentioned in this sub-rule means a summons or a notice to appear and answer the decree-holder's application for leave mentioned in sub-rule (2). The object of sub-rule (4) is to give the person, against whom the decree-holder seeks to execute his decree as an alleged partner, an opportunity of disputing his liability as a partner if he desires to do so; Jagat v. Gunny, 53 C. 214: 91 I. C. 824: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 271; Jivraj v. Bhagvandas, 24 Bom. L. R. 1037: 68 I. C. 627: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 66; E. D. Sassoon v. Shujit, 115 I. C. 536: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 228; Mathura Das v. Ebrahim, 51 B. 986: 105 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 581: 29 Bom. L. R. 1296

Insolvency of firm.—The insolvency of a firm after the passing of the decree is no bar to execution of the decree against any individual partner who was served with the summons; Vaishno Das v. Tirath Das, 89 I. C. 138: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 379: 7 L. L. J. 165.

deposited in a Court, nor in the custody of a public officer, the attachment shall be made by actual seizure, and the instrument shall be brought into Court and held subject to further orders of the Court. [S. 271.]

COMMENTARY.

A mere prohibitory order will not constitute a valid attachment of a negotiable instrument and hence S. 64 of the Code will not have the effect of invalidating an endorsee's title; but if the endorsee was aware of the prohibitory order and yet fraudulently took an endorsement he will not be protected.—Subramania v. Chokkalinga, 46 M. 415: 72 I. C. 189: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 317: 44 M. L. J. 206. See also Namagiri v. Muthu Velappa, 56 M. L. J. 70: 111 I. C. 887: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 940.

52. Where the property to be attached is in the custody of any Court or public officer, the attachment shall be made by a notice to such Court or officer, requesting that such property, and any interest or dividend becoming payable thereon, may be held subject to the further orders of the Court from which the notice is issued :

Attachment of property in custody of Court or public officer. Provided that, where such property is in the custody of a Court, any question of title or priority arising between the decree-holder and any other person, not being the judgment-debtor, claiming to be interested in such property by virtue of any assignment, attachment or otherwise, shall be determined by such Court. [S. 271.]

COMMENTARY.

Attachment of negotiable instrument.—The proper mode of attaching a promissory note is by its actual seizure and not by the issue of a prohibitory order; Subramania v. Chokkalinga, 46. M. 415; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 317; 44 M. L. J. 206; 72 I. C. 189; Namagiri v. Muthu Velappa, 56 M. L. J. 73.

"Property to be attached."—A judgment-debtor was entitled to a life-interest in certain trust funds of which the Official Trustee was the trustee. The life-interest was attached by a decree-holder by giving notice to the Official Trustee but there were no funds in the hands of the Official Trustee which would have been attachable under r. 46, held that the interest of the judgment-debtor was not validly attached.—Abdul Lateef v. Doutre, 12 M. 250.

Letters in the Post Office, addressed to certain judgment-debtors, were attached. The day before the attachment, the senders had applied to have the letters returned to them. Held that the letters in the Post Office were held in trust for the judgment-debtor and were, therefore, attachable on the application of the decree-holder.—Narasimhulu v. Adiappa, 13 M. 242.

Property yielding a revenue or producing interest or dividends is within the meaning and contemplation of all garnishee orders under this rule; and such revenue, interest or dividend payable in future can be attached under the same rule; Umabai v. Amritrao, 39 B. 80; 17 Bom. L. R. 133; 29 I. C. 18.

"Custody of Court."—This rule does not allow of an anticipatory attachment of money expected to reach the hands of a public officer, but applies only to moneys actually in his hands.—Tulaji v. Valabhai, 22 B. 39 (followed in Raja Padmanund v. Rama Prasad, 14 C. L. J. 127). The principle of the rule is that what is attached must be something in existence and not merely in futuro; Umabai v. Amritrao, 39 B. 80; 17 Bom. L. R. 133; 29 I. C. 18. See also Thakurdas v. Joseph Iskendar, 44 C. 1072; 25 C. L. J. 595; 21 C. W. N. 887; where all these cases have been followed and discussed. Where the fund consisted of surplus sale proceeds payable to the defendant mortgagor and it was attached before the money was paid into Court; held the attachment was bad as it was made before the money came in the custody of Court; Tiruvengadia v. Tiruvengadia, 26 M. L. J. 364: 24 I. C. 617.

This rule also applies to property in the custody of the same Court which executes the decree; Surjamall v. Ramchandra, 20 C. W. N. 412: 28 I. C. 123.

Where the money was lying in the Court which issues the order of attachment, the order of attachment is a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this rule and the issue of a precept to itself will be a meaningless formality.—Gian Chand v. Gopichand, 108 I. C. 173: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 593.

Property in receiver's hands.—An attachment of money in the hands of the receiver, without previous permission or sanction of the Court, is improper and irregular, as he is an officer of the Court.—Mahommed Zohuruddeen v. Mahommed Noorooddeen, 21 C. 85. See also Khan v. Alli Mahomed, 16 B 577; Natesa v. Govindasami, A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 4. An attachment without such permission is a contempt of the Court.—Paryag Kumar v. Bhudhar, 130 I. C. 836: 12 P. L. T. 318: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 204. See also Durgadutt v. Bholaram, A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 657: 29 Bom. L. R. 409: 102 I. C. 413; Gulamali v. N. H. Moos, 123 I. C. 558: 32 Bom. L. R. 1315. In case of a decree against a firm the assets of which are in the hands of a receiver appointed in a previous partnership suit, the proper course for the decree-holder to follow is to issue a notice to the receiver under this rule and not to ask the Court for a charging order.—Nensukhgavri v. Rajabally, 29 Bom. L. R. 689: 106 I. C. 184: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 405.

A receiver is an officer of the Court and money in his hands is regarded as being in the custody of the Court. Therefore the only Court which has jurisdiction to decide disputes relating to such money is the Court in whose custody the money is and not any other Court; Rani Debendra Bala v. Chandra Sekhar, 35 I. C. 589: 1 P. L. J. 449.

Attachments of dividends in Official Assignee's hands.—The Official Assignee being a public officer within the meaning of S. 2 (17) of the Code, moneys in his hands, payable by way of dividend to a creditor of an insolvent, may be attached in execution of a decree against the creditor under this rule; Hurdayal v. Haji Adam, 49 B. 638: 87 I. C. 1011: A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 344: 27 Bom. L. R. 535.

Determination of question of title or priority.—An attachment under this rule does not confer any priority upon the person at whose instance it was made, since at most it is an injunction relating to the fund; Srikuma Katum Sahiba v. Hajee Mahomed, 38 M. 221: 29 I. C. 239. See also Thakurdas v. Joseph Iskendar, 44 C. 1072: 25 C. L. J. 595: 21 C. W. N. 887. But see Visvanadhan Chetty v. Arunachelam Chetty, 44 M. 100 (F. B.): 60 I. C. 302: 39 M. L. J. 608 which has overruled the case reported in 38 M. 221 and where the case reported in 44 C. 1072 has been dissented from. See also Nachiappa v. Subbier, 46 M. 506: 72 I. C. 820: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 505: 44 M. L. J. 413. The judgment-creditor, who first took out execution against a fund in Court was held entitled to have his decree satisfied to the full

The proviso is merely intended to mean that any question of title or priority is to be determined by the Court in which, or in whose custody the property is, and not by the Court which made the order of attachment. Quære.—Whether an order under this section is final or not; Gopee Nath v. Achcha Bibee, 7 C. 553; 9 C. L. R. 395. Question of priority is not to be determined by a regular suit; Debee Pershad v. Gujadhara, 20 W. R. 73.

Attachment under decree of High Court, of property already attached under decree of Small Cause Court; held that the Small Cause Court was the only Court to decide the question of priority.—Jeynarayan v. Ismail, 19 B. 710. See also Hari Charan v. Kedar Nath, 35 C. W. N. 517 in which 44 M. 100 (F. B.) has been referred to.

A suit will lie to set aside an order such as is contemplated by the proviso to this section; Tikum Singh v. Sheoram Singh, 19 C. 286.

If attached funds are in the hands of the Receiver, the Court in whose custody the money is, is the Court to decide a dispute as to priority between the mortgagee and the holder of a money-decree; Rani Debendra Bala v. Chandra Sekhar, 35 I. C. 589; 1 P. L. J. 449.

For charging order of High Court, see Nensukhagavri v. Rajabally, 106 I. C. 184; A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 405; 29 Bom. L. R. 689.

Effect of attachment under this rule on any previous attachment.—If there was a previous attachment, the mere fact that the respondent by way of abundant caution prayed for formal attachment under this rule, would not take away the effect of the former attachment; Surjamall v. Ramchandra, 20 C. W. N. 412.

53. (1) Where the property to be attached is a decree, either for the payment of money or for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge, the attachment shall be made,—

Attachment of decrees.

(a) if the decrees were passed by the same Court, then by order of such Court, and

(b) if the decree sought to be attached was passed by another Court, then by the issue to such other Court of a notice by the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, requesting such other Court to stay the execution of its decree unless and until—

(i) the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed cancels the notice, or

(ii) the holder of the decree sought to be executed or his judgment-debtor applies to the Court receiving such notice to execute its own decree.

(2) Where a Court makes an order under clause (a) of sub-rule (1), or receives an application under sub-head (ii) of clause (b) of the said sub-rule, it shall, on the application of the creditor who has attached the decree or his judgment-debtor, proceed to execute the attached decree and apply the net proceeds in satisfaction of the decree sought to be executed.

(3) The holder of a decree sought to be executed by the attachment of another decree of the nature specified in sub-rule (1) shall be deemed to be the representative of the holder of the attached decree and to be entitled to execute such attached decree in any manner lawful for the holder thereof.

(4) Where the property to be attached in the execution of a decree is a decree other than a decree of the nature referred to in sub-rule (1), the attachment shall be made, by a notice by the Court which passed the decree sought to be executed, to the holder of the decree sought to be attached, prohibiting him from transferring or charging the same in any way; and, where such decree has been passed by any other Court, also by sending to such other Court a notice to abstain from executing the decree sought to be attached until such notice is cancelled by the Court from which it was sent.

(5) The holder of a decree attached under this rule shall give the Court executing the decree such information and aid as may reasonably be required.

(6) On the application of the holder of a decree sought to be executed by the attachment of another decree, the Court making an order of attachment under this rule shall give notice of such order to the judgment-debtor bound by the decree attached; and no payment or adjustment of the attached decree made by the judgment-debtor in contravention of such order after receipt of notice thereof, either through the Court or otherwise, shall be recognized by any Court so long as the attachment remains in force.

COMMENTARY.

... responds to S. 273, C. P. Code,
The most important change is
"ment of a mortgage or charge"

in sub rule (1). The present rule has been made applicable to money-decrees as well as to mortgage-decrees. The addition seems to have been made to meet those cases, in which it was held that a decree upon a mortgage is not a money-decree within the meaning of S. 273. It makes obsolete.—Baijnath v. Binayendra, 6 C. W. N. 5; Macnaghten v. Surja Prasad, 11 C. L. J. 78; 4 C. W. N. 35-n; Delhi London Bank v. Partab Singh, 28 A. 771 (F. B.), Jogendra v. Hiranya Kumar, 2 C. L. J. 499. The old section has been recast and re-arranged with some changes in the details of procedure to be followed when attaching a decree.

Clause (a) of sub-rule 1, sub-rule (2), (3) and (6) are new.

This rule applies to attachment before judgment; Gorigala Venkayya v. Mugunta Lakshmiya, 22 M. L. J. 394; 14 I. C. 285.

This rule does not apply to a case where the creditor of a mortgagee attaches the deposit made in Court by the mortgagor to redeem the property before sale in execution—Asia Khatun v. Nurjahan Khatun, 59 C. 1464; 36 C. W. N. 955.

Decree for money.—The following have been held to be money-decrees—Decree for mesne profits to be ascertained; Sharodamoyee v. Woomamoyee, 8 W. R. 9. Decree for arrears of rent; Banku Behary v. Syama Churn, 25 C. 322. Decree for dissolution of partnership; Sidlingappa v. Shankarappa, 27 B. 556 (16 B. 522 and 577 and 21 C. 85, referred to). Attachment may be made after judgment though the decree is not drawn up, as the decree when drawn up relates back to the time of judgment; Ram Kanai v. Punna Chandra, 34 C. L. J. 494.

It has been held that money-decrees and mortgage-decrees are not to be realized by sale, Vithal Das v. Subraya, 45 B. 343; Maung Lun Bye v. Maung Po Nyun, 1 R. 360; A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 21. They can only be realized in the manner prescribed by sub-rule (2); Sultan Kuar v. Gulzari Lal, 2 A. 290; Tirumugoda v. Vythilinga, 6 M. 418; Jotindra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 20 C. 111. Sidlingappa v. Shankarappa, 27 B. 556; Domi Lal v. Bijoy Prasad, 13 P. L. T. 612. A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 349. There is no provision made in this rule for the realization of a decree for partition, or for foreclosure of a mortgage, or a decree for specific performance. These decrees are to be realized by a sale thereof; Gopal v. Joharimal, 16 B. 532; Barhma Din v. Baij Lal, 26 A. 91. But for the special procedure prescribed by sub-rule (2) of the present rule for the realization of money-decrees and mortgage-decrees, they would have been attachable and saleable under S. 60 as coming within the expression "all other saleable property." The special procedure prescribed by sub-rule (2) is therefore an exception to the general rule that all properties when attached can only be realized by a sale thereof. See note below under sub-rule (4).

Mortgage-decrees.—The addition of the words "or for sale in enforcement of a mortgage or charge" in sub-rule (1) now makes the rule applicable to mortgage-decrees, and it is now clear that mortgage-decrees are to be attached and realized in the same manner as money-decrees.

This rule lays down that the holder of a decree sought to be executed by the attachment of another decree for sale, in enforcement of a mortgage or charge, shall as the representative of the holder of the attached decree, be entitled to execute it in any manner lawful to the holder thereof; Kuppusami v. Subbaraya, 22 M. L. J. 161: 13 I. C. 321.

Sub-rule (4)—Attachment of other decrees—There are two ways of executing decrees obtained by a decree-holder by attachment of other decrees passed by other Courts or by the same Court. These two ways are indicated in Or. XXI, r. 53. If it is a money-decree and if the decree is one which is passed by another Court then by the combined operation of sub-cl. (1) and (2) the decree which is attached is not sold as a saleable property but is executed in terms of sub-cl. (2), by realising the net proceeds in satisfaction of the decree sought to be executed. If however the decree is not one for money then the procedure laid down in sub-cl. (4) has got to be followed; in other words the property is sold like any other saleable property. A preliminary decree passed in a partition suit is liable to be proceeded against in execution according to the procedure prescribed by Cl. (4) and not by Cl. (1).—Sudarsan v. Manindra, 58 C. 934: 133 I. C. 181: A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 80. The right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtors, in a decree for possession and mesne profits, was held liable to be attached and sold in execution of a money-decree.—Ganesh Lal v. Shamnarain, 6 C 213.

A certificate under Or. XXI, r. 71, certifying deficiency in the purchase price, being declared by that rule to be in effect "a decree for the payment of money" for the purpose of the method of its recovery, such a certificate is attachable as a decree for the payment of money under the provisions of this rule; Abdul Jabbar v. Sita Ram, 24 A. L. J. 385: A. I. R. 1926 All. 379: 95 I. C. 1033.

The right, title, and interest of a judgment-debtor in a partly executed decree for possession of a moiety of a taluk is liable to be attached and sold.—Girish Chunder v. Jibaneswari, 6 C. 243 (P. C.) 7 C. L. R. 420.

A decree of a Revenue Court is not capable of attachment and sale under this section, in execution of a Civil Court decree, such a decree stands in the position of an ordinary debt, and may be dealt with under S. 60.—Aulia Bibi v. Abu Jafar, 21 A. 405 (16 A. 496, referred to). See Prince Gholam Mohamed v. Indra Chand, 7 B L. R. 318: 15 W. R. 34, where it has been held that a decree of a Court falls within the description of "other property."

Decrees passed by the same Court.—Under the Code of 1877 this was held to apply also to cases where the decrees were passed by different Courts but were being executed by one Court; Sultan Kuar v. Gulzari Lal, 2 A. 290.

Irregular attachment.—The defect in the attachment in consequence of the order being passed by the executing Court, instead of by the Court which passed the decree, is not such a jurisdictional defect as to make the order void. An objection to the issue of notice under r. 53 (2) is one that the parties could waive.—Per Sundara Iyer, J., in Arumugha v. Yogamba, 17 I. C. 523: 13 M. L. T. 227.

Effect of attachment.—The attachment of a decree under this rule has the effect of staying further execution and debarring the Court from proceeding further until that bar has been removed in either of the ways specified therein. Where a Sub-Judge, after receiving an attachment order from a Munsif's Court, returned it on the ground that it did not state the amount of the decree and proceeded with execution which resulted in the sale—held that the Sub-Judge was bound to comply with the order and had no jurisdiction to proceed with the sale.—Manik Lal v. Banamali, 32 C. 1104 : 10 C. W. N. 193 : 3 C. L. J. 27.

An attachment under this rule is completed by the receipt of the notice prescribed by Cl. (1) (b) of the rule in the Court to which notice was sent.—Raja Sir S. R. M. M. A. Chettyar Firm v. Burma Oil Co., 9 R. 140 : 134 I. C. 506 : A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 185. The signature by the clerk on behalf of the Judge who was then ill, on the notice, was only an irregularity which did not prevent the attachment from being effective and any adjustment of the decree with the knowledge of the attachment was invalid.—Ibid.

The attaching judgment-creditor is the only person who can execute the decree, and the original holder of the decree is precluded from executing his decree, unless the Court which issued notice cancels the notice.—Thuchakovil v. Arapayil, 9 I. C. 786 : 21 M. L. J. 577 (13 M. L. J. 265 : 21 M. 417 and 24 C. 778, distinguished).

Transfer of decree for payment of money under attachment is valid.—There is no provision in sub-rule (1) or (2) or (6) of r. 53, which prohibits the holder of a decree for payment of money from transferring the decree attached, and the transfer is in no way affected on account of the attachment of the decree, but is a valid transfer giving the transferees a good title and entitling them to have their names substituted in place of the assignors and to apply for execution under Or. XXI, r. 16; Hazariram v. Kidarnath, 7 P. 726 : 9 P. L. T. 822 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 1 : 113 I. C. 673. The effect of the attachment of a money-decree having been specially provided for in Or. XXI, r. 53, the general provisions of S. 64 do not apply.—Ibid. A person who attaches and executes a decree for money after it has been assigned by the decree-holder to a third person does not acquire any beneficial interest in the amounts realised in execution but holds the same as a trustee for the assignee of the decree. The assignment of a decree operates from the date of the assignment and does not depend for its validity upon any recognition by the Court—(99 I. C. 309 overruled).—Co-operative Town Bank v. Raman, 5 R. 595 : 106 I. C. 853 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 25.

The only two persons who can take out execution are the holder of the attached decree and the attaching creditor. The assignee from the holder cannot apply for execution; Thiruvengadam v. Doridla, 13 I. C. 659 : 11 M. L. T. 144.

Sub-rule (3)—A person attaching a decree is a representative of the decree-holder.—A person attaching a decree is the representative of the decree-holder within S. 47 and in every case is entitled to enforce execution of the decree which he has attached.—Peary Mohan v. Romesh, 15 C. 371 (referred to in Adhar v. Lal Mohun, 24 C. 778 : 1 C. W. N. 676). See also Broj Nath v. Gaya Sundari, 6 C. L. J. 141 and Rangasami v. Periasami, 17 M. 58, where it has been held that an attaching decree-holder is entitled to take all steps necessary for the realization of the proceeds of the attached decree by the Court. See, however, Sami Pillai v. Krishna Sami, 21 M. 417, in which a different view seems to have been taken.

Such a person becomes the representative on the day when the attachment is ordered and not on the day when he applied for the attachment.—Chandrapal v. Muhammed Salamatullah, A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 418; 6 O.W.N. 710.

A decree-holder purchased immovable property at an auction-sale held in execution of the decree, but before the sale was confirmed, the decree was attached by a judgment-creditor of the decree-holder. Held that the effect of the attachment was to place the attaching creditor in the position of the decree-holder so as to entitle him to have the sale confirmed.—Beharia Rudrani Keer v. Ram Pertap, 11 C. W. N. 158.

Where A in execution of a decree against B attaches, under this section, a decree which B holds against a company in liquidation, the Court will direct the liquidator to recognize A as the representative of B and allow him to prove for the decree-debt in the name of B, and to receive and apply the dividend payable to B in satisfaction of A's judgment-debt subject to the rights of other attaching creditors to rateable distribution.—Sesha Ayyar v. T. S. Sugar Mill Co., 30 M. 533

Sub-rule (6)—Adjustment of attached decree.—This sub-rule is new and gives effect to the decision in Gopal v. Jaharimal, 16 B. 523. See also Rattan v. Bishan, 10 L. 143 : 110 I. C. 241 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 834. Order XXI, r. 53 (6) applies also to cases where the attachment was made already before judgment; Gorigala Venkayya v. Mugunta Lakshmiya, 14 I. C. 285 : 22 M. L. J. 394.

A decree-holder attached a decree obtained by the judgment-debtor against a third person. The Court directed him to execute the attached decree. The decree-holder applied several times but the applications were struck off. His decree-holder's decree was subsisting. 795 (16 B. 522, relied on). See also Raja Sir S. R. & Co. Firm v. Burma Oil Co., 9 R. 140.

Where a simple money-decree-holder attached another decree in favour of his judgment-debtor but subsequently the latter gave up a portion of the decree-amount as part of the compromise by which an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council was withdrawn: held, that the compromise was in the nature of an adjustment of the attached decree and came within Or XXI, r. 53 (6) and that it did not take effect as against the attaching creditor.—Lachmi Narain v. Mansa Ram, 30 A. L. J. 792.

This sub-rule merely provides, in cases of bona fide transactions by judgment-debtors, an exception to the general rule laid down in S. 64 of the Code. So an adjustment by a judgment-debtor before he received notice of the order of attachment under this sub-rule is valid.—Lakshminarasimham v. Lakshminarasimham, 50 M. 677 (F. B.) : 103 I. C. 502 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 728 : 53 M. L. J. 150.

- 54. (1) Where the property is immovable, the attachment shall be made by an order prohibiting the judgment-debtor from transferring or charging the property in any way, and all persons from taking any benefit from such transfer or charge.

(2) The order shall be proclaimed at some place on or adjacent to such property by beat of drum or other customary mode, and a copy of the order shall be affixed on a conspicuous part of the property and then upon a conspicuous part of the Court-house, and also, where the property is land paying revenue to the Government, in the office of the Collector of the district in which the land is situate. . [S. 274.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—In sub-rule (1) the words "from taking any benefit from such transfer or charge" have been substituted for "from receiving the same from him by purchase, gift, or otherwise." In sub-rule (2) the words "upon a conspicuous part" have been added before "Court-house."

Attachment of immoveable property.—A decree for redemption is not attachable under this rule, but under r. 53 (2); Naigar Timapa v. Bhaskar, 10 B. 444. The equity of redemption of a mortgagor is immoveable property within this rule; Parashram v. Govind, 21 B. 226; Barendra v. Martin & Co., 33 C. L. J. 7 : 62 I. C. 167. Bequest to a Parsi widow, of income of immoveable property, with obligation of maintaining and educating children, is an interest in immoveable property, under this rule.—Natha Kerra v. Dhunbaiji, 23 B. 1.

An attachment is not complete until the procedure provided by this rule has been fully followed; Kanai Lal v. Ahed Bux, 39 I. C. 562. See also Sinnappan v. Arunachalam, 42 M. 844 (F. B.) : 53 I. C. 207. An attachment operates as a valid prohibition against alienation of the attached property only from the date on which necessary proclamation is made and a copy of the order affixed as contemplated in this rule. Where no evidence of a prohibitory order under this rule and its proclamation is given an alienation by the judgment-debtor cannot be impeached (42 M. 844 folld.)—Saroop Singh v. Narsingh, A. I. R. 1929 All. 846. But once it is made under this rule it is immaterial that the Collector did not enter it in his Touzi Register; Ram Khelwan v. Sunder, 34 I. C. 34. An omission to affix a copy of an attachment order on a conspicuous part of the Court-house or to post it in the office of the Collector or to post it in some conspicuous part of the land attached is a fatal defect which invalidates an attachment of land; Attar Singh v. Ghulam Muhammad, 60 I. C. 527. In Jodhan v. Kapil Nath, 69 I. C. 563 : A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 78, it was held that omission to post a copy of the order of attachment in the office of the Collector, as required by Or. XXI, r. 54 (2), does not render the attachment invalid if all the other formalities prescribed by that rule have been observed. But this case, it is apprehended, is no longer good law. (See 51 M. 349 (P.O.) noted infra).

This rule does not apply to property of the nature of a debt secured by a hypothecation bond. The preponderance of judicial opinion is in favour of the view that mortgage-debts are moveable properties; Nataraja v. South Indian Bank of Tinnevely, 37 M. 51 : 10 M. L. T. 503 : 2 M. W. N. 590 (15 A. 134 : 12 C. 546 ; 20 C. 805 : 6 C. W. N. 5, referred to).

Attachment of mortgage debt.—See notes to r. 46, under the heading "Debt not secured by negotiable instrument—Mortgage-debt."

In the case of a purely usufructuary mortgage, where no debt was payable by the mortgagor, the procedure should be by attachment of the interest under this rule. Order XXI, r. 46 does not apply; Manilal v. Motibhai, 13 Bom. L. R. 233; 10 I. C. 812. The substantial difference between attaching the interest of a usufructuary mortgagee under this rule and under r. 46 is that under r. 46 the mortgagor would have received a written order of the Court prohibiting him from making the payment to the mortgagee; and under this rule he would receive no such order nor any notice of the attachment; Ramasami v. Srinivasa, 39 M. 389; 23 I. C. 284; 28 M. L. J. 338. See also Gajadhar v. Dechraj, 130 I. C. 265; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 63, noted under r. 46, ante.

Proof of attachment.—An attachment under this section must be strictly proved; mere production of the order-sheet is not sufficient.—Gonesh Persad v. Brij Behary, 1 O. L. J. 565.

Proof of service of prohibitory order.—When the prohibitory order under sub-rule (1) was found to be duly served on the judgment-debtors, but the return to prove the service, having been destroyed, could not be produced to prove the service, it was held that the failure to produce the return did not render the execution sale invalid, Abdul Ghafur Khan v. Akram, 46 A. 741; 22 A. L. J. 703; 83 I. C. 878; A. I. R. 1924 All. 747.

No property can be declared to be attached unless first the order of attachment has been issued and secondly in the execution of that order other things prescribed by the rules in the Code have been done. Where however there is no positive evidence that the attachment was not effected in accordance with law and no such contention was raised in the lower Court, it was held that the Court should give effect to the presumption regarding the regularity of official acts and proceed on the view that there was a valid attachment duly effected.—Kiernander v. Benimadhab, 58 C. 598; 134 I. C. 561; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 763; A. T. K. & Co. Muthiah v. Palaniappa, 55 I. A. 256; 51 M. 349 (P. C.); 26 A. L. J. 616; 32 C. W. N. 821; 48 C. L. J. 11; 5 O. W. N. 579; 109 I. C. 626; 80 Bom. L. R. 1353; A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 139; 55 M. L. J. 123.

Effect of attachment.—Where an attachment of land was made by a written order under this rule, the conditions prescribed had to be fulfilled in order to render any private alienation of the property attached null and void; Indra Chandra v. Agra and Masterman's Bank, 1 B. L. R. S. N. 20; 10 W. R. 264. See also Nur Ahmad v. Altaf Ali, 2 A. 58.

Where no order for attachment of the property is passed in favour of the decree-holders in the manner provided, their claims are not entitled to the protection conferred by S. 64 against private alienations, Gangadin v. Khushali, 7 A. 702.

Attachment by prohibitory order under this section does not constitute a dispossession of the party in actual possession of the property.—Narayanrao v. Balkrishna, 4 B. 529.

An attachment only prevents alienation, but does not confer title.—Moti Lal v. Karrabudin, 24 I. A. 170; 25 O. 179 (P. C.) (referred to in Lachmi-dayal v. Har Danni Lal, 25 A. 347, p. 350); Shanker v. Mahomed Ismail, 125 I. C. 28; A. I. R. 1930 All. 552

Conferment of occupancy rights when the property was under attachment was invalid.—Hanuman v. Habib, 13 R. D. 429.

This rule is not contravened if the judgment-debtor executes a deed of mortgage in pursuance of a decree for specific performance obtained against him prior to the date of attachment as such a decree could not be set aside by a prohibitory order of a later date under r. 54.—Lakshman v. Ramchandra, 34 Bom. L. R. 117; A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 301.

To render an attachment effectual, the affixing of the prohibitory order on the Court-house is absolutely necessary. Where such affixing is later in date than the execution of a mortgage, the mortgage lien is not effected by the attachment even though the attachment was prior to the execution of the mortgage (55 I. A. 256; 51 M. 349 folld.).—Nabadweep v. Loke Nath, 59 C. 1176; 36 C. W. N. 733.

Where the judgment-debtors having notice of an attachment made in pursuance of the amendment of the petition for execution took no objection or preferred no appeal, the order of attachment was final and could not be challenged at a later stage, although the amendment was made on erroneous grounds, the matter not coming within Or. XXI, r. 17.—Rani Basanta Kumari v. Tulsi Chavan, 34 C. W. N. 159; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 353.

An execution creditor does not by attachment acquire such an interest in the attached property as will enable him to maintain an action for its wrongful removal. The rights of attaching creditors are regulated by the C. P. Code, and the provisions of S. 91 (f) of the T. P. Act. 1882, do not apply to them. The removal of the attached property from the proceedings in execution at 30 M. 207; 17 M. L. J. 8; 30 M. L. J. 334, where it has been removed by a third party the decree-holder must enforce his claim by a separate suit and not in execution. See also Kristnasawmy v. Official Assignee of Madras, 26 M. 673.

Effect of re-attachment.—A re-attachment of property after decree does not imply an abandonment of the attachment obtained before decree.—Ramkrishna v. Surfunnissa, 6 C. 129; Kosuri Suraparaju v. Mandapaka, 26 I. C. 81. But when an application is made for attachment of property which has been previously attached under the decree, a Court may presume that the prior attachment had ceased before the application for a second attachment was made.—Hafiz Suleman v. Abdullah, 16 A. 193; (12 B. L. R. 411 referred to).

Absence of or defective attachment—Irregularity.—If in the attachment order there be any incorrect description as to the right and interest of the judgment-debtors in the property attached the attachment is not good in law and does not affect actual rights and interests.—Hargu Lal v. Muhammad Rajakhan, 13 A. 119.

Where a copy of the order for attachment was not fixed up in the Collector's Office; held that the defect in the mode of attachment might render the attachment ineffectual for the purpose of avoiding alienations made, but the attachment was effectual against the judgment-debtor, and the defect did not afford a ground for declaring the execution proceedings ineffectual.—Rai Balkishen v. Rai Sitaram, 7 A. 731.

In the case of land paying revenue to Government an attachment is not effective to invalidate a subsequent transfer unless and until a copy of the order of attachment has been affixed in the office of the Collector in accordance with Or. XXI, r. 54. So a security bond executed after an order of attachment was made cannot be declared invalid in the absence of evidence on the question whether the processes of attachment had been served and, if so, whether they were served before the security bond was executed.—Nagar Mull v. Benares Bank, 9 P. 860: 129 I. C. 142: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 53.

Non-compliance with the provision contained in this rule renders an attachment void and ineffectual.—Bharat v. Gouranga, 55 C. 545: 104 I. C. 340: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 895 (following 9 C. W. N. 693).

Omission to have a drum beaten as required is a material irregularity so as to render a sale held in execution of a decree liable to be set aside.—Trimbak Ravi v. Nana, 10 B. 504.

Where revenue-paying lands were described as revenue-free lands in the order of attachment: the misdescription protected the bona fide purchaser from having the alienation set aside as void under r. 64.—Gumani v. Hardwar, 3 A. 698.

If there had been no attachment or a defective attachment, but a valid order for sale had been made during the life-time of the judgment-debtor, the effect will be as that of an attachment followed by an order for sale.—Peary Lal v. Chand Charan, 11 C. W. N. 163 5 C. L. J. 80.

After confirmation of sale and grant of certificate to the purchaser, the sale is not to be considered as a nullity merely by reason of the absence of any attachment.—Kishory Mohun v. Mahomed Mujaffar, 18 C. 188 (followed in Hari Charan v. Chandra Kumar, 34 C. 787, p. 802: 11 C. W. N. 745). See also Sivakolundu v. Ganapathi, 37 I. C. 964; Acchamna v. Basappa, 8 M. L. J. 1; Tarak v. Shyama Charan, 36 I. C. 292, Sheo Dhyani v. Bholanath, 21 A. 311; Mohamed Alam v. Jamiat, 121 I. C. 369. There is no provision in Act X of 1859 under which the sale of a jote in execution of a decree is liable to be set aside on the ground of non-attachment and non-proof of publication of the sale proclamation.—Patit Sahu v. Hari Mahanti, 27 C. 783 5 C. W. N. 128. See also Sharada Moyee v. Wooma Moyee, 8 W. R. 9 and Sheodhyani v. Bholanath, 21 A. 311, where it has been held that the absence of an attachment, prior to the sale of immoveable property in execution is not a material irregularity; but is not a ground for setting aside the sale (10 C. W. N. 128 referred to) But see Mahadeo Dohay v. Bholanath, 5 A. 86 (F. B.), where it has been held that a regular attachment is an essential preliminary to a sale in execution of a money decree. Also, Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal, 10 A. 195.

Invalid attachment.—An attachment is null and void, if at the time of attachment the decree under which it was made had been set aside and was not in existence. The fact that a renewed decree was subsequently passed in terms of the original decree, could not make the attachment valid.—Chettiattil Muhamod v. Kunhi Kori, 29 M. 175.

"Order shall be proclaimed" etc.—This section does not require that the sale proclamation should be served in each of the villages comprised in the property to be sold. The word "property" evidently refers to each "lot" to be sold separately from the rest. Though it is a sound rule to follow, viz., to serve a separate proclamation in each of the villages embraced in the same process when they are at such a distance from one another that there is no moral certainty of communication to persons on or interested in the one, of what is publicly done on the other, the fact that the processes were not served in each does not necessarily constitute an infringement of the provisions of this section.—Mouli Abdul Kashem v. Benode Lal, 12 C. W. N. 757. The provisions of this rule must be taken to have been complied with when a copy of the proclamation of sale has been affixed to any one of the properties which are all situated near one another.—Mahomed Abdulla v. Jamiat Rai, 121 I. C. 369. A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 685. Where several mouzas are put up for sale in execution of a decree, the law does not require that publication should be made in every mouza (40 C. 635 (P. C.) distinguished).—Maharaj Bahadur v. P. C. Lal Chaudhury, A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 25; 9 P. L. J. 387. In Tripura Sundari v. Durga Charan, 11 C. 74, it has been held that, where distinct properties are proclaimed for sale, the omission to affix a copy in each of such properties amounts to an irregularity. But in Pedro Antonio v. Jalbhoy Ardesir, 12 B. 368, it has been held that a mere breaking up of an area into lots does not necessarily make it several distinct properties for the purposes of a proclamation of attachment or sale. See r. 67 (3) and notes.

It is necessary that a copy of the sale proclamation should be affixed to some conspicuous place on the property attached.—Kalyata v. Ram Coomar, 7 C. 466. 9 C. L. R. 114.

The proclamation of sale, required to be made at some place adjacent to the property to be sold, and the affixing of a copy of the order in a conspicuous part of the property, are acts which must precede the posting of the notices in the Court-house; Megh Lall v. Shub Pershad, T. C. 34; 8 C. L. R. 369. See also Mahendra v. Gapal, 17 C. 769 (779). See, however, Ram Chandar v. Kamta Prasad, 4 A. 300.

In order to constitute a valid attachment, the proclamation described in the second portion of r. 54, Or. XXI, must be made; Mular Ram v. Jivanda Ram, 4 L. 211; 5 L. L. J. 200; 72 I. C. 452. A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 423.

Where the order of attachment was not proclaimed by beat of drum as resistance was offered on behalf of the judgment-debtors if the order was so proclaimed, and thereupon the order was proclaimed in a loud voice adjacent to the property in dispute; held, that there was sufficient compliance with Or. XXI, r. 54.—Sukhraj v. Harnam, 136 I. C. 335; A. I. R. 1932 Oudh 76.

Irregularity in publishing sales.—See r. 90, and notes.

Attachment not necessary in mortgage-decree.—If the decree contains a direction for sale of the mortgaged premises, it is not necessary to issue an attachment. The direction for sale in the decree is in itself sufficient.

authority for the sale.—Daya Chand v. Hem Chand, 4 B. 515. See also Pedro Antonio v. Jalbhoy, 12 B. 368; Jogendra v. Debendra, 26 C. 127, p. 129 (where it has been held that under the Act no attachment is necessary); and Dosibai v. Ishwardas Jagjivandas, 9 B. 561 (affirmed by the P. C. in 15 B. 222). See also Subrani v. Puran, 8 A. L. J. 1327.

The omission in execution of a decree for the realization the validity of a sale of the mortgaged property in execution of such decree.—Tincowri v. Shib Chandra, 21 C. 689; Muniappa v. Subramania, 18 M. 437.

An attachment is a necessary preliminary to an execution proceeding. Where however the judgment-debtor executed a security bond it is impossible for him to alienate the property and consequently the person in whose favour it is executed can enforce the bond in execution without an order of attachment.—Tata Iron and Steel Co. v. Charles Joseph, 8 P. 801.

"Land paying revenue to Government."—Shrotriyam villages in the Madras Presidency are lands paying revenue to Government within the meaning of this rule; Ganamma v. Kettreddi, 46 M. 736; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 217; 75 I. C. 369, Yar Khan v. S. K. Bose, 7 L. L. J. 501; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 593; 88 I. C. 321.

55. Where—

Removal of attachment after satisfaction of decree	(a) the amount decreed with costs and all charges and expenses resulting from the attachment of any property are paid into Court, or
--	--

(b) satisfaction of the decree is otherwise made through the Court or certified to the Court, or

(c) the decree is set aside or reversed, [S. 275.]

the attachment shall be deemed to be withdrawn, and, in the case of immoveable property, the withdrawal shall, if the judgment-debtor so desires, be proclaimed at his expense, and a copy of the proclamation shall be affixed in the manner prescribed by the last preceding rule. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The words "or certified to the Court" in Cl. (b) and the last para. are new. As to certifying payment, see rule 2. The effect of the added para. is that on the happening of any of the events in Cl. (a), (b) or (c), the attachment shall be deemed to be withdrawn, i.e., it shall cease of itself. Formerly an application and an express order of the Court were necessary. It is now optional with the judgment-debtor to make an application for same.

Cases.—Where property has been attached, an order dismissing an application for execution but not specifically withdrawing attachment or declaring the decree incapable of execution does not raise the attachment;

Bank of Upper India v. Sheo Prasad, 19 A. 482. The death of a judgment-debtor does not affect the attachment; Sheo Prasad v. Hira Lal, 12 A. 440 (F. B.). In the case of the death of a judgment-debtor of a joint Mitakshara family, the attachment does not cease even though the estate passed to the surviving members of the family; Beni Pershad v. Parbati, 20 C. 895.

An order directing putting in of a fresh petition for execution as the previous petition was closed, did not terminate attachment as the petition was not dismissed.—Veluswami v. Balasubramania, 106 I. C. 138 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 398.

Sums paid into Court under this rule are not assets under S. 73 for rateable distribution; Sorabji v. Kala Raghunath, 36 B. 156 : 13 Bom. L. R. 1193. But see Pardasani v. Jeshwani, 128 I. C. 686 : A. I. R. 1930 Sind 300, which held that there is nothing in this rule to suggest any distinction between money voluntarily paid by the judgment-debtor for avoiding attachment and money realised as a result of the attachment; both of them would equally be included in the term "assets held by the Court," within the meaning of S. 73.

Revival of attachment.—Where a decree under which an attachment has been made is set aside on first appeal but restored on second appeal, the attachment is revived—Parmeshar Din v. Debi Prasad, 48 I. C. 386.

Satisfaction in part.—Where satisfaction of the decree in part only is certified, the attachment cannot be deemed to be withdrawn; Khub Chand v. Niadar, 15 I. C. 677 : 10 A. L. J. 165.

In case of an instalment decree the instalment which has become due and in respect of which attachment has been made is the "amount decreed" within the meaning of Or. XXI, r 55; when the amount of that instalment is paid the attachment made in respect of it ceases and does not enure in respect of an instalment which has not become due.—Bhola v. Madho, 105 I. C. 799 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 65.

- 56. Where the property attached is current coin or currency notes, the Court may, at any time during the continuance of the attachment, direct that such coin or notes, or a part thereof sufficient to satisfy the decree, be paid over to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—The word "current" has been added before the word "coin." The effect seems to be that if the coins attached be not current coins, they cannot be paid over to the decree-holder, but should be sold, like other moveable properties.

- 57. Where any property has been attached in execution of a decree but by reason of the decree-holder's default the Court is unable to proceed further with the application for execution, it shall of attachment.

either dismiss the application or for any sufficient reason adjourn the proceedings to a future date. Upon the dismissal of such application the attachment shall cease. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Object and effect.—The purpose of this rule is to put an end to doubts which from time to time have arisen as to the continuance of an attachment by reason of the practice of "striking off proceedings" or "removing proceedings from the file," for which there was no justification under any of the earlier Codes; Diwan Chand v. Bedha, 52 I. C. 294.

Under the old Code execution cases were "struck off" for relieving the congestion of the file on account of default in appearance, failure to deposit necessary papers, or for not taking any step in numerous cases (e.g., Fakirullah, 22 I. A. 44; 17 A. 106 (P. C.); 5 M. L. J. 3; Srinivasa v. Sami Rau, 17 M. 180; Bank of Upper India v. Shoo Prasad, 19 A. 492 and other cases noted under S. 64, under the heading "Effect of striking off Execution Proceedings"). The decisions were not harmonious and in numerous cases it was held that such an order did not necessarily put an end to the attachment and it was open to the decree-holder to revive the execution proceedings and continue it from the point where it has previously stopped. This rule sets at rest the various interpretations that were put on the previous practice. Under this Code there can be no "striking off" of applications. If there is any default of the decree-holder, the application must be dismissed and the attachment ceases forthwith, even though the Court and the parties intended that the attachment should subsist.—See notes below.

Judgment-debtors objecting to execution proceedings must state their objections at the earliest possible opportunity. It is only those matters which could not have been made matter of objection at the earliest opportunity that can be allowed at a later stage.—Ganapathy v. Meera Sahib, 121 I. C. 845; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 303.

Applicability.—This rule can apply only to orders of dismissal passed after the Act came into force; Vardiparthi v. Korukonda, 27 I. C. 568. It cannot have a retrospective effect; Khande v. Nara Subba, 27 I. C. 792. See also Raghavachariar v. Anantha, 31 I. C. 911. This rule does not apply to a case where a Court strikes off an execution proceeding or consigns the record to the record-room to suit its own convenience, or to reduce its pending file without any default having been committed by the decree-holder. In such a case the Court may take any further steps necessary for the execution of the decree; Aghunath Prasad, 48 A. 698; 24 A. L. J. 734. It was also held in the above case that an application which is in substance as well as in form an application to revive a pending execution which had been suspended for non-act or default of the decree-holder, is not an application to initiate a fresh application, and the effect of such an application, if granted, is that the proceeding is continued from the stage at which it was left. An order restoring an attachment relates back to the date when the attachment is first made, and its effect is to invalidate any private sale made during the subsistence of that attachment. See also Khazan v. Bikram, 107 I. C. 574; Diwan Dhanpat Rai v. Alliance Bank, 31 P. L. R. 321: 123 I. C. 113: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 647.

A revival of execution proceedings does not operate as a revival of the attachment, so as to prejudice the rights of strangers who have in the interval acquired a title to the property; Patringa v. Madhavanand, 14 C. L. J. 476.

Court.—The 'Court' referred to in r. 57 is the attaching Court and not the Court the decree of which is attached (following (1927) M. W. N. 685). Where therefore, a decree of Court A is attached by Court B, and the decree-holder's application for execution presented at Court A is dismissed for default, the attachment does not, on that account, cease.—Venugopala v. Chengayya, (1931) M. W. N. 211.

Attachment before judgment.—The provisions of this rule have no application to attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII. This rule applies only to attachment "in execution of a decree." An order of attachment before judgment subsists for the benefit not only of the first application for execution but also for subsequent applications; Gonesh Chandra v. Banwari, 16 C. L. J. 86: 14 I. C. 345, Banuddin v. Arunachalla, 26 M. L. J. 215: 22 I. C. 351; Bohra Akhey Ram v. Basant Lal, 46 A. 894: 80 I. C. 106: A. I. R. 1924 All. 860, Shubnath v. Sheikh Saberuddin, 56 C. 416: 119 I. C. 113: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 465, which held that an attachment before judgment prima facie would continue to have effect if no application for execution had been made. An attachment in execution is not, notwithstanding the provisions of Or. XXXVIII, r. 11, of itself a waiver or abandonment of the attachment before judgment. The effect of the two attachments on the same property is merely that the property is under attachment but a person is entitled to the benefit of either one of the attachments in the absence of abandonment and that no doctrine of merger is applicable to such a case. (This case has been dissented from in 55 B. 693, noted below). But see Meyyappa Chettiar v. Chudambaram, 47 M. 483 (F. B.): 83 I. C. 91: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 494 in which it was held (following 44 M. 902 (F. B.) and overruling 42 M. 1) that the provisions of this rule apply to attachment before judgment which become converted into attachment in execution when application is made to execute the decree passed in the suit; hence upon the dismissal of such an application by the decree-holder's default, the attachment made upon judgment ceases. See also Ardesur v. Usman, 31 Bom. L. R. 1101: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 455. Unless there is a dismissal of an execution petition, attachment before judgment enures to the benefit of a decree-holder.—Ganapathy v. Meera Sahib, 121 I. C. 845: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 303. An application for rateable distribution or for attachment of moveables by the decree-holder who has attached the properties of the judgment-debtor before judgment is not maintained. Ibid. See also the same case in 53 B. 543: 119 I. C. 769: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 321.

"By reason of the decree-holder's default."—There is no reason for giving a restricted meaning to the word "default" and confining it to default in appearance, in the payment of process fees, or in the production of documents. It includes failure to do what the decree-holder is bound to do, that is, to proceed with the application for execution. Omission therefore to serve notice to the judgment-debtor as required by r. 66 of this order is a default; Namuna Bibi v. Rosha, 38 C. 482 : 15 O. W. N. 428 : 9 I. C. 558; Lakhpai Rai v. Mayya Mal, 75 I. C. 824. So also the omission to file a proclamation; Mandhyan v. Badram, 17 C. W. N. 204; Dildar Husain v. Sheo Narain, 41 A. 157 : 49 I. C. 113; Fateh Din v. Qutab Din, 3 L. 7 : A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 108 : 67 I. C. 543. So also omission on the part of the decree-holder to give security; Ardeshir v. Usman, 31 Bom. L. R. 1101 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 455.

Where an execution sale is set aside for any reason other than the decree-holder's default, the antecedent attachment is revived so as to support a second application for execution of the decree by sale of the same property, and no fresh attachment is necessary; Mahabharat v. Surjakanta, 3 P. L. J. 310 : 45 I. C. 529, Venkiteswarayyan v. Aswatta, 45 M. L. J. 315 : 75 I. C. 491 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 703. But see Ganpati Bhatta v. Devappa, 46 B. 942 : 76 I. C. 895 : A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 30.

A decree-holder in execution of a decree attached the properties of the judgment-debtor but subsequently accepted a payment made by him towards

execution application was to put an end to the attachment and that the dismissal was due to the default of the decree-holder. No doubt the Court has no power to dismiss an application for execution unless there is default on the part of the decree-holder but, as has been held, default means a failure to do what one is legally bound to do; Jai Krishna v. Bibi Soghra, 71 I. C. 881 : 4 P. L. T. 418.

"Upon the dismissal of such application, the attachment shall cease."—Where an executing Court made an order dismissing the execution case for default on the part of the decree-holder but directed that the properties should remain under attachment; it was held that the order being one dismissing the application for execution, the attachment ceased by virtue of the provision of this rule notwithstanding the Court's direction that the attachment should continue; Namuna Bibi v. Rosha, 38 C. 482 : 15 C. W. N. 428 : 9 I. C. 558; Dildar Husain v. Sheo Narain, 41 A. 157 : 49 I. C. 113; Kundanmal v. Mt. Aziz Begam, A. I. R. 1929 Nag 82; Fateh Din v. Qutab Din, 3 L. 7 : 67 I. C. 543 : A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 108. Where the executing Court struck off the file an application of its own motion and without any default on the part of the decree-holder, there was no dismissal of the application within the meaning of this rule and the attachment continued.—Bijai v. Raghunath, 48 A. 698 : 97 I. C. 102 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 734. Where the Court's order was that the execution case should for the time being be dismissed but the attachment shall remain in force, it was held that the order was in effect an adjournment of the proceedings and was therefore valid; Mahammad Mubarak v. Sahu, 44 A. 274 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 62 : 65 I. C. 91.

and its effect is to invalidate any private sale made during the subsistence of that attachment. See also Khazan v. Bikram, 107 I. C. 574; Diwan Dhanpat Rai v. Alliance Bank, 31 P. L. R. 321; 123 I. C. 113; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 647.

A revival of execution proceedings does not operate as a revival of the attachment, so as to prejudice the rights of strangers who have in the interval acquired a title to the property; Patringa v. Madhavanand, 14 C. L. J. 476.

Court—The 'Court' referred to in r. 57 is the attaching Court and not the Court the decree of which is attached (following (1927) M. W. N. 635). Where therefore, a decree of Court A is attached by Court B, and the decree-holder's application for execution presented at Court A is dismissed for default, the attachment does not, on that account, cease.—Venugopala v. Chengayya, (1931) M. W. N. 211.

Attachment before judgment—The provisions of this rule have no application to attachment before judgment under Or. XXXVIII. This rule applies only to attachment "in execution of a decree." An order of attachment before judgment subsists for the benefit not only of the first application for execution but also for subsequent applications; Gonesh Chandra v. Banwari, 16 C. L. J. 86; 14 I. C. 345; Banuddin v. Arunachalla, 26 M. L. J. 215; 22 I. C. 351; Bohra Akhey Ram v. Basant Lal, 46 A. 894; 80 I. C. 106; A. I. R. 1924 All. 860; Shubnath v. Sheikh Sabaruddin, 56 C. 416; 119 I. C. 113; A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 465, which held that an attachment before judgment prima facie would continue to have effect if no application for execution had been made. An attachment in execution is not, notwithstanding the provisions of Or. XXXVIII, r. 11, of itself a waiver or abandonment of the attachment before judgment. The effect of the two attachments on the same property is merely that the property is under attachment but a person is entitled to the benefit of either one of the attachments in the absence of abandonment and that no doctrine of merger is applicable to such a case. (This case has been dissented from in 55 B. 693, noted below). But see Meyyappa Chettiar v. Chidambaram, 47 M. 483 (F. B.); 83 I. C. 91; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 494 in which it was held (following 44 M. 902 (F. B.) and overruling 42 M. 1) that the provisions of this rule apply to attachment before judgment which become converted into attachment in execution when application is made to execute the decree passed in the suit; hence upon the dismissal of such an application by the decree-holder's default, the attachment made upon judgment ceases. See also Ardeskar v. Usman, 31 Bom. L. R. 1101; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 455. Unless there is a dismissal of an execution petition attached to a decree-holder's application, the attachment before judgment is not terminated. 303. An application by the decree-debtor before judgment has the consequence of putting an end to the attachment and an alienation by the judgment-debtor after the dismissal of such an application is invalid.—Hari Hari Sahai v. Shafiq, 55 B. 693; 134 I. C. 972; 33 Bom. L. R. 1130; A. said consequence would have happened if was an application for execution by the said attached.—Ibid. See also the same case in 55 B. 693; 119 I. C. 761.

"By reason of the decree-holder's default."—There is no reason for giving a restricted meaning to the word "default" and confining it to default in appearance, in the payment of process fees, or in the production of documents. It includes failure to do what the decree holder is bound to do, that is, to proceed with the application for execution. Omission therefore to serve notice to the judgment-debtor as required by r. 66 of this order is a default; Namuna Bibi v. Roshia, 38 C. 482 : 16 C. W. N. 429 : 9 I. C. 558; Lakhpai Rai v. Mayya Mal, 75 I. C. 821. So also the omission to file a proclamation; Mandhyan v. Badram, 17 C. W. N. 201; Dildar Husain v. Sheo Narain, 41 A. 157 : 49 I. C. 113; Fateh Din v. Qutab Din, 3 L. 7 : A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 108 : 67 I. C. 543. So also omission on the part of the decree-holder to give security; Ardeshir v. Usman, 31 Bom. L. R. 1101 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 455.

Where an execution sale is set aside for any reason other than the decree-holder's default, the antecedent attachment is revived so as to support a second application for execution of the decree by sale of the same property, and no fresh attachment is necessary; Mahabharat v. Suryakanta, 3 P. L. J. 310 : 45 I. C. 529. Venkateswarayyan v. Aswatta, 45 M. L. J. 315 : 75 I. C. 491 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 703. But see Ganpati Bhatta v. Devappa, 46 B. 942 : 76 I. C. 895 : A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 30.

A decree-holder in execution of a decree attached the properties of the judgment-debtor but subsequently accepted a payment made by him towards the debt. The decree-holder applied for the dismissal of the execution application on the ground that the debt had been paid. The Court refused to dismiss the application on the ground that the decree-holder had accepted a payment made by him towards the debt.

execution application was to put an end to the attachment and that the dismissal was due to the default of the decree-holder. No doubt the Court has no power to dismiss an application for execution unless there is default on the part of the decree-holder but, as has been held, default means a failure to do what one is legally bound to do; Jai Krishna v. Bibi Soghra, 71 I. C. 881 : 4 P. L. T. 418.

"Upon the dismissal of such application, the attachment shall cease."—Where an executing Court made an order dismissing the execution case for default on the part of the decree-holder but directed that the properties should remain under attachment; it was held that the order being one dismissing the application for execution, the attachment ceased by virtue of the provision of this rule notwithstanding the Court's direction that the attachment should continue; Namuna Bibi v. Roshia, 38 C. 482 : 15 C. W. N. 428 : 9 I. C. 558; Dildar Husain v. Sheo Narain, 41 A. 157 : 49 I. C. 113. Kundanmal v. Mt. Aziz Begam, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 82; Fateh Din v. Qutab Din, 3 L. 7 : 67 I. C. 543 : A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 108. Where the executing Court struck off the file an application of its own motion and without any default on the part of the decree-holder, there was no dismissal

time being be dismissed but the attachment shall remain in force, it was held that the order was in effect an adjournment of the proceedings and was therefore valid; Mahammad Mubarak v. Sahu, 44 A. 274 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 62 : 65 I. C. 91.

The dismissal under r. 57 is to take place only if the Court is not able to proceed further with the execution of the application. Where a decree is attached in execution of another decree and the latter application is dismissed for default, the attachment does not terminate because the execution proceedings in the decree attached are still pending.—Bishan Sahai v. Amir Singh, L. R. 1931 L. 651 : 132 I. C. 667 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 705.

Cases.—Where, by mistake of the Court, an application for execution against the property under attachment was dismissed, but the decree-holder obtained a review and the executing Court was directed to proceed, and there was no order removing the attachment, held that the attachment subsisted and was valid as against a sale made by the judgment-debtor previous to the review; Aziz Baksh v. Kaniz, 34 A. 490 : 15 I. C. 49. See also Biya v. Raghunath, 48 A. 698 : 97 I. C. 102 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 794.

The dismissal of an execution application under this rule has the effect of vacating a prior order passed under Or. XXI, r. 23 ordering execution to proceed; Periakarappan v. Manikka, 2 L. W. 1055 (24 A. 282, dissented from).

An attachment ceases upon the dismissal of the application for execution. A subsequent application for sale only is defective but curable under S. 153 by amendment; Kunchapudy v. Mallikarjuna, 25 I. C. 883.

Where after attachment by a Court of first instance, the sale was stayed by an order of the appellate Court and the first Court thereupon dismissed the application, held that the attachment subsisted; Valiakath Puthiah v. Thachar, 35 I. C. 240 3 L. W. 601 (38 C. 482 not folld.; 34 A. 490 approved).

After a decree-holder attached property, a claim was filed and the Court recorded the following order on the execution petition: "Decree-holder's Vakil states that he will file a fresh application as the claim petition is pending. Struck off." The claim was allowed and the decree-holder filed a suit and succeeded in it. More than three years after the previous application, the decree-holder applied for execution. Held that the former attachment subsisted and this rule did not apply; Karaturi v. Gopi Setti, 21 M. L. T. 88.

"Striking off."—Where a sale proclamation was not made owing to the laches of the decree-holder and an order was passed "Proclamation not filed, struck off." Held that it amounted to a dismissal of attachment; Mandhyan v. Badram, 17 C. W. N. 204 : 18 I. C. 441. An order stating that the darkhast is "Struck off the file" or "Disposed of" is not valid.—Govardhandas v. Official Liquidator, 31 Bom. L. R. 1209. Such an order coupled with the direction that the property do continue under attachment is not valid. The effect is that attachment is at end and the order must be held to amount to a dismissal of the application for execution.—Kundanmal v. Mt. Aziz Begam, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 82; Sashayya v. Sathiraju, 120 I. C. 863 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 414. The order closing the proceedings must be treated as a dismissal of the application for execution, involving a removal of the attachment.—Ko Kyin v. Abas Khan, 123 I. C. 691 : A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 325.

INVESTIGATION OF CLAIMS AND OBJECTIONS.

58. (1) Where any claim is preferred to, or any objection is made to the attachment of, any property attached in execution of a decree on the ground that such property is not liable to such attachment, the Court shall proceed to investigate the claim or objection with the like power as regards the examination of the claimant or objector, and in all other respects, as if he was party to the suit:

Investigation of claims to, and objection to attachment of, attached property.

Provided that no such investigation shall be made where the Court considers that the claim or objection was designedly or unnecessarily delayed.

(2) Where the property to which the claim or objection applies has been advertised for sale, the Court ordering the sale may postpone it pending the investigation of the claim or objection.

Postponement of sale

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope.—If an order is passed after investigation under the rule, the party against whom such order is passed may bring a regular suit under r. 63. As to when an order is said to be passed on investigation, see notes to r. 63, under the heading, "Limitation of one year, when applies and when does not."

The object of this rule is to give a claimant a speedy and summary remedy and not to deprive him of his remedy by suit. The summary remedy given by this rule is alternative to the remedy by way of suit; Kanhaya Lal v. National Bank of India, 40 I. A. 56: 40 C. 598 (P. C.): 17 C. W. N. 541: 11 A. L. J. 413: 15 Bom. L. R. 472: 18 I. C. 949: 27 M. W. N. 1304: 27 A. L. J. 1008: 22 B. 200; Prabhu v. Vikrama, 11 A. 583; 11 A. 583).

Claims may be preferred in execution proceedings, by parties to the suit or their representatives or by third persons. All objections raised by parties to the suit or their representatives come under S. 47, and the objector should proceed by an application under that section; a separate suit for the purpose is barred. Claims preferred to attached property by third persons come under this rule. It is important to note the distinction, as an order passed under S. 47, allowing or disallowing an objection to attachment, is a "decree" and is therefore appealable, whereas an order rejecting a claim under this rule is not appealable; Abdul v. Muhammad, 4 A. 190; Dayaram v. Govardhan Das, 28 B. 458; Madho v. Hazari, 8 P. 717: 10 P. L. T. 95: 115 I. C. 695:

to be a party to the suit and S. 47 applies to his case and not Or. XXI, r. 58.—Gayaramsao v. Balkishan, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 179. The Court has jurisdiction to entertain a claim to the attached property even after the sale had taken place, for unless the decree is fully satisfied, the attachment subsists under r. 55 of Or. XXI, and if the Court dismisses a claim albeit if it be after the sale, and the claimant does not bring a suit to establish his claim within one year, he is estopped from raising any defence in a suit for possession as the purchaser (16 C.W.N. 1029, dissented from).—Jagannadham v. Pydayya, 61 M. L. J. 884: (1931) M. W. N. 902: 134 I. C. 809: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 782. An unsuccessful claimant has the option to institute a separate suit for establishing his title under r. 63 and if this is not done, the order dismissing the claim is conclusive; Rahim Buz v. Abdul Kader, 32 C. 537; Sardhari Lal v. Ambika, 15 C. 521 (P. C.): 15 I. A. 123; Rajaram v. Raghubansman, 24 C. 563. There was a diversity of judicial opinions as to whether an objection or claim preferred by a party or his representative comes under this rule or S. 47, when the objection is based on the ground that the property is held by him on behalf of a third party as shebait, trustee, etc. As to this see notes to S. 47 under the heading "Objection by Trustee or Shebait, when falls within this section"

If a Court is invited by a decree-holder to sell property not duly attached and the Court is apprised of that fact by a person claiming to be interested therein, it has inherent power to investigate the matter; Sasivama v. Meherban, 13 C. L. J. 243: 9 I. C. 918.

The words of r. 59 show that a claim may be made by a person who has some interest in the property, although he is not in possession. A mortgagee in possession is in possession partly on his own account and partly on account of the mortgagor, i.e., to the extent of his interest. The Code requires the Court to investigate the claim of a mortgagor in such a case and to the extent of the mortgagor's interest and, if it finds it established, to release the property to the extent of the mortgagor's interest.—Nga Tok v. Subramonian, 10 I. C. 994. See also Bhagwan v. Raj Nath, 9 A. L. J. 474: 14 I. C. 790. The claim of a mortgagee which would be inconsistent with the continuance of an unqualified attachment is liable to adjudication by the Court.—Debi Das v. Maharaj Rupchand, 49 A. 903: 102 I. C. 792: A. I. R. 1927 All. 593. The words "on the ground that such property is not liable to attachment" refer to the case only of an objection made to attachment, and not to the case of a claim preferred to the property attached.—Ibid. See in this connection Nawal Kishore v. Khyali Ram, 11 L. 369, noted under the heading "Subject to the result of such suit, the order will be conclusive" in r. 63, post.

An usufructuary mortgagee cannot prefer a claim under this rule but he may come in under r. 100; Biswanath v. Lingaraj, 1 P. 159.

It is not a condition precedent in all cases for a claimant to show that he was in possession before he could attack the validity of an attachment.—Kuppuswami v. Secretary of State, 119 I. C. 33: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 393. See notes under r. 53, post.

An erroneous order on an application under r. 53 does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court making the order. It only entitles the party to come to the Civil Court to have the error rectified.—Subadar v. Ramprit, 115 I. C. 703: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 116.

Objections or claims by parties or their representatives.—See S. 47 and notes. Such objections are governed by S. 47 and not by Or. XXI, r. 58; Gangadhar v. Jagmohan Das, 133 I. C. 859; 33 Bom. L. R. 731; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 446. Where an objector has misdescribed the objection as under this rule when it really is one under S. 47 and the Court acting under a misconception deals with it as one under this rule, the order nevertheless operates as a decree and is appealable under S. 47.—Gopal Das v. Ishar Das, 137 I. C. 258; 33 P. L. R. 496; A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 376.

Objections or claims by Trustee or Shebait.—Where a decree is passed against a judgment-debtor in his individual capacity and he takes an objection to the attachment of certain property in his possession upon the ground that, although it is in his possession, it is not in his possession in his personal capacity but in his possession as a manager of endowed property, the question is one between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree, and objection would lie under S. 47 and not under Or. XXI, r. 58; Shah Naim Ata v. Girdhari Lal, 2 Luck. 145; 100 I. C. 464; 4 O. W. N. 102; A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 120. But see Somwar Gir v. Mayanand, 50 A. 801; 26 A. L. J. 477; A. I. R. 1928 All. 392; 113 I. C. 171, which held that an order passed in such a case comes under Or. XXI, r. 60 and not under S. 47, and consequently the same was not appealable. See also Suniti-sundari v. Sri Krishna, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 514; 112 I. C. 649; Fatechand v. Ganeshgir, 27 N. L. R. 10; 128 I. C. 401; A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 293. See notes under S. 47.

"Shall proceed to investigate."—It is the duty of the Court to investigate. Where a munsif improperly refused to investigate a claim under this rule, he was held to have refused to exercise a jurisdiction which he was bound to exercise and the appellate Court set aside the order and ordered the investigation; Jameela v. Luchmun, 4 C. L. R. 74; see also 17 W. R. 74; 8 W. R. 26; 11 W. R. 54; 1 C. W. N. 24; 22 B. 875.

The extent to which the investigation should be carried, depends upon the circumstances of the case.—Sardhari Lal v. Ambika, 15 C. 521 (P. C.): 15 I. A. 123.

A Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a claim petition under this rule after the attached property has been sold.—Maung Po v. Maung Kwa, 5 R. 751; 107 I. C. 161; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 80.

Where a judgment-debtor was not a party to any claim proceeding, he is not bound by any order passed on the claim petition.—Langama v. Official Receiver, 110 I. C. 511.

A Civil Court while executing a warrant of attachment issued by a Magistrate and trying summarily a claim petition has no jurisdiction to go behind the warrant of attachment which becomes a decree of such Civil Court under S. 386, Cr. P. Code.—Kuppuswami v. Secretary of State, 119 I. C. 33; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 383.

Where after the attachment before judgment of the undivided share of a member of a joint family, a suit for partition by another member was filed and a decree was passed allotting specific lots to the several members, but the creditor nevertheless brought the undivided share of his debtor in all the lots to sale held, on objection by the other members, that the Court was bound, with a view to do substantial justice and avoid multiplicity of actions, to take notice of subsequent events and substitute in the proclamation of sale the ascertained interest of the debtor in the specific lots allotted to his share—Someshwer v. Manulal, 34 Bom. L. R. 206: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 210: 137 I. C. 603

Limits of enquiry.—See notes to r. 60 under the heading "Extent of investigation."

Proviso.—If the Court is of opinion that an application has been designedly or unnecessarily delayed, it may refuse an investigation, but if it makes an investigation it is bound to pass orders under r. 60 or r. 61 and dismissal after investigation on the ground of delay would be illegal. The word "unnecessarily" must be construed in a generous way; Nga San Balu v. Mi Thaik, 39 I. C. 345: (1916) 2 U.B. R. 136: 11 Bur. L. T. 41. After a property which had been attached in execution of a decree, has been sold, the Court has no jurisdiction to hear an application putting forward a claim which, if successful, would result in the release of the attached property; Kali Charan v. Sarajani A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 463: 87 I. C. 168.

Remedy under this rule is alternative.—The summary remedy given by this rule is permissive and alternative. The object is not to deprive a claimant of his remedy by suit, but to give him a more speedy and summary remedy.—Raghunath v. Sarosh, 23 B. 266 See also Krishnabhupati v. Vikrama, 18 M. 13, p. 17; Sundar Singh v. Ghasi, 18 A. 410; Kanhaya v. National Bank of India, 40 I. A. 56: 17 C. W. N. 541 (P. C.): 40 C. 598 11 A. L. J. 413; 15 Bom. L. R. 472: 18 I. C. 949: 25 M. L. J. 104. But see Man Kuar v. Tara Singh, 7 A. 583.

Cases that come under this rule.—Defendants who are exempted from the operation of a decree are not parties to the suit within the meaning of S. 47 and their objection to the attachment of properties is to be investigated under this rule.—Ram Pershad v. Jagannath, 30 C. 134: 6 C. W. N. 10. When a suit is dismissed against one of the parties but decreed against the rest, the former is not a party to the suit within S. 47, and his objection to attachment would fall under this rule.—Rahimuddi v. Lall Meah, 29 C. 696: 6 C. W. N. 727.

Where the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor in certain lands were attached, a claim to a fractional share of the property is to be investigated under this rule—Raj Coomar Roy v. Kadumbiny, 13 W. R. 63 (F. B.): 4 B. L. R. 175 (F. B.).

Held that an objection, made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a decree for the payment of money for the performance of which he had become a surety, might have been taken under this rule at the time of attachment, and was not entertainable under Or. XXI, r. 90.—Hub Lal v. Kankia Lal, 7 A. 365. Objection to attachment could be entertained before the property was sold; the executing Court has no power to entertain it after sale.—Maung Po Pe v. Maung Kwa, 5 R. 751: 107 I. C. 161: A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 80.

A claim set up in an investigation held under S. 287, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, rr. 66, 70), cannot be treated as a claim under S. 278, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 59), the latter section having reference to claims and objections to attachment of property under attachment.—Dhiku Bal v. Khem Chand, 14 B. 369.

Where, in execution of a money-decree against the father alone for a personal debt, the decree-holder attached the whole of the joint family property, a claim by the sons that they were entitled to a share in the property and for its release from attachment is to be investigated under this rule.—Ram Dayal v. Durga Singh, 12 A. 209.

Where there was no covenant to pay the debts by the transferee and if there had been such a covenant, the decree-holder would not have been entitled to proceed against the transferee with whom he had no privity.—Jagat Narain v. Sripathi, 129 I. C. 892: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 390.

An objection of a third party in execution of a decree for delivery of possession falls within the provisions of this rule and not of Or. XXI, r. 99.—Mahabir Prasad v. Parma, 14 A. 417.

An objection in execution on the part of the legal representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor brought on record, falls under S. 47 and not under Or. XXI, rr. 59, 60.—Maria Ursula v. Pana Navalajo, 30 Bom. L. R. 1447.

No appeal lies from an order allowing a claim when made by a person not a party to the decree sought to be executed, as the dispute is not one under S. 47.—Jagannath v. Jamuna, 30 A. L. J. 125: A. I. R. 1932 All. 253: 139 I. C. 785.

Claim to "debts" attached in execution.—It was held in an earlier Bombay case that where a decree-holder attached a debt due to his judgment-debtor the Court could not entertain under this rule a claim preferred by the person served with the prohibitory order; Harilal v. Abhesang, 4 B. 323. It has however been held in a Madras case that when a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument is attached a claim by a third person may be preferred under this rule; Chidambara v. Ramasamy, 27 M. 67 (followed in Tayaballi v. Atmaram, 38 B. 631: 16 Bom. L. R. 520: 25 I. C. 376, where 4 B. 323 was not followed); Central Bank v. Ramkinker, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 751. See also Rajkishore v. Bhabatosh, 49 C. L. J. 51: 115 I. C. 362: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 225. In such a case the Court should examine not only whether the contract of assignment existed but also whether it was property which was in the judgment-debtor's possession.—Ibid. The garnishee who denies the debt can make an application under r. 58 and the Court can pass an order under r. 63.—Maruti v. Ramchandra, 33 Bom. L. R. 396: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 288: 133 I. C. 248.

Though the order against the garnishee's claim is conclusive under r. 63 the order can hardly be said to be conclusive of the rights of the garnishee for the simple reason, that it is not the business of the Court in the attachment proceedings to determine whether the debts are really due.—Seshagiri v. Ramachandra, (1931) M. W. N. 259: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 570: 136 I. C. 513.

Claim to "decrees" attached in execution.—Where in execution of a decree for money obtained by A against B, A attached a certain property (in this case a decree) belonging to B, but before the attachment O had obtained a sale deed in his favour in respect of the property attached, held that the question whether O's title is good, or whether the transfer in O's favour is fictitious, is a question relating to title to the property sought to be attached, and so it clearly comes within the purview of Or. XXI, r. 58, and not under S. 47. The fact that the property to be attached happened to be a decree made no difference; Pearey Lal v. Allahabad Bank, 24 A. L. J. 334: 92 I. C. 14: A. I. R. 1926 All. 244. See also Co-operative Town Bank v. Raman, 5 R. 595: 6 Bur. L. J. 221: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 25: 106 I. C. 853 (following 33 M. 62).

Claim to "property" attached in execution of rent-decree.—S. 170 of the B. T. Act (VIII of 1885) bars a claim under this rule to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon, in all cases.—Amrita Lal v. Nemai, 28 C. 382 (F. B.): 5 C. W. N. 474 (4 C. W. N. 732 approved; 4 C. W. N. 734 overruled); Dwarka Singh v. Nema Singh, 10 P. L. T. 118: 117 I. C. 203: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 195; even where a landlord's interest is sold after decree.—Khetra Pal v. Kritarthamoyi Dassi, 33 C. 566 (F. B.): 10 C. W. N. 547: 3 C. L. J. 470 (3 C. W. N. 604, overruled). But a decree for arrears of rent in respect of two holdings is not a decree for rent as contemplated in Ch. XIV of the B. T. Act. When the holdings are attached in execution of the decree, a claim under this rule is maintainable.—Bipra Das v. Rajaram, 13 C. W. N. 650 (11 C. W. N. 497 and 676, followed).

An attachment of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree obtained by a fractional co-sharer for arrears of rent of his separate share is not such an attachment as is contemplated by S. 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), and therefore this rule is applicable to such a case.—Beni Madhub v. Jaod Ali, 17 C. 390 (F. B.) (14 C. 201^{cited}).

Where a claimant contended that the property attached was neither a tenure nor a holding but homestead land let out for building purposes to which B. T. Act does not apply, the Court had jurisdiction to investigate the claim; Sarba Sundari v. Harendra, 7 I. C. 490.

Claim by Official Assignee after vesting order.—Where, after attachment of property, the judgment-debtor was declared insolvent, and his property vested in the Official Assignee, who made an application for removal of the attachment, held that the Court had jurisdiction in the matter under this rule, and not under S. 47.—Kashi Prasad v. Miller, 7 A. 752. See also Sardarmal v. Aranvayal, 21 B. 205; and Turner v. Pestonji, 20 B. 403 (10 C. 150, and 8 M. 551, followed). See, however, Miller v. Lukhimani Debi, 28 C. 419: 5 C. W. N. 761 (14 W. R. 33 (F. B.) followed).

Where property has been attached under the C. P. Code, the right of an objector and the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the objection, are not ousted by the mere circumstances that the judgment-debtor has been declared insolvent, and his property vested in a receiver.—Paras Ram v. Karam, 9 A. 232. See also Donepudi v. Nune, 119 I. C. 46: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 323: 56 M. L. J. 489.

Claim to property seized by a receiver.—Where property of an insolvent is seized by a receiver in insolvency, a claim cannot be preferred under this rule. The remedy is under S. 22, Prov. Insolvency Act; Mul Chand v. Murari, 36 A. 8.

Claim to property ordered to be sold under a mortgage-decree.—Though the execution of a mortgage-decree is expressly incorporated in the Code, the Committee still thinks that claims and objections arising out of the execution of such decrees should not be the subject of summary procedure under this and the following rules, but should be determined in the ordinary course. This does not imply that the procedure under the later rules as to resistance to possession does not apply."—Report of the Special Committee.

Proceedings by way of claim as provided by this rule are not applicable where the property is directed to be sold under a mortgage-decree for it does not require to be attached in execution; Ata Muhammad v. Rahmat, 116 I. C. 882; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 760. See also Himatram v. Khushal, 18 B. 98; Deefholts v. Peters, 14 C. 631 (folld. in Harimohan v. Lachmi Chand, 18 I. C. 215); *Joy Prokash v. The remedies of the aggrieved person being either to file a suit for recovery or to resist delivery proceedings if he is really in possession (following 14 C. 631, 19 A. 480 and 27 A. 700).—Krishnaswami v. Nagarithnammal, 125 I. C. 559; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 712.

Dismissal of claim if bars a fresh claim.—Where a claim is dismissed or struck off without any adjudication, a fresh claim may be entertained.—Mohadeb Mundul v. Modhoo, 16 W. R. 59. A Judge has no jurisdiction to try the same objector's claim under this section a second time as against the same attachment, or to re-open a question finally decided on the former occasion.—Khelat Chunder v. Bhuggobutty, 14 W. R. 144.

Where an objection under this rule was struck off for default, the High Court refused to interfere in revision, holding that the remedy of the petitioner was under Or. IX, r. 4 read with S. 141 or a suit under r. 63.—Shoo Prasad v. Kastura Kuar, 10 A. 119. See also Kishen Parshad v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 105 I. C. 693; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 872.

Rejection of claim debars assertion of title under rr. 97, 99 and 101.—Rejection of a claim under this rule debars the claimant from asserting his title against an auction-purchaser in a proceeding under S 335, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, rr. 97, 99 and 101).—Nilo Pandurang v. Rama Patloji, 9 B. 35. See also In the matter of Banee Madhub Roy, 13 W. R. 431.

Decision in a claim case is binding upon the parties thereto.—When property which has been attached is ordered to be released, the order is made with reference to the particular claimant obtaining the order. This order is not to be regarded as a general decision (of which all the world can have the benefit) that the property does not belong to the judgment-debtor.—Imam Bandee Begum v. Mahomed Tukee, 8 W. R. 27; and Booliroon-nissa v. Kureemonnissa, 21 W. R. 230. See also Jagan Nath v. Ganesh, 18 A. 413, where it has been held that an order under this rule does not enure for the benefit of other decree-holders, who are not parties to the proceedings. 59. The claimant or objector must adduce evidence to show that at the date of the attachment he had some interest in, or was possessed of, the property attached. [S. 279.]

Scope—This rule does not mean that if the claimant establishes that he has some interest in the property, he is entitled to succeed irrespective of the question of possession, nor does it imply that if he fails to establish the particular interest he sets up, his claim must be disallowed irrespective of the question of possession of the judgment-debtor. In each of the cases mentioned in rr. 60 and 61, the Court must determine the question of possession of the judgment-debtor. The Court cannot base its decision on the question of the validity of the claim or the determination of the title to the property attached; Saikari v. Tirtha Narain, 24 I. C. 62.

"Some interest."—To reconcile this rule with rr. 60 and 61, the words "some interest" must be taken to imply such interest as would make the possession of the judgment-debtor, possession not on his own account but on account of, or in trust for the claimant.—Mohunt Bhaguan v. Khetter Moni, 1 C. W. N. 617, Nga Tok v. Subramonian, 10 I. C. 994. See also Sabhapathi v. Narayanasami, 25 M. 555; Satkari v. Thirinarayan, 24 I. C. 62. A beneficial interest is as much an interest within the meaning of this rule as a legal interest in the property attached.—Sabhapathi v. Narayanasami, noted above. An objector may raise an objection to the attachment of property, not only on the ground that he is in possession of it, but also on the ground that he has an interest in the property attached and having regard to the provisions of rr. 58, 59, 60 and 61. When an executing Court disallows the claim of an objector, the Court has jurisdiction to do so notwithstanding the fact that it erroneously does not go into the merits of the claim. It allows the objection on some other ground.—A. L. J. 474; 14 I. C. 790.

"Was possessed of."—The word "possessed" is not used in a restricted sense as relating to a mere tangible or physical possession. It includes constructive possession, or possession in law, of debts and other intangible property.—Chidambara v. Ramasamy, 27 M. 67 (F. B.) (24 M. 20 dissented from). See notes to r. 60.

Extent of investigation.—"Rules 58 to 62 are directed to give a means by which execution proceedings may be made effective and not too closely entangled with disputes between third parties and the debtor. Provision is made for investigation of claims in a limited fashion. The scope of the enquiry being confined, the investigation will not always be at all elaborate, and the Privy Council, in Sardhari v. Ambika, 15 I. A. 123 : 15 C. 521 (P. C.) have pointed out that sometimes that investigation may well be very slight indeed. Rules 60 and 61 provide then for a summary investigation into possession as distinct from a thorough trial of ultimate right. It is impossible to separate altogether the question of possession and of title. Thus if the judgment-debtor was in possession, he may have been in possession as agent or trustee for another, and this has to be enquired into . . . To that extent the title may be part of the enquiry in a claim case, but no ultimate questions of trust are intended to be threshed out"; (per Rankin, J.) Najimunnessa v. Nacharuddin, 51 C. 548 : 39 C. L. J. 418 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 744 : 83 I. C. 233; Sardhari v. Ambika, noted above; Mohant Bhagwan v. Khetter Moni, 1 C. W. N. 617; Hamid Bakhut v. Buktear Chand, 14 C. 617; Sheoraj Nandan v. Gopal Suran, 18 C. 290; Ganesh Lal v. Mahabir, 119 I. C. 909 A I R 1929 Pat 273.

In investigating the claim preferred by the claimant under Or. XXI, r. 58, the only questions which the Court is competent to consider are whether the property when it was attached was in the possession of the judgment-debtor as his own property; if such property was in the possession of some other person, whether it was in his possession in trust for the judgment-debtor or in the claimant's occupation as the tenant of the judgment-debtor. An investigation of questions of title to the properties is entirely beyond the scope of the investigation directed by the Code when a claim to attached properties is preferred.—Ramaswami v. Karuppa, 27 L. W. 536 : 103 I. C. 67 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad 163 : 54 M. L. J. 321; Ram Saran v. Chhote Lal, 110 I. C. 365 : A. I. R. 1923 All. 659; Sheikh Mahomed v. Pandurang, 115 I. C. 167 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 66. So is an investigation of question as to the intention of the judgment-debtor in transferring the property to the objector.—Imam Din v. Mathra, 132 I. C. 666 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 666.

It is not within the scope of the enquiry in applications for removal of attachment to decide whether the attaching creditor had the right to execute the decree and an order cannot be refused merely because the application in execution was time-barred.—Somasundaram v. Ma Shwe, 7 R. 132 : 117 I. C. 578 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 152.

Benami.—Where the claimant alleges that the property attached is in his own possession on his account, and the decree-holder says that he is a benamdar of the judgment-debtor it should be released as the question of benami is a question of title; Monmohiney v. Radha Kristo, 29 C. 543; Sheoraj v. Gopal, 18 C. 290; Hamid v. Buktear, 14 C. 617; Ganesh Lal v. Mahabir, 119 I. C. 909 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 273.

Onus of proof.—The onus is on the claimant to prove that the property attached was his or in his possession, and therefore not in the possession of the judgment-debtor. His evidence must be confined to proving his own title in a third person.—Nga Tha 1 W. R. 8 (F. B) (8 W. R. 353 over- 10 L. L. J. 42 : 107 I. C. 783 See Abdul Rahman v. Mahomed Asim, 4 C. W. N. 151, noted under S. 53.

60. Where upon the said investigation the Court is satisfied that for the reason stated in the claim or objection such property was not, when attached, in the possession of the judgment-debtor or of some person in trust for him, or in the occupancy of a tenant or other person paying rent to him, or that, being in the possession of the judgment-debtor at such time, it was so in his possession, not on his own account or as his own property, but on account of or in trust for some other person, or partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person, the Court shall make an order releasing the property, wholly or to such extent as it thinks fit, from attachment. [S. 280.]

COMMENTARY.

"Possession of the judgment-debtor or of some person in trust for him," etc.—The question to be determined under this rule is the question of possession; the words "possession of the judgment-debtor or some person in trust for him," refer to cases in which the possession of a claimant as a trustee is of such a character, as to be really in the possession of the debtor, and not to cases in which very intricate questions of law may arise as to whether or not valid trusts may result in particular instances.—Hamid Bakht v. Buktair Chand, 14 C. 617 (followed in Sheoraj Nandan v. Gopal Suran, 18 C 290, and Monmohiney v. Radha Kristo, 29 C. 543). See also Mohunt Bhagwan v. Khetter Moni, 1 C. W. N. 617; Bhaiji v. Administrator-General of Bombay, 23 B. 428.

Partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person.—Held that the latter portion of this rule applies only where the property is in possession of the judgment-debtor, "partly on his own account and partly on account of some other person," and not where the property was at the time of the attachment, and had been for some months previously, in the sole possession of a trustee, and neither wholly nor partly in the possession of the judgment-debtor.—Burjorji Dorabji v. Dhunbai, 16 B. 1. For the meaning of the expressions "on account of" or "in trust for," as used in this rule, see Velji Hirji & Co. v. Bharmal, 21 B. 287.

Where on objection under Or. XXI, r. 58 the Court finds that the claimant has a half share in the moveable property attached it would be the better course for the Court to release the entire property and to proceed by way of attachment under Or. XXI, r. 47.—Rajendra v. Chairman, Jessore District Board, 59 C. 803: 54 C. L. J. 488: 137 I. C. 672: A. I. R. 1932. Cal. 403.

Effect of order of release.—The order for release under this rule is not final but provisional, as r. 63 declares it to be subject to the result of any suit which the attaching creditor may bring to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute. The order of release made under this rule has not therefore the effect of putting an end to an attachment duly made, so as to leave the claimant free to deal with the property in any way he likes. The result is that any private alienation of the property by the claimant, though made after the order of release passed under this rule, will be void under S. 64, if in a title suit subsequently brought by the aggrieved party under r. 63, the right to attach the property is established: Bonomali v. Prosunno, 23 C. 823; Ram Chandra v. Mudeshwar, 33 C. 1159; Protap v. Sarai, 25 C W N 511; 62 I C 319, Ahmad Khan v. Darsi Dhar, 31 A. 367; Anthaya v. Manjappa, 45 M. 81. 63 I. C. 642; A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 176; In the matter of Nasse, 7 R. 201 118 I. C. 616; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 229.

A release from attachment can only be made under this rule, which indicates the conditions on which alone that release can be directed. A Court before directing release must hold those conditions established.—Chiman Lal v. Macleod, 8 Bom. L. R. 794.

This rule contemplates not only the entire release of the property from attachment, but also the retention of the attachment to such extent as the Court thinks fit.—Yashvant Shetty v. Vithora Sheti, 12 B. 231.

Where property has been released from attachment under this rule, and subsequently declared liable to attachment by a decree against which an appeal is pending, a sale of such property before the final result of the appeal is not illegal by virtue of the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 63.—Fathula v. Munyappa, 6 M. 98.

As to whether a judgment-debtor is a party to the proceedings under this section or not, see notes under rule 63.

Appeal and revision.—An order under r. 60 is not conclusive, if it is based on a misapprehension of fact and law. Such an order can be held to be without jurisdiction and can be set aside in revision.—Bhado v. Khodabur, 123 I. C. 407; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 746. Where the lower Court did not decide the question of possession (the only question it was competent to decide) and decided the question of title (the question it was not competent to decide) the High Court interfered in revision.—Satkari v. Tirtha, 24 I. C. 62. See also Sabhapathi v. Narayanasami, 25 M. 555; Phomon Singh v. A. J. Wells, 2 Bur. L. J. 134; Imam Din v. Mathra, 132 I. C. 666; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 666.

No appeal lies from an order under r. 60. The High Court also refused to interfere in revision.—Dayaram v. Gobardhandas, 28 B. 459; Jagannath v. Jamuna, 30 A. L. J. 125; A. I. R. 1932 All. 263; 139 I. C. 785.

Disallowance of claim to property attached.

COMMENTARY.

Disallowance of claim.—If the Court erroneously does not enter into the question of possession but disallows the claim on some other grounds, the order disallowing the claim cannot for this reason only be said to have been made without jurisdiction and therefore a nullity. Such an order is conclusive and binding on the claimant till a suit under r. 63 is brought by the claimant; Bhagwan Das v. Raj Nath, 34 A. 365: 14 I. C. 790.

A certain property having been attached in execution, the plaintiff intervened claiming the property, and was directed to adduce evidence, which however, he failed to do, and the case was struck off. Held that the order striking off the case must be taken as an order disallowing the claim.—Rash Behari v. Buddun Ghunder, 12 C. L. R. 550.

When a claim is preferred, the Court should define the respective shares of the judgment-debtor and intervenor and sell the judgment-debtor's share only. If without doing so, the Court simply orders the sale of the property subject to the claim of the claimant, the order would not be a valid one, and one year's limitation would not be applicable; Udit Narain v. Murtaza, 2 A. L. J. 178: 27 A. 464 (4 W. R. 35 fold.).

The claim of a person in possession under a collusive sale should be rejected on the ground that the property was in possession in trust for the judgment-debtor; McIntosh v. Bidhu Bhusan, 16 C. W. N. 959.

Where the alleged purchaser was in possession of the property but there was no registered deed of sale, held, that the title continued in the judgment-debtor and that the property was liable to be sold.—Hriday v. Benode, 127 I. C. 670: 34 C. W. N. 254: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 390.

Effect of order under this rule.—The effect of an order disallowing a claim to attached property is to give the auction-purchaser a title as against the claimant, unless the order is set aside by a suit.—Khub Lal v. Ram Lochun, 17 C. 260 (15 C. 521 (P. C.) referred to). An order in favour of one of several decree-holders made under this rule does not enure for the benefit of the other decree-holders who are not parties to the proceedings; Jagan Nath v. Ganesh, 18 A. 413.

Appeal and revision.—In execution of a decree against a firm, certain property, was attached, to which a partner objected that it was his private property. The Court disallowed the objection. Held that the order was not under S. 47 and was not appealable.—Abdul Rahman v. Muhammad Yar, 4 A. 190.

Where a Court disallowed an application for the release of certain property attached before judgment—held that there being a remedy by suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 the High Court should not interfere in revision.—J. J. Guise v. Jaisraj, 15 A. 405 (8 M. 484 (F. B.), 10 A. 119, and 11 A. 383 referred to); Subbu Reddiar v. Kumaraswamy, 21 I. C. 461: 1913 M. W. N. 856; Sheo Prasad v. Kastura, 10 A. 119; Alangu Ram v. Homeshwar, 125 I. C. 575: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 394. See, however, Salkari v. Tirtha Narain, 24 I. C. 62. Where the Court refused to adjudicate the claim and it appeared that it failed to consider the law applicable and prejudice was thereby caused: held, that the High Court could interfere in revision.—Somasundaram v. Ma Shwe Thit, 7 R. 132: 117 I. C. 578: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 152.

62. Where the Court is satisfied that the property is subject to a mortgage or charge in favour of some person not in possession, and thinks fit to continue the attachment, it may do so, subject to such mortgage or charge. [S. 282.]

Continuance of attachment subject to claim of Incumbrancer.

COMMENTARY.

"Subject to a mortgage"—This rule lays down that where during the investigation of claims or objections, the Court is satisfied that the property is subject to a mortgage it may direct it to be sold subject to that mortgage, i.e., the right of redemption is offered for sale. Rule 66 says that when a property is ordered to be sold, the sale-proclamation should specify any incumbrance to which the property is liable. So that in the latter case the purchaser buys it simply with notice of mortgage or charge but there is no finding that the mortgage really exists. It may turn out that there is no subsisting mortgage or that the mortgage is invalid. The auction-purchaser is not debarred from contesting the validity or otherwise of the mortgage. If such mortgage is declared invalid, he is entitled to the benefit and the judgment-debtor cannot claim from him the amount due on the mortgage (Izzatunnisa v. Partab, 13 O. W. N. 1143 (P. C.): 31 A. 593: 36 I. A. 203: 3 I. C. 793: 19 M. L. J. 682: 11 Bom. L. R. 1220). Under this rule, the Court decides that a mortgage subsists and the property is sold subject to it, and a purchaser cannot question the validity of the incumbrance.—Gur Charan v. Bachni, 30 I. C. 238; Maroti v. Musst. Sona Bai, 26 N. L. R. 136 (F. B.): 123 I. C. 474: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 116.

The Court, may, in a claim preferred under r. 58 on the ground that the property is subject to a mortgage, decide that there is no such mortgage and in such a case the order has the effect of cutting down the mortgagee's time for suing to establish the mortgage to one year, the limitation provided for bringing a suit under r. 63, post. See Debi Das v. Maharaj Rupchand, 49 A. 903: 102 I. C. 792: A. I. R. 1927 All. 593; Velu v. Arumugam, 38 M. L. J. 397: 56 I. C. 481, Lakshumanan v. Parasivan, 37 M. L. J. 159: 52 I. C. 720; Nawal Kishore v. Khiyali Ram, 11 L. 369: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 865: 12 I. C. 679. It is under r. 63, the only effect will be that the mortgage would be wiped out; there is no authority for the view that it would wipe out the original mortgage.—Sankuratri Dorayya v. Govindarajulu Narasimham, 110 I. C. 567: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 525.

The distinction between r. 62 and r. 66 is that in the former case the Court, being satisfied of the existence of the mortgage, sells only the judgment-debtor's right of redemption, so that the purchaser does not acquire any greater rights than those of redeeming the mortgage. In the latter case the Court decides nothing as to the existence of the mortgage and the purchaser buys subject to such risks as the notice might involve. Thus, in execution of a money-decree the rights of a mortgagor in certain property, ostensibly subject to mortgage, were sold. The property was not sold subject to the mortgage as contemplated by this rule. But the existence of the mortgage was notified in the sale-proclamation without enquiry, held, on a suit brought by the mortgagee for sale, that the auction-purchaser was not debarred from proving the order disallowing the claim cannot for this reason only be said to have been made without jurisdiction and therefore a nullity. Such an order is conclusive and binding on the claimant till a suit under r. 63 is brought by the claimant; Bhagwan Das v. Raj Nath, 34 A. 365: 14 I. C. 790.

A certain property having been attached in execution, the plaintiff intervened claiming the property, and was directed to adduce evidence, which however, he failed to do, and the case was struck off. Held that the order striking off the case must be taken as an order disallowing the claim.—*Rash Behari v. C. 238; Maroti v. Musst. Sona Bai, 26 N. L. R. 136 (F. B.): 123 I. C. 474: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 116.

The Court, may, in a claim preferred under r. 58 on the ground that the property is subject to a mortgage, decide that there is no such mortgage and in such a case the order suing to establish the a suit under r. 63, p 102 I. C. 792: A. I. R. 1927 All. 593; Velu v. Arumugam, 38 M. L. J. 397: 56 I. C. 481; Lakshumanan v. Parasivan, 37 M. L. J. 159: 52 I. C. 720; Nawal Kishore v. Khyali Ram, 11 L. 369: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 865: 12 I. C. 679. If the mortgagee does not bring that suit under r. 63, the only effect will be that the attaching creditor gets priority; there is no authority for the view that the mere dismissal of the claim would wipe out the original mortgage.—Sankuratri Dorayya v. Govindarajulu Narasimham, 110 I. C. 567: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 525.

The distinction between r. 62 and r. 66 is that in the former case the Court, being satisfied of the existence of the mortgage, sells only the judgment-debtor's right of redemption, so that the purchaser does not acquire any greater rights than those of redeeming the mortgage. In the latter case the Court decides nothing as to the existence of the mortgage and the purchaser buys subject to such risks as the notice might involve. Thus, in execution of a money-decree the rights of a mortgagor in certain property, ostensibly subject to mortgage, were sold. The property was not sold subject to the mortgage as contemplated by this rule. But the existence of the mortgage was notified in the sale-proclamation without enquiry, held, on a suit brought by the mortgagee for sale, that the auction-purchaser was not debarred from proving that the mortgage was fictitious and without consideration.—Shib Kunwar v. Sheo Prasad, 28 A. 418: 3 A. L. J. 200: 1906 A. W. N. 68 (27 A. 97, referred to); Jairaj v. Radha Kishan, 35 A. 257: 20 I. C. 182; Shah Ziauddin v. Kailash Chandra, 2 C. L. J. 599; Bhagwan v. Ahmad Jan, 36 I. C. 732; Kalidas v. Prasanna, 47 C. 446: 55 I. C. 189: 24 C. W. N. 269; Agha Sultan v. Mohabbat Khan, 43 A. 489: 63 I. C. 395; Roshan Lal v. Lallu, 44 A. 714: A. I. R. 1922 All. 443: 68 I. C. 790; Mt. Mankaur v. Ishar Das, 11 L. 90: 31 P. L. R. 358: 120 I. C. 162: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 40; Wazir Husain v. Bini, 7 O. W. N. 676: 126 I. C. 389: A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 362; Shivlal v. Tani Ram, A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 444: 30 Bom. L. R. 1136; Chunilal v. Pira Miyaji, 29 Bom. L. R. 285: 101 I. C. 335: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 234.

G obtained a money-decree against H and attached some property. U preferred a claim alleging himself to be the owner of the property. The Court held that H was the owner but U had a lien. The property was sold subject to the lien and purchased by N. U then sued N for the amount of the lien. Held, that N was not bound by the miscellaneous order for he was neither a party nor a representative. The Court's order was not under this rule but under r. 66; Narayan v. Umbar, 35 B. 275: 10 I. C. 913.

In an enquiry under this rule it is not open to the Court to give a direction that the properties be sold with notice of a subsisting mortgage. If the existence of a valid mortgage is established all that the Court can do is to pass an order continuing the attachment subject to the mortgage.—Hridoy v. Benode, 127 I. C. 670: 34 C. W. N. 254: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 390.

Where a claim that attached properties should be sold as subject to a mortgage or lease has been decided by an executing Court, the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 63 apply to the decision (A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 423 overruled).—Maroti v. Mt. Sona Bai, 26 N. L. R. 136 (F. B.): 123 I. C. 474: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 116. So even after the sale, the decree-holder purchaser is entitled to question the validity and bona fides of the mortgage within a year of the order in the claim case.—Kesho Ram v. Chunni Singh, 52 A. 1032: 131 I. C. 674: 29 A. L. J. 1: A. I. R. 1931 All. 139. See also Maung Aung v. Maung Tha, 9 R. 367: 134 I. C. 746: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 310.

Rule 62 does not apply to an application by a puisne mortgagee, who has purchased the property mortgaged in execution of his decree to have his prior incumbrance notified in the execution proceedings of a subsequent mortgage but the application is maintainable under Or. XXI, r. 66.—Mathura v. Ghanshiyam, 132 I. C. 767: 14 O. L. J. 233: 8 O. W. N. 179: A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 157.

See notes to r. 66 under the heading "Any incumbrance to which the property is liable."

63. Where a claim or an objection is preferred, the party against whom an order is made may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute, but, subject to the result of such suit, if any, the order shall be conclusive.

Saving of suits to establish right to attached property.

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope.—The object of a suit is not to have the order in the claim proceedings set aside, but to have the right of the claimant in the property in dispute established.—Bibi Aliman v. Dhakeshwer, 1 C. L. J. 296 (13 B. 72, 18 B. 211, and 13 C. 228, dissented from). In these latter cases it seems to have been held that the suit to be brought is one to set aside the order made in the claim case. In Veera Pannadi v. Karuppa, 2 I. C. 980; 6 M. L. T. 154, it has been held that a suit under this rule is one to set aside the order passed upon the claim, and is a form of appeal therefrom. A suit under this rule is a suit to alter or set aside a summary decision or order of the Court and is a method of obtaining a review; Jamahar Kumari v. Askaran, 22 C. L. J. 27 (35 C. 202; 7 C. L. J. 36, folld.).

This rule is much wider in its scope than the corresponding S. 283 of the Code of 1882, and unlike the latter section covers cases in which there has been no investigation. Under the new Code such orders become final if not set aside within one year; Narasimha v. Vijayapala, 27 I. C. 944; 2 L. W. 206.

The effect of the judgment in the suit brought in accordance with this rule is to supersede the order under r. 58 and to render it inconclusive.—Kissorymohun v. Hursook Dass, 17 I. A. 17; 17 C. 436 (P. C.).

A suit under this rule is a continuation of claim proceedings. It is merely a form of appeal in the guise of an original suit. Certain property was released after a claim was put in. The claimant sold it to another person within one year from date of release. The decree-holder sued under this rule to set aside the order in the claim case. Held the purchaser was an alienee pendente lite; Krishnappa v. Abdul Khader, 38 M. 535; 25 I. C. 11; 26 M. L. J. 449 (31 M. 262 referred to). No separate notice is required to be given in the suit under S. 49 (1) of the Court of Wards Act (following 35 C. 202 (P. C.)).—Raja of Ramnad v. Subramaniam, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1201; 52 M. 465; 116 I. C. 827. When the suit is decided in favour of the decree-holder, the attachment is revived although the property was released from attachment (23 C. 829, 33 C. 1158, A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 101, A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 176, folld.).—Haran Chandra v. Joy Chand, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 524.

But an attachment under Or. XXI, r. 43 which has been removed is not restored by the mere force of the decree passed in a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63.—Lakshmichand v. M. E. V. & Co. Chettyar, 8 R. 491; 126 I. C. 223; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 247. The effect of a suit under this rule is to keep the execution proceedings which have given rise to it pending till the decision of the suit.—Hasan Shah v. Mahomed Amir, 7 O. W. N. 887; 128 I. C. 728; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 468.

In a suit under this rule the Court is not restricted to determine only the question as to whether property ought to be attached or not. The judgment-debtor can plead that the decree was collusively obtained and the suit from the beginning to the end was a fraud; Bama Charan v. Bogala, 23 I. C. 755 (17 M. 389 followed).

It is open to a judgment-debtor to bring a suit under this rule without including a prayer for possession. In a declaratory suit therefore it is unnecessary to consider whether the judgment-debtor is in possession or not; Saleka v. Malladi, 16 M. L. T. 300.

In a suit or proceeding cognizable by the Revenue Court, where the Assistant Collector has decided an objection in a particular way and his order has been affirmed or reversed by the Collector under S. 247 of the Agra Tenancy Act, the appellate order of the Collector is not final and the party aggrieved thereby has a right of suit under this rule.—Bikram v. Dip Singh, 54 A. 767: 141 I. C. 606: 30 A. L. J. 514: A. I. R. 1932 All. 502.

Person objecting under rule 58 can plead invalidity of attachment when suing under rule 63.—A person who puts in a claim petition under r. 58 can, when asking for a declaration under r. 63 that his property is not liable to attachment, also show that either what was done was no attachment or that there was an invalid attachment which could not affect his rights in any way; Venkatappayya v. Venkatachalapathi Rao, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 450: 99 I. C. 989.

Procedure under this rule is permissive.—The procedure prescribed by this Rule is only permissive and it does not in any way affect the right of a claimant to pay up the decretal amount in order to save the property from sale and then to sue to recover the amount from the party who wrongfully attached the property; Kanhaya Lal v. The National Bank of India Ltd., 40 I. A. 56: 40 C. 598 (P. C.): 17 C. L. J. 478: 11 A. L. J. 413: 15 Bom. L. R. 472: 25 M. L. J. 104: 18 I. C. 949.

"Party against whom an order is made."—If the order is made against the decree-holder under r. 60, he may bring a suit under this rule to get a declaration of his rights to attach and sell the property; Mitchell v. Mathura, 12 I. A. 150: 8 A. 6 (P. C.); Dallu Mal v. Hari Das, 23 A. 263; Tofail v. Bane Madhub, 24 W. R. 394. The claimant whose claim has been disallowed under r. 61, may sue the decree-holder under this rule to establish his right to the property attached; Narayanrav v. Balkrishna, 4 B. 529 (F. B.). A judgment-debtor who is not in fact a party to the claim proceedings does not become such only because he happens to be the judgment-debtor. Unless, therefore, he is a party in fact, the order of release made in favour of the claimant is not binding on him, and he may institute a suit even after the lapse of one year from the date of the order, provided he does so within the ordinary period of limitation applicable to the suit, to establish his title to and recover possession of the property from the claimant; Krishnasami v. Somasundaram, 30 M. 335 (F. B.); Vadapalli v. Dronamraju, 31 M. 163; Shivapa v. Dod, 11 B. 114; Kedar v. Rakhal, 15 C. 674. The fact that a person became a representative of the judgment-debtor who was no party to the claim proceedings does not override the estoppel or relieve against the disability imposed by this rule; Ramu Aiyar v. Palaniappa, 35 M. 35.

Where a claim or objection is preferred by a mortgagee under r. 59, and the Court disallows the objection owing to the default of the mortgagee to produce the mortgage deed in time, the unsuccessful objector comes within the words "the party against whom the order is made"; Debi Das v. Maharaj Rup Chand, 49 A. 903: 25 A. L. J. 609: 102 I. C. 792: A. I. R. 1927 All. 593.

Every order which is not in favour of a party should not be construed as against him within the meaning of this rule. Where the garnishee denied the debt and his objection to the attachment was disposed of by an order in terms "the main application need not be proceeded with:" held, that there was no adverse order against him within the meaning of r. 63 and that there was no obligation on his part to bring a suit within one year to nullify that order and so he was not debarred from raising the same defence in a suit brought by the decree-holder against him to realise the debt.—Maruti v. Ramchandra, 133 I. C. 248 : 33 Bom. L. R. 396 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 283.

The defendant against whom the suit had been dismissed filed objections to an attachment. Order passed on such objections is one under S 47 and not under Or. XXI., r. 58. Appeal, not revision, is the remedy.—Madho v. Hazari, 8 P. 717 : 115 I. C. 695 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 141 : 10 P. L. T. 95.

Where the execution petition is ordered to be closed for the decree-holder's default and on the same day the claimant's application for removal of attachment is also ordered to be closed, the order cannot be said to be an order under r. 60 or an order against the decree-holder within the meaning of r. 63 —Maung Tun v. U Tha, 118 I. C. 634 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 123. (In this case no notice of claim was served on the decree-holder)

No suit can lie under this section unless there has been an order either allowing or disallowing an objection to attachment. A person is not entitled to file an objection to an attachment and then to withdraw it and bring a suit under this rule.—Mulk Raj v. Ralla, 7 L. 235 : 93 I. C. 997 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 348.

Necessary parties in a suit under this rule.—This rule provides that a party against whom an order under r. 60 or r. 61 is made, may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the property in dispute. Such a suit must, under Art. 11 of the Limitation Act, 1908, be instituted within one year from the date of the order; otherwise the order made against him shall be conclusive. The following persons are competent to file a suit under this rule :—

(1) The claimant whose claim to the attached property has been disallowed under r. 61, may institute a suit against the decree-holder to establish his right to the attached property; Narayanrao v. Balkrishna, 4 B. 529 (F. B.). The judgment-debtor is a necessary party to such a suit; Ghasi Ram v. Mangal Chand, 28 A. 41.

(2) The decree-holder against whom an order releasing the property from an attachment is made, may institute a suit against the successful claimant for a declaration of his right to attach and sell the property; Mitchell v. Mathura Das, 12 I. A. 150 : 8 A. 6 (P. C.). To such a suit the judgment-debtor is not necessary party; Ghasi Ram v. Mangal Chand, 28 A. 41, nor a purchaser (as being a purchaser pendente lite) from the successful claimant. The decree-holder is a necessary party to the suit under this rule.—Chand v. Mangal Chand, 990 : A. I. R. 1925 Bom. C. 11 : 26 M. L. J. 449.

(3) The judgment-debtor may also, if he is affected by the order of release, institute a declaratory suit under this rule against the claimant.

If the judgment-debtor is a party in fact, he will be bound by the order unless he brings the suit within one year. If he is not a party in fact, his rights, are not affected and he may bring a suit within the ordinary period of limitation. An order made in a claim case is not conclusive against or in favour of the judgment-debtor unless he was a party to the proceedings in which the order was passed.—Vadapalli Narasimham v. Dronamraju, 31 M. 163; Krishnasami v. Somasundaram, 30 M. 335 (F. B.); Kedar v. Rakhal, 15 C. 674; Anantram v. Damodar Das, 22 I. C. 797.

There were two claim petitions—one on the allegation of purchase prior to attachment, the other claiming by survivorship. Both petitions were heard and the Court found that the property had passed by survivorship to one claimant, and plaintiff who was the other claimant, could not make good his claim of bona fide purchase. One order was however passed raising the attachment. Held that though the Court passed an adverse opinion, that did not make the plaintiff “the party against whom an order” was passed; Ponaka Balarami v. Hazi Mahomed, 26 M. L. J. 499.

Where a claim has been rejected and the properties have been sold and purchased by a stranger purchaser, the decree-holder is not a necessary party to a suit by the claimant; Subbaraya v. Kandaswamy, 32 M. L. T. 124: 70 I. C. 163; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 53. The decree-holder is not a necessary party in a suit by an unsuccessful claimant to recover possession of property sold in execution of the decree from the auction-purchaser who claimed to be the owner thereof and was in possession thereof, inasmuch as the plaintiff in such a suit claims no relief against the decree-holder.—Bhola Sunar v. Madho, 105 I. C. 799: A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 65.

In a suit under this rule, the other creditors of the judgment-debtor need not be necessarily added. The attaching creditor, the judgment-debtor and the alleged transferee are the only proper parties; Surendra v. Kiran Moyi, 1 I. C. 428.

Where the contest was throughout between the objector and the judgment-debtor and the objection was allowed, held that the judgment-debtor was a party to the proceedings; Anantram v. Damodar, 22 I. C. 797: 84 P. R. 1914.

Leave of the Insolvency Court under S. 23 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, is not necessary for the commencement of a suit by the attaching creditor under this rule for a declaration that the property belonged to the judgment-debtor at the date of the attachment.—Subramanyam v. Narasimham, 56 M. L. J. 489: 119 I. C. 46: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 323.

As to who are necessary parties generally under this rule, see Durga v. Jolindra, 27 C. 493.

Claims to property attached before judgment.—Rules 53 to 63 attached before judgment.—Mallik (F. B.): 47 I. C. 1000; Rajkishore v. I. R. 1929 Cal. 225; M. S. M. M. Firm v. Maung Sein, 9 R. 561: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 279: 135 I. C. 326. Difference between attachment in execution and attachment before judgment pointed out in Pratap v. Srat, 33 C. L. J. 201, where it has been held that even after a release of attachment in execution, the attachment will revive, if a suit under this Rule succeeds but the claimant must be made a party within the period of limitation, but the attachment before judgment falls with the dismissal of a suit and does not revive even if the appeal succeeds.

The inappropriateness of applying Or. XXI, rr. 58 and 63 to an attachment before judgment was pointed out in Seshagiri v. Ramchandra, 1931 M. W. N. 259; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 570; 135 I. C. 543.

Nature of suit under this rule.—"A suit under this rule is not limited by any special standard of evidence or law. The claimant may, if necessary, thrash out his title in the fullest and most ultimate sense. But if the title which he claims is not the ultimate full title to the property, then, of course, he must be content to assert whatever the title claimed may be. So, too, the decree-holder may make out his debtor's title exactly as if it were a suit for possession by the judgment-debtor"; (per Rankin J.) Najimunnessa v. Nacharuddin, 51 C. 548; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 744; 83 I. C. 233; Vasudeo v. Eknath, 35 B. 79; 8 I. C. 639. Where a claimant instituted a suit under this rule to establish his title, viz., that he had purchased the property from the judgment-debtor prior to the institution of the suit by the attaching creditor, the attaching creditor can plead in defence that the transfer was in fraud of the general body of creditors.—Ramaswami v. Mallappa, 43 M. 760 (F. B.); 59 I. C. 947 (overruling 41 M. 612); Abdul Kadir v. Ali Mia, 15 C. L. J. 649; 14 I. C. 715; Bimray v. Lazman, 22 Bom. L. R. 743; 57 I. C. 430. Similarly an attaching creditor is competent to institute a suit to establish his right to proceed against the property under this rule and is not bound to bring a representative suit on behalf of all the creditors of the judgment-debtor to set aside a transfer.—Din Muhammad v. Uma Dutt, 133 I. C. 118; 32 P. L. R. 201; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 430; R. R. O. O. Chettyar v. Ma Sen Yin, 5 R. 588; 105 I. C. 582; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 1; Pokker v. Kunhamad, 42 M. 143.

The institution of a suit by the attaching creditor under this rule is not merely a continuation of the original claim proceedings but is really in part a new legal proceeding.—Subramanyam v. Narasimham, 29 L. W. 349; 119 I. C. 46; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 323; 56 M. L. J. 489. A suit under this rule may not necessarily be a suit for possession, but for a declaration to set aside an order passed in the execution department, but a Court of equity has to see whether there is an honest suit for declaration or whether the declaration is sought on principles which would be held by a Court to be inequitable.—Chito v. Ghunni Lal, 124 I. C. 713; A. I. R. 1930 All. 395. In a suit brought by the decree-holder, the title of the objector has to be negatived before his right to attach and sell the property alleged to belong to the judgment-debtor is negatived.—Damodar v. Pearey Lal, 130 I. C. 200; 28 A. L. J. 1322.

There is nothing in this rule to limit the party unsuccessful in the claim proceedings under rr. 60 and 61, to a suit for a mere declaration of his alleged right. He is at liberty to pray for consequential relief to which he may be entitled. Thus it is competent for a plaintiff in a suit under this rule to pray for a declaration of his right to moveables and also for a direction that the defendant at whose instance they were attached, be ordered to pay him the value of the moveables; Basivi Reddi v. Ramayya, 40 M. 733; 31 M. L. J. 394; 36 I. C. 445; Sadu v. Ram, 16 B. 603; Abdul Rahim v. Sital, 41 A. 653; 54 I. C. 792. In a suit to establish a right under this rule, the plaintiff may include a prayer for refund of costs which he has been ordered to pay in the claim proceedings, and if he does not do so, the Court which tried the claim proceedings, cannot make an order for refund of the costs; Raghu Nath v. Badri Prasad, 6 A. 21; Maung Tha Dun v. Ma Mai Ein, 119 I. C. 213; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 128. See also Abdul Azir v. Alliance Bank, 132 I. C. 215; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 483; V. E. R. Firm v. Maung Po Kyone, 6 R. 408; 112 I. C. 285; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 248.

The words "the right which he claims to the property in dispute" mean the right which is claimed in that proceeding in respect of the property, that is, the right to have it sold or the right to have it released from attachment. They do not mean the right or title to the property. Rules 58, 61 and 63 must be read together. Where therefore, a claimant being unsuccessful in a claim case has got the property released from attachment by coming to terms with the decree-holder without notice to the judgment debtor, a suit subsequently brought by him against the judgment-debtor for recovery of possession is not barred by this rule.—Morshia Barayal v. Elahi Bux, 3 C. L. J. 381 (15 C. 674 and 31 C. 228 followed). In an enquiry under this rule the Court may, in a proper case, go into questions of title and is not necessarily restricted to the question of possession.—Maung Po v. Somasundram, 39 I. C. 275.

The suit contemplated by the section is a suit to establish the right which the plaintiff claims in the claim petition and the cause of action in the suit filed under r. 63 must be the cause of action comprised in the claim petition.—Venkata Subba v. Vigneeswaradu, 1928 M. W. N. 336; 28 L. W. 82; 110 I. C. 554; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 840; 56 M. L. J. 52. Where the dispute was only as to priority between the attaching creditor and petitioning claimant, and the claim was dismissed and the dismissal not set aside by suit, the only effect is that the attaching creditor gets priority. Here is no authority for the view that in such cases the mere dismissal of the claim would wipe out the original mortgage, especially when there is no dispute between the parties as to that.—Dorayya v. Narasimham, 110 I. C. 567; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 525. Causes of action arising subsequent to the dismissal of the claim need not be joined in a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 to set aside the order under Or. XXI, r. 58. Where the plaintiff's claim under r. 58 was dismissed and on dismissal the defendant purchased and obtained possession of the property attached and a suit under r. 63 by the plaintiff for a declaration of title was decreed in his favour; held, that subsequent suit by plaintiff for possession of the property was not barred by Or. II, r. 2.—Venkata Subba v. Vigneeswaradu, 1928 M. W. N. 336; 28 L. W. 82; 110 I. C. 554; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 840. Where a party has applied for removal of attachment from his share and has been unsuccessful, the only remedy left is to file a declaratory suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 and not a suit under the Specific Relief Act, S. 42.—Ma Than Yin v. Sena Mahomed, 115 I. C. 912; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 101. A person who has failed to make a claim or objection under Or. XXI, r. 58, is not entitled to sue for a mere declaration under r. 63 where he is able to seek further relief.—U Po Thein v. O. A. O. &c. Firm, 5 R. 639; 106 I. C. 368; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 34.

"Subject to the result of such suit, the order shall be conclusive."—It was held under the old Code that an order passed under r. 61 rejecting a claim after investigation, would, if not contested by the claimant, operate as an estoppel in a subsequent suit.—Dailur Krishna v. Lakshmana, 4 M. 302; Velayuthan v. Lakshmana, 8 M. 506; Krishnan v. Chadayan Kutti, 17 M. 17; Nemaunda v. Paresha, 22 B. 640; and Surnamoyi v.

Ashutosh, 27 C. 714; but an order passed without investigation is not conclusive.—Karsan v. Ganpatram, 22 B. 875; nor is an order passed without jurisdiction, in a claim preferred in execution of a mortgage-decree.—Joy Prokash v. Abhoy, 1 C. W. N. 701. Under the present Code the order is conclusive, whether passed on investigation or not, and even when the claim case is dismissed for default.—Satindra Nath v. Shiva Prosad, 26 C. W. N. 126; Durga Das v. Gori Mal, 26 A. L. J. 794; A. I. R. 1928 All. 327; 116 I. C. 81; Govindaswami, In re, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1259; 113 I. C. 358; or dismissed on a preliminary ground; Subadar Singh v. Rampri, 115 I. C. 703; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 116. An order , never kind under Or. XXI, r. 58 comes under r. a suit filed within one year.—Damodar v. Pec L. J. 1322. See also Ran Bahadur v. Saliq Ram, 131 I. C. 77 (F. B.); 7 O. W. N. 1173; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 1. The alteration in the wordings of rr. 61-63 and Art. 11 of the Limitation Act should be particularly noticed. See also Machi Raju v. Sri Raja, 41 M. 985 (F. B.); 48 I. C. 270, where it has been held that an order refusing to investigate a claim is one under this rule and therefore conclusive if not set aside by a suit within the time prescribed by Art. 11 of the Limitation Act; and the practice of notifying claims to intending purchasers without deciding the claim case is condemned. Even where the attachment was not necessary as in the case of the execution of a mortgage decree, such attachment cannot be said to be wholly void and ineffective and where a person puts in a claim by reference to such attachment the order on the claim can be made binding on him and it must be set aside within one year.—Dorayya v. Narasimham, 110 I. C. 567; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 525.

If a person chooses to take advantage of a summary procedure, he must suffer its disadvantages as well as enjoy its benefit. Where, therefore, a mortgagee without possession, chooses to prefer an objection under Or. XXI, r. 58 on the strength of his alleged mortgage and an adverse order is passed against him in the objection proceeding such decision is conclusive against him unless he brings a declaratory suit within one year.—Naval Kishore v. Khyali Ram, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 865; 120 I. C. 679; 11 L. 369. If the order be in his favour, the person who is adversely affected may bring a suit under this rule, otherwise the property will be sold subject to the incumbrance.—Maroti v. Mt. Soma Bai, 26 N. L. R. 136 (F. B.); 123 I. C. 474; A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 116.

Where an order has been passed against any person making a claim to a property under attachment, if such person fails to bring a suit under this rule within the prescribed time, he is precluded from asserting his title against the auction-purchaser, whether plaintiff or defendant.—Nilo v. Roma, 9 B. 35; Yashvant Shenvi v. Vithova Sheti, 12 B. 231; Surnamoyi v. Ashutosh, 27 C. 714; Dinkar Ballal v. Hari Shridhar, 14 B. 206; Badri Prasad v. Muhammad Yusuf, 1 A. 391 (F. B.); Jeoni v. Bhagwan, 1 A. 541; Bibi Aliman v. Dhakeshwer Pershad, 1 C. L. J. 296. Nor can he raise again his claims to the property even though he may have come to occupy the position of a defendant.—Durga Das v. Gori Mal, 116 I. C. 81; 26 A. L. J. 794; A. I. R. 1928 All. 327. See also Ma Pyaw v. Latchmanan, 131 I. C. 727; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 183. But see Mannu Lal v. Harsukh Das, 3 A. 233; Haripada v. Surendra, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 164; Piara Ram v. Ganga Ram, 71 I. C. 45. In objection proceedings the contest is really between the decree-holder who asserts that the property is liable to attachment and the claimant who alleges that it is not in the actual or constructive possession of the judgment-debtor and therefore not liable to attachment. And the order made in such a case is either that the property be released from the attachment as not being in the possession of the judgment-debtor or that the claim be disallowed, but such an order does not affect the right or title of the judgment-debtor to the property. The order under Or. XXI, r. 63 is conclusive in the sense that it cannot be agitated again in the execution proceedings in which it was passed unless a suit is brought within one year of the date of the order, i.e., it is conclusive as between the claimant and the decree-holder who is proceeding against the property. If however the decree-holder raises the attachment within a year, obviously there is no reason why the claimant should institute a suit to set aside the order as there is no attachment in force. It makes no difference if the attachment is raised after the termination of one year. It only means that in those proceedings the claimant is running a risk and will be estopped from contesting the decree-holder's right to proceed against the property; but if the decree-holder does not sell the property and the decree is satisfied otherwise, the fact that the attachment was raised more than a year after the date of the order or the claim does not make any difference.—Ohet Singh v. Gujar Singh, 131 I. C. 225; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 74. The dismissal of a previous objection is a bar to a second objection.—Sita Ram v. Pir Baksh, 130 I. C. 406; 33 P. L. R. 413; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 6.

The expression "result of the suit" includes the result of the appeal against the decree in the suit.—Ram Kishan v. Kundan Lal, 5 Luck. 680; 7 O. W. N. 313; 131 I. C. 902; A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 265.

Effect of decision in claim case regarding possession—Whether res judicata.—The Code, in using the words "shall be conclusive" of the order made after the limited investigation contemplated by rr. 58 to 62, is thinking not of the subsequent effects of that decision as res judicata, but is thinking of and dealing with a Court that is doing something. The Court has attached and is going to sell. The meaning is that the act of the Court is to be valid unless there is a suit. It means that the attachment held valid in the claim case shall be valid and the attachment removed shall be as though it never was, so far as the parties are concerned. The rule seems to mean that subject to a suit factum valet, the act of the Court shall not be questioned save in that way; the effect of the decision as to possession in other proceedings in which that question may again arise, is not the matter to which the words "shall be conclusive" are directly addressed; Nayimunessa v. Nacharuddin, 51 O. 548; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 744; 83 I. C. 233.

Certain creditors attached some wakf properties and the mutawalli filed an objection. The Court found the wakf invalid and the properties were sold. An heir of the wakf who was a judgment-debtor brought a suit for a declaration of his title in the properties. Held, that the decision in the claim case was not res judicata; Ashan Bibi v. Awaljadi, 21 O. W. N. 232.

Order when not conclusive.—A claimant whose claim is dismissed, but the attachment is withdrawn at the instance of another claimant subsequent to the order but within a year of it, is not bound to sue as once the attachment goes, the order dismissing his claim does not affect him;

Order when not conclusive.—A claimant whose claim is dismissed, but the attachment is withdrawn at the instance of another claimant subsequent to the order but within a year of it, is not bound to sue as once the attachment goes, the order dismissing his claim does not affect him;

Gollanapalli v. Sankara, 42 I. C. 683. If there be a fresh application for execution and a fresh attachment a fresh objection by the claimant is sustainable.—Basanti Devi v. Chotti Lal, A. I. R. 1931 All. 638: 133 I. C. 318: 29 A. L. J. 856: A. I. R. 1931 All. 603. But see Ma Pyaw v. Latchmanan, 131 I. C. 727: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 183. But if after the rejection of the claim case, the claimant brings a suit, which is dismissed for default, and the execution case being withdrawn by the decree-holder for want of sufficient bid, the decree-holder makes a fresh application after 1 year, the claimant cannot bring a fresh suit, as the order in the claim case was conclusive as soon as the previous suit failed. This rule has modified the old S. 283 of C. P. Code.—Gopal v. Ganpat, 35 I. C. 321.

Onus of proof.—In a suit under this rule, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff and not on the defendant; Ram Nath v. Bindraban, 18 A. 369; Nannhi Jan v. Bhuri, 30 A. 321: 5 A. L. J. 601; Perayya v. Venkayyama, 47 M. L. J. 14: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 770: 79 I. C. 899; Ai Bai v. Kahan, 3 L. L. J. 198: 67 I. C. 876; Ramchand v. Fazal Hussain, 30 P. L. R. 389: 118 I. C. 897: A. Piare Lal*, 31 P. L. R. 394; V. E. A. & Co. Firm v. Maung Ba Kyin, 5 R. 852 (P. C.): 105 I. C. 788: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 237. The mere filing of the sale deed pronounced in the claim proceedings as fictitious does not shift the onus on the other side to show that it was not a real or bona fide transaction supported by consideration.—In re Govindaswami Pillai, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1259: 113 I. C. 358; Janki Das v. Gulzar, 12 L. 763: 32 P. L. R. 350: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 174: 131 I. C. 383. But see V. E. A. & Co. Firm v. Maung Ba Kyin, 5 R. 852 (P. C.): 105 I. C. 788: 32 C. W. N. 28: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 237 and Gillu Mal v. Firm Manohar, 7 P. 777: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 434: 9 P. L. T. 461, which held that the onus is on the defendant to prove that the apparent state of things is not the real state and the conveyance is fictitious and without consideration (46 C. L. J. 349 (P. C.) applied). See also Elayaperumal v. Vellaikannu, 128 I. C. 453: 32 L. W. 57: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 40. If the plaintiff produces his deed and swears that it is genuine and for full consideration and the defendants have nothing to say to the contrary the plaintiff will succeed. But where the plaintiff has nothing to say to the contrary, the real onus is on the plaintiff to establish the right to the property.—Vellayan, 55 M. 748: 137 I. C. 876: 36: A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 302. Similarly the burden lies upon the plaintiff to prove that a document duly executed and registered was in reality a fictitious and a paper transaction.—Saraswati v. Mahabir, 109 I. C. 272: A. I. R. 1928 All. 476.

In a suit under this rule to establish the right to attach property, it is for the plaintiff to prove that the property in question is the property of the judgment-debtor, the onus of proof is upon him. The defendant in defending such a suit may rely upon the title of a third person.—Adam Isufbhai v. Jamnadas, 17 B. 94.

Period of limitation for suits under this rule—A suit under this rule is governed by Art. 11 of the Limitation Act IX of 1903, and the period is one year from the date of the order. "It (the order under r. 60 or r. 61) is not conclusive; a suit may be brought to claim the property notwithstanding the order; but then the law of limitation says that the plaintiff must be prompt in bringing his suit. The policy of the Act evidently is to secure the speedy settlement of questions of title raised at execution sales, and for that reason, a year is fixed as the time within which the suit must be brought"; Sardhari v. Ambika, 15 I. A. 123 : 15 C. 521 (P. C.). Where an appeal is preferred from the order, the period of one year is to be calculated from the date of the appellate order; Venugopal v. Venkata-subbiah, 39 M. 1196 : 28 I. C. 367.

The order contemplated by r. 61 is an order made after investigation into the facts of the case, and it is only where the order is made after such investigation that the limitation of one year is applicable to a subsequent suit under this rule.—Chandra Bhusan v. Ram Kanth, 12 C. 108; Venkapa v. Chenbasapa, 4 B. 21 and 23-note; Rash Behari v. Buddun Chunder, 12 C. L. R. 550; Kachinamthodi v. Kachinamthodi, 44 M. L. J. 141; Gobardhan Das v. Makundi Lal, 45 A. 438 : 21 A. L. J. 342. Order dismissing claim for default is not an order made after investigation and need not be set aside within one year.—Sarala v. Kamsala, 31 M. 5 (Sarat Chandra v. Tarini, 34 C. 494 : 11 C. W. N. 417 followed). See also Umacharan v. Heron Moyee, 18 C. W. N. 770. See, however, Ponnusami v. Samu, 31 M. L. J. 247 where it has been held that Art. 11 of Limitation Act, 1908, is more comprehensive and covers orders after full investigation as well as orders passed on default. See further notes under heading "Orders in claim proceedings to which the present rule applies," post. Where property is released from attachment after investigation under r. 60, limitation of one year is applicable.—Sardhari Lal v. Ambika Pershad, 15 I. A. 123 : 15 C. 521 (P. C.); Khub Lal v. Ram Lochun, 17 C. 260; Koyyana Chittemma v. Doosy Gavaramma, 29 M. 225 : 16 M. L. J. 136; Bal Makund v. Saiyed Maqud, 19 O. C. 357.

Where a claim is disallowed on the ground of the claimant not having given any evidence in support of the claim, the order is one under r. 61 and therefore the rule of one year's limitation does apply.—Rahim Bux v. Abdul Kader, 32 C. 537 [followed in Kurada Venkatachalapathi v. Gudivada, 28 I. C. 244 : (1915) M. W. N. 188]; Bibi Aliman v. Dhakeshwar Pershad, 1 C. L. J. 296 (15 C. 521 (P. C.) and 12 C. L. R. 43 followed). But see Kallar Singh v. Toril Mahton, 1 C. W. N. 24.

Where a mortgagee's claim or objection to attachment under r. 51 is disallowed, he comes within the words "the party against whom an order is made" and as such must sue within one year under Art. 11 of the Limitation Act to establish his mortgage rights. The ordinary mortgagee's term of 12 years for suing is cut down to one year by such an adverse order; Debi Das v. Maharaj Rup Chand, 49 A. 903 : 25 A. L. J. 609 : 102 I. C. 792 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 593; Naval Kishore v. Khiyali Ram, 11 L. 369 : 120 I. C. 679 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 865.

Where the claim preferred by a shebait on behalf of idol is dismissed, a suit by the prospective representatives of the idols after one year will be barred by limitation.—Suniti Sundari v. Srikrishna, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 514 : 112 I. C. 619.

An essential condition precedent to a suit under this rule are the making of an attachment of some property; the objection to such attachm made into such objection; and, lastly, c and where these do not exist, the rule of apply.—Angan Lal v. Gudar Mal, 10 A. 479. For the purposes of Art. 11, the property to which a claim is made, or to the attachment of which there is an objection, must be property which had been de facto attached. Merely passing an order of attachment is not enough. After an order of attachment had been passed, a claim was put in and rejected. There was no attachment effected at any time. Held that the order of rejection need not be set aside within one year, the order being a nullity.—A. T. K. &c. Muthiah v. Palaniappa, 55 I. A. 256: 51 M. 349 (P. C.): 26 A. L. J. 616: 32 C. W. N. 831: 48 C. L. J. 11: 5 O. W. N. 579: 109 I. C. 626: 30 Bom. L. R. 1353: A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 139: 55 M. L. J. 122.

Where an attachment in respect of which a claim is disallowed is finally withdrawn on the judgment-debtor's paying the decretal amount into Court, the claimant is not bound to bring his suit to establish his title to the attached property within one year.—Ibrahimbhai v. Kabulabhai, 13 B. 72; Gopal Purshotam v. Bai Divali, 18 B. 241; Krishna Prasad v. Bepin Behary, 31 C. 228. But all these cases have been dissented from in Bibi Aliman v. Dhakeshwer Pershad, 1 C. L. J. 296.

The High Court does not ordinarily interfere in revision with orders made in claim cases. Such orders are conclusive and r. 63 provides a remedy by way of suit. If a person or his Advocate chooses nevertheless to apply for revision of such an order and after the dismissal of his revision application files a declaratory suit more than a year after the passing of the order, he cannot claim the benefit of S. 14 of the Limitation Act and ask for the exclusion of the time taken up in revision proceedings. Proceeding contrary to a clearly expressed provision of law cannot be regarded as prosecuting another civil proceeding in good faith.—S. R. M. &c. Firm v. Maung Po, 7 R. 466.

Suit under this rule not necessary if property is released from attachment within the period of limitation.—A claimant is not compelled de bene esse to institute a title suit under this rule within a year after his claim under r. 63 has been rejected, when the object sought by him in making the application under r. 58 has been attained by the release of the property from attachment, e.g., by reason of the dismissal of the application under r. 57 for default of prosecution or by reason of the withdrawal of attachment on payment of the decretal amount by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder. In circumstances such as these, Art. 11 of the Limitation Act of 1908 does not apply, and the claimant is not affected by any of the consequences which result from a failure to institute a

Or. XXI, r. 63 gives him a right to file a suit even though the attachment is withdrawn by the decree-holder.

Suit for refund of purchase-money.—Where the claimant whose claim to the property under r. 61 is disallowed, brings a suit against the judgment-debtor for refund of the purchase-money paid by him for purchase of the property, such a suit is not barred by limitation even if instituted more than a year after the date of the order. The reason is that r. 63 does not apply to such a suit ; Rah Ram v. Barhmajit, 46 A. 45 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 302 : 77 I. C. 82.

Payment by claimant under protest.—If the claim fails and the property is not released, the claimant is not compelled to bring a suit under this rule for a declaration of his title to the property. In such a case, he may prevent the sale of the property by paying the decretal amount to the decree-holder and then sue for the recovery of the amount so paid under pressure of execution proceedings ; Dulichand v. Ramkishen, 7 C. 648 (P. C.) ; Jugdeo v. Rajah Singh, 15 C. 657. He may also pay the decretal amount under protest and then sue for refund as stated above ; Kanhaya Lal v. National Bank of India, 40 C. 598 (P. C.) : 40 I. A. 56 : 17 C. W. N. 541 : 11 A. L. J. 413 : 15 Bom. L. R. 472 : 18 I. C. 949.

One year's limitation does not apply to persons who are not parties to claim case.—The law of one year's limitation could not apply to a person whom the Court had refused to make a party to the proceedings under r. 58 because he came in too late.—Roghoonath v. Bydonath, 14 W. R. 364 See Dorayya v. Narasimham, 110 I. C. 567 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 525. which held that where a claim petition is dismissed on the ground that it is too late, it is an order which has to be set aside within one year (41 M. 985 (F. B.) followed).

A judgment-debtor is not necessarily a party to an investigation under r. 58 so as to preclude his instituting a suit after the lapse of one year from the date of the order to establish his title to the property which has been the subject-matter of a claim in execution proceedings.—Kedar Nath v. Rakhal Das, 15 C. 674. See also Ghasi Ram v. Mangal Chand, 2 A. L. J. 491 : (1905) A. W. N. 172 : 28 A. 41 ; Krishnasami v. Somasundaram, 30 M. 335 (F. B.) : 17 M. L. J. 95 ; Sadaya v. Amurthachari, 8 M. L. T. 417. In Guruva v. Subbarayudu, 13 M. 366, it has been held that, if there is nothing to show that the order releasing the attachment was an order against the judgment-debtor, or that he was a party to the proceeding, a suit by him for declaration of title to the property is not barred by one year's limitation. See also Imbichi Koya v. Kalkunnat Upakki, 1 M. 391 ; Karsan v. Ganpatram, 22 B. 875 ; Lingana v. Official Receiver, 110 I. C. 511 ; Munshi v. Bishun, 10 P. L. J. 581 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 604 : 120 I. C. 762. In Shivapa v. Dod Nagaya, 11 B. 114, it has been held that it must depend upon the facts of each case as to whether a judgment-debtor is to be regarded as a party to an investigation under r. 58.

If it appears that in a proceeding under r. 58 no notice was issued to the judgment-debtor, he cannot be regarded as a party to the proceedings, and the rule of one year's limitation does not apply to a suit brought by the judgment-debtor to establish his right to the property.—Ambalathilakath.

Modin v. Ambalathilakath Kunhi, 25 M. 721 (followed in Krishnasami v. Somasundaram, 30 M. 335 (F. B.) : 17 M. L. J. 95 (F. B.)). Even if the judgment-debtor be a party to the proceedings but if the Court does not adjudicate upon the question of the judgment-debtor's title, but decides the case on the question of possession only, he or his heirs will not be bound by the order; Vedalingam v. Veerathal, 54 I. C. 530.

Orders in claim proceedings to which the present rule applies.—An order made on an application which does not come within the purview of r. 58, is not an order to which the present rule applies; Bala Krishna v. Rangan, 41 M. L. J. 334 : 69 I. C. 326; Biswanath v. Lingaraj, 1 P. 159 : 70 I. C. 306 : A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 408; Chunilal v. Pira Miyaji, 29 Bom. L. R. 285 : 101 I. C. 335 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 234. It was held in some cases under the old Code that an order dismissing a claim for default, and without investigation, did not come under S. 283 (present rule), and such order not being "conclusive," the party against whom the order was made, was not precluded from instituting a suit more than one year after the date of the order; Sarala v. Kamsala, 31 M. 5, Sarat v. Tarini, 34 C. 491 : 11 C. W. N. 487, Chandra Bhusan v. Ram Kanth, 12 C. 103. But r. 63, which is more comprehensive than S. 283, applies to all orders made against a party under r. 60 or r. 61, even if the order was made for default or without full investigation; Satindra v. Shiva, 26 C. W. N. 126 : 64 I. C. 713 : A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 166; Wamandhar v. Kampta Prasad, 22 N. L. R. 94 : 97 I. C. 178 : A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 423; Nagendra v. Fani Bhusan, 45 C. 785; Gopal Singh v. Ganpat Rai, 35 I. C. 321; Gulab v. Mutsaddi Lal, 41 A. 623 : 50 I. C. 748; Durgadas v. Gori Mal, 26 A. L. J. 794 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 327. But see Maung Tun v. U Tha, 118 I. C. 634 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 123. Where the Court rejects a claim or objection preferred under r. 58 on the ground that it was designedly or unnecessarily delayed, the order is one made against the claimant or objector within the meaning of this rule; Venkataratnam v. Ranganayakamma, 41 M. 985 (F. B.) : 48 I. C. 270; Gobardhan Das v. Makundi Lal, 45 A. 438 : A. I. R. 1923 All. 435 : 74 I. C. 1024; Arsamma v. Moidin, 47 M. 160 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 111 : 77 I. C. 264; Kumara v. Thevaraya, 48 M. L. J. 616 : 87 I. C. 635 : A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 1113.

Withdrawal of a claim by the claimant would not attract the provisions of r. 63.—Lingama Naidu v. Official Receiver, 110 I. C. 511; Onkar Prasad v. Dhanu Ram, 23 A. L. J. 594 : 122 I. C. 865 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 177. Dismissal of a claim petition by Court having no jurisdiction to entertain it, need not be set aside by suit.—Sivasankara v. Purakkal, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 878 : 112 I. C. 619.

Effect of attachment on adverse possession.—Attachment of property in execution of a decree does not arrest the running of time in favour of a party holding the property adversely to the judgment-debtor; Seetharami v. Venku, 11 M. L. J. 344; Ranganatha v. Srinivasa, 49 M. L. J. 656 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 42 : 90 I. C. 1037. A contrary view was taken by the Calcutta High Court in Najimunnessa v. Nacharuddin, 51 C. 548 : 83 I. C. 233 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 744, and by the Bombay High Court in Vasudeo v. Eknaith, 35 B. 79 : 8 I. C. 639.

Step in aid of execution.—The institution of a regular suit by the decree-holder under this rule to set aside an order in a claim case, is a step in aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 179 (4) of the Limitation Act, 1887.—Rudra Narain v. Pachu Maity, 23 C. 437 (1 A. 355, 23 W. R. 183 and 5 B. 29, referred to). But see Raghunandun v. Bhugoo Lal, 17 C. 268 and Desraj Singh v. Karam Khan, 19 A. 71, where a contrary view seems to have been taken. See also Narayana v. Pappi Brahmani, 10 M. 22, which has been overruled by Suppa v. Avudai, 28 M. 50 (F. B.).

Limitation for recovery of compensation for wrongful attachment and sale of moveables—See notes under rule 78 of this Order.

Jurisdiction of Provincial Small Cause Courts to entertain suits under this rule.—A suit will not lie in the Small Cause Court to establish a right to moveable property after an adverse order under rr. 60, 61 and 62.—Meordeen v. Dinobundhoo, 13 W. R. 99; Ilahi Bakhsh v. Sita, 5 A. 462; Mukund v. Nasiruddin, 4 A. 416; Dakhyani Debea v. Dole Gobind, 21 C. 430; Chhaganlal v. Jeshan, 4 B. 503 and 505-note; Mahomed Koya v. Kasmi, 9 M. 206; Shiboo Narain v. Mudden, 7 C. 608; 9 C. L. R. 8; Goha v. Naik Ram, 7 A. 152 (F. B.). See, however, Pagi Partap v. Varajlal, 8 B. 259; Raghunath v. Sarosh, 23 B. 266.

A suit to recover moveable property attached under colour of the Rent Recovery Act (Mad. Act VIII of 1865) is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes.—Davud Beg v. Kullappa, 11 M. 264.

See also Schedule 11, 19 and 20 of the Provincial Small Cause Court's Act (IX of 1887).

An order made upon a claim to attach the property filed in the Small Cause Court of Calcutta under Or. XXI, r. 58, is "an order in the suit" under the Presidency Small Cause Court's Act (XV of 1882) and the right to apply for a new trial. The Court has power and authority to determine the question of title under a mortgage over attached property; and that question is therefore res judicata.—Deno Nath v. Nuffer Chunder, 26 C. 778; 3 C. W. N. 590. See also Ismail Solomon v. Mahomed Khan, 18 C. 296.

Court-fee.—A party against whom an order has been made under rr. 60 and 61, dismissing his claim to the attached property, can bring his suit to establish his right to the property on a stamp paper of Rs. 10, under Sch. II, Art. 17 of the Court-Fees Act.—Dhondo Sakharam v. Gobind Babaji, 9 B. 20; Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam, 35 I. A. 22; 35 C. 202 (P. C.); 12 C. W. N. 169; 7 C. L. J. 36; 5 A. L. J. 10; 10 Bom. L. R. 1; 17 M. L. J. 618 (31 C. 511, reversed); Satindra v. Shiva, 26 C. W. N. 126; 64 I. C. 713; A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 166; Vithal Krishna v. Ralkrishna, 10 B. 610 (F. B.); Chunia v. Ram Dial, 1 A. 360; Dayachand v. Hemchand, 4 B. 515; Sadashiv v. Atmaram, 4 B. 535; Nasar v. Gopal, 19 C. L. J. 358; Gulzari Lal v. Jadaun Rai, 2 A. 63; Fatima Begam v. Sukh Ram, 6 A. 341; Manraj Kuari v. Radha Prasad, 6 A. 466; Gobind Nath v. Gajraj Mati, 13 A. 389. But see Ahmed Mirza v. Thomas, 13 C. 162 and Chokalingapeshana v. Achiyar, 1 M. 40. See also Moti Singh v. Kaunsilla, 16 A. 308 (F. B.).

Jurisdiction.—In a suit for a declaration that property is not liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, where the value of the property is in excess of the amount claimed in execution of the decree, the valuation of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction is not the value of the property but the decretal amount; Khelra v. Mumtaz, 38 A. 72 : 31 I. C. 879; Modhusudan v. Bakkhal, 15 C. 104; Anandi Kunwar v. Ram Niranjan, 40 A. 505: 45 I. C. 494; Phul Kumari v. Ghanshyam, 35 C. 202 (P. C.): 35 I. A. 22: 12 C. W. N. 169: 5 A. L. J. 10: 10 Bom. L. R. 1: 17 M. L. J. 61. But see Narayanan Singh v. Aiyasami, 39 M. 602 (applying 35 C. 202 (P. C.)).

Where an unsuccessful claimant desires not only that the attachment should be removed, but also that his title should be declared as against the judgment-debtors, in cases in which the value of the property attached is more than the value of the decree, the value of the suit which governs the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with it is the value of the property itself and not merely the value of the decree (39 M. 602; 17 A. 69 folld.).—Daw Dut v. Daw Kuri, 137 I. C. 54: A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 20.

The value of an appeal filed against the dismissal of a suit under
C. XXI. s. 22, is the value of the property sought to be recovered allowing a claim, is the value not of the of the property sought to be recovered
v. Narasimham, 29 L. W. 349: 119 I. C.

SALE GENERALLY.

64. Any Court executing a decree may order that any property attached by it and liable to sale, or such portion thereof as may seem necessary to satisfy the decree, shall be sold, and that the proceeds of such sale, or a sufficient portion thereof, shall be paid to the party entitled under the decree to receive the same. [S. 284.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The words "executing the decree" after the words "any Court" and the words "by it and liable to sale" after the word "attached" have been added.

"May order."—It is however obligatory on the Court to order sale when a valid application is duly made after valid attachment by the party interested and having the right to apply.—Kamisetti v. Tangator, 28 I. C. 92.

Rule 64 does not apply to a money-decree under attachment. The procedure in such a case is indicated in r. 53.—Domi Lal v. Bijoy Prasad, 12 P. 36: 141 I. C. 37: 13 P. L. T. 612: A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 349.

A Court has no jurisdiction to sell a property which has not been duly attached: Panchanan v. Kunja, 42 I. C. 259.

The Code contains detailed provisions as to when an attachment validly effected ceases to be in force. There is no warrant for adding to that list by holding that when the Court loses jurisdiction, the attachment subsisting till then suddenly comes to an end. Or. XXI, r. 64 is not exhaustive of the cases where the executing Court is competent to sell property. Sales by whom conducted and how made.

65. Save as otherwise prescribed, every sale in execution of a decree shall be conducted by an officer of the Court or by such other person as the Court may appoint in this behalf, and shall be made by public auction in manner prescribed.

[S. 268.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The words "save as otherwise prescribed every sale," "such other" and "in this behalf" are new.

As to sale of negotiable instrument, see S. 73; as to agricultural produce, see Ss 74, 75.

"Shall be conducted by an officer of the Court," etc.—It is the Nazir's business to complete the sale, although the Court (as well as the Nazir) has a discretion to decline acceptance of the highest bid when the price is extremely inadequate. The Court has a quasi-revisional jurisdiction under condition 3 of the sale-proclamation and it does not require the Court itself to knock down the property. If a person bids at a sale and the property is knocked down to him, the mere fact that the Court has power to annul or confirm the Nazir's action does not leave it open to the bidder to withdraw his bid; the sale becomes complete as soon as the property is knocked down to the bidder; Rajendra v. Upendra, 19 C. W. N. 633; 21 C. L. J. 174; 27 I. C. 805; Nur Din v. Bulagui, 131 I. C. 227; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 78 (not following Jai Bahadur v. Matukdhari, 2 P. 548). See also Maung Ohu Tin v. P. R. M. etc. Chettyar Firm, 7 R. 425; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 311. Even where a sale is held by an auctioneer nominated by parties the sale is regarded as a sale by the Court.—Galstaun v. Woomesh, 35 I. C. 850.

This rule clearly contemplates the employment of agents for the conduct of execution sales. Receipt of purchase money by agents is equivalent to receipt of assets by Court for purposes of S. 73; Galstaun v. Woomesh, 35 I. C. 850.

The Court executing a decree passed an order postponing a sale, but the order failed to reach the officer conducting the sale, and the sale was subsequently held. The judgment-debtor applied to set aside the sale. Held that the sale was illegal and void.—Sant Lal v. Umraounnissa, 12 A. 96 (4 A. 382; 3 A. 701; and 11 A. 333 referred to).

In sales under the direction of the Court, it is incumbent on the Court to be scrupulous in the extreme and very careful to see that no taint or touch of fraud or decoit or misrepresentation is found in the conduct of its officers. Where the conditions of the sale were read out in English, which the purchasers did not understand, and a purchaser was led to believe by one of its officers that a substantial property freed and discharged from all incumbrances was being sold, though as a matter of fact the property was subject to incumbrances in amount far exceeding its value; held that the sale was void and must be set aside on the ground of misrepresentation. Apart from this, a Court is bound to set aside a sale induced by the misrepresentation of its accredited agent.—Mahomed Kala Mea v. Harperink, 36 I. A. 52; 13 C. W. N. 249 (P. C.); 9 C. L. J. 165; 36 C. 323; 11 Bom. L. J. 256; 6 A. L. J. 34; 19 M. L. J. 115; 1 I. C. 122.

66. (1) Where any property is ordered to be sold by public auction in execution of a decree, the Court shall cause a proclamation of the intended sale to be made in the language of such Court.

Proclamation of sales by public auction.

(2) Such proclamation shall be drawn up after notice to the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor and shall state the time and place of sale, and specify as fairly and accurately as possible—

- (a) the property to be sold ;
- (b) the revenue assessed upon the estate or part of the estate, where the property to be sold is an interest in an estate or in part of an estate paying revenue to the Government ;
- (c) any incumbrance to which the property is liable ;
- (d) the amount for the recovery of which the sale is ordered ; and
- (e) every other thing which the Court considers material for a purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property.

(3) Every application for an order for sale under this rule shall be accompanied by a statement signed and verified in the manner hereinbefore prescribed for the signing and verification of pleadings and containing, so far as they are known to or can be ascertained by the person making the verification, the matters required by sub-rule (2) to be specified in the proclamation.

(4) For the purpose of ascertaining the matters to be specified in the proclamation, the Court may summon any person whom it thinks necessary to summon and may examine him in respect to any such matters and require him to produce any document in his possession or power relating thereto.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 287, C. P. Code, with several additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (2) the words "shall be drawn up after notice to the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor" have been added. A notice is now necessary for settling the terms of sale.

Sub-rule (3) reproduces para. 2 of S. 287 of the old Code with much elaboration, embodying in it the law as laid down in the case of Srimati Giribala v. Srimati Rani Mina Kumari, 5 C. W. N. 497 (502), noted below. The verified petition, which under the old Code, was required to be filed at the time of attachment is under the present Code to be filed after attachment and before issue of sale-proclamation.

In sub-rule (4) the words "in the proclamation" are new.

Para. 3 of S. 287 of the old Code which empowered the High Courts to make rules under the old section, has been omitted; probably in view of Ss. 120 to 131 by which High Courts have been empowered to make rules consistent with the provisions of the Code. By virtue of S. 157, the rules framed under the old Code are still to be considered as law. See also Lal Mohun v. Nunu, 17 C. 152.

The last para. of S. 287 has also been omitted and reproduced as a separate rule (r. 70).

"After notice."—Formerly in the mofussil the sale proclamation was usually drawn up without notice to the judgment-debtor and behind his back, so that he did not receive any intimation of its contents until it was fixed up in the Court-house or was published upon the property. The judgment-debtor had therefore some excuse for not putting forward any objection; Rajah Ramessur v. Rai Sham, 8 C. W. N. 257 (263). This defect has been remedied in the present Code, and a notice has to be served on the judgment-debtor before the sale proclamation is drawn up. The notice to the judgment-debtor should be issued after the decree-holder has filed the verified statement and the Sub-Registrar's Certificate. Non-compliance with Or. XXI, r. 66 and rr. 106 and 110 of the Allahabad High Court Rules held to be good ground for setting aside a sale.—Ram Prasad v. Shiva Kumar, 133 I. C. 529; 29 A. L. J. 849; A. I. R. 1932 All. 55. Where after service of notice the judgment-debtors did not appear and object, but allowed the properties to be sold, it is not open to them to subsequently raise objections to the sale-proclamation on the ground of misdescription; Subbaraya v. Muthammal, 22 I. C. 780 (12 M. 19 (P. C.)); and 38 M. 387; 21 I. C. 389; 25 M. L. J. 198 (folld.); Mahadeo Singh v. Dhobi Singh, 2 P. 916; (1923) P. 283; 4 P. L. T. 721; 74 I. C. 833; Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Sachindra, 32 C. W. N. 309; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 328. It is as much the duty of the judgment-debtor as of the decree-holder to see that the sale proclamation under Or. XXI, r. 66 is prepared correctly. If a judgment-debtor goes to sleep over his right he is well punished if a wrong sale proclamation is prepared and he has only to blame himself if he suffers any loss through such incorrect preparation.—Hardani Lal v. Ram Nath, 27 A. L. J. 619; 116 I. C. 448; A. I. R. 1929 All. 704. Where, however, an execution sale is wholly without jurisdiction the fact that the judgment-debtor failed to raise an objection when notice was issued to him is immaterial.—Hari Saran v. Pyare Lal, 134 I. C. 602; 8 O. W. N. 927; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 398. Omission to issue or serve notice under this rule is a default within r. 57; Namuna v. Roshan, 15 C. W. N. 428.

Notice to the judgment-debtor only enables him to put his case before the Court, but if the decree-holder insists that a much smaller valuation should be inserted and the Court accepts his view, the decree-holder proceeds to sale at his risk and its validity may be subsequently challenged by the judgment-debtor; Pran Singh v. Janardan, 14 C. L. J. 541.

Omission to issue notice is an irregularity under r. 90; Bepin Behari v. Kanti, 18 I. C. 715. Though a material irregularity, it must result in substantial injury before a Court-sale can be set aside under Or. XXI, r. 90; Kanhya Lal v. Megh Raj, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 84; 99 I. C. 515.

If a judgment-debtor dies before the issue of notice, his legal representatives must be brought on record and if it is not done, the sale would be void—Chandi Prasad v. Jamna, 49 A. 830; 102 I. C. 239; A. I. R. 1928 All. 74.

Omission to serve a notice is more than a mere irregularity and renders the Court-sale void—Ramaswamy v. Ma U Tha, 38 I. C. 98; but see Krishnaji v. Baliram, 44 I. C. 252, where it has been held that notice under this rule is directory and not mandatory.

In proceedings taken in execution of a rent-decree no notice under r. 66 (2) is required before the sale-proclamation is drawn up, and the sale-proclamation should ordinarily issue at the same time as the property is attached under r. 54.—Mt. Lala Kuer v. Mir Ali, 10 P. 133; 136 I. C. 696; 12 P. L. J. 736; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 267.

For form of Notice under sub-rule (2), see Appendix E, Form No. 28.

"Proclamation shall state time and place of sale."—The practice is to hold sales on certain fixed days of the month. These dates are known as sale dates. Sales are held on those days, and continued from day to day till finished.

The Court shall cause a proclamation of the intended sale to be made, giving the time and place of sale.—Mohendro Narain v. Gopal Mondul, 17 C. 769 (F. B.).

When the proclamation advertised the sale to take place at the Court-house, it is a material irregularity to hold the sale at the premises of some of the buildings advertised for sale.—Duni Chand v. Atma Singh, 132 P. R. 1906; 11 P. L. R. 1907.

A property advertised for sale was sold on the day fixed, but at an earlier hour than that stated in the proclamation. Held that there had been no sale within the meaning of the Code: proclamation of the time and place and the holding of it at such time and place, being conditions precedent to the sale being a sale under the Code.—Basharutulla v. Uma Churn, 16 C. 794. See also Chedami Lal v. Amir Beg, 7 A. 676; Khodeja Bibee v. Ram Narain, 12 W. R. 511; Pokhraj Singh v. Gossain Munraj Pooree, 12 W. R. 281; and Kishen Prosunno v. Narduma Dossee, 17 W. R. 339.

Where the sale-proclamation omitted to state the place of sale, and where the sale took place on a date other than that notified in the proclamation, and before the expiration of 30 days required by r. 69—held that the non-compliance with the provisions was more than a mere irregularity.—Jasoda v. Mathura, 9 A. 511 (7 A. 289 referred to). See also Maung Po Tha v. S. R. etc. Chettyar, A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 84.

Under the Code it is intended that a sale of moveable property attached in execution of a decree should ordinarily be held in some place within the jurisdiction of the Court ordering the sale.—Lakshmi Bai v. Santapa Revapa, 13 B. 22.

A sale held on a holiday is illegal; Haro Jamadar v. Jadub, 3 W. R. Mis. 24. But see, Bisram v. Sahibunnissa, 3 A. 333.

See notes under r. 90 of this order.

Fresh proclamation.—Where a sale is postponed indefinitely or to a fixed date, it is necessary, in the absence of any express arrangement between all the parties, that a fresh proclamation should be made, giving notice of the day to which the sale has been postponed.—Goopee Nath v. Roy Luchmeeput, 3 C. 542. 1 C. L. R. 349; Okhoy Chunder v. Erskine & Co, 3 W. R. Mis. 11; Shoshee Mookhee v. Dwarkanath, 6 W. R. Mis. 84, Jhoomuck Chowdhry v. Radha Pershad, 25 W. R. 328.

Where subsequent to the proclamation a portion of the property was released to a third party, a fresh proclamation must be made; Shib Prokash v. Sardar, 3 C 544.

"Proclamation shall specify the property"—A judgment-debtor has the right to have the property to be sold described with reasonable accuracy.—Rajah Ramessur Proshad v. Rai Shani Kissen, 8 C W N. 257.

In an advertisement of sale the property was described as that of the widow, and the interest to be sold was described as that of the deceased debtor. Held that the purchaser at the sale acquired the property of the deceased debtor in the estate, and had a good title against the heir.—Ishan Chunder v. Buksh Ali, Marsh 614 W. R Sp No 119; Nuzzeerun v. Ameerooddeen, 24 W. R. 3; Hulkhory Lall v. Sheo Churn, 24 W. R. 109; Abdul Kureem v. Jaun Ali, 18 W R 56; Satish Chunder v. Nilcomul, 11 C. 15 and Devji v. Sambhu, 24 B 135.

Where a property is described at the time of an execution sale as the property of the debtors who were mere representatives of a deceased judgment-debtor, prima facie what is sold is the property of the deceased debtor.—Lalla Seta Ram v. Ram Buksh, 24 W. R. 383.

Where a proclamation did not clearly state that the interest of the judgment-debtor was only one-third, held, that it was no misdescription; it was at the most a lacuna in the description not sufficient to entitle the auction-purchaser to infer that the judgment-debtors were the sole owners and had the entire title to the property or to have the sale set aside.—Venkatraman v. Mahableshwar, 134 I. C. 692; 33 Bom. L. R. 750; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 367.

At a sale of an under-tenure for arrears of rent the growing crop passes to the purchaser, except where it has been specially excepted by the sale notification.—Asatoolla v. Dwarka Nath, 4 C. 814; 4 C. L. R. 95.

If there is any ambiguity in the sale-proclamation; the decree should be looked into to see what was actually sold; Piarey Lal v. Ram Chandra, 96 I. C. 771; A. I. R. 1926 All. 730.

Where, on an execution sale, there is a discrepancy between the conditions in the notification of what is to be sold and the certificate of what has been sold, the conditions in the notification are to be taken as of a superior authority in dealing with the conflicting claims of innocent third parties whose rights are affected by the variation.—Uma Churn v. Gobind Chunder, 1 C. L. R. 460; Gowree v. Surut Chunder, 22 W. R. 408. See, however, Dwarka v. Aloke, 9 C. 641.

Where the writ of attachment gave the wrong number of the premises, but the sale-proclamation contained the correct number and the sale was effected in pursuance thereof, held, that the sale was valid.—Naresh Chandra v. Molla Ataul, 57 C. 1206 : 129 I. C. 779 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 35.

Rule 66 prescribes the statements and information to be given by the proclama-tion of sale.—Tassadduk Rasul v. Ahmad Hussain, 20 I. A. 176 : 21 C. 66 (P. C.)

Where in the sale of a certain share in a mahal which was described in the schedule, the share was attached and sold, but the Court issued a sale certificate in respect of a share in a different property ; held that there was no power to sell the latter share since it was not a case of mere misdescription but of a mistake as to identity. That which is sold in a judicial sale can be nothing but the property attached, and that property is conclusively described in and by the schedule to which the attachment refers ; Thakur Barmka v. Jiban Ram, 41 I. A. 38 : 41 C. 590 (P. C.) : 18 C. W. N. 313 : 26 M. L. J. 89 : 21 I. C. 936 : 16 Bom. L. R. 156

An execution Court will not be justified in entering in the sale proclamation a description of property not justified either by the mortgage or the decree thereon and neither of which made any mention of the items in question.—Abdul Rauf v. Rahim Bakhsh, 110 I. C. 860 : A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 491.

While it is preferable that the minor sons be impleaded in the suit itself with the father as manager of the joint family an application in execution to include their interests in the proclamation of sale in darkhast is not incompetent.—Ramchandra v. Bhagwant, 53 B. 777 : 31 Bom. L. R. 1115 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 465 : 121 I. C. 435.

Duty of the Court to settle the sale proclamation itself.—It is the duty of the Court to settle the proclamation of sale itself. If it does not do it, but deposes a Commissioner to do it, the sale is invalid. The fact that the person seeking to set aside the sale was aware of the contents of the proclamation prepared by the Commissioner, is immaterial ; Appu v. Achuta Menon, 49 M. 333 : 94 I. C. 8 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 755.

"The revenue assessed upon the estate or part of it"—The "part of an estate" means the aliquot part of an estate.—Kally Prosonno v. Dino Nath, 11 B. L. R. 56 : 19 W. R. 434.

Where, on account of submersion of a mahal, it was neither attached nor advertised for sale, and the revenue assessed thereon was not referred to in the sale proceedings and the sale certificate contained no reference to it as the property sold, held that such a sale did not convey any right to the purchaser.—Fida Husain v. Kutub Husain, 7 A. 38 (5 A. 86 (F. B.) referred to).

An objection to the validity of a sale of revenue-paying land, that the revenue assessed had not been stated in the sale proclamation cannot be entertained for the first time in the Court of appeal.—Macnaghten v. Mahabir, 10 I. A. 25 : 9 C. 656 (P. C.) : 11 C. L. R. 494 (reversing 9 C. L. R. 134).

The sale proclamation should contain the statement as to the revenue assessed upon the estate and its omission is a material irregularity upon which the judgment-debtor can base an application for setting aside the sale if he could satisfy the other conditions required by the Code.—Baliram v. Seth Narsingdass, 75 I. C. 546 (P. C.): 45 M. L. J. 403; A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 93.

"Any incumbrance to which the property is liable."—Under this rule the Court will simply notify the incumbrance without deciding whether it is real or fictitious. The distinction between this rule and r. 63 pointed out.—Shib Kunwar v. Sheo Prasad, 23 A. 418; 3 A. L. J. 200. As to the difference between rr. 66 and 62, see notes to r. 62, ante.

Where in an execution proceeding, on an application of the mortgagee of the property required to be sold, the mortgage was, without any inquiry as to its genuineness, notified and the property was purchased by the decree-holder, held, that in a suit on that mortgage, the purchaser was not estopped from pleading that it was fictitious, unless there was on his part any declaration, act or omission debarring him from setting up the fictitiousness; Jairaj Mal v. Radha Kishan, 35 A. 257. 20 I. C. 182 (23 A. 418 followed).

Where it was merely proclaimed that a mortgage existed, the auction-purchaser cannot be obliged to discharge the incumbrance, if it appears that the document did not create any charge on the property purchased; Ganesh Prasad v. Bisram, 18 I. C. 461.

When a party to a suit having a charge or incumbrance on the property in suit ordered to be sold, fails to have it notified in the sale proclamation, he is estopped from subsequently setting up his lien against the auction-purchaser; Manik Ram v. Ram Autar, 27 I. C. 611 (22 B. 686 referred to).

Where the existence of certain incumbrances is notified, the purchaser is not estopped from showing the invalidity of the incumbrance; Bhagwan v. Ahmad Jan, 36 I. C. 732.

The absence of specification of the incumbrances coupled with the fact that the property is undervalued amounts to a material irregularity.—Moti Lal v. Bhawani Kumari, 6 C. W. N. 836.

It is the duty of the person applying for execution to disclose his own lien (which he must know of) in his application for sale, and the Court is to specify the same in the proclamation. A purchaser purchasing without notice of such incumbrance, purchases the property free of the mortgagee's lien.—Ram Chandra v. Jairam, 22 B. 686 (7 M. 107, and 12 B. 678, referred to). See also Kasturi v. Venkatachalapathi, 15 M. 412. See, however, Dhondo v. Raoji, 20 B. 290.

Where a decree-holder stated in his application under sub-rule (3) that the property to be sold was subject to a mortgage in his favour, but no mention of the mortgage was made in the sale-proclamation, held that the omission not being due to any fraud on his part, the decree-holder is not estopped from enforcing the mortgage against the auction-purchaser; 1 I. C. 763. But if he omitted to do so, he would be estopped from enforcing the mortgage; 46: 55 I. C. 189; 24 C. W. N. 269:

30 C. L. J. 496. But see Dwarka v. Ufat, 53 A. 631: 133 I. C. 803: 29 A. L. J. 398: A. I. R. 1931 All. 549, which held that if a subsequent mortgagee does not have his prior mortgage specifically mentioned in the sale-proclamation drawn up in execution of a decree passed for enforcement of a subsequent mortgage, it can be said that the prior mortgage is extinguished thereby or that the mortgagee's remedy is barred.

In a proclamation of sale in execution of a mortgage decree, it is most material that it should be known whether there is any incumbrance, prior or 'puisne to the mortgage, on account of which the property is to be advertised for sale.—Debendra Narain v. Ramtaran, 30 C. 599, p. 606 (F. B.): 7 C. W. N. 766.

There is no objection to the sale in execution of a decree for sale on a mortgage "subject to the charge" of property which is liable to a charge for maintenance in favour of a particular person.—Lalman v. Mohar Singh, 29 A. 205: 3 A. L. J. 848: (1907) A. W. N. 18.

When property is sold subject to incumbrances specified in the sale-proclamation under this rule, the auction-purchaser purchases the property subject to those incumbrances: and if in a subsequent suit or proceeding, the specified incumbrances are declared invalid, the auction-purchaser cannot hold the property without making good the amount of the incumbrances. The decree-holder is also estopped from denying the truth of the representations made by him and must pay to the judgment-debtor the amount of the incumbrances represented by him to be subsisting.—Inayat Singh v. Izzatunnissa Begam, 27 A. 97 (F. B.) (reversed in Izzatunnisa v. Kunwar Pertab, 36 I. A. 203: 31 A. 583 (P. C.): 13 C. W. N. 1143: 10 C. L. J. 313: 3 I. C. 793; distinguished in Shib Kunwar v. Sheo Prasad, 28 A. 418).

Claims admitted by parties or established by a decree of a Court should be entered in the proclamation of sale as charges upon the property, though they have come to the knowledge of the Court in an enquiry under this section (rule) only, and have not been made the subject of an order under this section (rule).—Shantappa v. Subrao, 18 B. 175 (F. B.).

Where a final decree contained no exemption regarding the occupancy rights of the plaintiff in the land sold, the validity of a sale held in pursuance of the decree would not be affected even by a subsequent correction of the decree.—Chiraunji Lal v. Ishwar Das, 123 I. C. 755: A. I. R. 1930 All. 578.

An arrear of rent due in respect of the property sought to be sold is to be regarded as an incumbrance to which the property is liable, and the omission to notify the arrears of rent due at the date of the issue of the proclamation has the effect of destroying the lien which the decree-holder has upon the tenure.—Giribala Debia v. Rani Mina Kumari, 5 C. W. N. 497 (10 C. 609, and 15 M. 412, referred to).

Where the taxes and other payments to which the land was subject was described as Rs. 50 in the proclamation, whereas really it ought to have been Rs. 53-8-2. Held, that the variation is so small that it could not have produced any serious injury to the judgment-debtor.—Ambi Aiyar v. Sundaresa, 110 I. C. 779: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 823.

If a mortgage is merely notified and the property is not sold subject to the mortgage, the decree-holder or the purchaser is not estopped from questioning its validity.—Roshan v. Lallu, 44 A. 714: 68 I. C. 790; A. I. R. 1922 All. 443. But if the decree-holder fails to notify his own mortgage on the property, he is estopped thereafter to set up the mortgage against the auction-purchaser.—Maung Kyin v. Ma Pwa, 64 I. C. 953. If the mortgage turns out to be invalid, the benefit is taken by the purchaser and the judgment-debtor cannot claim refund of the amount alleged to have been due on the mortgage and the purchaser is free to contest the legality or validity of the mortgage when he is attacked by the mortgagee.—Krishna Kisor v. Nagendrabala, 34 C. L. J. 333.

The amount to be recovered—Interest.—The Court is entitled to specify in the sale-proclamation, and direct execution for, not only the sum due under the decree and interest to the date of the application for execution but also the further interest due from the date of the application to the date of the actual sale, though the latter is not expressly included in the application.—Basanta v. Baikuntha, 36 C. W. N. 404.

"Every other thing which the Court considers material," etc.—The proclamation shall specify as fairly and accurately as possible the property to be sold, the revenue assessed upon it, the incumbrances and every other thing which the Court considers material for the purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property the Court is selling and he is purchasing.—Ghulam Shahbir v. Dwarka, 18 A. 163 (165).

In ascertaining the value, only the rents realizable from the tenants and not the abwabs should be taken into account.—Shor: Bhusan v. Ahmed Hossein, 7 C. W. N. 439.

An arrear of rent due in respect of the property to be sold is to be regarded as one of the matters material for the purchaser to know.—Giribala Debta v. Rani Mina Kumari, 5 C. W. N. 497.

If the execution Court should have reason to believe that the property which was ordered to be sold, was an occupancy holding, it should enter the fact in the sale-proclamation as a warning to an intending purchaser that he might take nothing by his purchase.—Basdeo Prasad v. Juthan Ram, 27 A. 684 (F. B.): 2 A. L. J. 401: (1905) A. W. N. 138. There is no duty on the executing Court to insert in the sale-proclamation that the land to be sold belongs to an agricultural tribe.—Dhannu Ram v. Umar, 110 I. C. 337. It is a material circumstance for the bidders to know and one that can properly find a place in the sale-proclamation that the property to be sold in execution is the subject-matter of a pending suit by a defeated claimant (41 M. 985 dissented from).—Venkataramagavamma v. Singarayya, 34 L. W. 708: (1931) M. W. N. 1162: 61 M. L. J. 683.

Clause (c) of this section covers cases of puisne as well as prior incumbrances.—Hari Kishen v. Gisborne & Co., 9 C. W. N. ccc (300).

Value of the property.—The rule does not say that the sale-proclamation shall specify the value of the property. Under the law it is not obligatory to put down in the sale-proclamation the value of the property.—Mohammad Said Khan v. Mohammad Abdus Sami, 138 I. C. 612: A. I. R. 1932

All. 664. It lays down that it shall state everything which the Court considers material for a purchaser to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property. The value of the property is no doubt a material fact for the purchaser to know, and a mis-statement or under-valuation may lead to serious consequences. Gross or deliberate under-valuation has been held to be a material irregularity. The rule therefore in effect seems to require that the value must be stated. See also proviso to r. 17 of this order. It has been held that the exact value of the property to be sold must be stated in the sale-proclamation as fairly and accurately as possible, inasmuch as it is a material fact for the purchaser to know and an under-statement of the value is a material irregularity; Saadatmand Khan v. Phul Kuar, 25 I. A. 146: 20 A. 412 (P. C.); 2 C. W. N. 550 (followed in Sivadurga v. Rajmohan, 15 C. W. N. 577; Pran Singh v. Janardan, 14 C. L. J. 541; and in Sivasami v. Ratnasami, 23 M. 568; relied upon in Moti Lal v. Bhawani, 6 C. W. N. 836, and in Rajah Ramessur Proshad v. Rai Sham Krissen, 8 C. W. N. 257). See also Madarsah v. Palaniappa, 23 M. 628, in which it has been held that the omission to state the Government tax payable is a material irregularity. In Jashimuddin v. Manmohini, A I R. 1922 Cal. 93: 70 I. C. 308, it has been held that the approximate value of land should be stated in the sale-proclamation but its omission is an irregularity which does not necessarily vitiate the sale unless it has a material effect upon the number of bidders and upon the price. See also Madanlal v. Ripusudan, 124 I. C. 250: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 191. The cases have been explained in Kashi Pershad v. Jamuna, 31 C. 922: 8 C. W. N. 264, holding that the law does not require a Court to make an investigation on the question of valuation. See also Thiruvengadaswamy v. Govindaswamy, 51 M. 655: 27 L. W. 577: 109 I. C. 698: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 503: 55 M. L. J. 363, where it has been held that the Court itself is under no obligation whatever to fix in the proclamation of sale its own valuation of the property to be sold (2 P. L. J. 180 and 4 P. L. J. 37 disstd.). But see Lachiram v. Rameswar, 127 I. C. 257: 52 C. L. J. 145: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 781. In Saurendra Mohan v. Hurruk Chand, 12 C. W. N. 542, it has been held that it cannot be laid down generally that in no case should any enquiry be made as to the value of the judgment-debtor's property to be sold before issuing the sale proclamation (31 C. 922: 8 C. W. N. 264 commented on; doubted in 14 C. W. N. 40-n.). The Court must make an enquiry as to the value of the property where the judgment-debtor objects; Lachman v. Ganga, 11 C. L. J. 63-n. Before inserting the value of the property in the sale-proclamation it is desirable that the Court should hold an enquiry as regards the value. The enquiry need not be an elaborate one but there should be an enquiry if the Court finds that the value mentioned by the parties is not correct. Semble: the practice of evading responsibility which rests on the Court to fix the value should be condemned.—Lachiram v. Rameswar, 127 I. C. 257: 52 C. L. J. 145: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 781. Except in exceptional cases where it is not possible to ascertain the value or where in the circumstances of the case the value need not be ascertained, the Court is bound to put a fair and accurate value in the proclamation. Where the valuation put by the parties was not satisfactory and it appeared that the approximate valuation could be otherwise ascertained, it was held that the Court should have determined the valuation by summary enquiry and inserted the same in the sale-proclamation (51 M. 655 disapproved).—Pashupati Nath v. Bank of Behar, 35 C. W. N. 907. It is only in exceptional cases where it would be a difficult, if not impossible, task to estimate the value of the property concerned, that the Court would be justified in merely stating the two values given by the parties without giving its own estimate.—Basanta v. Sylhet Loan Co., 36 C. W. N. 347. The enquiry under this rule is intended to be of a summary character; Pran Singh v. Janardan, 14 C. L. J. 541. Gross or deliberate under-valuation is a material irregularity; Tekait Krishan v. Moti Chand, 40 I. A. 140: 40 C. 635 (P. C.): 17 C. W. N. 637: 19 I. C. 296; Sivadurga v. Rajmohan, 15 C. W. N. 577. Where the gross under-valuation of properties in the sale-proclamation has the effect of deterring intending purchasers from bidding at the sale and offering a reasonable value, the sale should be set aside.—Ambika v. Manikganj Loan Office, 33 C. W. N. 845. The value of the property must be stated as fairly and accurately as possible. The Court ought not to enter in the sale-proclamation a statement that the property to be sold is valued by one person at a particular sum and by another at a larger sum; Raghunath v. Hazari, 37 I. C. 872 (F. B.): 2 P. L. J. 130. But see Bejoy Singh Dudhuria v. Ashutosh, 28 C. W. N. 552, where it has been held that a Court is justified in stating the valuation given by both parties instead of attempting itself to value the property when the property was one that it was most difficult to value accurately. See also Debdendranath v. Radhakissen, 53 C. 577: 132 I. C. 687: 35 C. W. N. 142: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 520. If there is a wide difference between the values given by the two parties, the valuation as given by the judgment-debtor should also be stated in the sale-proclamation; Basanta v. Baikuntha, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 610: 91 I. C. 819.

The insertion of any valuation in the sale-proclamation other than the valuation fixed by the Court is calculated to mislead intending bidders and is therefore wrong. A sale held under such circumstances can be set aside; Damrupat Singh v. Rameswar Singh, A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 445: (1923) P. 208.

The omission to note the value of the property in the proclamation of sale is a mere irregularity which does not vitiate the sale.—Muhammad Abdulla v. Jamiat Rai, 121 I. C. 369: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 695; unless it is under the circumstances a material irregularity.—Daulat v. Rahisa, 53 C. 813: 131 I. C. 853. 53 C. L. J. 575: 35 C. W. N. 75: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 490.

Effect of an order under this rule.—This rule imposes upon the Court the duty of stating as fairly and accurately as possible any encumbrance to which the property is liable, with any other things which it considers material for the purchasers to know in order to judge of the nature and value of the property. But an order passed by the Court in the course of such an enquiry is not conclusive as between the decree-holder or purchaser on the one hand and the holder of the encumbrance on the other; Bhagwan Das v. Ahmad Jan, 36 I. C. 732.

Sub-rule (3)—Application to be accompanied by a verified statement.—This rule has given effect to the practice that prevailed in the Madras Presidency and embodies the law laid down in Srimati Giribala v. Srimati Rani Mina Kumari, 5 C. W. N. 497 (502). An application for an order of sale accompanied by a duly verified statement required by sub-rule (3) is an absolute necessity and a condition precedent to the passing of an order for sale.—Sunderabai v. Bapuna, 116 I. C. 65: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 305.

The omission in an application in execution for attachment of immoveable property to verify the inventory of the property sought to be attached is an irregularity only and does not vitiate the application.—Nasirunnissa v. Ghafuruddin, 28 A. 244 : (1905) A. W. N. 263 (22 A. 55 followed); Vaidya v. Abdul Samad, A. I. R. 1928 Nag 14 : 105 I. C. 335, the execution application for sale on a final mortgage decree cannot be said to be not in accordance with law only because it was not accompanied by the affidavit required by Or. XXI, r. 66 (3) and the certificate of the Sub-Registrar as regards the prior encumbrances. Such certificate and affidavit should be filed at a subsequent stage from the application for execution under Or. XXI, r. 11, and when such application is filed the Court should deal with it under Or. XXI, r. 17.—Dambar Lal v. Chand Mal, 139 I. C. 201 : 30 A. L. J. 578 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 484.

Sub-rule (4)—Court may summon any person.—On this point Prinsep, J., points out the duty of the lower Courts and gives instructions for their guidance.—Debendra Narain v. Ramtaran, 30 C. 599 (607) (F. B.) : 7 C. W. N. 766 The enquiry under this rule is intended to be of a summary character; Pran Singh v. Janardan, 14 C. L. J. 541.

A claim set up in an investigation under this rule cannot be treated as a claim under r. 58, the latter having reference to claims to property under attachment.—Bhiku Bal v. Khemchand, 14 B. 369.

Appeal.—It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that an order under this rule determining the value of immoveable property is merely interlocutory and is not appealable as a decree; Deoki Nandan v. Bansu, 16 C. W. N. 124 : 14 C. L. J. 35 (approving Sivagami v. Subrahmaniam, 27 M. 259 (F. B.)); Panch Dwar v. Mani Raut, 16 C. W. N. 970; Mahammad Eahasan v. Tara Prosanna, 32 I. C. 548; Sashi Kanta v. Fooljan Bewa, 96 I. C. 567 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1184. Though an order merely fixing the value of a property is not open to appeal but an order under r. 66 may in certain circumstances also amount to an order under S. 47, and in such cases it is appealable; Devendra v. Kailash, 29 C. W. N. 556 : 80 I. C. 861 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 318; Basanta v. Baikuntha, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 610 : 91 I. C. 819; Alimuddin v. Gobind Prasad, A. I. R. 1927 : All. 208 : 99 I. C. 455. The Madras High Court, in Sivagami v. Subrahmaniam, 27 M. 259 (F. B.) and in Ramanathan v. Venkatachelam, 44 M. L. J. 599 : 72 I. C. 836 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 619, has held that an order under this rule determining the value of the property to be sold, the place where the sale is to take place, the lots in which it is to be sold and the amount for the recovery of which the sale is to take place, is not a judicial but an administrative order, and it does not therefore come within S. 47 and is not appealable. The same view has also been taken in Lanka v. Lanka, 46 M. L. J. 192 : 78 I. C. 829 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 527, that no appeal lies from an order directing the order in which the property should be sold. It has been held in some Madras cases that a decision as to the order in which the properties are to be put up for sale, if it affects the rights of the co-defendants, inter se, as for example where the interests of the owners of the items of the mortgaged properties will be seriously affected by the order, comes under S. 47 and is therefore appealable.—Narasimha v. Subbarayudu, 51 M. L. J. 135; Vedaviasa v. Madura Hindu Labha, 45 M. L. J. 478. See also Meenakshisundaram v. Chokkalinga, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 506 : 56 M. L. J. 624 : 120 I. C. 849. The Allahabad High Court in Ajudhia, Prasad v. Gopi Nath, 39 A. 415: 39 I. C. 578, also held that an order under this rule determining the value of property, is not appealable under S. 47, as it is not a judicial order. See also Nathu Lal v. Yashodah, 134 I. C. 833: A. I. R. 1932 All. 136: 29 A. L. J. 1084; Muhammad Zakaria v. Kishan, 48 A. 260: 92 I. C. 644: A. I. R. 1926 All. 268. The Patna High Court has also held in a recent case that an order of the Court determining any of the particulars to be stated in the sale-proclamation, is not a final order, and is not therefore appealable; Mohit Narain v. Thakan, 4 P. 731 (S. B.): 88 I. C. 332: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 500. The same High Court held in two earlier cases that an order of the Court determining the value of the property was merely interlocutory and therefore not appealable; Deokinandan v. Raja Dhakeshwar, 2 P. L. J. 13; Saurendra v. Mritunjay, 5 P. L. J. 270: 56 I. C. 452: (1920) P. 227. The Bombay High Court has also held the same.—Krishnarao v. Krishnarao, 52 B. 444: 111 I. C. 892: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 245: 30 Bom. L. R. 679. See also Mt. Indarani v. Bimla Prasad, 6 O. W. N. 1095.

An order fixing the price of the property to be sold does not conclusively determine the right of parties and is hence not appealable as a decree under S. 2, C. P. Code; nor is such an order an appealable one.—Ramanathan v. Somasundara, 37 I. C. 897. But see contra in Kanha Lal v. The Bank of Upper India Ltd., 49 I. C. 539, where it has been held that the order of the Court is a judicial order and hence appealable. The weight of authority however is against the latter view; see Bejoy v. Dharendra, 47 I. C. 512; Deokinandan v. Raja Dhakeswar, 2 P. L. J. 13; Giridhari v. Altaf, 46 I. C. 564; N.C. Chatterji v. R. M. K. Karpan, 36 I. C. 402; Ajudhia Prasad v. Gopi Nath, 39 A. 415: 39 I. C. 578; Braja Sundar v. Svaranjan, 59 I. C. 382; Avudaimayagappa v. Sundaranandam, 76 I. C. 173; Rukmani v. Palaniappa, (1928) M. W. N. 569: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1169: 114 I. C. 652.

Where after notice under this rule, the judgment-debtor put forward certain objections, which were summarily rejected, held that the decision was under S. 47 and appealable; (per Walsh, J.) Shiam Lal v. Roshan, 35 I. C. 230: 14 A. L. J. 363.

Section 238, C. P. Code, 1882, which was to the effect that "no Judge, etc., shall be answerable for an error in the proclamation, unless it has been committed dishonestly" has been omitted from the present Code. "The committee are of opinion that, having regard to the provisions of Act XVIII of 1850, the section may safely be omitted."—Report of the Special Committee.

Revision.—An order under this rule can be interfered with by the High Court in Revision under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, if not under S. 115 of the C. P. Code; Raghunath v. Hazari, 37 I. C. 872 (F. B.): 2 P. L. J. 130.

67. (1) Every proclamation shall be made and published, as nearly as may be, in the manner prescribed by rule 54, sub-rule (2).

Mode of making proclamation.

(2) Where the Court so directs, such proclamation shall also be published in the local official Gazette or in a local newspaper, or in both, and the costs of such publication shall be deemed to be costs of the sale.

[S. 289.]

(3) Where property is divided into lots for the purpose of being sold separately, it shall not be necessary to make a separate proclamation for each lot unless proper notice of the sale cannot, in the opinion of the Court, otherwise be given.

[New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule 3 is new. It has been framed to meet the conflicting decisions reported in 11 C. 74, 12 B. 368 and 12 C. W. N. 757, noted below.

"Proclamation shall be made."—See notes to rule 54 under the heading "Order shall be proclaimed."

Publication of a sale-proclamation upon the decree-holder's property at a distance of half a mile from the judgment-debtor's property, is a material irregularity in the publication of the sale.—Jamini Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 44.

Where it appeared that the sale notification had not been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by this section (i. e., rule), that no affidavit as to search having been made, and no incumbrances as required by r. 34 had been placed on and not after the 30th day of the month, it also appeared that the applicant had himself been present at the sale and had purchased the property, and it was not shown that any substantial injury had resulted from the irregularities; held that there was no ground for setting aside the sale.—Bandy Ali v. Madhub Chunder, 8 C. 932.

A sale of revenue-paying land is not, ipso facto, void by reason of a copy of the sale proclamation not having been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by this section.—Nana Kumar v. Golam Chunder, 18 C. 422 (F. B.). (8 C. 932; 11 C. 74 and 658, referred to).

Advertisement.—It is right that the Court should permit any advertisement reasonably required which might have the effect of giving notice to all possible purchasers; Rai Monindra v. Lachmeeshar, 1 C. W. N. clv (155). If an advertisement in the Calcutta Gazette describing the property differed from that in the schedule of attachment, it could not be relied on to validate the sale of the property which was not the property to which the attachment related; Thakur Barmha v. Jiban Ram, 41 I. A. 38; 41 C. 590 (P. C.): 18 C. W. N. 313; 26 M. L. J. 89; 21 I. C. 936.

Sub-rule (3)—Division of property into lots.—It was held under the old Code that when distinct properties are proclaimed for sale in one execution there should be a separate proclamation on each of them; Tripura Sundari v. Durga Churn, 11 C. 74. See also Moulvi Abdul Kashem v. Benode, 12 C. W. N. 757. It has been held in Bombay that where the property is divided into a number of small lots as a means of obtaining a better aggregate price, the law does not require that a separate proclamation should be made on each lot.—Pedro v. Jalbhoy, 12 B. 368. Sub-rule (3), which is new, aims at settling the difference of opinion which hitherto existed, and adopts in substance the view in 12 B. 368. It should be noted however that the rule speaks of proclamation for and not proclamation on.

If the property to be sold consists of several villages which are all close together it is not necessary to make proclamation in every village.—Maharaj Bahadur v. P. C. Lal, 6 P. 533; 105 I. C. 689; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 25.

68. Save in the case of property of the kind described in the proviso to rule 43, no sale hereunder shall, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days in the case of immovable property, and of at least fifteen days in the case of moveable property, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been affixed on the court-house of the Judge ordering the sale.

COMMENTARY.

Proviso to rule 43.—The proviso to rule 43 refers to properties which are subject to speedy and natural decay and to cases where the expense of keeping them is likely to exceed its value.

There is no rule enjoining any particular period that should elapse since the publication of the proclamation in a newspaper which a Court may direct under Or. XXI, r. 67, as there is in Or. XXI, r. 68 about the period which should elapse from the date on which the proclamation is fixed in the Court-house.—Galstoun v. Syed Mahamad Hussain, 36 C. W N. 242.

Sale in contravention of 30 days rule.—The decisions are not unanimous as to whether a sale held in contravention of the rule is an illegality making the sale void or a mere irregularity. In the following cases the view has been taken that such a sale is an illegality vitiating the sale and is something more than a material irregularity to which r. 90 refers; Bakhshi Nand v. Malak Chand, 7 A. 289. See also Jasoda v. Mathura, 9 A. 511; Sadhusaran v. Panchdeo, 14 C. 1; Ganga Prasad v. Jag Lal, 11 A. 333; Basharutulla v. Uma Okum, 16 C. 794; and Mohendro Narain v. Gopal Mondul, 17 C. 769 (F. B.). In another set of cases it has been held that it is a material irregularity but its effect is not to make the sale a nullity without proof of substantial injury; Tassaduk v. Ahmad Hussain, 20 I. A. 176; 21 C. 66 (P. C.); Kokil Singh v. Edal, 31 C. 385. See also notes to r. 90.

Waiver of irregularities—As to this, see notes to r. 90.

69. (1) The Court may, in its discretion, adjourn any sale hereunder to a specified day and hour, and the officer conducting any such sale may in his discretion adjourn the sale, recording his reasons for such adjournment:

Provided that, where the sale is made in, or within the precincts of, the court-house, no such adjournment shall be made without the leave of the Court.

(2) Where a sale is adjourned under sub-rule (1) for a longer period than seven days, a fresh proclamation under rule 67 shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor consents to waive it.

(3) Every sale shall be stopped if, before the lot is knocked down, the debt and costs (including the costs of the sale) are tendered to the officer conducting the sale, or proof is given to his satisfaction that the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into the Court which ordered the sale.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 291, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The words “under this chapter” which occurred after “adjourn any sale,” have been omitted. By the above omission this rule has been clearly made applicable to sales of mortgaged properties. Again the words “thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished,” which occurred at the end of S. 89 of the T.P. Act (IV of 1882), have been omitted from rule 5 of Or. XXXIV (which corresponds to S. 89) in order to make this rule applicable to all sales of immoveable property. In this connection reference may be made to the Full Bench case reported in Bibijan Bibi v. Sachi Bewah, 31 C. 863 (F.B.) : 8 C. W. N. 634, which clearly explains the object of the omission. The words “other than a sale by the Collector,” which occurred in the old section, have also been omitted on account of rule 70 which covers the exception.

“Court.”—In execution of a decree passed by a Sub-Judge a sale was held by the Nazir of the District Judge : held that the District Judge had no jurisdiction to pass any order under this rule.—Nobokishore v. Protap Chunder 1. C. L. R. 534. An execution case was pending before a Sub-Judge, who postponed the sale for eight months on a letter from the District Judge : held it was entirely irregular, Kali Charan v. Debendra, 10 C. L. J. 456.

Unless the order of the Court is communicated to the accredited agent to stay his hands, he is bound to sell the property in execution and has a perfect right to do so. Where a sale, therefore, has taken place without communication of the order of stay, the execution sale is good and not a nullity (following 50 A. 41 and not following 12 A. 96).—Lakshmi Chand v. Phul Chand, 125 I. C. 53 : 11 L. L. J. 457 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 17.

Any sale.—This rule applies to sales under mortgage-decrees. See notes above under the heading, “Alterations.”

Adjournment after partial sale.—The Court may adjourn the sale after the sale of the first two lots ; Raja of Kalahasti v. Sri Raja Venkataramiah, (1914) M. W. N. 873 : 26 I. C. 273.

Discretion.—Where a Judge is unable to attend the Court on account of illness, he is competent to postpone the sale.—Megh Lall v. Shib Pershad, 7 C. 34 : 8 C. L. R. 369.

The adjournment of a sale from time to time without sufficient ground is nothing more than a mere irregularity, and does not vitiate the sale—Venkata v. Sama, 14 M. 227. To adjourn an execution sale from time to time beyond the period of seven days, is not anything more than an irregularity—Ramiah Thevan v. Athomanatha, 117 I. C. 727 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 624.

Where an execution-sale is not conducted within the precincts of the Court-house the officer conducting it has a discretion to adjourn the sale to the next day.—Babu Singh v. Gurbaksh Singh, 107 I. C. 274 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 249.

A statutory duty is cast on the officer conducting the sale, that in the event of his adjourning the sale he must record his reasons for such adjournment.—Gulab v. Raghbir, 140 I. C. 499 : 30 A. L. J. 357 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 369.

Adjournment by bailiff—without the Court's permission is a mere irregularity, Vaduganathan v. Foy, 20 I. C. 192 : 6 Bom. L. T. 65.

Sale to be adjourned to a specified day and hour.—Where property was ordered to be sold at a fixed date but no hour had been fixed and it was sold at a very inadequate price, held that there had been a material irregularity causing substantial injury.—Surno Moyee v. Dakhina Ranjan, 24 C. 291 (21 C. 66 (P. C.), explained) ; Jamini Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 44 ; Babu Ram v. Imanullah, 49 A. 402 : 99 I. C. 926 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 241. In Venkatasubbaraya v. Zamindar of Karvetinagar, 20 M. 159, it has been held that, when a sale is adjourned under this rule, the provisions mentioned must be followed with exactitude. The sale should be adjourned to a specified day and hour and omission to specify the hour of sale is a material irregularity.—Mahabir Pershad v. Dhanukdhari, 31 C. 815 : 8 C. W. N. 686 (affirmed in 34 C. 709 (P. C.) : 11 C. W. N. 739 : 6 C. L. J. 11 : 17 M. L. J. 353 : 9 Bom. L. R. 651) ; see also Bhikari v. Rani Surja Mani, 6 C. W. N. 48 (24 C. 291 ; 6 C. W. N. 44 ; 20 M. 159, refd. to) ; Abdul Rauf v. Mt. Qamrunnissa, 28 A. L. J. 1062 : 124 I. C. 721 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 542. When a sale is adjourned, but no day is specified to which it is adjourned, the sale is void ; Motahar v. Mohammad, 40 C. L. J. 311 : 84 I. C. 700 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 201. When the sale was fixed on the 13th but was held on the 20th owing to the absence of the Judge, there was no contravention of the provisions of the rule. Even if there is any irregularity, the sale cannot be set aside without proof of substantial injury ; Rang Lal v. Ravaneshwar, 38 I. A. 200 : 16 C. W. N. 1 (P. C.) : 14 C. L. J. 334 : 39 C. 26 : 12 I. C. 174 : 13 Bom. L. R. 823, but see Hari Sadhan v. Shib Gopal, 35 C. L. J. 140, where it was held that when a sale is adjourned to a certain date, but is held on a different date, the case is one of material irregularity in conducting the sale. Where a sale fixed at a certain hour on a certain date is adjourned, it is a reasonable inference to make that the sale is adjourned to the same hour on the new date, but it is better that the Courts strictly conform to the provisions of the section (i.e., rule)—Ambi Aiyar v. Sundaresa Ayyar, 110 I. C. 779 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 823.

A sale of land was, owing to the absence of bidders on the sale day, adjourned and held on the next day.—Held, that the sale was invalid, Palani v. Sivalinga, 8 M. 6.

It is the practice to place all properties intended for sale on a list and to proceed with the sales from day to day, commencing on an appointed day. As each property is taken up in its turn, an adjournment of the sale of a particular property which is the consequence of such procedure is not an adjournment within this rule; Lal Mohan v. Nunu, 17 C. 152. A sale may thus be conducted from day to day for a period longer than seven days without any illegality or irregularity; Pir Mohamad v. Moyandi, 8 I. C. 564.

Power to adjourn sale of mortgaged property.—This rule will apply to a sale held in virtue of an order absolute for sale, passed under S. 89, T. P. Act (now Or. XXXIV, r. 5), although no power is given under that Act for postponement; Raja Ram v. Chunni Lal, 19 A. 205 (followed in Misri Lal v. Mitthu Lal, 28 A. 28 : (1905) A. W. N. 168). See also Harjas Rai v. Rameshar, 20 A. 354, where it has been held that this section (rule) must be taken to have modified S. 89 of Act IV of 1882, when the debt and costs are tendered to the officer conducting the sale, or when the amount of such debt and costs has been paid into Court that ordered the sale. See also Vallabha Valiya v. Vedapuraiti 19 M. 40 (F. B.), p. 48; and Bibijan v. Sachi Bewah, 31 C. 863 (F. B.) : 8 C. W. N. 684 (25 M. 244; 25 B 104; 19 A. 205; and 31 C. 373 followed). A Court has power under this rule to adjourn the sale of mortgaged property.—Shyamkishan v. Sundar Koer, 31 C. 373; Bepin Behary v. Jotindra, 14 C. W. N. 1019.

See notes under Order XXXIV, r. 5, and the cases noted thereunder.

Issue of fresh proclamation when necessary.—Where a sale in execution is postponed, it is necessary, in the absence of express agreement between the parties, to issue a fresh proclamation.—Goopee Nath v. Roy Iuchmeeput, 3 C. 542 : 1 C. L. R. 349 (3 C. 544 referred to) (followed in Kalytara v. Ramcoomar, 7 C. 466; and explained in Bonomali v. Woomesh, 7 C. 730).

Where there was an adjournment of the sale, but the property was kept on hammer throughout from the 16th January to the 28th January in expectation of higher bids and on none of these dates did the bidding start afresh from the beginning, but only an attempt was made to obtain some higher bid; held that it was a continuous sale and the provisions of sub-rule (2) of r. 69, did not apply; Murlidhar v. Nawab Saiyid Muhammad, 6 P. 432 : A. I. E. 1927 Pat. 312 : 104 I. C. 215.

When there is a series of short postponements of less than seven days each which, taken together in the aggregate amount to more than seven days, a fresh proclamation is necessary; Jamini Mohan v. Chandra, 6 C. W. N. 44 (11 C. 658; 24 C. 291 referred to). To adjourn an execution sale from time to time beyond the period of seven days is not anything more than an irregularity.—Ramiak Thevan v. Athomanatha, 117 I. C. 727 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 624.

When the stay of proceedings is removed, a fresh proclamation ought to be issued. If not issued again the judgment-debtor's remedy is to object and not to impeach the sale by a regular application; 34 I. A. 37 : 11 C. W. N. 393 (P. C.) : 5 J. 112 : 9 Bom. L. R. 83.

An omission to issue a fresh sale-proclamation after adjournment amounts to a material irregularity; Bagal Chunder v. Rameshkur, 18 C. 496; Mati v. Pirthipal, 25 I. C. 17; Kashif Husain v. Ganga Bakhsh; 2 Luck 490; 100 I. C. 787; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 98.

A property may be kept under hammer for several days without an adjournment and a fresh proclamation is not necessary.—Murlidhar v. Nawab Saiyid Muhammad 6 P. 432; 104 I. C. 215; A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 312.

Waiver.—As to waiver; see notes to r. 90.

"Debts and costs."—These words in Cl. (3) could not be interpreted to mean the balance of the decree-debt and costs, which would remain, if by a legal fiction the sales of previous lots (not yet completed by the payment of the whole purchase money) were taken as completed by treating the whole of the purchase-money as actually paid up; Raja of Kalahasti v. Sri Raja Venkataramiah, (1914) M. W. N. 873; 26 I. C. 273.

Tender—An auction-purchaser of the properties is a representative of the judgment-debtor and he can tender the decretal amount, when the property is going to be sold in execution of a mortgage-decree.—Radha Kishun v. Hem Chandra, 11 C W. N. 495 (26 C 966; 4 C. W. N. 317 followed).

Petition for postponement—A petition for time to pay the decretal amount, signed by the judgment-debtor's pleader, constitutes sufficient acknowledgment of debt.—Ram Coomar v. Jakur Ali, 8 C. 716 (3 A. 247 followed) (followed in Toree Mahomed v. Mabood, 9 C 730). See also Norendra Nath v. Bhupendra Narain, 23 C. 374, and Trimbak v. Kashinath, 22 B. 722.

Withdrawal of bid.—It is competent to a bidder at a Court sale to withdraw his bid. An offer to buy or sell may be retracted at any time before it is unconditionally and completely accepted by words or conduct; and a bidding at an auction is a mere offer which may be retracted before the hammer is down; Agra Bank v. Hamlin, 14 M. 235.

A sale is complete when it is knocked down to the bidder by the Nazir; Rajendra v. Upendra, 19 C. W. N. 633; 21 C. L. J. 174.

Where the decree-holder's bid was accepted but on his refusal to deposit the usual 25 p. c. an attempt was made to continue the sale, and no further bids being obtained, the auctioneer at the request of the parties closed the sale saying that if the Court so ordered, the sale would be held on a future day; held, that there was no adjournment of sale within the meaning of this rule and therefore it could not be contended that there was no sale.—Fateh Muhammad v. Chuhar Mal, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 699; 115 I. C. 541.

70. Nothing in rules 66 to 69 shall be deemed to apply to any case in which the execution of a decree has been transferred to the Collector.

Saving of certain sales.

[S. 287, LAST PARA.]

COMMENTARY.

Applicability.—As to execution of decrees by the Collector, see Ss. 63 to 73, Sch. III, and notes.

The Revenue Courts are Courts of civil jurisdiction within the meaning of the C. P. Code, in that their decrees when transferred in the regular course are to be treated in all respects as if they were passed by a Court of civil jurisdiction.—Ram Lochan v. Kumar Newaz, 9 C. L. J. 125 (16 A. 496 dissented from; 9 C. 295 (P. C.), and 5 A. 406 referred to).

Where the sale was adjourned sine die but the same was continued the next day without any fresh proclamation, held that there was a mere irregularity in the procedure and that the sale was not vitiated.—Kamakhya v. Shyam Lal, 4 Luck. 635; 6 O. W. N. 226; 117 I. C. 471 · A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 235.

71. Any deficiency of price which may happen on a re-sale by reason of the purchaser's default, and all expenses attending such re-sale, shall be certified to the Court or to the Collector or subordinate of the Collector, as the case may be, by the officer or other person holding the sale, and shall, at the instance of either the decree-holder or the judgment-debtor, be recoverable from the defaulting purchaser under the provisions relating to the execution of a decree for the payment of money. [S. 293.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—The words "or to the Collector or subordinate of the Collector as the case may be" have been added.

Application of the rule—The provisions of this rule extend to all sales, whether of moveable or of immoveable property, and also to re-sales made under rr 81, 85 and 86.—Ramdhani v. Rajrani, 7 C. 337; 9 C. L. R. 23 (relied on in Rajendra v. Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 411).

But the re-sale should only cover the property sold at the prior sale, and any substantial difference of description at the sale and re-sale in any of the matters required by r. 66 will disentitle the decree-holder to recover the deficiency of price under this rule; Bajinath v. Moheep, 16 C. 535; Gangadas v. Bai Suraj, 36 B. 329. "The reasonable construction to place on r. 71 is that the re-sale should be within a reasonable time after the first sale, and the property re-sold should be substantially the same, and that any difference will not matter if the difference in the condition of the property or the title thereto is one which would occur in the ordinary course of things, having regard either to the nature of the property, or the transactions in respect thereof having legal force at the date of sale, or was brought about by the first purchaser's default."—Venkatachellamayya v. Nilakanta, 41 M. 474; 43 I. C. 685 affirmed on appeal to the Privy Council in Nilakanta v. Venkatachallam, 48 M. L. J. 335 (P. C.); 86 I. C. 373; A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 61; 27 Bom. L. R. 806; 30 C. W. N. 268.

No deficiency of price can be claimed from the defaulting purchaser unless his bid has been finally accepted by the Court.—Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Sundar Singh, 118 I. C. 901; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 673.

Defaulting purchaser liable for deficiency of price.—A purchaser failing to pay the deposit of 25 per cent. as directed by r. 84 is a defaulting purchaser and liable to make good any deficiency of price which may happen on a re-sale and all expenses attending the same.—Javerbai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575; Sita Ram v. Janku Ram, 44 A. 266 (F. B.); 65 I. C. 813; A. I. R. 1922 All. 200. So also is a decree-holder purchaser when he fails to pay the poundage fee as laid down in the High Court Rules and Circular Orders.—Madhu Sudan v. Purna, 9 C. L. J. 115.

Before the defaulting purchaser can be made liable it must appear that the property which is the subject of the two sales is the same in every respect, and any substantial difference of description of a sale and re-sale will disentitle the decree-holder to recover the deficiency of price.—Bajinath Sahai v. Moheep, 16 C. 535. See also Kali Kishore v. Guru Prosad, 25 C. 99; 2 C. W. N. 408.

Where the first sale was irregular and void, the decree-holder is not entitled to claim against the first purchaser, compensation for the loss on the second sale.—Amir Begum v. The Bank of Upper India Ltd., 30 A. 273; 5 A. L. J. 336 (5 A. 316 followed). Where on a re-sale on failure to deposit the balance of purchase-money there was a large deficiency, and it was found that the descriptions in both proclamations were inaccurate, the defaulting purchaser was not liable, Gangadas v. Bai Suraj, 14 Bom. L. R. 250; 14 I. C. 777.

A party purchasing in the character of an agent cannot be made liable for the deficiency, and in such a case proceedings must be taken upon the contract against the principal.—Huree Ram v. Hur Pershad, 20 W. R. 80. But see Gangabattulla Kanthamma v. Manchiraju, 78 I. C. 296; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 476; 46 M. L. J. 134, where it has been held that a person who bids at a Court auction without informing the Court or its officer conducting the sale that he does so only as the agent of a principal, makes himself personally liable for the deficit caused by his action in not completing the sale by depositing 25 per cent. of the purchase-money.

The decree-holder having purchased property through his agent repudiated the bid, and did not pay the deposit, and the property was re-sold on the following day, held that the judgment-debtor was entitled to recover deficiency of price from the decree-holder.—Vallabhan v. Pangunni, 12 M. 454.

Sale of property by Receiver in insolvency—Failure of deposit of one-fourth of price—Re-sale—Deficiency of price—Purchaser ordered to make good the deficiency; Cheda Lal v. Lachman, 39 A. 267; 15 A. L. J. 253 (36 A. 9 folld.).

Where the decree-holder was guilty of fraud in that the sale-proclamation did not show the encumbrance to which the property was subject and the purchaser was misled thereby and after coming to know of it after depositing 25 per cent. of the purchase-money, refused to pay the balance and subsequently the decree-holder himself purchased the property at the re-sale, held, that under these circumstances the decree-holder could not apply for recovery of the deficiency of price.—Bajrang Lal v. Ram Harakh, 4 Luck. 684; 6 C. W. N. 407; 118 I. C. 833; A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 294.

added. The addition is in adoption of the principles laid down in 6 B. 570, 11 M. 356 and 5 M. 123, noted below.

"Holder of a decree."—An assignee of a decree under an oral assignment has no locus standi at all to apply for an execution of a decree, and it is not necessary for such an assignee to obtain leave to bid at a sale held in execution of a decree. An auction-purchaser is not a decree-holder within the meaning of this rule.—Dakshina Mohan v. Basumati Debi, 4 C. W. N. 474.

Permission of Court.—The holder of a decree is absolutely bound to have express permission from the Court before he can purchase the property; and whether the objection is taken and pressed or otherwise, a sale to him is invalid, unless he has got explicit permission.—Rukhinee Bullubh v. Brojo Nath, 5 C. 308. He ought not to be allowed to bid and purchase at a sale in execution of his decree, without an order of Court previously obtained upon notice to the judgment-debtor.—Bandhu Roy v. Hanuman Singh, 3 B. L. R. 320: 14 W. R. 406-note.

The Court can impose any condition it thinks fit on the permission granted to the decree-holder, viz., that his lowest bid should be the amount of the decree. Such order is valid and enforceable; Raj Kuar v. Chumoo, 15 I. C. 888 (5 C. W. N. 265 followed). Where the permission is given on condition that he should purchase it in full satisfaction of the decree, the decree-holder must pay poundage as part of the costs of the execution of the decree.—Mt. Purnama Devi v. Ram Prasad, 27 A. L. J. 243: 118 I. C. 378: A. I. R. 1929 All. 266.

When a mortgagee decree-holder purchased the equity of redemption in contravention of the provisions of S. 99, T. P. Act, it should not be presumed under S. 114 of the Evidence Act, in the absence of evidence, that the Court granted leave to bid.—Uttam v. Rajkrishna, 47 C. 377 (F. B.): 24 C. W. N. 229: 31 C. L. J. 98.

Where the decree-holder filed a petition before the executing Court asking for permission to bid, but no order was passed on his petition and he was allowed to bid throughout the course of the sale; held that it can be taken that the Court gave permission to the decree-holder to bid; Murlidhar v. Nawab Saiyid, 6 P. 432: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 312: 104 I. C. 215.

"Where a decree-holder purchases with permission."—When permission is given to a decree-holder to bid, he is bound to exercise the most scrupulous fairness; and if he or his agent dissuades others from purchasing, that of itself is a sufficient ground why the purchase should be set aside. Where a decree-holder was joint in family with the manager of an infant defendant and the defendant's property was to be sold in execution of the decree, held that the decree-holder ought not to be granted leave to purchase at the sale.—Woopendro Nath v. Brojendronath, 7 C. 346: 9 C. L. R. 263 (disapproved in Mahomed Meera v. Savvasi, 27 I. A. 17: 23 M. 227 (P. C.): 4 C. W. N. 228: 2 Bom. L. R. 640).

Leave to bid puts the decree-holder in the same position as any other purchaser; Mahomed Meera v. Savvasi, 27 I. A. 17: 4 C. W. N. 228 (P. C.): 23 M. 227: 2 Bom. L. R. 640.

Where the leave to bid is obtained by the decree-holder by misrepresentation, the Court may refuse to confirm the sale; Must. Janakbati v. Maharajadhiraj Rameshwar, 1 P. 235: 69 I. C. 872: A. I. R 1922 Pat. 511.

A mortgagee who has obtained a mortgage decree, and after obtaining permission to bid becomes the purchaser, does not stand in a fiduciary position towards his mortgagor; therefore he is at liberty to take out further execution of any balance of the decree, and is not bound to credit the judgment-debtor with the real value of the property to be ascertained by the Court.—Sheonath Doss v. Janki Prosad, 16 C. 132 (11 C. 718 distinguished). See also Mahabir Persad v. Macnaghten, 16 I. A. 107: 16 C. 692 (P. C.); Dakshina Mohan v. Basumati, 4 C. W. N. 474; Krishnasami Ayyar v. Janakiammal, 18 M. 153; and Gunga Persad v. Jawahir Singh, 19 O. 4, where it has been held that the position of a mortgagee who has purchased the mortgaged property after obtaining leave to bid is like that of an independent purchaser, and he is only bound to give credit to the mortgagor for the actual amount of his bid.

In granting permission, the Court may attach conditions, and if the decree-holder purchases without fulfilling the conditions in toto, the Court has power to refuse to confirm the sale.—Must. Janakbati v. Maharajadhiraj Rameshwar, 1 P. 235 69 I. C. 872: A. I. R 1922 Pat. 511.

•• The amounts may be set off subject to S. 73.—If a decree-holder gets the permission without any qualification then the amount due on the mortgage may be set off. But it may be one of the terms on which the permission to bid is granted, that there should not be the right of set-off.—Hazarimal v. Namdev, 32 B. 379 10 Bom. L. R. 296. Whenever a decree-holder applies for a rateable distribution under S. 73 the Court is not competent to pass an order under Or. XXI, r 72 (2). In such a case the purchase-money for which the property was purchased must be regarded as assets realised by the executing Court.—Rajani Kanta v. Surendra, 129 I. C. 776: A. I. R 1930 Cal. 761: 52 C. L. J. 19.

This rule must be taken as subject to the provision of S. 73, so that the decree-holder, who has been permitted to purchase the property in execution of his own decree, must share the proceeds of the sale rateably with the other competing decree-holder, and will not be allowed to set off the purchase-money against the amount due to him on his decree.—Shrinivas v. Radhabai, 6 B. 570.

Where permission has been granted by a Court to set-off the decretal amount against the purchase-money, another Court of a superior grade before whom execution against the same property is pending has no power under S. 63 to cancel the permission.—Shidappa v. Gurusangaya, 55 B. 473: 133 I. C. 817: 33 Bom. L. R. 537: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 350. An order for set-off can be made under this rule only after the sale has taken place. An order granting such permission even before the sale takes place is futile and misleading.—Navajbhavdu v. Jotaram, 133 I. C. 737: 33 Bom. L. R. 503: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 252.

This rule must be read with S. 73, and to give effect to both, the receipt to be given by the decree-holder, who has obtained leave to bid and has purchased the property, can only be accepted for so much of the judgment-debt as the assets applicable to its discharge may suffice to satisfy.—Viraragava v. Varada, 5 M. 123.

Varada*, 5 M. 123.

Permission given to a judgment-creditor to set-off the amount of purchase-money against the debt under his decree must be taken to be granted subject to the provisions of S. 73 and he may be compelled to refund the rateable amount by process in execution.—Madden v. Chappani, 11 M. 356.

Held that the fact of the set-off being allowed in exercise of the power given in this section instead of actual payment into Court did not alter the substantial nature of the transaction, so as to render the purchase-money less applicable to the satisfaction of the debts of other attaching creditors.—Taponidi Hordanund v. Mathura Lal, 12 C. 499.

If there are no other decree-holders entitled to claim rateable distribution under S. 73 either at the time of the sale or within 15 days thereafter, then the order to set-off completely works out as a payment on the date of the sale in cases where the amount of bid is less or equivalent to the amount of the decree, or 15 days after the date of the sale where the amount of bid is more than the amount of the decree as the case may be. Decree-holders coming long after cannot claim the benefit of S. 73 by applying to the Court asking the decree-holder to deposit the amount and then describing it as "receipt of assets" and praying for rateable distribution out of it.—Ramaraju v. Lakshminah, (1930) M. W. N. 568: 130 I. C. 458: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 103.

The Patna High Court has, however, held that when another decree-holder applied for rateable distribution before the confirmation of sale to the first decree-holder, the Court had jurisdiction to order refund of the purchase-money which had been set-off and the order could be enforced by summary execution (following 11 M. 356; 43 I. C. 715).—Bindeswari v. Kirtyanand, 10 P. 830: 133 I. C. 166; 12 P. L. J. 477: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 359; Ganga Ram v. Mukhtaram, 134 I. C. 616: 12 P. L. J. 639: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 405.

"By himself or through another person."—A purchase by the decree-holder's undivided son is presumably with joint funds and as such is the purchase of the decree-holder.—Narayan v. Anaji, 5 B. 130.

"The Court may, if it thinks fit, set aside the sale."—A sale at which the decree-holder himself, or some other person for him, without the permission of the Court first obtained, becomes the purchaser, is not ipso facto void; it is a good sale, unless and until set aside by the Court under the provisions of this rule.—Javherbai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575; Ganesh v. Gopal, 41 B. 357: 39 I. C. 3; Paramasiva v. Krishna, 14 M. 498; Narayan v. Anaji, 5 B. 130. In Rai Radha Krishna v. Bisheshar, 49 I. A. 312: 1 P. 733 (P. C.): 27 C. W. N. 294: A. I. R. 1922 P. C. 336: 67 I. C. 914, their Lordships of the Judicial Committee observed: "Upon the construction of this section it is evident that a purchase by a decree-holder is not void nor a nullity, but is only to be avoided on the application of the judgment-debtor or some other person interested. It would be injurious to those interested in the sale if a decree-holder, who had been forced up in the same bidding to give a large sum of money, could escape from fulfilling his contract by getting the sale declared a nullity, and it would make all titles under such sales insecure if at later periods they were liable to be treated as nullities. A sale is to be set aside upon application and upon cause being shown." Even if the decree-holder purchases after refusal by the Court to grant permission, the sale is not a nullity nor void, but can be avoided by appropriate proceedings. Where a decree-holder purchases benami without the permission of the Court, it can be set aside even after confirmation of sale under rule 92; Thathu v. Kondu, 32 M. 243; 11 C. 221, Chintamanrav v. Vithabai, 11 B. 588; Gopal v. Ram Lal, 21 C. 554.

It is discretionary with the High Court to set aside an execution-sale at which the decree-holder has bid and purchased without first obtaining permission; and the Court will not interfere with the sale unless it can be shown that the judgment-debtor has suffered substantial injury arising from such irregularity.—Mathura Das v. Nathuni Lal, 11 C. 731 (referred to in Gopal Chander v. Ram Lal, 21 C. 554).

A decree-holder asked for, but was refused leave to bid at the sale, but notwithstanding such refusal, purchased the property in the name of a third person. Possession under the sale was opposed, and the decree-holder as purchaser, brought a suit for possession of the property. Held that the plaintiff had been guilty of an abuse of the process of the Court in buying the property benami, and that the sale therefore ought not to be enforced.—Mahomed Gazeer v. Ram Lal, 10 C. 757 (referred to in Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Charan, 5 C. W. N. 265).

Decree-holder purchasing without permission.—The purchasing of the property by the decree-holder without permission is not void until it is set aside in the manner provided by sub-rule (3).—See Ram Chandra v. Gajanan, 44 B. 352; Saradindu v. Gosta, 27 C. W. N. 208; 37 C. L. J. 403; 75 I. C. 196. See also notes under rule 90, post, under heading "Effect of purchase by decree-holder without permission."

Suit to set aside a purchase made without permission is barred by S. 47.—A suit by the judgment-debtor against the decree-holder to have the sale set aside, on the ground that the purchase was made by him without the leave of the Court, is barred by S. 47.—Sakharam, 22 I. R. 1923 Lah.

fraud, and the property was purchased by a person who was not a party.—Sakharam v. Damodar, 9 B. 468; likewise, when the sale was brought about secretly and the purchasers were benamdars of the decree-holder.—Durga v. Balwant Singh, 23 A. 478 See also Viraraghava v. Venkata, 16 M. 287

A suit to set aside the sale must be brought within one year from the confirmation of the sale under Art. 12-A, Sch. I, Limitation Act.—Chinnakannu v. Paramasiva, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1135; 101 I. C. 89.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order passed under this section refusing to bid at a sale in execution of his decree. 3 C. 174; Ko Tha Hnyin v. Ma Hnin, 15

14 C. L. J. 241; 38 I. A. 126; 11 I. C. 545. But under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (j), an appeal lies from an order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale under this rule.

There is no special appeal from an order refusing to set aside a sale, unless such order is made under Ss. 294, 312 or 313, C. P. Code, 1882.—Durga Sundari v. Gorinda Chandra, 10 C. 368. In Bhagbut Lal v. Narku

Roy, 21 C. 789, it has been held that no second appeal lies from an order made by a District Judge, on appeal, setting aside a sale under this section:

Limitation and step-in-aid of execution.—An application by the decree-holder for leave to bid at the sale in execution of his decree is a "step-in-aid of execution" within the meaning of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act.—Vinayakrao Gopal v. Vinayak Krishna, 21 B. 331; Bansi v. Sikree Mal, 13 A. 211 and Dale Singh v. Umrao Singh, 22 A. 399. Contra in Raghunundun v. Kallydut, 23 C. 690; and Ananda Mohan v. Hara Sundari, 23 C. 196.

Rule 72-A.—Order XXI, r. 72-A is not applicable to proceedings on the Original Side of the Bombay High Court. Where a mortgagee decree-holder obtained leave to bid and after purchasing the property himself and appropriating the sale-proceeds towards his debt, applied for a personal decree against the mortgagor for the balance of the debt, held, (1) that r. 72-A did not apply so as to prevent such a decree being passed and that the case was governed by the Original Side Rules; (2) that assuming the rule did apply there was nothing in the Court's order granting leave to bid or in the certificate of sale to indicate that the entire debt was to be wiped off by such sale and that consequently the mortgagee was entitled to a personal decree.—Vrajlal v. Venkataswami, 52 B. 459; 30 Bom. L. R. 402; 108 I. C. 794; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 123.

73. No officer or other person having any duty to perform in connection with any sale shall, either directly or indirectly, bid for, acquire or attempt to acquire any interest in the property sold. [S. 292.]

Restriction on bidding or purchase by officers.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 292, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations. The words "or other person" have been added after the word "officer"; and the words "at such sale" which occurred in the last sentence of the old section, after the words "the property sold," have been omitted, as unnecessary.

"No officer or other person."—Pleadors of parties to a suit are not debarred by this rule from purchasing property sold in execution of a decree.—Alagirisami v. Ramanathan, 10 M. 111; but when a pleader acted improperly a sale to him was set aside; Subbarayudu v. Kotayya, 15 M. 389 and Aghore Nath v. Ram Churn, 23 C. 805. A pleader who actually conducts an execution case must be looked upon as an officer of the Court or as a person who has a duty to perform in connection with the sale and is, therefore, disentitled under this rule from bidding, acquiring, or attempting to acquire, either directly or indirectly any interest in the property sold. If he does so, the sale is invalid.—Sundarabai v. Bapuna, 116 I. C. 65; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 305. Where the decree-holder's pleader purchased the property in Court-sale, held, that his conduct might be a violation of certain rules such as r. 275 of the Oudh Civil Digest but that the sale was not rendered void on that ground. Held also, that r. 73 of Or. XXI had no application to such a case.—Kamakhya v. Shyam Lal, 4 Luck. 635; 6 O. W. N. 226; 117 I. C. 471; A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 235. A pleader's clerk is not precluded from bidding.—Shiam Lal v. Girraj Kishore, 49 A. 292: 99 I. C. 443: A. I. R. 1927 All. 76.

If at an execution sale the property is purchased by the decree-holder Or. XL, r. 1, C. P. C., without is void.—Jiteswari v. Sudha Nugent, (1908) 1 Ch. 546).

When a public officer purchases land benami, his representatives are debarred from claiming the benefit of the purchase.—Sheo Narain v. Mata Prasad, 27 A. 73 (22 A. 220 approved).

Benami purchase by a Government officer prohibited from acquiring land.—Suit for declaration of title against benamdar maintainable.—Lobo v. Brito, 21 M. 231.

Transfer of Property Act, S. 136.—Section 136 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) provides that no officer connected with a Court of Justice can buy an actionable claim falling under the jurisdiction of the Court in which such officer exercises his functions.—Singaracharlu v. Sivabai, 11 M. 498. See also Rathnasami v. Subramanya, 11 M. 56.

SALE OF MOVEABLE PROPERTY.

74. (1) Where the property to be sold is agricultural Sale of agricul- produce, the sale shall be held,— tural produce.

- (a) if such produce is a growing crop, on or near the land on which such crop has grown, or,
(b) if such produce has been cut or gathered, at or near the threshing-floor or place for treading out grain or the like or fodder-stack on or in which it is deposited:

Provided that the Court may direct the sale to be held at the nearest place of public resort, if it is of opinion that the produce is thereby likely to sell to greater advantage.

- (2) Where, on the produce being put up for sale,—
(a) a fair price, in the estimation of the person holding the sale, is not offered for it, and
(b) the owner of the produce or a person authorised to act in his behalf applies to have the sale postponed till the next day or, if a market is held at the place of sale, the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed accordingly and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the produce. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Addition.—This rule is new. There was no similar provision in the old Code.

75. (1) Where the property to be sold and the crop from its nature being stored but has not yet been cut or gathered and is ready for storing. the sale shall be so fixed as to be made ready for storing before such day, and the sale shall not be held until the crop is ready for storing.

Special provisions relating to growing crops.

(2) Where the crop from its nature being stored, it may be sold before it is cut the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and gathering it.

COMMENTARY.

Addition.—This rule is new ; but its provisions are contained in Ss. 129 and 131 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1886).

Growing crops.—The definition of the term "growing crops" is given in S. 2 (13).—See notes under that section. Under the old law growing crops were held to be immoveable property.—See notes.

76. Where the property to be sold is a share in a company or a share in a corporation, the sale may, instead of directing that the property be sold by public auction, authorize the sale of the instrument or share through a private sale.

Negotiable instruments and shares in corporations.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 296, but with verbal changes. The word "company" which occurred in the original has been omitted, and the word "corporation" has been omitted.

Applicability—This rule comes within the exception beginning of r. 65 of this Order.

The sale of Government promissory notes through a private sale is not obligatory.—Luckmeeput.

77. (1) Where moveable property is to be sold by public auction the price of each lot shall be fixed at the time of sale or as soon after the sale as possible, and the sale shall not be held until the price of each lot is fixed.

Sale by public auction.

(3) Where the moveable property to be sold is a share in goods belonging to the judgment-debtor and a co-owner, and two or more persons, of whom one is such co-owner, respectively bid the same sum for such property or for any lot, the bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the co-owner. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rules 1 and 2 correspond to S 297, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes. The word “re-sold” had been substituted for the word “sold” which occurred in the old Code.

Sub-rule (3) is new. It gives a right of pre-emption to the co-owner. It is similar to rule 88 of this Order.—See notes under rule 88.

“On payment of the purchase-money.”—The provisions of this rule give the officer conducting a sale of moveable property a discretion to allow the purchase-money to be paid at a reasonable time after the sale has been made.—Fareed Alum v Sheo Charun, 4 N. W. P. H. C. R. 37.

The provisions of Or. XXI, r. 71, making a defaulting purchaser at a sale liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, apply to a re-sale held under this rule.—Ramdhani v. Rajrani Koer, 7 C. 337 . 9 C. L. R. 23.

In the case of moveable property, the sale on payment of the purchase-money becomes absolute at once, but the sale can be set aside by a regular suit.—Framji Besanji v. Hormasji, 2 B. 258 (266)

78. No irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale of moveable property shall vitiate the sale ; but any person sustaining any injury by reason of such irregularity at the hand of any other person may institute a suit against him for compensation, or (if such other person is the purchaser) for the recovery of the specific property and for compensation in default of such recovery. [S. 298.]

Irregularity not to vitiate sale, but any person injured may sue.

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This section exactly corresponds to S. 298, C. P. Code, 1882.

Moveable property.—A money-decree is not moveable property within the meaning of this rule ; Maung Lun Bye v. Maung Po Nyun, 1 R. 360 : 76 I. C. 679 : A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 21.

Irregularity.—There is no provision in the Code that sales of moveable properties shall in no case be set aside ; but this section only provides that no irregularity in the sale of moveable properties under an execution shall vitiate the sale.—Framji Besanji v. Hormasji, 2 B. 258 (p. 266).

This section prohibits the setting aside of a sale of moveable property on the ground of irregularity in the publishing or conducting of it.—Baijnath

v. Benoyendra, 6 C. W. N. 5. A sale of moveable property be automatically.—Dharm Singh v. Firm of Ram Bheja, 115 P. L. R. 421; Ranji Lal v. Firm of Ramchand, 119 I. C. 285.

A Judge is not required by law to give notice, at the time of the amount of the decree to be sold, and his omission to do so constitute an irregularity in the sale entitling the plaintiff to set aside this section.—Kassee Nauth v. Hulodhur, 2 W. R. 60.

The law does not make any provision for the service of notice on the judgment-debtor in person, or in the village in which he resides, and omission to do so is not an irregularity in affixing the sale.—Romesh Chunder v. Jadob Chunder, 6 W. R. Civ. Ref. 14.

Overstating the amount really due is not an irregularity which vitiates the sale.—Chuttersing v. Dhurum, 1 N. W. P. 1. But a proclamation warrants a title, the injured person may sue to set aside the sale.—Framji Bosanji v. Hormasji, 2 B. 258.

A debt due to the judgment-debtor by a third party was set aside, as the judgment-debtor died after issue of proclamation and before application to set aside the sale, held that the sale was valid. Omission to bring the legal representative of the judgment-debtor to record and should be set aside.—Groves v. Administrator-General, 22 M. 119.

A sale in execution of a decree transfers to the purchaser more than the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor at the time of the sale; therefore, the sale of the moveable property by a third party in execution of a decree, is not a mere irregularity. The meaning of this section, and the owner of the property so sold is not sue for its restoration or damages.—Sham Sunder v. Raheen, N. W. P. H. C. R. 252; Mohanund v. Akial Mehalidar, 9 W. R. 1.

In a sale of moveable property in execution of a decree, the warranty of title whatsoever; all that is sold is the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor, and the real owner, if not the judgment-debtor, may bring a suit, to recover the moveable property or its value, as a debtor.—Maung Pa v. Abdul Ganni, 4 R. 202; A. I. R. 1926 1 97 I. C. 1029.

Appeal.—No appeal lies against an order confirming a sale of moveable or immovable properties.—Dharm Singh v. Ram Bheja, 115 30 P. L. R. 421.

(2) Where the property sold is immovable property in the possession of some other than the judgment-debtor, the delivery thereof to the purchaser shall be made by giving notice to the person in possession prohibiting him from delivering possession of the property to any person except the purchaser. [

(3) Where the property sold is a debt not secured by a negotiable instrument, or is a share in a corporation, the delivery thereof shall be made by a written order of the Court prohibiting the creditor from receiving the debt or any interest thereon, and the debtor from making payment thereof to any person except the purchaser, or prohibiting the person in whose name the share may be standing from making any transfer of the share to any person except the purchaser, or receiving payment of any dividend or interest thereon, and the manager, secretary or other proper officer of the corporation from permitting any such transfer or making any such payment to any person except the purchaser. [S. 301.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule embodies the provisions contained in Ss. 299, 300 and 301 of the C. P. Code, 1882 with some modifications.

In sub-rule (2), the words "in the possession of some person other than the judgment-debtors," have been substituted for the words "to which the judgment-debtor is entitled, subject to the possession of some other person," which occurred in S. 300 of the old Code.

Sub-rule (3) is almost similar to S. 301 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Forms.—For Forms of notices under this rule, see Appendix E, Forms 32, 33 and 34.

Delivery shall be made by written order.—In Debendrakumar Mandel v. Ruplal Das, 12 C. 546, it was held that no question having been raised as to the service of the order required by Cl. (3) the presumption is that this order was served.

The purchaser of an usufructuary mortgage-debt, whether or not he be also the decree-holder, cannot get anything more from the executing Court than his sale certificate. He cannot apply for delivery of possession under r. 95 of Or. XXI, the mode of delivery contemplated in such a case being that prescribed by Or. XXI, r. 79 (3).—Sinna Pillai v. Karuppatti, (1932) M. W. N. 282 : A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 283.

negotiable instrument or a share in a corporation is standing is required to transfer such negotiable instrument or share, the Judge or such officer as he may appoint in this behalf may execute such document or make such endorsement as may be necessary, and such execution or endorsement shall have the same effect as an execution or endorsement by the party.

(2) Such execution or endorsement may be in the following form, namely:—

“A. B. by C. D., Judge of the Court of (or as the case may be), in a suit by E. F. against A. B.”

(3) Until the transfer of such negotiable instrument or share, the Court may, by order, appoint some person to receive any interest or dividend due thereon and to sign a receipt for the same; and any receipt so signed shall be as valid and effectual for all purposes as if the same had been signed by the party himself. [S. 302.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 302 of the C. P. Code, with some additions and alterations.

The important alterations are the additions of the word “or such officer as he may appoint in this behalf”; and of the words “such execution or endorsement shall have the same effect as an execution or endorsement by the party,” in sub-rule (1). The other changes introduced in this rule are of a verbal character.

As to execution of a deed of transfer of shares by the Court to the purchaser, see Tootsee Das v. E. I. Ry. Co., 2 Ind. Jur. N. S. 133.

The rule is merely permissive and not obligatory, the whole rule is to the effect that if a particular result is desired the procedure prescribed should be followed. When a share of a company is sold in a Court-auction it is not necessary that the Court should execute a transfer before the purchaser can be entitled to such share.—Mohideen v. Tinnevely, (1929) M. W. N. 442 : 111 I. C. 225 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 571.

81. In the case of any moveable property not hereinbefore provided for, the Court may make an order vesting such property in the purchaser or as he may direct; and such property shall vest accordingly. [S. 303.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 303 of the C. P. Code, 1882.

Scope—Under the Civil Procedure Code it is intended that the sale of moveable property attached in execution of a decree should ordinarily be held in some place within the jurisdiction of the Court ordering the sale. Good and sufficient reasons must be shown for directing otherwise.—Lakshmibai v. Santapa Rerapa, 13 B. 22.

SALE OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

82. Sales of immoveable property in execution of decrees may be ordered by any Court other than a Court of Small Causes. [S. 304.]

What Courts may order sales.

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 304, C. P. Code, 1882.

Immoveable property.—For the meaning of the words "immoveable property," see notes under S. 16.

Court of Small Causes.—Where a Court of Small Causes sells immoveable property, the purchaser acquires no title.—Nattoo Meah v. Nund Rane, 17 W. R. 309.

83. (1) Where an order for the sale of immoveable property has been made, if the judgment-debtor can satisfy the Court that there is reason to believe that the amount of the decree may be raised by the mortgage or lease or private sale of such property, or some part thereof, or of any other immoveable property of the judgment-debtor, the Court may, on his application, postpone the sale of the property comprised in the order for sale on such terms and for such period as it thinks proper, to enable him to raise the amount.

Postponement of sale to enable judgment-debtor to raise amount of decree

(2) In such case the Court shall grant a certificate to the judgment-debtor authorising him within a period to be mentioned therein, and notwithstanding anything contained in section 64, to make the proposed mortgage, lease or sale :

Provided that all monies payable under such mortgage, lease or sale shall be paid, not to the judgment-debtor, but, save in so far as a decree-holder is entitled to set off such money under the provisions of rule 72, into Court :

Provided also that no mortgage, lease or sale under this rule shall become absolute until it has been confirmed by the Court.

(3) Nothing in this rule shall be deemed to apply to a sale of property directed to be sold in execution of a decree for sale in enforcement of a mortgage of, or charge on, such property.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 305, C. P. Code, 1882. with some important additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1), the words "on such terms" have been added after the words "order for sale."

In the first proviso, the words "but save in so far as a decree-holder is entitled to set off such money under the provisions of rule 72," have been added.

Clause (3) is new. It has been added adopting the principles laid down in 3 C. 335 ; 1 C. L. R. 295 and 31 C. 373. On this point there was a difference of opinion between the Calcutta and Bombay High Courts, the latter holding that Or. XXI, r. 83 was applicable to all sales of immovable property including sales under the T. P. Act (IV of 1882). See 25 B. 104 and 26 B. 379. This sub-rule (3) has set at rest the above conflicting rulings by adopting the principle laid down in the above Calcutta case and it has overriden the Bombay rulings which are noted below.

Scope of the rule.—Order XXI, r. 83 contemplates a mortgage or lease or private sale only where “the amount of the decree can be thus provided for.” A Court executing a decree can neither grant a certificate under this section nor confirm a mortgage or other alienation of property, unless it appears that by such alienation the decree will be satisfied in full.—Gurusami v. Venkatasami, 14 M. 277. There should be a reasonable probability of the debt being discharged by the profits of the estate within a reasonably short period.—Suhuj Narain v. Ram Pershad, 21 W. R. 146.

Sale of immoveable property.—This section does not apply to a decree on a mortgage when the decree declares that a certain property is to be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage-debt.—Womda Khanum v. Rajroop Koer, 3 C. 335 ; 1 C. L. R. 295. See also Shyam Kishen v. Sundar Koer, 31 C. 373 ; Kora Lal v. Punjab National Bank, 5 L. L. J. 67. But in Krishnaji v. Mahadev, 25 B. 104, it was held that this rule applied to all sales of immoveable property including sales held under the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882). See also Danappa v. Yamnappa, 26 B. 379 ; 4 Bom. L. R. 61.

But properties directed to be sold in execution of a decree for the enforcement of a mortgage or charge have now been excluded from the operation of this rule by Cl. (3) of this rule which has adopted the principle laid down in the above Calcutta cases.

“The amount of the decree may be raised.”—No sale should be postponed and no certificate should be granted under sub-rule (2) unless the whole amount due on the decree can be raised by mortgage, lease or sale ; Gurusami v. Venkatasami, 14 M. 277.

“May postpone the sale”—Postponement is a matter of discretion for the Court.—Bishenmun v. Land Mortgage Bank, 12 I. A. 7 ; 11 C. 214 (P. C.). It should exercise a reasonable discretion and should not postpone the sale unless a fair case is made out by the judgment-debtor.—Kishen Coomaree v. Golab Coomaree, 15 W. R. 477.

A Judge is not bound to allow a judgment-debtor a year's time to pay his decree, without the debtor assigning some good or sufficient reason for the delay, e.g., that the money due to the judgment-creditor could be raised equally well in some other way than by immediate sale, and that the creditor would not by that arrangement be put to loss.—Ram Ruttan v. Land Mortgage Bank, 17 W. R. 193.

A Court can postpone the sale for a reasonable period, if by sale, mortgage, or otherwise, the debt can be cleared off in six months.—Mohini Mohun v. Ram Kant, 15 W. R. 322. See also Rednum v. Mahomed Amin Khan, 5 M. H. O. R. 272 ; Suhuj Narain v. Ram Pershad, 21 W. R. 146 ; Fyazooddeen v. Giraudh Singh, 2 N. W. P. H. O. R. 1.

Where an application under this rule was refused and the sale took place, an application to set aside the sale is maintainable under S. 47 and r. 90.—Enamuddin v. Abdul, 5 I. C. 489.

"Authorizing him."—In authorizing a private sale under this rule, a Court cannot empower a judgment-debtor to transfer any higher interest than he has and bind the interest of others in the property.—Danappa v. Yamanappa, 26 B. 379 : 4 Bom. L. R. 61.

"Notwithstanding anything contained in S. 64."—This is an enabling rule and qualifies the provisions contained in S. 64 ; on compliance with the conditions of this rule, a private alienation, notwithstanding S. 64, becomes absolute, not only against the claim of the decree-holder but against all claims enforceable under the attachment.—Shivlingappa v. Chanbasappa, 30 B. 337.

Confirmation of sale.—Decree of different Courts against same judgment-debtor.—Leave given by both Courts to the judgment-debtor to raise the amount by private sale under this rule. Confirmation of such sale by one Court. Held that as both the Courts had concurrent jurisdiction to confirm the sale, the confirmation by one Court was sufficient for the validity of the sale, and that application to another Court for confirmation was superfluous.—Andanapa v. Bhimrao, 19 B. 539.

A private sale, by a judgment-debtor with the permission of the Court obtained under this rule but which had not been confirmed by the Court, did not convey to the vendor such title in the property as to entitle him to maintain a suit for possession of the property against another vendee.—Srilal v. Ballabh Shankar, 1882 A. W. N. 243.

Alienation by guardian of minor.—A mortgage by a minor's certificated guardian with the sanction of the Subordinate Judge under this rule, without the previous sanction of the District Court under Ss. 29 and 30 of the Guardian and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), is invalid.—Dattaram v. Gangaram, 23 B. 287.

A permission under this rule is not sufficient for a guardian who must have the sanction of the District Judge in spite of such permission.—Sarju v. District Judge of Benares, 31 A. 378 : 6 A. L. J. 491 : 2 I. C. 356. See also Dwijendra v. Monorama, 49 C. 911 : 36 C. L. J. 326 : A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 150.

Appeal.—No appeal lies against an order refusing to postpone a sale under this rule, but the party aggrieved may apply for revision of the order under S. 115, and the High Court may in a proper case quash the order ; N. K. & Co. Chetty Firm v. Subraya, 3 R. 132 : 89 I. C. 300. A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 271. No appeal lies against an order passed under this rule.—Lachhman v. Sunder, 103 I. C. 524.

84. (1) On every sale of immovable property the person declared to be the purchaser shall pay immediately after such declaration a deposit of twenty-five per cent. on the amount of his purchase-money to the officer or other person conducting the sale, and, in default of such deposit, the property shall forthwith be re-sold.

(2) Where the decree-holder is the purchaser and is entitled to set off the purchase-money under rule 72, the Court may dispense with the requirements of this rule. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) of this rule corresponds to S. 306, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications.

The words "under this chapter" which occurred in the old section after the words "immoveable property" have been omitted; the words "or other person" have been added after the words "to the officer"; and the word "re-sold" has been substituted for the words "be put up again and sold" which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) is new, and it has been added to meet the case of Gopal Singh v. Roy Bunwaree Lall, 5 C. L. R. 181, where it was held that a decree-holder buying with permission and desiring to set-off his purchase-money against the amount of the decree is not exempt from the necessity of making a deposit of 25 per cent. Under this sub-rule (2), the Court may dispense with the requirements of sub-rule (1), where the decree-holder obtains permission to bid under r. 72.

In rr. 77 and 84 express reference has been made to a re-sale so as to make it clear that the default mentioned in those rules will attract the consequence indicated in r. 71. In this connection reference may be made to Ramdhani v. Rajrani, 7 C. 337: 9 C. L. R. 23.—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"Declared to be the purchaser."—An execution sale is not complete until the presiding officer has accepted the bid and declared the purchaser.—Jai Bahadar v. Matukdhari, 2 P. 548: 76 I. C. 113: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 525. So a person who has not been so declared by the Court, but whose bid has been accepted by the fall of the hammer and who fails to deposit 25 per cent. of the purchase-money, cannot be made liable for the difference in price when the property is sold immediately after. Till then the bidder can revoke the offer and the Court may refuse to accept the highest bid which is merely a conditional offer.—Afazuddin v. Howell, 6 R. 609: 114 I. C. 522: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 12. See also Punjab National Bank v. Sundar Singh, 118 I. C. 901: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 673. But 6 R. 409 has been overruled by the Full Bench decision in Mahomed Yacoob v. P. L. R. M. Firm, 9 R. 608: 135 I. C. 651: A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 17, which has held that as soon as the bid of the highest bidder is accepted by the officer conducting the sale, the sale is effected and the purchaser has no right to withdraw his bid.

"In default of such deposit."—The officer conducting the sale cannot insist upon a deposit being made before acceptance of a bidding; but if it appears that persons without means have been put forward to make sham biddings and to fraudulently frustrate the sale, he would be justified in inquiring into the trustworthiness of the bidder before accepting his bid.—Rajah Muhesh Narain v. Kishanund, 9 M. I. A. 328.

Failure to deposit, whether a "material irregularity."—It was held by the Allahabad High Court in Intizam Ali v. Narain Singh, 5 A. 316: that if 25 per cent. of 25 per cent. is not made immediately the sale is altogether void. This was followed in Amir Begam v. The Bank of Upper India, 30 A. 273, but a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court has held that these rulings are no longer applicable to the law as defined in the present Code.—Sita Ram v. Janaki Ram, 44 A. 266 (F. B.) : 65 I. C. 813 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 200. The High Court of Calcutta has held that failure on the part of the person declared to be the purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree to make the deposit of 25 per cent. immediately under this rule, constitutes only a "material irregularity" in conducting the sale, which would render the sale voidable if substantial injury has been caused by reason of such irregularity.—Bhim Singh v. Sarwan Singh, 16 C. 33. The same view has been taken by the High Court of Lahore in Behari Lal v. Ram Chand, 110 I. C. 773. In Venkata v. Sama, 14 M. 227, the High Court of Madras has held that any delay in making the deposit under r. 84 is not more than a mere irregularity and does not vitiate the sale. See also Raman Chetty v. Olagappa Chetty, 3 L. B. R. 225. But if the balance of the purchase money is not paid, there is no sale under this rule.—Munshi Mahomed Ali v. Kibria, 15 C. W. N. 350.

Sale when complete—The function of a Nazir or other officer appointed to conduct an auction-sale is of a ministerial character. If he conducts it in the presence of the presiding officer, and the latter forthwith declares under Or. XXI, r. 64 who the purchaser is and signs the formal order, the sale is complete. If it is not held in his presence, it can be completed only by his order closing the bid or an order accepting the bid under Or. XXI, r. 84. Where in anticipation of sanction, the Nazir accepts the deposit required from the highest bidder there is only in law an offer and it is open to the Court to resume the auction; Jaibadhar Jha v. Matukdhari Jha, 2 P. 548 : 76 I. C. 113 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 525. The sale was ordered to take place in the precincts of the Court on the 4th and 5th May, 1931. A report was called for on the 7th May, 1931 and the application objecting to the sale was filed by the judgment-debtor on the 5th of June, 1931 : held, that the sale was not complete on the 5th May, and that the application was within time.—Jetha Mal v. Punjab and Sind Bank Ltd., 138 I. C. 86 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 525.

The mere making of the last bid does not conclude the sale; it is necessary for the conclusion of the sale that the officer conducting it should accept the final bid, make a declaration as to who is the purchaser and also order him to pay the deposit under this rule.—Munshi Lal v. Ram Narain, 35 A. 65.

"Where the decree-holder is the purchaser."—Sub-rule (2) is new. It empowers the Court to dispense with the 25 per cent. deposit when the decree-holder is the auction-purchaser. This sub-rule does not require the making of an express order exempting the decree-holder from the deposit of 25 per cent. of the amount of the purchase-money; the permission under Or. XXI, r. 72 impliedly dispenses with such deposit.—Nur Din v. Bulaqi Mal, 131 I. C. 237 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 78; Mathra Das v. Brij Rani, 116 I. C. 212 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 492.

"In default of such deposit."—A decree-holder or other person who purchases property at a Court-sale and fails to pay the deposit (25 per cent.) directed to be paid under this rule is a defaulting purchaser within the meaning of rule 71 and liable, as such, to make good any deficiency of price happening on a re-sale and all expenses attending the same.—Javherbhai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575. See also Vallabhan v. Pangunni, 12 M. 454.

The provisions of Or. XXI, r. 71 for making a defaulting purchaser liable for any deficiency on a re-sale, extends to all sales, whether of moveable or immoveable property, and also to re-sales held under Or. XXI, rr. 77, 84 and 86.—Ramdhan v. Rajrani, 7 C. 337 : 9 C. L. R. 23. See also Rajendra Nath v. Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 411, where it has also been held that Or. XXI, r. 87 does not apply to a case in which the property is put up again and sold forthwith under this rule.

In case of any irregularity or misrepresentation by the auctioneer in conducting the sale, the officer conducting the sale instead of proceeding under this rule should refer the matter to the Court, when it appears to him that the bidder has been misled by such misrepresentation.—Kala Mea v. Harperink, 36 C. 323 (P. C.) : 9 C. L. J. 165 : 13 C. W. N. 249.

Where a decree-holder, having bid for the property, failed to pay the poundage fee in the manner required by the High Court rules, and the property was again put up for sale. Held, that r. 71 applied, and not rr. 84 and 86.—Madhu Sudan v. Purna Chandra, 9 C. L. J. 115.

In the absence of proof of substantial injury to the judgment-debtor, an auction-purchaser's omission to deposit the 25 per cent. in Court is a mere irregularity and does not vitiate the sale.—Inaitulla v. The Punjab National Bank Ltd., 67 I. C. 427. It is not open to the Court to extend time for payment, but still when the Court extends time and the sale is confirmed it cannot be set aside merely on the ground of the irregularity.—Varankkot v. Vykunda, 69 I. C. 1001 : 43 M. L. J. 477 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 48.

"Forthwith."—The word "forthwith" shows that the re-sale is a continuation of the original sale and no adjournment is therefore allowable.—Bhim Singh v. Sarwan Singh, 16 C. 33, 38; Hari Singh v. Chaudhri Sanwan, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 744; Babu Singh v. Gurbakhsh, 107 I. C. 274 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 249. But see Vallabhan v. Pangunni, 12 M. 454, where it was held it was a re-sale for the purposes of r. 71. See also Hanumayamma v. Ankamma, 53 M. 900 : 127 I. C. 303 (1930) M. W. N. 714 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 761 : 59 M. L. J. 267 (F. B.), where it has been held that the word "forthwith" means "as expeditiously as circumstances permit," in other words within "such time as appears to be reasonably early having regard to all the circumstances"; so where after the default a fresh sale was held, then was issued and the re-sale was held 2 . . . that under these circumstances the re . . . held "forthwith" and the purchaser liable to make good the deficiency on re-sale.

An officer conducting a second sale under this rule is not bound to commence from the next highest bid below that made by the defaulter. He may do so if the next higher bidder is willing to abide by his bid, otherwise he should commence the sale de novo.—Gour Mookh v. Lalla Gour, 1 W. R. Mis. 11.

An offer to buy or sell may be retracted at any time before it is unconditionally and completely accepted by words and conduct and a bidding at an auction is a mere offer which may be retracted before the hammer is down.—Agra Bank v. Hamlin, 14 M. 235.

85. The full amount of purchase-money payable shall be paid by the purchaser into Court before the Court closes on the fifteenth day from the sale of the property : [S. 307.]

Time of payment
in full of purchase-money.

Provided that, in calculating the amount to be so paid into Court, the purchaser shall have the advantage of any set-off to which he may be entitled under rule 72. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—The first para. of this rule corresponds to S. 307, C. P. Code, 1892, with some alterations and omissions. The words "exclusive of such day, or if the fifteenth day be a Sunday or other holiday, then on the first office day after the fifteenth day" which occurred in the old section, have been omitted; and the word "from" has been substituted for the word "after" which occurred in the old Code. The object of substituting the word "from" for the word "after" will be clearly understood on reference to S. 9 of the General Clauses Act X of 1897.

The reason for the omission of the words "exclusive.....fifteenth day," which occurred in the old Code, is that there is already a codified law on this point, in S. 10 of the General Clauses Act X of 1897. The omission has been made adopting the law as laid down in Surendra Narayan v. Souravini, 10 C. W. N. 535 : 3 C. L. J. 339, in which all the cases on the point have been referred to and discussed.

"Shall be paid."—The provisions of this rule are imperative, and must be given effect to. On default by the purchaser to deposit the purchase-money within 15 days of the sale, the deposit of 25 per cent. must be forfeited, notwithstanding that the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor do not ask for a re-sale but consent to the original sale being allowed to stand.—Sambasiva Ayyar v. Vyadinadasami, 25 M. 535. See also Mathura v. Gauri Shankar, 32 A. 380. The defaulting purchaser is answerable for any loss occasioned by re-sale.—Javerbai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575; Ramdhani v. Rajrani, 7 C. 387 : 9 C. L. R. 23; Vallabhan v. Pangunni, 12 M. 454.

Time-limit for the payment of the purchase-money.—In order to satisfy the requirements of this rule it is necessary that the money should reach the Court within the time allowed, viz., before the closing of the Court on the 15th day. Section 148 does not authorise the Court to enlarge the period fixed by this rule for the payment of the balance of the purchase-money because the period is fixed by the statute and is not fixed or granted by the Court.—Kalipada v. Basanta, 35 C. W. N. 877.

Under the rules of the High Court, dated 21st June, 1892, payment into the Government Treasury is equivalent to payment into Court for the purpose of this section (i.e., this rule).—Srinivasa v. Malayacha, 7 M. 121. But payment by the purchaser in the Post Office within time is not payment, because the Post Office is not the agent of the Court.—Ram Chandra v. Subrao, 22 B. 415.

When an order has been made for payment of money in a suit on a certain date, and the Court was closed on that date, a payment made on the following day would be a good payment for the purposes of the order.—Aravamudu v. Samiyappa, 21 M. 385; Peary Mohun v. Anunda Charan, 18 C. 631; Surendra Narayan v. Souravini, 3 C. L. J. 339; 10 C. W. N. 535; Sunderabai v. Bapuna, 116 I. C. 65; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 305. See also Bejoy Singh v. Kirtyanand, 13 P. L. T. 559. In Motiram v. Bhivraj, 20 B. 745, it has been held that the time during which a Court is closed for the vacation, is not a holiday within the meaning of this rule. Days on which the office is open and the purchase-money for property bought at a Court-sale could have been paid are office days.

Where the purchaser at a Registrar's sale is out of time in paying the balance of the purchase-money into Court, the practice of the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court is that payment of interest follows as a matter of course.—Kanyelall v. Shama Churn, 21 C. 566.

Time for paying balance of purchase-money may be extended with the consent of the parties concerned.—Time can be extended for payment of the balance of the purchase-money with the consent of the parties concerned; Radha Kishan v. Hari Singh, 100 I. C. 800; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 337. If it be extended without their consent, the case is one of "material irregularity" within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 90; Varankhot v. Vykunda, 43 M. L. J. 477; 69 I. C. 1001; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 48; Nathu Mal v. Malawa Mal, 122 I. C. 561; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 15. The effect of the consent is to waive the irregularity and the original sale must be held to be a re-sale.—Kalpada v. Basanta, 35 C. W. N. 877.

Proviso.—The proviso is new. The effect of the order for set-off is that the whole amount of the bid minus the poundage expenses should be set-off against the decree amount and nobody should look forward for payment either on the date of the sale or fifteen days thereafter. But if the amount of the bid is far larger than the decree amount, then though the decree-holder may be excused from depositing the 25 per cent. at the date of the sale, he can pay the same within 15 days thereafter. In such a case Or. XXI, r. 85 operates. But in a case where the amount of the bid is less or equal there is no scope for looking forward for payment under r. 85. In such circumstances the whole of the set-off must be deemed to have been received or realised eo instanti the sale is made.—Ramaraju v. Lakshmiah, (1930) M. W. N. 568; 130 I. C. 458; A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 103. There is no provision for a second sale on the ground that the decree-holder has set off the purchase-money against the decree. The decree-holder is to pay out of his own pocket money for rateable distribution to the other decree-holders, a contingency not expected by him when he applied for permission.—Navajbhevd v. Totaram, 33 Bom. L. R. 503; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 252; 133 I. C. 737.

86. In default of payment within the period mentioned in the last preceding rule, the deposit may, if the Court thinks fit, after defraying the expenses of the sale, be forfeited to the Government, and the property shall be re-sold, and the defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property or to any part of the sum for which it may subsequently be sold. [S. 303.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 303, C. P. Code, 1882 with an important alteration.

"May be forfeited to the Government."—The words "may, if the Court thinks fit" have been substituted for the word "shall" which occurred in the old section. The above change has been introduced to override the case in Sambasiva Ayyar v Vydinadasami, 25 M. 535, in which it was held that the provisions of this section (rule) as regards forfeiture were imperative. But by the present rule the Court according to the circumstances of each case, can exercise its discretion with regard to forfeiture.

"The committee have altered this rule in order to prevent its being obligatory on the Court to forfeit the deposit in every case. The rule as it stands at present has caused great hardship in certain circumstances, vide the case of Sambasiva Ayyar v. Vydinadasami, 25 M. 535."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

On default of payment within the period mentioned in r. 85, the Court is not bound to order the property to be re-sold. It has a discretion to do so or not, the expression "may, if the Court thinks fit," being substituted in place of the old word "shall."—Basawan v. Anpurna, A. I. R. 1926 All. 509.

The law casts an imperative duty on the Court to have the property re-sold and to recover the balance from the defaulting auction-purchaser who may be the decree-holder. There is nothing in law to justify the view that re-sale should not take place unless the Court is moved by the decree-holder; any one who is interested in having the property re-sold can move the Court to do what is its duty.—Chitar Singh v. Lachmi Narain, 138 I. C. 103: 30 A. L. J. 501; A. I. R. 1932 All. 392.

"The defaulting purchaser shall forfeit all claim to the property."—When A and B both apply to purchase a property at an auction-sale in a certain proportion agreeing to pay the price also in that proportion and do actually deposit the 25 per cent. of the purchase-money in proportion to their shares, but at the time of paying the balance of the purchase-money, A is unable or unwilling to pay and B pays the whole balance amount, but immediately after the sale-certificate is issued, A comes forward and claims to purchase his share of the property, payment by B must be decreed under r. 85 to be also on behalf of A, and A is entitled to purchase his share; Bhabataran v. Durgeshnandini, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 719.

Applicability of this rule to the Original Side of the High Court.—The provisions of r. 86 do not apply to a sale in execution of a decree of the Original Side of a Chartered High Court to enforce a deed of charge.

In such a case the deposit of 25 per cent. (less the Registrar's commission) is forfeited to the decree-holder in part payment of the mortgage debt.—Gowal Das v. Luchmi Chand, 57 C. 106; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 324 (distinguishing 48 C. 69).

Appeal.—An appeal lay from an order passed upon an application under this rule to make a defaulting purchaser liable for the loss sustained by a re-sale.—Ram Dial v. Ram Das, 1 A. 181 (F. B.); Kali Kishore v. Guru Prasad, 2 C. W. N. 408; Baij Nath Sahai v. Moheep Narain, 16 C. 535; and Rajendra Nath v. Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 411. See also Sitaram v. Jankiram, 44 A. 266 (F. B.); 65 I. C. 813; A. I. R. 1922 All. 200. But see Deoki Nandan v. Tapesri Lal, 14 A. 201 (F. B.); and Ilahi Bakhsh v. Baij Nath, 13 A. 569.

87. Every re-sale of immoveable property, in default of payment of the purchase-money within the period allowed for such payment, shall be made after the issue of a fresh proclamation in the manner and for the period hereinbefore prescribed for the sale. [S. 309.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 309, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification only that the word "proclamation" has been substituted for the word "notification" which occurred in the old section.

Fresh proclamation.—A fresh proclamation is only necessary where a re-sale takes place in default of payment of the full amount of the purchase-money within the time-limit prescribed by r. 85.

This rule does not apply to a case in which the property is put up again, and sold forthwith under r. 84 for default of payment of 25 per cent. deposit.—Rajendra Nath v. Ram Charan, 2 C. W. N. 411; Vallabhan v. Pangunni, 12 M. 454.

88. Where the property sold is a share of undivided immoveable property and two or more persons, of whom one is a co-sharer, respectively bid the same sum for such property or for any lot, the bid shall be deemed to be the bid of the co-sharer. [S. 310.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This rule corresponds to S. 310, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words "respectively bid the same sum for such property or for any lot, the bid shall be deemed to be the bid of the co-sharer," have been substituted for the words "respectively advance the same sum at any bidding at such sale, such bidding shall be deemed to be the bidding of the co-sharer," which occurred in the old section. No other change has been made. This rule is similar to sub-rule (3) of rule 77, which relates to the sale of moveable property.

Share of undivided immoveable property.—The provisions of S. 310, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 88) are not applicable in a case where the property sold is not a share of undivided immoveable property, but the rights and interests of a mortgagee in such a share.—Jairam v. Beni Prasad, 3 A. 15.

Co-sharer.—The requirements of this rule are not satisfied by the co-sharer preferring his claim to the right of pre-emption before the property is knocked down, and offering to pay a sum equal to that bid by the highest bidder. It contemplates a distinct bid by the co-sharer in the ordinary manner of offering bids.—Hira v. Unas Ali, 3 A. 827 (2 A. 850 followed). See also Sri Kishen v. Debi Ram, (1888) A. W. N. 208.

A co-sharer whose bid was not accepted, the sale being confirmed in favour of another bidder, has no locus standi under Or. XXI, r. 90, to have the sale set aside.—Bisheshar Kuar v. Hari Singh, 5 A. 42.

Where a co-sharer asserted his right of pre-emption in a sale of a share of an undivided immoveable property by offering the same amount as the person preceding him did bid, there was sufficient compliance with the requirements of Or. XXI, r. 88.—Iqbal Husain v. Ejaz Husain, 36 I. C. 654 (2 A. 850; 3 A. 827 referred to).

A title to a share in undivided immoveable property sold in execution of a decree which is still defeasible at the date of the sale in execution is not sufficient to support a claim for pre-emption under this rule.—Abdul Ghafur v. Ghulam Husain, 35 A. 296.

Appeal.—Order XLIII, r. 1 provides for no appeal against an order passed under this rule.

A share of an undivided immoveable property was put up for sale in execution and was knocked down to a stranger. Before it was knocked down to him, the decree-holder who was a co-sharer of such share, after obtaining permission to bid, bid the same sum as that for which it was knocked down to the stranger claiming the right of pre-emption. The Court confirmed the sale in favour of the decree-holder. Held that an appeal would not lie against the order confirming the sale.—Muniruddin Khan v. Abdul Rahim, 3 A. 674.

No appeal lies from an order refusing to restore an application under this rule which had been dismissed for default in appearance.—Ghaseti Bibi v. Abdul Samad, 29 A. 596.

89. (1) Where immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree, any person, either owning such property or holding an interest therein by virtue of a title acquired before such sale, may apply to have the sale set aside on his deposit-ing in Court,—

(a) for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per cent. of the purchase-money, and

- (b) for payment to the decree-holder, the amount specified in the proclamation of sale as that for the recovery of which the sale was ordered, less any amount which may, since the date of such proclamation of sale, have been received by the decree-holder.

(2) Where a person applies under rule 90 to set aside the sale of his immoveable property, he shall not, unless he withdraws his application, be entitled to make or prosecute an application under this rule.

(3) Nothing in this rule shall relieve the judgment-debtor from any liability he may be under in respect of costs and interest not covered by the proclamation of sale. [S. 310-A.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—This rule corresponds to S. 310-A of the old Code, but several additions and alterations have been made in it to meet several conflicting rulings.

"Words have been added so as to make it clear that a purchaser acquiring a title before the sale in execution, can claim the benefit of the rule. In other respects the committee consider it advisable to adhere to the wording of the section. The proposal that the sale should be set aside on payment of the purchase-money instead of the amount specified in the proclamation is, in our opinion, fraught with danger: it would be obviously useless, unless subsequent protection were given to the property, and such protection might lead to collusion, which would be most prejudicial to the decree-holder."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

The omission of the words "under this chapter" which occurred in the old section, has set at rest the diversity of judicial opinion which hitherto existed regarding the applicability of S. 310-A to sales held under mortgage-decrees. The above change seems to have been made to meet the Full Bench case reported in 25 C. 703: 2 C. W. N. 353, in which it was held that the provisions of S. 310-A of the old Code were not applicable to sales held in execution of mortgage-decrees. By the omission above referred to, by the insertion of rules 4 and 5 in Or. XXXIV, (which correspond with Ss. 88 and 89 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882), in the amended form, and also by the introduction of rules relating to mortgage-decrees in the said Or. XXXIV, the Calcutta Full Bench case has been overridden. In framing this rule the Legislature has adopted the views expressed by the Allahabad, Bombay and the Madras High Courts.

The words "any person, either owning such property or holding an interest therein by virtue of a title acquired before such sale," have been substituted for the words "any person whose immoveable property has been sold," which occurred in the old section, as the wording of the old section gave rise to several conflicting rulings. The wording of the present rule will not only include the owner of the property sold, but also include any person who holds any sort of interest in the said property by virtue of a title acquired before the sale. Thus the present rule includes a prior private purchaser, donee, mortgagee, a prior auction-purchaser, a mokuraidar, a tenant, a beneficial owner and benamdar, as in some cases the beneficial owner may be barred by the act and conduct of his benamdar, etc., etc.

Clause (a) is similar to Cl.(a) of the old section. Clause (b) is also similar to Cl. (b) of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to the proviso to the old section, with some modifications. The words "unless he withdraws his application" have been added after the words "he shall not." The above addition has been made for the benefit of the applicant, who under the old section had no right at all to take the benefit of this rule, if he had previously filed any application under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882. The words "or prosecute" have also been added after the words "to make." The above addition has been made to prevent an applicant from availing himself of the provisions of sub-rule (2) and also under rule 90 under rule 90 to set aside the sale.

The period of limitation (30 days), and the Court's order for setting aside the sale, which were mentioned in the old section, have been omitted from this rule and reproduced in sub-rule (2) of rule 92. Notice of application under this rule must be given to the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser (Vide the proviso to rule 92). The old section was silent on this point.

Object of enacting the present rule.—The necessity of giving the power of making a deposit to a wider circle and to put a stop to the conflict of decisions was recognized by the Legislature, and the law appeared in the form of rule 89 of the new Code in place of S. 310-A of the old Code.

An application under this rule is not invalid simply because there is no express prayer for the setting aside of the sale—Ronya v Baliram, 106 I. C. 333 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 111. See also Rame Sivendra v. Audh Bihary, 71 I. C. 332, noted post. The object of the rule is to put an end to every kind of contention and dispute. If the debtor wants to keep a dispute open his remedy is r. 90 and not r. 89. The effect of payment is automatically to extinguish the debt and the decree-holder's remedy is gone.—Kummakutty v. Neelakandan, 53 M. 943 : 128 I. C. 509 : (1930) M. W. N. 524 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 921 : 59 M. L. J. 893.

This rule does not apply where certain properties are sold under Or. XXI, r. 32 (2) to compensate the decree-holder for the judgment-debtor's wilfully disobeying the order of the Court passed in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights.—Gakurali v Asia Khatun, 56 C. L. J. 140.

"Any person either owning such property or holding an interest therein by virtue of a title acquired before such sale."—A judgment-debtor whose immoveable property has been sold, may apply under this rule as "a person owning such property." But if the judgment-debtor has transferred his interest in the property after the Court-sale, the question arises whether he or his transferee is entitled to apply for setting aside the sale under this rule. The Allahabad High Court, in Ishar Das v Asaf Ali, 34 A. 186, has held that in such a case neither the judgment-debtor nor his transferee after the Court-sale is entitled to apply under this rule. See in this connection Yad Ram v Sundar Singh, 45 A. 425: 74 I. C. 778: A. I. R. 1923 All. 392. In a recent case the same High Court has held that the judgment-debtor was entitled to apply, but not the transferee; Fatima-ul-Hasna v. Baldeo, 48 A. 188 (F. B.): 93 I. C. 24: A. I. R. 1926 All. 204. The Bombay High Court, in Pandurang v. Govind, 40 B. 557: 37 I. C. 211 has held that the judgment-debtor is entitled to apply, but not the subsequent purchaser. The Patna High Court followed the Bombay decision in Dhanwanti v. Sheo Shankar, 4 P. L. J. 340: 51 I. C. 873. The Calcutta High Court, in Saroda Kripa Lala v. Harendra, 49 C. 454: 26 C. W. N. 149, has held that the subsequent purchaser is not entitled to apply.

The words "owning such property" and "holding an interest therein" should not be read independently of the expression "by virtue of a title acquired before such sale." It has been held by the Bombay High Court in Pandurang v. Govind, 40 B. 557: 37 I. C. 211, that there is no reason to limit the words "by virtue of a title acquired before such sale" to the word "holding an interest therein" so as to read the first clause "owning such property" as if it stood by itself. The Madras and the Patna High Court have taken the same view in Sundaram v. Mausa, 44 M. 554 (F. B.): 63 I. C. 937: 40 M. L. J. 497, and Dhanwanti v. Sheo Shankar, 4 P. L. J. 340: 51 I. C. 873. It is clear, therefore, that the applicant under Or. XXI, r. 89 must be a person who can, even at the date of his application, be proved to be a person, either owning the property or holding an interest therein by virtue of a title, and further that that title must have been a pre-existing title that is to say a title acquired before the execution sale. The use of the word "subsisting" is not necessary. Onkar v. ...

Dhan Singh, A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 10: 90 I. C. 963.

Quere—Whether a trespasser in possession of the property sold in Court auction has an 'interest' which will allow him to apply under Or. XXI, r. 89 to have the sale set aside.—Adenna v. Chinna Ramayya, 5 M. 770 (1928) M. W. N. 159: 109 I. C. 168: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1191: 5 M. L. J. 445.

Immoveable property.—The interest of a mortgagee in a usufructuary mortgage is immoveable property within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 89.—Jang Bahadur v. Bhagat Ram, 52 A. 232: 28 A. L. J. 330: 122 I. C. 409: A. I. R. 1930 All. 110. Sale of a house apart from the ground on which the house was situated and which belonged to an outsider, was still a sale of immoveable property for the purposes of Or. XXI, r. 89 and the judgment-debtor could make the deposit thereunder.—Rang Lai v. Bishunath, 11 R. D. 155. See also Kuar Lakshmiraj v. Shankar, 124 I. C. 48: A. I. R. 1930 All. 513.

Who may apply.—In execution of a decree against a judgment-debtor his property was sold by auction. Prior to the execution-sale, he effected a private sale to another person. Subsequently, the judgment-debtor applied under this rule to set aside the execution-sale. Held that, notwithstanding the private sale, the judgment-debtor could apply under this rule to set aside the sale.—Mulji, 25 B. 631: Dhanwanti v. Sheo Shankar, 4 P. L. J. 340: Viranna v. Sattiraju, 52 M. L. J. 167: 100 I. C.

A judgment-debtor, whose property has been sold at a Court-sale, has a right to apply to have the sale set aside as a person "owning" the property, although he has transferred or attempted to transfer his interest in the property to a third party after the Court-sale.—Pandurang v. Govind, 40 B. 557 : 37 I. C. 211 : 18 Bom. L. R. 571; Dhanwanti v. Sheo Shankar, noted ante; Sundaram v. Mausa, 44 M. 554 (F. B.) : 63 I. C. 937; Fatima-ul-Hasna v. Baldeo Sahai, 48 A. 188 (F. B.) : 93 I. C. 24 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 204; Madhuri Saran v. Bishambhar, 49 A. 839 : 102 I. C. 471 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 561.

A beneficial owner can apply under this section (i.e., the rule), when the property was sold in execution of a decree against the benamdar.—Baburam v. Ram Sahai, 1 C. L. J. 29-n : 8 C. L. J. 305 (following 1 C. W. N. 135).

A co-sharer may apply under this rule.—Tuhiram v. Izzat Ali, 30 A. 192; Ramchandra v. Srinivasa, 51 M. 246 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 399 : 109 I. C. 297 : 54 M. L. J. 455.

A co-heir may apply under this rule.—Abdul v. Matiyar, 30 C. 425. A legatee under a will may apply, Dhannamal v. Veeraraghava, 44 M. L. J. 325.

A reversioner is a person "interested" and can apply.—Pankhabati v. Nani, 19 C. L. J. 72.

A purchaser who purchased the property after attachment but before sale can apply.—Gosto v. Sankar, 26 C. L. J. 127; Siyaram v. Ram Narayan, 27 N. L. R. 309. The fact that his objection to attachment under r. 58 was dismissed on a ground not affecting the genuineness of the sale in his favour or that he brought no suit subsequently under r. 63 is no bar to his application to set aside the sale under r. 89.—Ibid.

A benamdar of a person whose immoveable property is sold, has a right to apply to have the sale set aside under this rule.—Basu Poddar v. Ram Krishna, 1 C. W. N. 135.

A mortgagee of a tenure or holding sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect of it is entitled to make an application under this rule.—Pareshnath v. Nabagopal, 29 C. 1 (F. B.) : 5 C. W. N. 821 (5 C. W. N. 63 overruled). See also Srinivasa v. Ayyathorai, 21 M. 416 and Safar Ali v. Raj Mohun, 1 C. L. J. 454, even though the property is sold subject to his mortgage; Kandaswami v. Swarnavelu, 53 I. C. 958. A mortgagee who has purchased the equity of redemption in one portion of the mortgaged property, can apply under r. 89 to set aside the sale held under his own decree; Aulad Ali v. Abdul Hamid, 2 P. 715 : 74 I. C. 102 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 490. An under-tenant can come in and apply to have the sale of the holding set aside under this section (i.e., rule).—Chandra Kumar v. Kamini Kumar, 11 C. W. N. 742 (29 C. 459 : 6 C. W. N. 175-n. dissented from); see Bepin Behari v. Kalidas, 6 C. W. N. 336. After the sale of a mokrari tenure, a durmokararidar has a right to come in and make a deposit under this section (rule).—Narain Mandal v. Sourindra Mohan, 32 C. 107 (5 C. W. N. 132-n not followed). A lessee can apply.—Adenna v. Chinna Ramayya, 51 M. 770 : 109 I. C. 168 : (1928) M. W. N. 159 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad 1191 : 54 M. L. J. 445. The mere fact that the property was sold subject to the lease does not render the lessee incapable of avoiding the transfer. The word "property" in the rule means the tangible property sold, whether or not persons other than the judgment-debtor have any interest and it does not mean the right title and interest of the judgment-debtor alone.—Ibid. A purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding has locus standi to apply under this section (rule).—Benodini v. Peary Mohan, 8 C. W. N. 55; Kunja Behari v. Sambhu Chandra, 8 C. W. N. 232; Asgar Ali v. Asaboddin Kazi, 9 C. W. N. 134; Omar Ali v. Moonshi Basiruddin, 7 C. L. J. 282 : 12 C. W. N. 64-n. Following this case it has been held that the purchaser of a non-transferable occupancy holding is entitled to make a deposit under this rule to have the execution-sale set aside and the fact that the landlord himself is the auction-purchaser makes no difference; Fazoo Mia v. Sultan Ahamad Ahmed Chowdhury, 55 C. 103 : 31 C. W. N. 1050 : 106 I. C. 143 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 817.

Where the provisions of the E. B. and Assam Tenancy (Amendment) Act apply, a permanent under-tenure holder has a locus standi to apply under this rule for setting aside the sale of a taluk in execution of a rent-decree.—Sarat Chandra v. Matilal, 23 C. W. N. 597 : 52 I. C. 237.

In Dononath v. Kalikumar, 23 I. C. 916, it has, however, been held that a mortgagee of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot apply under this rule, when the holding has been sold under a rent-decree and purchased by the decree-holder. See also Abdul Aziz v. Tafazuddin, 19 C. W. N. 326 : 23 I. C. 839. The Patna High Court has held that a purchaser of a portion of a non-transferable occupancy holding cannot apply; Mahanti Lal v. Harkissen, 19 C. W. N. 176-n. But the High Court of Calcutta in Fazoo v. Sultan Ahmed, 55 C. 103 : 106 I. C. 143, ante, held following Omar Ali v. Moonshi Basiruddin, 7 C. L. J. 282, that the purchaser of a part of a non-transferable holding can set aside the sale on making a deposit in such a case.

A purchaser subsequent to attachment and prior to sale can apply.—Mulchand v. Govind, 30 B. 575.

Who cannot apply under this rule.—A person whose interests were not affected by the sale could not, under S. 310-A, apply to set aside the sale; Ramchandra v. Rakhmabai, 23 B. 450. See also Abdul Rahaman v. Matiyar, 30 C. 425. A person who has merely contracted to purchase land cannot apply, because such a contract does not of itself create any interest in the property.—Mahadeo v. Vasudev, 23 B. 181; Subba Reddi v. Vasireddi, A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 659. If the conveyance be prior to the attachment the purchasers would equally have no locus standi as their interests are not affected.—Ibid.

The holder of a money-decree who has attached immoveable property before it was sold by the mortgagee decree-holder is a person whose 'interests are affected by the sale' within the meaning of r. 90 but he has no 'interest by virtue of a title acquired before such sale' within the meaning of r. 89. So he can apply under r. 90 but not under r. 89.—Purshottam v. Sundar, 55 B. 239 : 132 I. C. 433 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 277 : 33 B. L. R. 455.

A person whose claim under Or. XXI, r. 53 and a suit under Or. XXI, r. 63 have been dismissed, cannot apply under this rule; Onkar v. Dhan Singh, A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 10 : 90 I. C. 963; Satyam v. Perraju, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 753. But where a third party who had purchased the property prior to the attachment by the decree-holder, made a deposit of the purchase-money under Or. XXI, r. 89 to set aside the sale in execution, and subsequently succeeded in his suit for a declaration of his right to the property, he is entitled to a refund of the deposit so made by him from the decree-holder-auction-purchaser (irrespective of the applicability of r. 89) under S. 72 of the Contract Act, as an involuntary payment made under coercion (following 12 M. J. A. 65 and 40 C. 598 (P. C)).—Ibid.

A judgment-debtor, who had sold his immoveable property while it was under attachment in execution of the decree against him, is not entitled to apply.—Maganlal v. Doshi, 25 B. 631.

A person to whom the judgment-debtor sells or mortgages the property after the sale in execution is not entitled to apply.—Hazariram v. Badar Ram, 1 C. W. N. 279, because no title was acquired by him before the sale. (Dissented from in Appaya Shetti v. Kunhati, 30 M. 214. 17 M. L. J. 127). See also Manuckka v. Rajagopala, 30 M. 507; Saroda Kripa Lala v. Harendra, 49 C. 454. 26 C. W. N. 149; Sundaram v. Mausaa, 44 M. 554 (F. B.): 63 I. C. 937: 40 M. L. J. 497. A person who acquires a mortgage in trust from the judgment-debtor of the properties sold in an execution-sale after the Court-sale, is not entitled to apply.—Gopala v. Viswanatha, 58 I. C. 856 (F. B.): 39 M. L. J. 84. But see Gantasola v. Thatavarthi, 54 I. C. 753, contra.

A judgment-debtor who after the sale of his property in execution sells it to a third person, is not entitled to apply.—Ishardas v. Asaf Ali, 34 A. 186; Subtarayudu v. Lakshminarasamma, 38 M. 775.

A purchaser in execution of a mortgage-decree of an entire non-transferable occupancy holding cannot apply.—Abdur Rahman v. Promde, 22 C. L. J. 108. 20 C. W. N. 40.

The purchaser under a money-decree of a non-transferable occupancy holding has no locus standi to pay in the money under Or. XXI, r. 89, C. P. Code; Bishun Dayal v. Jagdish Narayan, 2 P. L. R. 12.

A mortgagee decree-holder cannot apply under this rule when he himself sold a part of the property in execution of another decree.—Muhammad v. Ahmad Said, 33 A. 481.

A donee of the property sold when the gift was made before attachment, cannot apply.—Erode Manikkoth v. Putheedeth, 26 M. 365.

A second mortgagee who was not a party to the suit of the first mortgagee, and whose interest has not passed under the sale, cannot apply.—Mallikarjunadu v. Linga Murti, 26 M. 232.

An attaching creditor cannot apply.—Kedarnath v. Uma Charan, 6 C. W. N. 57. But see Dhirendra v. Kamini, 28 C. W. N. 899.

A person who claims a title to the mortgaged property adverse to the mortgagee cannot apply.—Ram Singh v. Salig Singh, 28 A. 84: (1905) A. W. N. 193.

An interim receiver, appointed under S. 20 of the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1920 after the sale of the insolvent's properties, has no power, unless he is expressly authorized to that effect, to apply under this rule to have the sale of the insolvent's properties set aside, as he cannot be said to be "a person owning such property".—Ram Chandra v. Sankara Aiyar, 50 M. L. J. 239 : 93 I. C. 271 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 357.

Court.—The Court mentioned in this rule is a Civil Court and not the Court of the Collector or the sale-Officer when the sale proceedings take place.—Biswanath v. Dasrath, A. I. R. 1927 All. 754 : 100 I. C. 726.

"A sum equal to five per cent."—This 5 per cent. is intended as a compensation to the purchaser for the trouble and disappointment caused to him.—Trimbak v. Ram Chandra, 23 B. 723. It must be paid even if the decree-holder is the purchaser.—Chundi Charan v. Banke Behary, 26 C. 449, 451-52 (F. B.) : 3 C. W. N. 283 ; Tirumal v. Syed Dastaghiri Miyah, 22 M. 286 ; Munshi Rai v. Rup Narain, 6 P. 386 : 103 I. C. 724 : A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 288. In addition to 5 per cent. the purchaser is entitled to be paid by the judgment-debtor any loss of interest and costs which he may have incurred.—Umeshchandra v. Kunjalal, 57 C. 676 : 129 I. C. 181 : A. I. R. 1930 Cal 685.

This case has not been followed in Ashutosh v. Sudhangshu, 58 C. 510 : 133 I. C. 587 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 688, which has held that where a mortgagor applies to set aside a mortgage-sale in pursuance of a decree passed by the High Court on its Original Side, the applicant should deposit 5 per cent. of the purchase money under Or. XXI, r. 89 and nothing more ; the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 93 or r. 37 of Chap. XXVII of the Calcutta High Court Rules and Orders not applying.

"On his depositing."—The sale will not be set aside unless the applicant deposits the whole amount mentioned in sub-rule (1) within the prescribed period, viz., 30 days from the date of the sale. In Chundi Charan v. Banke Behary, 26 C. 449 (F. B.) : 3 C. W. N. 283, it has been held that when there is nothing to show that there was any mistake of the Court by which the judgment-debtor was induced to deposit an insufficient amount, the sale ought not to be set aside (25 C. 609, distinguished). See also Dattatraya v. Jagannath, 31 Bom. L. R. 433 : 117 I. C. 527 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 215. In Muthu Ayyar v. Ramasami Sastrial, 20 M. 158, it has been held that a judgment-debtor is entitled to have the sale set aside under this section (rule), if he deposits 5 per cent. of the purchase-money, including that deducted by the Court for poundage, and fulfils the requirements of Cl. (b) even though something more on account of poundage was recoverable from him under the head of costs. The failure to affix stamps by way of poundage fees to an application for setting aside a sale as required by rule 15 of Chap. XVII of the Allahabad High Court Rules is nothing more than a mere irregularity and will not prevent the Court from entertaining an application under Or. XXI, r. 89 ; if all the conditions required by that rule are complied with, the Court may give time to pay the poundage fee.—Abdul Wahid v. Tribhawan, 133 I. C. 407 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 756 : 30 A. L. J. 13.

Where properties were sold in separate lots and deposit was made in respect of one such lot only, the sale in respect of such lot may be set aside.—Panna Lal v. Bhola Nath, 123 I. C. 818 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 843. But see contra, Rameshwar Singh v. Manjal Prasad, 9 P. 310 : 125 I. C. 570 : 11 P. L. T. 830 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 318.

When the amount payable by the judgment-debtor under this rule has been calculated by an officer of the Court and has been deposited, an order setting aside the sale must be made by the Court as a matter of right.—Makbool Ahmad v. Bazle Salhan, 25 C. 609. In Ugrah Lal v. Radha Pershad, 18 C. 255, it has been held that when the amount payable by the judgment-debtor has been calculated and settled by an officer of a Court, and when the amount has been paid into Court, an order setting aside a sale must be made as a matter of right, although it was subsequently discovered that the amount was short by a small sum. See also Sheik Fakir v. Beraf Mohini, 11 C. W. N. 116; Rangini Sundari v. Hiralal, 33 C. W. N. 1170. Where the amount falls short of the amount required to a small extent, that is not a substantial shortage and does not vitiate the deposit, but any delay beyond the 30 days from the date of the sale cannot be disregarded or excused.—Mohamed Cassim v. David, 6 R. 490: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 286: 113 I. C. 810.

A deposit under this rule must not be conditional.—Dulhin Mathura v. Bansidhar, 16 C. W. N. 904: 15 C. L. J. 83: 10 I. C. 830. The rule is inconsistent with the notion that payment can be made either under protest or coupled with condition.—Kumakutty v. Neela Kandan, 53 M. 943: 128 I. C. 509: (1930) M. W. N. 524: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 921: 59 M. L. J. 893. The Court has no power to order that the decree-holder should draw out the money on his executing a security-bond and a suit will not lie for refund of the money deposited.—Ibid. See also Nurjahan v. Asia, 35 C. W. N. 1056.

The judgment-debtor deposited the decretal amount with the extra percentage under Or. XXI, r. 89, but in his application he prayed that it may not be paid to the decree-holder pending disposal of an appeal. Subsequently on the objection of the decree-holder, he withdrew the prayer aforesaid. Held, that the object of the deposit was to set aside the sale, and though there was no specific prayer to that effect, the objection to the payment of the decretal amount having been withdrawn, the Court was bound to set aside the sale; Rameshivendra v. Audh Bihari, 71 I. C. 332.

A new application without any actual deposit is not sufficient compliance with the law.—Mahomed Akbar v. Sukhdeo, 13 C. L. J. 467.

Under this rule the essential upon which the action of the Court is to depend is the deposit within 30 days, and not the fact of the application being made within that period.—Mathuji v. Kondoji, 7 Bom. L. R. 263; Sadasheo v. Narayan, 106 I. C. 568; Mahomed Cassim v. David, 6 R. 490: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 286: 113 I. C. 810.

An application under this rule need not be in writing, but the application whether oral or written must be in time. Deposit of money alone is not sufficient. Held, therefore, that a tender by a person who was neither an attorney, nor a Vakil, nor a Mukhtear, for the owner of the property sold, does not comply with the provisions of this rule and is consequently invalid.—Sarri Begun v. Haidar Shah, 9 A. L. J. 12; Parat v. Ambalath, 32 I. C. 45; Rameshivendra v. Audh Bihari, 71 I. C. 332; Kabiruddin v. Krishna, 109 I. C. 449: A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 136. But see Thimmarasu Venkata v. Venkatappa, 46 M. L. J. 119: (1924) M. W. N. 137, where it was held, that the fact that the required deposit was made by the pleader's clerk instead of by the pleader himself did not vitiate the application.

A deposit under r. 89 is a voluntary deposit and the person making the deposit cannot maintain a suit to have the sale set aside and for refund of the money deposited.—Raghu Ram v. Deo Kali, 7 P. 30; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 193; 115 I. C. 193.

The formality of depositing money need not be gone into when the decree-holders who are also the auction-purchasers certify that the decree has been settled out of Court and pray that the sale may be set aside.—Shivaram v. Manu Lal, A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 40.

Where deposit is made within thirty days.—If the Court be closed on or before the last day of the period limited, the judgment-debtor may deposit the amount of the debt into Court on the first day the Court reopens.—Soshee Bhusan v. Gobind Chunder, 18 C. 331; Peary Mohun v. Anunda Charan, 18 C. 631. See also Aravamudu Ayyangar v. Samiyappa Nadan, 21 M. 358, and Sambasiva Charu v. Ramasami Reddi, 22 M. 179; and S. 10 of the General Clauses Act (X of 1897).

Deposit of decretal amount with costs within 30 days.—Deposit of 5 per centum of the purchase-money after the rejection of the special appeal. Held that the application was barred and the judgment-debtor was not entitled to exclude the period during which the special appeal was pending.—Chowdhry Kesri Sahay v. Gains Roy, 29 C. 626; 6 C. W. N. 776.

An act of the Court cannot prejudice any party. Therefore where on the last day of making a deposit under this rule, the deposit could not be made owing to the presiding officers leaving the Court earlier than usual and the deposit was made the next day; held that the deposit was valid and in time.—Dulhin Mathura v. Bansidhar, 16 C. W. N. 904; 15 C. L. J. 83; 10 I. C. 880; Gholam v. Manindra, 22 I. C. 842.

Extension of time.—The Court has no jurisdiction to extend the time prescribed by this rule but extension may be granted with the consent of parties; Rameswar v. Sureshwar, 39 I. C. 664; 2 P. L. J. 164.

Nature of deposit.—A deposit must be of such a nature as to be at once payable to the parties, and a Court has no power to set aside a sale, unless the judgment-debtor has strictly complied with the law. The deposit of Government promissory note is not sufficient.—Rahim Buz v. Nundo Lal, 14 C. 321. See also Musst. Shakoti v. Jotindra Mohon, 1 C. W. N. 132.

Where after deposit under this section (rule) the judgment-debtor prayed that the money deposited might be retained in Court pending the hearing of an application under S. 103, C. P. Code, 1882. Held that the sale ought to have been set aside.—Hanooman Singh v. Luchman, 8 C. W. N. 355.

A mere payment of the sale-proceeds into Court is not a sufficient compliance with the requirements of this section (rule). Actual receipt of sale-proceeds by the decree-holder is necessary to set aside a sale.—Trimbak v. Ram Chandra, 23 B. 723.

Where properties were sold in separate lots, and the judgment-debtor applied under this rule to set aside the sale of one of the properties by tendering the balance due under the decree, after deducting the amounts bid by the decree-holder for some of the properties, and the amount deposited by the other purchaser. Held that there was no deposit within the terms of the section (rule).—Kripa Nath v. Ram Lakshmi, 1 C. W. N. 703

"For payment to the decree-holder."—The word "decree-holder" in sub-rule (1) (b) refers to that person alone in satisfaction of whose decree the sale took place. It does not refer to the other decree-holders who claim rateable distribution of the sale-proceeds under S. 73.—Ganesh v. Vithal, 37 B. 387. It was held in Harai v. Faizlur, 40 C. 619, that when a judgment-debtor deposits such amount as is sufficient to satisfy the claim of the person in satisfaction of whose decree the sale was ordered, the other decree-holders cannot come in for rateable distribution under S. 73. See also Hari Sundari v. Shashi Bala, 1 C. W. N. 195; Beharilal v. Gopallall, 1 C. W. N. 695 (followed in Roshunlall v. Ramlall, 30 C. 262; 7 C. W. N. 341). As to the proper amount to be deposited, see Karunakara v. Krishna, 39 M. 429; 27 I. C. 952; 28 M. L. J. 262.

"Less any amount received by the decree-holder."—It is not necessary that the payment to the decree-holder should be in cash; it is enough if he is anyhow satisfied as to the whole amount due to him.—Lakshmi Ammal v. Sankaran Nair, 24 M. L. J. 205; Vedala Lakshminarasammah v. Pacha Lakshmmammal, (1912) M. W. N. 756. But a judgment-debtor cannot take advantage of the amount paid by his co-judgment-debtors and deposit the balance; Karunakara v. Krishna, 39 M. 429; 27 I. C. 952; 28 M. L. J. 262.

"Received" means actual receipt by the decree-holder. A mere payment into Court of the sale-proceeds does not satisfy the requirements of this rule.—Trimbak v. Ram Chandra, 23 B. 723 (followed in Tota Ram v. Chhoturam, 25 Bom. L. R. 446; 73 I. C. 454; A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 299; Karunakara v. Krishna, noted ante).

Court.—By virtue of r. 91-A passed by the Bombay High Court an application under r. 89 and the deposit may be made to the Collector or other officer to whom the decree is referred for execution and it shall be deemed to have been made in or into Court within the meaning of r. 89.—Mahadu v. Patlu, 31 Bom. L. R. 221; 116 I. C. 269; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 189. The 'Court' means 'the Court executing the decree' and not the sale office, but where the money was deposited in the office of the Collector who had sold the property and intimation is sent to the Civil Court that the money had been transferred to the Civil Court account within 30 days of the date of the sale, the deposit is good and the provisions of the rule are complied with.—Abdul Wahid v. Ram Krishna, 131 I. C. 596; A. I. R. 1931 All. 303.

Sub-rule (2)—"He shall not be entitled to make or prosecute an application."—In a case where, after an application to set aside a sale was made, under the rule another application was made to have the benefit of the former J. 959. But the Court should in such a case put the judgment-debtor to his election whether he would withdraw the application under r. 90, and if he refuses to do so, it should dismiss the application made under this rule; Sarri Begam v. Ram Chandar, 47 A.

850 : 88 I. C. 500 : A. I. R. 1925 All. 778 : 23 A. L. J. 760. But the provisions of this sub-rule do not apply where an application, though purporting to be made under r. 90, is really one under S. 47 ; Harihar v. Rama Pandu, 33 B. 698 : 4 I. C. 253 : 11 Bom. L. R. 1113.

After the rejection of an application under this rule judgment-debtors, other than the applicant, made an application under rule 90. Held, that the present application was not barred by sub-rule (2).—Ashruf Ali v. Net Lal, 23 C. 682. See also Sital v. Nand Lal, 13 C. W. N. 519.

Where in an application to set aside a sale there are joint prayers under rr. 89 and 90 without any actual deposit of purchase-money, such an application cannot be entertained under sub-rule (2), r. 90.—Narayan v. Rasul Khan, 23 B. 531 (535).

A judgment-debtor having applied under this section (rule) to set aside an execution-sale, his application was rejected and the sale was confirmed under Or. XXI, r. 92. Subsequently he brought a suit to set aside the sale. Held that the suit was barred by sub-rule (3) of rule 92.—Damodar v. Vinayak Trimbak, 26 B. 40.

A judgment-debtor who makes an application under Or. XXI, r. 90, which is dismissed for default, is thereby disqualified from subsequently applying for getting back his property under r. 89.—Murlidhar v. Baldeo, 20 O. C. 329. But see Mirza Altaf Beg v. Fazlul Haq, A. I. R. 1928 All. 196 : 116 I. C. 490, which has held that such subsequent application is maintainable if the full amount of the decree and 5 per cent. of the purchase-money is paid within the period of limitation.

Necessary parties.—It is clear from the provisions of the proviso to r. 92, sub-rule (2), that both the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser are necessary parties to an application under this rule ; Musst. Bibi Zainab v. Paras Nath, 2 P. 800 : 75 I. C. 430 : A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 37 ; Rameshwar Singh v. Mangal Prasad, 9 P. 310 : 125 I. C. 570 : 11 P. L. T. 880 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 318. There is nothing in r. 89 to indicate that the judgment-debtor or the applicant is to trace out who are the sale should trace out who are the parties to the sale and make them parties to it. The rule does not require the application to nominate any person as an opposing party. The auction-purchaser and the decree-holder who are already on the record need not be specifically mentioned and impleaded.—Dip Chand v. Sheo Prasad, 27 A. L. J. 769 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 593. It is the duty of the Court to issue notice to the person whom it has previously declared as auction-purchaser to show cause against the sale being set aside.—Jit Singh v. Daulatia, 124 I. C. 23 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 167.

Notice.—What is necessary is that notice should be given to the decree-holder and auction-purchaser and r. 92 does not require them to be formally made parties. Notice may be issued after 30 days, but it is the duty of the party to apply for issue of notice and the Court is not bound to issue notice without an application ; Musst. Bibi Zainab v. Paras Nath, noted under heading "Necessary Parties," ante ; Raj Chandra v. Kali Kanta, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 394. See Or. XXI, r. 92.

Confirmation of sale.—Confirmation of sale under r. 92 is no bar to the applicability of this rule, and a sale may be set aside even after such confirmation.—Pita v. Chunilal, 31 B. 207, 217.

Applicability of this rule to sales under Rent Act.—This rule does not apply to the sale of a tenure or holding sold in execution of a decree for its own arrears, inasmuch as S. 54 of the B. T. Amendment Act (I of 1907, B. C.) has expressly laid down that this rule would not apply to such sales.—Asiruddi v. Mokhodamoyee, 12 C. W. N. 434: 35 C. 543. But this case does not apply to East Bengal and Assam as the Amending Act of that province (Act I of 1903), has not made this rule inapplicable to that province. So the rulings under the old Code, in which it has been held that S. 310-A of the C. P. Code, 1832, applies to the sale of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree for its own arrears are still good law, so far as that province is concerned. See Ali Miah v. Ramjan, 13 C. W. N. 224.

This section (rule) applies to the sale of the tenure in execution of a decree for its own arrears. An auction-purchaser is entitled to notice before an order is made under this section (rule).—Janardhan v. Kali Kristo, 23 C. 393 (followed in Krishnadhan v. Damayanti; Behary v. Russick, 23 C. 396 note and in Bungshidhar v. Kelar Nath, 1 C. W. N. 114). See also Nityananda v. Hira Lal, 5 C. W. N. 63 at p. 64.

This section (rule) does not apply to sales under Act X of 1859, as the Code of Civil Procedure applies only up to the sale and does not apply after it.—Harish Chandra v. Ananta Charan, 2 C. W. N. 127.

Rule if applies to sales on the Original Side of the High Court under mortgage-decree.—This rule applies to sales held in execution of mortgage-decrees on the Original Side of the High Court.—Virjiban Dass v. Biseswar Lal, 48 C. 69: 24 C. W. N. 1032: 60 I. C. 406. But see contra, in Surendra v. Gurupada, 24 C. W. N. 536, where it has been held that though this rule applies to sales under mortgage-decrees in the mofussil, it does not apply to such sales held in the High Court. Order XXI, r. 89 is framed in language applicable to mofussil practice and is not in terms applicable to the practice of the High Court in its Original Side as regards sales held in execution of mortgage-decrees. Where by reason of the fact that no amount is specified in any proclamation of sale as that for the recovery of which the sale is ordered, the words of the rule cannot be applied strictly and the High Court has only to apply them as fairly as possible to the circumstances of the sale on the Original Side. The mortgagor judgment-debtor could under this rule have the sale set aside on paying the amount due to the decree-holder mortgagee and 5 per cent. compensation to the purchaser.—Kalyanee v. Hari Mohan, 56 C. 477: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 574. But see Ashutosh v. Sudhangshu, 58 C. 510: 133 I. C. 597: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 633.

Sub-rule (3)—Recovery of costs.—In considering an application to have the sale set aside the Court has only to consider the amount for the recovery of which the sale was ordered. It is wrong to say that on the Original Side of the High Court a person desiring to take advantage of r. 89 is obliged to pay a lump-sum making a guess of the amount or to go to the attorneys of the plaintiffs and find out from them how much they are prepared to consider as correct. Sales are not ordered for the recovery of the amount of costs before they are attached. (Amendment of the High Court Rules, Original Side suggested).—Kalyanee v. Hari Mohan, 56 C. 477: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 574.

Appeal against order under the rule.—Under the old Code, an order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale passed on an application under S. 310-A, was not appealable because it was not included under S. 588 (Or. XLIII, r. 1) in the list of appealable orders. It was however appealable as a decree, if the question as to whether the sale should be set aside or not arose "between the parties to the suit or their representatives" in the course of the execution proceedings and as such came within the purview of S. 47.—Pita v. Chunilal, 31 B. 207; Maganlal v. Mulji, 25 B. 631; Murlidhar v. Anandarao, 25 B. 418: 3 Bom. L. R. 100; Pandurang Govind v. Krishnabai, 1 Bom. L. R. 74; Phul Chand v. Nurshing, 28 C. 73 (followed in Imtiaz Begam v. Dhuman Begam, 29 A. 275; Manikka v. Rajagopala, 17 M. L. J. 291; Harihar v. Rama Pandu, 33 B. 698: 4 I. C. 253: 11 Bom. L. R. 1113). But under the present Code, an order setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale (under r. 92) with reference to an application under this rule (r. 89) is appealable as an order being included in the list of appealable orders given in Or. XLIII, r. 1. An auction-purchaser also can now appeal from an order under this rule; Kachu v. Trimbak, 44 B. 472; Gadigappa v. Shidappa, 48 B. 638: 83 I. C. 155: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 495: 26 Bom. L. R. 817.

Where the Court dismissed an application by the judgment-debtor on the ground that there was no valid deposit and thereupon an appeal was preferred, held, that the auction-purchaser was a necessary party to the proceeding and appeal and that the appeal should be dismissed for want of proper parties.—Rameshwar Singh v. Mangal Prasad, 9 P. 310: 125 I. C. 570: 11 P. L. J. 880; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 318.

The true nature of the order must be examined, and the character of the parties affected by it must be ascertained, before deciding whether the order is one under S. 47.—Mahomed Akhtar v. Sukhdeo, 13 C. L. J. 467.

An order on an application to set aside a sale under this rule does not come within the definition of "decree" in S. 2.—Asimuddi v. Pran Mohini, 15 C. W. N. 844. No second appeal lies.—Rangini Sundari v. Hiralal, 33 C. W. N. 1170.

Revision.—Where a Court refuses to entertain an application under Or. XXI, r. 89, on the ground that the petitioner has no locus standi, it is a case where the Court fails to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law within the meaning of S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, and so the High Court will interfere in revision in such a case; Sundaram v. Mausaa, 44 M. 554: 40 M. L. J. 497: 63 I. C. 937 (F. B.); Dhanwanti v. Sheoshankar, 4 P. L. J. 340: 51 I. C. 873; Aulad Ali v. Abdul, 2 P. 715: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 490: 74 I. C. 102. But it has been held by the Allahabad High Court in Yad Ram v. Sundar Singh, 45 A. 425 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1923 All. 392: 74 I. C. 778, that no revision lies in such a case.

Where the Court refused to set aside a sale made by the judgment-debtor, the auction-purchaser is entitled to 5 per cent. of the sale price in revision.—

Durga Prasad v. Chandika, 118 I. C. 805. An order contravening the provisions of Or. XXI, rr. 89 and 92 is an illegal exercise of jurisdiction and is a material irregularity within S. 115, C. P. Code.—Panna Lal v. Bhola Nath, 128 I. C. 818: A. I. R. 1930 All. 843.

The High Court can interfere in revision if an application under Or. XXI, r. 89 has been wrongly admitted on the ground that it was made by a person interested to apply.—Subba Reddi v. Vasireddi, A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 659 (44 M. 554 (F. B.) followed).

Dismissal of application for default in appearance.—No appeal lies where an application under this rule is dismissed for default in appearance and the Court refuses to restore it to file.—Ghasiti Bibi v. Abdul Samad, 29 A 596.

Date of sale.—The "date of the sale" is the date on which the sale takes place and the highest bid is accepted and the deposit paid, and not the date when the Court confirms the sale and directs the remainder of the purchase-money to be collected; Vanakhusal v. Ratilal, 28 Bom. L. R. 510: 95 I. C. 549: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 335.

Limitation.—Under Art. 166, Sch. I of the Limitation Act, 1908, an application under this rule to set aside the sale, must be made within 30 days from the date of the sale. But where the final bid remains unaccepted by the officer conducting the sale for some days, this period of limitation does not begin to run till the acceptance of the bid.—Munshilal v. Ram Narain, 35 A. 65.

A judgment-debtor may obtain reversal of sale by deposit of money in Court but the Limitation Act provides that such deposit must be within 30 days of the sale. The Court has no jurisdiction except under the provisions of the Limitation Act to extend the time nor has the Court jurisdiction to set aside a sale by allowing the judgment-debtor to deposit the decretal amount after the period of limitation has expired. The Court can only give time with the consent of the parties.—Rameshwar v. Sureshwar, 2 P. L. J. 164.

It is not enough to make the application within 30 days; Mahomed Akbar v. Mahomed Sukhdeo, 13 C. L. J. 467; Munna Lal v. Radha Kishan, 37 A. 591: 30 I. C. 186: 13 A. L. J. 793. Both the application and the deposit must be made within 30 days from the date of the sale. A sale in execution cannot be set aside under Or. XXI, r. 89 without an application (oral or written) within 30 days from the date of sale.—Venkata Narasimma v. Lakshmi Narasimham, 32 I. C. 783.

For further notes, see r. 90, post.

Applicability of this rule to sales under mortgage-decrees.—It was held by the Calcutta High Court that S. 310-A did not apply to a sale of mortgaged property under a decree made in accordance with the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1832).—Kedar Nath v. Kali Churn, 25 C. 703 (F. B.): 2 C. W. N. 353 (23 C. 692 overruled; 19 A. 235 disapproved of). This Full Bench decision was explained in Dakshina Mohun v. Srimati Basumati, 4 C. W. N. 474, where it was held that S. 104 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1832) was an enabling section, and the rules made by the High Court (Circular Order No. 13, dated 27th April, 1832) under S. 104 of the T. P. Act, (IV of 1832), did not limit the applicability of the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code as regards sales held in execution of mortgage-decrees; and distinguished in Shyam Kishen v. Sunder Koer, 31 C. 373. The Allahabad, Bombay and the Madras High Courts held, on the other hand, that this rule applies where a sale of immoveable property has taken place under a mortgage-decree.—Raja Ram v. Chunni Lal, 19 A. 205; Srinivasa Ayyangar v. Ayyathorai Pillai, 21 M. 416; Tirumal v. Syed Dastaghini Miyah, 22 M. 286; Krishnaji v. Mahadev, 25 B. 104; Mallikarjunadu Setti v. Lingamurti, 25 M. 244 (F. B.).

The Calcutta decisions are no longer law. The transfer, into Or. XXXIV of the present Code, of the sections of the Transfer of Property Act relating to decrees in mortgage-suits, makes it clear that rule 89 applies to sales under mortgage-decrees also. A mortgagor whose immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property passed under Or. XXXIV, r. 5, may therefore apply under this rule to set aside the sale; Virjiban Das v. Biseswar Lal, 48 C. 69: 24 C. W. N. 1032: 60 I. C. 406.

Order IX does not apply to proceedings under this rule.—An application to set aside a sale under this rule is a proceeding in execution and not an original proceeding, and hence the provisions of Or. IX do not apply to it.—Bhagwan v. Dattatraya, 50 B. 457: 96 I. C. 411: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 377: 28 Bom. L. R. 686.

90. (1) Where any immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree, the decree-holder, or any person entitled to share in a rateable distribution of assets, or whose interests are affected by the sale, may apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground of a material irregularity or fraud in publishing or conducting it:

Application to set aside sale on ground of irregularity or fraud.

Provided that no sale shall be set aside on the ground of irregularity or fraud unless upon the facts proved the Court is satisfied that the applicant has sustained substantial injury by reason of such irregularity or fraud. [S. 311.];

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882, with some important additions and alterations. Section 311 ran thus:—"The decree-holder, or any person whose immoveable property has been sold under this Chapter, may apply to the Court to set aside the sale on the ground of a material irregularity in publishing or conducting it; but no sale shall be set aside on the ground of irregularity unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Court that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of such irregularity."

"The Committee have struck out the provision as to irregularity in attaching the property, as such irregularity obviously cannot affect the price. They have introduced the words 'rateable distribution of assets' to clear up a doubt which has been the subject of discussion in several cases. They have altered the language of the proviso in order to meet the doubts which have been raised as to the evidence upon which the Court can act (Tasadduk Rasul Khan v. Ahmad Husain, 21 C. 66 (P. C.))."—Report of the Special Committee.

Effect of the alterations.—(1) The words "Any person whose immoveable property has been sold" in the old Code, were the subject of discussion in several cases and the High Courts were not unanimous in the interpretation of these words, as will appear from the several conflicting rulings quoted below. The Legislature, in order to set at rest the conflicting rulings, has framed the present rule to clear up the doubts which hitherto existed. The present rule is much more comprehensive than the old section. The words "or any person entitled to share in a rateable distribution of assets" have been inserted in the present rule adopting the principles laid down in Lakshmi v. Kuttunni, 10 M. 57; Sorabji v. Govind Ramji, 16 B. 91, Ajudhia Prasad v. Nand Lal, 15 A. 318 and 29 C. 548. The rulings in which contrary views have been expressed have been overridden by the present rule.

(2) "Any person whose interests are affected by the sale."—The words "whose interests are affected by the sale" have been added to the present rule in order to render the scope of the present rule wider than that of the old section. The wording of the old section was not clear enough to include the cases of persons whose interests were affected by the sale and hence there was diversity of judicial opinion on the point, as will appear from the several rulings noted below. The scope of the present rule has been enlarged by the addition of the above words. But persons whose interests are not affected by the sale cannot apply under this rule to set it aside. A person claiming a title adverse to that of the judgment-debtor or by title paramount to the judgment-debtor is not within the meaning of these words, inasmuch as his title to the property is not affected by the sale whether the sale is regular, or irregular. The above change has been introduced in accordance with the view expressed in Asmutunnissa v. Ashruff, 15 C 488 (F. B.) and Subbarayadu v. Pedda Subbarazu, 16 M. 476.

(3) "Fraud in publishing or conducting the sale."—The words "or fraud" have been added after the word "irregularity." "We think that the existing law, as contained in S. 311 of the present Code, is defective, the omission in the section to refer to fraud as a ground for setting aside a sale having led some Courts to hold that an order on an application setting up fraud as a ground for relief is, unlike an order made on an application under S. 311, a decree open to second appeal. This result which often involves a considerable prolongation of these . . . We think that applications for . . . the procedure applicable to them whether they are based on the ground of irregularity or on the ground of fraud."—Report of the Select Committee.

Another important change made in the present law is the insertion of the word "fraud." Under the old Code it was held by all the High Courts that an application to set aside a sale on the ground of "fraud" in publishing or conducting it did not fall within S. 311 but such application fell within S. 244 of the C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 47) and the period of limitation in such cases was 3 years and not 30 days. But under the present

Code, all applications to set aside a sale whether on the ground of irregularity or fraud in publishing or conducting it, are to be determined under this rule. The object of the change has been clearly explained in the report of the Select Committee quoted above. The effect of the change, is that the period of limitation for such an application has been shortened, and the right of second appeal has been curtailed. Under the old law an application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud of any kind fell within S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), and hence the period of limitation was three years, and there was a second appeal. (Vide Hiralal v. Chundra Kanto, 26 C. 539: 3 C. W. N. 403; Kokil Singh v. Edal Singh, 31 C. 385 and Ramayad Sahu v. Bindeswari Kumar, 6 C. L. J. 102). Under the present rule, however, fraud in publishing or conducting the sale, has been excluded from the operation of S. 47. But where the sale is vitiated by any other kind of fraud (except the fraud in publishing or conducting the sale), the case must fall within S. 47, as before. It is the only particular kind of fraud that has been excluded from the operation of S. 47. There are and may be innumerable and inconceivable kinds of fraud and it is impossible to give any exact definition of the word.

Again under the present law, an application to set aside a sale, may be made either on the ground of irregularity or on the ground of fraud in publishing or conducting it. But irregularity in attaching the property is no longer any ground for setting aside a sale, as will appear from the Report of the Special Committee, quoted above. The words "publishing or conducting" refer respectively to S. 287, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 66), and to the action of the officer by whom the sale is held (32 B. 572); they do not refer to any irregularity or fraud in the execution proceedings prior to publication or conducting the sale.

(4) "Unless upon the facts proved, the Court is satisfied."—The language of the proviso has been altered in order to meet the doubts which have been raised as to the evidence upon which the Court can act. In the proviso, the words "unless upon the facts proved the Court is satisfied" have been substituted for the words "unless the applicant proves to the satisfaction of the Court." The above alteration has been made adopting the principle laid down in Tasadduk Rasul Khan v. Ahmad Husain, 21 C. 66 (P. O.), where it has been held that in an application to set aside a sale it is necessary for the applicant to show not only that there has been a material irregularity, but also that substantial injury has been sustained in consequence of such material irregularity; and in the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed that the irregularity was the cause of the substantial injury.

In the Full Bench case of Lala Mobaruk Lal v. Secretary of State, 11 C. 200, and in 7 C. 466, 3 C. 542, 9 C. 656, 20 C. 599, 24 C. 295, 30 C. 1, 6 C. W. N. 688, 6 C. W. N. 836, 20 M. 159, it has been held that where property has been sold at an inadequate price and it is also proved that there has been a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, the fair inference to draw in the case is "the inadequacy of the price, until proved to the contrary." In order to meet these conflicting rulings, the language of the proviso has been altered and under the present law it must be satisfactorily proved that the irregularity was the cause of the substantial injury. No inference can now be drawn that irregularity was the cause of the substantial injury. The rulings in which a view

Who may apply under this rule.—(1) "Decree-holder or any person entitled to share in a rateable distribution of assets."—The term "decree-holder" in this rule is not limited to the decree-holder who instituted the execution proceedings, but may include a decree-holder who is entitled to come in and share in the proceeds under S. 73.—Pragji Kala v. Assa Jalal, 35 I. C. 530; Lakshmi v. Kuttunni, 10 M. 57; Chakrapani v. Dhanji, 24 N. 311; Bijoy Singh v. Hukum Chand, 29 C. 548. See also Ajudhia Prasad v. Nand Lal, 15 A. 318; Athappa Chetti v. Rama Krishna, 21 M. 51. See also Chattrapat Singh v. Jadukul Prosad, 20 C. 673 and Sorabji v. Gotind Ramji, 16 B. 91. The two latter cases have been dissented from in Matungini Dassi v. Monmotha Nath, 4 C. W. N. 542.

The expression "rateable distribution" in Or. XXI, r. 90 is not wide enough to cover the distribution of dividends under the Provincial Insolvency Act. That rule is a rule framed under the C. P. Code and it has application only to rateable distribution under S. 73, C. P. Code, and has no application to distribution of dividends under the Provincial Insolvency Act.—Sullemanni v. Pragn Kala, 39 I. C. 932; 10 S. L. R. 189.

A person whose application for execution has been dismissed for default is entitled to a share in a rateable distribution of the assets and as such can apply under this rule.—Byomkesh v. Jatindra, 18 C. W. N. 1311.

(2) "Any person whose interests are affected by this sale."—The expression "any person whose interests are affected by the sale" has been substituted for the expression "any person whose immoveable property has been sold," which occurred in the old S. 311. In the Full Bench case of Asmut-unnessa v. Ashruff Ali, 15 C. 488 (F. B.), this expression was held to mean "any person whose interests are affected by the sale." It was held in this case that a person who claims to be the purchaser from a judgment-debtor prior to the attachment, is not entitled to come in under rule 90 and object to the sale of the judgment-debtor's property, because the sale being prior to the attachment his interest cannot be legally affected by the sale. This Full Bench Case has been followed in Ram Chandra v. Rukhma Bai, 23 B. 450, and dissented from by Mahmood, J., in Sheo Prasad v. Hira Lal, 12 A. 440 (following 14 C. 240). In Matungini Dassi v. Monmotha Nath, 4 C. W. N. 542, it has been held that an attaching creditor is not a "person whose immoveable property is sold," nor does he come within the words "the decree-holder." But in the case of Dhirendra v. Kamini, 28 C. W. N. 899, it has been held that an attaching creditor who has attached the property in execution of his decree is a person "whose interests are affected by the sale" and can apply under this rule. See also Narain Pal v. Rudra, 29 A. L. J. 880; 133 I. C. 426. A distinction, however, has been made between the person attaching the property in execution of his decree and the person attaching the same before judgment. A plaintiff attaching the property before judgment has no locus standi to apply under the rule; Jogendra v. Mammotho, 16 C. L. J. 566; 17 C. W. N. 80; Badiar v. Sarada, 42 C. L. J. 37; 89 I. C. 688; A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1103. In Aubhoya Dassi v. Pudmo Lochun, 22 C 802, it has been held that a purchaser of a tenure prior to attachment from a judgment-debtor whose interest in the tenure has been sold in execution of a decree for its own arrears of rent is entitled to apply under rule 90, to set aside the sale (15 C. 488 distinguished). An unregistered transferee, before decree, of a portion of an occupancy holding can apply to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree obtained against the recorded tenant, as a person whose immoveable property has been sold within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 90.—Azgar Ali v. Asaboddin Kazi, 9 C. W. N. 134. An auction-purchaser of the interests of an unregistered transferee of an occupancy holding as well as the unregistered transferee himself may apply under this rule to set aside a sale.—Haradhan v. Girish Chandra, 13 C. W. N. 99 (9 C. W. N. 134; 10 C. W. N. 240, referred to). A person to whom a transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged before its sale in execution of a rent decree, may apply to set aside the sale.—Nissa Bibi v. Radha Kishore, 11 O. W. N. 312 (9 C. W. N. 134 followed). But a person who claims to have purchased the holding from the tenant, cannot apply as the representative of the judgment-debtor to set aside a sale, if the holding be not transferable by custom or usage.—Prosunno Kumar v. Damachurn, 13 C. W. N. 652 (11 C. W. N. 312 followed). Quare, whether a person claiming an occupancy right can have the sale set aside.—Kuti Baru v. Jitendra, 35 C. W. N. 31 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 425 : 131 I. C. 561.

The judgment-debtor sold his properties to another before the date of the execution-sale. But at the time of the execution-sale the properties were sold as belonging to him. Held that the judgment-debtor was a person whose interests were "affected by the sale" within the meaning of this rule ; Muhammad Mohideen v. Ramanadhan, 22 L. W. 872 : 92 I. C. 597 : A. I. R. 1926 M. 100. A co-judgment-debtor to set aside a sale is maintained by other judgment-debtors have proved v. Kutiswar, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 829 : 93 I. C. 870 ; Jadoonath v. Astwini, 16 C. L. J. 98 : 16 I. C. 974. The words "whose interests are affected by the sale" include persons with pecuniary or other interests. Where in executing a mortgage-decree, the Court ordered that the property of the appellant, one of the judgment-debtors, should not be sold until the properties of the other judgment-debtors had been put up to sale, the appellant is entitled to apply for setting aside the sale of the properties of the other judgment-debtors on the ground of irregularity and fraud and consequent inadequacy of price, because if the other properties were sold for an inadequate price, the property of the appellant would be threatened.—Bibi Mehdatunnissa v. Sewak Ram, A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 217 : 132 I. C. 111.

The words in r. 90 "whose interests are affected by the sale" refer to existing interests in the property sold. The phrase cannot be extended to the claims of creditors, for that would involve (1) proof of claim in the execution-proceedings and (2) a construction which would make the words "the decree-holder or any person entitled to a share in a rateable distribution of assets" redundant.—Pragji Kala v. Assa Jalal, 35 I. C. 530. But see Abdul Aziz v. Tafazuddin, 19 C. W. N. 326.

It was held under the old Code that an auction-purchaser was not entitled to apply under S. 311 to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree, as he was not "a person whose immoveable property was sold within the meaning of that section."—Brij Mohan v. Rai Uma Nath, 19 I. A. 154 : 20 C. 8 (P. C.) (followed in Ram Narain v. Dwarka Nath, 4 C. W. N. 13 ; referred to in Khetter Nath v. Faizuddin Ali, 24 C. 689). Under the present Code the auction-purchaser is not entitled to apply under this rule (relying upon 3 P. L. J. 207 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 828 : 116 I. C. 156. The Madras High Court has held that an auction-purchaser is entitled to apply under this rule, because his interests are affected by the sale ; Bhabiriseti v. Pakanali, 38 M. L. J. 228 : 55 I. C. 333. The Patna High Court has held that an auction-purchaser is not entitled to apply under this rule, because "interests affected by the sale" mean interests in the property existing before the sale ; Khetro Mohan v. Sheikh Dilwar, 3 P. L. J. 516 : 46 I. C. 614 ; Kartik v. Nagendra, 74 I. C. 760 : A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 319. The Rangoon High Court held the same.—K. V. A. L. Chettyar v. Maricar, 6 R. 621 : 1931 Sind 107. See also Kalumal v. Ahmed, A. I. R. 1931 All. 107. Allahabad High Court has taken a.

different view from the Patna decisions and has held that an auction-purchaser is entitled to apply under this rule on the ground that the word "interests" is a term which covers "every sort of interest recognized by law, such as, in the case of an auction-purchaser, the liability to pay the money, liability to complete and take a transfer of the property, and, from his own point of view, the necessity of finding the requisite funds, and also the necessity of carrying through to fruition the provisional contract in which he has entered"; Ravinandan v. Jagarnath, 47 A. 479: 87 I. C. 278: A. I. R. 1925 All. 459: 23 A. L. J. 233. This case was at first followed in S. N. V. R. S. Subramanian v. N. L. M. Chettyar Firm, 5 B. 516: 105 I. C. 465: A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 301, and in Nihal Chand v. Pritam Singh, 132 I. C. 525: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 630. But now see contra, Nihal Chand v. Pritam, A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 468; and K. V. A. L. Chettyar v. Maricar, noted ante.

Where in execution of a decree obtained against a Hindu widow, certain properties were sold, and the presumptive reversioner sought to set aside the sale on the ground of irregularity in the proclamation and the conduct of sale, held that he is a person "whose interests are affected by the sale" within the meaning of this rule, and so the application is maintainable; Adanamoli Chetti v. Chinna-swami, (1926) M. W. N. 631: 97 I. C. 574: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 959. See also Meenakshi v. Palaniappa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1138: 113 I. C. 873. A reversioner to a Hindu widow's estate is entitled to apply under Or. XXI, r. 90, to set aside a sale of immovable property—Brykishore v. Pratap Narain, 4 P. L. J. 369: 51 I. C. 359.

A person alleging himself to be the undivided brother and, as such, the legal representative of a deceased judgment-debtor applied to have a sale of certain joint-family property, which had taken place in execution of the decree, set aside. Held that the applicant's proper remedy was a regular suit, and not a proceeding under this section (rule).—Subbarayadu v. Pedda, 16 M. 476.

Where immovable property has been sold in execution of a decree against the ostensible owner as his property, a person claiming to be the beneficial owner is entitled to come in under this rule and object to the sale.—Abdul Gani v. Dunne, 20 C. 418 (15 C. 488 followed) See also Timmanna Banta v. Mahabala Bhatta, 19 M. 167.

Where immovable property has been sold in execution of a decree against the ostensible owner, the real owner cannot apply under this rule.—Hardwari v. Salamatullah, 38 A. 358.

A person claiming to be a co-sharer in certain undivided property, a share of which had been sold in execution of a decree, objected to the confirmation of the sale in favour of the person recorded as the auction-purchaser, and prayed that it might be confirmed in his favour with reference to the provisions of S. 310, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 88). Held that he had no locus standi to make an application under this rule.—Bisheshwar Kuar v. Hari Singh, 5 A. 42. See also Kunjolal v. Idurali, 97 I. C. 757; Medni Prasad v. Nand Keshwar, 2 P. 386: 85 I. C. 1014: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 451. But where a property is sold in execution of a rent-decree obtained in a suit framed under S. 148-A of the B. T. Act, by some co-sharer landlords, the other co-sharers may apply under this rule—Khojendra v. Jatindra, 23 C. W. N. 619: 50 I. C. 329.

An objection made by one whose property was attached and sold in execution of a money-decree for the performance of which he had become a surety, that he was no party to the decree and that his property was not liable to be attached and sold, and therefore the sale was invalid, cannot be entertained under this section (rule).—Hub Lal v. Kanhia Lal, 7 A. 365.

A mortgagee after obtaining a foreclosure decree under S. 86 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), is entitled to apply under this section (rule) to set aside a sale on the ground of irregularity.—Rakhal Chunder v. Dwarka Nath, 13 C. 346. But see Bhugabati Churn v. Biseshwar, 8 C. 367. A simple mortgagee of property sold in execution of a rent-decree is competent to apply under this section (rule).—Safar Ali v. Raj Mohun, 1 C. L. J. 454.

A mortgagee purchaser in execution of a mortgage-decree of an entire non-transferable occupancy holding is a person "whose interests are affected by the sale," the sale" and who through : : :

who would be entitled to claim in satisfaction of his debt any surplus proceeds of the rent-sale as against the mortgagor is a person interested.—Lakhan v. Bacha Lal, 11 P. L. J. 500 126 I. C. 295: A. I. R 1930 Pat. 451.

A person claiming adversely to a judgment-debtor cannot apply; Maung Kun v. Ma Nan, 1 Bur. L. J. 234: 70 I. C. 900

An interim receiver appointed under S 20 of the Provincial Insolvency Act can apply under this rule.—Subramania v. Dharapuram Nidhi Ltd., (1928) M. W. N. 216: 109 I. C. 148: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 454.

Strangers cannot challenge sale on the ground of irregularity.—It is not open to third parties to raise the question of irregularity in the sale in execution of a decree. The only person who can raise the question is either the decree-holder or a person whose interest is affected by the sale, and these persons can only raise the question under the provisions of Or. XXI, r. 90; Kunjolal v. Idurali, 97 I. C. 757.

What does and what does not amount to material irregularity.—

(a) Absence of attachment.—A regularly perfected attachment is an essential preliminary to sales in execution of simple money-decrees, and where there has been no such attachment, any sale that may have taken place is not simply voidable, but de facto void.—Mahadeo Dubey v. Bhola Nath, 5 A. 86 (F. B) See also Feda Husain v. Kutub Husain, 7 A. 38; Ram Chand v. Pitam Mal, 10 A. 505 (516) and Luchmeeput v. Lekraj Roy, 8 W. R. 415. It was held by the Calcutta High Court in Panchanan v. Kunja, 42 I. C. 259, that the Court had no jurisdiction to sell property which had not been duly attached and that the omission to attach rendered the sale void, ipso facto. But see Kishory v. Mahamed Mujaffar, 18 C. 189, where it has been held that after a sale has been confirmed and sale certificate granted to the purchaser, the sale is not to be considered as a nullity, merely by reason of the absence of any attachment (8 W. R. 9 followed; 5 A. 86 dissented from; followed in Hari Charan v. Chandra Kumar, 34 C. 787). Where an objection that the property proclaimed for sale had not been attached is taken before the sale, it is the duty of the Court not to proceed with the sale but to direct an attachment.—Sasirama v. Meherban, 13 C. L. J. 243 (249-250): 9 I. C. 918. In Sheo Dhyani v. Bholanath, 21 A. 311, it has been held that the absence of an attachment, prior to the sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree, amounts to no more than a material irregularity, but is not sufficient, unless substantial injury is caused thereby, to vitiate the sale. The Patna High Court, in Raja Wazir v. Bhukhari, 2 P. 207: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 45, took the same view as the Calcutta High Court took in Kishory v. Mahomed Mujaffar, 18 C. 188, though in the Patna case the application to set aside the sale was made before the confirmation of sale. The Rangoon High Court has held that though the absence of attachment is an irregularity, it does not render the sale absolutely void, but only voidable; Ma Pwa v. Mahomed Tambi, 1 R. 533: 77 I. C. 368: A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 124. See also Shankar Rao v. Manik Rao, 68 I. C. 643: A. I. R. 1923 Nag 18; Taraknath v. Syamacharan, 36 I. C. 292; Panaru v. Buldeo, 21 I. C. 46. The Madras High Court has held that a sale without attachment is an irregularity within this rule.—Subramania v. Krishna, 92 I. C. 833: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 211.

The omission to cause an attachment to be made in execution of a decree, for the realization of a mortgage-debt does not affect the validity of a sale of the mortgaged property in execution of such a decree.—Tincouri Debya v. Shib Chandra, 21 C. 639; Muniappa v. Subramania, 18 M. 437.

Where there was a subsisting attachment which was followed by an order for sale made in the life-time of the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder was entitled to proceed with the sale and realize his decree.—Peary Lal v. Chandi Charan, 11 C. W. N. 163: 5 C. L. J. 80.

The procedure as regards the attachment could not be impugned after an order of sale passed without objection.—Gajadhar v. Bechraj, 130 I. C. 265: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 63.

(b) Irregular attachment.—Under the present law irregularity in attaching the property is no ground for setting aside the sale.—See the Report of the Special Committee. Where the writ of attachment gave the wrong number of the premises but the proclamation of sale contained the correct number and the sale was effected in pursuance thereof, held that the sale was valid.—Nareshchandra v. Molla Ataul, 57 C. 1206: 129 I. C. 779: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 35.

(c) Omission to issue notice.—Omission to give notice to the party against whom execution is proceeding as provided by Or. XXI, r. 22 invalidates a sale in execution of the decree.—Ramessuri Dasee v. Doorgadas, 6 C. 103: 7 C. L. R. 85; Imamunnissa Bibi v. Liakat Husain, 3 A. 424; Vuppu Sidaramayya v. Gopala Krishnamma, 43 M. 57: 37 M. L. J. 216: 53 I. C. 257; Sahdeo Pandey v. Ghasiram, 21 C. 19. See also Gopal Chunder v. Gunomani, 20 C. 370; and Erava v. Sidramappa, 21 B. 424. But see Parash Ram v. Balmukund, 32 B. 572; and Ramjas v. Sheo Prasad, 23 A. 193. Omission to issue notice under Or. XXI, r. 22 renders the sale void but irregularity in service of notice is not a material irregularity.—Babu Das v.

Mir Mahamad Yusuf, 1921 P. 181: 61 I. C. 823. An omission to serve a notice under Or. XXI, r. 22, is by itself sufficient to render the sale void for want of jurisdiction, for the notice is the very foundation of jurisdiction.—Ram Kinkar v. Sthiti Ram, 27 C. L. J. 529. Want of service of notice under Or. XXI, r. 22 is a good ground for granting an application under this rule and S. 47 to have the sale set aside.—Satish Chandra v. Pabna Dhana Bhandar, 125 I. C. 655: 51 C. L. J. 197. A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 348; Chandi Prasad v. Mt. Jumna, A. I. R. 1928 All. 74.

The mere absence of a notice to a judgment-debtor of the intended sale of his property is not a material irregularity in publishing the sale, sufficient to justify by itself the setting aside of the sale.—Mahpal Bahadur v. Rambahadur, 52 I. C. 167.

Notice of sale need not be given to a receiver who is not in possession of the property sold, and a sale therefore without notice to him is not irregular.—Maung Ohn Tin v. Chettyar Firm, 7 R. 425: A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 311.

Omission to issue notice under Or. XXI, r. 66, is an irregularity within r. 90.—Jaggannath v. Daud, 4 L. 243: 75 I. C. 103: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 592; Tukaram v. Sakharama, 25 N. L. R. 58. 118 I. C. 49: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 130.

During the suit the son was represented by his father as guardian. At the time of execution the son became a major but that was not brought to the notice of the Court. Notice under Or. XXI, r. 32 was served on the father but not on the son. Held, that there was nothing contrary to law in that separate notice of the execution petition was not initially issued to the son under r. 22, though he was a major, and that he having waived the issue of it, if it was necessary, cannot be heard to say that its absence is an illegality so as to vitiate the sale; Ramanathan v. Ramanathan, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 275 (1917) M. W. N. relied on; 39 M. 1031 and 51 M. 768 referred to).

(d) Omission to state in the sale-proclamation the amount of rent or revenue payable in respect of the property to be sold.—Omission to state in the sale-proclamation the amount of rent payable in respect of a tenure is not a material irregularity within the meaning of this section (rule).—Mahendro Coomar v. Heera Mohun, 7 C. 723. Nor an omission to state the real rent which was higher than that stated in the sale-proclamation.—Muhammad Mukarram v. Nanak Chand, 122 I. C. 234: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 692.

Where a revenue-paying land is advertised for sale, non-statement of the revenue assessed upon it, as required by the provisions of Or. XXI, rr. 68 and 70 is an irregularity; but a sale cannot be set aside on account of such irregularity without proof of substantial damage.—Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad, 9 C. 656 (P. C.): 11 C. L. R. 494 (reversing 9 C. L. R. 134).

Although inadequacy of price is no ground for refusing to confirm a sale, yet any error in the sale-notification in specifying the amount of Government revenue of the property sold is an irregularity, for which, on proof of substantial injury, a sale is liable to be set aside.—Giridhari Singh v. Hurdeo Narain, 3 I. A. 230: 26 W. R. 44 (P. C.) (affirming 19 W. R. 227). See also Madarsah v. Palaniappa, 23 M. 623; Bali Ram v. Narasingdas, 28 C. W. N. 593 : 75 I. C. 546 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 93 : 45 M. L. J. 403.

(e) Other errors, omissions and mis-statements in the sale-proclamation.—An omission to state in the sale-proclamation the precise amount of claims received from other decree-holders, subsequently to the order directing the sale, can scarcely be called an irregularity at all.—Mohamed Ali v Mahabir Prasad, 35 I. C. 411.

The mistake in the dimensions of the property as stated in the sale-proclamation, is a material irregularity, but this by itself is not sufficient to set aside the sale. It must be held further that there has been substantial injury to the judgment-debtor by reason of this irregularity; Kishundas v. Narain Dutt, 96 I. C. 196 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 587.

Where in a proclamation of sale the area of the land was stated to be 144 acres, whereas it was 440 acres and its value as Rs. 20,000 when in fact it was worth about two lakhs of rupees : held that the sale was vitiated by material irregularity and should be set aside.—Smith v. Gokul, 11 P. 424.

It is not for every omission that a sale is liable to be set aside. To render a sale liable to be set aside, it must be shown that the omission was a material one.—Promatha v. Bejoy Madhab, 53 I. C. 148.

In a sale of immoveable property the sale-proclamation notified that the decree-holder held two charges on the property, aggregating about Rs. 1,000. There was, in fact, one charge only amounting to Rs 800. Held that the error in the sale-proclamation amounted to such an irregularity in publishing the sale as must have materially affected the price, and that the sale must therefore be set aside.—Kanji Mal v. Bibi Sailo, 8 A. 116.

A misdescription of property in the sale-proclamation brings a case for setting aside a sale held under the Public Demands Recovery Act within the rule laid down in 14 C 9 —Ram Taruk v. Mosahebali Khan, 6 C. W. N. 246. See also Ram Tarack v. Dilwar Ali, 5 C. W. N. 521 (F. B).

The omission in a sale-proclamation to mention particulars as to the numbers, value, etc., of Government Promissory notes under attachment for sale, is not such an irregularity as would vitiate the sale.—Luchmeeput v. Lekraj Roy, 8 W. R. 415.

There is no provision in the C. P. Code in making it necessary to mention the income of the property in the proclamation of sale and failure to do so does not amount to a material irregularity in conducting or publishing the sale.—Mahna Singh v. Salig Singh, 110 I. C. 339 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 918.

Where the Court had acted wrongly in overlooking the rules laid down for the preparation of the sale-proclamation, the sale should be set aside.—Ram Prasad v. Shiva Kumar, 133 I. C. 529 : 29 A. L. J. 849.

(f) Mis-statement of the value of the property in the sale-proclamation.—The absence from the sale-proclamation of a valuation of the property to be sold, if it had not a different effect on the mind of intending or possible bidders, is not a material irregularity.—Mahomed Ali v. Mahabir Prasad, 35 I. C. 411. See also Riparudan v. Nanku, 109 I. C. 443 : A. I. B. 1923 Nag. 281; Veeramanni v. Kalyanasundaram, 106 I. C. 201 : A. I. B. 1927 Mad. 1093; Maharaj Bahadur v. Sachindra, 32 C. W. N. 303 : A. I. B. 1923 Cal. 323; Mt. Sukrani v. Krishna Prasad, 105 I. C. 153 : A. I. B. 1923 Pat. 108; Rup Eshore v. Collector of Etah, 52 A. 115 : 120 I. C. 545 : 27 A. L. J. 1223 : A. I. B. 1923 All. 948; Daulat v. Bahari, 53 C. 813 : 53 C. L. J. 575 : 35 C. W. N. 75 : A. I. B. 1931 Cal. 490 : 131 I. C. 853.

The Privy Council has held that the exact value of the property of which the sale has been ordered in execution of a decree must be stated in the sale-proclamation and an under-statement of the value of property in the sale-proclamation is a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale.—Sadarand Khan v. Phul Kaur, 25 L.A. 145 : 20 A. 412 (P.C.) : 2 C.W.N. 550 (relied upon in Baiat Ramessar Proshad v. Bai Saram Kisser, 8 C. W. N. 257 and Moti Lal v. Bhawani Kumari, 6 C. W. N. 836; distinguished in Kashi Pershad v. Jamuna Pershad, 31 C. 922 : 8 C. W. N. 264; followed in Sit Sami Naicker v. Ratnasami Naicker, 23 M. 563).

This Privy Council decision was overlooked in Abdul Kasher v. Benode Lal, 12 C. W. N. 757 in which it has been held that the statement in the sale-proclamation of a value which proves to be inadequate is an irregularity, but not a material irregularity, as such statements are made without much consideration and it is well-known that purchasers do not take serious notice of any statement in the sale-proclamation as to the value of the property to be sold (dissented from in Siradarya v. Rajmohan, 15 C. W. N. 577; Kabilanund v. Pirthi Chand, 16 C. W. N. 701 and Pran Singh v. Janardan, 14 C. L. J. 541).

Where the decree-holder knowingly made a mis-statement of the value of the property in the sale proclamation and the judgment-debtor suffered substantial injury thereby, there was a material irregularity within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 90 and the sale should be set aside.—Parash Nath v. Hari Charan, 52 I. C. 23. When the gross under-valuation of properties in the sale-proclamation had the effect of deterring intending purchasers from bidding at the sale and offering a reasonable value, the sale should be set aside.—Ambika v. Manikganj Loan Office, 33 C. W. N. 848 : A. I. B. 1929 Cal. 818.

Omission to mention the valuation of the property according to the judgment-debtor and omission to give the judgment-debtor a proper opportunity to state his valuation if it result in apparent loss to the judgment-debtor, is a material irregularity in publication or conduct of sale.—Allauddin v. Monoranjan, 51 C. L. J. 336 : 127 I. C. 254 : A. I. B. 1930 Cal. 511.

The absence of specification in the sale-proclamation of the encumbrances to which the property advertised for sale is subject, coupled with the mis-statement of its value, amounts to a material irregularity within the meaning of this section.—Moti Lal v. Bhawani Kumari, noted ante.

A judgment-debtor is not precluded from raising the question of valuation in an enquiry under r. 90 simply because the question had already been decided when the sale proclamation was settled.—Maharaj Bahadur v. P. C. Lal, A. I. B. 1923 Pat. 25 (the decision in Mahadeo Singh v. Dholi Singh, 2 P. 917 : A. I. B. 1924 Pat. 111 regarding valuation was held to be really obiter and not binding).

It is essential for a judgment-debtor, in order to succeed in an application under this rule to show that the inadequacy of the prices stated in the sale-proclamation was caused in consequence of the irregularity. It is not an irregularity to have stated two separate valuations in the proclamation, the decree-holder's valuation and the judgment-debtor's valuation.—Nand Kishwar v Kedar Nath, 40 I. C. 849 (2 P. L. J. 130 distinguished); Raghunath v. Hazari, 37 I. C. 872 (F. B.).

A sale is liable to be set aside on the ground of material irregularity when the price realised is very inadequate and the sale-proclamation understated the value of the property and omitted to state the amount due under a mortgage thereon.—Mahendra Nath v. Bipin Behary, 33 I. C. 946.

In ascertaining the value of the property, only the rents realizable from the tenants and not the abwabs that used to be realized from them should be taken into account.—Shosi Bhushan v. Ahmed Hossein, 17 C. W. N. 439.

Gross under-valuation of the property in the sale-proclamation coupled with insufficient description and insufficient proclamation of the property constitute material irregularity which vitiates the sale.—Chatturpatt Singh v. Surendra Nath, (1918) P 33 : 44 I. C. 412.

Where the Court omitted to fix a reserve price under r. 72-A and the property was sold for a lesser amount than the decree amount, the sale was set aside.—Mahomed Abdulla v. Sakharam, 54 B. 348 : 125 I. C. 908 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 290.

(g) Omission to make an order absolute.—An omission to make an order absolute for sale under S. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) is not a material irregularity for setting aside a sale held in execution of a mortgage-decree.—Phul Chand v. Nursingh Pershad, 28 C. 73 (18 C. 139 and 22 C. 931 referred to).

A sale held in contravention of S. 99 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882) is not a nullity, but an irregular and voidable sale. It can be avoided under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), before or after confirmation. But if the application is made after confirmation, the applicant must prove that owing to fraud or other reasons he was kept in ignorance of the sale.—Ashutosh v. Behary Lal, 35 C. 61 (F. B.) : 11 C. W. N. 1011 : 6 C. L. J. 320. See also Muthu v. Karuppan, 30 M. 313 : 17 M. L. J. 163 and Venkayya v. Surayya, 30 M. 362 : 17 M. L. J. 325.

(h) Omission to beat drum.—Omission to have a drum beaten as required by Or. XXI, rr. 54 and 57, was held to be a material irregularity so as to render a sale held in execution of a decree liable to be set aside.—Trimbak Rayji v. Nana, 10 B. 504 ; Nand Lal v. Tola Ram, 67 I. C. 752 ; Gopi Chand v. Benani, 1 L. L. J. 197.

(i) Postponement of sale and issue of fresh proclamation.—Where a sale is postponed, whether definitely or to a fixed date, it is necessary in the absence of an express arrangement between all the parties, that a fresh proclamation should be made, giving notice of the day to which the sale has been postponed ; omission to do so is a material irregularity ; Goopee Nath v. Roy Luchmeepul, 3 C. 542 : 1 C. L. R. 349 ; unless the proclamation has been waived; Bipin v. Jatindra, 37 C. 897: 6 I. C. 813; Rup Kishore v. Collector of Etah, 27 A. L. J. 1228: A. I. R. 1923 All. 948.

Where there is a series of short postponements each less than seven days but which, taken together in the aggregate, amount to more than seven days, a fresh proclamation of sale is necessary.—Jamini Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 44.

The property of a judgment-debtor was advertised for sale on a certain day. The proclamation set out particulars of the property, but subsequent to such proclamation a portion of the property was re-leased to a third party. Notwithstanding this fact no fresh proclamation was made, and the sale took place on the day originally fixed. Held that the omission to issue a fresh proclamation was a material irregularity.—Shib Prakash v. Sardar Doyal, 3 C. 544: 2 C. L. R. 260.

When a sale does not take place on the day fixed, an indefinite postponement cannot be regarded as an adjournment from day to day, and a fresh notice should fix another date for the sale, and where, in consequence of an indefinite postponement, an estate has been purchased at an inadequate price and specially by the judgment-creditor, the irregularity is one that has occasioned substantial injury, and justifies a setting aside of the sale.—Jhoomuck Chowdhry v. Radha Pershad, 25 W. R. 329.

Where a sale was adjourned to the next day but the sale officer did not record his reasons for the same and the proclamation did not give the prior incumbrance on the property, held, that there was material irregularity in conducting the sale; Gulal v. Raghubir, 30 A. L. J. 357: A. I. R. 1932 All. 369.

When the sale is postponed sine die, the omission to issue a fresh proclamation is not a material irregularity.—Pratap v. Kedarnath, 41 I. C. 68. But where the sale is postponed to a day certain, the omission to issue a fresh proclamation is a material irregularity, and the sale is voidable.—Collector, to whom under Or. XXI, r. 90, not apply, and it was adjourned sine die, but the same was continued the next day without any fresh proclamation, held, that there was a mere irregularity in procedure and that the sale was not vitiated.—Kamakhya v. Shyam Lal, 6 O. W. N. 226: 117 I. C. 471: A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 235.

An execution-sale which had been fixed for a certain date was put off to the corresponding day in the following month, on the application of the judgment-debtor, who consented that he would not object to any irregularities affecting the sale. A notification was also issued and was proclaimed only in a public place. After the sale, the judgment-debtor contended that he was entitled to have a fresh proclamation issued on the spot where the properties were situated. Held that he could not now object to it.—Hel Narain v. Gossain Luchmee Narain, 23 W. R. 256.

Where a sale was at first proclaimed for a certain date, but was twice postponed on the application of the judgment-debtor, who consented to waive the making of a fresh proclamation: held that a waiver by the judgment debtor of a fresh proclamation does not necessarily prevent another attaching decree-holder from objecting to the sale on the ground of irregularity. Refusal by the Court to issue a fresh proclamation, if applied for would constitute a ground on which the irregularity of the sale might be impeached.—Chakrapani v. Dhanji Sethu, 24 M. 311.

(j) Effect of irregularity in publishing or conducting sale.—The words “publishing or conducting” the sale have been explained in Parashram v. Balmukund, 32 B. 572 : 10 Bom. L. R. 752.

Where property not covered by the decree has been proclaimed and sold, the case is one of “material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale” within the meaning of this rule.—Imtiazunnissa v. Chuttan Lal, 84 I. C. 746 : A. I. R. 1925 All. 236 : 22 A. L. J. 1119 ; Piari Lal v. Kishen Lal, 110 I. C. 876 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 704. But see Ganga Devi v. Ram Prasad, 88 I. C. 393 : A. I. R. 1925 All. 551 : 23 A. L. J. 558. So also is an irregular preparation of the proclamation of sale ; Jaggannath v. Daud, 4 L. 243 : 75 I. C. 103 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 592.

The expression “conducting the sale” refers only to the action of the officer who makes the sale. Anything done antecedent to the order of sale has nothing to do with conducting the sale ; Ramchaitar v. Bechu, 7 A. 641, 645.

The omission to affix sale-proclamation on a conspicuous part of the Court-house, is a material irregularity which vitiates the sale ; Laxminarayan v. Purnabai, 48 I. C. 611.

When distinct properties are proclaimed for sale in one execution, the omission to affix a copy of the proclamation on each of such properties amounts to an irregularity in the publication of the sale.—Tripura Sundari v. Durga Charan, 11 C. 74. See, however, Pedro Antonio v. Jalbhoy Ardeshir, 12 B. 368, where it has been held that where property intended to be sold in execution of a decree is divided into a number of small lots, as a means of obtaining a better aggregate price, the law does not require that a separate proclamation of sale should be made on each lot into which the property is so divided because a mere breaking up of a property into a number of lots as a means of obtaining a better aggregate price, does not necessarily make it several properties for the purposes of a proclamation of attachment or sale. See also Sami Pillai v. Krishna Sami, 21 M. 417. See also Maharaj Bahadur v. P. C. Lal, A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 25, in which it has been held that where several mouzas are put up for sale in execution of a decree, the law does not require that the publication should be made in every mouza (distinguishing Krishna Prasad v. Moti Chand, 40 I. A. 140 : 40 C. 635 (P. C.) on the ground that in that case the execution Court in terms directed that the sale-proclamation should be served in every mouza and as there was a gross contravention of the order of the Court, the Privy Council held that the sale was bad, but there was no justification for the contention that in every mouza comprising an estate or a tenure, a separate proclamation is to be served).

Under Or. XXI, rr. 54 and 67, it is necessary that a copy of the sale-proclamation should be affixed to some conspicuous place of the property attached ; and the omission to do so is a material irregularity within the meaning of this rule.—Kalyata v. Ram Coomar, 7 C. 466 : 9 C. L. R. 114. Where the sale-proclamation was affixed on a tree at some distance from the property to be sold and not on the property itself, held, that the omission is a material irregularity.—Rup Kishore v. Collector of Etah, 52 A. 115 : 120 I. C. 545 : A. I. R. 1920 All. 948 : 27 A. L. J. 1228.

Where a sale-proclamation as framed by the Court was not published ; held that the sale was a nullity.—Jayarama v. Vridhagiri, 44 M. 35 : 59 I. C. 167 : 39 M. L. J. 188.

A sale of revenue-paying land is not ipso facto void by reason of a copy of the sale-proclamation not having been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by S. 289, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or. XXI, r. 67). An omission to fix up such notice is an irregularity, the remedy for which can only be by an application under this section.—Nana Kumar v. Golam Chunder, 18 C. 422 (F. B.).

Where it appeared that the Court had accepted the report of the Nazir and the Court peon as evidence of the publication of the sale-proclamation and had refused to allow the judgment-debtor to give evidence of its insufficiency, held that Court was bound to hear the evidence tendered by the judgment-debtor.—Megh Lall v. Shub Pershad, 7 C. 34 : 8 C. L. R. 369.

Upon an application to set aside a sale, on the ground of material irregularity, it appeared that the sale notification had not been fixed up in the Collector's office as required by S. 289, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or XXI, r 67), and that the sale took place on and not after the 30th day from the publication of notice ; but it also appeared that the applicant had himself been present at the sale, and had purchased the property and it was not shown that any substantial injury had resulted from the irregularities. Held that there was no ground for setting aside the sale.—Bandy Ali v. Madhub Chunder, 8 C. 932.

A decree-holder who was granted permission to bid on condition that he would not be permitted to bid for any amount below the decretal amount, bid for one item of the property for certain amount, undertaking to make up the deficiency at the time some other item was sold and the sale-officer refused to accept the bid, held, that the sale-officer's refusal to accept the bid was a material irregularity.—Aditya v. Jagdish, 4 Luck. 93 : 5 O. W. N. 873 : 115 I. C. 105 : A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 26.

Selling only half the house when the sale-proclamation was for the whole of the house amounts to a material irregularity in the conduct of the sale.—Chhotey Lal v. Nawal Kishore, A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 15.

The failure on the part of the sale-officer to follow the order in the list of sales to be held does not amount to a material irregularity.—Inamullah v. Shambhu, 29 A L J. 62 : 180 I. C. 435 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 159.

The auction-purchaser is not entitled to have the sale set aside on the ground of any mis-apprehension or mistake on his part when he is not misled by anything done or said by the sale-officer. A unilateral mistake cannot avoid a contract. A sale cannot be set aside on the mere ground that the auction-purchaser thought that the amount for which the property was knocked down included also the mortgage money charged on the property.—Sridat v Mohar Singh, 30 A L J. 393 : A I. R 1932 All. 403.

(k) Sale of immoveable property in execution before expiry of 30 days.—It is a material irregularity for the proclamation to be published less than 30 days prior to a sale in execution of a decree, and where damage has resulted the sale may be set aside.—Abdul Nossia v. Doolal Doss, 11 C. L. R. 303; Megh Lall v. Shib Pershad, 7 C. 34; 8 C. L. R. 369. Contra in Ram Chandar v. Kamta Prasad, 4 A. 300; Venkata v. Sama, 14 M. 227; Laxminarayan v. Purnabai, 48 I. C. 611.

Holding a sale of immoveable property before the expiration of 30 days from the date of fixing up the copy of proclamation under r. 68, is an irregularity in publishing a sale, and is something more than a material irregularity in publishing a sale to which this refers.—Bakhshi Nand Kishore v. Malak Chund, 7 A. 289; Jasoda v. Mathura, 9 A. 511; Sadhu Saran v. Panchdeo Lal, 14 C. 1; Ganga Prasad v. Jaglal, 11 A. 33; Basharatulla v. Uma Churn, 16 C. 794; Tasadduk v. Ahmad Husain, 20 I. A. 176; 21 C. 66 (P. C.); Raja Wazir v. Bhikhari Ram, 2 P. 207; 68 I. C. 363; A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 45.

An application made on the day of sale by the judgment-debtor, that a part only of his property may be sold instead of the entirety, cannot be considered such a "consent," as, by virtue of Or. XXI, r. 68, would do away with the necessity of a proclamation for sale being issued thirty days before the day fixed for sale.—Harburns Sahai v. Bhairo Pershad, 5 C. 259; 4 C. L. R. 23, and Bhekraj Koeri v. Gendh Lall, 5 C. 878.

As to the effect of misrepresentation by the auctioneer while conducting the sale, see Kala Mea v. Harperink, 36 C. 323 (P. C.); 13 C. W. N. 249; 9 C. L. J. 165.

(1) Effect of omission to hold sales at the stated time and place.—A sale by public auction in execution of a decree which is conducted at a time and place other than those properly notified, is not a sale at all within the meaning of the C. P. Code. The time to be notified for a sale must be the time of the commencement of the sale, in order that all intending purchasers may be enabled to be present during the whole of the proceedings.—Chedam Lal v. Amir Beg, 7 A. 676; Khodeja Bibee v. Ram Narain, 12 W. R. 511; Pokhray Singh v. Gossain Munraj Pooree, 12 W. R. 281.

A property advertised for sale under r. 66 was sold on the day fixed but at an earlier hour than that stated in the proclamation. Held that there had been no sale within the meaning of the Code—proclamation of time and place of sale and the holding of sale at such time and place, being conditions precedent to the sale being a sale under the Code.—Basharatulla v. Uma Churn, 16 C. 794. See also Babu Ram v. Inamullah, 49 A. 402; 99 I. C. 926. A. I. R. 1927 All 241; 25 A. L. J. 302.

Where a sale is adjourned under S. 291, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 69), it is necessary to mention the hour of sale and its non-specification is a material irregularity within the meaning of this rule.—Bhikari Misra v. Rani Surjmoni, 6 C. W. N. 48. See also Mahabir Pershad v. Dhanukdhari, 31 C. 815 (818); 8 C. W. N. 686 (affirmed in 34 C. 709 (P. C.)); 11 C. W. N. 739).

Where a sale was held neither on the day originally advertised nor on the day to which it had been adjourned but on a third day, held, it was a material irregularity in the conduct of sale.—Hari Sadhan v. Shib Gopal, 35 C. L. J. 140.

Where property was sold at an inadequate price owing to the hour of sale not being fixed as required by r. 69,—held that there had been a material irregularity causing substantial injury to the judgment-debtor.—Surnomoyee v. Dakhina Ranjan, 24 C. 291 (followed in Jamini Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 44).

It is the practice of the Courts under the rules of the High Court, to place all properties intended for sale on a list and to proceed with the sales from day to day, commencing on an appointed day. As each property is taken up in its turn, an adjournment of the sale of a particular property, which is the consequence of such procedure, is not an adjournment within the meaning of S. 291, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 69).—Lal Mohun v. Nunu Mohamed, 17 C. 152.

Where a sale is held at a place different from that specified in the proclamation, the case is not merely one of material irregularity but the sale is void altogether; Jayrama v. Virdhagiri, 44 M. 35: 59 I. C. 167: 39 M. L. J. 188.

(m) Effect of purchase by decree-holder without permission under Or. XXI, r. 72.—A sale at which the decree-holder himself, or some other person for him, without the permission of the Court first obtained, becomes the purchaser, is not ipso facto void; it is a good sale unless and until set aside by the Court under the provisions of S. 292, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 73).—Javherbai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575 (followed in Chintamanrao v. Vithabai, 11 B 588). See also In the matter of Veerappa Chetty, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 37: 14 W. R. 405. But in Rukhinee Bullubh v. Brojo Nath, 5 C. 308, it has been held that a decree-holder is absolutely bound to have express permission from the Court before he can purchase the property; and whether this objection is taken and pressed or otherwise, a sale to him is invalid.

When liberty is given to a decree-holder to bid at the sale of the judgment-debtor's property, he is bound to exercise the most scrupulous fairness in purchasing the property, and if he or his agent dissuades others from purchasing at the sale, that of itself is a sufficient ground why the purchase should be set aside.—Woopendronath v. Brojendro Nath, 7 C. 346: 9 C. L. R. 263 (disapproved in Mahomed Mira Ravuthar v. Savvasi Vijaya, 23 M. 227 (P. O.): 4 C. W. N. 288, where it has been held that any dissuasion by a bidder at a judicial sale of other persons from bidding does not of itself amount to a charge of fraud and will not invalidate the sale).

Under the terms of S. 294, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 72), it is discretionary with the High Court to set aside a sale at which a decree-holder had bid and purchased without permission of the Court; and in dealing with such a case, the Court, although considering the matter as an irregularity in the conduct of the sale, will not interfere with the sale, unless, it can be shown that the judgment-debtor has suffered some substantial injury arising from such irregularity.—Mathura Das v. Nathuni Lal, 11 C. 731.

A mortgagee decree-holder was refused leave to bid at the sale in execution of his mortgage decree, but notwithstanding such refusal, he purchased the property in the name of a third person. Possession under the sale was opposed, and the decree-holder as purchaser brought a suit for possession. Held that the plaintiff had been guilty of an abuse of the process of the Court has resulted the sale may be set aside.—Abdul Nossia v. Doolal Doss, 11 C. L. R. 303; Megh Lall v. Shib Pershad, 7 C. 34 : 8 C. L. R. 369. Contra in Ram Chandar v. Kamta Prasad, 4 A. 300; Venkata v. Sama, 14 M. 227; Laxminarayan v. Purnabai, 48 I. C. 611.

Holding a sale of immoveable property before the expiration of 30 days from the date of fixing up the copy of proclamation under r. 68, is an irregularity in publishing a sale, and is something more than a material irregularity in publishing a sale to which this refers.—Bakhshi Nand Kishore v. Malak Chund, 7 A. 289; Jasoda v. Mathura, 9 A. 511; Sadhu Saran v. Panchdeo Lal, 14 C. 1, Ganga Prasad v. Jaglal, 11 A. 33; Basharatulla v. Uma Churn, 16 C. 794; Tasadduk v. Ahmad Husain, 20 I. A. 176 : 21 C. 66 (P. O.); Raja Wazir v. Bhikhari Ram, 2 P. 207 : 68 I. C. 363 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 45.

An application made on the day of sale by the judgment-debtor, that a part only of his property may be sold instead of the entirety, cannot be considered such a "consent," as, by virtue of Or. XXI, r. 68, would do away with the necessity of a proclamation for sale being issued thirty days before the day fixed for sale.—Harbuns Sahai v. Bhairo Pershad, 5 C. 259 : 4 C. L. R. 23, and Bhekraj Koeri v. Gendh Lall, 5 C. 878.

As to the effect of misrepresentation by the auctioneer while conducting the sale, see Kala Mea v. Harperink, 36 C. 323 (P. C.) : 13 C. W. N. 249 : 9 C. L. J. 165.

(1) Effect of omission to hold sales at the stated time and place.—A sale by public auction in execution of a decree which is conducted at a time and place other than those properly notified, is not a sale at all within the meaning of the C. P. Code. The time to be notified for a sale must be the time of the commencement of the sale, in order that all intending purchasers may be enabled to be present during the whole of the proceedings.—Chedami Lal v. Amur Beg, 7 A. 676; Khodeja Bibee v. Ram Narain, 12 W. R. 511; Pokhray Singh v. Gossain Munraj Pooree, 12 W. R. 281.

A property advertised for sale under r. 66 was sold on the day fixed but at an earlier hour than that stated in the proclamation. Held that there had been no sale within the meaning of the Code—proclamation of time and place of sale and the holding of sale at such time and place, being conditions precedent to the sale being a sale under the Code.—Basharatulla v. Uma Churn, 16 C. 794. See also Babu Ram v. Inamullah, 49 A. 402 : 99 I. C. 926 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 241 : 25 A. L. J. 302.

Where a sale is adjourned under S. 291, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 69), it is necessary to mention the hour of sale and its non-specification is a material irregularity within the meaning of this rule.—Bhikari Misra v. Rani Surjamoni, 6 C. W. N. 48. See also Mahabir Pershad v. Dhanukdhari, 31 C. 815 (818) : 8 C. W. N. 686 (affirmed in 34 C. 709 (P. O.) : 11 C. W. N. 739).

Where a sale was held neither on the day the day to which it had been adjourned but material irregularity in the conduct of sale.—H C. L. J. 140.

Where property was sold at an inadequate price owing to the hour of sale not being fixed as required by r. 69,—held that there had been a material irregularity causing substantial injury to the judgment-debtor.—Surnomoyee v. Dakhina Ranjan, 24 C. 291 (followed in Jamini Mohan v. Chandra Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 44).

It is the practice of the Courts under the rules of the High Court, to place all properties intended for sale on a list and to proceed with the sales from day to day, commencing on an appointed day. As each property is taken up in its turn, an adjournment of the sale of a particular property, which is the consequence of such procedure, is not an adjournment within the meaning of S. 291, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 69)—Ial Mohun v. Nunu Mohamed, 17 C. 152.

Where a sale is held at a place different from that specified in the proclamation, the case is not merely one of material irregularity but the sale is void altogether; Jayrama v. Virbhagiri, 44 M. 35 : 59 I. C. 167 : 39 M. L. J. 188.

(m) Effect of purchase by decree-holder without permission under Or. XXI, r. 72.—A sale at which the decree-holder himself, or some other person for him, without the permission of the Court first obtained, becomes the purchaser, is not ipso facto void; it is a good sale unless and until set aside by the Court under the provisions of S. 292, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 73).—Jacherbai v. Haribhai, 5 B. 575 (followed in Chintamanrao v. Vithabai, 11 B 598) See also In the matter of Veerappa Chetty, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 37 : 14 W. R. 405. But in Rukhinee Bullubh v. Brojo Nath, 5 C. 308, it has been held that a decree-holder is absolutely bound to have express permission from the Court before he can purchase the property; and whether this objection is taken and pressed or otherwise, a sale to him is invalid.

When liberty is given to a decree-holder to bid at the sale of the judgment-debtor's property, he is bound to exercise the most scrupulous fairness in purchasing the property, and if he or his agent dissuades others from purchasing at the sale, that of itself is a sufficient ground why the purchase should be set aside.—Woopendronath v. Brojendra Nath, 7 C. 346 : 9 C. L. R. 263 (disapproved in Mahomed Mira Ravuthar v. Sarvasi Vijaya, 23 M. 227 (P. C.) : 4 C. W. N. 289, where it has been held that any dissuasion by a bidder at a judicial sale of other persons from bidding does not of itself amount to a charge of fraud and will not invalidate the sale)

Under the terms of S. 294, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 72), it is discretionary with the High Court to set aside a sale at which a decree-holder had bid and purchased without permission of the Court; and in dealing with such a case, the Court, although considering the matter as an irregularity in the conduct of the sale, will not interfere with the sale, unless, it can be shown that the judgment-debtor has suffered some substantial injury arising from such irregularity.—Mathura Das v. Nathuni Lall, 11 C. 731.

A mortgagee decree-holder was refused leave to bid at the sale in execution of his mortgage decree, but notwithstanding such refusal, he purchased the property in the name of a third person. Possession under the sale was opposed, and the decree-holder as purchaser brought a suit for possession. Held that the plaintiff had been guilty of an abuse of the process of the Court in bidding at the sale and buying the property benami, and that the sale, therefore, ought not to be enforced.—Mahomed Gazee v. Ram Lall, 10 C. 757.

A purchase by the son of a decree-holder, undivided in interest from his father, is a purchase by the decree-holder within the meaning of S. 294, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 72), and is absolutely void if the purchase were made with funds which were joint-property of the father and son.—Narayan Deshpande v. Anaji Deshpande, 5 B. 130.

An assignee of a decree under an oral agreement has no locus standi to apply for the execution of the decree, and it is not necessary for him to obtain leave to bid at the sale in execution of a decree. Therefore a purchase by such an assignee without leave under S. 294, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 72) is not a material irregularity within the meaning of this section.—Dakshina Mohan v. Srimati Basumati, 4 C. W. N. 474.

A person declared to be the purchaser of property put up for sale did not, as required by Or. XXI, r. 84, pay a deposit of 25 per cent., immediately after such declaration, but on a date subsequent to the date on which the property was put up for sale. Held that there was no sale at all of the property.—Intizam Ali v. Narain Singh, 5 A. 316; Amir Begam v. Bank of Upper India, 30 A. 273 : 5 A. L. J. 336; Ahmad Bakhsh v. Lalta Prasad, 28 A. 238.

(n) Default in making the deposit of 25 per cent. under Or. XXI, r. 84.—When a deposit is not duly made, the sale is liable to be set aside; but when a question arises as to whether a deposit was duly made or not, the Court is bound to inquire into and decide the question.—Kuppayyan v. Ramasami Ayyan, 6 M. 197.

At a sale in execution the property was knocked down to a bidder at Rs. 260, and on account of his inability to make a deposit, the property was re-sold for Rs. 50. Held that the judgment-debtor had sustained such substantial injury as would justify the Court in setting aside the sale, notwithstanding that the judgment-debtor might have recovered the deficiency of the price under S. 293, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 71).—Beepin Chunder v. Purresh Nath, 9 C. 98 : 12 C. L. R. 316.

Failure of the auction-purchaser to make, and of the officer conducting the sale to receive, the deposit of 25 per cent., as required by Or. XXI, r. 84, constitutes a material irregularity in conducting the sale.—Bhim Singh v. Sarwan Singh, 16 C. 33 (5 A. 316 dissented from). In Venkata v. Sama, 14 M. 217, it has been held that any delay in making the deposit required by S. 306, is not more than a mere irregularity and does not vitiate the sale.

(o) Effect of mere inadequacy of price.—Inadequacy of price is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale, unless it be the effect of an irregularity in the sale-proceedings.—Reet Bhunjun v. Necturjeet, 6 W. R. Mis. 31; Nuddea Kishore v. Bungshee Mohun, 17 W. R. 210; Hubeebool v. Allender, 14 W. R. 44; Almoooddy v. Chunder Nath, 24 W. R. 227; Khodeja Bibee v. Johad Roheen, 14 W. R. 320.

An execution-sale cannot be set aside on the ground of material irregularity under Or. XXI, r. 90, if there is nothing to warrant the necessary or at least reasonable inference that the inadequacy of the price was the result of the irregularity.—Taimuddi Bepari v. Lakpat Bepari, 45 I. C. 212; Mahna Sing v. Salig Ram, 110 I. C. 339: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 918; Ramaswami v. Rama Nathan, 107 I. C. 295: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 684.

The sale of immoveable property to the highest bidder for a price which subsequently appears to be too low, is not a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, and a sale cannot be set aside on that ground.—Lakshmi v. Krishnabhat, 8 B. 424.

Although inadequacy of price is no ground for refusing to confirm a sale, yet an error in the same notification, in specifying the amount of the Government revenue of the property sold, is an irregularity for which, on proof of substantial injury, a sale is liable to be set aside.—Girdhari Singh v. Hurdeo Narain, 3 I. A. 230: 26 W. R. 44 (P. C.) (affirming 19 W. R. 227).

Where a material irregularity is proved and it is also shown that the price realized was much below the true value, it may ordinarily be inferred that the low price was in consequence of the irregularity.—Venkata Subbaraya v. Zemindar of Karvetinagar, 20 M. 159.

(p) Proof of material irregularity and substantial injury.—If it is proved that the price obtained for property sold is greatly inadequate, and if it is also proved that there has been a material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale, the Court will presume that the irregularity was the cause of the inadequacy of price, until proof is given to the contrary.—Kalytara v. Ram Coomar, 7 C. 466: 9 C. L. R. 114 (3 C. 542 approved). In Gur Buksh Lall v. Jawahir Singh, 20 C. 599, it has been held that the relative cause and effect between a proved material irregularity and inadequacy of price may either be established by direct evidence, or be inferred, when such inference is reasonable, from the nature of the irregularity and the extent of inadequacy of the price (9 C. 656 and 11 C. 200 referred to; followed in Sheo Rutton v. Net Loll, 30 C. 1: 6 C. W. N. 638 and in Moti Laul v. Bhawani Kumari, 6 C. W. N. 836). In Surnomoyee v. Dakhina Ranjan, 24 C. 291, it has been held that where there has been a material irregularity causing substantial injury to the debtor, it is sufficient under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 90), if the evidence, though not "direct evidence" shows that the injury was a necessary result of the irregularity complained of (20 I. A. 176: 21 C. 66 (P. C.) explained). In Venkata Subbaraya v. Zemindar of Karvetinagar, 20 M. 159, it has been held that where a material irregularity is proved, and it is also proved that the price realized is inadequate, it may ordinarily be inferred that the low price was a consequence of the irregularity even though the manner in which the irregularity produced the low price be not definitely made out. In Gopee Nath v. Roy Luchmeput, 3 C. 542: 1 C. L. R. 349, it has been held that where property has been sold at an inadequate price, the fair inference to draw in the case is that the inadequacy of the price was the result of the irregularity. In Lala Mobaruk Lal v. The Secretary of State, 11 C. 200 (F. B.) it has been held that no positive rule can be laid down, permitting an inference to be drawn in all cases, that the inadequacy of the price is due to the irregularity of the sale. In Prasanna v. The Secretary of State, 11 C. 200 (F. B.) it has been held (Or. XXI, r. 90), to set aside a sale, the applicant to show not only that there has been a material irregularity, but also that substantial injury had been sustained in consequence of such material irregularity; and in the absence of evidence it is not to be presumed from the proved existence of irregularity and injury that the latter occurred by reason of the former.—Tasadduk Rasul v. Ahmad Husain, 20 I. A. 176 : 21 C. 66 (P. C.); Satish Chunder v. Thomas, 11 C. 658 (9 C. 656 ; 11 C. 200, discussed); Bonomali v. Woornesh Chunder, 7 C. 730 : 9 C. L. R. 341 (3 C. 542 : 1 C. L. R. 349 considered); Jagan Nath v. Makund Prasad, 18 A. 37 (21 C. 66 referred to); Shirin Begam v. Agha Ali, 18 A. 141 (15 I. A. 171 and 20 I. A. 176 referred to); Arunachellam v. Arunachellam, 15 I. A. 171 : 12 M. 19 (P. C.); Macnaghten v. Mahabir Pershad, 9 C. 656 (P. C.) : 11 C. L. R. 494. (reversing 9 C. L. R. 134); Harbans Lal v. Kundan Lal, 21 A. 140. See also Mahabir Pershad v. Dhanukdhari, 31 C. 815 : 8 C. W. N. 686 Even under the old Code, that is under S. 256 of Act VIII of 1859, which corresponds with S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 90), it was held that where material irregularity had occurred as from non-issue of the sale-proclamation, the party applying to set aside a sale on that ground was bound to prove that he had sustained substantial injury thereby. See Joytara v. Mahomed Hossein, 2 W. R. Mis. 2; Abdool Mahomed v. Shib Doolaree, 11 W. R. 114, Leak Ram v. Mohesh Doss, 12 W. R. 488; Nujmooddeen Ahmed v. Abdool Azeez, 15 W. R. 95, Chunder Shekhar v. Jadub Chunder, 19 W. R. 78; Sanwul Singh v. Makhur Pandey, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 143 and Sheo Prokash v. Hurdai Narain, 22 W. R. 550. The leading case on the point is the Privy Council case of Tasadduk Rasul v. Ahmad Husain, 20 I. A. 176 : 21 C. 66 (P. C.)

Where the judgment-debtor did not until after the sale had been completed put forth the plea that he was an agriculturist, held, that the plea could not be allowed to be raised (15 I. A. 171 relied on).—Mahomed Abdulla v. Sakharam, 54 B. 348 : 125 I. C. 908 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 290.

The irregularities in complying with the requirements of Or. XXI, rr. 54, 66 and 68, coupled with gross under-value in the selling price are sufficient to have the sale set aside.—Yaknuddin v. Hazari, 11 L. L. J. 55 : 117 I. C. 231 A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 441.

The failure to give a direction for advertisement of the sale in the gazette does not amount to a material irregularity in the conduct of the sale within Or. XXI, r. 90. A judgment-debtor applying to set aside a sale must show not only that there has been material irregularity in the conduct of the sale but also that such irregularity has resulted in substantial injury to him.—Gopi Chand v. Benarsi Das, 53 I. C. 794.

Suppression of processes and inadequacy of price are quite enough to bring the cases within the rule.—Kusam Kumari v. Kutiswar, 93 I. C. 870 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 829 The proviso is satisfied if the judgment-debtors have sustained substantial injury by reason of the material irregularity, being deprived of their proper remedy and getting a low price in the sale.—Brij Kumar v. Jagdamba, A. I. R. 1929 All. 671; Baburam v. Inamullah, 49 A. 402 : 99 I. C. 926 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 241 : 25 A. L. J. 302.

The circumstance that the decree-holders offered to return the properties to the judgment-debtor at the prices for which they bought them but the offer was not accepted, may be taken into consideration in judging whether the judgment-debtor has really suffered any injury by the sale.—

(r) Effect of sale after the order of postponement.—When a Court executing a decree passes an order postponing a sale, but the sale takes place before such order reaches the officer conducting the sale: Held that the defect in the sale amounted to an illegality and not merely an irregularity within the meaning of this section (rule).—Sant Lal v. Umraounissa, 12 A. 96 (4 A. 382, 3 A. 701, and 11 A. 333 referred to). See also Maijha Singh v. Jhow Lal, 6 N. W. P. H. C. R. 354; Mainjan v. Man Singh, 3 A. 686; and Nonidh Singh v. Sohun Koor, 4 N. W. P. H. C. R. 135. See, however, Bessesswari v. Hurro Sundar, 1 C. W. N. 226, where it has been held that if a property is sold before the order of an appellate Court under S. 545, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 5), staying execution of decree, is communicated to the Court holding the sale, such a sale is not void and cannot be treated as a nullity (4 N. W. P. H. C. R. 398, 6 N. W. P. H. C. R. 354, and 2 A. 686 distinguished).

Where a sale in execution took place under an order obtained notwithstanding a consent, on the part of the decree-holder's pleader, to a petition by the judgment-debtor for postponement, the petition of postponement having been by mistake filed in the wrong Court, held that the judgment-debtor was entitled to have the sale set aside.—Ganga Pershad v. Gopal Singh, 11 I. A. 234 : 11 C. 136 (P. C.).

A sale held in spite of an issue of an injunction to stay the sale is invalid and ought to be set aside.—Ramanathan v. Arunachellam, 38 M. 766 : 22 I. C. 99.

(s) Effect of sale after attachment under Or. XXI, r. 53.—Where a Court in which an application for execution was pending received an order from another Court under S. 273, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 53), for attaching the decree and returned the order with an intimation that it did not contain information as to the amount of the decree and subsequently held the sale, held that the sale was invalid and that it was not a mere irregularity as the Court had no jurisdiction to hold the sale and that it should be accordingly set aside —Manik Lal v. Baamali, 32 C. 1104 : 3 C. L. J. 27 : 10 C. W. N. 193.

Fraud in publishing or conducting sale.—The present Code has altered the law in an important aspect in as much as an application based on fraud in publishing or conducting a sale comes within the purview of Or. XXI, r. 90 and not under S. 47.—Sheo Prasad v. Premna Kunwar, 40 A. 122 : 15 A. L. J. 920 : 43 I. C. 522.

The words "or fraud" have been added in the new Code after the word "irregularity". The effect of adding the words "or fraud" to the present rule is to transfer applications setting up fraud in publishing or conducting the sale from S. 47 to the present rule. The result is that no second appeal will now lie from an order made on such application, whether the order be one setting aside the sale or refusing to set aside the sale, for the order has no longer the force of a decree, not being one under S. 47 but one under r. 92 and only one appeal lies from an order made under r. 92 [Or. XLIII, r. 1 (g) and S. 104, sub-section (2)].—Sheo Prasad v. Premna Kunwar, 40 A. 122 : 15 A. L. J. 920 : 43 I. C. 522 ; Jagannath v. Daud, 4 L. 243 : 75 I. C. 103 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 592 ; Maula Bux v. Raghubar, 3 P. L. J. 645 : 48 I. C. 560. In the absence of the words "or fraud" under the old Code, it was held by all the High Courts that an application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud in publishing or conducting it, fell within the purview of S. 244 (now S. 47). The result was that under the old Code a second appeal lay from an order made on such application, because an order made under S. 47 has the force of a decree, and all decrees are open to second appeal, subject to the provisions of Ss. 100—102 ; Nemai Chand v. Denonath, 2 C. W. N. 691 ; Bhubon v. Nundalal, 26 C. 324. It seems, therefore, that the object of the Legislature, in requiring applications to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud in publishing or conducting the sale, to be made under the present rule instead of under S. 47, is to exclude the right of second appeal with a view to bring proceedings on such applications to a speedy termination.

The question as to how far an innocent purchaser for value without notice of fraud, irregularities or infirmities in the proceedings or decree would be affected, has been elaborately discussed by Mokerjee, J., in the case of Bireswar v. Panch Couri, 37 C. L. J. 145, where it has been held that judicial sales fraudulently procured will not give a good title to a purchaser even in a case in which he may not be guilty of fraud. See also Mahabir Ram v. Ram Bahadur, 72 I. C. 625 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 435; Jaqdeo v. Ujiyari, 108 I. C. 899 : 26 A. L. J. 412 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 354.

When circumstances affecting the validity of an execution-sale have been brought about by the fraud of one of the parties to the suit, and give rise to a question between those parties such as apart from fraud, would be within the provisions of S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), a suit will not lie to impeach the validity of the sale on the ground of such fraud.—Mohendro Narain v. Gopal Mondul, 17 C. 769 (F. B.) (11 C. 376. 5 M. 217; 6 B. 148 and 9 B. 468, approved. 14 C. 679 dissented from in part; followed in Shiva Pershad v. Nundo Lal, 18 C. 139; and in Jagannath v. Watson & Co., 19 C. 341). In Bhubon Mohun v. Nanda Lal, 26 C. 324 3 C. W. N. 399, it has been held that the Full Bench decision in 17 C. 769 (F. B.) has been in effect overruled by the decision of the Privy Council in Prosunno Kumar v. Kali Das, 19 C. 683 (P. C.), and further that an application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud would come under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), notwithstanding that the purchase was made by a person who was a third party. See also Nemai Chand v. Deno Nath, 2 C. W. N. 691. In Rajani Kant v. Hossainuddin, 4 C. W. N. 538, it has been held that where a judgment-debtor applies to set aside a sale, alleging circumstances which, if found in his favour, would amount to fraud on the part of the decree-holder or auction-purchaser, the case comes under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47) (19 C. 683, 24 C. 707 referred to). See also Kokil Singh v. Edal Singh, 31 C. 385. But in Uma Kanta v. Deno Nath, 28 C. 4 : 5 C. W. N. 124, it has been held that a mere allegation of fraud in a petition to set aside a sale without an attempt to prove it, is not sufficient to bring the case under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), but such a case comes under S. 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 90). In Luchmipat v. Mandil Koer, 3 C. W. N. 333, it has been held that if the application of the judgment-debtor be regarded as one under Or. XXI, r. 90, then it would be necessary to make the application within 30 days, but if it be regarded as one under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), then the period of limitation is 3 years.

A plaintiff having applied unsuccessfully under Ss. 103 and 311, C. P. Code, 1882, to set aside an ex parte decree and the sale of his property in execution thereof on the ground of fraud, brought a suit for the same relief. Held that the suit was maintainable and not barred by Ss. 13 and 244, C. P. Code, 1882.—Prannath v. Mohesh Chandra, 24 C. 546 (affirmed by the Privy Council in 28 C. 475 : 5 C. W. N. 757). See also Khagendra Nath v. Prannath, 29 C. 395 (P. C.) : 6 C. W. N. 473.

Where a decree-holder obtains leave to bid and enters into an agreement with another to dissuade others from purchasing, and at the sale adopts means of an innocent character to discourage bidding, held that such conduct does not amount to fraud and the purchaser (the decree-holder) did not go beyond the limits of what he was entitled to do in order to make a good bargain. Held also, that the omission of the decree-holder to disclose the agreement to the Court at the time of applying for leave to bid did not amount to a fraud.—Mahomed Mira Ravuthar v. Savvasi Vijaya, 23 M. 227 (P. C.): 4 C. W. N. 288 (reversing 19 M. 315 and disapproving of the passage in the judgment in 7 C 246: 9 C. L. R. 263, that "if the decree-holder or his agent dissuades others from purchasing at the sale, that of itself is a sufficient ground why the purchase should be set aside").

The purchaser at a sale by public auction succeeded, by the exercise of fraud and collusion with the agent of the execution-creditors, in becoming the purchaser at a depreciated value. There was no material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale. Held that the High Court had power under S. 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 115), to rescind the order made by the Court of first instance confirming the sale.—Sabhaji Rau v. Srinivasa Rau, 2 M. 264.

An adjustment was made out of Court between a decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, but it was not certified to the Court. The decree-holder falsely stated to the judgment-debtor's agent that the adjustment had been certified but nevertheless he proceeded with execution, applied for and obtained leave to bid at the Court-sale, and himself purchased the property. The judgment-debtor applied to set aside the sale. Held that the judgment-debtor was entitled to prove the adjustment and to have the sale set aside.—Ramayyar v. Ramayyar, 21 M. 356.

The purchase of a property at an execution-sale by the decree-holder in the name of another person at a price less than that at which the decree-holder obtained permission to bid for the said property, constitutes fraud which would vitiate the sale.—Srimati Sarat Kumari v. Nemai Charan, 5 C. W. N. 265 (10 C. 757 referred to).

In a suit to set aside a sale in execution of a decree, it appeared that the property was purchased by the decree-holder's pleader himself, although he obtained permission of the Court to bid for his client, and that he acted in an underhand manner towards his client. Held that the transaction was tainted with fraud and that the sale must be set aside.—Subbarayudu v. Kotayya, 15 M. 389.

Where it is alleged that a property not included in the decree has been published for sale, such fraud is one in publishing and conducting the sale which falls under this rule. Consequently a suit to set aside a sale on account of such fraud is not maintainable.—Piare Lal v. Kishan Lal, 110 I. C. 876: A. I. R. 1928 All. 704.

To bring a property to sale subject to a bogus mortgage is fraud in publishing the sale within the meaning of this rule.—Meenakshi v. Palaniappa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1138: 113 I. C. 873.

What amounts to waiver of irregularity by the judgment-debtor.—An application by a judgment-debtor for an adjournment of the sale without issue of fresh proclamation and beat of drum, does not amount to a waiver preventing him to apply to set aside the sale held on the day adjourned on the ground that proclamation of sale was not served on each of the properties and consequently the sale fetched a low value.—Preo Lall v. Radhika Prosad, 6 C. W. N. 42 (distinguished in Raja Thakur Barham v. Anant Ram, 2 C. L. J. 584).

Failure to publish the sale-proclamation is not an illegality vitiating the sale, but only an irregularity which can be waived by the judgment-debtor; Nripati v. Jatindra, 91 I. C. 407 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 577.

The fact that the judgment-debtor consents that the sale should be held without the issue of a fresh proclamation does not indicate that he waives the non-specification of the hour of the day to which the sale is adjourned, inasmuch as he has no control over the form of the order of the Court.—Bhikari Misra v. Rani Surjamoni, 6 C. W. N. 48 (24 C. 291 referred to).

A judgment-debtor got an execution-sale postponed on undertaking that he would not raise any objection on the ground of illegality or irregularity. After the sale took place on the postponed date he applied to set it aside on the ground of an illegality of which he was not cognizant at the time he gave the undertaking. Held that he was estopped from impeaching the sale.—Lakshmi Prasanna v. Rajindar Poddar, 47 I. C. 831.

The fact that the judgment-debtor, who petitions to have the sale in execution of the decree against him set aside on the ground of fraud and irregularity, has, in a petition made previous to the sale asking for its adjournment, made no mention of the irregularities relied on, does not create an estoppel.—Mahatap Deo v. Leelanund Singh, 7 C. 613 : 9 C. L. R. 398 (followed in Raman v. Kunhayan, 17 M. 304). See, however, Girdhari Singh v. Hurdeo Narain, 26 W. R. 44 (P. C.) 3 I. A. 230 (affirming 19 W. R. 227 ; followed in Raja Thakur Barham v. Anant Ram, 2 C. L. J. 584) See also Arunachalam v. Arunachalam, 15 I. A. 171 12 M. 19 ; Mohan Lal v. Kali Charan, 49 A. 788 : 102 I. C. 126 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 513 ; Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. Sachindra, 32 C. W. N. 309 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 328 : 113 I. C. 562 ; Maung Ohu Tin v. Chettyar Firm, 7 R. 425 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 311 ; Hardani v. Ram Nath, 27 A. L. J. 619 : 116 I. C. 448 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 704.

Where a sale was at first proclaimed for a certain date but was twice postponed on the application of the judgment-debtor who consented to waive the making of a fresh proclamation, held that a waiver by a judgment-debtor of a fresh proclamation after sale has been adjourned, does not necessarily prevent another attaching-creditor from objecting to a sale so held on that ground.—Chakrapani Chettiar v. Dhanji Sett, 24 M. 311.

Where a decree directed the sale of a property subject to a prior charge of a Bank who was a party to the suit, but the sale-proclamation did not specify the charge, and the Bank obtained permission to bid at the sale and had in fact bid at the sale and where the record showed that the Bank was a person bidding at an irregular sale is not estopped from challenging the regularity of the sale.—Ibid.

A judgment-debtor is not estopped from making the application under Or. XXI, r. 90 for setting aside the sale simply because he does not appear in obedience to the notice served upon him under Or. XXI, r. 66, for settling the terms of the proclamation (not following A. I. R. 1927 All. 513).—Madanlal v. Ripusudanprasad, 124 I. C. 250: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 191.

For the meaning of the word "waiver" and its effect, see Dhanukdhari v. Nathma, 11 C. W. N. 848: 6 C. L. J. 62; Manindra Chandra v. Secretary of State, 34 C. 257: 5 C. L. J. 148; and Ambika v. Whitwell, 6 C. L. J. 111, noted under S. 11.

Equitable estoppel—Agreement not to challenge validity of sale.—In an application under this section (rule) the judgment-debtor got time on condition of his paying up the decretal amount within a certain time and then he failed to pay the amount. Held that the judgment-debtor was bound by the agreement and that he was estopped from contesting the legality of the sale.—Uttam Chandra v. Khetra Nath, 29 C. 577 (8 C. 455 followed; followed in Harakh Singh v. Saheb Singh, 6 C. L. J. 176). Where time had previously been repeatedly granted by the decree-holder for compromise, and on the final date to which payment was adjourned the judgment-debtor prayed for further time and the decree-holder demanded it as a condition precedent to the grant of further time that the judgment-debtor should definitely agree that upon his failure to pay the money on the date to be fixed, his right to challenge the validity of the sale should finally cease, and such an arrangement was definitely sanctioned by the Court with the consent of all the parties. Held that the Court had no jurisdiction subsequently to vary the terms of the final agreement at the instance of the judgment-debtor in spite of the protest of the decree-holder (6 C. L. J. 176: 29 C. 577 referred to). Held, further, that an appeal need not be preferred against every interlocutory order in an execution proceeding (18 C. 461 followed).—Chandrabala v. Prabodh Chandra, 36 C. 422: 9 C. L. J. 251.

A judgment-debtor who might have raised an objection to a sale but who has refrained from doing so, and who might have appealed against the order for sale, has no right, after the sale has been carried out, to prefer an objection that the property sold was not legally saleable.—Umed v. Jasram, 29 A. 612: 4 A. L. J. 519 (26 C. 727, 7 A. 641 followed).

Sale of property in separate lots though advertised to be sold in a lump, and vice versa.—It is entirely within the discretion of the Court to direct that a property should be sold in portions, even though it had been attached or proclaimed as an entirety; and that the sale of the whole estate against the will of the judgment-debtor, when the sale of a portion would suffice, was an irregularity which caused material injury to the judgment-debtor.—Abdool Hye v. Macrae, 23 W. R. 1.

When property is advertised to be sold in separate lots, and is afterwards sold in a lump, this is an irregularity; but the person who wishes to set aside the sale on the ground of such irregularity, must show affirmatively that substantial damage has been sustained by him on account of such irregularity.—Roy Nandipat v. Urquhart, 4 B. L. R. A. C. 181: 13 W. R. 209 (reversing 12 W. R. 493); Ramaswami v. Ramanathan, 107 I. C. 295: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 684.

Combination among bidders not to bid against each other, when amounts to fraud.—A combination among certain purchasers not to bid against each other does not constitute any fraud or impropriety such as would have the effect of vitiating the sale.—Hari Balkrishna v. Nara Moreshwar, 18 B. 342; Doorga Singh v. Sheo Prasad, 16 C. 194; Mahomed Mira Ravuther v. Savvasi Vijaya, 23 M. 227 (P. C.); Satis Chandra v. Porter, 9 C. L. J. 244: 36 C. 226; Gobind v. Shyam Lal, 1 C. L. J. 85. See, however, Ambika Prasad v. Whitwell, 6 C. L. J. 111 (dissented from in Jyoti Prakash v. Jhoommull, 36 C. 134: 13 C. W. N. 87).

Application to set aside sale for arrears of rent.—The procedure to be followed upon the sale of an under-tenure is now that prescribed by the Civil Procedure Code. Section 311, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 90), does not apply only to sales made under Chapter XIX of the C. P. Code, 1882, and the sale of an under-tenure may be set aside upon any of the grounds mentioned in that section.—Azizoonnessa Khatoon v. Gora Chand, 7 C. 163: 8 C. L. R. 493.

A transferee of a permanent transferable tenure, who has not given notice of the transfer to the landlord, cannot bring a suit to set aside the sale of the tenure in execution of a rent-decree against the former tenant; his proper course is to satisfy the rent-decree, or to apply under this section (i.e., rule) and to appeal against the order rejecting his application to set aside the sale.—Pany Chunder v. Hur Chunder, 10 C. 496

If a judgment-debtor has made an application under this rule he is competent to apply under S. 174 of the B. T. Act, if he withdraws his former application.—Sital Rai v. Nanda Lal, 13 C. W. N. 591.

A civil suit lies for setting aside a sale held in enforcement of a certificate issued under the Public Demands Recovery Act (VII of 1880, B. C.) on the ground that the sale was vitiated by material irregularity leading to substantial injury.—Ram Tarack v. Dilwar Ali, 5 C. W. N. 521 (F. B.) (14 C. 1 and 23 C. 641, overruled; and 14 C. 9 referred to).

A decree-holder for rent of a fractional share stands in the position of ordinary creditors, having no lien on the tenure, and is only entitled to sell the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor; and consequently a rent-decree by a co-sharer landlord is not a decree under the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885.

Necessary parties to an application under this rule.—The decree-holder is a necessary party to an application under this rule. Hence where a judgment-debtor applied under this rule to have a sale in execution of a decree against him, holder until long after must be dismissed—under the old Code, there was a conflict of opinion whether he was a necessary party to an application for setting aside a sale under S. 311; Karamat Khan v. Mir Ali, 11 A. W. N. 121; Surendra Mohini v. Amares, 39 C. 687: 14 I. C. 67; Menajuddi v. Toam Mandal, 39 C. 831: 15

I. C. 176 Under the present Code he is a necessary party; see the proviso to sub-rule (2), r. 92.

A beneficial owner is not a necessary party to a proceeding for setting aside an execution-sale. It is competent to the Court to set aside the sale finally and conclusively as against the beneficial owner, although his benamdar only, and not he, is made a party to the proceedings.—Baroda Kanta v. Chunder Kanta, 29 C. 682; 6 C. W. N. 706.

Under Or. XXI, r. 90, the auction-purchaser is a necessary party to a proceeding for setting aside an auction-sale.—Ajijuddin Ahamed v. Khoda Bux, 50 I. C. 5. It is sufficient that the auction-purchaser is named in the body of the petition and notice is given to him after the application had become time-barred.—Samitra v. Damri, 62 I. C. 61. The language of this rule, however, does not justify such a strict construction, see Abdur Rahman v. Har Narayan, 68 I. C. 238; 9 O. L. J. 211, where it has been held that though some of the decree-holders auction-purchasers were not made parties, the service of notice upon them even after the period of limitation is a sufficient compliance with the rule. See also Satish Chandra v. Rakhal, 47 C. L. J. 62; 107 I. C. 733; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 189; Kirpa Ram v. Nand Lal, 107 I. C. 494; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 418, which held that the auction-purchaser is not a necessary party to an application under this rule. It is not necessary to implead, in the sense of showing as a party in the heading of an application under r. 90, the successful auction-purchaser.—Bakhshi Sain Das v. Punjab National Bank, 111 I. C. 506; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 418; Gazanfar v. Ram-ratan, 25 I. C. 907; Nitai v. Bishun, 11 P. 504; A. I. R. 1932 Pat. 255, which has held that all that is necessary is that under r. 92 the sale shall not be confirmed or set aside unless notice of the application has been given to all persons affected thereby; the law does not impose any period of limitation for the issue of notice, though the application under Or. XXI, r. 90 should be made within 30 days. But see Haridas v. Mofattal, 26 N. L. R. 127; 121 I. C. 658; A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 5, which has held that the auction-purchaser is a necessary party both in the proceeding and appeal. A transferee from an auction-purchaser is a necessary party if the proceedings are commenced after the transfer.—Menajuddi v. Toam Mandal, 39 C. 881; 15 I. C. 176.

Sale on a holiday.—A sale in execution of a decree is illegal, if made on a holiday, whether it is a fixed holiday or only a day on which the Courts are closed by order of the High Court.—Haro Jemadar v. Jadub Chunder, 3 W. R. Mis. 24. But see Bisram Mahton v. Sahibunnissa, 3 A. 333, where it has been held that the sale of immoveable property by an amin on a close holiday is not illegal, nor is it an irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale.

Sale after satisfaction of the decree.—An order for sale and a sale under such order are ultra vires and nullities if the decree which is ordered to be executed has been satisfied by payment into Court of the decretal money before the order is made.—Chunni v. Lala Ram, 16 A. 5.

An order for sale and a sale under such order are ultra vires and nullities when, in fact, there was no jurisdiction in the Court to make the order.—Balwant Rao v. Mahammad Husain, 15 A. 324.

Limitation for an application to set aside a sale.—Under Art. 166 of the Limitation Act, 1908, an application to set aside a sale under this rule must be made within 30 days from the date of the sale. But where the irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale has, by the fraud of the decree-holder or any other party to the sale, been kept concealed from the judgment-debtor, he is entitled to apply under this rule whether the sale has been confirmed or not and the time for making the application is to be reckoned from the time when the fraud first became known to him.—Mohendro Narain v. Gopal, 17 C. 769; Golam Ahad v. Judhister, 30 C. 142; Bhusan v. Profulla, 48 C. 119; 60 I. C. 801; Ramesh Ohandra v. Birajasurendari, 32 C. W. N. 519. Where the finding is that notice under Or. XXI, r. 22 was duly served, the judgment-debtor cannot bring his case under S. 47 of the Code to have the sale declared a nullity and Art. 181 of the Limitation Act does not apply. If there was no fraud the question of the date of knowledge of the judgment-debtor is irrelevant; Galstaun v. Syed Mahamad, 36 C. W. N. 242. An application to set aside a sale under Or. XXI, r. 90 on the ground of non-service of notice as provided for by Or. XXI, r. 22, should be made within 30 days from the date of the sale. If it is an application under S. 47 of the Code it must be made within 3 years from the date of the sale. But the time may be extended by the Court in appropriate cases under S. 18 of the Limitation Act—Surya Kanta v. Jogendra, 51 C. L. J. 591; A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 391.

When an application is made for setting aside a sale on the ground of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it, and consequent substantial loss, it is not open to the judgment-debtor to rely on some other ground for the same purpose; Harbins Lal v. Kundan Lal, 21 A. 140; but he can by way of additional particulars point out by a further application, which may be made after more than 30 days, that certain heavy incumbrances which did not exist had been notified in the sale-proclamation; Ram Saran v. Girdhari, 48 A. 236; 92 I. C. 557; A. I. R. 1925 All 305; 24 A. L. J. 286.

As has already been stated in the commentary to this rule, the application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud in publishing or conducting it, was under the old Code to be made under S. 244 (now S. 47) and the period of limitation for such an application was 3 years from the date of the sale. Such an application under the present Code must be made under r. 90 and the period of limitation is 30 days from the date of the sale.

Article 166 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), as amended by Act I of 1927.—Article 166 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908), as amended by Act I of 1927 contains the law on the point. In Act IX of 1871 the article corresponding to this article was Art. 159 and was in these words: "To set aside a sale in execution of a decree on the ground of irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale—Thirty days—From the date of the Sale." Prior to that, S. 256 of Act VIII of 1859 (Code of Civil Procedure) contained a similar provision. In Act XV of 1877 the words were originally the same as in Act IX of 1871. But by Act XII of 1879 the following words were added:—"Or on the ground that the decree-holder has purchased without the permission of the Court." The same Act added a similar clause to the then Civil Procedure Code (Act X of 1877). The addition was made because in the absence of such a provision it had been held that a sale to a decree-holder, who had not got the express permission of the Court was absolutely void.—See Rukhinee Bullubh v. Brojonath, 5 C. 303. Under the Code of 1833 an application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud in publishing or conducting a sale had to be made under S. 244 and the period of limitation for such application was 3 years from the date of sale under the general Art. 178 of the then Limitation Act. Under the Code of 1908 such application came to be within the scope of Or. XXI, r. 90. In the Limitation Act of 1908, Art. 166 appeared in a general form in the words "Under the same Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree." And it was meant to apply to all applications for setting a sale, irrespective of the ground on which the sale may be impeached, provided only that the application was one under the Code; in other words, it did not matter whether it fell under Or. XXI, r. 72, 89, 90 or 91 or under S. 47 of the Code. Still there was some conflict on the question whether an application by a judgment-debtor would not fall under Or. XXI, r. 90 and so would not fall under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act of 1908 rather than under Art. 166. To remove this doubt a few words have been added and the article now runs — "Under the same Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree including any such application by a judgment-debtor".

Application to set aside a sale on other grounds.—Where a judgment-debtor applies to have the sale set aside not only on the ground of material irregularity in publishing and conducting the sale but also on the ground that no notice of the application for attachment and sale was given, as required by Or. XXI, r. 22, the case falls within S. 47, and hence there is a second appeal; Rajagopala v. Ramanujachariar, 47 M. 288 : 80 I. C. 92 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 431 (F. B.) : 46 M. L. J. 104. The question whether there was suppression of sale processes, can only be raised under S. 47, and therefore a second appeal lies, Kumed v. Prasanna, 40 C. 45; Rampada v. Kanai, 44 C. L. J. 167. A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1219. Where the decree-holder is the auction-purchaser, and when an application is made to set aside the sale on any ground other than that covered by this rule, and there is no application under r. 89, the case falls within S. 47 and is subject to second appeal; Superior Bank Ltd v. Budh Singh, 22 A. L. J. 413 : 83 I. C. 1028 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 698; Akshia v. Govindarajulu, 47 M. L. J. 549 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 778. The mere fact that in the application to set aside the sale, S. 47 is mentioned, will not bring the application within S. 47 either for the purposes of appeal or of limitation, Mateur Rasul v. Abdul, 30 C. W. N. 86 : 89 I. C. 765 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 109.

A judgment debtor cannot have a Court-sale set aside on the ground of fraud in the absence of proof that the auction-purchaser was a party to the fraud, and that the fraud came to the judgment-debtor's knowledge, subsequent to the confirmation of the sale — Abdubakar Sahab v. Mohidin Sahab, 20 M. 10. When a judgment-debtor makes an application to set aside a sale under this section (rule) after the expiry of the prescribed period of limitation, he must bring his case within S. 18 of the Limitation Act; to enable him to do this, it is not enough for him to show that the execution-proceedings were irregular and fraudulent; he must carry the fraud further and show that the existence of his right to set aside a sale has been kept concealed from his knowledge by the fraud of the decree-holder or the auction-purchaser; Kailash v. Bissonath, 1 C. W. N. 67; Nabin v. Bipin, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 229. See also Luchmipat v. Musummat Mandil Koer, 3 C. W. N. 333, where it has been further held that if the proceedings be regarded as taken under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), the judgment-debtor need not make his application within 30 days, the limitation for such application being 3 years from the date when the right to make such application accrued. In Dhubon Mohun v. Nunda Lal, 26 C. 324: 3 C. W. N. 399, in Nimai Chand v. Deno Nath, 2 C. W. N. 691, in Lalman Das v. Jagannath, 22 A. 376, and in Srimati Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Oharan, 5 C. W. N. 265, it has been held that the period of limitation for an application to set aside a sale under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 47) on the ground of fraud is three years.

An application under this rule on behalf of a minor judgment-debtor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the sale was confirmed. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held that, assuming the first application to have been rightly rejected, the second which was made by a duly authorized guardian was not barred under the provisions of S. 7 of the Limitation Act.—Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, 9 A. 411 (1 C. 226 referred to).

A claim under this rule may be joined with a claim for a declaration that the sale is a nullity on the ground that the decree in execution of which the sale took place was passed against a deceased judgment-debtor and so null and void.—Jamila Khatun v. Dayanand, 7 P. 331: 107 I. C. 848: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 372 judgment-debtor, and after his against a person as his heir, who a the proper heirs the property was sold, held that such a sale can only be set aside in the regular way by proceedings under this section (rule) or by a regular suit within a year of the confirmation of the sale as provided by Art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act.—Malkarjun v. Narhari, 27 I. A. 216: 25 B. 337 (P. C.). 5 C. W. N. 10: 2 Bom. L. R. 927: 10 M. L. J. 368 (reversing 21 B. 424, explained in Golam Ahad v. Judhister, 30 C. 142: 7 C. W. N. 305, distinguished in Jwala Sahai v. Masiat Khan, 26 A. 346 and in Khirajmal v. Diam, 32 I. A. 23: 32 C. 296 (P. C.): 9 C. W. N. 201: 1 C. L. J. 584 (P. C.)).

Purchase by the decree-holder benami at a price less than that at which the decree-holder got permission to bid for would vitiate the sale; and an application to set aside such a sale comes under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 47), and is therefore governed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act.—Srimati Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Oharan, 5 C. W. N. 265.

Effect of decision on matters falling under this rule.—A decision on questions arising out of an application for setting aside a sale under this rule is conclusive and a separate suit will not lie; nor can a sale be impeached by way of defence without setting aside the sale under this rule; Jhara v. Amritmoyi, 38 I. C. 47.

On an application by one of the judgment-debtors for setting aside a sale, it was found that there was fraudulent suppression of the proceeds in connection with the property be set aside in toto and not to the extent of the the benefit of setting aside the sale enured applicant but also to the other judgment-debtor
v. Birajasundari, 32 C. W. N. 519: 109 I. C. 33: 47 C. L. J. 351: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 349.

ground of fraud in publishing or conducting a sale had to be made under S. 244 and the period of limitation for such application was 3 years from the date of sale under the general Art. 178 of the then Limitation Act. Under the Code of 1908 such application came to be within the scope of Or. XXI, r. 90. In the Limitation Act of 1908, Art. 166 appeared in a general form in the words : " Under the same Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree." And it was meant to apply to all applications for setting a sale, irrespective of the ground on which the sale may be impeached, provided only that the application was one under the Code; in other words, it did not matter whether it fell under Or. XXI, rr 72, 89, 90 or 91 or under S. 47 of the Code. Still there was some conflict on the question whether an application by a judgment-debtor would not fall under Or. XXI, r. 90 and so would not fall under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act of 1908 rather than under Art. 166. To remove this doubt a few words have been added and the article now runs :—" Under the same Code to set aside a sale in execution of a decree including any such application by a judgment-debtor".

Application to set aside a sale on other grounds.—Where a judgment-debtor applies to have the sale set aside not only on the ground of material irregularity in publishing and conducting the sale but also on the ground that no notice of the application for attachment and sale was given as required by Or. XXI, r. 22, the case falls within S. 47, and hence there is a second appeal; Rajagopala v. Ramanujachariar, 47 M 288 : 80 I. C. 92 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 431 (F. B.) · 46 M. L. J. 104. The question whether there was suppression of sale processes, can only be raised under S. 47, and therefore a second appeal lies; Kumed v. Prasanna, 40 C. 45; Rampada v. Kanai, 44 C. L. J. 167. A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1219. Where the decree-holder is the auction-purchaser, and when an application is made to set aside the sale on any ground other than that covered by this rule, and there is no application under r. 89, the case falls within S. 47 and is subject to second appeal; Superior Bank Ltd. v. Budh Singh, 22 A. L. J. 413; 83 I. C. 1028; A. I. R. 1924 All 698, Akshia v. Govindarajulu, 47 M. L. J. 549; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 778. The mere fact that in the application to set aside the sale, S. 47 is mentioned, will not bring the application within S. 47 either for the purposes of appeal or of limitation, Mateur Rasul v. Abdul, 30 C. W. N. 86: 89 I. C. 765; A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 109.

A judgment-debtor cannot have a Court-sale set aside on the ground of fraud in the absence of proof that the auction-purchaser was a party to the fraud, and that the fraud came to the judgment-debtor's knowledge, subsequent to the confirmation of the sale—Abubakar Saheb v. Mohidin Saheb, 20 M 10. When a judgment-debtor makes an application to set aside a sale under this section (rule) after the expiry of the prescribed period of limitation, he must bring his case within S. 18 of the Limitation Act; to enable him to do this, it is not enough for him to show that the execution-proceedings were irregular and fraudulent; he must carry the fraud further and show that the existence of his right to set aside a sale has been kept concealed from his knowledge by the fraud of the decree-holder or the auction-purchaser; Kailash v. Bissonath, 1 C. W. N. 67; Nabin v. Bipin, A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 220. See also Lachmipat v. Musummat Mandil Koer, 3 C. W. N. 333, where it has been further held that if the proceedings be regarded as taken under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), the judgment-debtor need not make his application within 30 days, the limitation for such application being 3 years from the date when the right to make such application accrued. In Dhubon Mohun v. Nunda Lal, 26 C. 324: 3 C. W. N. 399, in Nimai Chand v. Deno Nath, 2 C. W. N. 691, in Lalman Das v. Jagannath, 22 A. 376, and in Srimati Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Charan, 5 C. W. N. 265, it has been held that the period of limitation for an application to set aside a sale under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47) on the ground of fraud is three years.

An application under this rule on behalf of a minor judgment-debtor, was rejected on the ground that the applicant did not legally represent the minor, and the sale was confirmed. From this order the judgment-debtor appealed. Held that, assuming the first application to have been rightly rejected, the second which was made by a duly authorized guardian was not barred under the provisions of S. 7 of the Limitation Act.—Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, 9 A. 411 (1 C. 226 referred to).

A claim under this rule may be joined with a claim for a declaration that the sale is a nullity on the ground that the decree in execution of which the sale took place was passed against a deceased judgment-debtor and so null and void.—Jamila Khatun v. Dayanand, 7 P. 331: 107 I. C. 848: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 272.

... judgment-debtor, and after his gainst a person as his heir, who o the proper heirs the property was sold, held that such a sale can only be set aside in the regular way by proceedings under this section (rule) or by a regular suit within a year of the confirmation of the sale as provided by Art. 12 (a) of the Limitation Act.—Malkarjun v. Narhari, 27 I. A. 216: 25 B. 337 (P. C.): 5 C. W. N. 10: 2 Bom. L. R. 927: 10 M. L. J. 363 (reversing 21 B. 424, explained in Golam Ahad v. Judhister, 30 C. 142: 7 C. W. N. 305; distinguished in Jwala Sahai v. Masiat Khan, 26 A. 346 and in Khiraajmal v. Diam, 32 I. A. 23: 32 C. 296 (P. C.): 9 C. W. N. 201: 1 C. L. J. 594 (P. C.)).

Purchase by the decree-holder benami at a price less than that at which the decree-holder got permission to bid for would vitiate the sale; and an application to set aside such a sale comes under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), and is therefore governed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act.—Srimati Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Charan, 5 C. W. N. 265.

Effect of decision on matters falling under this rule.—A decision on questions arising out of an application for setting aside a sale under this rule is conclusive and a separate suit will not lie; nor can a sale be impeached by way of defence without setting aside the sale under this rule; Jhara v. Amritmoyi, 38 I. C. 47.

On an application by one of the judgment-debtors for setting aside a sale, it was found that there was fraudulent suppression of the processes in connection with the sale and that there was a substantial injury inasmuch as the property was sold much below its proper value, held (1) that the sale should be set aside in toto and not to the extent of the applicant's interest; (2) that the benefit of setting aside the sale enured not only to the benefit of the applicant but also to the other judgment-debtors as well.—Ramesh Chandra v. Birajasundari, 32 C. W. N. 519: 109 I. C. 33: 47 C. L. J. 351: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 349.

Where an application under r. 90 is dismissed, no suit for cancellation of the sale can lie on an allegation of fraud and irregularity in the publication or conduct of auction-sale; Tukaram v. Sakharamsa, 25 N. L. R. 58 : 118 I. C. 49 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 130. See also Nand Kishore v. Sultan Singh, 7 L. 1 : 93 I. C. 1007 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 165; Ma Saw v. Maung Kyaw, 5 R. 606 : 105 I. C. 706 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 18, and notes under r. 92 (3), post.

This rule does not apply to Revenue Sales in Madras.—Jagannath v. Kathaperumal, 105 I. C. 89 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1035.

Appeal.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (j), an appeal lies from an order under this rule, and r. 92 setting aside or refusing to set aside the sale. But no second appeal lies from the order of the first appellate Court.—Satyendra v. Charu, 45 C. L. J. 557 : 104 I. C. 188 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 657; Mahadeo Singh v. Dhobi Singh, 2 P. 916 : 74 I. C. 838; Jagannath v. Daud, 4 L. 243 : 75 I. C. 103 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 592; Jivan Singh v. Sawan Mal, 54 I. C. 941; Gour v. Digambor, 30 C. W. N. 586 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 790; Jagdeo v. Ujiyari, 108 I. C. 699 : 26 A. L. J. 412 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 354; Ramiah v. Athmanatha, 117 I. C. 727 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 624; Gulam Ahmad v. Kanhaiyalal, 120 I. C. 209 : A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 58. Nor did an appeal lie under the Letters Patent from the order of the first appellate Court, Piari Lal v. Madan Lal, 39 A. 191 : 39 I. C. 460 : 15 A. L. J. 46; Parja v. Mulchand, 6 L. 250 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 624; Muhammad v. Ishanullah, 14 A. 226 (F. B.).

An appeal lies under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (f) from an order dismissing an application under this rule for default; Kali Kanta v. Shyam Lal, 25 O. L. J. 163 : 38 I. C. 698. There is no distinction on principle as regards dismissal for non-appearance of one or for non-appearance of both the parties.—Ansarali v. Bhim Shankar, 56 C. 969 : 33 C. W. N. 392 : 119 I. C. 374 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 407. See also Narendra v. Rakhaldas, 41 O. L. J. 286 : 79 I. C. 351 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 510.

Revision.—No revision lies from an order dismissing an application under this rule for default; Narendra v. Rakhaldas, 41 O. L. J. 286 : 79 I. C. 351 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 510. But where the lower appellate Court misrode a ruling of the Court, and on its basis refuses to entertain an application of a party which it had jurisdiction to entertain, it acts with material irregularity, and revision lies; Ram Saran v. Girdhari, 48 A. 286 : 92 I. C. 567 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 305 : 24 A. L. J. 286. See also Jagdeo v. Ujiyari, 108 I. C. 699 : 26 A. L. J. 412 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 354. The applicant in revision must show that either the procedure for sale has been vitiated right from the very beginning and so is entirely illegal, or he must show there has been irregularity in the proceeding which has caused damage of a serious kind to his interest.—Gajadhar v. Bechraj, 130 I. C. 265 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 63.

Whether Or. IX applies to application under this rule.—The provisions of Or. IX do not apply to proceedings in execution; Basarutulla v. Reazuddin, 53 C. 679 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 773; Hari Charan v. Manmatha, 41 O. L. 18 C. W. N. 343; Balasubramania v. Swarnammal, 38 M. 199; Dhubsanwar v. Tilukdhari, 4 P. L. J. 135. See notes to Or. IX and r. 9 under the heading "Whether r. 9 applies to Execution Proceedings."

Where the applicant under this rule failed to appear when his name was called out and his pleaders said they had no instructions and the Court dismissed:

the application for default and immediately afterwards the man appeared in Court and applied for restoration, held, that there was no default and the Court could under S. 151 treat the order of dismissal as a mistaken one and set the matter right — Ram Shanker v. Ram Narain, 26 A. L. J. 382: 108 I. C. 576: A. I. R. 1928 All. 301. No order of dismissal in default should be passed till the end of the day when the Court was rising because there could be no default until the Court rose for the day — Ibid. It is open to the Court to invoke its inherent jurisdiction under S. 151 to restore an application under r. 90 which has been dismissed for default — Dwarka Das v. Vaish Flour Mill, 29 A. L. J. 622: A. I. R. 1931 All. 591.

Rule as amended by the Rangoon High Court.—The terms of the proviso are sufficiently complied with, if the Court treats the deposit of purchase-money of the auction-purchaser which stands to the credit of the decree-holder as a deposit by the decree-holder who has made the application to set aside the sale. — Maung Min Sin v. Maung Maung, 9 R. 366. The provisos to r. 90 are not ultra vires; the newly added proviso (a) only gives effect to the well settled principle that if a judgment-debtor knowing of an irregularity or fraud lies by and allows the sale to proceed without objection he will be estopped from impeaching the sale on the ground of irregularity or fraud though substantial injury has been caused. — Gendaram v. O. A. O. K. R. M. Chettyar, A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 179: 131 I. C. 721.

Application by purchaser to set aside sale on ground of judgment-debtor having no saleable interest.

91. The purchaser at any such sale in execution of a decree may apply to the Court to set aside the sale, on the ground that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 313, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "in execution of a decree" have been added after the words "any such sale," the words "the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold," have been substituted for the words "the person whose property purported to be sold had no saleable interest therein," which occurred in the old Code; and the lines "and the Court may make such order as it thinks fit. Provided that no order to set aside a sale shall be made, unless the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder have had opportunity of being heard against such order," which occurred in the old section, have been omitted from this rule, and reproduced in the next rule (r. 92) with some modifications.

Scope of the rule.—The purchaser at an execution-sale is entitled under this rule to seek relief, if the judgment-debtor had "no saleable interest" in the property sold.—This rule does not apply where he seeks relief on the ground that he was induced to buy the property for more than its real worth owing to misrepresentation or concealment in the sale-notification. — Durga Sundari v. Govinda, 10 C. 368; Birj Mohun v. Rai Uma Nath, 20 C. 8: 19 I. A. 164; Sheo Golinda v. Dhanukdhari, 19 C. W. N. 1291. In such a case he can seek his remedy by a regular suit. But when the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold, the auction-purchaser's only remedy is to apply under this rule; Soolayman Cassim Singi Singh v. S. S. A. O. Chetty, 52 I. C. 174; Maung Naung v. Maung Ba Gyi, 6 R. 469; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 272. See further notes under r. 93.

Want of saleable interest.—The words "no saleable interest" mean "nothing to sell," and are not intended to confine the cases in which a purchaser shall be entitled to receive back his purchase-money to those in which the judgment-debtor though having an interest, such interest is by prohibition of law or for some other reason unsaleable.—Munna Singh v. Gajadhar, 5 A. 577 (F. B.).

After a sale held in execution of a mortgage decree under Chapter XXVII of the High Court rules, it transpired that the property was subject to an attachment made prior to the mortgage suit: held, that the purchaser was entitled to reject the title, have the sale set aside and have his deposit returned.—Mohun Lal v. Nambala, 33 C. W. N. 177 : 118 I. C. 887 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 207.

This rule contemplates that either the judgment-debtor had no interest at all, or that the interest was not one he could sell, and the fact that the property is subject to a mortgage, and may fetch little or nothing if sold, does not affect the question.—Sant Lal v. Ramji Das, 9 A. 167 (8 C. L. R. 468 distinguished). See also Protap Chunder v. Panioty, 9 C. 506 : 12 C. L. R. 488. In Durga Sundari v. Govinda, 10 C. 363, it has been held that the meaning of this rule is, that when a purchaser buys a property which turns out to have no existence at all, or to be of no saleable value whatever, the Court may set it aside. A misrepresentation or concealment in the sale-notification which induces a purchaser to buy a property for much more than it is really worth is no ground for setting aside a sale under this rule. In Ram Coomar v. Sushee Bhushan, 2 C. 626, it has been held that this rule only applies to cases in which the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property sold. It does not apply to cases where the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in a portion of the property. See also Sonaram v. Mohiram, 28 C. 235 (17 M. 228 followed). But in Naharmul Marwari v. Sadut Ali, 8 C. L. R. 468, it has been held that if, as a fact, the property sold was covered by the mortgage, there was no saleable interest in the judgment-debtor at the time of the sale, inasmuch as under that sale the purchaser would be unable to get the particular property purchased by him.

After sale of the judgment-debtor's properties in execution, a third party filed a suit for declaration that the said properties belonged to her. Then the auction-purchaser filed an application that one quarter of the purchase-price deposited by him in Court should not be paid over to the decree-holder and that he should be allowed not to pay the balance till the decision of the declaration-suit. In spite of this the Court confirmed the sale: held, that the application was not under Or. XXI, r. 91, that the prayer made in the application was not justified by any provisions in the Code and the order confirming the sale was under the circumstances perfectly legal.—Mana Shah v. Lakhmi Das, 134 I. C. 496 : A. I. R. 1931 Lab. 244 : 32 P. L. R. 63.

Where a decree-holder auction-purchaser is satisfied by the proceeds of the sale and he subsequently discovers that the judgment-debtor was not the owner of the property and makes an application for cancellation of the sale and fresh execution of the decree, held that the application falls under the purview of this rule and cannot be entertained if it is made more than 30 days after the sale, and fresh execution cannot take place without first setting aside the sale.—Muthukumaraswami v. Muthuswami, 50 M. 639 : 100 I. C. 522 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 394 See also Jagannadha v. Basawayya, 104 I. C. 614 : 53 M. L. J. 255 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 835.

This rule does not apply when the title of the judgment-debtor to part only of the property sold is defective. It applies only to a case where the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property at all.—Muhammad Rahimatullah v. Bachcho, 27 A. 537. 2 A. L. J. 244 : (1905) A W. N. 99 (23 A. 355 followed).

If a party purchases at a sale with full knowledge of the true state of things and knowing that the title offered is defective, a claim to be relieved from the consequence of his purchase cannot be listened to.—Sumer Chand v. Wahid Husain, 3 A. L. J. 819 : (1906) A. W. N. 310.

An auction-purchaser has no right to apply under this rule to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree on the ground of deficiency in the area of the land sold ; Birj Mohun v. Rai Uma Nath, 20 C. 8 (P. C.) (followed in Ram Narain v. Dwarka Nath, 27 C. 264 : 4 C. W. N. 13) or on the ground that the title of the judgment-debtor is defective ; Khetro Mohan v. Sk. Dilwar, 3 P. L. J. 516 : 46 I. C. 614. If he has been misled by any fraud or omission of the decree-holder he may sue him for damages,—ibid. But see Sheo Gobinda v. Dhanukdhari, 19 C. W. N. 1291, where it has been held that in case of fraud the execution purchaser has the right to have the sale set aside (20 C. 8 (P. C.) referred to).

An auction-purchaser at an execution-sale is not entitled to compensation on account of any deficiency in area of the land purchased, unless he can prove that he has sustained loss by the misdescription, but is entitled to abatement of rent for such deficiency.—Doyal Krishna v. Amrita Lal, 29 C. 370 (1 C. W. N. 106 distinguished ; 18 A. 322 dissented from). Where the misdescription of property in the sale-notification does not go to the essence of the contract, the remedy which a purchaser can claim is compensation and not annulment of the sale.—Administrator-General of Bengal v. Aghore Nath, 29 C. 420 : 6 C. W. N. 873.

A Hindu died leaving two widows, one of whom, under authority from her husband, adopted a son. Subsequently, the widows executed a mortgage-bond to liquidate the debts of their husband, and the mortgagee after obtaining a decree upon the mortgage, brought to sale the mortgaged properties which were purchased by a third party. On an application by the auction-purchaser to set aside the sale on the ground that the judgment-debtors had no saleable interest in the property, as it had upon the adoption, vested in the adopted son, held that as one of the widows was not a party to the adoption, it could not be said that the judgment-debtors had no saleable interest in the property.—Faizuddin Ali v. Tincowri Saha, 22 C. 565.

Misdescription of the name and of the rent of the talook sold is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale under this rule.—Kali Kishore v. Guru Prosad, 25 C. 99.

Where default has been made in the payment of Government Revenue for which the property is liable to be sold, the ownership of the property nevertheless remains in the person who has made the default and until the sale for arrears of revenue actually takes place, the property is liable to be sold in execution of the decree and the purchaser at the execution-sale purchases the right to receive any surplus sale-proceeds.—Hari Charan v. Haridas, 2 C. L. J. 506.

A judgment-debtor who might have raised the objection in execution but refrained from doing so, and who could have also appealed against the order for sale, is estopped from raising the objection that the property sold was not legally saleable, after the sale has been carried out.—Umed v. Jas-Ram, 29 A. 612 (7 A. 641 : 26 C. 727 followed).

Separate suit for refund of purchase-money.—See notes under Or. XXI, r. 93.

Compensation for loss of part of property bought at a Court-sale.—Every man buys at an execution-sale with his eyes open, and the general principle is that an auction-purchaser cannot attack his own purchase except on the ground that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest; Khetro Mohan v. Sk Dilwar, 3 P. L. J. 516 : 46 I. C. 614 ; Kedar Nath v. Jagar Nath, 74 I. C. 134. This rule furnishes a statutory exception to the doctrine of caveat emptor; Ram Kumar v. Ram Gour, 37 C. 67. But apart from the case provided for by this rule and apart from fraud, a purchaser at an auction-sale must abide by his bargain; Abinash v. Bhuvan, 25 C. W. N. 756 ; Sabapathi v. Thandavaroya, 43 M. 309 : 54 I. C. 515.

Limitation.—The period of limitation for an application to set aside a sale under this rule is 30 days under Art. 166 of the Limitation Act IX of 1908. Under the Limitation Act, 1877 (Art. 172), the period of limitation was 60 days, but Art. 172 has been repealed by the present Limitation Act (IX of 1908).

"The committee think that in the matter of limitation an application under S. 313 (C. P. Code, 1882), should be brought into line with an application under S. 312 (C. P. Code, 1882), and they therefore propose to repeal Art. 172 and to amend Art. 166 so as to include applications under S. 313."—See Notes on Clauses to the Limitation Act.

Where in an application under this rule, a dead person was made the opposite party by bona fide mistake, the application was not an incompetent one for the purpose of limitation.—Sailabala v. Kalipada, 55 C. L. J. 345.

On the question of limitation for suits for refund of purchase-money, see notes under r. 92.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order setting aside, or refusing to set aside, a sale made under this rule and r. 92 [Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (j).]

92. (1) Where no application is made under rule 89, rule 90 or rule 91, or where such application is made and disallowed, the Court shall make an order confirming the sale, and thereupon the sale shall become absolute. [Ss. 312 & 314.],

Sale when to become absolute or be set aside.

(2) Where such application is made and allowed, and where, in the case of an application under rule 89, the deposit required by that rule is made within thirty days from the date of sale, the Court shall make an order setting aside the sale :

[S. 312 and S. 310-A, PARA. 2.]

Provided that no order shall be made unless notice of the application has been given to all persons affected thereby.

[S. 313, LAST PARA.]

(3) No suit to set aside an order made under this rule shall be brought by any person against whom such order is made.

[S. 312.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule embodies in a concise and amended form the provisions contained in Ss. 312 and 314 and in the second para. of S. 310-A regarding the period of limitation for an application, and also the provisions contained in the last part of S. 313 of the C. P. Code, 1882.

"The committee think it proper to retain the provisions of the Code which make it necessary for the Court to confirm the sale in each case."—Report of the Special Committee.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 312 and to S. 314 of the old Code with some omissions and alterations. The words "the Court shall make an order confirming the sale" have been substituted for the words, "the Court shall make an order confirming the sale as regards parties to the suit and the purchaser" which occurred in the last part of para. 1 of S. 312. The words "as regards parties to the suit and the purchaser" have been omitted in view of the enlargement of the scope of rule 90, which now includes all persons whose interests are affected by the sale. The words "thereupon the sale shall become absolute" have been substituted for the words contained in S. 314 of the old Code, which ran as follows : "No sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree shall become absolute, until it has been confirmed by the Court."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 312 and para. 2 of S. 310-A of the old Code with some modifications.

The proviso to sub-rule (2) corresponds to the last part of S. 313 of the old Code with this modification that the notice of application to set aside a sale under any provisions of rule 89, rule 90 or rule 91 is to be given to all persons affected by the sale, and not to the judgment-debtor and decree-holder only.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to the last para. of S. 312, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "on the ground of such irregularity," which occurred in the old section after the words "no suit to set aside." The effect of the omission is that no suit to set aside an execution-sale is now maintainable on any of the grounds specified in rules 89, 90 and 91. Therefore, a suit on the ground of irregularity or fraud in publishing, or conducting the sale is barred by sub-rule (3). But a suit to set aside a sale on any grounds other than those specifically mentioned in the above-rules is not barred by this rule. For instance, a suit to set aside a sale on the ground of want of jurisdiction in trying the original suit, or in selling the property, or that the decree in execution of which the sale took place was obtained by fraud, or that there was fraud in the execution-proceedings prior to the publication of the sale, or that the judgment-debtor had no title to the property, etc., etc.

Rules 89, 90 and 91 refer to sales in execution of a valid and subsisting decree. Therefore sales in execution of such decrees are only voidable and not ab initio void. But sales are ab initio void where they are held in execution of decrees which are ab initio void on the ground of fraud or want of jurisdiction.

Confirmation of sale.—The Court is bound to confirm the sale in the absence of an order setting aside the sale made upon application to that effect; Birj Mohun v. Rai Uma Nath, 20 C. 8 (P. C.); Dharam Chand v. Bussan Kaisha; 54 I. C. 923; or in the event of no application under rr. 89, 90 and 91 being made; Umesh v. Shib Narain, 31 C. 1011: 9 C. W. N. 193, even though the decree-holder is not present on that date; if it dismisses the execution petition for default of appearance of the decree-holder, it has got inherent power to restore it to the file.—Ram Prasad v. Kodu, 120 I. C. 405: A. I. R. 1920 Nag. 134: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 37. Rule 92 is mandatory in its terms; an order passed in contravention of this imperative rule is not a legal order.—Panna Lal v. Bhola Nath, 123 I. C. 818: A. I. R. 1930 All. 843. It has been held in Ariatullah v. Sashi Bhusan, 24 C. W. N. 73 that this rule does not affect the power of the Court to refuse to confirm the sale, or make it compulsory to confirm the sale when the Court finds that the sale was held under a decree which did not authorize it. A purchaser at a Court-sale has no absolute right to have the sale confirmed where there is an irregularity in the publication or the conduct of it although he is in no manner responsible for the irregularity; Raja of Kalahasti v. Maharaja of Venkatagiri, 38 M. 387: 25 M. L. J. 198: 21 I. C. 389. Rule 92 is no bar to the Court exercising its inherent power to refuse to confirm a sale if it is satisfied that it has been misled by the decree-holder.—Rahmatullah v. Ladhu, 11 L. L. J. 546: 31 P. L. R. 57: 120 I. C. 634: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 208. Where an application under r. 90 is dismissed for default, it amounts to a confirmation of the sale under this rule; Narendra v. Rakhal, 41 C. L. J. 286: A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 510: 79 I. C. 350. Under S. 314, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 92) the Civil Court cannot upon or without application, refuse to confirm a sale on the ground that the price bid is too low.—Lakshmi v. Krishnabhat, 8 B. 424.

Once a sale has been duly effected it is not competent to the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor to get rid of it by merely asserting that the decree has been adjusted or satisfied out of Court, because Or. XXI, r. 2 does not apply to such a stage when the interest of a third party, namely, the auction-purchaser intervenes. The only means by which a regular sale can be avoided are those embodied in r. 89. Where no such application is made within time, it is obligatory on the Court under r. 92 to pass an order confirming the sale, notwithstanding the circumstance that the decree-holder had admitted satisfaction of the decree.—Seth Nanhalal v. Umrao Singh, 58 I. A. 50: 35 C. W. N. 381: 53 C. L. J. 187: A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 33: 130 I. C. 686: 27 N. L. R. 95: 33 L. W. 449: (1931) M. W. N. 281: 60 M. L. J. 423 (P. C.): 14 O. L. J. 383: 8 O. W. N. 695: 29 A. L. J. 257: 33 Bom. L. R.

450 : 14 N. L. J. 29. Where on an application to set aside a sale, under r. 90, on the ground of fraud and material irregularity in the conduct of the sale, the Court is of opinion that no case of fraud has been made out and that though certain irregularities had been established with regard to the sale, they had not resulted in substantial injury to the judgment-debtor and the application is in consequence rejected, in such a case the Court is bound under r. 92 to confirm the sale, which thereupon would become absolute, subject to any variation on appeal.—Ibid.

A private satisfaction of a decree, certified in Court after the sale and before the confirmation of the sale, extinguishes the decree and prevents the Court from confirming the sale in favour of the auction-purchaser, if he be the decree-holder himself; but it does not extinguish the decree and prevent the Court from confirming the sale, where a third person has purchased the property bona fide at the auction-sale.—Shankar Lal v. Jawahar Lal, 24 N. L. R. 127 : 111 I. C. 895 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 265 (F. B.).

After the confirmation of a sale, a Court has no power to set aside a sale by a summary order on the ground that the right to apply for execution under which the sale had taken place was barred.—Mahomed Hossein v. Kokil Singh, 7 C. 91 : 9 C. L. R. 53. An order confirming a sale is intended as a judicial determination between the parties that none of the objections exists upon which the validity of the sale could have been questioned.—Lakshan v. Ramdas, 33 C. W. N. 795 : 118 I. C. 857 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 374.

If no objection to the sale is made within the time allowed by Art. 166 of the Limitation Act, i. e., within 30 days from the date of the sale, the sale should be confirmed.—Mohendro Narain v. Gopal Mondul, 17 C. 769 (F. B.) (780) ; Haji v. Atharaman, 7 M. 512. Where the officer conducting the sale makes delay in accepting the bid, without which no sale is complete the period of 30 days prescribed by r. 90 does not begin to run against a person applying to set aside the sale till the bid is accepted.—Abdullah v. Ganpat, 118 I. C. 900.

Where the sale-proclamation was not issued in the prescribed form, and did not state the extent of the property and the revenue assessed on it, and in consequence there was substantial injury to the applicants, the sale should not be confirmed.—Athappa Chetti v. Rama Krishna, 21 M. 51.

When after the date of sale but before the date of its confirmation, the decree in execution of which the sale took place is set aside, the sale falls to the ground, and the sale cannot be confirmed as the decree is not subsisting on that date.—Daya Moyi v. Sarat, 25 C. 175 : 1 C. W. N. 656. See also Mulchand v. Mukta Prasad, 10 A. 83. Even after the execution-sale, the judgment-debtor still retains his interest in the properties till the sale is confirmed; so an attachment of those properties after the properties were sold by public auction in another execution-proceeding but before the sale was confirmed is effective to confer rights on the attaching creditor when that auction-sale is set aside under Or. XXI, r. 89 as against a subsequent transferee of the judgment-debtor.—Venkata Madhava v. Narayanamurthy, 34 L. W. 531 : 131 I. C. 14 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 511.

Stay of confirmation of sale.—The Court has inherent power to stay confirmation of sale.—Bagga Mal v. Bhasheshar Lal, 126 I. C. 443 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 793. The Court has no power to stay the confirmation of sale on the basis of a payment or adjustment of the decree which has not been recorded or certified under Or. XXI, r. 2.—Meyappa v. U Tun Hla, 9 R. 164: 132 I. C. 713: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 148.

Sub-rule (2)—If deposit is made within 30 days.—The Court has no power to entertain an application for setting aside a sale unless the deposit is made within 30 days from the date of the sale, because the requirements of sub-rule (2) are mandatory and not directory; Vennisami v. Periyaswami, 19 M. L. T. 192: (1916) 1 M. W. N. 179: 33 I. C. 996. See notes under Or. XXI, r. 89.

Proviso—Before setting aside a sale, notice to be given to all persons affected.—Under S. 313 (para 2) of the old Code, notice on the judgment-debtor of the decree-holder only was necessary but the proviso to this rule requires that the notice is to be given to all persons affected by the sale. See Surendra Mohini v. Amaresh, 39 C. 687; Bibi Sharifan v. Mahomed, 13 C. L. J. 535, Menajuddi v. Toam Mandal, 39 C. 891: 15 I. C. 176. An order setting aside an execution-sale without giving proper notice to the persons affected thereby, as required by the proviso, is without jurisdiction and amounts to no order; Gossain v. Jalpadat, 62 I. C. 113; Sundraraja v. Asiri Naidu, 32 I. C. 891. Such an order is one which the Court was wrong in passing and the parties whose interests were affected by the order may complain of its validity in an appeal from that order. But so long as the order stands it cannot be treated as a nullity nor can it be impeached in an appeal against a subsequent order directing the refund of the purchase-money.—Umesh Chandra v. Safiyatannessa, 107 I. C. 476: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 267. The duty of moving the Court to issue notices lies upon the applicant and on default the Court may dismiss the application; Mt. Bibi Zainab v. Paras Nath, 4 P. L. T. 491: 1 P. L. R. 361.

In an application to set aside a sale under r. 89, which is otherwise in order and time, the omission to implead the auction-purchaser till after the expiry of 30 days allowed for the application is not fatal to it (following 37 B. 387).—Narayana v. Pentamma, 52 M. 861: (1929) M. W. N. 626: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 763: 57 M. L. J. 310. The decree-holders who have applied for rateable distribution have no such direct or proximate interest as to make them affected by an application to set aside a sale under r. 89 and are therefore not entitled to notice under r. 92.—Ramnath v. Grandhi, (1931) M. W. N. 423: 34 L. W. 824. 132 I. C. 141: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 465: 61 M. L. J. 909.

It is an elementary principle of law that no order should be made against a man's interest without giving him an opportunity of being heard.—Ganeswar Singh v. Ganesh Das, 33 C. 1173 (P. C.): 33 I. A. 134: 4 C. L. J. 177: 10 C. W. N. 969: 8 Bom. L. R. 719: 3 A. L. J. 689: 16 M. L. J. 365.

In the event of the death of the judgment-debtor, notice must issue to his representative.—Bala Kadar v. Gulam Mohidin, 7 B. 424.

Where after filing an application to set aside an execution-sale, the auction-purchaser dies and no notice goes to his legal representatives, the order setting aside the sale is invalid; Ramanand v. Bajit Jha, 75 I. C. 863.

A Receiver appointed by the Court is not entitled to any notice, because he is merely an officer of the Court and has no personal interest; service of notice on the party in possession is sufficient.—Maung Ohn Tin v. P. R. M. P. S. R. M. Chettyar, 7 B. 425 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 311.

It is not necessary that the auction-purchaser should be made a party to the proceedings, nor is it necessary that notice to the auction-purchaser must be served in a particular manner or within a particular period. All that is necessary is that the auction-purchaser must have notice of the proceedings.—Mani Gir v. Hazari Gir, 10 L. L. J. 161; 108 I. C. 391; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 414. See also Kirpa Ram v. Nand Lal, 107 I. C. 494; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 413. Where the auction-purchaser happening to come to Court to deposit the auction price was there informed by the Court and given ample time to reply to the application, held that this was quite sufficient notice.—Bakhshi Sain v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 111 I. C. 506; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 418.

Sub-rule (3)—No suit will lie to set aside an order under this rule.—Sub-rule (3) means that a person against whom an order under this rule is made cannot bring a separate suit for setting aside the order. His only remedy is by way of appeal under Or XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (j).

An order under this rule may be either (1) an order confirming the sale, or (2) an order setting aside the sale. Again, an order confirming the sale may be made, or an order setting aside the sale, or (b) in any case no suit will lie.

Singh, 16 C. 33; Damodar v. Vinayak, 26 B. 40; Gajrajmati v. Akbar Husain, 29 A. 196; 34 I. A. 37; 11 C. W. N. 393; 5 C. L. J. 138; Brahmayya v. Appayya, 44 M. 351; 62 I. C. 203; Agha Husain v. Quasim Ali, 23 A. L. J. 946; 89 I. C. 1018; Mt. Indar Koer v. Sah Dharam Narain, 128 I. C. 231; 23 A. L. J. 1177; A. I. R. 1930 All. 556; Ma Saw v. Maung Kyaw, 5 R. 606; 105 I. C. 706; A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 18. Similarly no suit will lie to set aside an order setting aside a sale made on an application under rr. 89, 90 and 91; Shib Singh v. Mukat Singh, 18 A. 437.

Sub-rule (3) has no application to a suit where there is no prayer for setting aside an order confirming the sale but prayers for certain declarations and also an injunction as regards the taking of possession.—Kalpada v. Basanta, 35 C. W. N. 877.

Suit to set aside an execution-sale when not barred.—Sub-rule (3) is no bar to any suit except the suits mentioned above. It does not bar a suit by a plaintiff for a declaration that the auction-sale was void on the allegation that by reason of collusion and fraud not only of the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser but of certain other persons also.—Bhagwandas v. Suraj Prasad, 22 A. L. J. 1060; nor does it bar a suit by a person whose claim to the property attached and sold as the property of the insolvent, has been disallowed; Harnam v. Ganpat, 5 L. L. J. 9:73 I. C. 367.

Where property other than the mortgaged property was wrongly included in the auction-sale and the judgment-debtor knew nothing of the sale, his suit to recover possession of the property sold in excess of the decree would not be barred under this rule, nor would it be barred by limitation, since the sale being a nullity as it was not justified by the decree, no question of limitation under Art. 13 would arise. Further as the judgment-debtor knew nothing of the sale, and as such was not in-fault in not objecting when the sale was proclaimed, the purchaser would not be entitled to get back the portion of his purchase-money.—Natha Ram v. Ram Gir, 119 I. C. 852: A. I. R. 1929 All. 673 (following Bulaqui v. Kesri, 50 A. 686: A. I. R. 1928 All. 363). A sale, in which the judgment-debtors had no opportunity of objection as they were entitled to do under r. 90 or of paying off certain items and getting the sale set aside as laid down in r. 89, was an irregular sale. To such a confirmation r. 92 could not be applied, there being a material irregularity in the sale as it did not comply with the provisions of the Code—Brij Kumar v. Jagdamba, A. I. R. 1929 All. 671. The auction-purchaser is a necessary party in a suit for setting aside a sale which has been confirmed under r. 90, non-joinder of whom will entail dismissal.—Bahadur Ali Khan v. Co-operative Credit Society, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 778. Though an unsuccessful applicant under r. 90 cannot bring a suit to have the sale declared void, his prayer in the said suit that even if the sale be valid, he may be declared entitled to the surplus sale-proceeds alone, must be adjudicated upon and a decision given on it.—Radhi v. Buta, 119 I. C. 431: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 618.

Suit to set aside a sale held under Public Demands Recovery Act, whether barred or not.—A suit to set aside an irregular sale of property held under the Public Demands Recovery Act is not barred by the provisions of S 244 or S. 312, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 92).—Ram Taruk v. Mosahabali, 6 C. W. N. 246 (14 C 9 followed). See also Ram Tarack v. Dilwar Ali, 5 C W N. 521 (F. B.): 29 C. 73 (14 C. 1 and 23 C. 641 overruled; 14 C 9 referred to); Girish Chandra v. Golam Karim, 33 C. 451: 10 C. W. N. 347: 3 C. L. J. 235; Janukdhari Lal v. Gossain Lal, 13 C. W. N. 710. But see the cases noted under S. 47, in which a contrary view has been taken.

Suit to set aside a sale when barred by S. 47.—See notes under S. 47, C. P. Code.

Plea of bar of limitation after confirmation.—No application to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree on the ground that the application for attachment and the sale was barred by limitation, can be made after confirmation of sale; Lakhu Rai v. Maharaja Kesho Prasad, 38 I. C. 876: 2 P. L. J. 157.

"Court."—The word "Court" as used in this rule means the Civil Court and not, in the case of a decree transferred to the Collector for execution, the Collector; Fazal v. Manzur, 40 A. 425: 45 I. C. 773.

Appeal from order passed under this rule.—An order under this rule setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale, is appealable under Or. XLIII, r 1 (g).—Tota Ram v. Khub Chand, 7 A. 253 (F. B). See also Baldeo Singh v. Kishan Lal, 9 A. 411.

An appeal lies from an order setting aside a sale passed under Or. XXI, r. 92; Anund Chunder v. Ntai Bhoomij, 16 C. 429; Dakshina Mohan Roy v. Srimati Basumati, 4 C. W. N. 474. But no second appeal lies from the order passed on first appeal; Surendra Mohini v. Amaresh, 39 C. 687; Jewan Singh v. Sanwal, 168 P. R. 1919; Jagmohan v. Bachcha, 25 O. C. 78: 66 I. C. 929; Nanak Chand v. Mt. Jamma, 91 I. C. 213: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 204; Mani Gir v. Hazari Gir, 10 L. L.-J. 161: 108 I. C. 391: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 414; Ganda Mal v. Narsingh, 115 I. C. 636: A. I. R. 1929 All. 553.

An order dismissing for default an application to have a sale set aside, is an order within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 92 and as such is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (j).—Kalikanta v. Shyam Lal, 25 C. L. J. 163: 38 I. C. 599. But a contrary view has been taken in Basaratulla v. Reazuddin, 30 C. W. N. 570: 96 I. C. 705: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 773: 53 C. 679, where it has been held that an order dismissing an application to set aside a sale merely on default of appearance of the parties, cannot be regarded as in any way confirming the sale, and as such is not appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (j).

An appeal lies to His Majesty in Council from an order passed under this rule and r. 90.—Krishna Pershad v. Motichand, 40 C. 635: 40 I. A. 140.

No appeal lies from an order refusing to confirm a sale.—Gulab Singh v. Kishen Singh, 117 I. C. 231: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 438.

A judgment-debtor who has been adjudicated an insolvent cannot appeal from an order confirming sale of his property.—Bhagwan Das v. Amritsar National Bank, 111 I. C. 432: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 675

Revision.—There is no appeal from the order of the Court refusing to confirm the sale, but refusal to confirm a sale in the absence of an application under rr. 89, 90 or 91 is a material irregularity, and revision will lie; Prem Das v. Gokal Chand, 98 I. C. 866: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 71. An order contravening the provisions of Or. XXI, rr. 89 and 92 is an illegal exercise of jurisdiction and is a material irregularity within S. 115, C. P. Code.—Panna Lal v. Bholu Nath, 128 I. C. 818: A. I. R. 1930 All. 843. A revision would lie where the appellate Court misconstrued the law on which the judgment of the trial Court was based, i. e., where it wrongly held that the trial Court's order was under Or. XXI, r. 92, whereas it was equally consistent with an order under S. 151.—Jhanda v. Muhammad Ismail, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 808.

Limitation for suits to set aside a sale in execution—A suit to set aside a sale held in execution of a decree is governed by Art. 12 of the Limitation Act, and must be brought within one year from the date of its confirmation.—Abul Munsoor v. Abdool Hamid, 2 C. 98; Mahomed Hossein v. Purundur Makto, 11 C. 287; Suryanna v. Durgi, 7 M. 258. See, however, Kali Mohun v. Ananda Moni, 9 C. L. R. 18.

One year's limitation prescribed by Art. 12 of the Limitation Act is not confined only to suits which seek no relief other than a declaration that a sale ought to be set aside, but apply also to suits where other relief is sought which can only be granted on annulment of the sale.—Malkarjun v. Narhari, 27 I. A. 216: 25 B. 337 (14 B. 279 overruled in effect; 21 B. 424 (F. B.) reversed; explained in Golam Ahad v. Judhister, 30 C. 142: 7 C. W. N. 305; distinguished in Jwala Sahai v. Masiat Khan, 26 A. 346 and in Khizarjmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296 (P. C.): 9 C. W. N. 201).

The period of limitation for a suit to set aside an execution sale is one year, when the case does not come under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), but when it does, the period of limitation is 3 years. See Bhubon Mohun v. Nunda Lal, 26 C. 324: 3 C. W. N. 399; Nemai Chand v. Deno Nath, 2 C. W. N. 691; Sm. Sarat Kumari v. Nimai Charn, 5 C. W. N. 265; and Lalman Das v. Jagan Nath, 22 A. 376.

Step in aid of execution.—An application by a decree-holder who has purchased the property in execution of his own decree for confirmation of sale, is not an application to take some step in aid of the execution within the meaning of Art. 182 of the Limitation Act.—Umesh Chandra v. Shib Narain, 9 C. W. N. 193; 31 C. 1011.

An application by the decree-holder for the rejection of a petition of a judgment-debtor objecting to the sale, and for confirmation of sale is a step in aid of execution.—Gobind Pershad v. Rung Lal, 21 C. 23 (5 A. 576 followed). But the confirmation of the sale in execution of the decree by the Court of its own motion without any petition of the decree-holder is not an application to take some step in aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 179 (4) of the Limitation Act, 1877; Motendro Chandra v. Mohendro Nath, 10 C. L. R. 330; Dhiraj Mahtab Chand v. Ram Brahma, 4 B. L. R. A. C. 115. 13 W. R. 38. In Gunga Bishen v. Dhiraj Mahtab Chand, 12 B. L. R. 506-note: 10 W. R. 224, it was held that where a sale was confirmed after objection by the judgment-debtor, and the sale-proceeds received by the creditor, that was a proceeding sufficient to keep the decree alive. But in Chowdhry Sheikh Waked Ali v. Mullick Enayet, 12 B. L. R. 500: 20 W. R. 31, it has been held that a confirmation of sale in execution is a proceeding sufficient to keep the decree alive. See also Govind Chunder v. Juhoorul Nissa, 18 W. R. 156. In Mullick Enayet v. Waked Ali, 13 W. R. 315, it has been held that where the decree-holder takes no step whatever to cause an execution sale to be confirmed, the confirmation of the sale by the Court cannot be regarded as a proceeding on his part towards enforcing the decree.

Stamp in a suit to set aside an auction-sale.—In a suit to set aside an auction-sale, the plaint must be stamped as if the suit were for the recovery of the property.—Drapu Chowdhry v. Ishan Chunder, 9 C. L. R. 231.

93. Where a sale of immoveable property is set aside under rule 92, the purchaser shall be entitled to an order for repayment of his purchase-money, with or without interest as the Court may direct, against any person to whom it has been paid. [S. 315.]

Return of purchase-money in certain cases.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This corresponds to S. 315, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "or when it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property which is purported to be sold, and the purchaser is, for that reason, deprived of it," which occurred in the latter part of the first paragraph of S. 315 have been omitted. The reason for the omission seems to be that those words were the subject of discussion in several cases (5 A. 677 (F. B.), 22 B. 783, 5 C. W. N. 240, 7 C. W. N. 105, and 10 C. W. N. 274), and in those cases it was held that a purchaser at an execution sale was not limited to the special procedure in the execution department mentioned in S. 315 of the old Code, but he was entitled to maintain a separate suit for recovery of his purchase-money. But before a suit can be maintained the two events must occur: (1) It must be found in some other proceedings that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest; (2) and the purchaser must be deprived of the property. In the cases quoted above it was held that S. 315 of the old Code is only an enabling section and not prohibitive of an independent action in a Civil Court. In 5 C. W. N. 240 and 7 C. W. N. 105, it was held that S. 315 does not contain any provision barring a civil suit, such as is to be found in S. 47 and Or. XXI, r. 92 of the Code. In the present rule also there is no express provision prohibiting a separate suit for refund of purchase-money. Therefore under the present rule a separate suit for refund of purchase-money is also maintainable. See Mehar Chand v. Milkhi Ram, A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 401 (F. B.), where the object of r. 93 is also stated.

The last paragraph of S. 315, which ran as follows: "The re-payment of the said purchase-money and of the interest (if any) allowed by the Court may be enforced against such person under the rules provided by this Code for the execution of a decree for money" has been omitted as unnecessary in view of S. 36 of the present Code read with r. 30 of Or. XXI.

"The Committee have added words at the commencement of the clause in substitution of the last para. of the section, which thus becomes unnecessary."—Report of the Special Committee.

Scope of the rule.—We have seen that under r. 91 the auction-purchaser is competent to apply for setting aside an auction-sale on the ground of the judgment-debtor's having no saleable interest in the property sold. This rule entitles him to apply for a refund of the purchase-money on the same ground. But if the judgment-debtor had some saleable interest in the property, however small, no refund can be made under this rule.—Kunhamed v. Chathu, 9 M. 437; Muhammad v. Bachcho, 27 A 537. Nagalinga v. Guruswami, 128 I. C. 514; (1930) M. W. N. 767; 32 L. W. 299 59 M L J. 232. The auction-purchaser is not entitled to apply for a proportionate refund of the price paid by him.—Ibid.

When a purchaser is entitled to a refund of his purchase-money.—

When a sale of immoveable property is set aside, the purchaser is entitled to recover his purchase-money. If the Court reversing the sale omit to make such order, the purchaser can sue to recover the money from the person who has received it. The suit is not barred by S. 244, C P. Code, 1882 (S. 47).—Jotindra Mohan v. Mahomed Basir, 32 C. 332 (5 C. W. N. 240 referred to). See also Greesh Chundar v. Lookhoda Moyee, 1 W. R. 55; and Doolhin Hur Nath v. Baijo Oojha, 2 Agra 50.

Where the judgment-debtor is found to have no interest in the land sold, the purchaser is entitled to a refund of the money paid to the decree-holder.—Kunhi Moidin v. Tarayil Moidin, 8 M. 101. See also Tirumalaisami v. Subramanian, 40 M. 1009; 45 I. C. 109.

Where a Court-sale in execution of a decree is not vitiated by fraud, the only extent to which the purchaser can claim relief is that indicated by this rule. The effect of rr. 91, 93 and 94 is that the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor passes to the purchaser at a Court-sale, subject however to the condition that the purchaser may recover his purchase-money when he finds that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest at all. When the judgment-debtor has a saleable interest, however small, the purchaser at an execution sale purchases at his own risk, and there being no warranty that the property will answer to the description given of it, the purchaser is entitled to no relief, if the property does not correspond to the description.—Sundara Gopalan v. Venkata Varada, 17 M. 228: (followed in Sonaram Dass v. Mohiram Dass, 28 C. 235). See also Nagalinga v. Guruswami, 128 I. C. 514: (1930) M. W. N. 767: 32 L. W. 299: 59 M. L. J. 232; Dorab Ally v. Abdool Azeez, 2 C. L. R. 529 (P. C.): 3 C. 806 (reversing and remanding, 1 C. 55: 24 W. R. 372). For the decision of the High Court on remand, see 6 C. 356. There is no implied warranty of title either by the decree-holder or the Court, in execution sales and the statutory right recognised by Or. XXI, r. 93 is confined to the case where the sale of the property is set aside under Or. XXI, r. 92—Dayaldas v. Shankar, 27 N. L. R. 318: 14 N. L. J. 20: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 116: 134 I. C. 269. Where the decree-holder auction-purchaser lost one-half of the properties owing to a third rival party successfully establishing his title to the same and it appeared that the judgment-debtors had at no time made any representation regarding their title to the entire property, the decree-holder purchaser could recover one-half of the purchase-money from the judgment-debtors—Anand v. Kishan, 53 A. 496: 29 A. L. J. 228: 132 I. C. 417: A. I. R. 1931 All. 377.

An auction-purchaser who has deposited his money in Court can, if he finds that no interest in the property has passed to him, only apply under Or. XXI, r. 93 before confirmation. Difference between the old and the new law pointed out.—Subbu Reddi v. Ponnambala Reddi, (1918) M. W. N. 655.

A purchaser at a Court-sale who was afterwards deprived of the property by a person claiming a title paramount, has a right to recover his money by an application under this rule, but has no right to recover it by a regular suit.—Ram Dayal v. Rampal Singh, 22 O. C. 42: 51 I. C. 95.

To entitle a purchaser, under this rule, to a refund of the purchase-money, it is not necessary that a Court should have decided in other proceedings that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold, or that the purchaser should have obtained actual possession, and have been deprived thereof—Sivarama v. Rama, 8 M. 99.

This rule empowers the auction-purchaser to require re-payment, but does not impose upon the decree-holder the duty of tendering the money, as soon as the sale is set aside. The decree-holder is not bound to do anything, except pay on demand. The judgment-debtor's action in getting the sale set aside does not therefore injure the decree-holder, until he is compelled to refund the purchase-money to the purchaser, and until then he has no right to call upon the judgment-debtor to pay his debt a second time.—Ramneedi Venkata v. Ayyanna, 30 M. 209: 17 M. L. J. 194.

An auction-purchaser sued the decree-holder for interest on the purchase-money and expenses of the sale, the purchase-money having been returned to him under the order of the Court executing the decree without interest and less such expenses. Held that the suit was maintainable.—Raghubar Dayal v. The Bank of Upper India Ltd., 5 A. 364 (F. B.).

A decree-holder fraudulently caused the sale of certain property belonging to a minor. The minor brought a suit against the auction-purchaser, and obtained a decree for possession. The auction-purchaser sued the decree-holder to recover his purchase-money and the costs incurred by him in defending the suit brought by the minor. Held that he, being innocent of the fraud, and having purchased in the bona fide belief that the property of the minor was saleable, was entitled to recover the purchase-money.—Makundi Lal v. Kaunsila, 1 A. 568 (F. B.) (N. W. P. H. C. R., 1874, p. 168 distinguished).

At the Registrar's sale, the auction-purchaser was allowed to apply to set aside the sale on the ground of material mis-description of the property and to get a refund of his purchase-money.—Aghore Nath v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 30 C. 469 (5 C. W. N. 593 referred to). The purchaser was allowed to rescind the sale and to a refund of his purchase-money on the ground of deficiency in area.—Bank of Bengal v. Akhoy Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 365.

A purchaser at a Court-sale which had been subsequently set aside obtaining an order for refund of the purchase-money, can execute the order as if it were a decree.—Venkataramanamurthi v. Sundara Ramiah, 23 M. L. T. 355: 47 I. C. 630.

Suit for refund of purchase-money, where no saleable interest.—There is a conflict of authorities on the question whether under this rule (where the judgment-debtor is found to have no saleable interest in the property) the auction-purchaser is competent to bring a separate suit for refund of the purchase-money in addition to the remedy he has under this rule to apply for a refund.

It was held under the old Code that a purchaser at an execution sale can maintain a suit against the decree-holder for recovery of his purchase-money, where it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property sold, and he is not entitled to the special procedure in the execution department mentioned in S. 315 (r. 93).—Munna Singh v. Gajadhar Singh, 5 A. 577 (F. B.) (followed in Kishun Lal v. Muhammad Safdar Ali, 13 A. 383; Gurshidawa v. Gangaya, 22 B. 783, Pachayappan v. Narayana, 11 M. 269; Hari Doyal v. Sheikh Samsuddin, 5 C. W. N. 240; Nityanund v. Juggat, 7 C. W. N. 105, Shanto Chandar v. Nain Sukh, 23 A. 355; Girdhar Das v. Sidheshwari Prashad, 40 A. 411: 16 A. L. J. 236: 44 I. C. 697; Surendra v. Beni Madhab, 10 C. W. N. 274; Makar Ali v. Sarfuddin, 50 C. 115: 70 I. C. 606: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 85; Tirumalaisami v. Subramanian, 40 M. 1009: 45 I. C. 109). It was also held under S. 315 that whether the auction-purchaser proceeded by an application under that section or by a regular suit, he was not entitled to receive back his purchase-money unless the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest at all; if the judgment-debtor had some saleable interest in the property, however small, he could not, by suit, any more than by application, obtain a refund of the purchase-money in proportion to the extent to which the judgment-debtor had no interest.—Bhagwan Das v. Alla Bakhsh, 52 P. R. 1919; Shanto Chandar v. Nain Sukh, 23 A. 355; Muhammad v. Bachcho, 27 A. 537; Sundara v. Venkata, 17 M. 223. It was held under the old Code, that the purchaser was entitled to proceed by way of suit even after rateable distribution against those among whom the purchase-money was distributed; Kishun Lal v. Muhammad, 13 A. 383; Girdhar Das v. Sidheshwari, 40 A. 411: 44 I. C. 697.

Under the present Code an auction-purchaser is not entitled—as he was under the old Code—to bring a regular suit for a return of the purchase-money in cases where the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property; Nannu v. Bhagwan Das, 39 A. 114; Ram Sarup v. Dalpat, 43 A. 60 : 58 I. C. 105 ; Mohideen v. Mahomed, 23 M. L. J. 487 ; Tirumalaisami v. Subramanian, 40 M. 1009 : 45 I. C. 109 ; Subbu v. Ponambala, (1918) M. W. N. 655 : 49 I. C. 359 ; Balvant v. Bala, 46 B. 833 : 67 I. C. 360 : A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 205 ; Juranu v. Jathi, 22 C. W. N. 760 : 46 I. C. 783 ; Banka v. Guru Das, 28 C. W. N. 20 : 80 I. C. 257 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 172 ; Habibuddin v. Hatim, 6 L. 283 : 86 I. C. 622 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 467 ; Cassim Singh v. S. S. A. O. Chetty Firm, 52 I. C. 174 ; Maung Naung v. Maung Ba Gyi, 6 R. 468 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 272. But he can bring such a suit if he can bring himself within the equitable principles which justify a suit for money had and received to his use.—Rishikesh v. Manik, 53 C. 758 : 96 I. C. 64 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 971.

A purchaser at a Court-sale who is afterwards deprived of the property by a person claiming a paramount title has no right to sue for refund of the purchase-money from the person to whom it is paid.—Ram Dayal v. Ram-pal, 22 O. C. 42 : 51 I. C. 95 ; Lakshmi Chand v. Chaturbhuj, 65 I. C. 230 (39 M. 803 followed ; 39 A. 114, 36 A. 529, 37 C. 67 and 35 B. 29, refd. to). But see Bahadur Singh v. Ram Phal, 5 Luck. 552 : 124 I. C. 641 : 7 O. W. N. 232 : A. I. R. 1930 Oudh 148 (F. B.) which has held that when a person purchases immoveable property at an auction-sale in execution of a decree and subsequently loses the same under the decree passed in a suit brought by a third party against the purchaser, the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, such a purchaser is entitled to bring a suit for the recovery of the purchase-money as against the decree-holder. The procedure prescribed by this rule is by summary application within a limited time. So, where a purchaser after confirmation of sale succeeded in establishing his title to the property in a suit under S. 283, C. P. Code, 1882 (r. 63), and then sued for the refund of his purchase-money, held, that the suit was maintainable. There is no warranty of title in sales under a decree of a Court.—Sumer Chand v. Wahid Husain, 3 A. L. J. 819 : 6 A. W. N. 310. But see Dewaji v. Amrita Bai, 52 I. C. 818 : 15 N. L. R. 140.

A decree-holder fraudulently caused the sale in execution of his decree of certain immoveable property belonging to a minor. The minor brought a suit to set aside the sale and obtained a decree against the purchaser. The auction-purchaser then sued the decree-holder to recover his purchase-money and the costs incurred by him in defending the suit brought by the minor. Held, that he being innocent of fraud, and having purchased in the bona fide belief that the property of the minor was saleable was entitled to recover the purchase-money, but not the costs.—Makundi Lal v. Kaunsila, 1 A. 568 (F. B.) (N. W. P. H. C. R., 1874, p. 163 distinguished).

Fraud or neglect of duty entitles the auction-purchaser to a suit for refund of the purchase-money. Where therefore by gross neglect the decree-holder described the whole field as belonging to the judgment-debtor and the auction-purchaser paid full price in the belief that the whole field was being sold and he was subsequently deprived of the possession of half the field as it did not belong to the judgment-debtor, it was held that he was entitled to be compensated by the decree-holder to that extent.—Dayaldas v. Shankar, A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 116 : 134 I. C. 269 : 27 N. L. R. 318 : 14 N. L. J. 20.

A purchaser of an occupancy holding sold in execution of a decree obtained by the mortgagee of the property took possession of it but having been afterwards ejected therefrom by the landlords, sued to recover the purchase-money with interest. Held, that under the present C. P. Code, the suit was incompetent.—Juranu Mahamad v. Jathi Muhamad, 22 C. W. N. 760 : 46 I. C. 783. The sale must be set aside before a purchaser can recover back his purchase-money; Balvant v. Bala, 67 I. C. 360; Nannu v. Bhagwan, 39 A. 114 : 37 I. C. 9; Banka v. Guru, 28 C. W. N. 20; Makar Ali v. Sarfaddin, 27 C. W. N. 183 : 70 I. C. 606; Ram Sarup v. Dalpat Rai, 43 A. 60. When the sale is set aside by reason of irregularities committed by the decree-holder, the purchaser will be entitled to bring a suit for recovery of the poundage-fee and interest on the purchase-money paid.—Parvathi v. Govinda Sami, 39 M. 803; Najibullah v. Jainarain, 36 A. 529.

Where the judgment-debtor is found to have had no saleable interest, the remedy of the purchaser is not limited to an application under this rule, but he can maintain a suit for refund of the purchase-money even though he did not ask to set aside the auction-sale, Prasanna v. Ibrahim, 36 C. L. J. 205 : 41 I. C. 924; Asadullah v. Karam Chand, 4 L. 354. The weight of authority however is decidedly against this view (vide the cases noted above).

"Any person to whom the money has been paid."—This includes a decree-holder who has obtained a rateable share of the sale proceeds under S. 73, C. P. Code.—Kishunlal v. Muhammad, 13 A. 383.

Appeal and revision.—An order under this rule for refund is not a decree, and no appeal therefore lies; Lingam Krishna v. Jogani Venkataswamy, 33 I. C. 235 : 3 L. W. 105 (1916) 1 M. W. N. 109, but is capable of revision under S. 115; Kunhamed v. Chathu, 9 M. 437; Lingam Krishna v. Jogani Venkataswamy, 33 I. C. 235 : 3 L. W. 105.

Limitation.—Under Art. 181 of the Limitation Act, the period of limitation for an application under this rule is 3 years from the accrual of the right.—Giridhari v. Sital, 11 A. 372.

A suit under S. 315 of the old Code brought by an auction-purchaser for a refund of his purchase-money was governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act, and the period was 6 years from the accrual of the right.—Nilakanta v. Imamsahib, 16 M. 361; Sidheswari v. Goshain, 35 A. 419.

"With or without interest."—When a person claims more than he is entitled to, the Court can refuse interest.—Moulvie Abdul Hye v. Macrae, 23 W. R. 1; Nafar Chandra v. Gopal Chandra, 19 C. L. J. 358. When it is proved that the purchaser has contributed to the loss he has sustained, no interest should be allowed.—Kunhi v. Tarayil, 8 M. 101. While setting aside a sale the Court has power under this rule to direct the decree-holder to refund the purchase-money with interest for the period during which the decree-holder had use of the money.—Maharaj Bahadur Singh v. A. H. Forbes, 33 C. L. J. 176 (P. O.) : 25 C. W. N. 366. The Court's discretion in the matter must proceed on sound judicial principles.—Gorind Lal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 30 P. L. R. 439 : 116 I. C. 715 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 617.

94. Where a sale of immoveable property has become absolute, the Court shall grant a certificate specifying the property sold and the name of the person who at the time of sale is declared to be the purchaser. Such certificate shall bear date the day on which the sale became absolute.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to the first part of S. 316 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The latter part of the old section has been embodied in S. 65 of this Code. This rule is to be read with S. 65, where all the cases bearing upon this rule have been noted.

The word "specifying" has been substituted for the word "stating" which occurred in the old Code; and the words, "such certificate shall bear date the day on which the sale became absolute," have been added. These words have been added adopting the view expressed in 30 A. 390. In 3 B. 433 and in 17 B. 228, a contrary view was expressed.

Scope of S. 316 of the C. P. Code, 1882, examined in Bhawani Koer v. Mathura Prasad, 7 C. L. J. 1.

Sale certificate.—A sale certificate merely records an accomplished fact, and states what has been sold; it does not create title but is merely evidence of title; Basir Ali v. Hafiz Nasir, 43 C. 124, 129; Promotha v. Saurav Dasi, 24 C. W. N. 1011: 47 C. 1108: 58 I. C. 327.

The right of the purchaser to compensation for deficiency in the area of the property sold, founded upon a condition in the sale notification is not affected by the issue of the sale certificate.—Shailabala v. Jnanendra Nath, 57 C. 783: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 821.

"The Court shall grant a certificate."—The provisions of this rule are mandatory, and a Court has no power to refuse a sale certificate to an auction-purchaser; Baikunti v. Narinda Sundari, 38 I. C. 576: 3 P. L. W. 76: 1 P. L. J. 446. The Judge is functus officio when he signs the certificate of sale and hands it over to the purchaser. If he directs additional stamps to be affixed on a later occasion he does not act judicially.—Collector of Ahmednagar v. Rambhau, 128 I. C. 31: 32 Bom. L. R. 1084: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 392 (F. B.).

It is duty of the purchaser to bear the expense of the proper stamps for a certificate of sale which the Court has to issue to him.—Ibid.

Construction of sale certificate.—The certificate of sale is not conclusive as to the property sold at an execution sale. In order to determine the title of the purchaser, it is to be seen what was actually offered for sale and bid for. What was offered for sale is to be ascertained by the decree, by the order of the Court and the sale proclamation: and if the order has been carried out and the property sold accordingly, that sale and nothing else must be taken to have been confirmed, whatever words of description referring to the transaction may have been inserted in the order confirming it or the certificate stating it.—Balvant v. Hirachand, 27 B. 334 (32 W. R. 181 and 408, 14 W. R. 435, and 15 C. 546, referred to and distinguished). See also Assamatham Nessa v. Lutchmeeput, 4 C. 142 (F. B.).

Where a purchaser buys property in a Court auction, he buys what the Court purports to sell, and when the Court gives him a certificate that the property which he buys is sold to him without any limitation, it is not open to the Court, in a subsequent proceeding, to go behind the sale certificate and say that what purports to have been conveyed was not conveyed; Natesa Pather v. Ganapathi, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 311: 52 M. L. J. 68.

A certificate of sale issued by a Court is a document of title, and it ought not to be lightly regarded or loosely construed. Where therefore, in pursuance of such a certificate the purchaser is placed in possession of the property described therein, and there is no ambiguity in the words of the certificate, it is not within the competency of the Court, in a suit brought by the judgment-debtor, to construe the certificate by reference to other documents, and to place a limitation upon the extent of the property to which it refers, as to do so would defeat the object of the certificate; Ramabhadra v. Kadiriyasami, 44 M. 483 (P. C.): 63 I. C. 708: (1921) M. W. N. 374: 14 L. W. 125.

The terms "right, title and interest of the debtors" as used in the sale certificate and in the order confirming the sale must be construed with reference to the circumstances under which the suit was brought and the true meaning of the decree under which the sale took place as well as all proceedings leading up to sale.—Akhoy Kumar v. Bejoy Chand, 29 C. 813: 7 C. W. N. 54 (7 C. 357 referred to).

Mere inaccuracy of language or misdescription will not vitiate a sale certificate. The intention of the parties must be looked to.—Moula Buksk v. Kuruck Lall, 7 W. R. 245; Manson v. Golam Kebria, 15 W. R. 490; Taranath v. Joy Soonduree, 21 W. R. 93.

Where a sale certificate declares the sale of the rights of a particular party in land of which the identity is not in dispute, the mere misdescription of the rights so transferred does not constitute a difficulty in the way of giving the purchaser possession.—Kuleemooddeen v. Ashruf Ali, 19 W. R. 276.

The Court in construing a sale certificate refused to go into facts lying behind it for the purpose of contradicting its terms.—Lalla Bissessur v. Doolar Chand, 22 W. R. 181; Pearee Mohun v. Gosto Behary, 26 W. R. 104.

Where a sale certificate, though containing errors, was accurate as to any part of the description of the subject of sale, and could be used to identify it, with the assistance of extraneous evidence, such evidence could be received to show what was intended to be dealt with.—Maleebun v. Raseeda, 25 W. R. 401. Reference may be made to the mortgage bond which culminated in the sale for the purpose of identifying the property which was purported to be sold under the sale certificate.—Promotha v. Nagendra, 33 C. W. N. 1211.

Variance between proclamation of sale and sale certificate.—Where there is a discrepancy between the descriptions in the sale proclamation of what is to be sold and the certificate of what has been sold, the descriptions in the proclamation of sale are to be taken as of superior authority in dealing with cases whose rights are affected
A. R. 460; Thakur Barmha

v. Haji Kassim, 16 M. 207. Similarly, where the proclamation stated that the entire interest of five brothers in a mortgaged property was to be sold, and by a mistake on the part of the officer conducting the sale, the sale certificate omitted to mention the names of four of them, it was held that what was sold to the purchaser was the property as described in the proclamation, and not the property as erroneously described in the sale certificate; Balvant v. Hira Chand, 27 B. 334; Christian v. Prasad, 4 P. 760: 90 I. C. 501: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 615.

Statement of jumma in a sale certificate, how far admissible in evidence.—Any statement as to rent payable for a holding, made by a person in a sale certificate, which was obtained by him as purchaser of the holding, at a sale in execution of a decree against the former tenant, being in the nature of an admission by him or his predecessor in the title, cannot be used as evidence on his behalf, as such a statement does not come within the exceptions to S. 21 of the Evidence Act.—Ramani Pershad v. Mahanth Adaiya Gossain, 31 C. 380.

Amendment of sale certificate.—A Court has an inherent jurisdiction to amend a sale certificate which incorrectly describes the property actually sold.—Nasiruddin v. Sayidur Rahman, 19 C. L. J. 209; Bujha Roy v. Ram Kumar, 26 C. 529: 3 C. W. N. 374; Saddo v. Bansi, 23 A. 476; Raja of Kalahasti v. Maharaja of Venkatagiri, 38 M. 387: 25 M. L. J. 198: 21 I. C. 389.

A Court has inherent power to correct a sale certificate, where it appears that the sale certificate includes properties which were not sold, though advertised for sale.—Gobinda Chandra v. Abhoy Charan, 12 C. W. N. 1027.

After the confirmation of sale, if it is found by the Court that there was a mistake in its own action, the Court may amend its order and grant a fresh sale certificate.—Mohesh Chunder v. Hori Mohan, 7 C. W. N. 388.

Where after the confirmation of sale an error in stating the boundaries given in the sale certificate is discovered, the Court has ample authority, as a Court of justice, equity and good conscience, to rectify the error and to mould the relief accordingly as between the original parties or their representatives in interest; Nandi Lal v. Jogendra, 28 C. W. N. 403: 82 I. C. 294: A. I. R. 1924 Cal 881.

No appeal lies against an order granting a review and directing the amendment of a sale certificate to correct the boundaries of the land sold; the only question in such a case being whether the certificate given to the auction-purchaser gives a right description of the property sold, and not one relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree within the meaning of S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47).—Bujha Roy v. Ram Kumar, 26 C. 529: 3 C. W. N. 374 (1 C. W. N. 658 approved). See also Mammod v. Locke, 20 M. 487. No appeal lies from an order refusing to amend a sale certificate.—Saddo Kunwar v. Bansi Dhar, 23 A. 476 (26 C. 529, and 18 A. 36 referred to).

No appeal lies against an order refusing to grant a sale certificate to the decree-holder auction-purchaser; the question determined being not one relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. The decree-holder auction-purchaser, is a party to the suit, within the meaning of S. 47.—Jagannath v. Kartick Nath, 7 C. L. J. 436 (1 C. W. N. 658 applied; 18 A. 36 not followed; 27 C. 34 followed).

Registration of sale certificate.—Section 17 of the Registration Act, Cl. (xii) provides that the registration of a certificate of sale granted to the purchaser of any property sold by public auction by a Civil or Revenue Officer is optional. Under S. 89 of the said Act, a copy of the certificate is to be sent by the Court to the Registering Officer.

A certificate of sale issued by a Court under S. 316, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 94), if duly registered, takes effect, under S. 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, against all unregistered incumbrances.—Ramaraja v. Arunachala, 7 M. 248 (6 B. 193 followed). But see Narasayya v. Jungam, 7 M. 418; and Maganlal v. Shakra Girdhar, 22 B. 945.

Section 50 of the Registration Act, 1877, affects alike documents which it is optional, as well as those which it is compulsory, to register, and its effect is not modified by the fact that the subsequent registered purchaser buys with full notice of a prior unregistered incumbrance.—Nallappa v. Ibram Sahib, 5 M. 73 (5 C. 336 discussed).

Sale certificate cures all irregularities.—All irregularities, though material, are cured by the certificate of sale.—Balkrishna v. Masuma, 5 A. 142 (P. C.) : 9 I. A. 182 : 13 Ch. R. 232 ; Naigar v. Bhaskar, 10 B. 444.

What passes at a Court-sale.—What passes to the purchaser at a Court-sale is the "right, title and interest" of the judgment-debtor, whatever that interest may be ; in other words, in the case of a Court-sale there is no warranty of title either by the decree-holder or by the Court. The purchaser buys the property with all risks and all defects in the judgment-debtor's title except as provided by rr. 91 and 93 ; and in the absence of fraud, his only remedy is to recover back his purchase-money, where it is found that the judgment-debtor had no saleable interest in the property at all, and he cannot by suit or application, obtain a refund in proportion to the extent to which the judgment-debtor had no interest.—Dorab Ally v. Moheesooddeen, 5 I. A. 116 : 3 C. 806 (P. C.) ; Shanto Chandar v. Nain Sukh, 23 A. 335 ; Sundara v. Venkata, 17 M. 228 ; Moitheensa v. Apsa, 36 M. 194 ; Sobhagchand v. Bhaichand, 6 B. 193.

When in a mortgage suit an interim receiver was appointed and the properties were sold in execution, and the sale was made absolute and a certificate granted to the purchaser, it is the purchaser and not the receiver who is entitled subsequently to sue for possession of the property.—Abdulla v. B. K. Chatterji, 9 R. 565.

Title of purchaser without certificate.—A purchaser of immoveable property at an execution sale can establish his title by evidence independently of the sale-certificate ; the sale-certificate is not the title but merely the title-deed.—Tantardhari v. Sundar Lal, 7 C. L. J. 384 (27 B. 379 and 5 A. 305 followed). See also Khobhari Singh v. Ram Prosad, 7 C. L. J. 387 ; Braja Nath v. Joggeswar, 9 C. L. J. 346 ; Lakshan Chandra v. Ramdas, 33 C. W. N. 795 : 118 I. O. 857 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 374.

A purchaser of immoveable property at a Court-sale, who has been put into possession by the Court, has thereupon a complete title against all persons bound by the decree, notwithstanding that he has no certificate of sale, or one only which has not been registered.—Shivram Narayan v. Rayji, 7 B. 254 (21 W. R. 349 followed). See also Felan v. Kumarasami, 11 M. 296.

The order confirming a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree is sufficient to pass the title in the property to the purchaser, and its production is sufficient evidence of the purchaser's title. The production of the sale-certificate is not essential.—Tara Prasad v. Nund Kishore, 9 C. 842: 12 C. L. R. 448; and Doorga Narain v. Baney Madhub, 7 C. 199 (207). See also Jagan Nath v. Baldeo, 5 A. 305 (F. B.); Kalee Das v. Hur Nath, W. R. (1864) 279; and Khushal Pana Chand v. Abai, 12 B. 589.

If it is admitted that the plaintiff purchased immoveable property at a Court-sale, he can recover without producing the certificate of sale.—Sadagopa v. Jamuna Bhai, 5 M. 54. See also Naigar Timapa v. Bhaskar Parmaya, 10 B. 444; and Muzaffar Husain v. Ali Husain, 5 A. 297.

The term "purchaser" includes his representatives.—When a sale in execution has become absolute, the Court can, under this section, grant the certificate prescribed therein to the representatives of a deceased purchaser.—Re Vinayak Narayan, 24 B. 120.

Limitation.—The provisions of Or. XXI, r. 94, are mandatory, and impose a positive and imperative duty upon the Court in the matter of granting a sale certificate.—Baikunt Misser v. Narinda Sundari, 1 P. L. J. 446. The provisions of the Limitation Act do not apply to applications for a sale certificate. If the Court, therefore, fails to issue a sale certificate and the purchaser has in consequence to apply to the Court for a grant of the certificate the application may be made at any time.—Kylasa v. Ramasami, 4 M. 172; Vithal v. Vithojirav, 6 B. 586.

Stamp on an application for sale certificate.—An application by an auction-purchaser for a certificate of sale, need bear no Court-fee stamp, since by S. 316, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 94), it is not even required to be in writing.—Hira Ambaidas v. Tekchand Ambaidas, 13 B. 670.

See notes under S. 65.

pancy of the judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf or of some person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequently to the attachment of such property and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under rule 94, the Court shall, on the application of the purchaser order delivery to be made by putting such purchaser or any person whom he may appoint to receive delivery on his behalf in possession of the property, and, if need be, by removing any person who refuses to vacate the same.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 318, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. The word "immoveable" has been added before the word "property," the word "where" has been substituted for the word "when" and the word "such" has been substituted for the word "the," after the word "putting." These are the only changes introduced in this rule.

Scope of the rule.—The jurisdiction under this rule exists only when immoveable property is in the occupancy of the judgment-debtor or of some person on his behalf or of some person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequent to the attachment of such property. A prior mortgagee who purchased property in execution of his own mortgage decree is not a judgment-debtor within the meaning of r. 95 —Gangadhar v. Lakshman, 125 I. C. 905; 32 Bom. L. R. 431; A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 221.

"Subsequently to the attachment."—Or. XXI, r. 95 provides that a purchaser shall be entitled to be put in possession of the property brought by him, if it is in the possession of a person claiming under a title created by the judgment-debtor subsequent to the attachment of the property.—Cooverji Hirji v. Dewsey Bhoja, 17 B. 718 (722). He is not, however, entitled to obtain summary possession from the lessee pendente lite of the judgment-debtor and must bring a suit for possession.—Santamoney v. Kedar Nath, 3 C. W. N. 12-n.

Purchaser of undivided share.—The purchaser of a share in undivided joint family property, cannot be put in joint possession of the share purchased by him with the other members of the family, his proper remedy is by a suit for partition.—Balaji Anant v. Ganesh Janardan, 5 B. 499; Maruti v. Lila Chand, 6 B. 564, Yelumalai v. Srinivasa, 29 M. 294. See also Mandavilli Ramarow v. Sivanarayana, 25 M. L. T. 153; 9 L. W. 81; 49 I. C. 629. The only way of a purchaser of a share in a property getting a valid and effective delivery of possession sufficient to give him a fresh start for limitation is by getting delivery under Or. XXI, r. 95. On general principles possession for the purpose of r. 95 must mean such possession as the nature of the property is capable of. The word possession in Art 142 of the Limitation Act should not be read to denote 'occupation' or 'detention' merely, it certainly includes constructive possession—Gulab Khan v. Ataullah, 5 O. W. N. 372; 110 I. C. 70; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 251 (F. B). But see Indrasa v. Sadu, 5 B. 505-note; and Cooverji Hirji v. Dewsey Bhoja, 17 B. 718 (721), where it has been held that when the whole right of the family in the property has been sold, the purchaser is entitled to possession of what he has bought, without any necessity for partition.

Putting the purchaser in possession.—Khas or actual possession is contemplated by this rule. A Court has jurisdiction to issue an order for khas possession, although in the first instance it passed an order for giving formal possession.—Hur Kishore v. Sudoy Chunder, 17 W. R. 80 (9 W. R. 459; and 12 W. R. 285, followed).

It is not necessary that in every case delivery of possession of the property must be taken through Court. It is possible that by an amicable arrangement possession is given up by the judgment-debtor and in such a case the law does not require that the auction-purchaser should proceed by way of an application under r. 95.—Jadav Chandra v. Akrur Chandra, 128 I. C. 244; 51 C. L. J. 560; 34 C. W. N. 1059; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 596.

The purchaser of an usufructuary mortgage-debt, whether or not he be the decree-holder, cannot get anything more from the executing Court than his sale-certificate. He cannot apply for delivery of possession under this rule, the mode of delivery contemplated in such a case being that prescribed by Or. XXI, r. 79 (3)—Sinna Pillai v. Karuppatti, (1932) M. W. N. 292; A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 283.

Successive applications.—If one application proves infructuous, another application may be made 'if it be within the period of limitation prescribed by Art. 167 of the First Schedule of the Limitation Act.—Raghunandan v. Ramcharan, 49 I. C. 150 (F. B.).

Separate suit for possession.—A decree-holder who at a sale held in execution of his money or mortgage-decree, purchases the property of the judgment-debtor, is in the same position as an ordinary purchaser; and if after confirmation of sale he fails to obtain possession from the judgment-debtor, he may claim possession either under this rule or r. 96 or by a separate suit and S. 214, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47) is not a bar to such a suit.—Bhagwati v. Banwari Lal, 31 A. 82 (F. B.) (30 A. 72 overruled; 27 C. 34 and 26 M. 740 dissented from; 6 C. L. J. 749 followed). In this Full Bench case all the rulings of the several High Courts have been referred to, considered and discussed. See also Chotharam v. Mussammatt Karmon Bai, 8 P. R. 1918; 44 I. C. 169; Buddhu v. Bhagirathi, 40 A. 316; Sasi Bhusan v. Radha Nath, 19 C. W. N. 835, Goba Nathu v. Sakha Ram, 44 B. 977; Sridhar v. Jogeshwar, 4 P. L. J. 716. For this purpose there is no distinction between a decree-holder purchaser and a third party purchaser; Tribeni v. Ramasray, 10 P. 670; 12 P. L. T. 423; 133 I. C. 337; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 241 (F. B.); Chotelal v. Sarwan, 28 N. L. R. 250; A. I. R. 1932 Nag. 140.

An auction-purchaser, even when he is the decree-holder himself, is not bound under this rule to apply for recovery of possession of the property but may maintain a separate suit for recovery of possession of the property purchased.—Panchanan v. Sukhamoy, 50 I. C. 299.

A suit by an auction-purchaser, to obtain possession of land, the subject-matter of his purchase, will lie when it is shown that an attempt has been made to obtain possession in execution-proceedings, and that such attempt has been unsuccessful.—Iswar Pershad v. Jai Narain, 12 C. 169 (10 C. L. R. 258 explained). See also Seru Mohun v. Bhagoban Din, 9 C. 602; Balvant Santaram v. Babaji Bin, 8 B. 602; Kishori Mohun v. Chunder Nath, 14 C. 644, Sevu v. Muttu Sami, 10 M. 53; Shankar v. Narsingrav, 22 B. 667; and Sheo Narain v. Nur Muhammad, 29 A. 463; 4 A. L. J. 434. Where neither the application nor the writ for delivery of possession specified the particular immoveable property to be delivered and the bailiff purported to give possession of such property, the delivery is without effect and the judgment-debtor's possession continues as before; if the auction-purchaser claims that the property passed to him under the purchase he must establish it in a separate suit.—Abdul Mokut v. Abdul Rashid, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 391.

After formal possession, a suit is maintainable for actual possession, and not barred by S. 47. The limitation applicable is that governing suits and not execution-proceedings.—Jagan Nath v. Milap Chand, 28 A. 722; 3 A. L. J. 504.

Limitation.—The period of limitation for an application by the purchaser for delivery of possession is three years from the date when the sale becomes absolute, under Art. 180 of the Limitation Act. The period of 3 years is to be counted from the date of confirmation of sale and not from any later date such as the date of the issue of the sale-certificate.—Anarjan Bibi v. Chandramani, 54 C. L. J. 241; 134 I. C. 1188. The period of limitation for a suit for delivery of possession is 12 years under Art. 138.

Effect of formal possession in saving limitations in suits for actual possession.—Symbolical possession does not amount to dispossession as contemplated by S. 335, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, rr. 97, 99, 103).—Ibrahim Mullick v. Ramjadu, 30 C. 710.

Where possession of property purchased at an auction-sale in execution of a decree is formally given by the Court under S. 318, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 95), although the actual possession may remain with the judgment-debtor, the date of the granting of such formal possession forms, as against the judgment-debtor, a fresh starting point for limitation in respect of a suit, brought by the auction-purchaser or his representative for possession of the property sold. The period of limitation for such a suit is 12 years from the date when the auction-purchaser obtains symbolical possession.—Hari Mohan v. Baburahi, 24 C. 715; Mangli Prasad v. Debi Din, 19 A. 499; Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A. 269; Jagan Nath v. Milap Chand, 28 A. 722; 3 A. L. J. 504; Juggobundhu v. Ram Chunder, 5 C. 584 (F. B.); Jogobundhu Muller v. Purnamund, 16 C. 530 (F. B.) (10 C. 402 overruled). (This decision in effect also overrules the case reported in 2 B. L. R. Ap 29 · 24 W. R. 419-note). See also Mahadeo v. Parashram, 25 Bom. 359 and Gopal v. Krishna Rao, 25 Bom. 275, where it has been further held that Arts. 136, 137 and 138 of the Limitation Act refer to cases where no possession (formal or actual) has been obtained through the Court; Art. 136 applies to a private purchaser from a person not in possession; Art. 137 applies to an auction-purchaser of the rights of a person not in possession; Art. 138 applies when the actual purchase is made of the rights of a judgment-debtor, who is in possession at the date of the sale; and Art. 144 applies when an auction-purchaser or his assignee has obtained formal possession, but is disturbed by the judgment-debtor or his heirs who have continued in actual possession.

In cases where the judgment-debtor is in actual possession, the purchaser ought to take actual possession and mere symbolical possession will be of no avail, and it will not give him a starting point for the purpose of limitation in a suit to recover possession.—Shridhar v. Ganpati, 43 B. 559, 51 I. C. 72. But see Bhulu v. Jatindra, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 138; 27 C. W. N. 24.

The auction-purchasers having been resisted in obtaining possession of the property purchased by a judgment-debtor, sued for possession the same was fraudulent and the limitation governing the suit was not Arts. 91 and 95, but Art. 138 of the Limitation Act, 1877—Uma Shankar v. Kalka Prasad, 6 A. 75.

Art. 138, and not Art. 136 of the Limitation Act, is applicable to a suit brought by the assignee of an auction-purchaser to obtain possession of the land.—Arumuga v. Chockalingan, 15 M. 331. Followed in Pullayya v. Ramayya, 18 Mad. 144 (approved in Sati Prasad v. Jogesh Chandra, 31 Cal. 681 (F. B.); 8 C. W. N. 476, (F. B.); 23 Cal. 49 overruled). See also, Venkata Lingam v. Veerasami, 17 M. 89 (14 C. 644, and 2 C. 145 followed).

See also notes under Or. XXI, r. 96.

Application for possession is a step-in-aid of execution.—An application by a decree-holder to be put in possession of the property which he purchased in execution of his decree, is a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act.—Sariatoolla v. Raj Kumar, 27 C. 709; 4 C. W. N. 681. See also Moti Lal v. Makund Singh, 19 A. 477; Bhagwati v. Banwari, 31 A. 82, (F. B.); and Prem Krishna v. Juramoni, 13 C. W. N. 694 (10 C. W. N. 23 followed; 27 Cal. 709 referred to).

Proceedings taken by a purchaser decree-holder under this rule, whether comes within the meaning of S. 47.—Section 47 of the C. P. Code has no application to a suit brought by a decree-holder (who has with the Court's permission purchased the judgment-debtor's property for recovery of possession of that property on the strength of the sale to him). Nor is such a suit barred because the plaintiff had failed to avail himself of the summary remedy provided by r. 95.—Chotha Ram v. Karmon Bai, 8 P. R. 1918; 44 I. C. 169. See also 5 C. W. N. 103 (F. B.).

The effect of objection being disallowed.—The word "disallowed" in this rule has no reference to an order passed on an appeal, but refers to the disallowance of the objection by the Court before which the proceedings under this rule are taken.—Mahomed Hossein v. Purundur Mahto, 11 C. 237.

An objection by a judgment-debtor to a sale in execution of a decree on the ground that the property which was the subject of the sale was not legally saleable, is not a matter which can be entertained under this rule so as to afford a ground for setting aside the sale on account of material irregularity in publishing or conducting it.—Ram Chhaibar v. Bechu, 7 A. 641.

An application by an auction-purchaser to set aside a sale on the ground of his having been deceived as to the extent of the estate sold, does not fall within the provisions of this rule or r. 91, and in the absence of a case falling within those rules, r. 92 requires that the sale should be confirmed.—Birj Mohun v. Rai Uma Nath, 20 C. 8 (P.C.). See also Khetter Nath v. Faizuddin, 24 C. 682, where it has been held that, unless a sale is set aside under r. 89 or r. 90 the Court is bound to confirm the sale under r. 92.

The confirmation of a sale is no bar to an application by the judgment-debtor to have it declared that in execution of the decree the property which had been sold could not be sold; that he had no disposing power in it, and therefore the sale passed no interest to the purchaser, and the enquiry which should have to be made upon an application like this would be an enquiry under the provisions of S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47), uncontrolled by rr. 90 and 93.—Durga Churn v. Kali Prosonno, 3 C. W. N. 586; 26 C. 727 (8 A. 146 and 24 C. 355 referred to)

Appeal against orders under this rule.—The Patna High Court has held that no appeal lies from an order under this rule; Haji Abdul Ghani v. Raja Ram, 1 P. L. J. 232 (F. B.); Ramkumar v. Ramcharan, 9 P. 715; 126 I. C. 849; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 311. The decisions of the Calcutta High Court are conflicting on this point; in some cases it was held that an appeal lay (Madhusudan v. Gobinda, 27 C. 34; Sariatoolla v. Raj Kumar, 27 C. 709), while in others it was held that it did not lie (Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C. 737; Hari Charan v. Mon Mohan, 18 C. W. N. 27; Sasi Bhusan v. Badha Nath, 19 C. W. N. 835). In the Bombay High Court it has been held that an appeal lies; Sadashiv v. Narayan, 35 B. 452.

Revision.—Where the decree-holder or auction-purchaser is resisted in taking possession, and he applies again for delivery of possession without making an application under r. 97 and such application is refused by the lower Court : Held, that the High Court will not interfere in revision where the party has another remedy.—Raghunandan v. Ramcharan, 4 P. L. J. 94 : 49 I. C. 150 (F. B.).

96. Where the property sold is in the occupancy of a tenant or other person entitled to occupy the same and a certificate in respect thereof has been granted under rule 94, the Court shall, on the application of the purchaser, order delivery to be made by affixing a copy of the certificate of sale in some conspicuous place on the property, and proclaiming to the occupant by beat of drum or other customary mode, at some convenient place, that the interest of the judgment-debtor has been transferred to the purchaser. [S. 319.]

COMMENTARY

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 319 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

The words "on the application of the purchaser" have been added, after the words "Court shall"; the word "thereof," which occurred in the old section, after the word "delivery," has been omitted; and the words "or other customary mode" have been substituted for the words "or in such other mode as may be customary." These are the only changes introduced by this rule.

Delivery of possession to purchaser.—Symbolical possession is contemplated by this rule. Such symbolical possession is given only in cases when the party in actual possession is entitled under this rule to remain in such possession. It should not be confounded with cases where a party is entitled to actual possession but obtains only what is called a paper delivery, i. e., where he gets no possession at all.—Govindasami v. Pethaperumal, 44 I. C. 839.

Possession otherwise than by Court.—Section 264 of Act VIII of 1859 (which corresponds with this rule) did not limit the applicant to any particular manner of obtaining possession; and it contained nothing to prevent the purchaser at an execution sale from obtaining possession, if he could, without the assistance of the Court.—Obhoya Churn v. Rajendro Coomar, 22 W. R. 406.

Possession actually taken by a person having a right to it is not the less effective, as perfecting his title, by reason of an irregularity in taking it. Subsequent ouster will give rise to a new cause of action.—Lillu v. Annaji, 5 B. 387. See also Bandu v. Naba, 15 B. 238. See also Saligram v. Meheenalal, 2 Agra 235.

"A certificate in respect thereof has been granted."—It is not incumbent on the Court to put a purchaser into possession until he has his certificate of sale.—Tukaram v. Satcaji Khanduji, 5 B. 206; Basapa v. Marya, 3 B. 433.

"Order delivery to be made."—Under Ss. 318 and 319, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, rr. 95, 96), the Court executing the decree can only deliver possession in accordance with and over the property specified in the sale-certificate. Those sections do not contemplate an enquiry into the question of specific shares of property held by the several judgment-debtors and not set out either in the sale proclamation or sale certificate; and the Court has therefore no jurisdiction to direct delivery of possession contrary to the terms of the sale-certificate.—Ghulam Shabbir v. Dwarka Prasad, 18 A. 163.

Delivery of possession under r. 95 and dispossession of a tenant of the judgment-debtor thereunder, is not dispossession in due course of law within the meaning of S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act.—Muluk Patooni v. Bharat Chandra, 12 C. W. N. 694.

Effect of delivery of formal possession on the question of limitation.—A formal possession given by a Civil Court under an execution, operates in point of law and fact as a complete transfer of possession as between the parties to suit; but such possession has no such operation as against third persons who are not parties to the suit.—Lokessur Koer v. Purgun Roy, 7 C 418; Dhondiba Krishnaji v. Ram Chandra, 5 B. 554; Runjit Singh v. Bunwari Lal, 10 C 993 (5 C. 584 (F.B.) explained). See also Krishna Bhupati v. Ramamurti, 18 M. 405. But a third party will be affected, if such delivery of possession takes place in his presence and to his knowledge and he does not obstruct.—Kocherlakota v. Vadrevu, 27 M. 262. But see Mahadev v. Janu, 36 B. 373 (F. B.) : 14 Bom. L. R. 115.

Where possession of a property purchased in an execution sale is formally given by the Court under rr. 95 and 96, although the actual possession may remain with the judgment-debtor, the date of granting such formal possession forms, as against the judgment-debtor, a fresh starting point for limitation in respect of a suit for possession of the property sold, brought by the auction-purchaser or his representative.—Mangli Prasad v. Debi Din, 19 A 499; Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A 269; Hari Mohan v. Babur Ali, 24 C. 715; Joggobundhu v. Purnanund, 16 C. 530 (F. B.) (10 C. 402 overruled); Nasiruddin v. Sayudur Rahman, 19 C. L. J. 209; Juggobundhu v. Ram Chunder, 5 C. 584 (F. B.); Umbika Churn v. Madhub, 4 C. 870; 4 C. L. R. 35; Shama Churn v. Madhub Chundra, 11 C. 93; Gopal v. Krishna Rao, 25 B. 275; Mahadeo v. Parashram, 25 B. 358. By securing formal possession the purchaser merely starts a fresh period of limitation and becomes entitled to seek actual possession of his share by demanding partition; if he does not demand partition within 12 years, his right to possession is barred.—Niranyan Lal v. Jhamman Lal, 124 I. O. 767: A. I. R. 1931 All 234. Symbolical possession granted in execution proceedings when actual possession should have been delivered, puts an end to adverse possession and serves to give a fresh starting point for purposes of limitation.—Surja v. Mulchand, 126 I. C. 526: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 823. But symbolical possession given under this rule does not, as against third parties, entitle the person to whom such possession has been given to count a fresh period of limitation from the date of the possession.—Doyanidhi v. Kelai Panda, 11 C. L. R. 395; Kisori Lal v. Lala Shib Lal, 1 C. W. N. 343; Ram Chandra v. Ravji, 20 B. 351 (F. B.); Narain Das v. Lalta Prasad, 21 A. 269.

RESISTANCE TO DELIVERY OF POSSESSION TO DECREE-HOLDER OR PURCHASER.

97. (1) Where the holder of a decree for the possession of immoveable property or the purchaser of any such property sold in execution of a decree is resisted or obstructed by any person in obtaining possession of the property, he may make an application to the Court complaining of such resistance or obstruction.

(2) The Court shall fix a day for investigating the matter and shall summon the party against whom the application is made to appear and answer the same. [Ss. 328 & 334.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule lays down the provisions of Ss. 323 and 334 of the C. P. Code, 1832. The provisions of those two sections, which were almost similar, have been amalgamated in this rule in a more concise form. Section 323 of the C. P. Code, contained the procedure which was to be followed in cases of obstruction, or resistance to delivery of possession to the decree-holder; and S. 334, C. P. Code, contained the procedure in case of obstruction or resistance to the auction-purchaser in obtaining possession of immoveable property. But as the procedure in both the cases was almost similar, therefore the provisions of the above two sections have been embodied in this rule in an amended form, the retention of two separate sections being considered unnecessary. The wordings of the old sections have been changed, and they have been framed in such a way as to include the provisions contained in both the sections.

Comparison of rr. 97 to 103 with rr. 58 to 63.—Rules 58 to 63 and rr. 97 to 103 run on parallel lines. The former sections relate to the objections with regard to attachment of property at the instance of a claimant having some interest in or possession of the property while the latter relate person other than the judgment-debtor. As the former set of rules relates to the attachment of the property, rule 63 refers to a suit to establish the right which the plaintiff claims to the property in dispute. As the latter set of rules relates to possession, rule 103 refers to a suit to establish the right of the plaintiff to the property. Though the

Scope of the rule.—This rule provides a summary remedy but it does not preclude an aggrieved party from proceeding by way of a regular suit.—Ballaba v. Gulab, 57 I. C. 177. The rule does not apply where it is clear from the record that the investigation into the rights of the persons who had offered resistance had been started by the Court suo moto, on the receipt of a report from the Nazir and not on any application oral or written made by the decree-holder.—Mt. Talia Bibi v. Nur Din, 103 I. C. 614: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 672. The Court cannot, of its own motion, make any investigation into any matter relating to the resistance or obstruction to possession under r. 97 or dispossession under r. 100. While the remedy is optional, the person concerned must complain, before the Court can make an investigation and r. 103 shows that the order under rr. 98, 99 or 101 becomes conclusive only after such investigation as follows an application under rr. 99 or 100. If there is no application, there can be no investigation or order.—Milkh v. Basant, 132 I. C. 844: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 686. When rr. 97 and 98 contain definite provisions as to investigations to be made by the Court, the Court's action in staying the proceedings on the application of the obstructor that he was prosecuting a suit or appeal with respect to the property in dispute, amounts to a refusal of jurisdiction and cannot be justified under S. 151.—Mahboob Begum v. Ghulam, 119 I. C. 488: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 694. It is only the decree-holder or auction-purchaser who can make an application under r. 97.—Milkh v. Basant, 132 I. C. 844: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 686. Rule 97 applies only where the decree-holder, having obtained a general order of the character specified in r. 96, meets with resistance from any particular person. Then only an application under r. 97 is contemplated. Merely because an amicable delivery of the property is refused, the summary procedure under r. 97 cannot be resorted to. The dismissal of a mortgagee-purchaser's application for possession, where it is not preceded by a general order directing delivery of possession, does not fall under r. 97 so as to impose upon him the necessity of bringing a suit under r. 103 within one year from the order of dismissal (46 A. 693 dissented from).—Kiran Sashi v. Official Assignee of Calcutta, 36 C. W. N. 965.

"Holder of a decree for the possession of immoveable property."—A decree passed under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act is a decree for possession within the meaning of r. 97, and there is nothing in that rule which prevents its being applicable to such a decree; Banjoisi v. Sarasamman, (1926) M. W. N. 163: 92 I. C. 61: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 353.

Applicability of the rule.—This rule does not apply unless the auction-purchaser has made an attempt to obtain possession of the property either through Court or out of Court, and he is resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession; Sobha v. Tursi, 46 A. 693, 696: 83 I. C. 923: A. I. R. 1924 All. 495.

Where the judgment-creditor auction-purchaser alleged obstruction by the judgment-debtor and applied for delivery of possession, held, that the application was one under r. 97 and not under r. 95.—Hira Lal v. Ram Chandra, 54 B. 479: 125 I. C. 703: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 375. A decree for ejectment against a lessee can be executed against the sub-lessee because he is bound by the decree; it is not necessary to institute a separate proceeding under r. 97 against the sub-lessee.—Yusuf v. Jyotish Chandra, 35 C. W. N. 1132. See also Appa Rao v. Venkappa, 132 I. C. 301: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 534.

Rule 97 does not require any application in writing and presumably an oral application or an application which implies a prayer for an investigation under the rule would give jurisdiction to the Court to hold an investigation.—Gulab v. Chhuttan, 130 I. C. 520 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 13.

Regular suit.—This rule does not make it obligatory on a decree-holder or purchaser, who is obstructed in obtaining possession of the property, to pursue his remedy under this rule, and the failure of the decree-holder or purchaser to avail himself of the remedy under this rule does not prevent him from proceeding by a regular suit.—Balvant v. Babaji, 8 B. 602; Trimbak v. Narayan, 8 B. 431. But if he applies for the summary remedy under this rule and fails, the order against him is conclusive unless he brings a suit to establish his right to possession as provided by r. 103. Such a suit must be brought within one year from the date of the order.—Sobha v. Tarsi, 46 A. 693 : 83 I. C. 923 : A. I. R. 1924 All. 495.

Limitation.—The application under this rule has to be filed within 30 days from the date of the resistance or obstruction as provided by Art. 167 of the Limitation Act.

Fresh application for delivery of possession.—It has been held by the High Courts of Madras and Patna that where a decree-holder or auction-purchaser, who is obstructed or resisted in obtaining possession, omits to apply under this rule within 30 days from the date of resistance or obstruction, he is entitled to make a fresh application for delivery of possession.—Muttia v. Appasami, 13 M. 504; Raghunandan v. Ram Charan, 4 P. L. J. 91 : 49 I. C. 150 (F. B.); Ammu Kovilamma v. Palakkuzhu, (1929) M. W. N. 236. On the other hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Bombay and Allahabad that he is not entitled to make a fresh application and that his only remedy is by a regular suit; Vinaykrav v. Devrao, 11 B. 473; Kesri v. Abul Hasan, 26 A. 365.

Sub-rule (2).—A Court has no jurisdiction to proceed with an enquiry which results in an order under r. 98 without giving notice to the obstructor.—Barkat Ali v. Fattu, 10 L. L. J. 68 : 106 I. C. 491 : A. I. R. 1923 Lah. : 215.

98. Where the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was occasioned without any just cause by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at his instigation, it shall direct that the applicant be put into possession of the property, and where the applicant is still resisted or obstructed in obtaining possession, the Court may also, at the instance of the applicant, order the judgment-debtor, or any person acting at his instigation, to be detained in the civil prison for a term which may extend to thirty days. [Ss. 329, 330 & 334.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule embodies the provisions contained in Ss. 329, 330 and 334 of the old Code, in a concise form. Section 323 of the old Code contained the procedure in cases where the obstruction or resistance was occasioned by the judgment-debtor or by some other person at his instigation ; and S. 330 of the old Code contained the procedure which was to be adopted in cases where the judgment-debtor or some person at his instigation and without any just cause insisted and continued to offer obstruction or resistance to the delivery of possession.

The words "without prejudice to any penalty to which such judgment-debtor or other person may be liable under the Indian Penal Code or any other law for such resistance or obstruction" which occurred in S. 330 have been omitted from this rule, probably on the ground that retention of those words are unnecessary, as independently of those words it would be an offence under the I P. Code. The words "to be detained in the civil prison" have been substituted for the words, "commit the judgment-debtor or such other person to jail" which occurred in S. 330.

Resistance or obstruction by judgment-debtor—Just cause.—This rule contemplates two cases, namely, where the obstruction is occasioned, without any just cause, (i) by the judgment-debtor, or (ii) by some other person at his instigation. Where the obstruction is caused by a person other than the judgment-debtor, the Court has no jurisdiction to pass an order under this rule, unless it is satisfied that the person was acting at the instigation of the judgment-debtor.—Ezra v. Gubbay, 47 C. 907 : 60 I. C. 969; Mancharam v. Fakirchand, 25 B 478, 486. An application to remove obstruction caused to delivery of possession to a decree-holder purchaser, by a purchaser from the judgment-debtor of the attached property after attachment, must be dealt with under this rule.—Kuppana v. Kumara, 34 M. 450 : 7 I. C. 418. Where the auction-purchaser, who is not the decree-holder, sells the property purchased to one of the judgment-debtors, it is a just cause for the vendee-judgment-debtor within r. 98.—Periyaya v. Arulappan, 111 I. C. 551 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 806. A just cause will be when the parties had agreed that the judgment-debtor should continue in possession on his paying a certain amount to the purchaser. Refusal of an order under r. 98 on that ground, is conclusive by reason of Or. XXI, r 103, and the only remedy of the aggrieved party was to institute a suit to recover possession.—Hiralal v. Ram Chandra, 54 B. 479 : 125 I. C. 703 : 32 Bom. L. R. 619 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 375. The provisions of r. 98 and succeeding rules cannot help tenants of the judgment-debtors who have no occupancy rights and who are, therefore, bound by a decree for possession against the judgment-debtor (following 46 B. 526 and 46 B. 887 : 47 C. 907 not folld)—Appa Rao v. Venkappa, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 534 : 132 I. C. 301.

"Is resisted or obstructed"—No particular kind of resistance or obstruction is necessary, but there must be some overt act of opposition to the Court's officers on behalf of some one who is actually present.—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478, 485. See also Mahabir Prasad v. Parma, 14 A. 417.

"In obtaining possession."—"Possession" is not limited to actual physical possession. It includes also constructive possession, such as possession by a tenant.—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478 : 3 Bom. L. R. 53. See also Brajabala v. Gurudas, 33 C. 487 : 3 C. L. J. 293.

Renewal of resistance of obstruction to execution—Fresh cause of action.—A decree-holder who is resisted in the execution of the decree for ejectment may apply for possession again, and if again resisted may complain against the second resistance.—Baranagore Jute Factory Co., Ltd. v. Raj Kumar, 13 C. W. N. 724 (11 B. 473 referred to; 5 M. 113 and 18 A. 233, referred to on the question of limitation).

Appeal—An order allowing or refusing delivery of possession after an execution sale is not an order under S. 47, C. P. Code even when the decree-holder is the auction-purchaser and as such no appeal lies. A second appeal lies to the High Court against a decree of the appellate Court passed without jurisdiction.—Aduram Haldar v. Nakuleswar Rai, 29 C. L. J. 48 : 49 I. C. 137. An order passed against the decree-holder auction-purchaser under Or. XXI, r. 98 is not appealable, even if questions relating to execution are decided therein; Surendra v. Satyendra, 92 I. C. 544 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 985.

An order made under Or. XXI, r. 97 is not appealable to the District Court and is consequently not open to second appeal.—Meghu Singh v. Basudeva Jha, 52 I. C. 383. See also Ram Kumar v. Ram Charan, 5 P. 775 : 126 I. C. 849 A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 311

99. Where the Court is satisfied that the resistance or obstruction by bona fide claimant. (other than the judgment-debtor) claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, the Court shall make an order dismissing the application. [S. 321, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and applicability.—Or XXI, r. 99, by its wording implies that when the Court is not satisfied that the resistance or obstruction was occasioned by a person claiming in good faith to be in possession of property on his own account, i.e., if it is not satisfied with the claimant's good faith or that he is in possession on his own account the Court shall allow the application.—Ramaswami v. Shanmuga, 108 I. C. 894 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 909.

Presidency Small Cause Court.—A Small Cause Court has jurisdiction, in execution of a decree in ejectment, to act under this rule and remove any improper obstruction to the carrying out of its own order; Ghouse v. Mohideen, 45 M. L. J. 66 : 73 I. C. 985 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 74.

Appeal.—No appeal lies against an order passed under this rule.—Talia Bibi v. Nur Din, 108 I. C. 614 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 672.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to para. 1 of S. 331 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The words "the Court shall make an order dismissing the application" have been substituted for the words "the claim shall be numbered and registered as a suit between the decree-holder as plaintiff and claimant as defendant," which occurred in the old section. The second, third and fourth paras of S. 331, which ran as follows, have been omitted:—

"and the Court shall, without prejudice to any proceedings to which the claimant may be liable under the Indian Penal Code, or any other law for the punishment of such resistance or obstruction, proceed to investigate the claim in the same manner, and with the like power, as if a suit for the property had been instituted by the decree-holder against the claimant under the provisions of Chapter V,

" and shall pass such order as it thinks fit for executing, or staying execution of the decree.

" Every such order shall have the same force as a decree, and shall be subject to the same conditions as to appeal or otherwise."

Scope of the rule—The object of the omission is that there will now only be a summary enquiry with regard to the claims of third parties; and they have been allowed the privilege of bringing a regular suit against any order that may be passed against them under this rule (Vide r. 103). Under S. 331 of the old Code, a claim by a third party had to be tried as a regular suit and the order passed by the Court was a decree and was appealable. But under rule 103, the order passed under this rule shall be conclusive, subject to the result of the regular suit.

Resistance by person other than the judgment-debtor—Where in a suit brought by a plaintiff against two defendants, a decree is passed, by consent, against one of them only, the other defendant is not a judgment-debtor. He is a "person other than the judgment-debtor" within the meaning of this rule; Jathavedan v. Kunchu, 30 M. 72.

A pro forma defendant in possession of the property decreed and resisting delivery of its possession to the decree-holder is not a judgment debtor and his claim should be enquired into under this rule; Har Nihal v. Shamji Mal, 21 P. W. R. 1910: 5 I C. 809: 14 P. R. 1910.

Where a person is entitled to the possession of a share after partition, and a Commissioner is appointed to partition the share and to put him in possession of his share, resistance to such Commissioner is resistance within the meaning of this rule.—Kali Kumar v. Brakmananda, 7 C. L. J. 98 (16 M. 127 followed).

Rule 99 contemplates an application by the decree-holder; a third party resisting the delivery of possession may apply under r. 100.—Sukhan Singh v. Baij Nath, 12 C. W. N. 115.

"On his own account."—A tenant of the judgment-debtor is not a person claiming on his own account and cannot obstruct the judgment-debtor's landlord in his obtaining possession.—Jafferji v. Miyadin, 46 B. 526: 64 I. C. 692: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 273; Javram v. Nawroji, 46 B. 887: 65 I. C. 212: 23 Bom. L. R. 1316. But if the decree-holder landlord knew that the sub-tenant was in possession of the premises at the time of his suit and did not choose to make him a party, he cannot claim possession against him in execution proceedings, but should seek his remedy by suit; Ezra v. Gubbay, 47 C. 907: 60 I. C. 969. This case has not been followed in Appa Rao v. Venkappa, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 534, noted under r. 98. The resistance by the wife of the judgment-debtor claiming in good faith to be in possession on behalf of her minor son not bound by the decree against the father, is resistance by a person claiming on his own account; and an order under r. 99 dismissing the application of the decree-holder is not one falling within the scope of S. 47 and so not appealable, the remedy of the decree-holder in such a case being that indicated in r. 103.—Dwipal Chandra v. Jiban Debi, 58 C. 808: 133 I. C. 335: 35 O. W. N. 286: A. T. R. 1931 Cal. 574.

"Claiming in good faith to be in possession of the property."—The word "possession" as used in this rule is not limited to actual physical possession. It includes also constructive possession, such as possession by a tenant. Where premises sought to be recovered in execution are in occupation of tenants and the landlord of such tenants obstructs the officer executing the decree, the claim of such landlord may be investigated under this rule.—Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478 (14 B. 627, 22 B. 967 and 15 W. R. 70, referred to).

The investigation of claims under this rule is not limited to the fact of possession. Any question of title arising between the contending parties in connection with their right of possession is to be investigated as in an ordinary action on Khan, 14 B. 627 (referred to in Manchi Bom. L. R., 58; followed in Mahip Rai v. Dwarka Rai, 27 A. 453 (22 B. 967, followed; 10 C. 50, not followed) and distinguished in Mahomed Isub v. Bashottappa, 27 B. 302).

An investigation under this rule is limited to the fact of possession, and is no bar to a subsequent suit brought to try the title to the land in dispute.—Chinna Sami v. Krishna, 3 M. 104.

In a proceeding under this rule, the onus is on the plaintiff to establish a prima facie case of possession, and it is then incumbent on the claimant to answer that case and show, if possible, a better title.—Rakhal Churn v. Watson & Co, 10 C. 50 (not followed in Mahip Rai v. Dwarka Rai, 27 A. 453; in Mancharam v. Fakir Chand, 25 B. 478, p. 490; 3 Bom. L. R. 58 and in Baptujirao v. Fatesing, 22 B. 967). In all these cases a contrary view has been taken; but they have been overridden by the present rule.

100. (1) Where any person other than the judgment-debtor is dispossessed of immoveable property by the holder of a decree for the possession of such property or, where such property has been sold in execution of a decree, by the purchaser thereof, he may make an application to the Court complaining of such dispossession.

Dispossession by decree-holder or purchaser.

(2) The Court shall fix a day for investigating the matter and shall summon the party against whom the application is made to appear and answer the same. [Ss. 332 & 335.]

101. Where the Court is satisfied that the applicant was in possession of the property on his own account or on account of some person other than the judgment-debtor, it shall direct that the applicant be put into possession of the property. [Ss. 332 & 335.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—These two rules correspond to Ss. 332 and 335 of the C. P. Code, 1932. The provisions contained in those sections have been summarized in these two rules with several alterations and omissions. The language of the old sections has been changed, but the procedure under the old and the new law is the same.

The last paras. of Ss. 332 and 335 have been omitted from these rules and have been inserted in rule 103.

Rules 100 and 101.—These rules are to be read together.

Object and scope of the rules.—These two rules refer to events which may arise subsequent to the delivery of possession; and the preceding rules lay down the procedure to be adopted in cases of resistance or obstruction in the course of delivery of possession. The scope of enquiry under this rule is the same as that of an enquiry under Or. XXI, r. 58.—Bhola Nath v. Hara Duari, 36 C. W. N. 1034. An unsuccessful applicant in a case under Or. XXI, r. 58 is not competent to apply under Or. XXI, r. 100. His only remedy is the institution of a regular suit under Or. XXI, r. 63.—Ibid.

Under these rules if any person other than the judgment-debtor is dispossessed in delivering possession either to the decree-holder or to the auction-purchaser, then he may by an application under these rules obtain an order for restoration of possession, if he can satisfy the Court that he is in bona fide possession of the property on his own account, etc. His remedy is two-fold: he can either apply under this rule or bring a regular suit or he may do both, that is, if he becomes unsuccessful in an application under these rules, he can bring a regular suit under rule 103.

The object of rules 97, 99 and 100 is to give power to the Court where an attempt has been made to deliver possession and there is resistance or obstruction to give, after enquiry, a quick summary decision which should protect the public peace, prevent obstruction and terminate the execution proceeding subject to the result of a regular suit.—Sarodah Pershad v. Roy Dhunput Singh, 19 W. R. 219; Mt. Zuhoorun v. Syad Mahomed, 18 W. R. 87; Srinath v. Annoda Prosad, 1 C. W. N. 192.

In a proceeding under r. 100, the Court cannot go behind the original decree and hold that it is collusive.—Jaisri Lal v. Dukhlal, 127 I. C. 564; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 416. Such questions as the validity of the original decree, lis pendens, and whether the opposite party derives title by kabala or compromise decree, are questions which are outside the scope of decision in summary proceedings under this rule.—Ibid. The rule says in effect that a person cannot get execution against another person who is not the judgment-debtor in the suit.—Bhim Naik v. Chakradhar, 34 C. W. N. 577; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 348; 127 I. C. 552.

"Is dispossessed."—Delivery of actual possession alone can constitute dispossession under this rule. A landlord who is in possession through his tenant may be said to be dispossessed within the meaning of this rule if the decree-holder or purchaser takes delivery of actual possession of the land from the tenant.—Brajabala v. Gurudas, 33 C. 497. Rules 100 and 101 are not confined to cases of exclusive possession alone but are applicable to cases of joint possession (17 Bom. 718 diss.).—Indubhushan v. Haricharan, 58 C 55 : 132 I. C. 631 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 385. It is wrong to order restitution of a specific share in the property.—Ibid.

“He may make an application.”—The applicant’s remedy is twofold. He may either apply under this section for restoration of possession or bring a regular suit to establish his title. Or he may do both, that is, if he does not succeed by an application under this rule, he can institute a regular suit under r. 103. While the remedy is optional, the person concerned may make an application under this rule. If there is no application, there can be no investigation or order.—Milkhhi v. Basant, 132 I. C. 844 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 686.

Dispossession of third person by decree-holder or auction-purchaser.—For the meaning of the word “judgment-debtor” within the meaning of this section, see Vasudeva Upadhyaya v. Visvaraja Tirthasami, 19 M. 331 and Jathavedan v. Kunchu Achan, 30 M. 72 : 16 M. L. J. 433

“Judgment-debtor” includes representatives of the judgment-debtor and all persons who are bound by the decree.—Bhukhia v. Birj, 2 P. L. J. 478.

Rule 99 contemplates an application by the decree-holder, and a third party resisting the delivery of possession of property to a decree-holder cannot apply under that rule for the investigation of his claim, but he may do so under r. 100, after he has been dispossessed.—Sukhan Singh v. Baij Nath, 12 C. W. N. 115.

A decree in a possessory suit under S. 9 of Act I of 1877 is a decree within the meaning of rule 100; and any person dispossessed in execution of such a decree can apply under this rule to recover possession of the land.—Brahma Mayi v. Barkat Sirdar, 4 B. L. R. 94 (F. B.) : 12 W. R. 25 (F. B.) ; Contra in Gobind Chunder v. Gobind Ghose, 7 W. R. 171

Possession by receipt and enjoyment of rent is as good in law as actual occupation and this rule is not restricted to cases of personal occupation.—Bhyrub Sircar v. Sham Manjee, 15 W. R. 70 (approved in Mancharam v. Fakirchand, 25 B. 478 ; referred to and followed in Brajabala v. Gurudas, 33 C. 487 : 3 C. L. J. 293). Present possession does not mean right to possession on redemption, ; Baliram v. Narayan, 54 I. C. 276.

Possession through a mortgagee is sufficient to bring a claim under this rule.—Asgur Ali v. Asgur Ali, 20 W. R. 373 (referred to and followed in Brajabala v. Gurudas, 33 C. 487 : 3 C. L. J. 293).

A mortgagee, who is in possession of the mortgaged property under the mortgage, is in possession “on his own account” within the meaning of this rule.—Shafiuddin v. Lochan Singh, 2 A. 94.

A mortgagee from a tenant is in possession on his own account.—Kedar Nath v. Saday Chandra, 19 C. L. J. 13.

“occupants of an dispossession of nder this rule.—
Collector of Bogra v. Krishna Indra Roy, 2 B. L. R. 301 : 11 W. R. 191
(followed in Brajabala v. Gurudas, 33 C. 487 : 3 C. L. J. 293).

A party dispossessed of land under colour of a decree to which he was not a party, is entitled to an investigation under r. 100 and if his title is established to a decree.—Hassun Ali v. Naib Ahmed, 11 W. R. 146.

A person dispossessed of his land in execution of a decree of a Civil Court against a third party should proceed for the alleged obstruction of his possession, not by a suit in the Mamlatdar's Court, but by an application under r. 100, or by a regular suit.—Gulabbhai Gopalji v. Jinabhai Ratanji, 13 B. 213. See also Ram Chandra v. Ravji, 20 B. 351.

A non-transferable occupancy holding was purchased by a person in execution of a decree and possession obtained. It was subsequently attached by the landlord in execution of his decree against the recorded tenant for necessary rent. Held, that the purchaser was not bound by the decree of the landlord and he was not a judgment-debtor within the meaning of r. 100. He was in possession of the property on his own account as required by r. 101, and so he has a right to proceed under r. 101 (following 53 C. 913, and dissenting from 2 P. L. J. 478).—Narayan v. Jharu, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 792.

Where the tenants of the judgment-debtor were dispossessed much later than the date of the delivery of possession to the decree-holder, Or. XXI, rr. 98 and 100 do not apply, the tenants have their general remedy in law if they have been wrongfully dispossessed, and the Court has no jurisdiction to pass orders under r. 100.—Appa Rao v. Venkappa, 132 I. C. 301 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 534.

An application can be made under Or. XXI, r. 100 for disturbance of possession by the landlord put in possession under S. 26-F of the B. T. Act as under Cl. (6) of S. 26-F it is the intention of the legislature to put the landlord in the position of the auction-purchaser as regards his rights and liabilities.—Rishee Case v. Jarilal, 36 C. W. N. 790.

Dispossession under order of Collector.—A person who has been dispossessed under an order made by the Collector, to whom execution proceedings have been transferred, should apply to the Collector and not to the Court complaining of such dispossession. This rule has no application when execution has been transferred to the Collector; Ragho v. Hanmati, 37 B. 488 : 19 I. C. 903.

Cases not falling within the scope of this rule.—An objector who did not claim to be in possession "on his own account or on account of some person other than the defendants," but whose sole ground of intervention was that he held a bona fide title derived from the defendants, was not entitled to be heard under S. 230 of Act VIII of 1859 (now r. 100).—Eusuf Ali v. Shib Shunkur, W. R. (1864) 384.

A mortgagee under a mortgage from the judgment-debtor after attachment is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of S. 47. This rule has no application to such a case.—Narayanasami v. Seshapier, 17 M. L. J. 321 ; but see Kedar v. Saday, 19 C. L. J. 13.

"Was in possession on his own account."—A member of a joint Hindu family cannot say that he is in possession of any particular portion of the joint property on his own account. His possession is the possession of the family.—Cooverji v. Dewsey, 17 B. 718. But see Radhagobinda v. Raghu Nath 18 C. W. N. 695, where it has been held that a person in joint possession, with the judgment-debtor, as a member of the family or otherwise is in possession on his own account and entitled to intervene under this rule. See also Ramkishun v. Damodar, 75 I. C. 856.

A person who purchased a non-transferable holding from the recorded tenant, cannot apply under this rule, when the landlord decree-holder takes possession under a sale in execution of his rent decree obtained against the recorded tenant.—Panchratan v. Ram Sahay, 43 I. C. 969 : 3 P. L. J. 579 ; nor is a purchaser pendente lite entitled to apply under this rule.—Kanaka-sabai v. Rajagopal, 42 I. C. 523 ; Shohari Kurmi v. Phani Nath, 117 I. C. 308 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 227. But see Narayan v. Jheru, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 792 : 115 I. C. 36, noted ante. Where however, the person purchased the holding in execution of a decree against the tenant ; Pudma Chandra v. Manobini, 53 C. 913 : 99 I. C. 718 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 156.

Questions for trial for the nature of evidence required under this rule.—Where an application is made by a party on the ground that he was in possession and that he has been dispossessed in execution of a decree, the Court should in the first instance examine the applicant.—Obhoy Churn v. Rajendro Coomar, 16 W. R. 288

When a person making a claim to certain property under r. 100 has been allowed to bring a suit under that section to try his right to the property, it is sufficient in the first instance for him to prove his possession, without proof of title ; but if he takes this course, it is open to the defendant to show that although possession may be with the plaintiff, yet he (defendant) has a better title.—Dilbasse Koonuaree v. Gunga Pershad, 5 C. 278 (5 B. L. R. 708 explained).

It was held under the old Code, in some cases that the question of title might be gone into, as well as the question of possession.—Yusan Khatun v. Ram Nath, 7 B. L. R. Ap. 26 : 15 W. R. 327 ; Radha Pyari v. Nabin Chandra, 5 B. L. R. 708 : 13 W. R. 80 (F. B.) (followed in Abdoos Sobhan v. Brahma Deo, 14 W. R. 140). See also Nugendur Chander v. Ram Comul, 3 W. R. 213 ; Jadunath v. Kali Prasad, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 55 : 14 W. R. 358 ; and Ajoo Khan v. Kisto Pershad, 8 W. R. 477. But see Shafuddin v. Lochan Singh, 2 A. 94, where it has been held that a person claiming under r. 100 need not prove his title, but only the fact of possession. See also Kedar Nath v. Saday Chandra, 19 C. L. J. 13 in which it has been held that no question of title can be gone into in a proceeding under r. 101.

Where the applicant complains that he has been dispossessed in execution of a decree to which he was not a party, and there are reasonable grounds for thinking that his claim is bona fide, it is the duty of the Court to treat the case as a regular suit between the claimant as plaintiff and the decree-holder and judgment-debtor as defendants.—Luleet Narain v. Keshub Deb, 15 W. R. 209 ; Banee Madhub v. Nund Lall, 22 W. R. 123 ; Yusan Khatun v. Ram Nath, 7 B. L. R. Ap. 26 : 15 W. R. 327 ; Ajoo Khan v. Kisto Pershad, 8 W. R. 477 ; Sahoo Gokul Pershad v. Zynub, N. W. P. 176 (Ed. 1873), 255.

If there are several applications, each application should be tried separately.—Sharoda Moyee v. Nobin Chunder, 11 W. R. 255.

Burden of proof in a claim case under this rule.—The onus of proving his case is on the applicant.—Mahomed Ausur v. Prokash Chunder, 8 W. R. 8, Woodoy Tara v. Abdool Gunce, 12 W. R. 16; Judoonath v. Kalee Pershad, 14 W. R. 358; Brindabun Chunder v. Tarachand, 20 W. R. 114.

The applicant must prove whether or not the judgment-debtor was in possession at the date of the sale. Mere proof that he was in possession at some time prior to 12 years before suit does not discharge him from the onus.—Nasruddin v. Sayulur Rahman, 19 C. L. J. 209; Mohima Chunder v. Mohesh Chunder. 16 I. A. 23: 16 C 473 (P. C.). Where the tenants of the judgment-debtor was dispossessed much later than the date of delivery of possession.

It is a serious irregularity to ask the decree-holder to begin his case and examine his witnesses and then to examine the witnesses of the claimant, it justifies interference in revision.—Appa Rao v. Venkappa. 132 I. C. 301: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 534.

Ex parte order for delivery of possession.—Order IX, r. 13 does not apply to execution proceedings, and a party against whom an order under r. 101 is passed even though it be ex parte, can only seek his remedy by way of a suit under r. 103.—Harī Charan v. Manmatha, 41 C. 1. See also Jugulkishore v. Bachinder Mohan, 52 I. C. 416, where it was held that Or IX, r. 9 has no application in the case of proceedings under rr. 100 and 101. The Court has no inherent power to set aside on sufficient cause being shown, either an order dismissing for default an application under Or. XXI, r. 97 or r. 100, or an order allowing such an application ex parte.—Alaga-sundaram v. Pichuvier, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 757 (F. B.): 57 M. L. J. 381.

Limitation—Under Art 165 of the Limitation Act, an application under this rule must be made within 30 days from the date of the dispossession: Abdul Karim v. Islamunnissa, 38 A. 339: 14 A. L. J. 401: 34 I. C. 231; Indubhushan v. Haricharan, 58 C. 55: A. I. R. 1931 Cal 385: 132 I. C. 631.

Where the claimant preferred his petition within 30 days of dispossession bringing the judgment-creditor and the auction-purchaser on record but failed to bring the sub-purchaser on record till he had notice of the sub-purchase and after 30 days, held, that the petition was not barred by limitation.—Indubhushan v. Haricharan, 58 C. 55: 132 I. C. 631: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 385.

Dismissal of application for default.—It was held by the Patna High Court in Satyanarain v. Govind, 3 P. L. J. 250: 43 I. C. 951, that a party not bound by a decree may, under Or. IX, r. 9, obtain a re-hearing of a claim made by him under this rule, which has been dismissed for default; but the same High Court took a contrary view in Bhubaneswar v. Tilakdhari, 49 I. C. 617 (F. B.): 4 P. L. J. 135.

Where a claim case is disposed of ex parte on default on the part of one or other of the parties without an investigation of the matter in accordance with the provisions of r. 100: held, that the remedy by way of suit under r. 103 is not the remedy for dismissal by default, and the Court may restore the case under S. 151 of the Code but should hear the opposite party. — Nabu Sahu v. Kamdev, 47 C. L. J. 87.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order made under Or. XXI, r. 101, C. P. Code.—Musst. Golabi Bibi v. Aslam Khan, 57 P. R. 1917: 91 P. W. R. 1917: 101 P. L. R. 1917: 41 I. C. 891; Bai Mani v. Ranchodlal, 25 Bom. L. R. 147: 72 I. C. 256: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 214. It has been held by the Madras High Court that where an application is contested between persons who were parties to the suit or representatives of parties, the case falls within S. 47, and an appeal lies from the order; Appia v. Kattuvava, 41 M. L. J. 54: 63 I. C. 730; Meyyappa v. Chidambaram, 39 M. L. J. 603: 61 I. C. 349; Veyindra v. Maya, 43 M. 696: 58 I. C. 501. See Dwipal-chandra v. Jeeban Debi, 58 C. 808: 35 C. W. N. 286: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 574: 133 I. C. 335.

Revision.—Where an application is brought in revision against an order restoring a purchaser from the judgment-debtor of a non-transferable occupancy holding to possession, the High Court will not interfere in revision because there is the remedy by way of suit.—Bhim Naik v. Chakradhar, 34 C. W. N. 577: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 348: 127 I. C. 552. But see Indubhushan v. Hari Charan, 58 C. 55: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 385: 132 I. C. 631, which has held that the power conferred upon any party by r. 103 to institute a suit does not restrict the High Court from using its revisional powers to correct the errors or illegalities of subordinate Courts in proceedings under r. 101.

102. Nothing in rules 99 and 101 shall apply to resistance or obstruction in execution of a decree for the possession of immoveable property by a person to whom the judgment-debtor has transferred the property after the institution of the suit in which the decree was passed or to the dispossession of any such person. [S. 333.]

Rules not applicable to transferee lite pendente.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 333, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The words "to resistance or obstruction in execution of a decree for the possession of immoveable property by a person," have been added after the words "shall apply," and the words "or to the dispossession of any such person" have also been added after the words "was passed." The word "passed" has been substituted for the word "made" which occurred in the old section.

Transferee pendente lite.—Where such a transferee pays off a prior usufructuary mortgage and enters into possession of the property and resists the decree-holder in obtaining possession, he cannot be treated in relation to his position as a purchaser from the judgment-debtor. — Fa A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 610.

103. Any party not being a judgment-debtor against whom an order is made under rule 98, rule 99 or rule 101 may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property ; but, subject to the result of such suit (if any), the order shall be conclusive.

[Ss. 332 & 335, LAST PARA.]

Orders conclusive subject to regular suit.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to the last paras. of Ss. 332 and 335 C. P. Code of 1882, with some modifications.

Scope and effect of an order under this rule.—This rule does not apply unless an order under rr. 98, 99 or 101 has been made.—Hargolal v. Chandu Lal, 69 I. C. 557. A person against whom an order is made under rr. 98, 99 or 101, may institute a suit to establish the right which he claims to the present possession of the property ; but he is not bound to proceed under the foregoing rules. If he proceeds under those rules and becomes unsuccessful, he must bring a regular suit within one year and the order, unless set aside by a regular suit within the statutory period, becomes final and conclusive. The provisions of Or. XXI. rr. 97 to 103 are of a restrictive nature and strict compliance with them is necessary. They take away the common law right of the decree-holder or the persons who offer resistance in their own rights to have their respective claims adjudicated upon in a regular civil suit and therefore they must be strictly construed and if in a particular case it is shown that the provisions of any of these rules have not been strictly complied with, the penal consequence barring the suit cannot legally flow therefrom.—Taha Bibi v. Nur Din, 108 I. C. 614; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 672

An order rejecting a claim petition under Or. XXI, r. 100, not being appealed against within one year, acquires the force of a decree.—Achuta v. Mammavu, 10 M. 357 (8 M. 506 followed). The order intended to become final under this rule is an order which is passed after enquiry into the matter of resistance ; but if the Court declines to pass an order under r. 97 or r. 100 and refers the claimant to a separate suit, then Art. 11-A. of the Limitation Act has no application.—Mecrudin v. Rahisa Bibi, 27 M. 25 (12 C. 550 referred to).

This rule does not apply to an order dismissing an application for default of prosecution because it is not an order made after investigation.—Sarat Chandra v. Tarini Prasad, 34 C. 491; 11 C. W. N. 487. See also Bhimrao v. Martand, 45 I. C. 102; Wamandhar v. Kamta Prasad, 22 N. L. R. 94; 97 I. C. 178; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 423.

There must be an enquiry before a valid order under this rule can be made.—Gouri v. Sita, 14 C. W. N. 346. See Milkhi Ram v. Basant, 132 I. C. 844; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 686.

Order XXI, r. 103, which gives a right of suit to a party who is not a judgment-debtor, is not restricted by the general provisions of S. 47.—Badami Seshiah v. Katti Chinna, 52 I. C. 928; nor does it make any difference that the party did not prefer an objection under Or. XXI, r. 58.—Mahammad Hayab v. Ghulam Nabi, 132 I. C. 201: 32 P. L. R. 390: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 598.

In a suit under this rule, not only the question of possession, but also the right or title on which the claim of possession is based should be gone into; Unni Moidin v. Pocker, 44 M. 227, and such right to possession may be established without showing that the plaintiff was in possession at the date of the dispossession or summary order.

Period of limitation for a suit to establish right—A party against whom an order under Or. XXI, r. 101 is made, must bring his suit to establish the right which he claims within one year from the date of the order, otherwise the suit will be barred by Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act, 1903.—Bhimappa v. Irappa, 26 B. 146. See also Mahadev v. Babi, 26 B. 730; Ram Singh v. Kundan Singh, 96 P. W. R. 1916: 103 P. L. R. 1916: 36 I. C. 211. The suit is not confined to a suit for possession of the property. It is a suit to establish a right which the plaintiff claims to the present possession of the property. And this right may be established either on account of his right to possession or on account of his title. In either case the suit must be brought within one year under Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act.—Lakshman v. Dattatraya, 53 B. 668: 31 Bom. L. R. 765: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 379. The fact that there was a pending suit regarding the title to the property in which he had set up his title does not absolve him from the obligation under S. 103; Kumaram Unni Achan v. Kunhikrishnan, 75 I. C. 814. In Bhiku v. Sugat Ali, 29 C. 25, it has been held that if an objection under Or. XXI, r. 100 is rejected, the objector is not precluded from instituting a suit to enforce his mortgage lien over the property, more than a year after the date of the order. A suit to establish a mortgage lien over property is not a suit to establish a right to the property. Where an application is dismissed for default on the petitioner applying to withdraw his petition for want of evidence, the opposite party being present, held, that there was no enquiry within the meaning of Or. XXI, r. 100, and the suit was not barred by one year's limitation.—Sarat Chandra v. Tarini Prasad, 34 C. 491: 11 C. W. N. 487. See also Kunj Behari v. Kandh Prasad, 6 C. L. J. 362, where it has been held that merely because the claimant does not adduce evidence or is absent, it does not follow that there are no materials before the Court to enable it to enquire into the matter. If the Court does not enquire into it and dismisses the application, the order is made upon investigation.

Suit by auction-purchaser for possession upon a different cause of action.—The provisions of this rule do not apply to a suit brought by an auction-purchaser against the opposite party for possession, not under his 'auction-purchase, but upon a different title altogether. In such a case the suit need not be brought within one year from the date of the decree as required by Art. 11-A of the Limitation Act; Ambica v. Ram Prasad, 30 C. W. N. 163: 90 I. C. 575: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 377.

Amount of Court-fee payable in a suit under this rule.—An auction-purchaser who was resisted in obtaining actual possession, and whose application under Or. XXI, r. 100 was rejected, brought a suit against the person in possession, for a declaration of his right to the property and to be put in actual possession thereof. Held, that the suit was properly stamped with a Court-fee stamp of Rs. 10.—Pirya Das v. Vilayat Khan, 22 A. 384 (9 B. 20 referred to).

Order XXI, rr. 123 and 124 of the Allahabad High Court.—Rules 123 and 124 apply to the appointment of watchmen or guards otherwise known as 'Sahanas' who are usually appointed to guard standing crops in the fields or crops which have been cut and stacked and similarly to guard other places where attached goods have been kept. Rule 122 (old r. 123) is the only rule which applies to the cases where moveables like ornaments are attached and for which some arrangement is necessary for their safe custody.—Shakir Husain v. Ohandoo Lal, 134 I. C. 835: 29 A. L. J. 865: A. I. R. 1931 All. 567 (F. B.).

Although a 'Sahana' would not be a surety, a sapurdar who has given an undertaking to produce the goods when ordered by the Court is a surety although the undertaking is not given to the Court directly but through the attaching officer and by such an undertaking he becomes liable under S. 145.—Ibid.

ORDER XXII.

DEATH, MARRIAGE AND INSOLVENCY OF PARTIES.

No abatement by party's death if right to sue survives.

1. The death of a plaintiff or defendant shall not cause the suit to abate if the right to sue survives. [S. 361.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 361 of the old Code. The illustrations attached to the old section have, however, been omitted by the Select Committee as they seemed too obvious to serve any useful purpose.

Scope.—Order XXII is confined to the question of the continuance of the suit by virtue of the devolution of the deceased's right to sue on other persons during the pendency of the suit. But there may be cases in which the suit can be continued by other persons who have an independent right to sue on the same cause of action.—Lachman v. Banshi, 12 L. 275 : 131 I. C. 98 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 79. Non-compliance with the procedure laid down in Or. XXII would not involve a want of jurisdiction but would be a mere irregularity so long as the decree is passed between living persons.—Thakur Prasad v. Kanhya Lal, 133 I. C. 303 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 746.

"Right to sue."—This means the right to seek relief by legal proceedings. It is the right to institute a suit claiming the same relief which the deceased plaintiff claimed at the time of his death.—Gopal v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 597, Sarat Chandra v. Nani Mohan, 36 C. 799. The cause of action in the original and revived suits must be the same, and no fresh cause of action can be imported into the revived suit.—Sham Chand Giri v. Bhayaram Panday, 22 C. 92. See also Umrao Begum v. Irshad Husain, 21 I. A. 163 : 21 C. 997 (P. C.).

An application under Or. XXII, r. 1 C. P. Code to be brought on record as the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff could not be rejected on the ground that there was no cause of action which would sue" as specified in Or. XXII, r. 1, to obtain relief by means of legal proceedings.—Manjappa, 2 Mys. L. J. 1.

The continuance of a suit depends, not on the qualification of the person claiming to be the representative of the deceased, but on the nature of the suit. The test is whether the reversioners could have been joined as plaintiffs in the action brought by one through whom they claim. If they could, then, on the death of the latter, they would be entitled to continue the suit begun by him, otherwise not.—Abdullah Shah v. Zainab Bibi, 134 I. C. 771 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 293.

Cases where the right to sue survives and where it does not.—In order to understand what is meant by the expression "right to sue survives" it is necessary to look into the provisions of S. 306 of the Indian Succession Act, XXXIX of 1925 (which corresponds to S. 89 of the Probate and Administration Act) and S. 37 of the Indian Contract Act. Section 306 of the Succession Act says: "All demands whatsoever, and all rights to prosecute or defend any action or proceeding, existing in favour of or against a person at the time of his decease, survive to and against his executors or administrators; except causes of action for defamation, assault, as defined in the Indian Penal Code or other personal injuries not causing the death of the party; and except cases where, after the death of the party, the relief sought could not be enjoyed, or granting it would be nugatory."

It is clear from the above that the right to sue does not survive in suits for defamation, assault or other personal injuries not causing the death of the party and in cases where after the death of the party, the relief sought could not be enjoyed or granting it would be nugatory.

Section 37 of the Contract Act says: "Promises bind the representatives of the promisors in case of the death of such promisors before performance unless a contrary intention appears from the contract." Where it appears from the terms of the contract itself that the obligation must end with the death of the promisor, the right to sue does not survive against his representative because the obligation is determined by the death of the promisor. Generally speaking all contracts which involve the exercise of special or personal skill are not binding on the representatives of the promisors. See illustration (b) to S. 38, Indian Contract Act.

Suits for damages for breach of contract, suits on promissory notes, suits for recovery of debts, suits on mortgages, and suits for wrong done to property are suits that do not abate on the death of the plaintiff or defendant.

A suit for damages for malicious prosecution and obstruction of a right of way abates on the death of the defendant in the absence of any allegation that the estate of the wrong-doer was benefitted thereby; Ma Shwe Thit v. Maung Po Aung, 65 I. C. 66: (1921) 4 U. B. R. 73.

In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, if the plaintiff dies before trial, the right to sue or the cause of action survives to his legal representatives, as such a suit falls within the scope of S. 89 of the Probate and Administration Act—Krishna Behari Sen v. The Corporation of Calcutta, 31 C. 993: 8 C. W. N. 745 (confirming in appeal 31 C. 406: 8 C. W. N. 329). On the other hand, it has been held by the High Courts of Bombay, Madras, Patna and Allahabad that the right to sue does not survive and that the suit abates on the original plaintiff's death; Haridas v. Ramdas, 13 B. 677; Rustomji v. Nurse, 44 M. 357: 62 I. C. 260 (F. B.); Murugappa v. Ponnusami, 44 M. 828: 62 I. C. 757; Palaniappa v. Raja of Ramnad, 49 M. 208: 92 I. C. 866: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 243; Punjab Singh v. Ramautar, 4 P. L. J. 676: 52 I. C. 348; Mahtab Singh v. Hub Lal, 48 A. 630: 98 I. C. 590: A. I. R. 1926 All. 610. But if a defendant after appealing to set aside the decree dies before the hearing, his legal representative is not debarred from prosecuting the appeal.—Gopal Ganesh v. Ramchandra Sadashiv, 26 B. 597 (followed in Paraman Chetty v. Sundararaja Naick, 26 M. 499).

In a suit for damages by way of compensation for personal injury the Court granted findings against the tort-feasor and awarded damages. The tort-feasor appealed both against the finding and the award, and the plaintiff put in.

cross-objections being aggrieved by the defendant. The tortfeasor died pending appeal. E (relying on 34 M. 76 and 62 P. R. 1. Ali, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 807.

A suit in which the plaintiff alleges that he entrusted the defendant with a box with valuable securities in it for safe custody and that the contents were missing when the box was returned, is one to recover the specific articles. If because the articles no longer exist, the Court gives a decree for their value, it is not a claim for an unliquidated and uncertain sum of money. The suit does not abate on the death of the defendant. One of the exceptions to the maxim actio personalis moritur cum persona is the case in which property or the proceeds or value of property belonging to another have been appropriated by the deceased person and added to his own estate or moneys.—Brij Nath v. Lakshmi Narain, 137 I. C. 217 : 9 O. W. N. 239 : A. I. R. 1932 Oudh 165.

An action to recover damages for breach of a contract of marriage abates on the death of the plaintiff; Hiralal v. Nanabhai, 44 B. 446 : 55 I. C. 624. A suit to establish the plaintiff's right to the office of a mahant abates on his death, because the right claimed is a personal right to an office; Sham Chand v. Bhayaram, 22 C. 92. There is a conflict of authorities on the question whether the right of pre-emption under the Mahomedan Law does or does not abate at the pre-emptor's death; Sayyad Jiaul v. Sitaram, 36 B. 144; Muhammad v. Niamatunnissa, 20 A. 88; Yusuf Ali v. Dalkuar, 20 A. 148.

During the pendency of a suit by a Hindu widow for possession of her husband's estate she died. Held that the cause of action survived on the death of the plaintiff and therefore the suit did not abate.—Parbutty v. Higgin, 17 W. R. 475 : 8 B. L. R. Ap. 98.

Where a Hindu mother who sued to restrain an encroachment on the share allotted to her on partition and agreed to sell her interest to the defendants at the value to be found on arbitration, died after the award but before the decree, it was held that the right of action on the award survived to her sons.—Denomoyee v. Chooneymoney, 4 C. W. N. 280 (affirmed on appeal in 28 C. 155 : 5 C. W. N. 242).

A reversioner's suit for a declaration that an alienation made by a Hindu widow is invalid, abates on the death of the plaintiff, and it cannot be continued by the next reversioners; Sakyahani v. Bhavani, 27 M. 588; China Veerayya v. Lakshminarasamma, 37 M. 406 : 22 M. L. J. 375; Lachhman v. Bansilal, 12 L. 275 : 131 I. C. 98 : 31 P. L. R. 973 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 79. But it has been held by the Privy Council that a suit brought by the presumptive reversioner for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, is brought by him in a representative capacity and on behalf of all the reversioners, and on the death, therefore, of the presumptive reversioner, the next presumable reversioner is entitled to continue the action begun by the deceased; Venkatarayana v. Subbammal, 38 M. 406 : 42 I. A. 125 : 29 I. C. 298 : 19 C. W. N. 641.

If a suit is instituted by a Hindu widow or the owner of a limited estate, which suit is in the interests of the estate of the last holder, then the reversioners will be entitled to continue the claim on the death of the plaintiff having only a limited interest. Where however the plaintiff brings the suit in order to enforce his or her personal rights or claims to a definite end, then the reversioners cannot be allowed to continue the suit.—Mt. Manglan v. Hira Singh, 32 P. L. R. 712 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 675. See Abdullah Shah v. Mt. Zainab Bibi, 134 I. C. 771 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 293.

Where an agent who sues on behalf of an undisclosed principal dies pending suit, the suit (if it can be continued at all) can be continued by the agent's representatives, and not by the principal.—Periannan Chettiar v. Rengachari Reddy, 17 M. L. J. 116.

Where a testamentary guardian applies to be appointed guardian under this rule and dies pending the proceedings, the application abates, and as his claim was based on a personal trust, his representatives are not entitled to continue the proceedings; Gangabai v. Khashabai, 23 B. 719. Where, however, the claim is not based on a personal trust, the proceedings can be continued by the legal representative of the deceased; Palaniandi Chetti v. Adaikalam, 47 M. 459 : 46 M. L. J. 179 : 84 I. C. 613 : A. I. R. 1924-Mad. 484.

The right to the grant of letters of administration is a personal right and does not survive to the heir of the residuary legatee of the testatrix; Hari Bhusan v. Manmatha, 45 C 862. 51 I. C. 76 ; Sarat Chandra v. Nani, 36 C. 799 : 3 I. C. 995 ; Sachindranath v. Bepin, 35 C W. N. 1028. Where, pending a suit filed by a partner on behalf of a firm he dies, there is no question of abatement at all; Bansidhar v. Debi Prasad, 93 I. C. 144 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 351.

Against an order of Court appointing a particular person as guardian of a minor, the minor's paternal uncle who opposed the appointment in the lower Court, preferred an appeal. On the death of the appellant pending the appeal, his son sought to continue the appeal and objection was taken that the right to sue did not survive and the appeal abated. Held that the appeal did not abate and could be prosecuted by the son of the deceased appellant; Palaniandi Chetti v. Adaikalam, 46 M. L. J. 179 : 47 M. 459 : 84 I. C. 613 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 484.

If a defendant is dead at the time of the institution of the suit, the plaintiff cannot go on with the suit by applying for the substitution of the deceased defendant.—Kristadas Law v. Kumar Khirada Kanta, 51 I. C. 160.

A suit by a Hindu mother for a share at a partition among her sons under the Dayabaga School, abates on her death.—Tripura v. Dakhina, 5 C. L. J. 310 : 11 C. W. N. 698.

A suit for a personal injunction abates when the person against whom the suit is brought dies.—Josiam v. Sami, 7 M. L. T. 195 : 5 I. C. 937.

The right to an office as mahant is a personal one and on the death of the person claiming it that right comes to an end; a suit by a person to establish the right abates on death.—Gulzar v. Sardar Ali, 12 L. 1 : 125 I. C. 891 : 32 P. L. R. 197 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 703.

A representative suit brought with the permission of the Court under Or. I, r. 8 by some persons which could be brought by any one of them does not abate on the death of one of them.—Balu v. Ram Rikh, 120 I. C. 543 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 292.

An appeal preferred by the creditors of an insolvent against an order of adjudication abates on his death, as the right to sue does not survive.—Narain v. Gurbaksh, 9 L. 306 : 107 I. C. 281 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 119.

Abatement of right to sue in forma pauperis—The right to make an application to sue in forma pauperis is a personal right and does not survive to the heirs of the pauper ; Jatindra Nath v. Sourindra Nath, 64 I. C. 63.

Decree passed after death of a party.—A decree passed after death of a party to the suit or appeal is not an absolute nullity ; such a decree is not void nor is it open to collateral attack, but it is erroneous and liable to be set aside. The mistake can be rectified by the Court setting aside the proceedings taken after the death of the deceased party and re-trying the case from the stage reached immediately preceding the death.—Tota Ram v. Kundan, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 784 : 112 I. C. 704.

No abatement by reason of the death of the plaintiff after decree.—A suit which has terminated in a decree cannot abate by reason of the death of the plaintiff after the passing of the decree ; Mulchand Kalwar v. Gobind Singh, 59 I. C. 939.

Death of either party pending appeal.—Where during the pendency of an appeal against a decree in favour of the plaintiff in a suit in which the right to sue would not survive if the plaintiff died before decree, either party dies, the appeal does not abate ; Muhammad v. Khushalo, 9 A. 131 (F. B.) ; Gopal v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 597 ; Paramen v. Sundararaja, 26 M. 499. But if the plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and the plaintiff has appealed from the decree, and either party dies pending the appeal, the appeal will abate ; Gopal v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 597 ; Sakyahani v. Bhavani, 27 M. 588 ; Josiam v. Sawmi, 34 M. 76 ; Saklat v. Bella, 2 R. 91 : A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 217.

Abatement of an application for execution.—There can be no execution. Rule 16 of Or. XXI applies only to execution and there is no other rule barring the executing Court when an execution petition is already pending.—Mohan Singh v. Jagat Singh, 50 A. 621 : 26 A. L. J. 417 : 109 I. C. 412 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 299.

2. Where there are more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any of them dies, and where the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, the Court shall cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record, and the suit shall proceed at the instance of the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs, or against the surviving defendant or defendants. [S. 362]

Procedure where one of several plaintiffs or defendants dies and right to sue survives.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 362, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word "where" has been substituted for the words "where" and "if."

"To the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone."—There can be no abatement under this rule when there are more plaintiffs or defendants than one, and any one of them dies and where the right to sue survives to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone or against the surviving defendant or defendants alone. In such a case no application by any party is necessary but it is made incumbent on the Court to cause an entry to that effect to be made on the record without any application; Nankoo v. Bhagelu, A. I. R. 1929 All. 347: 27 A. L. J. 618: 116 I. C. 746. The word "survive" in r. 2 is not used in the technical sense and it is not meant to apply only to such legal representatives as have acquired the rights of the deceased by survivorship such as trustees and executors and not by inheritance; the word is used simply in its ordinary sense of outliving. Thus if during the pendency of the appeal one of the parties to it dies but all his nearer heirs are already on the record, it is not necessary to apply under Or. XXII, r. 4 to join the legal representatives as parties, but the Court need only make an entry under Or. XXII, r. 2—Lalaram v. Tikamdas, 119 I. C. 537: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 225.

A Mahomedan appellant died leaving sons and daughters. The sons applied to be brought upon the record, but they did not bring their sisters upon the record along with themselves, held that they not having done so, the appeal abated.—Haider Husain v. Abdul Ahad, 30 A. 117: 5 A. L. J. 62.

A, B, and C, members of a joint Mitakshara family, sued for a declaration of their right, after refusal of their application for registration of names under the Land Registration Act, and obtained a decree. During the pendency of the appeal against the decree, A died, and more than six months after, the appellant applied to have B and C noted as legal representatives who had taken the estate by survivorship. Held that the application was governed by this rule, which is not limited in its application to cases, in which the right of suit survives against the surviving defendants, by reason of some circumstance antecedent to the suit.—Shamanund v. Rajnarain, 11 C. W. N. 186: 4 C. L. J. 563.

Where the deceased plaintiff was a joint occupancy tenant with his co-plaintiffs, and his rights in the tenancy lapsed to his co-tenants who were already on the record, it was not necessary to implead the heirs of the deceased plaintiff.—Saru Khan v. Jan Mohammad, 106 I. C. 313: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 43.

Where the plaintiff sued six vendees for the pre-emption of a house, and it appeared that one of the defendants was dead even before the suit was lodged and that his interest had devolved on the other five persons; held, that the suit could be proceeded with after striking off the name of the deceased.—Hazari Sher v. Mt. Mohammadi, 30 P. L. R. 259: 117 I. C. 899: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 440.

One of the several defendants preferred a second appeal, the other defendants not having joined. The appellant died and no legal representative was brought on record in time. The co-defendants contended that they were pro forma respondents in the second appeal, that the right to sue survived to them and that there was no abatement; held, that the co-defendants were not appellants, that Or. XXII. r. 2 did not apply and that the appeal abated.—Suba Gobind v. Anar Koer, 53 A. 521: 29 A. L. J. 266: 131 I. C. 877: A. I. R. 1931 All. 349.

If the right to sue survives against the surviving respondents, even by reason of any cause which arises after the institution of the suit or the appeal, e. g., the purchase of the interest of the deceased by them during the pendency of the appeal, the case would fall within the purview of Or. XXII, r. 2; Jhingi Ram v. Musst. Rupan Bai, 102 I. C. 436: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 501.

"Against the surviving defendant or defendants alone."—If the defendants in a suit are jointly and severally liable to the plaintiff, the suit does not abate merely because one of the defendants has died and his legal representatives have not been brought upon the record.—Jwala Prasad v. Kopeya Munda, 59 I. C. 890.

Where after the passing of a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit, the mortgage being executed by the members of a Hindu joint family, one of the mortgagors-defendants died and a final decree was passed without bringing on record the legal representatives of the deceased, held, that Or. XXII, r. 2 applied and that the suit did not abate as against the other members of the family who were already on record.—Shridhar v. Madappa, 32 Bom. L. R. 698: 127 I. C. 334: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 367.

A legatee who has received assent of the executor to the legacy can bring and maintain an action in his or her own right. Where therefore both the executor and the legatee are plaintiffs and no legal representative of the executor is brought on record after the executor's death, the appeal does not abate against the legatee though it abates against the executor.—Watkins v. Watkins, 121 I. C. 177: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 138.

Rule 2 contemplates cases where the right to sue survives against the surviving defendant in his own capacity and not as the legal representative of the other defendant. Where the right to sue survives against the surviving defendants in their capacity as representatives of the deceased defendant the case comes under r. 4 and an application for substitution within the period of limitation is necessary.—Walayatunnissa v. Chalakhi, 10 P. 341: 12 P. L. T. 28: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 164: 132 I. C. 100. See also Lilo v. Jhagru, 3 P. 853: 85 I. C. 25: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 123; Basist v. Modnath, 7 P. 285: 108 I. C. 552: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 250. But see Shamanund v. Rajnarain, 11 C. W. N. 186 and the notes under the preceding heading, and the notes under heading "On an application made in that behalf" in r. 4, post.

"The suit shall proceed."—The word "suit" includes an appeal: see r. 11.

3. (1) Where one of two or more plaintiffs dies and the right to sue does not survive to the surviving plaintiff or plaintiffs alone, or a sole plaintiff or sole surviving plaintiff dies and the right to sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit. [Ss. 363 & 365.]

Procedure in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or of sole plaintiff.

(2) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned, and, on the application of the defendant, the Court may award to him the costs which he may have incurred in defending the suit, to be recovered from the estate of the deceased plaintiff. [S. 366, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—The provisions contained in Ss. 363, 365 and 366 of the C. P. Code, 1882, have been embodied in this rule with several alterations and omissions :—(1) The words “so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned” in sub-rule (2) are new. (2) The words “the suit shall abate” in sub-rule (2) have been substituted for the words “the Court may pass an order that the suit shall abate” which occurred in S. 366 of the Code of 1882. Under the present Code it is not necessary to make an order that the suit shall abate, as it abates ipso facto if no application is made under sub-rule (1) within the time limited by law (90 days); Ram Gopal v. Har Kishen, 88 I. C. 478 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 598; Lachmi v. Muhammad, 42 A. 540 : 59 I. C. 903; Churya v. Baneshwar, 48 A 334 (overruling Gujrati v. Sital, 44 A. 459); Qaim v. Nura, 7 L. 73 : 94 I. C. 423 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 234.

Limitation.—The period of limitation for an application under this rule is 90 days, see Art. 176 of the Limitation Act IX of 1908.

On an application made in that behalf.—See notes under that heading under r. 4, post. Where the appellant died and his counsel to whom the appellant had given a power-of-attorney applied to implead the legal representatives; held, that he could not file the application without first obtaining a fresh power-of-attorney from the legal representative of the deceased—Parja v. Dumanun, 133 I. C. 877 : 32 P. L. R. 389. Where there were two appeals from the same decree, one by the plaintiff and the other by the 2nd defendant the substitution of the legal representatives on the death of the plaintiff in his appeal, will not enure for the benefit of the other appeal as well, and the 2nd defendant not having brought them on the record of his appeal, his appeal abated.—Shankaranaraina v. Laxmi, 33 L. W. 411 : 130 I. C. 164 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 277.

The suit shall abate “so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned.”—The words “so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned” mean that the suit shall primarily abate so far as the deceased plaintiff is concerned, but they do not mean that the suit shall in no case abate as a whole. In a suit by the partners of the firm to recover a partnership debt if one of the partners dies pending the suit and his legal representative is not brought on the record, the suit will abate only so far as the deceased partner is concerned; Sarju v. Ram Sarup, 19 A. L. J. 266 : 60 I. C. 755. But where the suit cannot proceed in the absence of the deceased plaintiff's legal representative, as when the shares of the parties in the joint property have to be determined, the death of one of such plaintiffs, if no legal representative of the deceased plaintiff is brought upon record within limitation, will have the effect of causing the suit to abate as a whole; Huda v. Lala, 41 P. R. 1915; Raj Chunder v. Ganga Das, 31 C. 487 (P. C.): 8 C. W. N. 442; 1 A. L. J. 145; 14 M. L. J. 147; 31 I. A. 71. Abatement arises only under r. 3 or r. 4 when one of two or more plaintiffs or defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive.—Nankoo v. Bhagelu, 27 A. L. J. 618; 116 I. C. 746; A. I. R. 1929 All. 347. It is by no means an universal rule that in every case of suit by co-owners against trespassers, that is, in the absence of the legal representatives of one of the co-owners, possibility of two conflicting decrees arises or that the suit or appeal should abate in its entirety. Where each of the plaintiffs has an ascertained share distinct from others, the mere fact that the legal representatives of one of them have not been brought on record is not prejudicial to the prosecution of the appeal (following 10 L. 7).—Surajmal v. Pyarkhan, 27 N. L. R. 220; 134 I. C. 679; A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 184.

This rule applies to appeals.—This rule applies to the case of a deceased appellant as it does to the case of a deceased plaintiff (S. 107 and Or. XXII, r. 11). Therefore where one of two or more appellants dies, and the right to appeal does not survive to the surviving appellants alone, the legal representative of the deceased appellant should be brought on the record. If this is not done, the appeal will abate so far as the deceased appellant is concerned. The decision of the question whether the death of one of the appellants causes the appeal of the others to abate, turns upon the question whether the right to appeal survives to the surviving appellants. If it does, the appeal of those appellants does not abate by reason of the death of one of the appellants; Ram Sewak v. Lambar Pande, 25 A. 27; Lachmi v. Amin Chand, 97 P. R. 1893. Where the decree of the lower Court proceeded on a joint appeal, the death of one of the appellants was pre-

I. C. 591; A. I. R. 1930 All. 211. Where several plaintiffs or defendants jointly appeal from a decree in a case to which Or. XLI, r. 4 of the Code applies, the death of one of such appellants, if no legal representative of the deceased appellant is brought on the record within the period of limitation, can only have the effect of causing the appeal to abate so far only as the deceased appellant is concerned; it cannot have the effect of causing the appeal to abate as a whole; Chandarsang v. Khimabhai, 22 B. 718; Ram Sewak v. Lambar, 25 A. 27; Chintaman v. Gangabai, 27 B. 284; Somasundaram v. Vaithilinga, 40 M. 846; Piyare Lal v. Charamani, 84 P. R. 1918; Maung Byaung v. Maung Shwe, 2 B. 486; 84 I. C. 170; A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 376; Johaga v. Birchand, 29 P. L. R. 410; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 737; Mahadeo v. Talib Ali, 50 A. 792; 26 A. L. J. 564; A. I. R. 1923 All. 345; 115 I. C. 785 (F. B.) where one of the plaintiff-appellants in a suit for pre-emption died and his legal representatives were not brought on record (overruling 49 A. 756, 47 A. 100, 45 A. 236). But the appeal will abate as a whole if the case is of such a nature that the appeal cannot proceed in the absence of the legal representative of the deceased appellant. Where in a suit for correction of entry in the record of rights the only question in appeal was whether the rate of rent should be altered and it appeared that the effect of allowing the appeal would produce different results on the several parties, the entire appeal abated and it was not competent for the Court to proceed to hear the appeal under Or. XLI, r. 4.—Naimuddin v. Maniruddin, 47 C. L. J. 82: 32 C. W. N. 299: 107 I. C. 726: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 184. Order XLI, r. 4, gives no power to the Court to vary or reverse a decree in favour of a person who is dead whose legal representatives have not been brought on the record and in respect of whom the appeal has abated.—Ibid.

The introduction of a plaintiff or a defendant for one stage of suit is an introduction for all stages; impleading of representatives of a deceased in the appellate Court is valid for all stages of the suit (following 45 C. 94 (P.C.)).—Tota Ram v. Kundan, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 784. Where a partner of a creditor firm brought a suit for recovery of a debt due to the firm, impleading the other partner in the suit and pending appeal by the plaintiff the other partner died and no legal representative was brought on the record held, that as the other partner was a necessary party to the suit, the whole appeal abated.—Chandu Lal v. Khushali Ram, 124 I. C. 684: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 174.

See cases noted under rule 11, post.

Two or more legal representatives.—The words "legal representative" in Or. XXII, r. 3 must, where there are more than one legal representative, be read in the plural. Hence, where a sole appellant died during the pendency of his appeal, leaving three legal representatives, and only one of them was brought upon the record within the prescribed period of limitation: Held, that the appeal must abate. Either all the representatives should have been brought upon the records as appellants, or if any had refused to be joined as appellants, they should have been brought on record as respondents.—Ghamandi Lal v. Amir Begam, 16 A. 211 (followed in Haidar Husain v. Abdul Ahad, 30 A. 117: 5 A. L. J. 62). See, however, Musala Reddi v. Ramayya, 23 M. 125, where it has been held that when there are more than one legal representative, all of them must, so far as it is possible for this to be done, join in an application under this rule, and the words "legal representative" must in such a case be read in the plural. But where all the representatives cannot be joined as applicants, this rule should not be construed so as to have the effect of rendering the application no application by "the legal representative" within the meaning of this rule (10 B. 220, and 16 A. 211 considered). If one or more of the legal representatives are unknown or are unwilling to join in the application, a bona fide application by all the representatives who are willing to join in making the application will be sufficient compliance with r. 3. But where there is no evidence that if the true legal representative had been informed he would not have been willing to join the suit abated and r. 5 would not apply to such a case.—Fajor Banu v. Rohim Buz, 32 C. W. N. 1020: 115 I. C. 184: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 26.

Legal representative of deceased plaintiff.—For the definition of the words "legal representative," see S. 2 (11). The words "legal representative," as used in this order, have a very wide significance and are not synonymous with the word "heir"; Ram Din v. Raj Rani, 8 N. L. R. 113. On the death of a Hindu widow during the pendency of a suit by her to recover property belonging to her deceased husband, the reversionary heirs of her husband are her legal representatives within the meaning of this rule; Premmoyi v. Presnath, 23 C. 636; Tribhuvan v. Sri Narain, 20 A. 341; Rikhai Rai v. Sheo Pujan, 33 A. 15. A suit brought by the head of a mutt, on behalf of the mutt, may be continued on his removal by his successor in office, because his successor is a person on whom the trust property devolves within the meaning of Or. XXII, r. 10. Ratnam v. Nataraja, 84 I. C. 200: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 615: 46 M. L. J. 341. The legal representatives of a daughter, who dies after instituting a suit to recover possession of her father's property as his heir, are the next heirs of the father entitled to come in after her, Ramaswami v. Pedamunayya, 39 M. 382; Jadubansi v. Mahpal Singh, 38 A. 111. On the death of a reversioner, pending a suit for a declaration of

mal, 38 M. 468: 29 I. C. 298: 42 I. C. 125. Where a senior anandravan of a tarwad brings a representative suit under Or. I, r. 8 to dispute on behalf of his tarwad, an act prejudicial to the tarwad's interests committed by its karnavan and obtains a decree but dies during appeal, any of the junior anandravans may be joined as his legal representatives and permitted to carry on the proceedings; Mahomed v. Kunhi Kutti, (1928) M. W. N. 867. A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 451. Where on a refusal by the registering officer to register the will, two of the legatees bring a suit for registration, the suit must be regarded as in a representative capacity and on the death of any of the plaintiffs the other will be his legal representative, so far as the right to continue the suit is concerned though not so far as the specific rights of the deceased under the will is concerned.—In re Subramania, 115 I. C. 831: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 524.

A person who allows his benamdar to sue in his own name and not in a representative character cannot come in on his death as his legal representative.—Doraiswami v. Ghidambaram, 31 L. W. 194: (1930) M. W. N. 48: 122 I. C. 176: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 221: 58 M. L. J. 57.

An executor appointed by the will of a deceased plaintiff or appellant is his legal representative within the meaning of this rule.—Payyath Nanu Menon v. Thiruthipalli Raman, 20 M. 51.

An administrator appointed under S. 10 of Bombay Regulation, VIII of 1837, does not, by such appointment, become the legal representative of the deceased, or entitled to continue an appeal filed by him.—Malapa Sidapa v. Devi Nash, 21 B. 102.

If a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff, such question should be determined by the Court under Or. XXII, r. 5.—Oula v. Beepathee, 17 M. 209.

The original plaintiff sued for redemption of a mortgage executed by her father. She claimed as the only unmarried daughter of three, arraying as defendants, besides the mortgagee, her surviving married sister and the minor children of a deceased sister. The plaintiff died during the pendency of the suit. Held that the claim being personal to the plaintiff, the suit abated, and the surviving sister could not be permitted to carry on the suit in substitution for the original plaintiff.—Balak Puri v. Durga, 30 A. 49.

The right of the mother to a share on partition among the sons, is in lieu of her maintenance, and such share on her death, reverts to the sons. Where the mother brought a suit against the sons for her share of certain G. P. notes, which had been partitioned amongst themselves by them; held that on her death the right to sue did not survive in her executor.—Tripura Sundari v. Dakshina Mohun, 11 C. W. N. 698 : 5 C. L. J. 310.

Death of pauper applicant.—A right to obtain permission to sue as a pauper is only a personal right : on the death of such applicant his legal representative cannot come and ask to be substituted in his place. There is a marked distinction between a right to sue and a right to make an application for permission to sue as a pauper—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163 : 4 C. L. J. 234. See also Farzand Ali Khan v. Amir Haider, 26 I. C. 714 ; Subbiah v. Bala Sundara, 51 M. 697 : 27 L. W. 445 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 278 : 110 I. C. 318.

Minor applicant.—A minor is entitled to be made a party as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff in the same way as an adult, but his application must be through a next friend ; Rukmani v. Veerasami, 80 I. C. 942 : 47 M. L. J. 370 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 813.

Death of plaintiff after preliminary and before final decree.—Where in a suit a plaintiff dies after the passing of the preliminary decree and before the passing of the final decree (as in a mortgage suit), this rule applies, Lakshmi v. Subbarama, 39 M. 488 : 29 I. C. 142 ; Subbarayudu v. Rama Dasu, 68 I. C. 942 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 237 ; Natesa v. Kannammal, 46 M. L. J. 181 : 78 I. C. 64 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 786 ; Hemendra v. Fakir, 50 C. 650 : 74 I. C. 929 : A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 626 ; Mahabir v. Narain, 29 A. L. J. 715 : 134 I. C. 236 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 490 : 54 A. 25 (F. B.). But see contra : Perumal v. Perumal, 51 M. 701 : 28 L. W. 164 : 112 I. C. 116 : (1928) M. W. N. 434 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 914 : 55 M. L. J. 253 (F. B.) which has held that the right to sue had come to an end with the passing of the preliminary decree, that r. 3 of Or. XXII, was inapplicable and that the suit did not abate (relying on 4. P. 61 (P. O.)). See Utanka Lal v. Tarak Nath, 48 C. L. J. 357, where an opinion has been expressed that it would be very inconvenient if after the preliminary decree all persons who are parties to the suit are required to be alert to see whether any of the decree-holders or judgment-debtors under the preliminary decree dies before the application for final decree. The suit does not abate if the heirs of the deceased mortgagee who died after the passing of the preliminary decree, are not brought on record within the time limited by law.—Nazir Ahmmad v. Tamizaddi, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 430. There can be no question of the surviving of the cause of action in a suit when a judgment has been pronounced in respect of that cause of action. By the effect of the judgment the decree takes the place of the cause of action either by affirming it or rejecting it.—Kalu Ram v. Gaya Din, 106 I. C. 332 : 4 O. W. N. 1002 : A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 561.

Death of sole plaintiff—Abatement of suit.—The section (i.e., this rule) refers to a death only as occurring before decree.—Bhugwan Das v. Nilkanta, 9 C. W. N. 171 ; Ramanada v. Minatchi, 3 M. 236.

Upon the death of a sole plaintiff, if no application to revive is made within the prescribed time, the suit abates. But the Court may, under

S. 371, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 9) revive the suit, on the application of the legal representative of the plaintiff, within 3 years from the time when the right to apply accrues, if he can show that he was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit.—Bhojrub Dass v. Doman Thakoor, 5 C. 139 : 4 C. L. R. 374. See also Ram Protap v. Lal Chand, 9 C. W. N. 369 ; and Fulvahu v. Goculdas, 9 B. 275.

A sole plaintiff having died after decree, an application was made after the prescribed period of limitation by his legal representative to be substituted on the record in his place. Held that S. 365, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 3) does not apply to the case of a sole plaintiff dying after decree, the right to sue being merged in the decree.—Cally Churn v. Bhuggobutty Churn, 5 C. L. R. 108. See also Ramanada v. Minatchi, 3 M. 236.

On the death of a reversioner pending a suit for a declaration that an alleged adoption is invalid, the next reversioner is the legal representative and is entitled to be brought on the record as such.—Venkatanarayana v. Subbammal, 38 M. 406.

... .. any
... .. used against the deceased plaintiff himself.—Sham Chand v. Bhayaram, 22 C. 92 ; Subbaraya v. Manika, 19 M. 345. The legal representative is confined to the pleadings and the case of the plaintiff whose representative he is and cannot agitate in that suit his own claim against the other plaintiffs in the case though he may do so in any other proceedings.—Muhammad Naina v. Ummanakani, 127 I. C. 127 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 593.

On the death of a partner the right to sue in respect of debts due to the firm survives to the surviving partners.—Balkissen v. Kanhyalal, 17 C. L. J. 648.

Abatement where no application by the deceased plaintiff's representative.—Upon the death of a sole plaintiff, if no application to revive is made within the prescribed period of limitation from the date of the plaintiff's death, the suit abates. But the suit can be revived within three years on the application of the legal representative under S. 371, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 9), if it can be shown that he was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit.—Bhojrub Dass v. Doman Thakoor, 5 C. 139 : 4 C. L. R. 374 ; Fulvahu v. Goculdas, 9 B. 275 ; and Ram Protap v. Lal Chand, 9 C. W. N. 369.

Where the appellate Court remanded a suit under Or. XLI, r. 25 and pending the enquiry one of the plaintiffs died but the suit was proceeded with without any action being taken by either side and a decree was passed by the appellate Court on the basis of the finding of the trial Court and an objection on the ground of abatement was raised for the first time in second appeal; held, that the suit should be remanded so as to consider the effect of the abatement and in order to have it set aside if possible. Held also that the plea as to abatement could under these circumstances be raised in second appeal.—Nathu v. Amrao Singh, 10 L. L. J. 497 : 30 P. L. R. 13 : 117 I. C. 665 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 119.

Death of the sole plaintiff in a mortgage suit and the omission to bring his heirs on the record within the period of limitation results in an abatement of the suit. The abatement is automatic and does not require any formal order by the Court.—Niaz Ahmad v. Parsottam, 53 A. 347; 29 A. L. J. 159; 129 I. C. 545; A. I. R. 1931 All. 154.

Award of costs—Notwithstanding that S. 582, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 107 and Or. XXII, r. 11) does not expressly direct that the word "plaintiff" in S. 366, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 3) shall be held to include an "appellant," yet the power conferred by S. 366 (Or. XXII, r. 3, Cl. 2) in the Court of original jurisdiction to award costs against the estate of a deceased plaintiff, may by analogy, be taken to be conferred on the appellate Court.—Rajmonee Dabee v. Chunder Kant, 8 C. 440; 10 C. L. R. 437 (4 B. 654 followed). See also Dontu Pedda v. Mallan Balayya, 37 M. L. J. 596.

Limitation.—Under Art. 176, Act IX of 1908 the period of limitation for an application under this rule by the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, and under S. 582, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 107; Or. XXII, r. 11) by the legal representative of a deceased appellant, is 90 days from the date of death.

An application for an order to set aside an abatement must be made within 60 days from the date of the abatement, under Art. 171 of the Limitation Act and an application to have the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff made parties, within 6 months from the death of the deceased party under Art. 176.—Maman Thin v. Maung Po Win, 10 Bur. L. T. 27.

The provisions of Act XXVI of 1920 curtailing the period of limitation for bringing on record the legal representative of a deceased appellant to three months from the date of death, apply also to cases where the death has taken place after the commencement of the amending Act; Nimba v. Janki, 71 I. L. J. 100; Shivaji Rao, 26 Bom. L. R. 378.

If a plaintiff dies after decree, his representatives are not bound to apply within the prescribed period of limitation to be made parties to the suit, but have the same time to file an appeal as the plaintiff would have had. Sections 363 and 365, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 3) and Art. 171 of the Limitation Act, 1877, do not apply to the case of a plaintiff dying after decree.—Ramanada v. Minatchi, 3 M. 236.

The procedure laid down in rr. 3, 4 and 11 of Or. XXII for substitution of the legal representative of an appellant or respondent is not exhaustive. Such application can be made at any time within the period prescribed by Art. 181 of Limitation Act.—Hakeem Syed Mahomed v. Fateh Bahadur, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 565 (F. B.).

Execution-proceedings.—The provisions of this rule do not apply to execution-proceedings by virtue of r. 12 of this order.

Revision.—Under this rule, the Court must enter the name of the legal representative on the record if he applies for the same within the prescribed period. Its not doing so amounts to a failure to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law under this rule, and the High Court may interfere in revision under S. 151.—Janardhan v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 317.

Appeal against orders under this rule.—No appeal lies from an adjudication that a suit or an appeal has abated, because such an adjudication does not amount to a decree; Hamida Bibi v. Ali Husen, 17 A. 172; Walayat v. Ram Lal, 12 A. L. J. 1113; Muhammad v. Manohar, 20 A. L. J. 214; 64 I. C. 838. See also Mati Lal v. Bishambhar, 47 A. 741; 88 I. C. 95; A. I. R. 1925 All. 431. An order of the Court declaring that a suit has abated owing to the cause of action not surviving, or that the death of one of several plaintiffs has caused an abatement in toto, is a decree, and appealable as such; Niranjan v. Afzal, 128 P. R. 1916 (F. B.); Subramania v. Venkataramier, 31 I. C. 4. So is an order directing the abatement of a suit in consequence of no legal representative of a deceased plaintiff having applied within the time prescribed by law to be brought upon the record; Ram Sarup v. Matiram, 1 L. 493; 57 I. C. 137.

Held, that an order rejecting an application that a suit might be declared to have abated by reason of the death of the plaintiff, and the invalidity of an application to the Court to bring his legal representative on to the record, was not one of the orders contemplated by S. 366, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 3), and no appeal would lie therefrom.—Bhagwan Das v. Maharaja of Bhartpur, 17 A. 286.

Where a Court rightly or wrongly comes to the conclusion that certain persons cannot in terms of Or. XXII, r. 3 be substituted in the place of a deceased plaintiff, such an order is not a decree nor is it an order from which an appeal is provided for in the Code.—Puttoo v. Munshi, 30 A. L. J. 308. See also Venkatakrishna v. Krishna, 49 M. 450; 95 I. C. 489; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 586 (overruling 43 M. 812). Contra Rampal Singh v. Abdul Hamid, 110 I. C. 826; A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 362 (F. B.), which agrees with the decisions of the Lahore High Court.

4. (1) Where one of two or more defendants dies and the right to sue does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone, or a sole defendant or sole surviving defendant dies and the right to sue survives, the Court, on an application made in that behalf, shall cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party and shall proceed with the suit.

Procedure in case of death of one of several defendants or of sole defendant

(2) Any person so made a party may make any defence appropriate to his character as legal representative of the deceased defendant.

(3) Where within the time limited by law no application is made under sub-rule (1), the suit shall abate as against the deceased defendant. [S. 368.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 363, C. P. Code, 1882. The old section has been remodelled and its words have been changed. The present rule has embodied the material provisions of the old section in a more concise form. Several words and phrases of the old section have been omitted, but no material change seems to have been made in the meaning. Under the old section, an application for substitution was to be made by the plaintiff or by the legal representative of the deceased defendant. But in the present rule the words "on an application made in that behalf," have been added so as to include the application of both; and hence para. 3 and the last para. of the old section have been omitted as unnecessary. The insertion of the above words have also rendered the case in 9 B. 56 obsolete and inoperative. The words "and shall issue a summons to such representative to appear on a day to be therein mentioned to defend the suit" which occurred in para. 5 have been omitted as unnecessary, the omission being supplied by Or. I, r. 10, sub-rule (4).

In sub-rule (1) of this rule the words "shall cause the legal representative of the deceased defendant to be made a party," have been substituted for the words "the Court shall thereupon enter the name of such representative on the record in the place of such defendant" which occurred in para. 4 of the old section. The above amendment clearly shows that under the present rule the legal representative of the deceased defendant is to be made a party. Such addition therefore comes within Or. I, r. 10 (4). See also 8 M. 300, which will explain the object of the amendment.

Rule 4 reproduces with no change in principle S. 368 of the old Code as amended in 1888, except in so far it throws more responsibility on the Court in the matter of bringing the legal representatives on record.—Chaturbhujadoss v. Rajamanicka, 54 M. 212; 129 I. C. 469; 32 L. W. 862; (1930) M. W. N. 994; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 930; 60 M. L. J. 97.

Suit.—The word "suit" in this rule includes an appeal, and the word "defendant," a respondent; see r. 11.

Death of defendant and substitution of his legal representative.—The section applies to the case of a defendant who dies before a decree is passed.—Sambasiva v. Veera Perumal, 28 M. 361.

In a suit where a defendant dies, it is not open to the plaintiff to ask the Court to add somebody other than the legal representative of the deceased defendant as a party to the suit, and an application asking for this to be done would not bind the real representative; Muhammad Junaid v. Aulia Bibi, 61 I. C. 947; 42 A. 497.

Where only some of the legal representatives of a deceased person were brought on the record and within time, there is no abatement even though the other legal representatives are omitted.—Abdulla Sahib v. Vageer Beevi, 117 I. C. 138; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1199 (following 26 M. 230 and 4 P. 320); Muhammad Zafaryab v. Abdull, 50 A. 857; 111 I. C. 238; A. I. R. 1928 All. 532; Jehrabai v. Bismillabi, 26 Bom. L. R. 375; A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 420; 80 I. C. 753; Shib Dutta v. Sheiko Karim, 4 P. 320; 89 I. C. 280; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 551. An objection to the non-joinder of some of the legal representatives of a deceased defendant should be taken at the proper time and by their failure to do so the defendants are estopped from raising it at a subsequent stage of the proceedings.—Sahij Ram v. Bhambhomal, 124 I. C. 377; A. I. R. 1930 Sind 147. Where in a suit brought by the creditor against a wrong person as the legal representative of his debtor, a decree passed in -favour of the plaintiff and the sale held in execution of that decree are binding on the true legal representative, where there has been no fraud or collusion between the parties. The only test of the binding nature of the decree is whether the estate of the deceased person was sufficiently represented by the alleged legal representative who has been actually brought on the record. Where this test is satisfied, the binding nature of the decree is not limited to the assets of the deceased in the hands of the wrong representative but on the whole estate of the deceased. This principle is applicable to all cases where a wrong representative has been brought on the record, whether the suit itself is instituted against the wrong representative at the very commencement, or the wrong representative has been added in the course of the suit or in the course of the execution proceedings.—Chaturbhujadoss v. Rajamanicka, 54 M. 212: 32 L. W. 862: (1930) M. W. N. 994: 60 M. L. J. 97: 129 I. C. 469: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 930; Pulikkut v. Thappalli, 103 I. C. 409: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 243. Rule 4 is sufficiently complied with if all the legal representatives known after diligent inquiry are joined.—Begum Jan v. Jamat Bibi, 7 L. 438: 98 I. C. 12: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 94. Where 2 out of 3 legal representatives were brought on record, it was held that the appeal abated as the whole estate was not represented.—Muhammad Hassan v. Inayat, 100 I. C. 418: A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 94. Under the Code it is the duty of the plaintiff to search out the real legal representatives and not merely allege that so and so is the legal representative.—Kishan v. Yeshwant, 23 N. L. R. 69.

Where a suit was brought against a firm and the alleged sole proprietor died but no steps were taken to bring his legal representatives on the record, held that the suit abated; Ram Prosad Ohimonal v. Anundji & Co., 49 C. 524.

The plaintiffs sued for a declaration of title and confirmation of possession in a $\frac{2}{3}$ share in certain properties and prayed in the alternative that if the properties were found to be debutter, their rights as shebait may be declared and possession given to them. The defendant was sued in his personal capacity and also in the capacity of a shebait. The dispute was referred to arbitration, and an award and decree followed, which provided that the defendant's son (who was no party to the proceedings) would on no account be appointed mohunt. Pending an appeal, the defendant died and his son got himself substituted as his legal representative. Held, that as neither the Deity nor the defendant's son was a party "the defendant's son were not affected by it governed by the Mitakshara law) the son could be substituted as the legal representative of his father.—Barindra v. Dwijendra, 86 C. W. N. 1007.

A Mahomedan sought to recover possession of his minor daughters, who were alleged to have been illegally detained by the defendant. Pending the suit the defendant died, and the suit was continued against his widow. Held that the cause of action did not survive against the widow of the defendant, and that therefore the suit could not proceed—Sharifa v. Munekhan, 25 B. 574.

In a suit by a mortgagor against the mortgagee and sub-mortgagee to redeem a mortgage, the mortgagee died pending the suit, and no steps were taken by the plaintiff within the prescribed period to make his representatives parties. The suit was, however, allowed to be continued against the sub-mortgagee, and a redemption decree was passed in plaintiff's favour. Held that the sub-mortgagee, not being the assignee of the mortgagee, on the death of the latter, no cause of action survived to the plaintiff against the sub-mortgagee and the suit abated under this rule.—Padgaya v. Baji Babaji, 20 B. 549.

On the death of one of the mortgagors defendants whose legal representatives were not brought on record, the suit on the mortgage does not abate as a whole. The mortgagee is entitled to a decree for sale of the remaining mortgaged property, i.e., the mortgaged property excluding the share of the deceased mortgagor and is entitled to sell the remaining portion of the mortgaged property to recover a proportionate amount of the mortgage-money.—Haibat Shah v. Bahra Jara, 29 A. L. J. 902: 132 I. C. 31: A. I. R. 1931 All 235.

Where a decree was made declaring that a party was entitled to a share in a certain property and directing the taking of accounts of that property, and the said party applied to have the death of a certain defendant, who had died after the decree, recorded and the names of his heirs substituted before the final decree, held that S. 372, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 10) applied.—Surendro Keshup v. Khetter Kristo, 7 C. W. N. 517: 30 C. 609.

Under this rule, a plaintiff may have the representatives of a deceased sole defendant placed on the record, so that he may continue his suit against them, but there is no rule which allows the representatives of a sole defendant who has died to be placed on the record at their own request.—Barjaver v. Hathi Singh, 9 B. 56.

In the case of joint tort-feasors, the plaintiff is never required to join as defendant every person who is liable for the tort and the liability of others is no defence for those sued as the liability is joint and several. Order XXII, r. 4 does not relate to the case where the whole suit abates by reason of failure to substitute the heirs of a deceased defendant; Gajo Singh v. Amrit Narain, 2 P. L. T. 234: 60 I. C. 722.

Where in a suit against a Gurdwara it was contended that the suit had abated by reason of the Managing Committee not having been impleaded, but it was not shown that there was any corporate legal entity in charge of the Gurdwara, nor that the Committee was dissolved more than 90 days before the impleading of the new Committee; held, that Or. XXII, r. 4 did not apply to the case and the suit did not abate.—Sunder Singh v. Gurdwara Choba Sahib, 11 L. L. J. 78: 30 P. L. R. 231: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 440.

Where a defendant to a suit for the recovery of a mortgage-debt, who was on the record as a surety personally for the payment of the mortgage-money, died, and the plaintiff declined to place on the record such defendant's legal representative, it was held that this only amounted to a waiver of the plaintiff's rights as against the surety and did not preclude him from continuing the suit against the mortgagor. The suit did not abate.—Mehdi Husain v. Sughra Begam, 25 A. 206.

A suit against a dead man is a nullity; consequently any order made in the suit allowing amendment of the plaint by substituting the legal representative of the deceased as defendant and allowing the suit to proceed against him is a nullity. It is immaterial that the suit was brought bona fide and in ignorance of the death of such person; Rampratab Brij Mohan Das v. Gouri Shankar, 25 Bom. L. R. 7. See also Chithambaram v. Narayanswami, (1928) M. W. N. 240 (following 31 M. 86). Where only one of the defendants happens to be dead at the time of the suit, the Court ought not to dismiss the suit against the other defendants but should strike off the name of the former under Or. I, r. 10 and proceed against the other defendants.—Roop Chand v. Sardar Khan, 9 L. 526: 29 P. L. R. 626: 110 I. C. 281: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 359.

Where the defendant died before the presentation of the plaint, the Court has no jurisdiction to substitute the representatives of the deceased as defendants and to allow the suit to proceed against them.—Veerappa Chetty v. Ponnen, 17 M. L. J. 551: 31 M. 86 (12 W. R. 45 followed; 16 M. 319 distinguished). Order XXII has no application to such a case.—Roop Chand v. Sardar Khan, 9 L. 526: 29 P. L. R. 626: 110 I. C. 281: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 359.

Where no application for substitution is made within time after the death of the sole defendant, the suit abates automatically and no formal order giving effect to an abatement is necessary to be recorded by the Court.—Kirpa Ram v. Bhagat Chand, 112 I. C. 5: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 746.

"Does not survive against the surviving defendant or defendants alone."—Three defendants were sued jointly as representing the estate of their late father and their liability, if any, was joint and indivisible. The lower Court dismissed the suit and the plaintiffs appealed. During the pendency of the appeal one of the defendants respondents died and the application to bring his legal representatives on the record was made nearly two years later. Held, that the appeal abated in as much as the right to sue did not survive only against the two defendants on the record; Gurdas Mal v. Kashi Ram, 2 L. L. J. 64; Basist Narayan v. Modnath, 7 P. 285: 9 P. L. T. 153: 103 I. C. 552: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 250. "On an application made in that behalf."—Under the old Code, an application for substitution was to be made by the plaintiff or by the legal representative of the deceased defendant. But in the present rule, the words "on an application made in that behalf" have been added so as to include the application of both. So when a defendant dies pending a suit, it is open to his legal representative to come on the record on his own application notwithstanding the plaintiff's omission to implead him. In such a case, the Court might award costs to the legal parties. The suit was, however, allowed to be continued against the sub-mortgagee, and a redemption decree was passed in plaintiff's favour. Held that the sub-mortgagee, not being the assignee of the mortgagee, on the death of the latter, no cause of action survived to the plaintiff against the sub-mortgagee and the suit abated under this rule.—Padgaya v. Baji Babaji, 20 B. 549.

So when a defendant dies pending a suit, it is open to his legal representative to come on the record on his own application notwithstanding the plaintiff's omission to implead him. In such a case, the Court might award costs to the legal representative; Kuppaswami v. Singaravelu, 45 M. L. J. 233 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 679. If the legal representatives of a deceased respondent are already on the record as parties, it is not necessary to make an application for substitution and it is enough to make an entry on the record to that effect. Order XXII, r. 4 is not applicable to the case; Hafizunnissa v. Jawahir, 24 O. C. 374 : 66 I. C. 24 (32 A. 551 : 32 A. 563 followed); Achuthan v. Manavikraman, 51 M. 347 : 27 L. W. 422 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 152 : 109 I. C. 372 : 54 M. L. J. 675 (relying on 2 R. 445 and dissenting from A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 122); Lalaram v. Tikam Das, 119 I. C. 537 : A. I. R. 1929 Sind 225 ; Dawloo Ma v. Ghowdappa, 126 I. C. 486 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 579.

In a case where all the heirs of a deceased respondent are already parties to the appeal, there need be no formal application under Or. XXII, r. 4 to bring on record the legal representatives of the deceased, and the appeal will not abate on that ground. Rules 2 and 4 of Or. XXII contemplate two different sets of circumstances, and the provision in r. 2 is independent of and in no way subject to the provisions of r. 4, and so r. 2 is applicable, and no application need be made under r. 4; Gopal Das v. Mul Chand, 7 L. 399 : A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 607. This case has not been followed in Walayatunnissa v. Chalakh, 10 P. 341 : 132 I. C. 100 : 12 P. L. T. 28 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 164, noted under r. 2, ante.

Under the Code it is the duty of the plaintiff to search out the real legal representative and not merely allege that so and so is the legal representative.—Kisan v. Yeshwant, 28 N. L. R. 69.

Where a respondent's legal representative wishes to bring himself on the record he ought to apply by petition under Or. XXII, r. 4. But he need not apply for setting aside the abatement for it is the appellant's appeal that abates against him.—Ramakrishna v. Narasimha, A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 527.

Where no application is made within the period of limitation.—Where on a party's death, no application is put in to bring in his legal representatives within the time allowed by law, the suit or appeal abates though the party was ignorant of the death of the deceased; Mir Nawab v. Hardeo, 60 P. R. 1911; Hadu v. Lala, 41 P. R. 1915; Jamna v. Sarjit, 67 P. R. 1919; Jowala Ram v. Hari Kishen, 5 L. 70 : 80 I. C. 690 : A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 429; Hari Saran v. Eradat, 2 P. L. R. 279. Ignorance of death may, however, be a good ground for setting aside the abatement; Daya Singh v. Buta Singh, 118 P. R. 1916. When a decree was passed in appeal in ignorance of the death of the respondent, the appellate Court can decide the question as to the maintainability of an application for substitution having regard to Limitation Act, S. 5.—Khalil Ahmed v. Khatir Zaman, 2 Luck. 592.

The suit shall abate as against the deceased defendant.—Ordinarily a suit or appeal does not abate in its entirety on the death of one of several defendants or respondents because of the failure of the plaintiff or appellant to revive it against the representative of the deceased; the abatement only takes place as against the latter; Kali Dayal v. Nagendra, 24 O. W. N. 44 : 30 C. L. J. 217 : 54 I. C. 822; Narain Das v. Sheodin, 48 A. 251 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 234. A suit or appeal does not abate in its entirety by reason of the failure of a plaintiff or appellant to bring on record the representative of a deceased defendant or respondent within the time prescribed therefor, if the suit or appeal can proceed in.

the absence of such representative to a final and complete adjudication; Chandrasang v. Khimabai, 22 B. 718; Rai Full v. Adesang, 26 B. 203; Joy Gobind v. Monmotha, 33 C. 580; Upendra v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1020; Medhi Husain v. Sughra, 25 A. 205; Renga v. Gnanaprasada, 30 M. 67; Abdul Aziz v. Basdeo, 31 A. 604; Shankarbhai v. Moti Lal, 49 B. 118; A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 252; Mahant Darshan v. Bikramjit, 23 A. L. J. 938; 89 I. C. 953; A. I. R. 1926 All. 128; 48 A. 81.

But the suit or appeal will abate as a whole if it is of such a nature that it cannot proceed, in the absence of the legal representative of the deceased, to a final and complete adjudication; Raj Chunder v. Ganga Das, 31 I. A. 71; 31 C. 497 (P. C.); 8 C. W. N. 442; 1 A. L. J. 145; 14 M. L. J. 147; Hem Kunwar v. Amba Prasad, 22 A. 430; Imamuddin v. Sadarath, 32 A. 301; Nanak Chand v. Ram Chand, 4 L. L. J. 189; 77 I. C. 176; Shabhar v. Abbas, 23 A. L. J. 935; 90 I. C. 324; A. I. R. 1926 All. 152; Ma Zan v. Maung Kyaw, 1 R. 189; 74 I. C. 1027; A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 258; Wajid Ali v. Puran Singh, 47 A. 100; 85 I. C. 66; A. I. R. 1925 All. 103; Kali Dayal v. Nagendra, 24 C. W. N. 44; 54 I. C. 822; 30 C. L. J. 217; Sidik Muhammad v. Saran, 76 I. C. 314. Order XXII, r. 4 does not relate to the case where the whole suit abates by reason of failure to substitute the heirs of a deceased defendant.—Gajo Singh v. Amrit, 2 P. L. T. 234; 60 I. C. 722.

If on the death of one of the defendants his legal representatives are not brought on the record, the question whether the suit abates as a whole depends upon whether the suit can proceed in the absence of the legal representatives of the deceased defendant. Where the lands in dispute are separately held by some of the defendants and the deceased defendant had no joint interest in those plots of land, the suit does not abate; Sarat Kamini v. Chaitanya, 67 I. C. 290; Ratanlal v. Jaideo, 75 I. C. 820.

Held, that the legal representatives of one of the deceased mortgagees not having been brought on the record within the period of limitation, the appeal abates as a whole, because the suit being for redemption it cannot proceed without all the mortgagees being before the Court; Bhagwan Singh v. Jamal, 3 L. L. J. 252.

In a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of a plot and a vacant site, and for issue of a permanent injunction restraining the defendants from preventing the passage of water by removal of pauri, it is found that one of the defendants died and his legal representatives were not brought on record, the suit abates in toto.—Miran Bakhsh v. Allah Wasaya, 118 I. C. 437; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 256.

Where in a suit for pre-emption, the legal representatives of one of the respondents are not brought on record, the whole suit abates as the decree is indivisible.—Imamuddin v. Sadarath, 32 A. 301; Surajmal v. Pyarkhan, 27 N. L. R. 220; A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 184; 134 I. C. 679. But see Mahadeo v. Talib Ali, 50 A. 792; A. I. R. 1928 All. 345; 115 I. C. 785 (F. B.). Two or more co-sharers may simply sue the stranger purchaser for pre-emption without asking the Court to adjudicate on their rival claims, and may obtain a decree for possession on depositing the pre-emption money in Court. If the vendee files an appeal from such a decree making all the plaintiffs respondents and one of the respondents dies before the hearing of the appeal and the appeal abates against him and is heard in the absence of the legal representatives of the deceased respondent and the decree of the first Court is reversed and the suit dismissed as against all the plaintiffs, the legal representatives of the deceased respondent against whom the appeal has abated cannot be bound by the appellate decree and are entitled to execute the right to pre-empt the whole.—Mahommad Wajid Ali v. Puran Singh, 56 I. A. 80: 51 A. 267: 114 I. C. 601: A. I. R. 1939 P. C. 58: 49 C. L. J. 141: 33 C. W. N. 318: 27 A. L. J. 85: 56 M. L. J. 304.

In a suit for possession by an alleged tenant against the proprietors, where one of the proprietors died and his legal representatives were not brought on record, held the suit abated in toto.—Akbar v. Hukam Singh, A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 353.

Where 11 persons out of 237 persons were considered as representatives under Or. I, r. 8, the death of some of these persons other than the representatives will not necessitate the bringing in of their legal representatives on the record and the failure to do so does not abate the appeal.—Khuda Baksh v. Ahmad, 120 I. C. 794: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 18. But the appeal abates if any one of the persons appointed to represent the others dies and his legal representatives are not brought on record.—Mt. Afzalunnissa v. Fayazuddin, 132 I. C. 657: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 610.

In a suit for declaration of title where one of the defendants dies and his legal representatives are not brought on record, the suit abates against the deceased defendant and not against all.—Raghunath v. Shah Durga, 129 I. C. 371: A. I. R. 1930 All. 369.

Where a defendant dies, it is for the plaintiff to choose against whom he proposes to proceed, and if some one else with an adverse claim to the nominee wishes to be made the representative, he should be added as a party.—Rameshwar v. Janeshwari, 18 C. W. N. 129: 19 C. L. J. 19.

If pending an appeal arising out of a suit for damages against several joint wrong-doers, one of the wrong-doers (respondents) dies, his representative must be made a party. It is not open to the plaintiff-appellant to prosecute his appeal only against some of the wrong-doers (respondents) at his choice; Kali Narayan v. Haran Chandra, 62 I. C. 714.

Where the plaintiff sued for an injunction alleging that the defendants demolished the fence that he had constructed round his field and on the death of one of the defendants, his legal representatives were not brought on record, held that the absence of one defendant from the record was not sufficient to prevent the Court from granting the injunction against the surviving defendant for the cause of action was an infringement of the plaintiff's right tortuously, and the relief was only a preventive relief.—Bishan Sing v. Indar, 125 I. C. 620: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 709. In a suit for an injunction it is the individual act of the several defendants that is complained of and the death of one joint tortfeasor does not cause the suit to abate.—Ibid.

Where a party ceased to be a necessary party by the time the award was passed by the arbitrators and a decree on the basis of the award was passed after his death without impleading his legal representatives, held, that the proceedings after the award did not abate.—Deval Ram v. Lachhu, 127 I. C. 365; 31 P. L. R. 81. A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 477.

Where a person is made party to a suit on a mortgage as being personally liable as a surety for the payment of the debt, and on the death of such person, his legal representative is not brought on the record, the suit abates as against him only, and not as a whole; Mehdi Husain v. Sughra Begam, 25 A. 206.

Where upon the death of a defendant the right to sue does not survive the claim abates as a whole. Where a suit has been instituted jointly or is directed against several defendants, cases may occur where the surviving defendants may have distinct rights; in such cases the suit abates only in respect of the deceased party's interest.—Ram Dei v. Jurawan, 129 I. C. 8; 25 A. L. J. 857. A. I. R. 1930 All. 762, Jalal v. Bahawali, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 783 (following 6 L. 233 and 39 I. C. 277); Karam Khan v. Mast Ali Khan, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 851.

Where the liability of the defendants is joint and several, and in appeal, on the death of one of the defendants, his legal representatives are not substituted in his place, the appeal abates so far as the deceased defendant is concerned; Joy Gobind v. Monmotha, 33 C. 580; Shankerbhai v. Moti Lal, 49 B. 118; 26 Bom. L. R. 1217. The liability of fixed rate tenants to pay rent is joint and several. So if one of them dies during the pendency of an appeal in a suit for recovery of rent and his legal representatives are not brought on record, the appeal abates only so far as the deceased tenant is concerned; Abdul Aziz v. Dasdeo, 34 A. 604; 10 A. L. J. 183; Kashinath v. Kailash, 4 P. 53; 89 I. C. 236; A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 480; Upendra v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1030. Where the right of the deceased party is ascertained or ascertainable and is not joint with the surviving parties in the sense they are not entitled to sue or liable to be sued in the absence of the others, then the suit or appeal cannot abate in its entirety on the death of one of the parties. The true test is whether it is necessary for all the plaintiffs to join in the suit to establish the right or whether one of them is entitled to establish the right independently of the others and in the alternative whether it is necessary in a suit again—

S. 104-H of the Bengal Tenancy Act, for the purpose of getting a declaration that he was an occupancy raiyat and that the entry in the record of rights on the basis that he was a tenureholder was wrong. Consequently the failure to implead in time the legal representative of one of the plaintiff—respondents does not have the effect of rendering the entire appeal bad.—Krishnabandhu v. Brajendra Kumar, 58 C. 1341; 135 I. C. 797; A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 134. In an appeal against the decree in a suit for redemption of a mortgage, one of the plaintiff-respondents died and no legal representatives were brought on the record: held that the appeal did not abate as a whole.—Narain Das v. Sheo Din, 48 A. 251; 91 I. C.

859: A. I. R. 1926 All. 234. Whether or not the appeal abates as against the deceased respondent only or as a whole must depend upon the particular circumstances of each case. The test to be applied being whether in the absence of the respondent against whom the appeal has abated, the appeal can proceed; Midnapore Zamindary Co., Ltd. v. Amulya, 53 C. 752: 95 I. C. 649. A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 893; Sant Singh v. Gulab Singh, 10 L. 7 (F.B.): 114 I. C. 417. 30 P. L. R. 453: 11 L. L. J. 317: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 572 (F.B.) (overruling 62 P. R. 1913); Mir Mahabool v. Mir Surajuddin, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1148: 115 I. C. 150.

A suit or appeal "abates" against a defendant or respondent if he was alive at the time when the suit or appeal was instituted and has since died. The case of a person who had died before institution of the suit or appeal and who was erroneously impleaded as a party does not fall under Or. XXII.—Roop Chand v. Sardar Khan, 9 L. 526: 29 P. L. R. 626: 110 I. C. 281: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 359. Where an appeal is filed against a dead person no question of abatement arises. The Court may in such a case excuse time and permit the legal representatives to be impleaded.—Mehar Singh v. Labh Singh, 33 P. L. R. 116: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 305.

Where the relief sought against defendants is joint and indivisible, abatement against one is abatement against all; Chet Ram v. Msst. Naicho, 92 I. C. 35. 26 P. L. R. 797: 2 L. C. 178; Sardara v. Allahyar, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 132: 73 I. C. 604; Shah Muhammad v. Karam Iahi, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 131: 65 I. C. 121; Akbar v. Hukam Singh, A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 353. In the same way where the interests of the respondents are joint and a decree cannot be reversed without the representative of a deceased respondent being brought on the record, the appeal abates in toto; Bejoy Gopal v. Umesh, 6 C. W. N. 196; Hadu v. Lala, 14 P. R. 1915; Fatter v. Sikandar, 2 L. L. J. 442, Dharanjit v. Chandeshwar, 11 C. W. N. 504; Munshi Ramand v. Badha Kishen, 6 L. L. J. 192: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 461; Gurdas Mal v. Kashi Ram, 2 L. L. J. 64, Basist Narayan v. Modnath, 7 P. 285: A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 250, Umrao Bibi v. Ram Kishen, 13 L. 70; Mahomed Hassan v. Haja, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 860; Sita Ram v. Roshen Lal, A. I. R. 1927 All. 776. The test to determine as to whether or not the failure to bring upon the record the heirs of one of several respondents, who has died, has the effect of causing an abatement of the entire appeal or qua that particular respondent alone, is as to whether or not the appeal can be decided without, as a result of that decision, bringing into existence two decrees contrary to each other. If the result of hearing and deciding the appeal would be to bring into existence two decrees of Courts of competent jurisdiction, contrary to each other, the appeal must abate as a whole; Sheo Chand v. Sita Ram, A. I. R. 1927 All. 331; Wajid Ali v. Puran Singh, A. I. R. 1925 All. 108: 47 A. 100; Darshan Das v. Bikramajit, 48 A. 81: A. I. R. 1926 All. 128; Namuddin v. Maniruddin, 47 C. L. J. 82: 32 C. W. N. 299: 107 I. C. 726: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 184; Laxmanlal v. Narayan, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 358; Surajmal v. Pyarkhan, 27 N. L. R. 220: 134 I. C. 679: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 184.

Donees appealed from a decree passed in favour of reversioners, disputing the gift; during the pendency of appeal, a reversioner died and no legal representative was brought on the record; held, that the appeal abated against all reversioners.—Mohammad v. Abdulla, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 869:

116 I. C. 216 (following 5 L. 429). In appeal in a suit against joint tenants for rent, one of the defendants-respondents died pending the appeal and his legal representatives were not brought on record: held, that the entire appeal abated.—Kuarmony v. Dasharathi, 109 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 570. Where there were two sets of defendants and one of the defendants belonging to one set died during the pendency of a second appeal and his heirs were not brought on record: held, that the appeal abated as regards that set.—Faqira v. Hardewa, 50 A. 559: 26 A. L. J. 217: A. I. R. 1928 All. 172: 114 I. C. 177 (F. B.). Where the decree provided that the plaintiff and defendants 6 to 31 be put in possession of certain property and the first defendant appealed and wanted to have it declared that the decree was not valid, the court held that the appeal was not abated. (See also rel. on.)—Raghunatha v. Swaminathan, 137 I. C. 319: (1932) M. W. N. 152: 35 L. W. 105. A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 212. An appeal against joint owners or co-mortgagees without any definition of their shares abates on the death of one of them when his legal representative is not impleaded in the appeal.—Nawab Khan v. Amir Chand, 33 P. L. R. 38. An appeal against a decree obtained by the individual owners of the firm abates as a whole on the death of one of them when his legal representative is not impleaded in the appeal.—Shri Chand v. Bansidhar, 135 I. C. 245: 30 A. L. J. 219.

"May make any defence appropriate to his character."—The legal representative occupies the same character as the deceased and hence must stick to the position taken up by him in the pleadings; Patinhare v. Sankara Menon, 73 I. C. 376. But see Moti Bala v. Satyanand, 123 I. C. 376: 28 A. L. J. 836: A. I. R. 1930 All. 348, which has held that a legal representative of a deceased defendant against whom an application for a final decree is made is entitled to take any defence which may be appropriate to his character as legal representative; thus where a preliminary decree is passed in a suit on a mortgage executed by the mohunt of a Matt. and an application for a final decree is made against the succeeding mohunt after the first mohunt's death, the succeeding mohunt is entitled to oppose further proceedings being taken for the enforcement of the mortgage on the ground that it is invalid.

See notes under S. 50.

Order XLI, r. 20 and abatement.—Order XLI, r. 20 does not override the provisions of Or. XXII of the Code; Manindra v. Bhagabati, 30 C. W. N. 45: 90 I. C. 986: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 335.

Limitation.—Under Art. 177 of Act IX of 1908, an application for substitution of the legal representatives of a deceased defendant or respondent must be made within 90 days, from the date of the death of the defendant or respondent as the case may be. The word "respondent" in Art. 177 of Act IX of 1908 is not confined to a respondent in the first appeal only; Susya Pillai v. Aiya Kannu, 29 M. 529; but it includes also a respondent in the second appeal; Upendra v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1020; Madhuban v. Narain, 29 A. 535. Where a respondent dies leaving more than one heir and one of the heirs is substituted as heir on the record within time but substitution of the names of the other heirs is made after the time allowed the appeal will not abate under this rule; Sadhu Saran v. Nand Kumar, 94 I. C. 209 : 7 P. L. T. 746 : A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 276.

Where before the making of a final decree in a mortgage suit, the sole judgment-debtor dies and the decree-holder fails to apply within six months of his death to have his heirs substituted and made subject to the preliminary decree, the suit (under Or. XXII, r. 4) will abate; Bhut Nath v. Tarachand, 25 C. W. N. 595 : 33 C. L. J. 115.

Death of pro forma defendant.—The death of a pro forma defendant or respondent during the pendency of a suit or appeal affords no ground for the abatement of a suit or appeal and the passing of a decree without his legal representative being brought on record does not render the decree a nullity; Ambika Prasad v. Jhinak Singh, 45 A. 286 : 21 A. L. J. 91; Abdulla v. Mahammad, 2 L. L. J. 601; Ram Labhaya v. Kartar Singh, 7 L. L. J. 466 : 92 I. C. 261 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 651; Brij Indar v. Kanshi Ram, 44 I. A. 218 : 104 P. R. 1917 : 45 C. 94; Raghubar v. Ramchandrar, A. I. R. 1927 Lah 779.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order refusing to set aside an order of abatement.—See Or. XLIII, (1) (k).

An order declaring that the suit had abated because the legal representative of the deceased defendant had not been brought on the record in time was a decree and appealable as such though no formal decree dismissing the suit had been drawn up (following 42 M. 52 and 30 M. L. J. 486).—Barju Biswal v. Kunja Behari, 10 P. 471 : 12 P. L. J. 909 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 353 : 133 I. C. 767.

Decree for or against a dead person.—A decree against a defendant who was dead at the institution of the suit is a nullity; Ram Partab v. Gauri Shankar, 25 Bom. L. R. 7 : 85 I. C. 464 : A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 109; Mohun v. Azeem, 12 W. R. 45; Veerappa v. Tindal, 31 M. 86. A decree passed in favour of a number of plaintiffs one of whom is dead at the time, is not necessarily a nullity in its entirety in every case. A decision of this matter will depend on a variety of considerations; Sikandar Khan v. Baland Khan, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 435. Where a decree was passed on appeal against a deceased plaintiff-respondent also who died pending the appeal and there was an execution sale in pursuance of it; held, that the decree was to that extent void and that the heir of the deceased plaintiff-respondent could apply under the inherent powers of the Court to set aside the sale.—See Or. XLIII, (1) (k). C. 779 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 473 : 11 P. L. J. 473. Council against the respondents in ignorance of the fact that one of them died pending the appeal is not a nullity as the decree was an order passed by the Sovereign.—Deonandan v. Janki Singh, 5 P. L. J. 314 (319) : 56 I. C. 323.

Death of defendant after preliminary and before final decree.—A preliminary decree does not put an end to a suit which remains pending till final decree. Where, therefore, a defendant dies after the passing of a preliminary decree against him and an application to bring his heirs upon the record is not made within the period of limitation the suit abates; Moti Lal v. Ram Narain, 39 A. 551 : 40 I. C. 1006; Jagar Nath v. Ram Karan, 68 I. C. 251 : 20 A. L. J. 575 : A. I. R. 1922 All. 396; Bahadur Singh v. Nanak, 130 I. C. 289 : 28 A. L. J. 999 (following 49 A. 310 and not following 51 M. 701 (F. B.) and 57 O. 235); Mahabir v. Narain, 134 I. C. 236 (F. B.). 29 A. L. J. 715: A. I. R. 1931 All. 490; Bhulnath v. Tara Chand, 25 C. W. N. 595; Manujendra v. Jnan, 87 I. C. 818: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 308; Jungli Lall v. Laddu Ram, (1919) P. 105 (F. B.): 4 P. L. J. 240 50 I. C. 529; Seshamma v. Venkata Rao, 47 M. L. J. 235: 80 I. C. 397 A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 713. But see Bapu v. Gulab Chand, 116 I. C. 657 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 142, which lays down that Or. XXII, r. 10 applies in a case in which the death of the defendant occurs after the preliminary decree. See notes under r. 10. As the right of action is determined in the preliminary decree, and in the final decree proceedings only the principles laid down and determined in the preliminary decree are worked out in detail, Or. XXII, r. 4 does not apply when the defendant dies after the preliminary decree.—Debinath v. Bissesar Das, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 206 (following A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 914 (F. B.) noted under r. 3); Peetha v. Ramchandrayya, 120 I. C. 77; Rahim Bakhsh v. Walaiti Ram, 122 I. C. 227: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 329. Where after the preliminary decree and pending an application for ascertainment of mesne profits the defendant died, there is no abatement and the proceedings can be continued up to the final decree (following 47 M. L. T. 441 (P. C.) and 51 M. 701 (F. B.))—Bhatia v. Abdul Shakur, 11 P. L. J. 796: 129 I. C. 84: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 57; Shrivashankar v. Kamakhya, 13 P. L. T. 692. See also Musst Lakhpati v. Daulat Singh, 2 Luck. 464: 101 I. C. 174: A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 156 (relying on 4 P. 61 (P. C.)).

Effect of non-substitution in a mortgage suit where a preliminary decree was passed in favour of the mortgagees and one of judgment-debtors mortgagors and one of the plaintiffs died before the final decree, is that the suit does not abate with respect to the mortgagors on record and the mortgagees are entitled to a decree for a proportionate amount of the mortgage money as against the mortgagors on record (A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 152, A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 554 and A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 792 relied on).—Mohan Sardar v. Hem Chandra, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 648. Where the mortgage was one and indivisible and in a suit on the mortgage one of the defendants died after the passing of the preliminary decree and his legal representatives were not brought on the record: held, that the entire suit abated (referring to 50 A. 559).—Bahadur Singh v. Nanak, 130 I. C. 289: 28 A. L. J. 999; Anmol Singh v. Hari Shankar, 126 I. C. 20: 28 A. L. J. 825: A. I. R. 1930 All. 779.

Indian Succession Act and legal representative.—The legal representatives of a deceased subject to the Indian Succession Act are his executors or administrators and not his heirs; Barnett Bros v. Mrs. Fowle, 3 R. 46: 85 I. C. 325: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 186; Framji v. Adarji, 18 B. 337.

Re-hearing of suit or appeal.—A plaintiff whose suit is heard and dismissed is not entitled to a re-hearing of the suit on the ground that one of the defendants had died previous to the hearing of the suit and that the suit was heard without bringing the legal representative of the deceased defendant on the record. The same applied to appeals.—Vellayam v. Jothi, 28 M. L. J. 138; Suryanarayana v. Joga Rao, 32 L. W. 647: 123 I. C. 607: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 719.

Execution proceedings.—This rule does not apply to execution proceedings.—See r. 12.

Determination of question as to legal representative.

5. Where a question arises as to whether any person is or is not the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or a deceased defendant, such question shall be determined by the Court. [S. 367.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 367, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The word "the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit" have been omitted; and the effect of the omission is that when rival parties claim to be the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or defendant, the Court must determine that question, and it has no longer any option in the matter. The old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison. "If any dispute arise as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff the Court may either stay the suit until the fact has been determined in another suit, or decide at or before the hearing of the suit, who shall be admitted to be such legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit."

"Shall be determined by the Court."—The Court in Or. XXII, r. 5, means the Court before whom the question as to who the legal representative is, arises viz, the trial Court if the question arises at the trial stage or the appellate Court if the question arises in appeal.—Chandmani v. Kartick Singh, 65 I. C. 131 : 3 P. L. T. 380.

Where a dispute arises in the course of the trial as to who are the representatives of a deceased party, it is the duty of the primary Court to decide the dispute after investigation and if it fails to do so, the appellate Court can decide the question; Taja v. Devi Ditta, 4 L. L. J. 314.

Rival claimants for substitution—Court to determine who is the true legal representative.—This rule empowers the Court, in a case where a dispute arises as to who is the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, to appoint a legal representative for the purpose of prosecuting the suit; but the appointment of such legal representative is not a determination of any issue which is properly raised in the suit, and particularly (in a suit for partition of family property) such a vital issue as to whether the deceased plaintiff was joint or separate from the rest of the family.—Parsotam Rao v. Janki Bai, 28 A. 109 : (1905) A. W. N. 206. This case was not approved and it was held that an order under this rule does operate as res judicata.—Raj Bahadur v. Narayan Prasad 48 A. 422 : 94 I. C. 157 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 439.

When a question arises as to who are the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff, it is obligatory on the Court to decide it.—Subramania Iyer v. Muthu Vaithilinga, (1918) M. W. N. 198 : 44 I. C. 987. After the Court has decided the question, the decision is final. So where the second wife of a deceased appellant was brought on the record after issue of notice and subsequently the respondent brought to the notice of the Court that there were some other heirs of the deceased: held, that the order as to appointment of legal representatives on the wife's application was final and the same could not be re-opened.—Muhammad Zafaryab v. Abdul Razzaq, 50 A. 857 : 26 A. L. J. 820 111 I. C. 238 A. I. R. 1928 All. 532.

When rival parties claim to be the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or appellant, the Court should, either before or at the time of hearing of the suit or appeal, ascertain and determine, for the purpose of the prosecution of the suit or appeal, who is the true legal representative of the deceased, and should not admit on the record all the rival claimants as legal representatives of the deceased.—Muhammad Husain v. Khushalo, 10 A. 223 (F. B.); Har Narain v. Kharag Singh, 9 A. 447; Vithu v. Bhima, 15 B. 145. See, however, Sankali v. Murlidhar, 12 A. 200; and Balabai v. Ganesh, 27 B. 162, in which all the cases on the point have been referred to and discussed. See also Palchur Mahalakshamma v. Vemi Reddi, 69 I. C. 529 : 44 M. L. J. 60.

Order XXII, r. 3 presupposes that the party claiming to represent a deceased plaintiff is his legal representative; but if the representative character is denied, or when two or more persons claim it, the procedure prescribed in this rule should be followed.—Oula v. Deepathee, 17 M. 209 (distinguished in Meenatchi Achi v. Ananthanarayana, 26 M. 224).

A dispute within the meaning of this rule need not be between persons claiming to represent the deceased plaintiff.—Subbayya v. Saminad-ayyar, 18 M. 496 (followed in Hanwant Sing v. Ram Gopal, 30 A. 348 : 5 A. L. J. 363; distinguished in Meenatchi Achi v. Ananthanarayana, 26 M. 224).

Where an alleged adopted son of a deceased plaintiff applies to be made a legal representative of the deceased and his adoption and representative character is denied by the defendant, the Court is bound to enquire as to his representative character under this rule.—Vanjinathayar v. Vaithianathayar, 16 I. C. 798. See also Vatsalabai v. Sambhaji, 20 Bom. L. R. 902 : 47 I. C. 757.

The Court executing a decree is not competent to entertain the question of the legitimacy of the heir of the deceased judgment-creditor seeking to continue execution proceedings.—Abidunnissa v. Amirunnissa, 2 C. 327 (P. C.) : 4 I. A. 66 (affirming 20 W. R. 305).

A respondent having died, a conditional order was, on the application of the appellant, made substituting the name of his alleged representative on the record. The order was cancelled upon the application of another person, who satisfied the Court that he and not the person whose name had been conditionally substituted was the real representative, and who asked to have his name put on the record. Held, that the Court had no power to substitute the name of the applicant on the record, and no further application having been made by the appellant to complete the record, the appeal was ordered to abate.—Sadhu Sarun v. Dwarka Singh, 12 C. L. R. 45.

Effect of bringing a wrong representative on record.—Where a person who is not the legal representative is in fact brought on record as such and the Court allows the wrong representative to be brought on record and to continue the litigation, the benefit of that litigation may be taken advantage of by the proper legal representative and the representatives on record will be accountable to him; Zamindar of Bhadrachalam v. Raja Venkatadri Appa Rao, 43 M. L. J. 486: (1922) M. W. N. 532.

A decree against a wrong legal representative cannot be enforced against the proper legal representatives.—Manikyanayan v. Lakshminarasimha, 139 I. C. 465: 63 M. L. J. 319. Where a brother of a deceased defendant is brought on the record in ignorance of the fact that the deceased had left sons and daughters and a decree is passed against the brother, the decree is not binding on the estate nor on the persons rightly entitled to that estate.—Pukhraj v. Jamsetji, 50 B. 802: 100 I. C. 185: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 63.

Legal representative, who is?—For the purposes of Or. XXII, r. 5, it is sufficient if a person has succeeded in forcing recognition of his status from the deceased and has intermeddled with the deceased's estate and is actually in possession of a portion of it, Goor Bachan Singh v. Gian Singh, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 175.

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order under this rule.—Duni Chand v. Arja, 37 A. 272; Pir Baksh v. Jattu Ram, 131 I. C. 294: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 235.

No appeal lies from an order dismissing the application of a person to be brought on record as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, such an order not being a decree, Ram Sarup v. Moti Ram, 1 L. 493: 57 I. C. 137; Rukmani v. Veerasami, 80 I. C. 942: 47 M. L. J. 370: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 813; Sahdev v. Vidyawati, 91 I. C. 166: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 181. The same view was taken by the Madras High Court in the recent Full Bench case of Venkata Krishna v. Krishna Reddi, 49 M. 450: 50 M. L. J. 485: 95 I. C. 439: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 586, where it was held (overruling Ayya Mudali v. Veerayee, 43 M. 812) that no appeal lies against an order refusing the application of a person to be brought on record as the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff on the objection of the defendant even when there is no rival claimant for being brought on the record as his legal representative.

An order under Or. XXII, r. 5 which brings on record two rival claimants as the legal representatives of a party to a suit without adjudicating on the relative claims of both is not appealable.—Aptab Shaha v. Moyan, 39 I. C. 371: (1917) M. W. N. 148 (27 B. 162 dissented from). See also Subramania Iyer v. Muthu Vaithilinga, (1918) M. W. N. 198: 44 I. C. 987.

6. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing rules, whether the cause of action survives or not, there shall be no abatement by reason of the death of either party between the conclusion of the hearing and the pronouncing of the judgment, but judgment may in such case be pronounced notwithstanding the death and shall have the same force and effect as if it had been pronounced before the death took place. [New.]

by reason of death after hearing.

COMMENTARY.

Additio.—This rule is new; it has been framed to give effect to the decisions noted below. See also notes under S. 50.

Where a party to a suit died after argument and before delivery of judgment, the decree passed in the suit or appeal is a valid decree, and can be executed against the heirs of the deceased defendant under S. 231, C. Decision on merits after death and before substitution.—A legal action, on the death of a party to it, passes into a state of suspense which itself passes into a state of abatement if the legal representative is not brought on record in time, and, while the action is in a state of suspense, no valid act which is not purely formal or processual, but which involves a decision on the merits of any part of the action, can be done by the Court.—Balaramier v. Vasudevan, 52 M. 933; 120 I. C. 374; (1929) M. W. N. 742; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 802; 57 M. L. J. 421; Muhammad Ali v. Allah Ditta, 122 I. C. 562; A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 73. The Court has no jurisdiction to pass a decree in a case which is heard after the death of the sole plaintiff without bringing his legal representatives on record, and such a decree, if passed, is a nullity.—Hassanand v. Nandiram, 128 I. C. 675; A. I. R. 1930 Sind. 259. Where the defendant dies before hearing or completion of arguments, the decree is a nullity.—Janardhan v. Ramchandra, 26 B. 317; American Baptist Mission v. Ammalanadhuni, 48 I. C. 859; Visvanath v. Lallu, 4 I. C. 137; 11 Bom. L. R. 1070; Narain v. Kaluram, 2 L. J. 144. See in this connection, Firm Palamal v. Fanya Sing, 89 I. C. 661; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 153; Roopchand v. Sardarkhan, 9 L. 526; 110 I. C. 281; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 359; Maharaja Kesho Prasad v. Msyah Khan, 55 I. C. 498. But see Goda Cooporamier v. Soondarammall, 33 M. 167 in which it has been held that a judgment passed after the death of a party is not an absolute nullity and such judgment is not liable to collateral attack but must be set aside only by proper proceedings and unless so set aside it bars a fresh suit.

Where a decree is passed against a person in ignorance of his death the decree on the application of his legal representative may be treated as a nullity, the legal representative may be impleaded as a party and the suit or appeal may be heard de novo under the provisions of Or. XXII, r. 9.—See Khalil v. Khatir, 2 Luck. 592; 101 I. C. 841; A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 221.

(2) Where the husband is by law liable for the debts of his wife, the decree may, with the permission of the Court, be executed against the husband also; and, in case of judgment for the wife, execution of the decree may, with such permission, be issued upon the application of the husband, where the husband is by law entitled to the subject-matter of the decree.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 369, C. P. Code, 1882, with this difference only that the word "where" in sub-rule (2) has been substituted for the words "if the case is one in which," which occurred in para. 2 of the old section.

Liability of husband.—A party having died while a suit was pending against him, his widow was brought upon the record, and judgment was given against her, which was confirmed in appeal. The original decree embraced an award of certain mesne-profits (occurring after the husband's death) for which the widow was personally liable. Between the original decree and final judgment, she married again and accordingly execution was sought against her second husband. Held, that he was not liable and that the term "judgment" in this rule did not include the judgment in appeal.—Bindabun Chunder v. Mackintosh, 9 W. R. 442.

8. (1) The insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which the assignee or receiver might maintain for the benefit of his creditors, shall not cause the suit to abate, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit or (unless for any special reason the Court otherwise directs) to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may direct.

(2) Where the assignee or receiver neglects or refuses to continue the suit and to give such security within the time so ordered, the defendant may apply for the dismissal of the suit on the ground of the plaintiff's insolvency, and the Court may make an order dismissing the suit and awarding to the defendant the costs which he has incurred in defending the same to be proved as a debt against the plaintiff's estate.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 370, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions.

The word "bankruptcy" which occurred in the old section has been omitted. The first para. of the old section is reproduced below for the purpose of comparison and observing the change introduced in sub-rule (1):—

"The bankruptcy or insolvency of a plaintiff in any suit which his assignee or the receiver appointed under S. 357 might maintain for the benefit of his creditors shall not bar the suit, unless such assignee or receiver declines to continue the suit and to give security for the costs thereof within such time as the Court may order."

Sub-rule (2) is almost similar to para. 2 of the old section. The changes made are merely of a verbal character.

Plaintiff's insolvency.—This rule does not apply to a case where there has been only an application to declare the plaintiff to a suit an insolvent and a vesting order made, but the proceedings are subsequently annulled, and the party is not declared either a bankrupt or an insolvent; therefore in such a case, where a suit has been dismissed for the non-appearance of the plaintiff or the Official Assignee on the date fixed for hearing, Or. IX, r. 9 applies—Amrita Lal v. Rakhali Dassi, 27 C. 217: 4 C. W. N. 294; Ramchandra v. Shripati, 31 Bom. L. R. 357: 118 I. C. 252: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 202.

This rule lays down the procedure to be followed when a plaintiff becomes insolvent. Order IX, r. 8 would not apply to such a case, for there is known to be no person in the position of the plaintiff who has any right or duty to appear.—Kissen Gopal v. Suklal, 53 C. 844: 31 C. W. N. 22: 98 I. C. 781: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 76.

If pending a suit the plaintiff is adjudged insolvent, the Court ought not to dismiss the suit without notice to the Official Receiver in whom the property of the insolvent vests, to appear and state his willingness or otherwise to continue the suit; Official Assignee of Rangoon v. Chidambaram, (1920) M. W. N. 704: 12 L. W. 551.

Section 106 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) means that a suit abates by the insolvency of the plaintiff, but that the defendant shall not plead the abatement without giving the Official Assignee an opportunity of prosecuting the suit. Where, therefore, the plaintiff after the institution of a suit, became insolvent, and the defendant thereupon obtained an order that the Official Assignee should give security for his costs within 14 days, and should be made a party to the suit within one month, and that in default, the suit should be set down for dismissal within 8 days after the expiration of the time so limited: Held that such an order was irregular.—Ibrahim v. Abdul Rahiman, 12 B. H. C. R. 257.

If an Assignee who has been substituted for the plaintiff under S. 106 Act VIII of 1859 (this section), declines to furnish security within such reasonable time as the Court may order, the defendant may, within 8 days after such neglect or refusal, plead the bankruptcy or insolvency of the plaintiff as a reason for abating the suit.—Heera Lal v. Carapiet, 13 W. R. 431.

After the institution of a suit the plaintiff was declared insolvent, and, on the date fixed for hearing, the Official Assignee appearing applied for a postponement. The Court accordingly made the following order:—"It is ordered that the suit be dismissed unless the Official Assignee elects within two months to continue the suit and give security for the defendant's costs." The time for complying with the order was subsequently extended, and the plaintiff in the meantime obtained an order allowing the insolvency proceedings to be withdrawn. The defendant now applied for dismissal of the suit in pursuance to the terms of the above order, and the plaintiff objected as he was no longer insolvent and now ready to prosecute the suit. Held that the order had been made in an improper form, inasmuch as this rule gives the Court no power to order the dismissal of the suit, and that the Court could now rectify it by cancelling that portion of the order.—Lekhraj Chunalal v. Shamlal, 16 B. 404.

After the institution of a suit the plaintiff was declared an insolvent, and thereupon the defendants obtained an order under this rule directing the Official Assignee to elect within the time fixed by the order, whether he would proceed with the suit, and, if so, to give security for costs. Subsequently a creditor of the insolvent obtained an order from the Insolvency Court for the examination of the defendants with reference to the estate and effects of the said insolvent. Held, that the defendants who have filed written statements in the suit, and who have in that suit given inspection of the documents in their possession, ought not to be examined until that case is heard.—In re Bhagwandas, 22 B. 447.

If the Official Receiver declines to continue the appeal and to furnish security, the appeal abates, even without the defendant's application for dismissal with costs (12 B. H. C. R. 257 followed and 43 A. 621, 16 B. 404 and 53 C. 844 considered).—Mulchand Ganga Bishen v. Dcunie & Co., 10 L. 208 : 110 I. C. 910 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 596.

After the insolvency of a plaintiff in a suit he has no right to continue the suit. It is only the Official Receiver who should continue the suit.—Buran Sheriff v. Venkatarama, 109 I. C. 589.

Where one of the two decree-holders appellants became insolvent and the Official Receiver was not prepared to support the appeal; held, that the insolvent was not debarred from acting as guardian of the other decree-holder who was a minor and proceeding with the appeal on his behalf.—Asa Nand v. Bishan Singh, 125 I. C. 186 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 205.

Insolvency of pauper applicant.—Where a pauper applies for leave to sue in forma pauperis, and after such application is granted, becomes insolvent, the provisions of the present rule can be applied, but not before; Chidambaram v. Kother, 48 M. L. J. 491 : 87 I. C. 720 : A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 791.

"Or to give security."—Security for costs required to be furnished by the Official Assignee should be at the time when electing to proceed with the suit he brings himself on the record as plaintiff. Where without any such security being demanded, the option is given to the Official Assignee to continue the suit and on that option he has brought himself on the record and he has been prosecuting the suit, no order for security of costs can be made at any subsequent stage; Venuswami Iyengar v. Varadaraja Iyer, A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 511 : 100 I. C. 440. The object of Or. XXII, r. 8 is to make the Official Assignee, in case he fails in the suit, liable for all costs of the suit and not only liable for such costs as were incurred after he appeared on the scene. Under this rule, the Official Assignee should give security for the costs of the suit incurred up to the date when the Official Assignee is made a party plaintiff and not all costs that may be incurred till the termination of the suit; Gulam Hussain v. Piarally, 23 Bom. L. R. 1074; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 533; 97 I. C. 797.

Limitation.—There is no limitation provided for the Official Assignee to appear and apply for substitution in place of a plaintiff who is adjudged an insolvent or for such plaintiff to appear and apply for the restoration of his name on the record after the adjudication is annulled. Till therefore an order is obtained under Or. XXII, r 8 of the C. P. Code, the proceedings cannot abate and must be deemed to continue; Khunni Lal v. Rameshar, 43 A. 621; 19 A. L. J. 685.

Execution proceedings—This rule does not apply to execution proceedings. See r. 12.

Effect of abatement or dismissal.

9. (1) Where a suit abates or is dismissed under this order, no fresh suit shall be brought on the same cause of action.

(2) The plaintiff or the person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or the assignee or the receiver in the case of an insolvent plaintiff may apply for an order to set aside the abatement or dismissal; and if it is proved that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from continuing the suit, the Court shall set aside the abatement or dismissal upon such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

(3) The provisions of section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall apply to applications under sub-rule (2).

[S. 372-A.]

Alterations in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 371, C. P. Code, 1882, with verbal changes only.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 371, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and additions. The words "the plaintiff or the person claiming to be the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff or the assignee or the receiver in the case of an insolvent plaintiff," have been substituted for the words, "but the person claiming to be the legal representative of the deceased bankrupt or insolvent plaintiff," which occurred in the beginning of para. 2 of the old section. The other changes in this sub-rule are merely verbal.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to S. 372-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "applicable to appeals," which occurred in the old section.

Limitation.—An application to set aside an abatement or order of dismissal is to be made within 60 days under Arts. 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act.

Appeal.—An appeal lies from an order refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit, under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (k).

Where a party to a suit dies, and more than 3 months after, an application is made to bring on record his legal representative, the application is one under Or. XXII, r. 9 (2), and the order thereon is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1 (k). An order of abatement must necessarily be followed by a decree and even if no decree be drawn up through the fault of the Court, such order is appealable.—Lilaram v. Tikamdas, 119 I. C. 537 : A. I. R. 1929 Sind 225 ; Hassomal v. Purbux, 26 S. L. R. 81.

No appeal lies against an order refusing to set aside an abatement in an appeal—Akkas Mia v. Abdul Aziz, 33 C. W. N. 881 : 49 C. L. J. 538 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 532

"May apply for an order to set aside the abatement."—The following persons are competent to apply under sub-rule (2), viz., (a) the plaintiff [where a suit has abated under r. 4 (3)] (b) the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff [where a suit has abated under r. 3 (2)] and (c) the assignee of an insolvent plaintiff [where a suit is dismissed under r. 8 (2)].

Each one of the appellants is entitled to prosecute the appeal and to apply for setting aside an abatement and for substitution ; Sadhu Saran v. Nand Kumar, 94 I. C. 209 : 7 P. L. T. 746 : A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 276 : (1926) P. 97.

Though the order of abatement of a suit in toto amounts to a decree, it can be set aside on an application under this rule.—Nand Ram v. Mt. Ralli, 105 I. C. 556 : A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 865.

Where a suit abates on account of the death of the sole defendant in the suit, the abatement must be set aside under Or. XXII, r. 9, before a substitution of parties could be made ; Mt. Bibi Khozarma v. The Official Liquidator of the Kayastha Trading and Banking Corporation Ltd., 2 P. 163 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 417 ; Mahanth Ramperkash v. Kunj Lall, 4 P. L. T. 567. See also Jogunnessa Bibi v. Satish, 28 C. W. N. 559, where it was held that where substitution had already been made the order for substitution could be treated as being one setting aside the abatement.

If by some oversight the abatement is set aside formally without notice to the surviving respondents, their objections, if any, must be heard when the appeal comes on for hearing.—Mir Mahobob v. Mir Surayudin, 115 I. C. 150 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1148.

An application made to bring the legal representative of the deceased defendant on record after the limited time prescribed therefor by law should be treated as an application to set aside the abatement of suit which has taken place, and on proof of sufficient cause for delay the application should be granted.—Kirpa Ram v. Bhagat, 112 I. C. 5 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 746. Though as a matter of practice the applicant should state in his application that he was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit, it is not legally necessary to do so ; all that is needed is that he should satisfy the Court that there was sufficient cause.—Ibid. See also Dina Nath v. Sayad Habib, 10 L. 816 : 117 I. C. 884 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah..

129. But where in an application for substitution of heirs the applicant did not state the date of death of the deceased or the fact that the suit had abated and there was no prayer for extension of time, for setting aside the abatement; held, that the application for substitution would not be taken as an application for setting aside the abatement and the petition was not a proper application at all.—Janakinath v. Niroddaran, 57 C. 148: 124 I. C. 817: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 422. It is open to the Court in a proper case to treat the application under Or XX, r. 4 as an application under Or XXII, r. 9.—Hassomal v. Pirbux, 26 S. L. R. 81.

Whether formal order of abatement necessary before abatement can be set aside.—Where no application is made within the prescribed time to bring upon the record the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff or appellant, the suit or appeal abates automatically. There is no necessity to pass an order that the suit has abated; Ram Gopal v. Har Kishen, 7 L. L. J. 517: 88 I. C. 478: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 598; Qaim v. Nura, 7 L. 73: A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 234, Sarat Chandra v. Maihar Stone and Lime Co. Ltd., 49 C. 62: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 335: 67 I. C. 917; Lachmi Narain v. Muhammad Yusuf, 42 A. 540, Kirpa Ram v. Bhagat Chand, 112 I. C. 5: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 746, Tulsi Ram v. Municipal Board, 127 I. C. 419: A. I. R. 1930 All. 379. But this automatic abatement does not follow where a party dies after the conclusion of the hearing.—Ibid. In Gujrati v. Sitai, 44 A. 459: 66 I. C. 554, the Allahabad High Court held that before there can be any abatement, there must be an order, and it is from the date of the order that limitation begins to run. But the same High Court has held in a later case that the abatement is automatic and does not require any formal order by the Court.—Niaz Ahmad v. Parshotam, 53 A. 374: 29 A. L. J. 153: 129 I. C. 545: A. I. R. 1931 All. 154.

"No fresh suit"—When it is sought to revive a suit on the death of the plaintiff, the cause of action of the original and the revived suit must be the same, and no fresh cause of action can be imported into the revived suit.—Sham Chand v. Bhayaram, 22 C. 92. See also Umrao Begum v. Irshad Husain, 21 I. A. 163: 21 C. 997 (P. C.). Rule 9, sub-rule (1) cannot bar the plaintiff's action unless his cause of action for the present suit is identical in whole or in part with the cause of action in the earlier suit. When the former suit is one purely for a declaration and the second suit is for possession, it must be taken that the two causes of action are different; Ramcharan v. Tulshi Ram, A. I. R. 1929 All. 306: 119 I. C. 562: 27 A. L. J. 492.

The plaintiff being dead and consequently not appearing on the date of hearing the Court passed an order dismissing the suit for default. Subsequently the successors in title of the deceased plaintiff brought a fresh suit on the same cause of action after 90 days: held, that the former suit automatically abated after the expiry of 90 days and so the fresh suit is barred under this rule.—Shanker v. Motilal, 109 I. C. 387: A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 220.

Where a reversioner sued challenging an alienation and he having died the suit abated and subsequently another reversioner sued on the same cause of action; held, that the latter suit was not barred.—Lachhman v. Bansri, 12 L. 275: 131 I. C. 98: 31 P. L. R. 973: A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 79. Order XXII, r. 9 is a disabling rule and should be construed strictly.—Ibid.

"Sufficient cause."—Where the plaintiff shows sufficient cause for not making the application for the substitution of the legal representative of the deceased defendant within the prescribed period and when he shows a bona fide desire throughout to effect the substitution, his application is not barred.—Syed Hossain Ally v. Abdur Rahim, 7 C. W. N. 529.

Mere ignorance of the fact of death is not a sufficient excuse under Or. XXII, r. 9, Chuni Lal v. Kala Khan, 4 L. L. J. 171: 67 I. C. 596: A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 61; Phulwati v. Maheshwari, 75 I. C. 909.

Before an abatement is set aside the Court has to be satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not applying in time. Ignorance of death, standing by itself, may be sufficient cause, but if it is accompanied by great delay and dilatoriness it would be otherwise; Sarat Chandra v. Maihar Stone and Lime Co Ltd, 49 C. 62: 67 I. C. 917: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 335; Tirath Ram v. Muhammad Abdul Rahim Shah, 73 I. C. 616: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 546; Jowala Ram v. Hari Kishen, 5 L. 70: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 429: 80 I. C. 690; Rajani v. Raja Jyoti, 27 C. W. N. 710: 75 I. C. 255: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 90. Ignorance of the whereabouts of the legal representatives of the deceased may also be a sufficient cause unless the ignorance was due to negligence; Munshi Ram v. Radha, 6 L. L. J. 192: 80 I. C. 694: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 461; Muhammad Mohsin v. Muhammad Abid, 91 I. C. 560.

Under Or. XXII, r. 9, it must be proved that the appellant was prevented by "sufficient cause" from going on with the suit within the time allowed by law; otherwise the appeal once abated shall not be revived and the High Court has no discretion in the matter.—Gopal Lal v. Kerani Gope, 23 I. C. 803. See also Daya Singh v. Buta Singh, 118 P. R. 1916.

If the delay was due to mistake or carelessness, the test to be applied is this: If the mistake or carelessness was real and unintentional and no damage has been done to the other side that cannot be repaired by costs or otherwise, the application must be granted; if, on the other hand, the negligence was culpable or there was malafides on the part of the plaintiff, the application is not maintainable. (See 5 Q. B. D. 368 applied).—Ramchandra, 54 M. L. J. 234 103 I. C. 288: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 404. The next friend (mother) of the minor plaintiff supported an application for substitution of the legal representative of the deceased defendant by her affidavit stating that though she was aware of the death of the defendant in time, she was ignorant of the fact that, on her death, her legal representatives should be brought on record until the aged father who was conducting the suit on her behalf brought the information to her from her counsel to whom he had gone to give instructions: held that sufficient cause within the meaning of Or. XXII, r. 9 and S. 5 of the Limitation Act has been made out under the circumstances of the case, especially as the plaintiff was a minor and it would be open to him to say that he was not bound by the result of this suit on account of the negligence of his next friend and file a fresh suit.—Ibid.

Where the appellant was a pardanashin lady who had cut off all connections with the place and one of the respondents died in another Province but his legal representatives were not impleaded in time: held, that the delay may be condoned.—Durga Devi v. Shiv Ram, 32 P. L. R. 822.

The Court has wide powers to set aside an abatement and these powers should be used somewhat liberally unless there is clear proof of laches. Where the plaintiff has had difficulties in keeping in touch with all his adversaries it does not lie in their mouth to object if the Court should condone the delay.—Hassomal v. Pirbuz, 26 S. L. R. 81.

Where the petition to set aside abatement sets out good reasons why the appellant did not know of the death of the respondent after the service of notice of the appeal and there was no particular reason why the death of the respondent should have come to his knowledge before the time he alleged; held, that the order of abatement should be set aside.—Madhab v. Bhubaneswar, A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 410 : 101 I. C. 910.

It is the duty of the person prosecuting an appeal to keep himself informed of the existence of his adversary. A mere plea of ignorance of the death of the opposite party is not a sufficient ground for setting aside an order that an appeal should abate.—Mohamad Askari v. Lahu, 45 I. C. 594 21 O. C. 68

The provisions in Or. XXII, r. 9 (3) do not confine the "sufficient cause" mentioned in sub-rule (2) to the circumstances given in S. 15 of the Limitation Act; Lachmi Narain v. Muhammad Yusuf, 42 A. 540 : 18 A. L. J. 688.

Where more than three months after the death of a defendant in a suit the Court brought his legal representatives on record on an application for that purpose, on the ground that the parties were ignorant of the reduction of the time allowed by recent legislation, held, that the delay was properly excused; Lakshmi Bai v. Yeswant Vithal, 47 B. 92 : 24 Bom. L. R. 909.

Where the appellant had reason to suppose that the enactment of Act XXVI of 1920 would not affect the period of limitation for an application to implead the legal representative of a respondent who had died before the Act came into force, the abatement was set aside; Niaz Ahmed Khan v. Abdul Latif, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 475.

Where one of the defendants died pending the appeal, and the legal representatives of the deceased defendants were under the impression that the co-defendants were prosecuting the appeal and challenging the validity of the entire decree, it was held that it was a sufficient ground for excusing the delay in making the application, to bring him on the record; Chandra Kumar v. Sandhyamani, 36 C. 418 : 2 I. C. 412.

As to what is "sufficient cause", see also Shiba Prosad v. Hati Maity, 53 I. C. 585; Arur Singh v. Todar Mal, 22 P. W. R. 1919 : 49 I. C. 501; Syed Akhtar Hussain v. Qudrat Ali, 9 O. & A. L. R. 267 : 73 I. C. 215. See also sub-rule (2) of the rule and S. 5 of the Limitation Act which says: "The fact that the appellant or the applicant was misled by any order, practice or judgment of the High Court in ascertaining or computing the prescribed period of limitation may be sufficient cause within the meaning of the section."

Sub-rule (3).—See now the present Limitation Act (Act IX of 1908) Ss. 4 and 5. If no application is made within 60 days to set aside the abatement or dismissal under Arts. 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act, the Court has the power under S. 5 of the Limitation Act to admit the application after the expiry of the period, if the applicant satisfies the Court that he has sufficient cause for not making the application within 60 days.

Ignorance of the death of one of the respondents, in the absence of any negligence or other act or omission for which the applicant can be held responsible, can be "sufficient cause" within the meaning of S. 5 of the Limitation Act.—Lakshmi Chand v. Behari Lal, 54 A. 280 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 459 : 30 A. L. J. 18 : 135 I. C. 159.

A decree was passed against a defendant in ignorance of his death, but on the application of his legal representatives, the decree was treated as a nullity, delay was excused, the representatives impleaded, and the appeal heard de novo—Khalil v. Khatir, 2 Luck. 592 : 101 I. C. 841 : A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 221.

Substitution without setting aside abatement.—Where a suit abates on the death of a sole defendant, no order for the substitution of his legal representative in place of the deceased can be made until the abatement has been set aside under this rule; Mt. Bibi Khozaima v. Official Liquidator, 2 P. 168 : A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 417. According to the Bombay High Court the omission to set aside the abatement is merely a formal defect; Lakshmi Bai v. Yeshwant, 47 B. 92 : 24 Bom. L. R. 909.

10. (1) In other cases of an assignment, creation or devolution of any interest during the pendency of a suit, the suit may, by leave of the Court, be continued by or against the person to or upon whom such interest has come or devolved. [S. 372.]

(2) The attachment of a decree pending an appeal therefrom shall be deemed to be an interest entitling the person who procured such attachment to the benefit of sub-rule (1). [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 372 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The change introduced in sub-rule (1) will be apparent on a comparison with the provisions of the old section, which is reproduced below: "In other cases of assignment, creation, or devolution of any interest pending the suit, the suit may, with the leave of the Court given either with the consent of all parties, or after service of notice in writing upon them and hearing their objections (if any), be continued by or against the person to whom such interest has come either in addition to, or in substitution for, the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require." On a comparison it would appear that the words "during the pendency of a suit" have been substituted for the words "pending the suit," and the words "by leave of the Court" have been substituted for the words "with the leave of the Court."

The words "given either with the consent of all parties, or after service of notice in writing upon them and hearing their objections (if any)" and the words "either in addition to or in substitution for, the person from whom it has passed, as the case may require," which occurred in the old section have been omitted.

On a comparison of sub-rule (1) with the old section, it would appear that under the present rule it is not necessary for the Court to give leave with the consent of the parties or after service of notice upon them. By the above alteration in language, no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Sub-rule (2) is new. It has been framed to override the case of Chait Behari v. Rahmal Das, 20 A. 38, in which it was held that a creditor of a decree-holder who had attached the decree pending an appeal against it was not entitled to be made a party respondent under this rule.

"Other cases of assignment, creation or devolution of interest pending suit."—Rules 2, 3 and 4 deal with the case of devolution of interest on the death of a party to a suit. Rule 7 deals with the case of creation of an interest in a husband on marriage of a female party, and rule 8 deals with the case of assignment on the insolvency of a plaintiff. This rule provides for cases of assignment, creation and devolution of interest other than those mentioned above.

The words "other cases" in this rule mean cases other than those specifically mentioned in the previous rules. If therefore the preceding rules, though they have dealt with the event of death, have so dealt with particular cases only, other cases will fall under this rule. A mortgage suit, even after an order absolute for sale, is a pending suit until the sale actually takes place; and an application made before sale by the legal representatives of the decree-holder for substitution would fall under this rule; Bhugwan Das v. Nilkanta, 9 C. W. N. 171, Ali Bahadur v. Rafullah, 49 A. 310; 100 I. C. 288. A. I. R. 1927 All. 272. See also Chunni Lal v. Abdul Ali, 23 A. 331; Dakoju Subbarayadu v. Musti Ramadasu, 42 M. L. J. 301: (1922) M. W. N. 375. This rule applies in a case in which the death of the defendant occurs between the passing of the preliminary and the final decree of a suit, and not Or. XXII, r. 4.—Bapu v. Gulabchand, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 142 (F. B.): 116 I. C. 657; Tularam v. Fukharam, A. I. R. 1921 Nag. 32: 17 N. L. R. 81; Peetha Swamigadu v. Chelasami Ramachandrayya, 120 I. C. 77. An application made by an assignee of the preliminary decree for the preparation of the final decree is not governed by Arts. 171 and 176; the rules governing abatement did not apply to a person who did not claim to come in as legal representative but claimed only as assignee.—Mithan Lal v. Maya Deri, 121 I. C. 689: 27 A. L. J. 921: A. I. R. 1929 All. 444. Rule 10 is a residuary rule governing only those cases which are not provided for by the preceding rules; Sahdev Singh v. Vidyawati, 91 I. C. 166: A. I. R. 1929 Lab. 181.

Where there was no assignment, creation or devolution of interest in favour of a person who was added as a party on the date of such joinder, held, that he cannot be taken to have been impleaded as party under Or. XXII, r. 10.—Currimbhoy & Co. Ltd. v. L. A. Creet, 50 C. L. J. 208.

Where the original plaintiff died after the decision of the suit but before the appeal and his widow got herself substituted as original plaintiff and it appeared that the substitution was ordered on the basis of the evidence in the case and not on any special affidavit filed by the widow: held, that the order was not rendered invalid for want of an affidavit.—Bhabani Charan v. Suchitra, 51 C. L. J. 25: 126 I. C. 203: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 270.

"Interest."—The "interest" contemplated by this rule is an interest which will be vitally affected by the suit; Harihar v. Gendi Lal, 43 I. C. 811. The word "interest" in this rule means interest in the property which is the subject-matter of the suit; Harish v. Chandpore Co. Ltd., 30 C. 961. A obtained a decree for money against a certain limited company. The company had sold their properties to a third person who again sold his rights to another limited company. On an application for execution of the decree against the latter company, substituting them on the record as the legal representatives of the former company on their dissolution: Held, that the decree could not be enforced against the latter company, this rule not being applicable to the case; Harish v. Chandpore Co. Ltd., 30 C. 961 (followed in Arbuthnot's Industrials v. Muthu Chettiar, 31 M. 464: 4 M. L. T. 90). An adoption is not a "devolution" or the "creation" of an interest within the meaning of this rule. It is the creation of a status to which certain incidents are attached by law; Ganpatrao v. Lazmi Bai, 15 N. L. R. 24. Where a mortgagee being a party to a suit or proceeding ceases to have any interest the mortgagor in whose favour the property is released may come under r. 10; but where in execution of a decree for rent due to him, the mortgagee purchased the property and an application was made by the judgment-debtor to set aside the sale: held, that the mortgagor had no interest either in the decree or in the raiyati interest purchased by the mortgagee and that therefore no interest devolved on him and he was consequently not a necessary or proper person to be impleaded as a party in the litigation.—Rudra Nath v. Bhujanga, 8 P. 900.

Assignment, creation or devolution of interest pending suit.—A suit brought on behalf of a mutt by a trustee not properly appointed can be continued by a properly appointed successor on whom the representation of the institution has devolved. Order XXII, r. 10, and not Or. XXII, r. 5 applies to such a case; Ratnam v. Nataraja, 84 I. C. 200: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 615: 46 M. L. J. 341.

Where a trustee dies or retires or is removed and another is elected in his place, the estate devolves on the new trustee and it is a case of devolution of interest within the meaning of this rule. The new trustee can be added under Or. XXII, r. 10; Thirumalai v. Arunachella, 92 I. C. 520: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 540; Ajaz Hossain v. Altaf, 114 I. C. 413: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 651.

A trustee does not cease to be entitled to maintain and continue the suit merely by reason of his removal from office during the pendency of the suit, in such a case the policy of the law is that the decree that may be obtained by him will enure for the benefit of the trust itself and may be enforced by his successor if there be one (following 20 C. L. J. 107 and relying on A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 246 and A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 540).—Ittunan Panikkar v. Narayana, (1928) M. W. N. 746: 109 I. C. 789: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 607.

Where in a suit for redemption brought by one of four uralans of a Malabar Devaswom making the other uralans party defendants, one of those uralans died, but the parties went to judgment in ignorance of the fact; held the death or removal of one of the uralans pending the suit or appeal does not ipso facto make the further progress and decision of the suit or appeal illegal till his successor is impleaded.—Sekhara Menon v. Parameswaran, 53 M. 790: (1930) M. W. N. 705: 32 L. W. 261: 59 M. L. J. 714:

128 I. C. 451 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 881. The dismissal or resignation of one trustee and the appointment of another can only be regarded as a devolution of interest under Or. XXII, r. 10 and does not tend to the position of the death of a party.—Sirakasi v. Koodalinga, 109 I. C. 401 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 216.

Where a suit is alleged to have been compromised and a document embodying the compromise has been filed in Court, the suit does not cease to be pending until the passing of the decree. Consequently it is open to a person alleging himself to be the purchaser of the property before the compromise to apply under Or. XXII, r. 10 to be added as a party to the suit; Lakshan Chunder v. Nikunjamoni, 27 C. W. N. 755 (32 C. 483, 13 C. L. J. 487, 43 M. 37, 37 A. 326 refd. to).

Where the High Court sends for the records in an appeal filed by the plaintiff against an interlocutory order of the lower Court refusing to appoint a receiver of the property, the suit is still pending on the file of the trial Court and it has jurisdiction to bring on record, the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff; Bhogilal v. Darasha Koooverji, 25 Bom. L. R. 308.

The words "during the pendency of a suit" in Or. XXII, r. 10, relate to a suit in which no final order has been made—Gocool Chunder v. The Administrator-General of Bengal, 5 C. 726 : 5 C. L. R. 569.

An application by a person who has purchased a portion of a revenue-paying estate for being joined as a party to a suit for partition of that estate before the final decree is passed in that suit falls within the purview of Or. XXII, r. 10.—Shankar v. Kutubuddin, 123 I. C. 473 : A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 212.

There is no power to make a substitution under this rule after a final decree has been made and before any question of execution proceedings has arisen; Quere, whether substitution can be made even in execution proceedings.—Cunningham v. Fred Stephens, 57 C. 1143 : 130 I. C. 907 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 51. See also Srinivasa v. Pratapa, 49 M. L. J. 704 : 91 I. C. 820 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 244.

A party seeking to bind the Official Assignee by the result of a suit, pending which the interest in its subject-matter has devolved upon him by operation of law, should apply under this rule to have him joined as a party to the suit. . . . in assignment of an interest pendency of the suit.—Punit The "devolution" referred to in Or. XXII, r. 10 is not of the same character as is referred to in the definition of "legal representative" in S 2 (11) and only means the devolution of the interest of the person who instituted the suit; Lakshmi v. Subbarama, 28 M. L. J. 491 : 29 I. C. 142

The "cases of assignment, creation, or devolution" of any interest pending a suit contemplated by this rule are those in which "the person to whom such interest has come" is arrayed on the same side in the suit as "the person to whom it has passed." Held, therefore, that a compromise in a suit for land between the plaintiffs and of the defendants, whereby the latter consented to a decree being given to the former for half of the land, was not a "case of assignment" of interest in such land within the meaning of this rule.—Radha Prasad v. Rajendra Kishore, 5 A 209.

Order XXII, r. 10 applies to an application made by a person who has not obtained any assignment directly from a party to the suit but has obtained an assignment derivatively from a party to the suit.—Prasanno Kumar v. Ashutosh, 18 C. W. N. 450: 20 I. C. 685.

Where a public trust is represented at different stages of a suit by different representatives, one not claiming under the other, the rule applicable to the case is Or. XXII, r. 10, and not Or. XXII, r. 3 of the C. P. Code; Sundaresan Chettiar v. Viswanada, 45 M. 703: 43 M. L. J. 147: (1922) M. W. N. 444

This rule is applicable to a case where a suit is brought by a deity through the Mohunt and Shebait and on his death an application is made for the substitution of another as the next Shebait and legal representative (46 M. L. J. 341 referred to).—Sri Sri Keshab Rai Jieu Thakur v. Raja Jyoti Prosad, 36 C. W. N. 816.

A person who had advanced monies to the plaintiff to carry on the suit and had obtained an assignment of half of her interest, which assignment was disputed by the plaintiff, was made a party defendant on his own application only upon the statement of the plaintiff that the assignment was executed but without deciding her objection that the assignment was not good and valid.—Rajaranee Dassee v. Debendra Nath, 3 C. W. N. 754.

A mortgagee of the defendant's property before suit, who has also made further advances to the defendant on the same security after the suit, is entitled to be made a party to the suit under this rule on the defendant's declaring his intention of abandoning his defence.—Ahmedbhoy Hubibhoy v. Vulleebhoy, 8 B. 323.

The language of Or. XXII, r. 10 is sufficiently wide to cover the cases of leases such as those which are alleged to have been granted by the defendants during the pendency of the litigation.—Ramkumar Lal v. Raja Mukund, 1 P. L. J. 596 (39 C 220 distd.). See also Maharaja Sir Manindra Chandra v. Ram Kumar Lal Bhagat, 27 C. W. N. 29 (P. C.): 36 C. L. J. 542: 49 I. A. 220: 63 I. C. 973.

When certain persons applied to be made co-plaintiffs and failed, they could not apply to have the application treated as one under Or. XXII, r. 10 for substitution of new plaintiffs on the ground that there had been a transfer or devolution of interest from the plaintiff, pendente lite.—Bibijan v. Abdul, 36 I. C. 919.

Where one of the plaintiffs died during the pendency of a suit and after the expiry of the period during which the heirs should be impleaded but before the Court had made a formal order of dismissal, certain assignees from the deceased applied to be substituted as party-plaintiffs; held, that an order of substitution could be made.—Kader Bux v. Salimuddi, 50 C. L. J. 543: 126 I. C. 401: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 267.

The words "devolution of interest" in this rule do not mean only devolution by death, but are applicable to a case in which, pending a suit instituted by the manager of the Chota Nagpore encumbered estate, the estate is released from the management and restored to the owners. It is open in such a case to persons alleging themselves to be owners of the estate to apply to be made plaintiffs in the place of the manager, under this rule.—Sourindra Mohan Tagore v. Sirmom Debi, 29 C. 171 : 5 C. W. N. 307. The assignee of a mortgage deed has a right to come in under this rule. When a receiver has filed a suit and has been discharged during its pendency the person beneficially entitled to the property, may be allowed to continue the suit as plaintiff.—Macleod v. Kissan, 30 B. 250 : 6 Bom. L. R. 996.

The insolvency of defendants in a mere money suit does not affect the devolution of any interest upon the Official Assignee within the meaning of this rule which is substantially the same in its terms as S 372 of the old Code.—Jethalal Kalianji v. Gangaram, 29 I. C. 30 : 8 S. L. R. 325.

On the death of the plaintiff, his sons, who were mere heirs of a joint Mitakshara family, of which their father, the deceased plaintiff, was a managing member, applied for the revival of the suit. Held, that it was not necessary that either letters of administration or a certificate under Act VII of 1889 should be obtained in order to entitle the applicants to ask that they may be permitted to proceed with the suit.—Beejraj v. Bhyro Persaud, 23 C. 912.

An adoption is not the creation of an interest within Or. XXII, r. 10, but is the creation of a status. It does not operate as a devolution of interest or as an alienation.—Ganpat Rao v. Lazmi Bai, 43 I. C. 64.

If a person applies to be substituted or added under Or. XXII, r. 10, on the ground of an assignment pendente lite and it is disputed, the Court has power to decide that dispute. This rule is not confined to cases of admitted assignment, creation or devolution of interest.—Enday Ali v. Binodini, 29 C. L. J. 362 : 51 I. C. 233, Surendra Narain v. Nityendra Narain, 90 I. C. 267 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 173, Allah Jawaya v. Lajpat Rai, 94 I. C. 926 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 574.

Assignment or devolution of interest pending appeal.—This rule does not apply to a case where the devolution of interest occurs between the time of the passing of a decree and the time of filing an appeal from the decree.—Collector of Muzaffarnagar v. Husani Begam, 18 A. 86 (distinguished in In re Durga Prasad, 22 A. 231). See also Narain Singh v. Dy. Commr., Partabgarh, 38 I. C. 511 : 20 O. C. 31.

Held, that the rule applies as well as to the case of a devolution of interest pending an appeal as to the case of a devolution of interest pending a suit.—Held, also, that a person may, under this rule be added or substituted as a party either on his own application, or on the application of one of the parties already on the record.—Gokul Chand v. Sarat Chandra, 18 A. 285 (followed in In re Durga Prasad, 22 A. 231; Rajani Kanta v. Raja Jyoti Prasad, 27 C. W. N. 710).

Death of respondent pending appeal.—Right of assignee of his interest to be substituted in his place. Held, that where there has not only been the death of the respondent, but an alleged prior conveyance to him of the property awarded by the decree appealed against, there is a fact in addition to the fact contemplated by S. 368, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4) and this rule being alone sufficiently inclusive, must apply.—Rajaram Bhagwat v. Jibai, 9 B. 151 (approved in Jamnadas v. Sorabji, 16 B. 27).

A obtained a decree against B, declaring his right to a house. The decree was reversed on appeal, and A's claim was dismissed. The High Court reversed the decree of the District Court and remanded the appeal. On remand the District Court made a decree in favour of A confirming the original decree of the first Court. Subsequent to the decree of the District Court on remand, B sold the house to C. B then preferred a special appeal to the High Court, but died before it was heard. Held, that C could not carry on the special appeal after B's death.—Moreshwar Bapuji v. Kushaba, 2 B. 248.

Assignment of decree pending appeal—Assignee of decree made respondent to appeal—Decree reversed in appeal—Liability of assignee for costs of hearing in lower Court. Held, that the assignee of a decree, who is made respondent in an appeal from it and takes no steps actively to support it, ought not to be ordered to pay costs.—Ramji Morarji v. J. E. Ellis, 20 B. 167.

A receiver who filed the appeal was discharged and a new receiver was appointed in his place. Held, that the litigation commenced by him did not abate, but it cannot proceed without his successor being impleaded.—Akula Paradesi v. Dhehi Jagannadha, 28 M. 157.

By leave of the Court.—Rule 10 makes it discretionary with the Court to allow an application for substitution in the circumstances of a particular case. Such discretion cannot be interfered with in revision. Unless the law casts a duty on the plaintiff to bring the Receiver or trustee on the record it cannot be said that the insolvent must be represented in the suit. He has no right to remain on the record as a defendant and he cannot insist that he must remain on the record through his trustee.—Prince Victor v. Kumar Bhairabendra, 34 C. W. N. 53; 125 I. C. 851; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 388.

No new suit.—The suit, carried on with the leave of the Court by the person who has acquired an interest by devolution, is not a new suit. It is the old suit carried on at his instance, and he is bound by all proceedings up to the stage when he obtains leave to carry on the proceedings; Rai Caran v. Biswa Nath, 20 C. L. J. 107. The essence of this rule, whether applied to proceedings in the Court of the first instance or proceedings in appeal, is that the suit is one from the beginning, and that the addition of the transferee does not initiate, as regards him, a new proceeding; Chunni Lal v. Abdul Ali, 23 A. 331, 335.

Limitation.—The right of the assignee to apply for substitution in a pending suit is a right which accrues from day to day and is not therefore barred by limitation.—Kedarnath v. Hara Chand, 8 C. 420; Surendra Keshub v. Khettler Krishto, 30 C. 603; Prasunno Kumar v. Ashutosh, 18 C. W. N. 450.

In a partition suit a preliminary decree was made in July 1887. Since then no steps had been taken to carry out the decree. The plaintiff, the father of the petitioners, died in December, 1891, leaving the petitioners, who now applied to have the suit revived in their name. Held, that the application was made in a pending suit, and though falling within this rule was not time-barred, the right to apply being one which accrues from day to day.—Ram Nath v. Uma Charan, 3 C. W. N. 756 (8 C. 420 followed).

After the preliminary decree and before the final decree where the judgment-debtor dies and more than six months after his death an application is made to bring his legal representatives on the record, such application falls under Or. XXII, r. 10, and not under Or. XXII, r. 4 and is not barred by time; Tularam v. Tukaram, 64 I. C. 307; Bapu v. Gulabchand, 116 I. C. 657 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 142.

Appeal against orders under this rule.—Under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (i), an appeal lies from an order under this rule giving or refusing to give leave.—Midnapore Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Naresh, 54 C. 716: 104 I. C. 842: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 844.

On an application for substitution made under this rule, it was objected that the application could not be granted, but the Court overruled the objection and ordered the substitution applied for. Held, that the order for substitution was practically the same as an order disallowing objections, and that there was nothing in the terms of S. 583 (21), C. P. Code, 1882 [Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cls. (k) and (i)], to prevent an appeal from that order.—Sourindra Mohun Tagore v. Siromoni Debi, 28 C. 171: 5 C. W. N. 307.

An order dismissing on its merits an application by the assignee of a plaintiff in a suit to be brought upon the record either in addition to or in substitution for the plaintiff, is a judgment within the meaning of article 15 of the Letters Patent and an appeal lies therefrom.—Commercial Bank of India v. Sabju Saheb, 24 M. 252.

No appeal lies from an order dismissing an application by an assignee who obtained the assignment prior to the institution of the suit, as the order did not come under this rule, the assignment not being made pending the suit.—Equitable Trust Co. v. Hafiz Mohammad Halim & Co., 25 A. L. J. 985: 108 I. C. 699: A. I. R. 1928 All. 120.

An application by a mortgagee to be added as a party to a partition suit is an application under Or. XXII, r. 10 and an order granting or refusing it is appealable in accordance with the provisions of Or. XLIII, r. 1 (i), (49 I. A. 220 explained).—Jadu Nath v. Murari, 35 C. W. N. 296: 134 I. C. 307: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 594.

Execution proceedings.—It is doubtful whether Or. XXII, r. 10 applies to execution proceedings.—Harish Chandra v. Chandpore Company Limited, 30 C. 961. This rule seems to have been made applicable to execution proceedings by Or. XXII, r. 12 by the principle of exclusion.—Midnapur Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Kumar Naresh Narain Roy, 16 C. W. N. 109 (30 C. 961 referred to). See the Quere in Cunningham v. Fred. Stephens, 57 C. 1143: 130 I. C. 907: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 51 and notes under r. 12, post.

11. In the application of this Order to appeals, so far as may be, the word "plaintiff" shall be held to include an appellant, the word "defendant" a respondent, and the word "suit" an appeal.

(Application of Order to appeals.)

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to the latter part of S. 582, with some alterations. The first portion of the section has been incorporated in S. 107.

This rule gives effect to Soshi Bhusan v. Grish Chunder, 11 C. 694; Chajmal Das v. Jagdamba Prasad, 10 A. 260 (F. B.); Debi Din v. Chunna Lal, 10 A. 264 (F. B.); Rajmones Dabes v. Chunder Kant, 8 C. 440; 10 C.L.R. 437; Chajmal Das v. Jagdamba Prasad, 11 A. 408 and Hem Kunwar v. Amba Prasad, 22 A. 430. In these cases it has been held that the word "plaintiff" or "defendant" must be held to include "appellant" or "respondent" respectively. The cases in which a contrary view was taken have been overridden by this rule.

This rule does not apply to an application under S. 21-A, Punjab Alienation of Land Act, for revision of an order of the District Judge.—Secretary of State v. Amar Singh, 11 L. 706; 32 P. L. R. 190; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 775; 126 I. C. 441.

Death of appellant or respondent—Abatement of appeal.—Where the right to sue is a personal right, it ceases with the death of the appellant and the appeal abates, as in the case of a reversioner.—Sakyahani v. Bhavani, 27 M. 588.

The test to determine whether or not the failure to bring upon the record the heirs of one of several respondents, who has died, has the effect of causing an abatement of the entire appeal or qua that particular respondent alone, is as to whether or not the appeal can be decided without, as a result of that decision, bringing into existence two decrees contrary to each other. If the result of hearing and deciding the appeal would be to bring into existence two decrees of Courts of competent jurisdiction contrary to each other, the appeal must abate as a whole; Sheo Chand v. Sita Ram, A. I. R. 1927 All. 331; 100 I. C. 482.

Where pending an appeal by the plaintiff in a suit for malicious prosecution on the ground that the damages awarded were insufficient, the appellant (plaintiff) died: Held, that the appeal abated; Murugappa Chettiar v. Ponnusami, 44 M. 828; 41 M. L. J. 304; (1921) M. W. N. 438.

At the date of the hearing of the appeal the appellant was dead, but neither the pleader nor the Court was aware of the fact. The Court heard and decided the appeal. Subsequently the deceased appellant's son applied for re-hearing of the appeal. Held, that the decree of the lower appellate Court was a nullity. The Court was bound under S. 365, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 3) to enter his name on the record and to rehear the appeal.—Janardhan v. Ram Chandra, 26 B. 317.

Where there were two appeals from the same decree, one by the plaintiff and the other by the 2nd defendant, the substitution of the legal representatives on the death of the plaintiff in his appeal will not enure for the benefit of the other appeal as well, and the 2nd defendant not having brought on the record of his appeal, his appeal abated—Shankaranarayana v. Larmi, 130 I. C. 764: 33 L. W. 411: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 277: 60 M. L. J. 267.

Death of joint appellant pending appeal—Legal representative of the deceased appellant not brought on the record.—Appeal proceeded with by surviving appellant. Held, that the appellate Court had power to hear the appeal and reverse the whole decree under S. 514, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLI, r. 4).—Chintaman v. Gangabai, 27 B. 284: 5 Bom. L. R. 90.

Pending the hearing of a special appeal the appellant died, and after the prescribed period of limitation, his son and sole heir applied to be substituted as appellant in place of the deceased for the purpose of prosecuting the appeal. Held, that the application was not made under S. 365, (Or. XXII, r. 3) but under S. 537, C. P. Code, 1877 (S. 103) and was, therefore, not barred by Arts 171 and 172 of the Limitation Act—In the matter of Ram Sunker, 3 C. L. R. 440.

Leave to revive the widow's appeal which abated on her death before the hearing, was obtained by the younger daughter of the deceased talukdar, one of the defendants: she being next among those who would have a claim to inherit the taluk in succession should the appeal be decreed. Held, that the appellant by reviving must be restricted to the suit for the taluk, and her own which she might have had belonged to the deceased other than the talukdari estate.—Umrao Bejam v. Irshad Husain, 21 C. 997 (P. C.): 21 I. A. 163.

Procedure analogous to that laid down in S. 363, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4), in respect of the death of a defendant must be applied in the case of the death of a respondent. Where, therefore, a respondent dies pending an appeal, the appellant is at liberty to select one or more persons to defend the appeal; and no person, other than the person so selected, has a right to force himself into the proceedings and to claim to have his name entered as representative of the deceased respondent against the appellant's consent.—Lakshmi Bai v. Balkrishna, 4 B. 654. See also Rajmonee Dabee v. Khunder Kant, 8 C. 440: 10 C. L. R. 437.

Where the manager of the family died after the disposal of the appeal but before the second appeal was filed and the succeeding manager and the other adult co-parcener were impleaded as party respondents: held, that the omission to implead the legal representatives of the deceased manager was not fatal to the second appeal.—Subbaraghava v. Adinarayana, (1932), M. W. N. 491.

Although a Court is bound by S. 363, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4) to place on the record the name of the person alleged by the appellant to be the legal representative of a deceased respondent, nevertheless, where a person, other than the person alleged by the appellant to be such representative, claims, on good prima facie grounds to be the representative of the deceased respondent, and the interest of the person entitled to the estate of the deceased may be prejudiced, the Court should under S. 32, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. I, rr. 8, 10, 11), proceed to make such claimant also a party to the appeal.—Athiappa v. Ayanna, 8 M. 300.

On the death of a respondent pending an appeal, the assignee of his interest has a right to be substituted in his place.—Rajaram Bhagwat v. Jibai, 9 B. 151.

Where several plaintiffs or defendants jointly appeal against a decree to which S. 544, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XII, r. 4) applies, the death of one of such appellants, if no legal representative of the deceased is brought upon the record within limitation, can only have the effect of causing the appeal to abate only as against the deceased appellant; it cannot have the effect of causing the appeal as a whole to abate.—Ram Sewak v. Lamber Pande, 25 A. 27 (22 A. 222 overruled; 16 A. 211 distinguished). See also Alla Bakhsh v. Madho Ram, 23 A. 22; and Chandarsang v. Khimabhai, 22 B. 718 (followed in Bai Full v. Adesang, 26 B. 203 and in Upendra Kumar v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1020: 11 C. W. N. 1100: 6 C. L. J. 715; referred to in Chintaman v. Gangabai, 27 B. 284). But where the relief sought against two defendants is joint and indivisible, abatement against one is abatement against all; Sardara v. Allayar, 73 I. C. 604: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 132.

A Mahomedan lady transferred a share of her immoveable property to certain persons whose shares in the subject-matter of the transfer were separately specified. M brought a suit for pre-emption against the transferees, which was dismissed and M appealed. During the pendency of the appeal one of the transferees died and nothing was done to bring his legal representatives on record. Held, that the appeal abated as against the deceased only.—Madho v. Mt. Mehro, 124 I. C. 338: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 32.

Where a joint decree for possession in favour of the several plaintiffs was passed by the trial Court and pending an appeal therefrom by the defendant, one of the plaintiffs respondents dies and his legal representatives are not brought on record within time, the whole appeal abates: Arjan Mircha v. Kali Kumar, 68 I. C. 194. Sheikh Dendoo v. Shaikh Sachoo, 72 I. C. 2. Pending an appeal by the plaintiffs in a suit for ejectment, one of them died but his legal representatives were not impleaded: held that the appeal abated as a whole. It was held, however, that the surviving plaintiffs, could, after obtaining leave to amend the plaint, set a party on for joint possession with

33 C.W.N. 359: 119 I.C.
814: A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 519. See, however, Surajmal v. Pyarkhan, 27 N. L. R. 220: 134 I. C. 679: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 184, noted under r. 3, ante. Pending an appeal by the defendants against a decree for joint possession, one of the plaintiffs-respondents died and his legal representative was not brought on record; held that the appeal could not proceed in the absence of the heirs of the dead plaintiff.—Laxmanlal v. Narayan, A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 858: 121 I. C. 664. When a declaration is sought to the effect that certain lands appertain to the plaintiff's village and not to another village, the suit will not be properly constituted unless all the proprietors of the other village are impleaded, as the claim is indivisible. So where on the death of some of the defendants during the trial and after the filing of the appeal, the plaintiff

- did not bring their representatives on record, the suit must abate in toto—not merely qua the deceased defendants alone.—Kesho Prasad v. Muhammad Wahid, 9 P. 693 : 129 I. C. 119 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 17. Where 14 persons sued for a declaration of their right to take water from a tank and the defendant appealed against the decree of the trial Court but during its pendency one of the plaintiffs died and his heirs were not brought on record : held that the entire appeal did not abate since the plaintiffs could separately have brought a suit for such declaration. In such a case the decree cannot be said to be a joint decree merely because there is one piece of paper on which the names of all the plaintiffs are entered. The Court may however refuse to continue the appeal if the decree that may be passed would be ineffectual.—Umrao Singh v. Kapuria, 31 P. L. R. 269 : 12 L. L. J. 82 : 128 I. C. 53 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 651. If the nature of a suit is such as to require the presence of all the parties interested in the subject-matter of the litigation and if the absence of any such party prevents the adjudication of the claims of the parties on record, the suit or appeal cannot proceed at all. Consequently it will abate in its entirety ; such for example are suits for pre-emption and suits for dissolution of partnership. In this view it follows that it lies on the party in default to satisfy the Court that the nature of the suit is such as to permit of its progress notwithstanding the defect in the array of the parties.—Surajmal v. Pyarkhan, 27 N. L. R. 220 : 134 I. C. 679 : A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 184.

Where for failure to bring on record the representatives of one of the respondents who is a necessary party, the appeal abates, it also abates as against all respondents ; Ma Zan Nyein v. Maung Kyaw Zan, 1 R. 189 : 74 I. C. 1037 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 258.

Where a respondent dies during the pendency of an appeal and his legal representatives are not brought on record within time, the appeal automatically abates as against him, even where the appellant is not aware of his death ; Sheo Chand v. Sita Ram, 100 I. C. 482 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 331 (A. I. R. 1926 All. 317, folld.).

Where one of four respondents in the lower appellate Court died, and no application was made within the period of limitation to put the legal representative on the record, and, in the application that was eventually made, a wrong person was named as legal representative : Held, that the appeal was one where the right to appeal did not survive against the surviving respondents, but against them and the representatives of the deceased respondent. Under the circumstances S. 368, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXII, r. 4), read with this rule, applied, and the proper order was to have directed the suit to abate.—Hem Kunwar v. Amba Prasad, 22 A. 430 (distinguished in Joy Gobind v. Monmotho Nath, 33 C. 530). See in this connection Dharanjit v. Chandeshwar, 11 C. W. N. 504 : 5 C. L. J. 393.

1 In a suit for accounts of partnership business, all the partners are necessary parties and the suit cannot go on in the absence of any one of them. A respondent, to whom a sum of money was due under the decree of the first Court died, pending an appeal to the High Court. An application for substitution of his representative was made more than 6 months after his death, and no sufficient cause was shown for the delay. Held, that the nature of the suit being such that the right to sue did not survive against the other defendants (respondents) alone, the appeal abated.—Ray Chunder v. Gangadas, 31 I. A. 71: 31 C. 487 (P. C.): 8 C. W. N. 442: 1 A. L. J. 145: 14 M. L. J. 147.

Where in an appeal the interests of the several respondents cannot be discriminated, an order of abatement in respect of one of the respondents results in the abatement of the appeal against all; Srimati Gol Asmater Khatun v. Nawab Khajeh Habibulla, 64 I. C. 49.

An appeal does not abate by reason of the failure of an appellant to bring on record, the representative of a deceased respondent within the prescribed period, if the appeal can proceed, in the absence of such representative, to a final and complete adjudication.—Renga Srinivasa v. Gnanaprakasa Mudaliar, 30 M. 67 (31 C. 487: 8 C. W. N. 442: 31 I. A. 71 distinguished).

Where on the death of a respondent it appears that his heirs are already parties to the appeal, it cannot be said to have abated merely because no fresh application is made to bring on the record the legal representatives of the deceased; Kartar Singh v. Lal Singh, 59 I. C. 238.

When during the pendency of an appeal against a decree for rent one of the plaintiffs (respondents) died and his heirs were not brought on the record; held, that the appeal ought to be dismissed.—Tarip Dafadar v. Khotejannessa, 10 C. W. N. 981 (6 C. W. N. 196 followed).

Where the special appellant died during the pendency of the appeal; held, that the appeal must abate and that the respondent could not require that it should proceed, in order that he might have an opportunity of taking objections to the decree of the lower Court. If the respondent desired to secure the right of asking for a decision on his objection, he must file a separate appeal.—Jaita v. Balu, 3 B. H. C. R. 81. Though the legal representative of the deceased party to an appeal has the right, if he so chooses to apply, to have the decree vacated and the case freshly decided after hearing him, it is not open to the party who was (alive and) really heard and against whom a decree was passed on the merits, to take advantage of the death of the opponent and claim a re-hearing on the merits (following 39 M. 386).—Surya Narayana v. Joga Rao, 32 L. W. 647: 123 I. C. 607: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 719.

See notes under rr. 3 and 4, ante.

Limitation for application for substitution.—Articles 176 and 177 of the Limitation Act IX of 1908 are now applicable to applications to have the legal representatives of the deceased appellant or respondent made a party, and the period is 6 months from the date of the death. These articles have overridden the cases (12 C. 590: 10 A. 264: 7 A. 693 and 10 B. 663) in which it was held that Art. 178 of the Limitation Act, 1877 (Art. 181 of Act IX of 1909), was applicable to such cases.

When a respondent in a second appeal dies during the pendency of the appeal, an application by the appellants to substitute his heirs on the record is governed by Art. 177 of the Limitation Act.—Upendra Kumar v. Sham Lal, 34 C. 1020: 11 C. W. N. 1100: 6 C. L. J. 715 (29 M. 529 dissented from). See also Madhuban Das v. Narain Das, 29 A. 535: 4 A. L. J. 397.

(29 M. 529 not followed); and Vakkalagadda Narasimham v. Vahizulla Sahib, 29 M. 498: 15 M. L. J. 404.

On failure of defendants (appellants) to apply for substitution of the legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff (respondent) within the time allowed by Art. 177 of the Limitation Act 1908, the appeal must abate, unless sufficiently explained.—Chajmal Das v. Jagdamba Prasad, 11 A. 408. See also Jamnadas v. Sorabji, 16 B. 27.

An enquiry into a claim to sue in forma pauperis is not subject to any limitation and there is no limitation of time within which a mere applicant to sue as a pauper is bound to apply for the substitution of the name of the deceased opponent's heir in place of such opponent.—Janardan Vithal v. Anant Mahadev, 7 B. 373.

The procedure laid down for substitution of the legal representatives of the deceased appellant or the deceased respondent in rr. 3 and 4 read with r. 11 is not exhaustive; such application can be made at any time within the period of limitation provided by the residuary Art. 181 of the Limitation Act, namely three years from the time when the right to apply accrues.—per Kulwant Sahay, J.—Hakeem Syed Mahommed v. Fateh Bahadur, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 565 (F. B.): 10 P. L. T. 763.

Application of Order to proceedings. 12. Nothing in rules 3, 4 and 8 shall apply to proceedings in execution of a decree or order. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Scope and object of the rule.—This rule is new. It has been framed to set at rest the several conflicting rulings under the old Code. Under the Code of 1882, it was held in several cases that Chapter XXI of that Code, which has been replaced by this Order, did not apply to proceedings in execution of a decree. But this rule provides that with the exception of rr. 3, 4 and 8 of this Order all other rules shall apply to execution proceedings. Rule 3 deals with the procedure in case of death of one of several plaintiffs or of a sole plaintiff; r. 4 deals with the procedure in case of death of one of several defendants or of a sole defendant; and r. 8 deals with the procedure in case of plaintiff's insolvency.

Application of Or. XXII to execution proceedings.—On the death of a judgment-debtor or execution-creditor, the execution proceedings do not abate, and the legal representatives may apply to proceed with the execution.—Manmocha v. Rakhal, 14 C. W. N. 752: 10 C. L. J. 396.

The provisions of Or. XXII relating to the abatement of suits and appeals do not apply to execution proceedings or to appeals from orders made in such proceedings; Mr Khan v. Sharfu, 5 L. L. J. 163: 74 I. C. 577: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 560.

Order XXII, r. 12 provides that r. 3, which refers to substitution of legal representatives of a deceased plaintiff, does not apply to proceedings in execution of a decree. On the death of the applicant for execution, it is open to his legal representatives to apply immediately for carrying on the proceedings in execution of the decree, or to apply for fresh execution under

Or. XXI, r. 16. It is not necessary for them nor is it competent, to make an application for substitution, and therefore an order for substitution, if made, cannot have the effect of continuing the application made by the predecessor; Akhoy Kumar v. Surendra, 30 C. W. N. 735: 96 I. C. 378: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 957.

Where an appellant decree-holder dies during the course of appeal in execution proceedings, his legal representative can be brought on record. In such a case the ordinary procedure relating to appeals, when an appellant dies, applies (50 M. 1: A. I. R. 1927 Mad 184 not applied).—Sundayee Ammal v. Krishnan Chetti, 51 M 858: (1928) M. W. N. 385: 110 I. C. 662: 28 L. W. 351: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 772: 55 M. L. J. 497. The rules of abatement laid down in Or. XXII apply to appeals against orders on the execution side.—Rajah of Kalahasti v. Jagannadha, (1932) M. W. N. 597: A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 574: 55 M. 1006: 139 I. C. 409. But see Hakeem Syed Mahommed v. Fateh Bahadur, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 565 (F.B): 10 P. L. T. 763 which has held that r. 12 is applicable to appeals in proceedings relating to execution of a decree as they are a mere continuation of the execution proceedings. An appeal arising out of an order passed in the course of proceedings in execution of a decree or order does not abate on the death of the respondent if the appellant fails to apply to make the legal representative of the deceased respondent a party to the appeal within the time prescribed by law.—Ibid. Quare—whether after the death of a decree-holder, pending an application in execution, his representative in title by succession can apply for substitution of names under Or. XXII, r. 10.—Niader v. Khazan, 128 I. C. 398: 28 A. L. J. 1279: A. I. R. 1930 All. 604. See also Cunningham v. Fred. Stephens, 57 C. 1143: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 51: 130 I. C. 907. Order XXII, r. 12 read with r. 4 does not require a fresh execution petition to be presented in case the judgment-debtor dies while execution proceedings are pending and the legal representatives of the judgment-debtor can be brought on record in the execution proceedings already initiated.—Venkatalakshamma v. Sheshagiri, (1931) M. W. N. 48: 60 M. L. J. 628: 131 I. C. 610: 33 L. W. 359: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 303.

The judgment-debtor appealed against an order in execution instituted by one of two decree-holders. The other decree-holder was dead before the appeal was filed and no application was made by the judgment-debtor for substitution of his legal representatives in his place within time, it was made after the expiry of the prescribed period; held, that as one of the decree-holders applied for execution, the other decree-holder was either not a party to the execution proceedings at all or was represented for all purposes, including the appeal by the decree-holder who had applied for execution and that consequently the contention of the legal representatives that the appeal was barred as against them could not be sustained.—Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Sundar Singh, 118 I. C. 901: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 673.

The only effect of Or. XXII, r. 12 is that the penalty of abatement of suits under r. 3 will not apply to execution proceedings and the question whether the legal representative can be substituted in the pending execution application and be allowed to proceed with the application or whether he should be compelled to file a fresh application remains to be considered in the light of the other provisions of the Code apart from Or. XXII, r. 12. The procedure in such cases is indicated by S. 146 and Or. XXI, r. 16. The legal

tion under Or. XXI, r. 16 be continued after substi-

the decree-holder dies, it is open to his heir and legal representative to continue the execution proceedings, provided he applies to the Court and obtains an order under Or. XXI, r. 16. He need not be compelled to resort to a separate proceeding (following 50 M. 1).—Kacharabhai v. Kacharabhai, 33 Bom. L. R. 818 : 134 I. C. 720 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 423.

A pending execution proceeding does not abate by reason of the death of any of the joint decree-holders.—Bimbadhar v. Abdul Zail, 117 I. C. 165 : A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 200 (relying on A. I. R. 1921 Pat. 180), or by reason of his insolvency. It may be that by virtue of S. 23 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, the insolvency Court or even the executing Court is competent to impose conditions as to the disposal of the decretal amount if and when realized ; but so far as the judgment-debtor was concerned, it does not lie in his mouth to claim that the execution proceedings should be dropped merely because the decree-holder has been adjudicated insolvent and the Official Receiver does not care to continue them.—Asa Nand v. Bishan Singh, 125 I. C. 186 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 205.

ORDER XXIII.

WITHDRAWAL AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUITS.

1. (1) At any time after the institution of a suit the plaintiff may, as against all or any of the defendants, withdraw his suit or abandon part of his claim.

Withdrawal of suit or abandonment of part of claim.

(2) Where the Court is satisfied—

(a) that a suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or

(b) that there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of a suit or part of a claim, it may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit or abandon such part of a claim with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit or such part of a claim.

(3) Where the plaintiff withdraws from a suit, or abandons part of a claim, without the permission referred to in sub-rule (2), he shall be liable for such costs as the Court may award and shall be precluded from instituting any fresh suit in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim.

(4) Nothing in this rule shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others. [S. 373.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) is new, except the words "at any time after the institution of a suit" in the first line. The most important change introduced in this sub-rule is the substitution of the words "withdraw his suit" for the words "withdraw from the suit" which occurred in the old section. The distinction between the above two expressions has been clearly pointed out in 32 B. 345, noted below.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to first para. of S. 373, O. P. Code, 1882, with some additions, alterations and omissions. The words "on the application of the plaintiff," which stood after the words "the Court is satisfied," have been omitted from the present rule. The words "allowing the plaintiff to institute" have been substituted for the words "permitting him to bring" in Cl. (b). The words "as to costs or otherwise" which stood after the words "terms" in the old section, have been omitted. The other alterations made in sub-rule (2) are merely verbal.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 373, C. P. Code, 1882, with change of some words and phrases, without any change in the meaning. The words "in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim," have been substituted for the words "for the same matter or in respect of the same part" which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (4) is almost similar to para. 3 of the old section.

Object of the rule.—The object of Or. XXIII, r. 1 is not to enable a plaintiff after he has failed to conduct his suit with proper care and diligence and after his witnesses have failed to support his case, to obtain an opportunity of commencing the trial afresh in order to avoid the result of his previous misconduct of the case and thus prejudice the opposite party.—Nathuni Ram v. Musammam Sheo Koar, 3 P. L. J. 460 : 5 P. L. W. 104 : (1918) P. 220 : 46 I. C. 179.

The main object of Or. XXIII, r. 1 (2) is to prevent a defeat of justice on technical grounds. Where no formal defect necessitating the failure of the suit is shown to exist there must still be a defect which has the effect of shutting out a fair trial on the merits and which arises out of some error made in good faith by the plaintiff which can only be effectively set right by a trial de novo.—Doma v. Dayaram, 48 I. C. 1005.

At any time.—A Court cannot refuse to allow the plaintiff to abandon a portion of his claim on the ground that the petition was filed too late, for this rule gives a right to the plaintiff to do so at any time during the pendency of the suit.—Muthu Chettiar v. Govindaswami, 116 I. C. 823.

Distinction between the expressions "withdrawal from suit" and "withdrawal of suit."—Sub-rule (1) contemplates a withdrawal of the suit and sub-rule (2) a withdrawal from the suit. If a party desires to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, he must apply to the Court under sub-rule (2) for permission so to withdraw. If he does not desire to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit then he can under sub-rule (1) withdraw the suit of his own motion for which the Court's order is not necessary.—Muhant Biharidasji v. Parshotamdas, 32 B. 345 : 10 Bom. L. R. 293. A party cannot withdraw a suit reserving to himself a right to bring a fresh suit.—U. E. Maung v. P. A. R. P. Chettyar Firm, 6 R. 494 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 273.

Power of Court to allow withdrawal of suit.—There is no general jurisdiction given by the C. P. Code for allowing a party to withdraw except under Or. XXIII, r. 1. If there is no formal defect in the case, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one. If the plaintiff is allowed in such a case, the High Court will set aside the order.—Ram Chandra v. Hachunia Fakir, 35 I. C. 843 (16 C. W. N. 1027 approved); Harshamukhi v. Sarat Chandra, 32 C. W. N. 1244 : 117 I. C. 864. A Court has no jurisdiction to permit withdrawal unless there is something to show that the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect; where the Munsif did not refer to any such defect but allowed the withdrawal with liberty; held that the order was bad as being made without jurisdiction.—Ibid.

Order XXIII, r. 1 does not apply except to cases where the suit is properly pending in a Court in which the leave is granted. Therefore a Court which has no jurisdiction cannot permit withdrawal of a suit.—Ramdeo v. Gonesh, 35 C. 924: 12 C. W. N. 921.

Where a plaintiff does not desire to withdraw unless with liberty to bring a fresh suit and the Court considers that such liberty ought not to be granted no sufficient ground having been made out, the proper course is to dismiss the application.—Suradhani v. Chandra Nath, 20 C. W. N. 1011 (32 B. 345 followed). An order permitting the withdrawal of a suit without liberty to bring a fresh suit is not warranted by law. The proper order to be passed is to dismiss the application and proceed with the suit.—Jotirmoy v. Guru Gobinda, 107 I. C. 469: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 273.

A Court has no jurisdiction to allow withdrawal of a suit after an award is made by an arbitrator against the plaintiff.—Debi Churn v. Bipra Prosad, 7 C. W. N. 186.

An application for withdrawal cannot be conditional to the effect, "that if the Court considers the suit to be badly framed, then the plaintiff may be permitted to withdraw." Such conditional application is not contemplated by the rule.—Bajinath v. Ravaneswar Prosad, 6 C. L. J. 163 (166).

The Court should allow an application for withdrawal to be heard in the presence of all the parties concerned and should not grant the permission in their absence (following 44 C. 454).—Chaganlal v. Mt. Dhanias, 123 I. C. 697: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 151.

Courts in India have no power to dismiss a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Hira Lal v. Uday, 16 C. W. N. 1027: 16 C. L. J. 103.

Permission under S. 97, Act VII of 1859 (this rule), to bring a fresh suit, could not be given after final judgment has been pronounced.—Sheoraj Nundun v. Rajcoomar, 24 W. R. 23.

An appellate Court has no power to interfere with the discretion of the first Court in allowing a plaintiff, at any time before final judgment, to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit in the same matter.—Ram Kanye v. Haroo Chunder, 17 W. R. 229.

Withdrawal of application to withdraw suit.—An application to withdraw a suit can itself be withdrawn for proper reason, and the suit could be proceeded with thereafter; Lakshmana v. Appalwar, 44 M. L. J. 77: 71 I. C. 288: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 246.

Finality of order allowing withdrawal.—Where a suit has been allowed to be withdrawn with liberty to sue afresh, the Court trying the subsequent suit is not competent to enter into the question whether the Court which granted the plaintiff permission to withdraw the first suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit had properly made such order; Samaddi Sheikh v. Fulbash Bawa, 65 I. C. 704: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 269; Hriday Nath v. Ram Chandra, 48 C. 138 (F. B.); 31 C. L. J. 482: 24 C. W. N. 723: 58 I. C. 806; Rajkumar v. Ram Khelawan 1 P. 90 (F. B.); 64 I. C. 337: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 44; Jhunku v. Bisheshwar, 40 A. 612: 46 I. C. 71; Sheikh Hassan v. Mahomed Ali, 45 B. 206: 59 I. C. 210: A. I. R. 1921 Bom. 278.

Power of appellate Court to allow withdrawal of suit.—Where a plaintiff's suit is dismissed, and he appeals from the decree, the appellate Court has power, under this rule read with S. 592, O. P. Code, 1892 [S. 107 (2)], to allow a plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Afzal Begam v. Akbars, 37 A. 326 : 13 A. L. J. 444; Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, 8 A. 82; Kamayya v. Papayya, 40 M. 259 (F. B.) : 37 I. C. 414; Chhanubhai v. Dahyabhai, 44 B. 598; Shekh Hassan v. Mahmood Ali, 45 B. 206 : 59 I. C. 210 : 22 Bom. L. R. 1183; Udoy Chand v. Molla Syed Reasat Hossain, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 58; Gajraj v. Sri Thakurji Maharaj, 74 I. C. 894; Krishnan v. Raman, 114 I. C. 557 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 36. But see Kali Prasanna v. Panchanan, 44 C. 367 : 33 I. C. 670 : 23 C. L. J. 489; where a contrary view was taken. The appellate Court has no power to grant leave to withdraw the suit before the appeal is admitted.—Eknath v. Ranoji, 35 B. 261 : 10 I. C. 813 : 13 Bom. L. R. 237.

A Court ought to be very cautious before allowing an application for withdrawal when the case has reached the stage of appeal, even though it orders the entire costs of the defendant to be paid by the plaintiff; Kamta Prasad v. Ram Ratan, 24 A. L. J. 721 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 548 : 96 I. C. 480.

Where the case was likely to raise questions of importance affecting the rights of the plaintiffs and other persons and the case required consideration best exercised a fresh suit.—

The question whether leave should be granted in second appeal to a plaintiff to withdraw his suit depends upon whether the Court is satisfied that the decree against the plaintiff should be set aside. Where the decree is based on a concurrent finding of fact, it is not open to the Court to grant leave to withdraw; Ram Kumar v. Safiunnessa, 63 I. C. 169.

When the suit has reached the stage of a Letters Patent appeal it would not be right to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the suit in order to bring a fresh one, especially when the defendants do not consent to that course.—Rajrakh v. Sham Shanker, 129 I. C. 543 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 410.

An appellate Court ought not to grant permission to a plaintiff who had been unsuccessful in the trial Court to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, more especially where the parties quite understood what were the matters in dispute between them and exactly what it was that the plaintiff claimed and the defects were more apparent than real; Singhai Rajjilal v. Kanhai, 61 I. C. 584. Permission should only be given when the Court is satisfied that the defect is not for any default of the plaintiff but for discovery of certain facts which render the suit in its present shape so defective. The duty of looking at the case from this standpoint becomes more necessary if an application for withdrawal is presented in the lower appellate Court, and unless the Court is absolutely satisfied that the failure of the plaintiff was due to certain defects which were not known to him at the time of the institution or trial of the suit, it should give the permission.—Moti Lal v. Kali Das, 130 I. C. 142 : 34 C. W. N. 912 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 107.

See S. 107, sub-rule (2).

Allowing withdrawal alone without liberty to bring fresh suit, whether proper.—Where plaintiff prayed for leave to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit but the Court simply allowed him to withdraw his suit and refused him permission to bring a fresh suit; held, that the Court acted without jurisdiction in dividing the plaintiff's petition into two parts and attempting to treat the application as one under the first part of Or. XXIII, r. 1, Cl. (1); Shamnanadan v. Mulchandram, 1 P. L. T. 292. See Jotirmoy v. Guru Gobinda, 107 I. C. 469 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 273.

"Formal defect."—Where the Court is satisfied that a suit must fail by reason of "some formal defect," or that there are "other sufficient grounds" for allowing the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit for the subject-matter of the suit, the Court may, on such terms as it thinks fit, grant the plaintiff permission to withdraw from such suit, with liberty to institute a fresh suit in respect of the subject-matter of such suit. A Court ought not to grant leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on a mere allegation that there is some formal defect, without satisfying itself that it does exist as a matter of fact; Kiranmoyi v. Rama Nath, 64 I. C. 556; Radha Rawan v. Tularam, 10 A. L. J. 393. A mere general statement that there are formal defects is not sufficient—the plaintiff must specifically state the formal defect.—Pundalik v. Chandrabhan, 43 I. C. 346. Misjoinder of parties and causes of action is a formal defect; Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye, 13 M. I. A. 160 (170) : 3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.); Ganeshi v. Khairati, 16 A. 279; Afzal v. Lachmi Narain, 40 A. 7 : 42 I. C. 856. Improper valuation of the subject-matter of a suit and consequent insufficiency of Court-fee is also a formal defect; Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye, 13 M. I. A. 160 : 3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.); Kannuswami v. Jagathambal, 41 M. 701. Want of proper stamp or non-registration of a material document is a formal defect; Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye, 13 M. I. A. 160 : 3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.); Misser Debee v. Baldeo, 5 N. W. P. 116. If the defect is curable by amendment of the pleadings, no leave to withdraw should be granted; Rameshwar v. Rasul Beg, 21 O. C. 66 : 45 I. C. 603. The omission by the plaintiff to include in his plaint all his causes of action, which are inconsistent with each other, cannot be said to constitute a formal defect in the plaint, and is not a sufficient ground to allow withdrawal of the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one; Manbhar v. Sumerchand, 12 A. L. J. 441. If a plaint is defective, the only sort of defect which attracts this rule is a formal defect; Pali Kanj v. Krishna Aiyar, 23 L. W. 525 : 94 I. C. 983 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad 863. The words "formal defect" refer to cases of misjoinder either of parties or matters in contest in the suit, or to cases in which a material document has been rejected because it has not borne a proper stamp, and to cases in which there has been an erroneous valuation of the subject of the suit. Where the plaintiff finds after evidence has been recorded that his claim is not based on the particular note of hand but on another note altogether he cannot be permitted to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Ramji v. Anjaniprasad, 115 I. C. 172 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 72. Clause (a) does not say that the formal defect must be in the pleading.—Syed Sadaq Beza v. Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad, 34 C. W. N. 578 : 127 I. C. 549.

"Other sufficient grounds."—The power to dismiss a suit, with liberty to bring a fresh one for the same matter, is limited to cases where the suit fails by reason of some point of form. Such liberty should not be given where, after issue joined, the plaintiff has failed to make out his case.—Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye, 3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.): 13 M. I. A. 160. See also Mona Bibee v. Oomed Ali, 16 W. R. 276; and Muddun Ram v. Israil Ali, 21 W. R. 291. See, however, Omesh Chunder v. Thakoor Doss, 23 W. R. 345.

The circumstances contemplated by Or. XXIII, r. 1 of the Code are confined to those cases mentioned in Cls. (a) and (b) of r. 1, sub-rule (2) of the Order, and do not include a case where the Court making the order is not satisfied that the circumstances mentioned in Cls. (a) or (b) exist. If the Court is not satisfied that the circumstances contemplated in the rule exist then it has no jurisdiction to make the order as the jurisdiction is only conferred where the Court is so satisfied. If this condition is not fulfilled, it is clear that the jurisdiction does not arise; Raj Kumar v. Ram Khelawan, 1 P. 90 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 44: 3 P. L. T. 80: 64 I. C. 337.

The words "other sufficient ground" in Or. XXIII, r. 1, Cl. (2) mean that the ground must be one ejusdem generis with the formal defect referred to in sub-clause (a). Mere inability of a party to prove his case is not sufficient ground for permitting him to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Burathagunta v. Thurlapatti, 8 I. C. 868: 9 M. L. T. 204: (1911) M. W. N. 105; Lala Punjashet v. Motiram, 50 B. 192: 94 I. C. 777: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 315; Mahendra v. Sing Lal, 3 P. L. J. 651: 48 I. C. 197; Ishardas v. Lal Singh, 7 L. L. J. 290: 90 I. C. 632: A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 497; Tikai v. Firm Sheo Dayal, 3 Luck. 403: 107 I. C. 887: 5 O. W. N. 61: A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 482; Nagamma v. Lakshminarasu, 112 I. C. 312: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1085; Jagmohan v. Ramkhlawan, 27 A. L. J. 961: 119 I. C. 859: A. I. R. 1929 All. 693; Buta Singh v. Hardit Singh, 124 I. C. 686: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 175. But see Syed Sadeq Reza v. Nawab Bahadur of Murshidabad, 34 C. W. N. 578: 127 I. C. 549, where it has been held that "other sufficient grounds" mean some ground other than and different from a formal defect.

Absence or incompleteness of evidence is no sufficient ground for permitting a plaintiff to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Khub Chand v. Ajodhya, 11 A. L. J. 733. There is a marked distinction between a case where a plaintiff wants to get time in order to produce a large body of fresh evidence to counteract evidence given by the defendant, i. e., where the plaintiff wants time to prepare merely what would be more or less a new case, and a case where a plaintiff wishes to give formal proof of a document which was essential to its success. In the latter case permission should be granted to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit; Chandrika Lal v. Sam Nath, 50 A. 835: 26 A. L. J. 774: A. I. R. 1929 All. 133: 115 I. C. 124 (40 All. 612 folld.; A. I. R. 1927 All. 523 dist.). Where the plaintiff endeavoured to produce documentary evidence at a period when it could not be admitted and having decided not to go on with the evidence applied for withdrawal and the Court sanctioned the same; held that there was no formal defect and that the order allowing withdrawal was passed with material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction and therefore should be set aside in revision.—Tikai v. Firm

Sheo Dayal, 3 Luck. 403 : 107 I. C. 887 : 5 O. W. N. 61 : A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 482. It is a wrong principle to hold that if a plaintiff finds at the trial that his evidence is scanty he should be given another chance of bringing another suit to supplement his scanty evidence.—Bhikaji v. Anant, 31 Bom. L. R. 613 : 119 I. C. 773 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 320.

In a suit for enhancement of rent, the plaintiff also claimed additional rent on account of excess area under S. 52 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, but gave no evidence as was necessary under that section, held, that, under the circumstances of the case, the plaintiff could be allowed to withdraw the claim with regard to additional rent with respect to the additional area with liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter; Indu Bhusan v. Jatu Mallik, 62 I. C. 699.

The fact that notices on the heirs of a deceased defendant could not be served is no ground for allowing the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to file a fresh suit; Lakshmi Bai v. Yeshwant Vithal, 24 Bom. L. R. 909.

Change in substantive law during progress of a suit—Application for withdrawal in order to get benefit of the alteration in the substantive law. Held, that permission should not be given by the appellate Court.—Prabhakar v. Khanderao, 10 Bom. L. R. 625.

The omission by the plaintiff to include in his plaint all his causes of action, which are inconsistent with each other, cannot be said to constitute a formal defect in the plaint and is not a sufficient ground to allow withdrawal of the suit with liberty to bring a fresh one.—Manbhari v. Sumer Chand, 12 A. L. J. 441.

Where according to one of the plaintiffs, a pedigree filed is incorrect in several particulars, there is no formal defect to allow the suit to be withdrawn with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Gulab Dei v. Patan Din, 30 I. C. 351.

Where a plaintiff brought a joint suit against three sets of defendants to set aside separate alienations made by a Hindu widow during her lifetime and the suit was bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action, the plaintiff was allowed to withdraw his suit against two sets of defendants with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Ganeshi Lal v. Khairati Singh, 16 A. 279.

Where it would be difficult to execute the decree against the defendant on account of his absence, the plaintiff might be allowed to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action.—Syed Ali v. Adib, 15 B. 160.

An order for withdrawal under Or. XXIII, r. 1, cannot properly be made on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to produce evidence in support of his claim. Clause (b) of sub-rule (2) should be read in conjunction with Cl. (a). Hence the grounds included in Cl. (b) must be of the same nature as the ground specified in Cl. (a).—Hriday Nath v. Akshay Lal, 25 O. L. J. 451 : 39 I. C. 963 (11 O. L. J. 45 : 11 O. L. J. 512 : 23 O. L. J. 489 referred to); Munna Lal v. Ohhabil Das, 46 I. C. 181; Mahendra Ram v. Singi Lal, 3 P. L. J. 651 : 48 I. C. 197.

Plaintiff's inability to produce important evidence is not sufficient ground within Or. XXIII, r. 1 (2) (b), C. P. Code, for permitting him to withdraw the suit with permission to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject matter; Uchant v. Basawan, 6 P. L. J. 112: 2 P. L. T. 634: 61 I. C. 639: A. I. R. 1921 Pat. 42.

Permission to withdraw a suit with liberty should not, as a matter of discretion, be allowed on the grounds (1) that there are some other persons who are necessary parties to the suit and (2) that the success of the suit depended upon proof of a fact which could only be proved by production of a cash book, whereas the applicant had only produced a ledger.—Kamla Singh v. Bhagwan Das, 50 A. 199: 106 I. C. 431: A. I. R. 1923 All. 98.

Where the award given by the arbitrator appointed in a suit was wider than the submission and the Court therefore refused to pass a decree in terms of that award but granted permission to the plaintiff to withdraw and bring a fresh suit on the basis of the award; held that the Court's order was not proper, because it could not be said that the plaintiff could not continue the suit by reason of the award.—Nagamma v. Lakshminarasu, 112 I. C. 312: A. I. R. 1923 Mad 1035

Where a suit is brought for the interest due on a mortgage, it is not a sufficient cause for granting leave to withdraw the suit with liberty to sue afresh that a subsequent suit for the principal would be barred by Or. II, r. 2, C. P. Code; Parduman Chand v. Ganga Ram, 66 I. C. 285.

In order to succeed in an application for withdrawal, the plaintiff must specifically state the formal defect. A mere general statement that there are formal defects is not sufficient.—Pundalik v. Chandrabhan, 43 I. C. 346

A special Judge appointed under S. 54 of the Dekkan Agriculturist Relief Act (XVII of 1879) is not competent in the exercise of his revisional powers to allow a plaintiff to withdraw his suit with liberty to bring a new one, merely on the ground that he has made some mistake in filing the suit.—Muktajibhagoji v. Manaji, 12 B. 634.

In a suit against a Ruling Chief, if the consent of the Governor-General in Council under S. 433, C. P. Code, 1892 (S. 86), has not been obtained before the commencement of the suit, the Court should allow the plaintiff to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit under this section (i.e., this rule).—Chandulal v. Awad, 21 B. 351.

Effect of erroneous grant of leave to withdraw.—An order for withdrawal of a suit with leave to institute a fresh suit made under Or. XXIII, r. 1 but in circumstances not within the scope of the rule, cannot be treated as an order made without jurisdiction; such order is consequently not null and void. A fresh suit instituted upon leave so granted is not incompetent. The Court trying the subsequent suit is not competent to enter into the question, whether the Court which granted permission to the plaintiff to withdraw the first suit had properly made such order.—Hriday Nath v. Ram Chandra, 48 C. 138 (F. B.): 24 C. W. N. 723: 58 I. C. 806: 31 C. L. J. 482 (23 C. L. J. 489: 20 C. W. N. 1000, overruled); Sammaddi Sheikh v. Fulbash, 65 I. C. 704: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 269.

Assuming that a Court ought not, under Or. XXIII, r. 1 of the C. P. Code, to grant permission to a plaintiff to consolidate the claim in the suit which is withdrawn with that in another suit pending at the time, the order granting the permission is not a nullity and the plaintiff cannot, without complying with the terms of the order, maintain a fresh suit in regard to the same subject-matter; Lakshmanan v. Muthaya Chetty, 40 M. L. J. 126 : 29 M. L. T. 189.

Where the Court allows some plaintiffs to withdraw with liberty to file a fresh suit without the consent of the others, the Court acts without jurisdiction and a fresh suit is barred; Mt. Ram Dei v. Mt. Bahu Rani, 1 P. 228 : A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 489.

Power to allow withdrawal of appeal.—An appellate Court has authority to permit an appeal to be withdrawn.—Ram Pershad v. Bhurosa Koonwar, 9 W. R. 323. When an appeal is allowed to be withdrawn, the decree of the lower Court is left intact and it cannot be said that it has confirmed the decision appealed from; it merely recognises authoritatively that the appellant does not wish to go on with the appeal.—Deoki v. Jwala Prasad, 50 A. 608 : 26 A. L. J. 407 : 108 I. C. 564 : A. I. R. 1923 All. 679; Kamini v. Rajendra, 42 C. L. J. 219 : 90 I. C. 432 : A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 233.

The High Court allowed the appellant to withdraw his second appeal after it had been argued, though not decided, in order that he might apply to the lower Court for a review of its judgment on the ground of discovery of new evidence.—Pandu v. Devji, 7 B. 287.

One of the appellants can withdraw from the appeal so far as his own interest in the appeal is concerned.—Gopala v. Hira Singh, 119 P. W. R. 1908.

Where no cross-objections have been filed by the appellant has an absolute right to withdraw his appeal before judgment, his only liability being to pay costs.—Kanhaya Lal v. Partab Chand, 132 I. C. 194 : 29 A. L. J. 404.

When permission ought not to be granted—Where all the evidence in the case has been adduced and the case almost finished, the Court ought not to permit the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action, more specially when it is not shown what defects there were in the plaint which necessitated such withdrawal.—Rajendra Nath v. Baikuntha Nath, 34 I. C. 934; Abdul Sobhan v. Samasuddin, 35 C. W. N. 112 : 131 I. C. 863 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 336.

On an application by the plaintiff to withdraw a part of his claim with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action, the Court found but still granted the leave.—Held that the plaintiff ought to be allowed to withdraw a part of the claim; Gopal Chandra v. Benode Behary, 64 I. C. 82.

Except where such a power is conferred by law, as for example under Or. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. Code, a Court is not competent to give a party leave to file a separate suit in respect of any relief which it does not itself grant (following 11 A. 187 and 52 I. A. 100 : 47 A. 153).—Lakshmi v. Lakshmipathi, (1931) M. W. N. 1008 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 830 : 135 I. C. 718.

Permission need not be express.—The permission mentioned in Or. XXIII, r. 1, C. P. Code, need not be express and it is sufficient if the grant of permission can be implied from the order read with the application on which the order was passed; Banwari Lal v. Kishen Devi, 2 L. L. J. 242: 67 I. C. 1002.

Where the Court gave permission to withdraw the suit, but did not in terms give the plaintiff liberty to bring a fresh suit, it was held that the order ought to be read along with the petition and construed as granting permission to file a fresh suit; Khudi Rai v. Lalo Rai, 5 P. 23: 93 I. C. 1001: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 259.

After a suit has been referred to arbitration and a valid award has been made, it would be improper to allow withdrawal having regard to the provisions of para. 3 (2), Sch. II, C. P. Code.—Abdul Karim v. Muhammad Husain, 32 I. C. 347.

Form of order granting permission to withdraw.—Where leave is granted to the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, the order must not be one dismissing the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, but one granting permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit.—Doucett v. Wise, 1 W. R. 322, Banwari v. Muhammad, 9 A. 690; Fateh Singh v. Jagannath, 52 I. A. 100 (105): 47 A. 153 (162) (P. C.): 91 I. C. 230: A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 55: 29 C. W. N. 749. Where permission to withdraw with liberty to bring a fresh suit is refused, the Court should simply dismiss the application; Mahant Bihardasji v. Parshotamdas, 32 B. 345. See also Marudachala v. Chinna, (1931) M. W. N. 1148. In such a case the suit remains on the file of the Court and the plaintiff has the right to proceed with the suit.—Dodraj v. Gayan Prakash, 29 A. L. J. 966.

The order of the lower Court allowing the suit to be withdrawn with leave to file a fresh suit should be in such terms as to make it possible for the High Court to be satisfied that there was prima facie, at any rate, proper ground for the Court's order.—Bansidhar v. Mt. Bitola, A. I. R. 1931 All. 19: 132 I. C. 36.

Dismissal of suit coupled with liberty to bring a fresh suit, whether permissible.—The Courts in India do not possess the power to dismiss a suit with liberty to the plaintiff to bring a fresh suit for the same matter, Banwari v. Muhammad, 9 A. 690; Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A. 187 (F. B.), Fateh Singh v. Jagannath, 52 I. A. 100: 47 A. 153 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 55: 91 I. C. 230. 29 C. W. N. 749; Watson v. Collector of Rajshahye, 13 M. I. A. 160: 3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.).

Right of appellant to withdraw his appeal where cross-objections have been filed.—See notes under Or. XLI, r. 22, post.

Order under this rule, if subject to appeal or revision.—An order under this rule permitting the withdrawal of a suit with liberty to bring fresh suit is not a decree within the meaning of S. 2, and is therefore not appealable.—Jogodindro Nath v. Sarut Sunduri, 18 C. 323; Kalian Singh v. Lekhraj, 6 A. 211; Dick v. Dick, 15 A. 163; Jaydesh Chaudhri v. Tulshi, 16 A. 19; Genda Mal v. Pirbhu Lal, 17 A. 97; Abdul Hossein v. Kasi Sahu, 27 C. 362: 4 C. W. N. 41. But see Ganga Ram v. Data Ram, 8 A. 82; Sant Ram v. Mt. Sahib Kuar, A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 267: 65 I. C. 719. But such an order is open to revision if it falls within S. 115 of the Code. An order under this rule is open to revision if the Court acted illegally or with material illegality in making the order; Hiralal v. Udoy, 16 C. W. N. 1027; Hriday v. Akshay, 25 C. L. J. 454; Uchant v. Basawan, 6 P. L. J. 112: 61 I. C. 639; A. I. R. 1921 Pat. 42; Bai Kashi Bai v. Shidapa, 37 B. 682; Isher Das v. Lal Singh, 7 L. L. J. 290: 90 I. C. 632; A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 497; Aiya v. Gopanna, 27 M. L. J. 480: 26 I. C. 57; Tirupati v. Mutlu, 11 M. 322; Dick v. Dick, 15 A. 169. The High Court can also interfere in revision if the lower Court has not applied its mind to the circumstances of the case and the provisions of this rule; Ganga v. Msst. Kishni, 47 A. 319: 87 I. C. 175; A. I. R. 1925 All. 466; Moti Lal v. Kali Das, 34 C. W. N. 912: 130 I. C. 142; A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 107.

Where the trial Court gives a considered decision that there is a formal defect in the plaint and that if the plaintiff is not permitted to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a new suit he will be denied justice, that decision cannot be challenged on revision.—Ishar Das v. Aya Ram, 136 I. C. 1: 33 P. L. R. 275: 13 L. 537; A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 360. Where leave was granted without assigning any reasons, the High Court will interfere in revision.—Bainath v. Babban, 49 A. 459: 103 I. C. 232; A. I. R. 1927 All. 522; Kamta Singh v. Bhagwan Das, 50 A. 199: 106 I. C. 431; A. I. R. 1928 All. 98.

No appeal lies against an order for costs passed under this rule.—Yeshwant v. Gangadhar, 105 I. C. 733; A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 399.

Effect of reversal of order granting leave to withdraw.—The effect of such reversal on a fresh suit filed before such reversal is to declare the fresh suit null and void and to direct the lower Court to proceed with the original suit from the stage which it had reached when the order granting leave was made by that Court.—Nathuni Ram v. Sheo Koer, 3 P. L. J. 460: 46 I. C. 179: (1918) P. 220.

Applicability of this rule to suits in Revenue Courts.—This rule does not apply to suits before the revenue authorities under Act X of 1859, that Act being a complete Code in itself.—Radha Madhub v. Lukhi Narain, 21 C. 428; Mokunda Bullav v. Bhogaban Chunder, 21 C. 514. See also Doyal Chunder v. Dwarkanauth, Marsh. Rep. 148: W. R. Sp. No. 47: 1 Hay. 347: 1 Ind. Jur. O. S. 41; Modhoo Soodun v. Panch Cowree, 7 W. R. 302; Beer Chunder v. Tarine Churn, 11 W. R. 46; Ramanath v. Joy Kishen, 11 W. R. 3; Golam Mahomed v. Shubendra, 35 C. 990: 12 C. W. N. 893 (29 C. 532 distinguished); Sasi Kanta v. Salim Sheikh, 50 C. 626: 27 C. W. N. 987.

Held, that the procedure provided by Ss. 43 and 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2 and this rule), is applicable to suits under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1881.—Madho Prakash v. Murli Manohar, 5 A. 406 (F. B.) (9 C. 295 followed).

Applicability of this rule to execution proceedings.—This rule does not apply to applications for execution of decrees.—Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A. 106 (P. C.): 22 I. A. 44 (18 C. 635 approved; 10 A. 71 overruled; and 12 A. 179 reversed). See also Wajihan alias Alijan v. Bishwanath, 18 C. 462 (10 B. 62 followed; 12 A. 392 dissented from); Radha Kishen v. Radha Pershad, 18 C. 515 (18 C. 462 followed; 13 A.

-392 dissented from); Lakshmi Narasimha v. Atchanna, 15 M. 240 (12 A. 392 dissented from; 18 C. 462 and 11 B. 467 approved). From the above rulings it would appear that there was a difference of opinion between the Allahabad and the other three High Courts on this point—the former holding that S. 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 141), makes this rule applicable to proceedings in execution of decrees, and the latter holding that S. 141 does not operate to extend the rule laid down in respect of a suit in this rule to an application for execution of a decree. But the matter has been set at rest by the Privy Council case Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, reported in 17 A. 106, overruling 10 A. 71, reversing 12 A. 179, and approving 18 C. 635. The Privy Council case has impliedly overruled; Sher Singh v. Daya Ram, 13 A. 564 and Kishan Shahai v. Aladad Khan, 14 A. 64.

An application to withdraw a pending proceeding for execution, with leave to institute another at some future time, is not a step in aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 182 (5) of the Limitation Act.—Tarak Chunder v. Gyanada Sundari, 23 C. 817; contra in Ram Narain v. Bakhtu Kuar, 16 A. 75.

This rule, read with S. 647, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 141), applies to insolvency proceedings under the Civil Procedure Code.—Haidar Shah v. Jamna Das, 17 A. 156, p. 161.

Applicability of this rule to probate proceedings—This rule does not apply to probate proceedings, the provisions in S. 55 of the Probate and Administration Act being qualified by the words "so far as the circumstances of the case will admit."—Banwari Lal v. Kishen Devi, 67 I. C. 1002: 2 L. L. J. 242 (40 I. C. 345; 20 C. W. N. 986 and 21 B. 335, relied on; 38 B. 309 distd.). See also Saroda v. Gobindo, 12 C. L. J. 91; Gauri Mal v. Veroo Mal, 132 I. C. 224.

"On such terms as the Court thinks fit."—A plaintiff who is permitted to withdraw from his suit must pay the defendant's costs.—Doucett v. Wise, 1 W. R. 322; Khimchand v. Bhogilal, 47 B. 559: 72 I. C. 324: A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 206. Ordinarily the order giving an indulgence to the plaintiff to withdraw from the suit should prima facie and in the absence of special circumstances make it a condition that the plaintiff should pay the defendant's costs.—Somasundaram v. Muthumanicka, 139 I. C. 167: A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 714. The order should declare that the case has been and stands withdrawn and, as the Court sees fit, that permission is given to the plaintiff to file a fresh suit, either unconditionally or on such terms as the Court sees fit and if the terms are imposed for payment of costs a date should be fixed for such payment, and it is desirable in the interest of the defendants already once harassed, though not necessary, that an early date for the payment should be fixed (not following 31 C. 965; 14 C. L. J. 105; 19 C. L. J. 529).—Rachhpal v. Sheo Ratan, 118 I. C. 584: A. I. R. 1929 All 692.

It has been held by the High Court of Madras that where leave to bring a fresh suit is granted to the plaintiff on payment of the defendant's costs on or before a specified date, but no payment is made on or before that date, the plaintiff is precluded from bringing a fresh suit and if such suit is brought, it should stand dismissed.—Fisher v. Nagappa, 33 M. 258. The same High Court in another case has held that where leave to bring a fresh suit is given on payment of the defendant's costs but no time is specified within which the payment is to be made, the plaintiff is similarly precluded.

from bringing a second suit unless the costs are paid before the institution of the second suit.—Seshayya v. Subbaya, 47 M. L. J. 646: 82 I. C. 499: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 877. This case has been followed by the Bombay High Court in Shidramappa v. Mallappa, 55 B. 206: 33 Bom. L. R. 278: 133 I. C. 256: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 257 (dissenting from 31 C. 965, 19 C. L. J. 529, 5 P. 306 and relying on A. I. R. 1929 All. 692). The Calcutta High Court in Abdul Aziz v. Ebrahim 31 C. 965, held that though payment of defendant's costs was a condition precedent to the institution of a second suit, non-payment of such costs before the institution of the second suit, did not render the suit ab initio void. The same High Court in Shital Prosad v. Gaya Prosad, 19 C. L. J. 529: 23 I. C. 210, took the same view and held that where leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, was given on payment of the defendant's costs within a fixed time, the non-payment of the costs within that time, did not operate as a dismissal of the suit or as a bar to the institution of a fresh suit, unless the order granting leave had itself provided that, on such non-payment, the suit should stand dismissed. It was also held that inasmuch as the permission to withdraw and bring a fresh suit was made conditional on a certain payment, the original suit could not be deemed to be withdrawn until those costs were paid, and it must therefore be deemed to be a pending suit which would become disposed of as soon as payment was made. The same view has been taken in Deb Kumar v. Debnath, 64 I. C. 738. The Patna High Court in Syed Quazi v. Lachman Singh, 5 P. 306: 96 I. C. 942: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 409, in Kuldip v. Kuldip, 3 P. L. J. 63: 44 I. C. 79, and in Din Dayal v. Indra Dan, 95 I. C. 875: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 472, has followed the Calcutta High Court decisions. When the plaintiff obtains permission to withdraw from the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on condition of paying the costs before instituting fresh suit, the suit does not remain pending until the costs are paid, nor can a fresh suit be dismissed under Or. XXIII, r. 1. Failure to pay costs before instituting a fresh suit is only an irregularity and the fresh suit should not be dismissed if the payment is made after its institution (following 31 C. 965 and dissenting from A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 409 and A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 877).—Narsingh v. Nathuji, 25 N. L. R. 171: 118 I. C. 54: A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 135.

The first suit of the plaintiff was allowed to be withdrawn on condition of paying the defendant's costs. He then brought a second suit without paying the costs and again a similar order made permitting him to withdraw on condition of paying the costs. Sometime later the plaintiff paid the costs of the first suit and brought a third suit on the same cause of action: Held, (1) the payment of the costs before the institution of the third suit and after the withdrawal of the second suit did not fulfil the condition imposed by the order in the first suit; (2) the second suit was therefore incompetent; (3) the permission granted in the original suit would only extend to the filing of one fresh suit and not the filing of any number of fresh suits which might be dismissed in turn for failure to pay costs; (4) the present suit was not therefore maintainable (relying on 27 Bom. L. R. 243).—Shidramappa v. Mallappa, 55 B. 206: 33 Bom. L. R. 278: 133 I. C. 256: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 257.

The only case in which a Court may, under this rule, impose any condition upon a plaintiff who seeks to withdraw, is where that plaintiff asks the Court for permission, not only to withdraw, but also for liberty to bring a fresh suit for the same subject-matter. But where he asks leave to withdraw without permission to bring a fresh suit, the Court cannot make the payment of costs a condition precedent to the granting of such permission.—Haidar Shah v. Jamna Das, 17 A. 156 (161). See Syed Ali v. Adil, 15 B. 160.

The High Court has no power under the Civil Procedure Code to award costs to the defendant where the plaintiff withdraws, not having asked leave to do so with liberty to bring another suit for the same matter.—Brass v. Tiruvengada, 1 M. H. C. R. 247 (dissented from in 1 B. L. R. O. C. 45).

Effect of withdrawal or abandonment of claim with or without permission to bring fresh suit.—Permission to bring a fresh suit under Or. XXIII, r. 1, must be given in express terms and cannot be implied.—Jitu Singh v. Hari Singh, 97 P. R. 1916 (21 C. 265; 4 C. W. N. 110 distinguished). But see Banwari Lal v. Kishen Devi, 67 I. C. 1002; 2 L. L. J. 242. In the absence of permission to bring a fresh suit, Or. XXIII, r. (1), sub-rule (3), precludes the plaintiff from instituting any fresh suit in respect of such subject-matter or such part of the claim from which he has withdrawn.—Aswini Kumar v. Saroda Charan, 24 C. L. J. 79; Maung Mu v. Maung Kan, 1 R. 618; A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 127. The rule enacted in Or. XXIII, r. 1 is a statutory recognition of a legal principle barring the fresh institution of a claim unless certain conditions were fulfilled, and the rule is imperative.—Rangacharya v. Revti Raman, A. I. R. 1928 All. 689; 27 A. L. J. 229; 114 I. C. 734. The rule does not bar a suit already instituted before the other suit has been abandoned or dismissed.—Mang Lal v. Radha Mohan, 129 I. C. 215; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 599.

It is necessary to establish the identity of the parties and the identity of the causes of action before a suit can be a bar under this rule.—Rangacharya v. Revti Raman, A. I. R. 1928 All. 689; 27 A. L. J. 229; 114 I. C. 734. The real test for determining whether a suit is barred, is whether the cause of action or transaction on which the two suits are based is the same and not whether the transaction is sought to be established in different modes or by different means. Where the cause of action for recovery of immoveable property against the defendant was that he was a trustee in the first suit and the cause of action for recovery of the same property was that defendant was a trespasser in the second suit, the subject-matter and claim in the two suits are different and withdrawal of the former will not bar the latter suit.—Narayanaswami v. Mannar, 30 L. W. 562; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 798. Where the suit was premature, as a suit under S. 77 of the Registration Act before a final order was passed by the Registrar, a fresh suit filed after the refusal of the Registrar was not barred by this rule even though permission to withdraw had not been obtained.—Karam Singh v. Sardar Singh, 134 I. C. 482; A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 139.

Where a plaintiff brought a suit for partition of joint-property from which he withdrew without being dispossessed from joint-possession of the property by this rule. The mere fact of two suits being in respect of the same property would not be sufficient to make the latter suit one for the same matter as the former, when the state of facts leading to the two suits and the reliefs claimed under them are different.—Gopal Chandra v. Purna Chandra, 4 C. W. N. 110 (Juggobundo v. Watson & Co., Bourke Rep Part VII A. O. C. 162, doubted). Section 97 of Act VIII of 1859 (this rule) only applied to cases where the plaintiff withdraws from the suit without the consent of the defendant.—Juggobundo v. Watson & Co., Bourke, 162. See also Kamini v. Ram Nath, 21 C. 265.

In a suit for ejectment on the ground that the defendant was a trespasser and had no right whatever to the land, the defendant raised the defence that he had a tenancy right in the land and could not be ejected. The suit was withdrawn without liberty to bring a fresh suit in respect of the same subject-matter. Held, that Or. XXIII, r. 1 did not operate as a bar to a subsequent suit for possession in which tenancy of the defendant had been determined by service of notice to quit, Abdulla v. Akhil Chandra, 59 I. C. 84.

A suit for ejectment was withdrawn without obtaining leave to file a fresh suit, for want of notice to quit. A fresh suit was filed after giving notice to quit. Held that the suit was not barred under this rule. The series of acts or transactions which formed the basis of the former suit was incomplete because there was no notice to quit. The second series of acts or transactions is complete, because notice to quit was given and therefore the subject-matter of the two suits was not the same—Chenchuram v. Mahomed Bahavuddin, 63 M. L. J. 446 : (1932) M. W. N. 955.

The plaintiffs sued the defendant upon a balance order dated 24th February 1882 to recover a certain sum of money. They had previously sued the defendant to recover the said sum of money, but that suit was based upon a call order dated 11th November 1880, and they were permitted to withdraw it with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action. Held, that the plaintiffs were not precluded from bringing the second suit upon the balance order.—London, Bombay and Mediterranean Bank v. Burjorji Sorabji, 9 B. 346.

An unsuccessful claimant brought a regular suit against a decree-holder, who then released the property from attachment and the plaintiff withdrew his suit. The same property was afterwards attached and sold in execution of the same decree. Held, that the subsequent suit for possession of the property against the auction-purchaser was not barred by this rule.—Mukhoda Soondury v. Ram Churan, 8 C. 871 (11 M. I. A. 7 cited).

A sued B and C claiming certain property as his private property. Pending this suit he sued B for an injunction directing B to close certain doors in the property claimed in the first suit—the first suit was withdrawn. It was contended that the second suit was barred: Held, that the suit did not come within the provisions of this rule.—Rama Mal v. Upendra, 110 I. C. 818: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 710.

A Court after reference to arbitration cannot, pending the reference, grant permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit for the same matter. Permission thus given to a plaintiff to withdraw, with liberty to bring fresh suit, is ultra vires, and does not save the fresh suit from being barred by this rule.—Sheoambar v. Deodat, 9 A. 168.

The dismissal of the former suit "in the form it was brought" does not amount to permission to sue again as contemplated by this rule and such dismissal must be regarded as a "decision" thereof in the sense of

r. 1.

S. 13, Explanation iii, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 11), and therefore as a bar to the fresh suit.—Ganesh v. Kalka Prasad, 5 A. 595; Muhammad Salim v. Nabian Bibi, 8 A. 232; Kudrat v. Dinu, 9 A. 155; Banwari Das v. Muhammad Mashiat, 9 A. 690 (3 B. L. R. 48 (P. C.) : 13 M. I. A. 160 referred to).

After a suit has been tried and dismissed on the merits the plaintiff cannot be permitted to start the proceedings all over again against the successful defendants merely because there was also a formal defect in the frame of the suit, and the Court cannot pass an order under Or. XXIII, r. 1.—Ram Soran v. Radha Raman, 55 C. 1067 : 113 I. C. 847 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 88.

A suit for possession was wholly dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had not made out his title to the whole of the property claimed, though he had proved title to a one-third share of it, the decree containing a clause that a fresh suit might be brought for a one-third share. Subsequently the plaintiff brought another suit for possession of the one-third share. Held, that the Court in the former suit had no power to include in its decree any such reservation or order; that the fact that the decree was not appealed against did not give the order contained in it, which was an absolute nullity, any effect.—Sukh Lal v. Bhikhi, 11 A. 187 (F. B.) (5 A. 595, 8 A. 232, and 9 A. 155 explained).

In a suit for partition both the parties having arrived at a compromise, filed a joint petition praying that the suit might be struck off, the terms of the compromise were however not inserted in the decree and were never carried out. Subsequently the plaintiff brought a second suit for partition of the same property. Held, that the suit was barred by this rule.—Gulkandi Lal v. Manni Lal, 23 A. 219.

Where the former suit was withdrawn with permission to bring a fresh suit, the subsequent suit is not barred.—Kunhan v. Sankara, 14 M. 78, p. 80.

A redemption suit was dismissed for want of necessary parties. In the appellate Court, the plaintiff put in a petition saying that he did not wish to prosecute his "appeal or claim," the other side having given up his costs. The plaintiff then brought a second suit to redeem. Held, that the suit was barred by the last para. of this rule, the consideration for withdrawal being that the respondents gave up their costs.—Ram Prasad v. Dungan Singh, 4 A. L. J. 201 : (1907) A. W. N. 91.

Where in a suit for partition, a defendant has, by concession of the plaintiff, acquired rights, which otherwise, could not have existed, it is not open to the plaintiff, who has made that concession, afterwards to annul its effect, by withdrawing the suit in the appellate Court. Sections 373 (Or. XXIII, r. 1) and 582 (Or. XXII, r. 11), C. P. Code, 1882, do not support the conclusion that rights actually vested and created by the decree of the first Court can be afterwards annulled by the plaintiff's withdrawal of the entire suit of his own free will and without the permission of the Court.—Satyabhamabai v. Ganesh Balkrishna, 29 B. 13 : 6 Bom. L. R. 533.

A shebait sued the other manager of a Hindu religious endowment as representing the idol. Part of the claim was withdrawn. There was no fraud in the withdrawal. Subsequently another shebait sued a third one in respect of the same claim as representative of the idol. Held, that the suit was barred.—Rangacharya v. Revti Raman, A. I. R. 1928 All. 689 : 27 A. L. J. 229 : 114 I. O. 734.

Where the earlier suit was withdrawn without permission to bring a fresh suit, it is not open to the plaintiff to evade the provisions of r. 1 by instituting a fresh suit after joining his brother as co-plaintiff.—Farhat v. Kamaruddin, 15 R. D. 598.

"In respect of such subject-matter."—The expression used in the corresponding S. 373 of the old Code, was "matter." Section 373 of the Code of 1882 was interpreted in two different phases by the Courts. In the cases of Kamini Kanta v. Ram Nath, 21 C. 265 and Gopal Chandra v. Purna Chandra, 4 C. W. N. 110, the Calcutta High Court expressed the view that the word "matter" used in S. 373 did not mean the property concerned in the suit that it had reference to the right in that property which the plaintiff was seeking to enforce in that suit. A very different view was taken by the Madras High Court in the case of Achuta Menon v. Achutan Nayar, 21 M. 35. In that case, the learned Judges referring to Anderson's Dictionary of Law held that the term "matter" in a context like that in S. 373 means, "the subject of legal action, consideration, complaint or defence or the fact or facts constituting the whole or a part of a ground of action or defence." The logical result of accepting this definition was that even though the plaintiff's suit had been dismissed by reason of the fact that he had failed to comply with the condition under which liberty was reserved to him for the institution of a fresh suit when he was allowed to withdraw the same even though the plaintiff instituted a fresh suit upon a different cause of action or upon a different title subsequently acquired the fresh suit would have to be held to be not maintainable. Indeed, in that case, what happened was that the plaintiff had tried to eject the defendant in the earlier suit upon a title derived in the year 1880 and subsequent to the dismissal of that suit under the aforesaid circumstances he derived a fresh title in 1892 and it was held that the fresh suit which was being litigated upon the title subsequently acquired was barred by reason of the dismissal of the previous suit. This view of the Madras High Court was adhered to in several decisions of that Court amongst which reference may be made to the cases of Machana Ujjhala Dikshatulu v. Gorugantulu, (1910) M.W.N. 782 and Sennava v. Venkatachala, (1915) M.L.W. 177. Subsequently, however, there was a reference to a Full Bench in the year 1916 and the Full Bench in the case of Singa Reddi v. Subba Reddi, 39 M. 987: 35 I. C. 185, overruled the decision in the case of Achuta Menon v. Achutan Nayar, 21 M. 35, and the other cases which had followed it and agreeing with the view taken by the Calcutta High Court in the case of Gopal Chandra v. Purna Chandra, 4 C. W. N. 110 held that "without attempting an exhaustive definition of all that may be included in the term "subject-matter", it should be held that "where the cause of action and the relief claimed in the second suit are not the same as the cause of action and the relief claimed in the first suit, the second suit cannot be considered to have been brought in respect of the same subject-matter as the first suit within the meaning of Or. XXIII, r. 1, sub-rule (3) of the Code of Civil Procedure." There are two other decisions, one of the Madras High Court and other of the Bombay High Court to which reference is also necessary. In the Madras High Court in the case of Chenchuram Naidu v. Baharuddin Sahib, 56 M. 163, the facts were that the plaintiff as landlord had instituted a suit in ejectment against a tenant but the suit was allowed to be withdrawn on the ground that there was absence of the requisite notice to quit but no liberty was reserved to the plaintiff to institute a fresh suit and thereafter the plaintiff instituted another suit after having given the necessary notice. It was held in that case that the second suit was not a suit in respect of the same subject-matter, because the words "subject-matter" in Or. XXIII, r. 1 mean "the series of acts or transactions alleged to exist giving rise to the relief claimed." The learned Judges purported to follow the decision of the Bombay High Court in the case of Rakhmabai v. Mahadeo Narayan, 42 B. 155. In the case last mentioned, Scott, C. J., has explained the meaning of the words "subject-matter" in these words: "The question is whether the previous suit was a suit for the same subject-matter within the meaning of Or. XXIII, r. 1. We are of opinion that "subject-matter" means, to use the words of Or. I, r. 1, the series of acts or transactions-alleged to exist giving rise to the relief claimed". Obviously, the first series of acts or transactions which formed the basis of the first suit was incomplete, or the plaintiff would have been able to prosecute his suit to decree. It was incomplete because there was no notice to quit. The second series of acts or transactions is complete because the notice to quit has been given, and therefore, the two suits are not in respect of the same "subject-matter". It may be pointed out that the case of Rakhmabai v. Mahadeo Narayan, 42 B. 155 also was a case in which the first suit was withdrawn upon the ground that the notice which had been served was defective and, therefore, the cause of action was incomplete. See also Narayanaswami v. Mannar, 30 L. W. 562 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 798. A contrary view was taken by the Punjab Chief Court in Jita Singh v. Hari Singh, 97 P. R. 1916 : 37 I. C. 128.

The word "subject-matter" used in this rule is not to be identified with the "property" in the suit. It means the cause of action for a claim. A suit on a different cause of action though relating to the same property is not barred, if the suit is withdrawn without leave of Court; Putto Khan v. Ahmad Zaman Khan, 74 I. C. 56. The subject-matter of a suit for ejectment of a year-to-year tenant with effect from a certain year is not the same as his ejectment with effect from a subsequent year. Or. XXIII, r. 1 (3) can bar only a second suit for ejectment instituted after the withdrawal of the first if the object of both suits is to eject the tenant with effect from the same year.—Bhullan v. Dasrath, 113 I. C. 748 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 67. "Subject-matter" is equivalent to the phrase "cause of action."—Shadi Ram v. Amir Chand, 12 L. L. J. 203 : 130 I. C. 513 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 937.

Where, in a prior suit, the plaintiffs sued for a declaration of title to a war-bond without any consequential relief, which suit was withdrawn without leave to bring a new suit, held, that Or. XXIII, r. 1 (3), barred a new suit brought for the consequential relief of recovery of the war-bond or its value.—Maung Mu v. Maung Kan, 1 R. 618 : A. I. R. 1924 Rang. 127.

Sub-rule (3)—Its applicability to an application.—This sub-rule is intended to apply to a case where a suit or part of a suit or claim is withdrawn, but it does not in terms apply to an application for final decree. What is thereby barred is a fresh suit, not a fresh application (following A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 473). So where an application for ascertaining mesne-profits after passing of the preliminary decree is withdrawn without leave of the Court, a fresh application is not barred.—Latchayya v. Suryaprakasa, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 1165 : 115 I. C. 825. Where a Receiver applied to be, made a party defendant in a suit against the person whom he represented but withdrew the application on coming to know that the suit had been decreed ex parte, and subsequently filed a fresh application praying that the case might be re-opened and he might be made a defendant, and his application was rejected; held, that Or. XXIII, r. 1 did not apply and that under the peculiar circumstances of the case S. 151 applied and the application should be allowed.—U. E. Maung v. P. A. R. P. Chettyar, 6 R. 494 : A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 273 · 113 I. C. 811.

Under sub-rule (3) the plaintiff is bound to pay the costs fixed by the Court. The rule that costs ordinarily follow the event has no application to such a case.—Yeshwant v. Gangadhar, 105 I. C. 733 : A. I. R. 1927 Nag. 399.

Sub-rule (4)—Withdrawal by co-plaintiffs.—Sub-rule (4) provides that nothing in this rule shall be deemed to authorize the Court to permit one of several plaintiffs to withdraw without the consent of the others.

One of several plaintiffs cannot withdraw from the suit without the consent of the others. Where the Court in contravention of this sub-rule allows two out of four plaintiffs to withdraw from a suit without the consent of the other two, it acts without jurisdiction, and a second suit in respect of the same subject-matter is barred.—Musst. Ram Dei v. Musst. Bahu Ram, 1 P. 228 : A. I. R. 1922 Pat 469.

Where there are two plaintiffs of whom the second plaintiff is a minor represented by the first plaintiff as guardian, the first plaintiff cannot withdraw the suit.—Upputuri v. Lingayya, 107 I. C. 431 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 496.

Notice.—An order under this rule without notice to the opposite party is bad.—Rajendra v. Atal, 25 C. L. J. 456 : 44 C. 454.

Withdrawal of suit by next friend of minor.—When a suit is fraudulently withdrawn by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, without leave to bring a fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of fraud in one of the three ways, viz. (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; or (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Chundra v. Nundamoni, 10 C. 357. In Ram Sarup v. Shah Latafat Hossein, 29 C. 735, the withdrawal of a suit by the next friend was treated as gross negligence. A withdrawal of a suit by the next friend of a minor in pursuance of an agreement or compromise entered into with the defendant without the leave of the Court, is voidable at the instance of the minor, under Or. XXXII, r. 7.—Doraswami v. Thungasami, 27 M. 377 : 14 M. L. J. 159.

Power of Court of Small Causes to allow withdrawal.—The Court of Small Causes at Calcutta has jurisdiction to pass an order under this rule after granting a new trial.—Jadu Mani v. Ram Kumar, 29 C. 239; but the Judge of a Small Cause Court cannot allow withdrawal without recording reasons.—Luchi v. Raghubir, 2 P. L. J. 682. But in Fule & Co. v. Mahomed Hossain, 21 C. 129, it has been held that the Small Cause Court Judge after receiving the judgment of the High Court on a reference, had no jurisdiction to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit, but was bound to enter judgment according to the decision of the High Court.

2. In any fresh suit instituted on permission granted under the last preceding rule, the plaintiff shall be bound by the law of limitation in the same manner as if the first suit had not been instituted. [S. 374.]

Limitation law not affected by first suit.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 374, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the word "instituted" has been substituted for the word "brought" which occurred in the old section.

Limitation.—When a suit is withdrawn under Or. XXIII, r. 1 with permission to bring a fresh suit, the effect of this rule is, that limitation is to apply to the second suit, as if it was the first. Held also, that section 14 of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a case—Varajlal v. Shomeshwar, 29 B. 219; 7 Bom. L. R. 90 (12 B. 625, followed). Where leave to withdraw was granted erroneously by a Court which had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit, the case will be governed not by the provisions of this rule but by those of S. 14 of the Limitation Act, and the term during which the first suit was prosecuted will be excluded in computing the period of limitation for the second suit; Ramdeo v. Gonesh, 35 C 924; 12 C. W. N. 921.

The effect of withdrawal of a suit with permission to bring a fresh suit, is to leave the parties in the same position as that in which they would have been if the suit had never been brought. A plaintiff, therefore, who has obtained permission under S. 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1), will not be debarred by S. 43, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. II, r. 2), from claiming in a subsequent suit a relief which he might have included, but did not, in the suit which he was permitted to withdraw.—Behari Lal v. Baran Mai Dasi, 17 A. 53. See also Venkata Shetti v. Ranga Nayak, 10 M. 160 (followed in Syed Hassen Ali v. Hari Nath, 1 C. L. J. 29-n; Ilahi Baksh v. Imam Baksh, 1 A. 324; Mulchand v. Bhikari, 7 A. 624; and Sabhapathi v. Lakshmu, 24 M. 293).

Execution proceedings.—The rule laid down in this rule does not apply to applications for executions.—Tara Chand Meg Raj v. Kashinath, 10 B. 62; Thakur Prasad v. Fakirullah, 17 A. 106 (P. C.); 22 I. A. 44 (10 A. 71 overruled; 12 A. 179 reversed; and 18 C. 635 approved); see Eshan Chunder v. Prannath, 22 W. R. 512. But see Pirjade v. Pirjade, 6 B. 681. See also notes under Or. XXIII, r. 1.

When a respondent loses his case, he does not afford sufficient ground for an appeal, if he might have presented a different case. B. 249 (10 B. H. C. R. 398 referred to).

The effect of withdrawal of an appeal under a compromise estops the parties with regard to the points raised in the lower Court's decision.—Vythilinga v. Vijayathammal, 6 M. 43.

3. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or where the defendant satisfies the plaintiff in respect of the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the suit, the Court shall order such agreement, compromise or satisfaction to be recorded, and shall pass a decree in accordance therewith so far as it relates to the suit. [S 375.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 375, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted" have been substituted for the words "if a suit be adjusted," which occurred in the old section. The words "the Court shall order" have been added and the words "and such decree shall be final so far as relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by the agreement, compromise, or satisfaction" which occurred in the concluding part of the old section, have been omitted, having regard to Cl. (3) of S. 96, which provides that no appeal shall lie from a decree passed by the Court with the consent of parties. But on account of the omission of the words "such decree shall be final," a review of a consent decree may be granted. Under the old law, review was prohibited (see Purmessuree v. Romeezooddeen, 5 W. R 226).

"The committee have considered it expedient to alter the language of S. 375 so as to recognize the power of a Court to enquire into and to record a disputed compromise."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"Has been adjusted wholly or in part."—An adjustment which is not bona fide and on the basis of which the Court was not asked to record satisfaction and pass a decree in accordance therewith does not comply with the provisions of Or. XXIII, r. 3; Seth Kevaldas v. Saker Lal Bulakhidas, 23 C. W. N. 930 (P. C.): 79 I. C. 452·45 M. L. J. 763: 33 M. L. T. 424. Any part of the suit may be adjusted.—Mahomed Shah v. Ghulam, 123 I. C. 693: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 217.

"By any lawful agreement or compromise."—The language of this rule is wide and general and does not preclude parties from settling their disputes on such lawful terms as they might agree to, without being restricted to such relief as one only of the parties had chosen to claim in the plaint. In a suit for money, where the plaint prays for a simple money decree, an agreement by which the parties agreed that the decretal amount should be a charge on certain properties, is lawful and "relates to the suit," so as to be embodied in the decree—Joti Kuruvetappa v. Izari Sirusappa, 30 M. 478. In a suit for money based on simple money bonds, a compromise was arrived at between the parties that in lieu of the amount of the claim and plaintiff's costs and interests, the defendant should execute a sale deed in plaintiff's favour in respect of certain fields free from all incumbrances on a certain date and deliver possession of the same on a certain date. The plaintiff applied for the execution of the compromise decree. Held, that the compromise decree was not ultra vires or void or merely

The plaintiff applied for the execution of the compromise decree. Held, that the compromise decree was not ultra vires or void or merely declaratory in nature, that it was executable and that it was not necessary for the plaintiff (decree-holder) to institute a separate suit for the relief granted by the said decree.—Ramkrishna v. Lazminarayan, 25 N. L. R. 110 : 116 I. C. 651 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 164 Where in a money-suit the plaintiff prayed for relief against the joint family assets in the hands of the sons of the executants but by the terms of a compromise embodied in the decree the plaintiff got personal relief against the sons held, that the validity of such a compromise cannot be questioned on the execution side.—Gorinda v. Murugesu, 138 I. C. 786 : (1932) M. W. N. 623 : A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 557.

The word "lawful" does not merely mean binding or enforceable. The word refers to agreements which in their very terms or nature are not unlawful and may therefore include agreements which are voidable at the option of one of the parties thereto because they have been brought about by coercion, undue influence or fraud.—Qadri Jahan Begam v. Fazal Ahmad, 50 A. 748 : 110 I. C. 573 : 26 A. L. J. 691 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 494. See also Laraiti v. Shyam Sundar, 30 A. L. J. 509 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 478 : 141 I. C. 653. XXIII, r 3, the Courts retain an inherent power not to allow the proceedings to be used to work a substantial injustice.—Sourendra v. Tarubala, 57 I. A. 133 : 57 C. 1311 : 34 C. W. N. 453 : 51 C. Where a preliminary decree in a mortgage-suit directs payment of money into Court, a payment out of Court to the decree-holder cannot be recognised either by virtue of Or. XXI, r. 2 or Or. XXIII, r. 3. The Court is bound to pass a final decree for sale.—Durga Devi v. Nand Lal, 136 I. C. 732 : 33 P. L. R. 138 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 231.

In a suit for a mere declaration the Court can pass a decree in terms of the compromise entered into by the parties by which one of them is to pay a certain sum of money to the other.—Narain Das v. Kalyanji, 24 N. L. R. 55 : 107 I. C. 525 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 173.

A Hindu father has full authority to act on behalf of his adopted son and to enter into a compromise in a suit on mortgage of joint-family property so as to bind the son to the compromise in respect of the son's interest in the property; Saiyid Mehdi v. Chaudhri Ghansham, A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 204 : 104 I. C. 375 : 27 L. W. 540 : 46 C. L. J. 209 : 32 C. W. N. 93.

A compromise signed by a pleader who was not specially authorized for the purpose is bad and a decree in accordance with it should be set aside.—Basanjowda v. Churchigirigowda, 34 B. 408.

Where the parties to a suit themselves effect a compromise and the fact of the compromise is conveyed to the Court by means of a petition presented by the pleaders appearing on both sides, it is not open to the parties to question the compromise on the ground that the pleaders had no authority to compromise.—Pambayam Chetty v. Kandaswami, 12 L. W. 562: 60 I. C. 22.

It is incumbent on a Court to pass a decree in terms of a compromise, only if the same is lawful, i.e. enforceable in law. One test to apply is, were the parties competent to enter into the agreement in order to achieve the purpose they had in view. When after a mortgage-decree to which the puisne mortgagee was a party, the mortgagee and the prior mortgagee put in appeal a petition of compromise which increases the amount payable to the latter, a decree cannot be passed in accordance therewith, as it undoubtedly prejudices the rights of the puisne mortgagee and hence cannot be said to be "lawful".—Malchand Boid v. Osman Ali, 38 C. L. J. 272.

The Court has no jurisdiction, under this rule, to pass a decree on a compromise, unless it is a lawful compromise. Any terms of a contract which are opposed to public policy, are invalid and will, therefore, not be enforced by the Courts and so far as a decree embodies unlawful terms of a compromise, it is inoperative and will not be enforced.—Lakshmanaswami v. Rangamma, 26 M 31 (24 M. 265 referred to). No option is left to a Court to examine the terms of a compromise beyond seeing whether the agreement is lawful or not. An agreement which carries a penal clause such as may be covered by S 74 of the Contract Act, is not in any sense of the term "unlawful" and hence it must be recorded and a decree passed in terms thereof; Kishen Prasad v. Kunj Behari, 24 A. L. J. 210: 91 I. C. 790: A. I. R. 1926 All. 278.

The legality of a provision for ejection is to be tested in the light of the rules formulated in the Bengal Tenancy Act, even though the provision originally appearing in the petition of compromise has been incorporated in the decree. The Court will not in such circumstances, assist the decree-holder to achieve his illegal purposes in defiance of express statutory prohibition. The circumstance, that a consent decree has been passed on the basis of a compromise, does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to grant relief against forfeiture, and the Court must determine whether on equitable grounds, relief could have been granted against forfeiture if it had been called to enforce the agreement itself.—Gopal Kishna v. Hari Nath, 34 C. L. J. 157.

Although under Or. XXIII, r. 3 it is obligatory on the Court to pass a decree in terms of the compromise after it has been recorded, it is not essential that the passing of the decree should be simultaneous with the recording of the compromise and there is nothing in the rule to prevent a Court from postponing the passing of a decree in a proper case.—Abhayanand v. Rameshwar, 9 P. 314: 125 I. C. 521: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 395: 12 P. L. T. 46.

A Court will not recognise any compromise of an action with the facts of which it is entirely unacquainted or if one of the terms of the compromise is a clear violation of a statutory rule.—Sakli v. Ram Kishun, 55 I. C. 504. The presumption is that the Court followed the procedure in recording a compromise.—Mahbub v. Munshi, 32 P. L. R. 761.

A Court is not bound to pass a decree in accordance with a compromise which is shown to be fraudulent.—Asan Pandey v. Rajmon Misser, 52 I. C. 105.

On an application to record an agreement, under Or. XXIII, r. 3, C. P. Code, the Court has power to go behind the transaction and to enquire whether the admission is true and made by the debtor with a full knowledge of his legal rights as against the creditor.—Goturam Radhakison v. Barku, 24 Bom. L. R. 89; 46 B. 560. The Court has jurisdiction to consider whether the award is legal and enforceable (45 B. 245, 51 B. 908 followed). Thus if the arbitrators entered upon a consideration of the matters when they had no jurisdiction to do so (e. g., contracts not in the form sanctioned by the Bombay Cotton Contracts Act) it cannot be said that the suit has been adjusted by a lawful compromise and the award cannot be recorded under this rule.—Babubhai v. Madhavji, 65 B. 503 : 134 I. C. 705 : 33 Bom. L. R. 759 : A. I. R. 1931 Bom 343. The Court has power to, and should, enquire whether the agreement of compromise which is not signed by all the parties, is binding on all the parties when certain communications are relied upon to show that all the parties in fact intended to abide by it ; such an enquiry is not barred by S. 23 of the Evidence Act.—Joint Hindu family of Sadhu Ram v. Botha Ram, 11 L. L. J. 446.

The plaintiff undertook to abide by the statement of a particular person and closed his case. The person was examined on solemn affirmation but denied any knowledge of the case, and the plaintiff's suit was dismissed. Held, the proceedings were tantamount to a compromise of the suit ; Chet Ram v. Bhup Singh, A. I. R. 1927 Lah 99 : 98 I. C. 864.

Statement that the parties would accept terms stated by a particular third person does not come within the purview of rule 3, it being not to the effect that the parties had come to certain terms regarding the subject-matter of the suit but being by one third person.—

I. C. 186 : A I 122

608 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 614. There is a striking difference between the phraseology of Or. XXIII, r. 3 and para. 1 of Sch. II. The former clearly and very strikingly deals with an agreement which has been arrived at, while the main agreement to be arrived at ment which is to be arrived at in by the decision of the pleaders a Court gave a decree accordingly : held that the agreement did not amount to an adjustment of the suit but was a mere reference to arbitration, the statement of the pleaders was an award and the Court was bound to give 10 days time to file objections under Cl. (1) of para. 16 of Sch. II.—Ibid. An agreement between the parties that they should be bound by the statement of a third party might be valid under S. 23 of the Contract Act, but it was open to a party to resile from the agreement before the referee has made his statement.—Bishambhar v. Radha, 29 A. L. J. 393 : 133 I. C. 29 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 557 ; Basdeo v. Ram Raj, 137 I. C. 263 : 30 A. L. J. 71 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 166.

An agreement between the parties to a suit that it should abide and follow the result of another suit between the same parties is a valid and binding agreement. As soon as a decision is given in the second suit, there is a lawful adjustment of the first suit within the meaning of Or. XXIII, r. 3.—Sreenivasa Ohariar v. Kumara Thatha Ohariar, (1918) M. W. N. 746 (37 M. 408 distd.). The pleader of both the parties applied for adjournment of the case stating that the parties had agreed to abide by the decision of the High Court in another suit and the adjournment was granted: Held, that the application by the pleaders was only one for adjournment stating certain reasons and so the order of adjournment would not amount to an order recording a compromise.—Venkatarayudu v. Venkata Kumara, 120 I. C. 742; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 416. A joint petition by both the parties to a suit requesting the Court to adjourn the case for enabling the parties to arrive at the terms of a contemplated settlement is not by itself a compromise when nothing further was done by the parties in furtherance of their original intention. A decree based on the original petition itself as if it were a compromise is without jurisdiction — Haridas v. Ramdas, 34 C. W. N. 1068; A. I. R. 1931 Cal 205 131 I. C. 257.

Where the claim is beyond the jurisdiction of the trial Court, it is not competent to the Court to pass a compromise decree; Gorindaswami v. Kaliamperumal, (1922) M. W. N. 83 66 I. C. 837.

The plaintiff (respondent) after obtaining a decree in the first Court compromised the suit in the appellate Court and asked that a decree should be made in favour of the defendants (appellants). Held, that the High Court on an application to make a decree in accordance with the compromise, had acted properly in adding as plaintiffs, members of the temple community who opposed the application, and in refusing the application on the ground that the compromise was a breach of trust on the part of the respondent and therefore unlawful under Or. XXIII, r. 3.—Sankaralinga v. Rajeswara Dorai, 35 I. A. 176. 31 M 236 (P. C.): 8 C. L. J. 230: 12 C. W. N. 946: 10 Bom. L. R. 781. An agreement by which a Mahant agrees to transfer the property of the mutt for no necessary purpose is not a lawful agreement which can be enforced under this rule.—Anandilal v. Jagannath, 106 I. C. 645: 9 P. L. T. 214. A compromise in a suit relating to a public trust cannot be said to be "lawful" if it sacrifices the interests of the trust.—Narayanaswami v. President of the Board of Commissioners, etc., 53 M. 398: 31 L. W. 442: 58 M. L. J. 410: 124 I. C. 602: (1930) M. W. N. 243: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 629.

Agreement that a suit may be decided in a manner different from that prescribed by law is void.—Raja of Venkatagiri v. Chinta Reddy, 37 M. 403.

Unless a will is proved in some form, no grant of probate can be made merely on the consent of parties. Hence an agreement or compromise as regards the genuineness and due execution of a will, if its effect is to exclude evidence in proof of the will, is not lawful within the meaning of this rule.—Monmohini v. Banga Ohandra, 31 C. 357: 8 C. W. N. 197 (9 B. 241 and 21 B. 335 followed).

The terms of this rule are imperative and a Court cannot refuse to record a lawful agreement or compromise and to pass a decree in accordance therewith, merely because in its view it is too favourable to one of the parties.—Motiram v. Yesu, 22 B. 238. But the Court must see that the compromise is a lawful agreement before it is recorded and a decree is passed in accordance with the terms thereof and should look into the merits when necessary to determine its bona fides.

Where a compromise embodied terms the substantial portion of which was legal and enforceable and the rest illegal, the compromise should be accepted to the extent it is legal. An agreement that the money should be paid in equal instalments of crops each year and that in default of any instalment the whole debt would become due and be enforceable by the sale of the holdings of the defendant which were situated in the Sonthal Pergannas; held, that though the latter portion was illegal under S. 27 of the Sonthal Pergannas Settlement Regulation, the compromise should be accepted as to the former portion.—Baiju Lal v. Narayan, 109 I. C. 261 A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 495.

Where after the hearing of an appeal and when it is pending for delivery of judgment, a petition for compromise is presented, the Court has to receive the petition and pass the necessary orders thereon; Naziah v. Seshamma, 41 M. L. J. 385; 14 L. W. 514.

Where a compromise set up by one party is denied by the other.—When the parties to a suit have by an agreement adjusted the subject-matter of the suit, the Court can by an order made in the suit, order such agreement to be recorded and make a decree in accordance with it, notwithstanding that one of the parties to such agreement objects to the compromise being accepted.—Brojodurlabh v. Ramanath, 24 C. 903 (F. B.): 1 C. W. N. 597. See also Karuppan v. Ramasami, 8 M. 482; Buttonsey Lalji v. Pooribai, 7 B. 304; Appasami v. Manikam, 9 M. 103; Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 16 B. 202, Raghubir Singh v. Chanan Singh, 69 I. C. 395. See also Qadri Jahan Begam v. Fazal Ahmad, 50 A. 748; 110 I. C. 573: A. I. R. 1928 All. 494; 26 A. L. J. 691.

There can be no doubt that when one party alleges and the other denies that a suit has been settled by a lawful agreement out of Court, the Court has power to decide whether there has been such a settlement and if this question is decided in the affirmative, to grant a decree in accordance with the agreement. The Full Bench decision in 24 C. 903; 1 C. W. N. 597 (noted above) has been now given effect to by the alterations made in Or. XXIII, r. 3 from the language of S. 375 of the old Code.—Anadi Krishna v. Priya Shankar, 21 C. W. N. 366; 36 I. C. 375; Sital v. Lal Bahadur, 38 A. 75, 80-81; Ramjas v. Baruni, 116 I. C. 524; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 102.

Any party to a suit has the right to repudiate the action of an agent compromising it without his knowledge and consent, before an order is passed accepting the compromise as the final determination of the suit.—Monmohini v. Banga Chandra, 31 C. 357; 8 C. W. N. 197 (24 C. 908 (F. B.): 1 C. W. N. 597 referred to).

Where a party to a suit impugns an alleged agreement or compromise by which he would be bound, the Court must satisfy itself by evidence that the agreement or compromise is a lawful one, and that its terms have been consented to by the parties to the suit before it can proceed under this section (this rule), to record it and pass a decree in accordance therewith.—Sridharan v. Puramathan, 23 M. 101.

Where the first defendant transferred his interest in the subject-matter of the suit to the 2nd defendant and the plaintiff compromised the suit with him, the fact that the 1st defendant remained on the record did not give him sufficient interest to entitle him to raise any objection to the compromise or to appeal from the decree.—Shanker Bharati v. Narsinha, 54 I. A. 111 : 51 B. 442 (P. C.) : 101 I. C. 20 : A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 57 : 31 C. W. N. 649.

The rule was intended to meet cases where the parties having agreed to compromise subsequently fall out. The original Court has power to frame an additional issue to decide whether a lawful compromise has been effected between the parties subsequent to the institution of the suit.—Appasami v. Varadachari, 19 M. 419.

It was held, that under this rule, the Court had jurisdiction to determine whether, as a fact, the alleged agreement adjusting the suit had been made, and if it was satisfied that it has been made, to record it. Whether that fact should be tried on affidavit or by oral evidence, is entirely in the discretion of the Court.—Samibai v. Premji Pragji, 20 B. 304.

Compromise as between some of the parties—Effect on others.—The agreement between the plaintiff and one set of defendants cannot affect the position of the other defendants. They can neither be prejudiced by, nor can they take any advantage of, that agreement ; Musst. Bhagwati v. Jagdam Sahar, 2 P. L. T. 471.

Submission and award equivalent to "Adjustment of the suit by an agreement" within the meaning of this rule.—It was held by the Bombay High Court, in two earlier cases decided under the old Code, that where the matters in difference in a pending suit are referred to arbitration without the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the submission and the award may be treated as an "adjustment of the suit by agreement" within the meaning of S. 373 of that Code, and it may be recorded as an adjustment under that section ; Pragdas v. Girdhardas, 26 B. 76 ; Samibai v. Premji, 20 B. 304. The same High Court, in a case decided under this Code, took the same view and held that where in a pending suit the matters in difference are referred by the parties to arbitration without the intervention of the Court and an award is made, the provisions of para. 20 of Sch. II do not apply to the award, but that the submission and award may be recorded as an adjustment under this rule ; Harakhbai v. Jamnabai, 37 B. 639 : 19 I. C. 786. A contrary view was, however, taken by Sir Norman Macleod, J., in Shavakshaw v. Tyab Haji, 40 B. 386 : 37 I. C. 140, where it was held that, in view of the words "any other law for the time being in force" in S. 89 of the Code and having regard to the provisions of that section, a submission and an award made without the intervention of the Court could not be recorded as an adjustment under this rule, and that the proper procedure was under paras. 20 and 21 of Sch. II, and that accordingly the matter should be treated as an application under those paragraphs and treated accordingly. But in Manilal Motilal v. Gokal Das, 45 B. 245 : A. I. R. 1921 Bom. 310, Sir Norman Macleod and Mr. Justice Fawcett reconsidered the matter and held 'that the submission and award could properly be recorded under Or. XXIII, r. 3, and that the previous judgment of Mr. Justice Macleod, in Shavakshaw v. Tyab Haji, 40 B. 386 : 37 I. C. 140, was incorrect. It has recently been held by a Full Bench of the Bombay High Court in Chandrabasappa v. Basalingayya, 51 B. 908 (F. B.) : 105 I. C. 516 : 29 Bom. L. R. 1254 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 565 (following Manilal Motilal v. Gokal Das, 45 B. 245) that where in a suit, parties have referred their differences to

The Allahabad High Court in Gajendra v. Durga Kunwar, 47 A. 637 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1925 All. 503: 88 I. C. 763, and the Madras High Court, in Chinnakatasami v. Venkatasami, 42 M. 625, have taken the same view as the Bombay High Court in Manilal's case. See also Subbaraju v. Venkatramaraju, 51 M. 800 (F. B.): A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 1025: 55 M. L. J. 429: 113 I. C. 632; Narayandas v. Kalyanji, 24 N. L. R. 55: 107 I. C. 525: A. I. R. 1923 Nag. 173; Basao v. Jagannath, 14 O. L. J. 184: 131 I. C. 443: 8 O. W. N. 71: A. I. Banwari*, 49 C. 608. 69 I. C. 803. A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 404 has dissented from the decision in Manilal's case and held that the award cannot be enforced under Or. XXIII, r. 3, or under paras. 20 and 21 of Sch. II. The Lahore High Court in Hari Prasad v. Soogni, 3 L. L. J. 162 has followed the Calcutta High Court decision in Amar Chand v. Banwari. See also Kishore Chand v. Hans Raj, 104 I. C. 561: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 39; Grimoni v. Tarini, 55 C. 538: 47 O. L. J. 59. 33 C. W. N. 390. In Nihal Singh v. Ashtabakar, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 806, it has been held that where a literate person, having an award explained to him, signs it, he should be taken to agree to it and the award becomes a compromise; but an award as such is not an adjustment and therefore cannot be recorded.

Reference to arbitration does not preclude parties from compromising.—Even after a reference to arbitration is made in a pending suit, the parties are not precluded from settling the dispute amicably by mutual agreement, and it is not therefore necessary to cancel the reference before accepting the compromise; Aishan v. Abdulla, 99 I. C. 1002: A. I. R. 1927 Lah 156.

Power of Court to pass decree on partial award.—It was held that it was open to the Court to record the decision of the arbitrator and pass a decree thereon even though the award was partial. There is no rule of law that a partial award is invalid and the question has to be decided on the intention of the parties, the matter being a subject of contract between them; Alagu Pillai v. Veluchami, 74 I. C. 609: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 576: 45 M. L. J. 76: 32 M. L. T. (H. C.) 369.

Compromise extending beyond scope of suit.—A decree passed on a compromise cannot be regarded as ultra vires simply because it goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and contains other conditions ; if these other conditions are the considerations for the compromise of the subject-matter of the suit, they must be incorporated in the decree.—Gobinda Chandra v. Dwarka Nath, 7 C. L. J. 492. See also Charu Chandra v. Sambhu Nath, 3 P. L. J. 255 (F. B.) ; Hari Chand v. Maghi Mal, 95 P. W. R. 1917 : 78 P. R. 1917 : 12 P. L. R. 1917 ; Purna Chandra v. Nil Madhub, 5 C. W. N. 485 ; The Manager of Sri Meenakshi Devasthanam v.

Abdul Kasim, 30 M. 421 : 17 M. L. J. 255 and Joti Kuruvetappa v. Izari Sirusappa, 30 M. 478, where it has been held that a compromise decree containing reliefs not covered by suit is valid.

When the compromise has been effected between the parties, the proper course to follow is not to recite the compromise in the decree in its entirety but to pass a decree in accordance therewith only in so far as it relates to the suit; Jiban Krishna v. Ramesh Chandra, 38 C. L. J. 72: 65 I. C. 47. It cannot be maintained that unless the whole of the compromise is recited verbatim in the decree or produced verbatim in a schedule to the decree the compromise must be held to be not incorporated in the decree. Where the decree made a general reference to the terms of the compromise it had the same effect as that of mentioning the conditions in the schedule and all the terms of compromise should be deemed to have been incorporated in the decree. Held also that the compromise was not compulsorily registrable.—Malik Chand v. Juwan Mal, 11 L. L. J. 127: 118 I. C. 395: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 527. See also U Pon Nyun v. Ma Pan Me, 5 R. 662: 107 I. C. 163: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 43.

The words "so far as it relates to the suit" in Or. XXIII, r. 3 show that the terms which form the consideration for the adjustment of the matter in dispute, whether they form the subject-matter of the suit or not, become related to the suit and can be embodied in the decree.—Karu Mian v. Tejo Mian, 3 P. L. J. 43: 43 I. C. 282 (30 M. 478: 20 A. 171 referred to); Shambhasing v. Mani Lal, 33 Bom. L. R. 1457. The question whether the terms of a compromise decree go beyond the subject-matter of the suit is one which has to be determined on the facts of each particular case with reference to what the claim in the suit was and what was the nature of the compromise.—Ibid. A suit for injunction and damages against the defendant on the ground that he had been wrongly officiating as inamdar and made certain remissions without authority ended in a decree in terms of a compromise which contained a provision that the parties should officiate by turns. Held, that this clause was the main consideration for the compromise and intimately connected with it and so the Court had jurisdiction to incorporate it in the decree and that the clause was as much executable as the rest of the decree.—Bajirao v. Sakharam, 33 Bom. L. R. 468: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 295: 132 I. C. 434. See also Vishnu v. Ram Chandra, 34 Bom. L. R. 849: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 466: 139 I. C. 830.

Where the parties present a petition of compromise extending beyond the scope of the suit, the decree should be passed embodying the whole of its terms, but the decree should be passed in terms of such of the provisions agreed upon as relate to relief which the Court can give in the suit.—Venkatappa v. Thimma Nayanam, 18 M. 410.

The only compromise which a Court can in any case be bound to enforce under this rule is one which adjusts, wholly or in part, the suit; matters going beyond the suit cannot, if included in a compromise, be so enforced. A Court, refusing to grant a decree on a compromise going beyond the suit, cannot however, grant a decree modifying the terms of the proposed compromise, but must leave the parties to proceed with the suit as they may be advised.—Fajaleh Ali Miah v. Kamaruddin, 13 C. 170. See also Venkatappa v. Thimma Nayanam, 18 M. 410; Purna Chandra v. Panchkari, 5 C. L. J. 15; and Muthu Vijaya Raghunatha v. Thandavaraya, 22 M. 214.

By consent of parties and the leave of the Court, a suit may be amended to recover an increased claim, and there is nothing in the law which prevents the parties to a suit enlarging, by consent or compromise, the original claim, and getting or allowing a decree for a greater amount of money or land than that originally asked for.—Mohibullah v. Imami, 9 A. 229.

The terms of a solehnama decree in so far as they cover matters not involved in the suit, cannot be enforced in execution of the decree but the decree is evidence of the agreement entered into as regards those matters; Jagabandhu v. Hari Mohan, 62 I. C. 653.

Where there has been a lawful compromise, comprising matters in suit and matters extraneous to the suit, the compromise would be recorded, but the decree would be made in accordance with the compromise, in so far as it affects the suit. The parties came to terms and the suit for ejectment was dismissed in terms of a compromise under which it was agreed that the defendants should have the status and position of an occupancy tenant, but they should pay an enhanced rent. In a subsequent suit for arrears of rent on the basis of the above compromise; held, that the only portion of the compromise relevant to the suit was that which gave the defendants the status of an occupancy tenant, but the decree could not and did not declare anything as to what should be the future rent, the question of rent being extraneous to the suit, nor could the compromise be put in evidence to prove the agreement as to enhanced rent, it being unregistered.—Har Sarup v. Tohfa Singh, 111 I. C. 156: A. I. R. 1928 All. 534. A perfectly proper and effectual method of carrying out the terms of r. 3 of Or. XXIII would be for the decree to recite the whole of the agreement and then to conclude with an order relative to that part that was the subject of the suit or to introduce the agreement in a schedule to the decree, but the operative part of the decree should be confined to the subject-matter of the suit. The operative part can be enforced as between the parties to the suit under S. 47; any agreement as to matters extraneous to the suit can be enforced in a separate suit.—Vishnu v. Ramchandra, 34 Bom. L. R. 849: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 466: 139 I. C. 830. See also Hemanta Kumari v. Midnapore Zamindary Co., 46 I. A. 240 (246): 47 C. 485 (495) (P. C.): 53 I. C. 534: 37 M. L. J. 525: 17 A. L. J. 1117.

Compromise of doubtful claims.—An agreement entered upon a supposition of a doubtful right, though it afterwards comes out that the right was on the other side, shall be binding and the right shall not prevail against the agreement of the parties: for the right must always be on one side or the other and therefore the compromise of a doubtful right, is a sufficient foundation of an agreement.—Stapilton v. Stapilton, 2 White and Tudor's Leading Cases, 836 and 920, reported in 1 Atk. 2 (1739). See Moidin Kutti v. Beeti Kutti, 18 M. 38, in which compromise of doubtful claims by adult members was held binding on minor members. See also Helan Dasi v. Durga Das, 4 C. L. J. 323; Rameshwar v. Lachmi Prasad, 31 C. 111: 7 C. W. N. 689; Awadh Sarju Prasad v. Sita Ram, 29 A. 37; Pulliah Chetti v. Varadarajulu, 31 M. 474; Ram Nirunjun v. Prayag Singh, 8 C. 138 (141-142): 10 C. L. R. 66; Raoji v. Ratansi, 54 B. 696: 32 Bom. L. R. 389: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 431: 126 I. C. 305.

Compromise made by Hindu widow or daughter.—A compromise made by a Hindu widow or daughter is not binding on the reversioners.—Gobind Erishna v. Khunni Lal, 29 A. 497; Mahadei v. Baldeo, 30 A. 75;

Asharam v. Chandi Okurn, 13 C. W. N. 147; Imrit Konwur v. Roop Narain, 6 C. L. R. 76; Sheo Narain v. Bishen Prosad, 10 C. L. R. 337. But in Sankar Nath v. Bejoy Gopal, 13 C. W. N. 201, a different view seems to have been taken.

In addition to the cases noted above, see the rulings in 13 C. W. N. lxxxvi (86-n) under heading "The law relating to compromise."

Authority of counsel or pleader to compromise.—It is not competent to a counsel or pleader to enter into a compromise on behalf of his client without his express authority to do so.—Jagapati v. Ekambara, 21 M. 274; Garrison v. Rodrigues, 13 C. 115; and Nundo Lal Bose v. Nistarini Dassi, 27 C. 428; 4 C.W. N. 169. But a counsel has, by virtue of his retainer, and without further authority, full power to compromise a case on behalf of his client.—Jang Bahadur v. Shankar Rai, 13 A. 272 (F. B.).

When a case is compromised by a counsel or vakil on the instruction of a person who watches the case on behalf of the party: Held that, even if the person instructed has no authority to bind the party, the compromise is binding on the latter if he ratifies and acts on the compromise. The appointment of a counsel or a vakil by a party to conduct a case does not necessarily authorize him to make a binding compromise on behalf of his client unless there is express authority for it.—Bhut Nath v. Ram Lal, 6 C. W. N. 82.

Where a consent-decree is passed by a Court on confession of judgment by a party's pleader it must be assumed that the Court must have satisfied itself before the passing of the consent-decree that the pleader confessing judgment had authority on behalf of the party to act in the manner in which he did. The person challenging the authority must prove to the contrary by positive evidence.—Paran Kuer v. Manni Lal, A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 211; 121 I. C. 283.

See notes under S. 2 ante, and the cases collected in 13 C. W. N. at p. 86-n.

Compromise by minor's guardian.—A compromise by a guardian ad litem without the express sanction and approval of the Court will not bind the infant, and will be set aside at his instance.—Sharat Chunder v. Kartik Chunder, 9 C. 810; 12 C. L. R. 453; Rajagopal v. Muttupalem, 3 M. 103. See also Karmali v. Rahimbhoy, 13 B. 137; Manishankar v. Bai Muli, 12 B. 686; Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 26 B. 109; Shib Ram v. Abdul Ghani, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 792; 112 I. C. 695. In order to make a compromise binding on the minor, the guardian must ask and obtain the express permission of the Court.—Kalavati v. Chedi Lal, 17 A. 531. It must be proved that the attention of the Court was directly called to the fact that a minor was a party to the compromise and it ought to be shown by an order on petition or in some way not open to doubt that the leave of the Court was obtained.—Manohar Lal v. Jadu Nath, 33 I. A. 128; 28 A. 595 (P. C.): 4 C. L. J. 8; 10 C. W. N. 898; 16 M. L. J. 291; 8 Bom. L. R. 489. See also Govindasami v. Alagirisami, 29 M. 104 (26 B. 109 followed) and Krishna Pershad v. Romes Chunder, 8 C. L. J. 274; 13 C. W. N. 163. See, however, Amar Singh v. Narain Singh, 20 A. 98; Sitala Das v. Bhut Nath, 62 I. C. 688.

A certificated guardian can compromise a suit without obtaining the sanction of the District Judge, under S. 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890).—Biku Halwai v. Mohesh Halwai, 8 C. L. J. 266.

It was held that the agreement to refer to arbitration had not been lawfully entered into, as the submission related to the rights of minors, who were parties to the suit, and leave of the Court had not been obtained under S. 462, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 7), either before the submission to arbitration or after the award; and that the adjustment was in consequence not binding on the minors.—Lakshmana v. Chinnathambi, 24 M. 326.

A decree passed on a compromise with a minor is a nullity.—Ganganand v. Rameshwar, 6 P. 388 : 102 I. C. 449 : A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 271. So is a decree passed on compromise with a guardian ad litem of a minor after the latter has attained majority.—Sanyasi v. Lakshman Naidu, 51 M. 763 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 294.

When the guardian of a minor defendant consented to accept the oath of the plaintiff and the oath was taken and a decree was passed accordingly. Held that, the minor defendant was bound by the consent of his guardian, since there was no evidence of fraud or negligence on the part of the latter, although the Court had not sanctioned the agreement under S. 462, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 7).—Chengal Reddi v. Venkata Reddi, 12 M. 483

Where a compromise of a suit is made, it ought to be carried out by proper deeds and filed in Court, particularly where infants are concerned, so as to have the assent of the Court at the time, instead of its being totally concealed from the Court.—Abdool Ali v. Muzuffar Hossein, 16 W. R. 22 (P. C.).

Where a suit was compromised by the next friend of a minor plaintiff and it appeared that the infant had no separate interest from the adult members of the family, who took part in the compromise and assented to it and the Court having had its attention drawn to it, approved of it Held that, the compromise cannot be set aside.—Rameswar Pershad v. Ram Bahadur, 34 C. 70 (P. C.) : 11 C. W. N. 178 : 5 C. L. J. 175 : 17 M. L. J. 59.

Besides the cases noted above, see also the cases noted under Or. XXXII, r. 7.

Agreement to be bound by oath is not compromise—The mere agreement of one of the parties to a judicial proceeding to be bound by the oath of the other, is in itself no adjustment of the suit.—Konnappalen v. Perotta, 4 M. H. C. R. 422 and Ap. 3 ; Vasudeva Shanbog v. Naraina, 2 M. 356 ; Muhammad Zahur v. Cheda Lal, 14 A. 141. See also Thoyi Ammal v. Subbaroya, 22 M. 234.

Consent decree—Its effect and admissibility in evidence.—When a state of facts is accepted as the basis of a compromise, whereby a suit pending decision is amicably adjusted, and when the compromise is not vitiated by fraud, those who are parties to it and their privies should not afterwards be heard to say, for the purpose of reviving the controversy, that the real state of things was otherwise.—Nilakandhen v. Padmanabha, 18 M. 1 (P. C.), page 7 : 21 I. A. 128 (6 B. L. R. 202 : 13 M. I. A. 497, referred to). See also Nicholas v. Asphar, 24 C. 216, where it has been held that a consent-decree is as binding on the parties to the proceedings in which it is made as a decree made after a contentious trial (18 M. 1 (P. C.) followed; 6 B. L. R. 202 : 13 M. I. A. 497 referred to); and Laksmishankar v. Vishnuram, 24 B. 77.

A consent-decree does not stand on a higher footing than a contract between the parties; and the Court has jurisdiction to set aside a consent-decree upon any ground which would invalidate an agreement between the parties, and as it is essential to the validity of a contract that all contracting parties should be competent to contract, and as a person, who by reason of infancy is incompetent to contract, cannot make a contract within the meaning of the Contract Act, it follows that a compromise entered into with a minor is entirely void and cannot be given effect to in a Court of law; Ganganand v. Rameshwar Singh, 6 P. 388. 102 I. C. 449 : A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 271. A consent-decree or order is a mere creature of agreement and no greater sanctity can be placed upon the decree than upon the agreement itself.—Sasadhar v. Raghab, 125 I. C. 123 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 234.

Where the parties to a suit have by mutual agreement, made certain terms, and informed the Court of them, and the Court has sanctioned the agreement, and made an order in conformity with it, and the agreement has been acted upon, neither party is at liberty to resile from it.—Sheo Golam v. Beni Prasad, 5 C. 27. 4 C. L. R. 29.

A consent-decree in a previous suit to which the parties in a subsequent suit are parties, being a decree of a Court having jurisdiction over the subject-matter of the suit and over the parties, is admissible in evidence in the latter suit.—Lala Shih Lal v. Lala Gouri Prasad, 3 C. W. N. 174.

In a suit for rent, the plaintiff landlords are entitled to rely upon a compromise decree in a previous title-suit brought by a third party against the tenants and to which the landlords were parties. Such a compromise cannot be said to have been beyond the scope of the former suit merely because the money was payable to a third party and not to the plaintiffs in that suit, such a decree is inter partes and is admissible in evidence.—Ramdhar Koer v. Ramakanta, 9 C. L. J. 16 : 13 C. W. N. 217.

A bona-fide purchaser pendente lite is not bound by the consent-decree.—Kishory Mohun v. Mahomed Muzaaffar, 18 C. 188 (8 B. L. R. 474, and 8 C. 79 referred to).

A tenant compromised a case with his landlord agreeing to pay rent at a certain rate. The jote was sold in execution of the consent-decree and purchased by the defendant. In a suit by the landlord against the auction-purchaser, held, that the solehnama was binding upon the defendant, and he was liable for rent under its terms irrespective of any question as to whether the quantity of land mentioned therein was correct or not.—Satyendra Nath v. Nilkantha, 21 C. 383.

A compromise decree in so far as it gives effect to the settlement touching properties in suit operates as res judicata.—Gurdeo Singh v. Ohandrikah Singh, 5 C. L. J. 611 : 36 C. 193. But any thing which forms part of the compromise, but which is not part of the subject-matter of the suit, cannot be regarded as finally settled between the parties.—Purna Chandra v. Panchlari, 5 C. L. J. 15.

Petition of compromise, if admissible in evidence without registration.—It was held that it was not necessary that the deed of compromise should be registered in order to make it admissible in evidence.—Gupta Narain v. Bijoya Sundari, 2 C. W. N. 663; Chellaram v. Seth Kimatram, 14 S. L. R. 245; 61 I. C. 118.

It was held that the razinama, in so far as it was submitted to and was acted upon judicially by the Court, was itself a step of judicial procedure not requiring registration. The terms of it, constituted res judicata.—Kashmi Annex, 26 I. A. 1. See also Kali Charan v. Ram Chandra, 30 C. 783; Muthayya v. Venkataratnam, 25 M. 553, Birbadra v. Kalpataru, 1 C. L. J. 398; and Bindesri Naik v. Gangasaran, 25 I. A. 9 20 A 171 (P. C.): 2 C. W. N. 129, where it has been held that S. 17 of the Registration Act (III of 1877) does not apply to proper judicial proceedings, whether consisting of pleadings filed by the parties or orders made by the Court (followed in Gorinda Chandra v. Dwarka Nath, 7 C. L. J. 492: 35 C. 837 12 C. W. N. 849). See also Jasimuddin v. Bhuvan, 34 C. 456, where it has been held, that if a compromise goes beyond the subject-matter of the suit and a decree is made on the basis of it, the terms of the compromise are binding upon the defendant, although the decree in respect of the surplusage cannot be enforced in execution.

A petition of compromise, in so far as it relates to the properties in suit, does not require registration. But if it relates to extraneous properties, the parties must fall back upon the petition itself, which without registration cannot declare or create a title to immoveable properties.—Gurdeo Singh v. Chandrika Singh, 36 C. 193: 5 C. L. J. 611 (22 M. 508, 1 C. L. J. 388, 30 C. 783, 29 M. 365, 25 M. 7 and 553, referred to; 28 A. 78, disapproved).—Sashi Bhusan v. Hari Narain, 25 C. W. N. 990.

A razinama does not require registration only in regard to such of its stipulations and provisions as are incorporated with and given effect to by the order of the Judge—Patha Muthammal v. Esup Rowther, 29 M. 365 (22 M. 508 (P. C.), followed) But see Raghubans v. Mahabir, 28 A. 78, where it has been held that a compromise relating to the land in suit as well as relating to other lands, which had been incorporated in the decree of the Court in the previous suit, does not require registration.

When a suit is properly compromised but the adjustment consists of an agreement which is not incorporated in the Court is not bound by it. The Court is not bound by the terms of the compromise in so far as it relates to the portion of the compromise which lies outside the suit.—Musst. Arunbati v. Ram Nirangan, 2 P. L. T. 38: 59 I. C. 299. But see Har Sarup v. Tohfa Singh, 111 I. C. 156: A. I. R. 1928 All. 534 noted ante.

An unregistered compromise petition, which was the root of the plaintiff's claim to an increased rent and was filed in previous criminal proceedings, was not incorporated in the order in such proceedings. Held, it was not admissible in evidence in a latter civil suit.—Biraj Mohinee v. Kedar Nath, 35 C. 1010 : 12 C. W. N. 854.

Where a petition of compromise merely contained a recital of a previous oral agreement to lease, it does not require registration or stamp. It is evidence of oral agreement but not an agreement in itself.—Pitambar Gain v. Uddhab Mondal, 12 C. W. N. 59.

A compromise entered into between the parties to mutation proceedings before the Court of Revenue, purporting to vary the terms of a registered mortgage-deed is inadmissible in evidence.—Sadaruddin v. Chajju, 31 A. 13 (F. B.).

Stamped paper, whether necessary.—When the parties to a suit compromise, all that the Court is required to do under Or. XXIII, r. 3 is to ascertain that the suit has been adjusted by a lawful compromise, and to put the fact on record. It is not necessary that a solehnama on stamped paper should be filed.—Mahadeo Prasad v. Basdeo Tiwari, 29 I. C. 511.

Mode of enforcing compromise decree.—Where a compromise is filed in Court and a decree is passed in accordance therewith, the remedy for enforcement is by execution and not by a fresh suit.—Ram Mohan v. Lakhi Narayan, 4 B. L. R. A. C. 207 : 13 W. R. 151.

A compromise must be treated as a new and positive contract. A breach of its stipulations may be a ground in a suit for its enforcement, but not for a revival of the original right.—Ram Sahae v. Dhunookdharee, 1 W. R. 266 ; Bishnu Coomar v. Hurish Ohunder, 2 W. R. 209. See also Ameer Begum v. Noor Begum, 1 Agra (F. B.) 1.

Where a plaintiff is seeking to enforce by original suit a right of forfeiture contained in a consent decree passed under S. 375, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 3), whereby the status of a landlord and tenant is established between the plaintiff and the defendant, the Court is not precluded from granting such relief against forfeiture, as it might have granted had the status arisen from contract or custom. The difference between a consent-decree and the agreement of the parties themselves, where the one or the other is sought to be enforced, goes no further than this, that in the former case it would not be open to a party to question the accuracy of the decree, as expressing what at the time was the contract which had been made.—Krishnabar v. Hari Govind, 31 B. 15 (F. B.) : 8 Bom. L. R. 813 : 1 M. L. T. 370 (10 B. 485 dissented from).

Mode and effect of setting aside a consent-decree.—For the purpose of setting aside a consent-decree on the ground that it was obtained by fraud and misrepresentation, there are two available modes of procedure : (1) by suit, (2) by review of judgment sought to be set aside ; the latter being the more regular mode of procedure.—Aushootosh v. Taraprasanna, 10 C. 612 (6 B. L. R. 649, and 13 B. L. R. Ap. 11 followed). See also Biraj Mohini v. Chinta Moni, 5 C. W. N. 877. Followed in Rakhal Moni v. Adwytia Prasad, 30 C. 613 : 7 C. W. N. 419 ; Foolcoomary v. Woodoy Chunder, 25 C. 649, Mirali Rahimbhoy v. Rehmoobhoy, 15 B. 594 (affirming 13 B. 137) ; and Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 23 B. 620. See also Surendra Nath v. Hemangini, 34 C. 83, and Barkhamdeo Prasad v. Banarsi Prasad, 3 C. L. J. 119 (13 B. 137 followed ; 6 C. 687 ; 10 C. 357 ; 13 B. L. R. Ap. 11, dissented from). Where a decree is passed on adjudication, no separate suit lies to set aside the decree except on the ground of fraud; but where it is passed simply upon compromise, a suit lies upon grounds other than fraud—Biku Halwai v. Mohesh Halwai, 8 C. L. J. 266 (34 C. 83 followed).

Principles upon which the Court acts in setting aside compromises considered.—Ram Nirunjun v. Prayag Singh, 8 C. 138; 10 C. L. R. 66. The question whether time was of the essence of the contract embodied in the consent-decree would depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. Where a consent-decree in a suit for specific performance directed the plaintiff to execute a conveyance within a week from the date thereof and the defendant to pay the price within four months therefrom: held, the term did not make time essence of the agreement and that the defendant was bound to pay though the conveyance was executed only two weeks later.—Sasadhar v. Raghab, 125 I. C. 123; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 231.

It was held that the effect of setting aside a compromise was to remit both parties to their original rights and if the plaintiff was allowed to be heard against so much of the original judgment as was unfavourable to her, the defendant must similarly be heard against so much of the same judgment as was unfavourable to him.—Khajooroonissa v. Rowshan Jehan, 3 I. A. 291; 2 C. 184 (P. C.); 26 W. R. 36.

A suit will lie to set aside a compromise sanctioned by the Court under the compromise is set aside the former suit at the time 7: 8 C. L. R. 169.

The mode of setting aside a compromise decree is either by an application for review or by a suit to set it aside (10 C 612, referred to). When however, a party has elected to proceed by way of review and the matter has been decided against him, he cannot be allowed to have recourse to the remedy by way of suit. The decision in the review proceedings is res judicata—Ram Gopal v. Prasanna Kumar, 2 C. L. J. 508; 10 C. W. N. 529 (25 C. 571 and 28 C. 78 relied on).

Appeal.—An order under this rule recording or refusing to record a compromise is appealable under Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (m). The appeal is apparently intended to be the proper procedure for a party who wishes to of consent etc. Singh v. Khazan amdukt v. Basanti Bai, 119 I. C. 673; A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 275.

An appeal lies from an order recording an agreement, on the ground that (a) there was no compromise at all; Goculdas v. James Scott, 16 B. 202; Talamand v. Fateh Din, 88 P. B. 1918; (b) the compromise was not lawful; Goculdas v. James Scott, 16 B. 202; Sridharan v. Puramathan, 23 M. 101; or (c) the compromise contains matters extraneous to the suit; Yenkatappa v. Thimma, 18 M. 410; Pragdas v. Gudhardas, 26 B. 76; Manager of Sri Meenakshi v. Abdul Kasim, 30 M. 421. The fact that a decree has been passed in terms of the compromise does not preclude an appeal from the order recording the compromise, Megh Raj v. Tulsi Ram, 6 L. L. J. 187; 80 I. C. 696; A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 466; Satyannarayanamurthi v. Butcheyya, 87 I. C. 124; 48 M. L. J. 249; A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 606; Sabitri v. F. A. Savi, 8 P. 523; 10 P. L. T. 293; 117 I. C. 189; A. I. R. 1929 Pat.

ORDER XXIV.

PAYMENT INTO COURT.

1. The defendant in any suit to recover a debt or damages may, at any stage of the suit, deposit in Court such sum of money as he considers a satisfaction in full of the claim. [S. 376.]
- Deposit by defendant of amount in satisfaction of claim.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to S. 376, C. P. Code, 1882.

"Suit to recover a debt or damages."—A suit for injunction for obstruction to light and air is not a suit "to recover a debt or damages" within the meaning of this rule.—Luxumonnana v. Moroba, 21 B. 502.

"May deposit in Court."—A deposit in Court, before due date, of money due upon a bond, is not a valid tender of the debt.—Eshahug Molla v. Abdul Bari, 31 C. 183. A mere allegation of willingness to pay, made in the written statement, is not equivalent to payment in Court, and it does not stop interest from running; Haji Abdul v. Haji Noor, 16 B. 141. The provisions of Or. XXIV contemplate an unconditional deposit of a sum of money in Court by defendant, which sum of money is at the disposal of the decree-holder if he desires to withdraw it; K. M. Bose & Co. v. Allen Bros., 97 I. C. 479.

Order in execution directing defendant to pay money into Court—Appeal by plaintiff against the order—Payment into Court by defendant—Refusal of plaintiff to take money out of Court pending appeal—Attachment of the money so paid by another creditor of the defendant and payment of the money to him—Subsequent application by plaintiff in execution for payment of the money. Held, that the plaintiff's refusal to take money out of Court did not justify the Court in treating the money as the defendant's, and in ordering it to be paid to another creditor of the defendant.—Lakshman Dadaji v. Damodar, 15 B. 681. Where money is paid to the credit of a suit or ear-marked for a suit, the money belongs to the plaintiff in the event of his success and cannot pass to the general creditors of the person who pays it in or to any persons who claim under him.—Maganlal v. A. Aziz, 5 B. 753 : 106 I. C. 77 : A. I. R. 1927 Rang. 278 (following 36 B. 156 and 41 M. 1053).

2. Notice of the deposit shall be given through the Court by the defendant to the plaintiff, and the amount of the deposit shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid to the plaintiff on his application. [S. 377.]
- Notice of deposit.

COMMENTARY.

This rule corresponds to S. 377, C. P. Code, 1882, with the omission of the words "in writing" which occurred in the old section after the word 'notice.'

The omission seems to have been made in view of S. 143 of the present Code which requires that all orders and notices under the Code shall be in writing. Form of notice is given in Sch. I, Appendix H, Form No. 3.

"Unless the Court otherwise directs."—The words "unless the Court otherwise directs" mean that the Court has a discretion to refuse to allow the plaintiff to withdraw the money deposited by the defendant, and it should be exercised only when there are conflicting claims. But where the defendant admits liability in part and deposits the money, the money cannot be kept in Court.—Dwarka Dass v. Girish Chunder, 26 C 766; 3 C. W. N. cclxii (262-n). See also Haji Abdul Rahman v. Haji Noor Mahomed, 16 B. 141.

3. No interest shall be allowed to the plaintiff on any sum deposited by the defendant from the date of the receipt of such notice, whether the sum deposited is in full of the claim or falls short thereof. [S. 378.]

Interest on deposit not allowed to plaintiff after notice.

COMMENTARY.

This rule exactly corresponds to S. 378, C. P. Code, 1892.

Tender and payment—Effect of refusal to accept.—A mere offer by a debtor by letter to pay an amount cannot be treated as a tender either in law or in equity. In order to stop interest, a strict tender should be proved.—Kamaya v. Devapa, 22 B 440.

A plea of tender before action must to stop interest be accompanied by a payment into Court after action, otherwise the tender is ineffectual.—Haji Abdul Rahman v. Noor Mahomed, 16 B. 141; Arunachala v. Govindaswami, (1931) M. W. N. 1226; 34 L. W. 843 (relying on 38 M 959, 16 B 141, 34 C. 305). In the case of mortgages, the rule is different and a tender alone has the effect, under S. 84, T. P. Act, of stopping interest from the date of tender.—Ibid.

If rent is tendered and not accepted, then deposit should be made under S. 61 of the B. T. Act, otherwise the defendant will be liable for interest.—Raja Ransgit Singha v. Bhagabutty Charan, 7 C. W. N. 720. But see Jagat Tarini v. Naba Gopal, 34 C. 305; 5 C. L. J. 270, where it has been held that a valid tender if improperly refused, stops interest. In this case the question of a valid tender has been fully discussed.

Deposit in Court, before due date, of money due upon a bond, is not a valid tender of the debt.—Prayag v. Shyam Lal, 31 C. 138

Payment to one of several co-mortgagees, who gives a discharge without the knowledge of the other mortgagee, is a full discharge of the entire mortgage debt.—Barber Maran v. Ramana Goundan, 20 M. 461; 7 M. L. J. 269. But this case has been doubted in Ahinsa Bibi v. Abdul Kader, 25 M. 26, where it has been held that the principle is not applicable to the case of co-heirs, who are not joint promisees.

Where the defendant does not deposit the amount admitted by him in Court, the running of interest on the plaintiff's claim is not stopped.—Rakkhal v. Baikuntha, 32 C. W. N. 1082; A. I R. 1923 Cal. 874; 117 I. C. 687.

Execution proceedings.—A decree-holder is not bound to accept a sum tendered to him in part satisfaction of his decree. He is entitled to require payment of the principal and interest in full, and the refusal to receive a part of what is due to him will not deprive him of his right to interest.—Kunhya Singh v. Tooydun Singh, 7 W. R. 20. But where money is paid into Court by the judgment-debtor in satisfaction of a decree, interest on the decree will cease from the date of payment in proportion to the amount paid, although such payment may not in fact be the whole amount due under the decree; Amtul v. Muhammad Yusuf, 40 A. 125.

Order XXIV, rr. 1, 2 and 3 do not apply to proceedings in execution. Primarily they would seem to apply to original suits in which, in order to save costs, an opportunity is given to the defendant to deposit so much of the claim as he admits in Court, and in such a case, the plaintiff will not be allowed costs; K. M. Bose & Co. v. Allen Bros., 97 I. C. 479.

4. (1) Where the plaintiff accepts such amount as satisfaction in part only of his claim, he may prosecute his suit for the balance; and, if the Court decides that the deposit by the defendant was a full satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff shall pay the costs of the suit incurred after the deposit and the costs incurred previous thereto, so far as they were caused by excess in the plaintiff's claim.

Procedure where plaintiff accepts deposit as satisfaction in part.

(2) Where the plaintiff accepts such amount as satisfaction in full of his claim, he shall present to the Court a statement to that effect, and such statement shall be filed and the Court shall pronounce judgment accordingly; and, in directing by whom the costs of each party are to be paid, the Court shall consider which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation. [S. 379.]

Illustrations.

(a) A owes B Rs. 100. B sues A for the amount, having made no demand for payment and having no reason to believe that the delay caused by making a demand would place him at a disadvantage. On the plaint being filed, A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim, but the Court should not allow him any costs, the litigation being presumably groundless on his part.

(b) B sues A under the circumstances mentioned in illustration (a). On the plaint being filed, A disputes the claim. Afterwards A pays the money into Court. B accepts it in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should also give B his costs of suit, A's conduct having shown that the litigation was necessary.

(c) A owes B Rs. 100, and is willing to pay him that sum without suit. B claims Rs. 150 and sues A for that amount. On the plaint being filed A pays Rs. 100 into Court and disputes only his liability to pay the remaining Rs. 50. B accepts the Rs. 100 in full satisfaction of his claim. The Court should order him to pay A's costs.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 379, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal changes only.

The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if," the word "only" has been added in sub-rule (1) after the words, "in part" and the word "shall" has been substituted for the word "must" which occurred in the old section.

In sub-rule (2) the words "where" and "pronounce" have been substituted for the words "if" and "pass" respectively.

"Prosecute his suit for the balance."—Under this rule, the plaintiff is entitled to draw out the money paid into Court by the defendant as part satisfaction of his claim, and may prosecute the suit for the balance, notwithstanding the objection of the defendant.—Dwarka Dass v. Girish Chunder, 26 C. 766 : 3 C. W. N. cclxii (262).

Apportionment of costs.—At the settlement of issues the defendant paid money into Court, which plaintiff took out in part satisfaction of his claim and raised an issue as to damages. The plaintiff subsequently accepted the sum paid in full satisfaction, and withdrew the suit. Held that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs up to and including those of the settlement of the issues.—Ardesir Limji v. Sorabji, 1 B. H. C. R. 70.

In cases, not being suits to recover a debt or damages, where money is paid into Court, the principle underlying this rule ought to regulate the discretion of the Court in directing the payment of costs.—Luxumon v. Moroba, 21 B. 502.

Under sub-rule (2) the Court must, before making an order as to costs, distinctly find which of the parties is most to blame for the litigation;—Jayanti Kistappa v. Jayanti Chinnappa, 13 I. C. 188.

ORDER XXV.

SECURITY FOR COSTS.

1. (1) Where, at any stage of a suit, it appears to the Court that a sole plaintiff is, or (when there are more plaintiffs than one) that all the plaintiffs are residing out of British India, and that such plaintiff does not, or that no one of such plaintiffs does, possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property in suit, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any defendant, order the plaintiff or plaintiffs, within a time fixed by it, to give security for the payment of all costs incurred and likely to be incurred by any defendant.

[S. 380, PARA. 1.]

(2) Whoever leaves British India under such circumstances as to afford reasonable probability that he will not be forthcoming whenever he may be called upon to pay costs shall be deemed to be residing out of British India within the meaning of sub-rule (1).

[S. 382.]

(3) On the application of any defendant in a suit for the payment of money, in which the plaintiff is a woman, the Court may at any stage of the suit make a like order if it is satisfied that such plaintiff does not possess any sufficient immoveable property within British India.

[S. 380, PARA. 2.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 380, C. P. Code, 1882, with the following alterations:—The words "where at any stage of suit" have been substituted for the words "if at the institution or" the words "other than the property in suit," words "independent of the property in suit," "fixed by it," have been substituted for the "ordered by the order," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to S. 382, C. P. Code, 1882.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 380, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

The words "suit for payment of money" have been substituted for the words "suit for money" which occurred in the old section; and the words

r. 1.

"independent of the property in suit," which stood after the words "British India" in the old section have been omitted.

"The Committee have deleted the last words of this sub-rule because the nature of the suit excludes the possibility of the property in suit being immoveable."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Except the change of some words and phrases, no change seems to have been made in the meaning.

Object of the rule.—The object of the rule is to provide for the protection of the defendants in cases specified in the rule where, in the event of success, they may have difficulty in realizing their costs from the plaintiff; Prem Chand, In the goods of, 21 C. 832.

When security for costs may be required from plaintiff.—A plaintiff may be required to give security for the costs of a defendant: (1) where the plaintiff is residing out of British India, or, where there are more plaintiffs than one, all the plaintiffs are residing out of British India and none of the plaintiffs has sufficient immoveable property within British India other than the property in suit; (2) where the plaintiff is a woman, and where her suit is for the payment of money, and she does not possess sufficient immoveable property within British India.

If a party to a suit or appeal desires to apply for security for costs, he must do so promptly: otherwise the order made on such an application may have the effect of stifling the suit or appeal and should not be passed.—Sachindra v. Secretary of State, 129 I. C. 319: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 520.

Meaning of the words "immoveable property" in this rule.—Leasehold property is "immoveable property" within the meaning of this rule.—Ullman v. Justices of the Peace for Calcutta, 7 B. L. R. Ap. 60.

The provisions of S. 34, Act VIII of 1859 (this rule), were not intended to apply to a case where the plaintiff brought a suit for administration and partition of property in which they were entitled to a share, the extent of the share being in dispute.—Russick Lall v. Jadub Ram, 10 B. L. R. Ap. 25.

"Resides."—The "residence" intended in this rule, is residence under such circumstances as will afford a reasonable probability that the plaintiff will be forthcoming when the suit is decided.—Mahomed Shuffli v. Laldin Abdula, 3 B. 227.

When an inhabitant of a foreign territory sues within British territory, it is imperative on the Court to demand security from him for the payment of all costs that may be incurred by the defendant in the suit, even though the defendant also is a resident of a foreign territory.—Koroonamoyee v. Ooma Churn, 12 W. R. 465.

The plaintiff who resided in a Native Indian State arrived in January 1921 in Bombay to file a criminal complaint against the defendants. In July of the same year he filed a suit in the Bombay High Court against the defendants. The defendants having applied in October 1921, under Or. XXV, r. 1, C. P. Code, for security for their costs from the plaintiff; held, making the order, that inasmuch as the plaintiff was staying in Bombay only for the purpose of taking proceedings against the defendants, such residence of his would not enable him to escape the application of Or. XXV, r. 1 of the C. P. Code.—Hanif Maula Baksh v. Kulsam, 46 B. 589: 64 I. C. 703: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 299.

Where the plaintiff, a resident of a Native State, was for a great length of time residing in British India and filed a suit and there was no reason to think that he will not be forthcoming when the suit is decided; held, that the plaintiff was not "residing out of British India" and, consequently no order for security for costs should be made under Or. XXV, r. 1.—Mahomed Habibulla v. Amila Automobile Co, 32 Bom. L. R. 411: 125 I. C. 719: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 220.

"British India."—For the purposes of this rule, Aden is within British India; Aden Laws Regulation, 1891, S. 2; but the Cantonment of Secunderabad is not within British India; Hossain Ali v. Abid Ali, 21 C. 177; nor is the Civil Station at Rajkot; Queen-Empress v. Abdul Latib, 10 B. 186; nor is the Cantonment of Wadhwan; Emperor v. Ohimanlal, 14 Bom. L. R. 876 (dissenting from Triccam v. B. B. & C. I. Ry. Co, 9 B. 244); nor are the Kathiawar States; Hem Chand v. Azam, 33 I. A. 1: 33 C. 219: 10 C. W. N. 361: 3 C. L. J. 395: 3 A. L. J. 250: 16 M. L. J. 115: 8 Bom. L. R. 129.

Leaving British India.—Where a plaintiff leaves the country before the case is decided, the proper course for the defendant is to apply to the Court to take security for costs before the case is decided, and if no security be furnished, the Court will pass judgment against the plaintiff by default. But if the defendant neglects, the appellate Court cannot call for security for the costs of the lower Court.—In the matter of the petition of Calcutta and S. E. Ry. Co., 8 W. R. 217.

In a suit for money where the plaintiff is a woman.—Sub-rule (3) has been enacted in view of the provisions of S. 56 of the Code, which provides that no woman can be arrested or detained in the Civil prison in execution of a decree for the payment of money.—Prem Chand, In the goods of, 21 C. 832. Suits which are not exclusively for money, but which will result in a decree for money on the relief sought, come within the purview of this rule.—Sonabai v. Tribhawan Das, 32 B. 602: 10 Bom. L. R. 337.

A suit to recover certain specified articles and money or to recover the value thereof, is a suit for money within the meaning of this rule. The term "suit for money" as there used being wider than a suit for debts.—Digumbari v. Aushootosh, 17 C. 610.

A suit for dissolution of partnership and account and for the recovery of the stridhanam property belonging to a female plaintiff is not a suit for payment of money within Or. XXV, r. 1 (3), C. P. Code.—Amulyasundari v. Syama Sundar, 68 I. C. 607. A suit for the administration of an estate consisting largely of immoveable property is not a suit for the payment of money but in fact a suit relating to immoveable property though it may ultimately be necessary to sell the estate and distribute the proceeds in money.—Amina Bibi v. K. K. Moideen, 3 R. 211: 89 I. C. 620: A. I. R. 1925. Rang. 300.

A suit for recovery of ornaments or in the alternative for their value is a suit for payment of money.—Anandamoi v. Gokul, 16 C. W. N. 763.

The power given to the Court under this rule, to order security for costs, is discretionary, and one which the Court ought or ought not to exercise according to the circumstances of each case, and unless it is shown that the exercise of the power is necessary for the protection of the defendant, the Court ought not to interfere. In a suit by a female plaintiff against the executors for the amount of legacy under a will, the Court would not order the plaintiff to give security for costs, although she was not in possession of any immoveable property within British India. The meaning of the words "may" and "shall" explained.—Prem Chand In the goods of, 21 C. 832. In Shama Sundary v. Rash Behary, 3 C. W. N. 753, it has been held that the Court has a discretion in exercising the powers conferred by this rule, and it will not order the plaintiff to give security for costs unless grounds are shown tending to show that the defence is true. In Bai Porebai v. Devji Meghji, 23 B. 100, it has been held that save in exceptional cases, neither an infant female plaintiff nor her next friend ought to be required to give security for costs (followed in Man Bai v. Lodd Govind Doss, 18 M. L. J. 155). In Bomanji v. Nusserwanji, 27 B. 100, the Court, distinguishing 23 B. 100, directed the plaintiff to give security for defendant's costs. But in the exercise of its discretion, the Court will not as a general rule require security for costs from a woman-plaintiff if the result of such an order will be practically to defeat the suit where it has been instituted bona fide and has become almost ripe for hearing.—Namubai v. Daji Govind, 35 B. 421 : 8 I. C. 1055.

Ground for requiring security for costs—The mere fact that the plaintiff is a poor man and has parted with a portion of his interest in the subject-matter of the suit for the purpose of obtaining funds to carry on the suit, is no sufficient ground for requiring security for the costs from him; it is otherwise where he is not the real litigant, but a mere puppet in the hands of others.—Khajah Assenoolajoo v. Solomon, 14 C. 533. In Ram Coomar v. Chunder Canto, 4 I. A. 23 : 2 C. 233 (P. C.) it has been held that, where it appears that the plaintiff in a suit is in fact suing on behalf of another person who is not a party to the record, the ordinary practice is to require security for costs and to stay the proceedings till it is given.

Very special grounds should be required before a suitor in forma pauperis, is required to give security for costs. A mere suggestion that somebody else is financing is not such a ground; Ma Saw v. Maung Shwe Gon, 2 Bur. L. J. 78 : 75 I. C. 309 : A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 244.

A plaintiff will not be compelled to give security for costs merely because he is a pauper or a bankrupt.—E. D. Murray v. East Bengal Mahajan Flotilla Co. Ltd., 46 C. 156 : 22 C. W. N. 1018 : 48 I. C. 622

the benefit of his creditors, he cannot be said to be a nominal plaintiff [Covell

v. Taylor, (1885) 31 Ch. D. 34 and Cook v. Whellok, (1890) 24 Q. B. D. 658 rel. on].

Mere poverty is no ground for requiring an appellant to give security for the costs of the appeal.—Maneckji Limji v. Goolbai, 3 B. 241; Seshayyengar v. Jainulavadin, 3 M. 66; Jogendro Deb v. Funindro Deb, 18 W. R. 102; and Lakhmi Chand v. Gatto Bai, 7 A. 542.

In a suit by the representatives of the testator to enforce the due performance of charitable and religious trusts in which they are not personally interested, the plaintiffs ought to be required to give security for costs.—Brojo Mohun v. Hurro Lal, 5 C. 700: 6 C. L. R. 58.

The fact that the appellant has no money of her own is not in itself a sufficient ground for demanding security for costs. When it appeared that the appeal was not vexatious (the appellant's suit having been decreed by the Court) the fact that the appellant had relations who have money to pay was not a sufficient ground for demanding security.—Mathuranath v. Priyasashi, 19 C. W. N. 446: 28 I. C. 598.

No security for costs ought to be demanded from a person who has been allowed to sue as a pauper. This rule does not apply to such a case.—Hafizan v. Abdul Karim, 12 C. W. N. 163: 7 C. L. J. 312 (17 W. R. 68 referred to; followed in Ma Gum v. Tha Hnin, 36 I. C. 320).

✓✓ Where plaintiff is a pauper.—A person allowed to sue as a pauper ought not to be required to furnish security for costs, as the effect of the order would be to render nugatory the permission to sue as a pauper; Hafizan v. Abdul Karim, 12 C. W. N. 163: 7 C. L. J. 312; Nusseerooddeen v. Ujjul, 17 W. R. 68; Ma Gum v. Tha Hnin, 36 I. C. 320; Har Kaur v. Chamba, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 960: 113 I. C. 911.

Where plaintiff is a minor.—Except in exceptional cases neither a minor plaintiff nor his next friend ought to be required security for costs; Bai Porebai v. Devji Meghji, 23 B. 100; Main Bai v. Lodd Govind Doss, 18 M. L. J. 155; even if both the minor and his next friend are residing out of British India and have no immoveable property in British India; Bhai Shankar v. Mulji, 35 B. 339.

Liability of person standing surety.—A person who offered himself as surety, on behalf of a plaintiff who had been directed to give security for costs, gave a bond making some property liable for the costs, and if it was not sufficient, making himself personally liable. The plaintiff's suit having been dismissed with costs, the defendant sought to enforce the surety bond. Held, he was not bound to proceed against the plaintiff first, but could straight enforce the surety bond, Ata Husain v. Mustafa Husain, 92 I. C. 546: A. I. R. 1926 All. 657.

Mode of enforcing surety bonds.—The proper mode of proceeding to put a bond to secure the costs of an appeal in suit, is to move upon affidavits, showing a breach of the conditions of the bond, for a rule nisi, calling upon the obligor and securities to show cause why the Court should not order that the bond be assigned to some person named in the rule.—Poynor Bibee v. Nujjoo Khan, 5 C. 437: 5 C. L. R. 524.

For the proper mode of enforcing a surety-bond; see notes under S. 145.

Appeal from an order under this rule.—Ordinarily there is no appeal under the Code from an order under this rule, but an appeal lies against an order by a Judge sitting on the Original Side of the High Court requiring security from a woman under this rule. Such an order is a judgment within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent.—Sanabai v. Tribhovan Das, 32 B. 602; 10 Bom. L. R. 337. See also Seshagiri v. Nawab Askur Jung, 26 M. 502.

Revision.—Where an order is erroneously made for security for costs to which this rule does not apply, e. g., where an order is erroneously made for security for costs against a woman in a suit which is not "a suit for payment of money" within the meaning Or. XXV, r. 3 the case is one of an illegal exercise of jurisdiction and the High Court has power to interfere in revision.—Amina Bibi v. K. K. Moideen, 3 R. 211; 89 I. C. 620; A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 300.

2. (1) In the event of such security not being furnished within the time fixed, the Court shall make an order dismissing the suit unless the plaintiff or plaintiffs are permitted to withdraw therefrom.

Effect of failure to furnish security

(2) Where a suit is dismissed under this rule, the plaintiff may apply for an order to set the dismissal aside, and, if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that he was prevented by any sufficient cause from furnishing the security within the time allowed, the Court shall set aside the dismissal upon such terms as to security, costs or otherwise as it thinks fit, and shall appoint a day for proceeding with the suit.

(3) The dismissal shall not be set aside unless notice of such application has been served on the defendant. [S. 381.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 381, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "under the provisions of S. 373, or shown good cause why such time should be extended, in which case the Court may extend it" which occurred in the concluding portion of para. 1 of the old section have been omitted. The reasons for the omissions are that the words "under the provisions of S. 373," are superfluous; and the remaining words have been omitted in view of S. 148 of the present Code by which the Courts are authorized in their discretion, to enlarge time.

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to para. 2 of the old section

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 3 of the old section with the omission of the words "in writing" which occurred in the old section after the word "notice" in view of S. 142 of the present Code, which provides that all orders or notices shall be in writing.

Paragraph 4 of the old section which contained the provision for limitation for an application to set aside a dismissal for default to furnish security for costs, has been omitted, as Art. 163 of the present Limitation Act IX of 1908, contains the period of limitation (30 days).

Res judicata.—Dismissal of a suit on default of plaintiff to give security for costs, does not operate as res judicata.—Rungrav Ravji v. Sidhi Mahomed, 6 B. 482. See also Hariram v. Lalbai, 26 B. 637.

Notice.—No order affecting a party should be made without notice to him, calling upon him to show cause why the order should not be made—Sirajul Haq v. Khadim Husain, 5 A. 380. See also Timmu v. Deva Rai, 5 M. 265.

Appeal.—Held by the Full Bench, that an appeal lies from an order passed under this rule, dismissing a suit for failure of the plaintiff to furnish security for costs as ordered, such order being the "decree" in the suit.—Williams v. Brown, 8 A. 108 (F. B.). See also Or. XLIII (n).

Limitation.—An application by a plaintiff for an order to set aside a dismissal for failure to furnish security for costs must be made within 30 days from the day of dismissal.—Limitation Act, 1908, Art. 163.

The Court has power to enlarge time for furnishing security.—In the matter of the petition of Soorjumukhi, 2 C. 272; Burjore v. Bhagana, 11 I. A. 7: 10 C. 557 (P. C.); Fazulunnissa v. Mulo, 6 A. 250; Badri Narain v. Sheo Koer, 17 I. A. 1: 17 C. 512 (P. C.) (1 A. 687 overruled). See, however, In the matter of Lalla Gopeenath, 2 C. 128 and Foneendro Deb v. Jogendro Deb, 23 W. R. 220.

ORDER XXVI.

COMMISSIONS.

COMMISSIONS TO EXAMINE WITNESSES.

I. Any Court may in any suit issue a commission for the examination on interrogatories or otherwise of any person resident within the local limits of its jurisdiction who is exempted under this Code from attending the Court or who is from sickness or infirmity unable to attend it. [S. 383.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 383, C. P. Code, 1882. The rule contained in this Order are to be read with the provisions of Ss. 75, 76, 77 and 78 of the Code, which are subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed by the rules of this Order.

Meaning of the words "may issue" in rr. 1 and 4.—Ordinarily in the case of a witness not under the control of the party asking for a commission, who resides beyond the limit fixed under Or. XVI, r. 19 (b), a commission should issue as a matter of right, unless the Court is satisfied that the party is merely abusing the Court's authority to issue process. It is not for the Court to decide whether the party will be benefited or not, that is a matter entirely for the party.—Jagannatha Sastri v. Sarathambal Ammal, 46 M. 574; 44 M. L. J. 202; 71 I. C. 530 A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 321.

A Judge has the power to alter an order of his predecessor with regard to the issue of a commission. Such an order is not a final one and it relates more to the routine of the case than to the merits of the case.—Chettyar Firm v. Maung Ba Oht, 128 I. C. 589; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 315.

When Court may issue a commission.—The Courts should not allow witnesses to be examined on commission without adequate reason. The grounds upon which Courts can issue a commission to examine witnesses are ordinarily those specified in Or. XXVI, r. 1.—Panachand v. Manoharlal, 42 B. 136; 20 Bom. L. R. 1; 43 I. C. 729.

The issue of a commission for the examination of a witness is discretionary with the Court, and where it appeared that the lower Court in the proper exercise of its discretion refused to issue a commission for the examination of a pardanashin lady, the defendant in the suit, and where it also appeared that the refusal to issue the commission did not affect the merits of the case, both the High Court and the Judicial Committee declined to interfere with the discretion exercised by the lower Court.—Akikunnissa Bibi v. Ruplal Das, 25 C. 807 (P. C.). See also Mowji v. Nemchand, 23 B. 626.

A commission should not be issued for the examination of the head of a mutt, though it may be alleged by him that it is derogatory to a person in his position to appear personally in Court as a witness; Veerabadran v. Nataraja, 28 M. 23.

For further notes, see S. 132, ante.

"Who is exempted under this Code."—Amongst those exempted from personal appearance are women who according to the custom and manners of the country, ought not to be compelled to appear in public (see S. 132). Such women should be examined on commission, even though they may have appeared in public before.—Mohesh Chunder v. Manick Lall, 26 C. 650; Chamatkar v. Mohesh, 26 C. 651; Balakeshwari v. Jnanananda, 45 C. 697: 22 C. W. N. 197: 26 C. L. J. 319: 41 I. C. 610; Rahimannessa v. Shaik Halim, A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 814; and though an allegation of immorality is made against them.—Benodini v. Kala Chand, 5 C. W. N. cccxxii (232). A lady belonging to a high family, who has entirely abandoned the protection of the purdah and who has no intention of resuming it, ought not to be compelled, having regard to her social position and the feelings of her class, to appear in the witness-box, but should get the privilege of being examined on commission; Solomon v. Jyotsna, 45 C. 492: 22 C. W. N. 147: 44 I. C. 157. But a purdanashin woman has no right to be examined on commission as a witness at a place of her own choice or where she happened to be at the time of the issue of the commission; Khitipati v. Dharani, 48 C. 448.

For further notes, see S. 132, ante.

"Sickness or infirmity."—If sickness or infirmity is alleged, the character and gravity of that sickness or infirmity have got to be assessed and the risk consequent upon a refusal to issue a commission will have to be taken into consideration. At the same time the importance of having the witnesses present before the Court, the advantages that would follow from their examination and cross-examination in the presence of the Court, and the emergency which might arise of having them confronted or identified, should not be altogether lost sight of; Panch Kari v. Panchanan, 39 C. L. J. 593: 84 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 971.

Arbitration.—It is competent to the Court to issue a commission for the examination of witnesses, even in cases referred to arbitration under Sch. II: Rabiabai v. Rahimabai, 7 Bom. L. R. 560.

2. An order for the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness may be made by the Court either of its own motion or on the application, supported by affidavit or otherwise, of any party to the suit or of the witness to be examined. [S. 384.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This section corresponds to S. 384, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations. The words "an order for the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness" have been substituted for the words "such order" which occurred in the old section. No other change has been made.

Scope.—It is competent to a Court acting under Or. XXVI, r. 2, C. P. Code, to issue a commission for the examination of witnesses acting suo moto; Nanhu v. Abdus Samud Khan, 4 A. 81 (Rev.).

An application for the issue of a commission should be supported by some reason other than the mere distance of place of residence of the witness. If the witness is a stranger, a commission will be right and reasonable, but not if he is a servant of the party applying.—Amrith Nath v Dhunput Singh, 20 W. R. 253.

When a party elects to go to trial without the evidence of a particular witness who at the time was ill, the Court will be justified in refusing to issue a commission for examining him when the application for that purpose is made at the end of the trial.—Pramatha v. Bhagwandas, 35 O. W. N. 705.

There is nothing in law to authorise a commissioner to try the issue referred to him with the aid of assessors.—Municipal Board, Etah v. Asghari Jan, 30 A. L. J. 117; A. I. R. 1932 All. 264. There is nothing in the Code authorising a Court to issue a commission to a person directing him to hear a woman sing and then to report not only as to her skill as a singer, but also as to her occupation in life as far as it could be deduced from her musical talents.—Ibid.

When the party obtains a commission for the purpose of examining a witness on interrogatories, he is entitled to get a copy of the cross-interrogatories filed by the opposite party before such commission issues. It is reasonable that each side should know the questions the other proposes to put.—Application of Bibi Saran, 10 S. L. R. 210·39 I. O. 944.

3. A commission for the examination of a person who resides within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court issuing the same may be issued to any person whom the Court thinks fit to execute it. [S. 385.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 385, C. P. Code, with some verbal changes. The words "the same" which stood after the words "to execute" in the old section have been omitted.

Applicability.—A Deputy Collector is competent to depute an officer of his Court to take evidence on commission if the place where the witness is examined is within his jurisdiction.—Ram Chand v. Kameenee Debea, 10 W. R. 236.

Where the examination of a witness was taken de bene esse pursuant to an order of Court and the examination took place before the Deputy Registrar, though no commission was issued to him under Or. XXVI, r. 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure, and no objection, notwithstanding it, related to jurisdiction was taken before the examination commenced, held, that the objection was capable of being waived; Dina Nath v. Metharam Navalras & Co., 33 C. L. J. 577.

4. (1) Any Court may in any suit issue a commission for the examination of—

Persons for whose examination commission may issue.

(a) any person resident beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction;

(b) any person who is about to leave such limits before the date on which he is required to be examined in Court; and

(c) any Civil or Military Officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without detriment to the public service.

(2) Such commission may be issued to any Court, not being a High Court, within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such person resides, or to any pleader or other person whom the Court issuing the commission may appoint.

(3) The Court on issuing any commission under this rule shall direct whether the commission shall be returned to itself or to any subordinate Court. [S. 386.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 386, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The alterations made in sub-rule (1) are merely verbal.

In sub-rule (2) some important alterations have been made. The words "or the Court of the Recorder of Rangoon" and the words "subject to any rules of the High Court in this behalf," which occurred in para. 2 of the old section, have been omitted. The other changes are merely verbal.

"May."—For the meaning of the word "may," see notes under Or. XXVI, r. 1.

"Court may issue a commission."—The issue of a commission to examine a witness or witnesses in a suit is a matter of judicial discretion. An application for the examination of a witness on commission will not be granted unless the Court is satisfied: first, that the application is made bona fide; secondly, that the issue in respect of which the evidence is required is one which the Court ought to try; thirdly, that the witness to be examined would give evidence material to the issue; and fourthly, there are some good reasons why the witness cannot be examined in Court.—A. E. Saleji v. A. Musaji Saleji, 19 I. C. 643; Huree Das v. Meer Moazzum, 15 W. R. 447; 8 B. L. R. Ap. 16; Mowji v. Nem Chand, 23 B. 626; Panchkari v. Panchanan, 39 C. L. J. 598; 84 I. C. 9; A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 971. The last case has been distinguished and disapproved in Ramalinga v. Sankaranarayana, 114 I. C. 843; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 192, where it has been held that the power of the Court to issue commissions is not more restricted under Or. XXVI, r. 4 than under Or. XXVI, r. 1; and while considering the medical evidence that the witness is too ill to attend Court it cannot be said that a more stringent view should be taken if the witness is living at such a distance from the Court that he is not compellable by summons than if he lived within its jurisdiction. The words "may issue a commission" are used in this rule in the same sense in which they are used in r. 1, and mean "is given authority to issue a commission"; Jagannatha Sastri v.

Sarathambal Ammal, 46 M. 574 : 44 M. L. J. 202 : 71 I. C. 530 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 321.

The examination of a witness on commission as provided under this rule stands on a slightly different footing from the issuing of summons to a witness under Or. XVI, r. 1. In the former case the matter is in the discretion of the Court whereas in the latter case summonses are to be issued as a matter of course though the Court may not permit an adjournment of the case if the application is made too late.—Baikunth v. Jai Kishun, 51 A. 341 : 113 I. C. 266 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 449.

The provisions of this rule are exhaustive and where the conditions enumerated therein exist, it is competent to the Court to issue the commission. But the Court has power to prevent abuse of its process. An order under this rule is appealable.—Veerabadrin v. Nataraja, 23 M. 23 (7 W. R. 349 referred to).

An order under this rule for the examination a witness on commission, can only be made on one of the grounds mentioned in the Code, and a Court usurps a jurisdiction not vested in it by law when it orders such examination in the absence of any such ground. The High Court can interfere with such order.—Somasundaram v. Manicka Vasaka, 31 M. 60.

A commission will be granted as a matter of course to examine a material witness who is out of the jurisdiction of the Court if the witness cannot be brought into Court by its ordinary process. But the commission will not be granted for the examination of a party, except under very strong circumstances, such as serious illness.—Dowett v. Wile, Ind. Jur. N. B. 357.

When the appellate Court remands a case for the examination of an expert in handwriting, it is not obligatory on the part of the trial Court to examine the expert before it. It has a discretion in the matter, but it will not do this simply for the reason that the expert resides beyond its jurisdiction as it is possible to obtain the appearance of a handwriting expert in any Court by payment of the necessary fees.—Gondur v. Tulsiaram, 120 I. C. 335 : A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 27.

A party to a suit has a legal right to apply to a Court for a commission to examine a witness. The Court should grant the application as a matter of course, without considering whether the applicant can derive any advantage therefrom.—Huree Das v. Moazzum, 15 W. R. 447 : 3 B. L. R. Ap. 16.

A de bene esse examination of a witness about to leave the jurisdiction of the Court must be taken by the Court, unless the parties consent to the evidence being taken under a commission.—Edwards v. Muller, 5 B. L. R. 252.

Discretion as to granting of commission, how should be exercised—A Court of appeal should exercise great caution when invited to interfere with an order of the trial Court made with jurisdiction in the exercise of its discretion as to granting a commission. Each case depends on its own circumstances and no rule as to the exercise of that discretion could be laid down. If the appellate Court deems that the discretion was wrongly exercised, if it deems that the case in all its bearings was not laid before the Court below, if it sees that the Court below misapprehended an important part of the case, the Court will interfere. The High Court in revision set aside the order of the lower Court, where that Court overlooked the distinction which should be observed in the treatment of an application by the defendant as distinguished from a similar application by the plaintiff and ordered the defendant to be examined on commission on payment of costs to the plaintiff for cross-examination; Kumar Sarat Kumar v. Ram Chandra, 35 C. L. J. 78: 68 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 42.

The plaintiff and the defendant in a suit instituted in the Court of the District Munsif of Devakottah were both residents of Rangoon, and the defendant was served with summons at Rangoon. The plaintiff was allowed to examine himself on commission at Rangoon. An application by the defendant to examine himself on commission at Rangoon was, however, disallowed by the Munsif on the ground that his demeanour could not be watched by the Court. Held, that the Munsif acted with material irregularity in disallowing the application and that his order was liable to be set aside in revision Visvanathan v. Somasundaram, 46 M. L. J. 131: 78 I. C. 407: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 541.

Commission to examine plaintiff or defendant as his own witness—The Court will refuse the application of a plaintiff asking for a commission to examine himself unless a very strong case is made out; Ross v. Woodford, (1894) 1 Ch. 38, Nawab Syed Muhammad Akbar Ali v. Herbert Francis, 3 P. 863: 84 I. C. 993: A. I. R. 1925 Pat. 125. But where an application is made by a defendant, and specially by a defendant who lawfully resides out of the jurisdiction of the Court, according to the ordinary course of his life and business, the Court will not regard the case with the same strictness as the case of the plaintiff who has instituted his suit in a forum of his choice; Ross v. Woodford, (1894) 1 Ch. 38; New v. Burns, (1894) 64 L. J. Q. B. 104; Kumar Sarat Kumar v. Ram Chandra, 35 C. L. J. 78: 68 I. C. 9: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 42; Visvanathan v. Somasundaram, 46 M. L. J. 131: 78 I. C. 407: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 541.

Appeal.—It has been held by the Bombay High Court that an order directing the issue of a commission for the examination of a witness, is not a "judgment" but an interlocutory order, and therefore no appeal lies from such order; Miya Mahomed Haji v. Zorabi, 11 Bom. L. R. 241: 2 I. C. 157. On the other hand, it had been held by the Madras High Court that an order refusing to issue a commission or directing issue of the same for the examination of a witness is a "judgment" within the meaning of Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, and is therefore appealable; Marutha Muthu v. Krishnamachariar, 30 M. 143 (dissented from in Tuljaram v. Alagappa, 35 M. 1 (F. B.)). No appeal lies from an order refusing a commission.—Mahomed v. Hoosain, 3 R. 293: 90 I. C. 967: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 290; Abdul Gaffor v. Official Assignee, 3 R. 605: 93 I. C. 211: A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 64; Toremull v. Kunj Lall, 31 C. L. J. 162: 55 I. C. 766.

Revision.—No revision lies from an order refusing examination on application; Nihal Chand, 102 I. C. 821: A. I. R. 1927 Sind 55 C. 748: 32 C. W. N. 128: 106 I. C. 880:

7. Where a commission has been duly executed, it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the Court from which it was issued, unless the order for issuing the commission has otherwise directed, in which case the commission shall be returned in terms of such order; and the commission and the return thereto and the evidence taken under it shall (subject to the provisions of the next following rule) form part of the record of the suit. [S. 389.]

Return of commission with depositions of witnesses.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 389, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

"Duly executed."—The examination of witness under a commission is of the same nature as an examination in open Court. The return should show on the face of it that the oath was administered to the Commissioner as well as to the interpreter.—Pran Krishna v. Biswa Nath, 8 B. L. R. Ap. 101.

It is the duty of the party obtaining a commission for the examination of witnesses to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the attendance before the Commissioner of the witnesses he desires to examine.—Lekhraj v. Palee Ram, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 210.

A party who has not joined in a commission is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses who are examined under the commission.—Gregory v. Dooley Chund, 14 W. R. (O. J.) 17.

Evidence taken on commission, though not read over and signed by the witnesses, is not alone sufficient to make it inadmissible; but evidence taken on commission without full opportunity for effectual cross-examination is inadmissible in evidence.—J. Boisogomoff v. The Nahapiet Jute Company, 5 C. W. N. ccxxx.

"Shall form part of the record."—Evidence taken on commission shall subject to r. 8, form part of the record in the suit and any party is entitled to refer to such evidence as a matter of record.—Man Gobinda v. Sashindra Chandra, 35 C. 28.

8. Evidence taken under a commission shall not be read as evidence in the suit without the consent of the party against whom the same is offered, unless—

When depositions may be read in evidence.

- (a) the person who gave the evidence is beyond the jurisdiction of the Court, or dead or unable from sickness or infirmity to attend to be personally examined, or exempted from personal appearance in Court, or is a civil or military officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without detriment to the public service, or

- (b) the Court in its discretion dispenses with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in clause (a), and authorizes the evidence of any person being read as evidence in the suit, notwithstanding proof that the cause for taking such evidence by commission has ceased at the time of reading the same. [S. 390.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 390, C. P. Code, with the addition of the words "or is a civil or military officer of the Government who cannot, in the opinion of the Court, attend without detriment to the public service" in Cl. (a), which did not occur in the old section.

"Shall not be read as evidence."—The evidence taken on commission on behalf of the defendant was allowed to be read on behalf of the plaintiff without the deposition being put in as part of plaintiff's case as being part of the record.—Nistarini Dass v. Nundo Lall, 26 C. 591: 3 C. W. N. 239-n. (Dwarka Nath v. Gunga Daji, 8 B. L. R. Ap. 102, followed). See also Man Govinda v. Shashindra Chandra, 35 C. 28 and Dhanuram v. Murli, 36 C. 566: 13 C. W. N. 525: 11 C. L. J. 150. According to the practice prevailing on the Original Side of the High Court of Calcutta, evidence taken on commission is not treated as evidence in the suit until the same has been tendered and read as evidence in the suit by the party on whose behalf it has been taken; Kusum v. Satya Ranjan, 30 C. 799: 7 C. W. N. 784; Hemanta Kumari v. Banku Behari, 9 C. W. N. 794.

"A party who wishes to rely on evidence taken on commission, must either obtain the consent of the party against whom he offers it, to its being read as evidence in the suit, or have it read as evidence in the suit after complying with one of the conditions laid down in Or. XXVI, r. 8 (a) or persuade the Court in its discretion to dispense with the proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in (a) and to authorize the evidence being read as evidence in the suit, notwithstanding the want of proof of the existence of such circumstances. Each of the alternatives involves a request to have the evidence read as evidence in the suit (9 C. W. N. 794 not approved).—Jetha Devji v. Nirmal Singh, 122 I. C. 396: A. I. R. 1930 Sind 89.

The practice in the mofussil Courts of treating the deposition of a witness examined on commission as evidence in the case even though it has not been formally tendered is not only consistent but also in strict accordance with the provisions of rr. 7 and 8.—Nistarini Dass v. Nundolal, 26 C. 591: 3 C. W. N. 239-n; Man Govinda v. Shashindra Chandra, 35 C. 28; Dhanuram v. Murli, 36 C. 566: 13 C. W. N. 525: 11 C. L. J. 150. This last case has been commented upon and it has been held that r. 8 of Or. XXVI is as much a rule of procedure in the mofussil as anywhere else; and that the mere fact that a commission has been ordered for the examination of a witness is no reason whatever for any one to look at it unless it is found that at the time of the hearing, sickness or infirmity or other reason prevents the witness from giving his evidence in the ordinary way.—Phanindra v. Promotho, 55 C. 748 : 32 C. W. N. 128 : 106 I. C. 880 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 421. See also Satish Chandra v. Satish Kantha, 28 C. W. N. 327 : 73 I. C. 391 (P. C.) : A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 73.

Where the defendant did not consent to the evidence of the plaintiff taken on commission being read against him, but on the contrary insisted all along upon the presence of the plaintiff in Court, it is for the plaintiff to show that he was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court at the time when the evidence was going to be read in Court ; Mahim v. Naba Chandra, 44 C. L. J. 288 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 43 : 98 I. C. 852.

A Court may legally refuse to hear the deposition of a defendant taken by commission read in evidence, where there is no evidence to prove that the defendant was from sickness unable to attend personally at the time of the trial, or the Court declines to dispense with the proof of such circumstances.—Prithee Bullubh v. Haradhun, 22 W. R. 331.

Evidence taken in the absence of the other side is not enough to make the deposition of a witness taken on commission inadmissible.—Ram Chand v. Kameenee, 10 W. R. 236

Where no objection was taken in the trial Court to the admission of the deposition of a witness taken on commission, the lower appellate Court cannot reject that evidence on the ground that the witness was not ill, for the trial Court could have cured the defect if it was proved that the witness was able to depose in Court.—Girish Chandra v. Ramsaran, A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 591.

Commissioners appointed by the Court are officers of the Court.—Rajendra v. Ram Narayan, 3 B. L. R. Ap. 3.

Admissibility of documents.—Where a document is produced before a Commissioner and no objection is taken as to its admissibility, no such objection can be taken before the Court hearing the suit to which the commission is returned.—Struthers v. Wheeler, 6 C. L. R. 109. But if the admissibility of the documents is objected to before the Commissioner on any ground, the party so objecting is not precluded from objecting to its admissibility at the trial on any other ground.—Ralli v. Gaukim Swee, 9 C. 939.

“Unless the Court in its discretion dispenses.”—The Court has a discretion under Cl. (b) of r 8 to dispense with proof of any of the circumstances mentioned in Cl. (a) and allow evidence on commission being read as evidence in the suit, but it is necessary that the Court must have applied its mind to the matter and exercised its discretion ; Mahim v. Naba Chandra, 44 C. L. J. 288 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 43 : 98 I. C. 852.

COMMISSIONS FOR LOCAL INVESTIGATIONS.

9. In any suit in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any mesne profits or damages or annual net profits, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court :

Commissions to make local investigations.

Provided that, where the Local Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commission shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules. [S. 392.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 392 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

The words "or proceeding" which stood after the words "in any suit" and the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person" which occurred in the old section after the words "annual net profits" have been omitted. The word "proceeding" has been omitted in view of S. 141 of the Code, which covers proceedings; and the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person," have been omitted probably to enlarge the Court's power, as they imposed upon the Court a condition precedent to the issuing of a commission.

Commission to make local investigation.—A Commission for the purpose of local investigation is to issue only when such investigation cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person.—Raikishori v. Kumudini, 15 C. L. J. 138.

It is within the discretion of a Judge to order or refuse a local enquiry.—Rash Beharee v. Saheb Roy, 12 W. R. 76, and Graham v. Lopez, 1 W. R. 141.

When neither of the parties desire it, the Court has no power to direct an investigation, remand the case for that purpose, but is bound to take evidence before it.—Jatinga Valley Tea Company v. Chera Tea Company, 12 C. 45.

In a suit for possession of land, the boundaries of which were disputed, the Sub-Judge directed a local investigation, but the District Judge refused to allow the investigation to proceed. Held, that the District Judge had no authority to stay an investigation. All that the District Judge was entitled to do under Circular Order No. 25, dated 25th August, 1870, was to express his opinion as to the propriety or otherwise of the Sub-Judge's order. The Subordinate Court should record a proceeding according to the High Court Circular Order, and forward a copy of the proceeding to the District Judge.—Nirod Krishna v. Wooma Nath, 4 C. 718; 3 C. L. R. 234

Where a Commissioner was appointed to ascertain the amount of mesne profits and in ascertaining that he entered into the question of possession of the land, recorded evidence and arrived at a finding and the Court acted on the evidence so recorded; held, that it was not within the scope of the Commissioner's duty to decide the question of possession and take evidence and that the procedure adopted by the lower Court was ultra vires and illegal.—Saraswati v. Suraj Narain, 9 P. L. T. 258; 109 I. C. 641; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 278.

In suits for enhancement of rent, it is a proper course of procedure to appoint an Amin to make a local investigation in order to enquire as to the description of the land and as to the rates paid in the neighbourhood for similar land.—Gaur Chandra v. Rash Behari, 1 B. L. R. S. N. 1 : 10 W. R. 43.

A commission for local investigation cannot be issued after the evidence is closed and the case is ready for judgment.—Sundar Lal v. Sita Ram, 51 I. C. 399.

The practice of the Courts in the Malabar District of issuing several commissions in succession and arriving at valuations regarding the compensation to tenants from the several reports is to be condemned.—Kunjuni Nair v. Achuta Menon, 55 M. 656 : 138 I. C. 114 : (1932) M. W. N. 56 : A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 482 : 62 M. L. J. 629.

Necessity and object of local investigation.—The object of local investigation is not so much for the purpose of collecting evidence which can be taken in Court, as to obtain evidence which, from its peculiar nature, can only be obtained on the spot.—Bhawane Dutt v. Beer Singh, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 196.

An Amin should be appointed to hold a local investigation only when it is necessary to inspect the land which is the subject of dispute, to take maps of localities, to obtain information with regard to the physical features of the place, to identify the land in maps with parcels which are the subject of the suit, and to identify the maps with one another with the aid of objects to be found on the land. When, however, any fact can be proved by evidence taken otherwise than on the spot, that evidence ought to be taken by the Court itself in a regular manner and not by an Amin.—Bindabun Chunder v. Nobin Chunder, 17 W. R. 282.

The local investigation referred to in this rule presupposes the existence on the record of independent evidence which requires to be elucidated, but it does not authorise a Court to delegate to a Commissioner the trial of any material issue which it is bound to try.—Sangili v. Mookan, 16 M. 350.

Local investigation by Judge.—A judgment based on knowledge gained by the Judge during local inspection is illegal. An inspection which a Judge makes should be used by him only to test the accuracy and value of the evidence let in. He should not without submitting himself to the test of cross-examination, make his knowledge the sole evidence for determining the question raised before him.—Syed Ahmed Sahib Shutari v. Magnesite Syndicate Ltd., 29 I. C. 60 : 17 M. L. T. 387 : 2 L. W. 460.

Order XXVI, r. 9 gives no power to a Court to itself hold a local inspection. A Judge can hold a local inspection for the purpose of understanding the evidence and for no other purpose; Dwarka Prasad v. Makhulal, 52 I. C. 241. It is doubtful whether under the provisions of the present C. P. Code it is legal for the Court in person to hold any local investigation. In case the Court holds any local investigation, the result of such investigation should be made a matter of record and should be used only for the purpose of enabling the Judge to understand the evidence; Anant Lal v. Gokul Sahu, 35 I. C. 344. See also Raikishori v. Kumudiny, 15 C. L. J. 138.

Order XXVI, r. 9 does not prohibit a local inspection by the Judge himself in person. The effect of the omission, in r. 9 of the present Code, of the words "and the same cannot be conveniently conducted by the Judge in person," which occurred in the old section is that, under the new Code, the issue of the commission is not restricted to cases where the Judge is unable conveniently to make the investigation himself. It therefore follows that a Judge has power to make a local investigation in person in any case in which he sees fit to do so, or he can issue a commission for local investigation if he thinks fit, irrespective of the question whether it is convenient for himself to conduct the investigation in person; Sabapathy v. Perumal, 44 M. 640: 62 I. C. 790: 40 M. L. J. 554.

Appeal from orders directing local investigation and power of appellate Court to interfere.—No appeal lies from the order of a Judge directing a local investigation by an Amin.—Bahadur Ali v. Bhabo Soonduree, 7 W. R. 425.

is a mere discretion in which no speci. . . . Lopez, 1 W. R. 141; Poorna Persad v. Ch. . . . Vath v. Pearceemonee, 1 W. R. 196; and Raj Kishin v. Huro Mohun, 5 W. R. 248.

An appellate Court should not interfere with the result of a local investigation or enquiry except upon very clearly defined and sufficient grounds.—Sarat Sundari v. Prasanna Kumar, 6 B. L. R. 677: 13 M. I. A. 607: 15 W. R. 20 (P. C.); Monkee Dumber v. Monkee Bhullundur, 15 W. R. 423.

Interference by a Court with a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds is to be deprecated (13 M. I. A. 607; 15 W. R. 423; 60 I. C. 434 followed). It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner for local investigation whose report is unquestioned, whose careful and laborious execution of his task was proved by his report and who had not blindly adopted the assertions of either party; Rani Amrita Sundari v. Munshi Serajuddin, 28 C. W. N. 318.

An appellate Court ought not to reverse the decision of a first Court based upon a very careful inspection of the land in dispute, except under a very clear and strong opinion upon the evidence, and upon recording sufficient and satisfactory reasons for such opinion.—Brindaban v. Dhunnunjoy, 18 W. R. 452.

The deputation of an Amin to ascertain the respective liabilities of several judgment-debtors is not an improper course for a Court to pursue, and at all events is not a ground for interfering in special appeal.—Kristo Chunder v. Brojo Mohun, 22 W. R. 183.

Commission report.—In a suit as to a right of way, a Commissioner was appointed under this rule, to prepare a map of the locality in question. Held, that the statements of the village officers made to him with regard to the right of way were inadmissible in evidence.—Shittwa v. Bhimappa, 24 B. 43: 1 Bom. L. R. 493.

The report of a Commissioner appointed by a Court of Revenue to ascertain the amount of actual collection in a suit for profits under S. 164 of the Agra Tenancy Act, is admissible in evidence ; Bakhtawar Lal v. Sheo Prasad, 39 A. 694 : 15 A. L. J. 766 : 42 I. C. 720.

A decree based on an incomplete report of the Commissioner should be set aside.—Shankar v. Firm of Nanhe Mal, A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 736.

10. (1) The Commissioner, after such local inspection as he deems necessary and after reducing to writing the evidence taken by him, shall return such evidence, together with his report in writing signed by him, to the Court.

(2) The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record ; but the Court or, with the permission of the Court, any of the parties to the suit, may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation.

(3) Where the Court is for any reason dissatisfied with the proceedings of the Commissioner, it may direct such further inquiry to be made as it shall think fit. [S. 393.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 393, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The words " or as to his report " have been added in the concluding part of sub-rule (2).

Sub-rule (3) is new. There was no similar provision in the old section.

Functions and powers of Commissioners appointed to hold local investigation.—The functions of an Amin appointed to hold a local investigation under the Civil Procedure Code discussed.—Iswar Chandra v. Jugal Kishor, 4 B. L. R. Ap 33 : 21 W. R. 281-note.

It is the duty of the Amin to return his report to the Court ordering the investigation.—Lalljee Sahoo v. Rajendur Pertab, 14 W. R. 418.

It is not the intention of the Legislature to allow witnesses to be examined out of Court by Amins, except with reference to points for the determination of which local investigation is required.—Sadhoo Sing v. Ramanoograha, 9 W. R. 83.

A Civil Court is not warranted in deputing its functions to an Amin, and an Amin is bound not to go beyond the points referred to him for inquiry.—Ram Dhun v. Ram Monee, 21 W. R. 280 ; Iswar Chandra v. Jugal Kishor, 4 B. L. R. Ap. 33 : 21 W. R. 281-note ; and Buroda Churn v. Ajoodhya Ram, 23 W. R. 286.

Where an Amin was improperly deputed to inquire into the fact of possession; held, that even if the Court's order was improper, the deputation of the Amin was legal, and the evidence taken by him was legal evidence to be considered on its own merits.—Ram Churn v. Surubjeet, 9 W. R. 494.

An Amin deputed to make a measurement under the provisions of the Bengal Rent Act, 1869, is bound to record the state of things as actually existing, and has no business to record what he thinks ought to be the rates.—Bala Thakoor v. Meghburn Singh, 14 W. R. 269.

An Amin, when directed to make an inquiry as to mesne-profits, ought not, in the execution stage of the suit, to enter into inquiries as to the dates of possession, which must be taken to have been determined by the decree.—Bejoy Gobind v. Kallee Prosunno, 16 W. R. 294.

Report of local investigation and its evidentiary value.—(a) Report of a Commissioner appointed by the Court.—When a Court Amin is appointed a Commissioner under the Civil Procedure Code, his report is only evidence on the points to which the commission refers; any report he chooses to make on any other point is no legal evidence in the case.—Abdool Ali v. Mullick Sudderoosdeen, 14 W. R. 493; and Doorgachurn v. Nem Chand, 24 W. R. 208.

Report of a Commissioner not challenged in the first Court and acted upon by it without further corroborative evidence, should be accepted as correct by the appellate Court. The appellate Court ought not to go behind that report and examine materials on which the report was founded and come to a different finding.—Govinda Priya v. Ratan Dhupi, 4 C. L. J. 37; 10 C. W. N. 88-n.

The report of an Amin upon a local investigation is sufficient evidence to support a decree, if it is believed by the Court, and considered sufficient without further evidence to corroborate it.—Seetaram v. Ram Narain, 6 W. R. 51.

The report of the Civil Court Amin and the depositions taken by him are admissible as evidence under the provisions of this rule.—Nathoo v. Ghunnessam, 8 W. R. 267; Abdool Gunnee v. Bhuttoo Sheikh, 22 W. R. 350; Bhyrub Roy v. Nobin Roy, 9 W. R. 601; Dole Gobind v. Chamoo Singh, 10 W. R. 312; Sarat Chandra v. Collector of Chittagong, 2 B. L. R. Ap. 3. But depositions of the witnesses without the report of the Amin are not admissible in evidence.—Debnarayan v. Kali Das, 6 B. L. R. Ap. 70; 14 W. R. 397 (affirming on appeal, 13 W. R. 412).

When the local inquiry is ordered by a lower Court, and evidence is taken by an Amin, and a report is made, the return made by the Amin becomes legal evidence which the appellate Court is not justified in refusing to consider.—Rajnath v. Doorga Lall, 12 W. R. 136; and Sheo Doyal v. Hodgkinson, 24 W. R. 342.

An Amin's report is evidence without any specific documents corroborating his finding.—Eshan Chunder v. Huree Churn, 2 W. R. 278; and Gouree Narain v. Modhoo Soodun, 2 W. R. Act X, 1.

The report of an Amin under S. 73 of Act X of 1859 is receivable as evidence, and a decision can be legally based upon it.—Sujan Koor v. Heitoo, 1 N. W. P. H. C. R. 243.

Where an order for a local investigation is not objected to by the opposite party at the time it is made, the Court is justified in receiving as evidence the report of the Commissioner, and the depositions taken by him, being a part of the record.—Ram Rukha Roy v. Gobind Doss, 15 W. R. 291.

The report of an Amin as to local inquiry upon a matter which no personal inspection on his part could decide, and in regard to which the depositions of parties acquainted with the place could afford proper information, was held to be in no way irregular, simply by reason of his having examined witnesses on the spot.—Sheo Narain v. Budh Singh, 11 W. R. 423.

The report of an Amin, and the depositions of parties and witnesses examined by him, must be considered, even though the Court exercised its discretion unwisely and wrongly in giving him too extensive powers.—Umbica Churn v. Goluck Chunder, 9 W. R. 596.

Unless there be good grounds for dissenting and differing from reports made upon local investigations, the Courts, even in India, and, a fortiori; the Privy Council in England, in dealing with boundary questions, ought to give great weight to, and be guided by them.—Ram Gopal v. Gordon, Stuart & Co., 17 W. R. 285 (P. C.); 14 M. I. A. 453; Protab Chunder v. Surnomoyee, 19 W. R. 361.

As to the value of a local inquiry report made by a competent official.—See Sarut Sundari v. Prossonno Kumar, 6 B. L. R. 677 (P. C.); 13 M. I. A. 607; 15 W. R. 20 (P. C.); Kalee Doss v. Khetto Pal, 17 W. R. 472; and Chunder Coomar v. Joy Chunder, 19 W. R. 213.

It is necessary that oral testimony should be taken in order to effect a measurement, or that an Amin's report must have depositions attached to it to make it legal evidence.—Chundermonee v. Nilambur, 7 W. R. 43.

When an Amin's map is received in evidence by consent and admitted by both parties to be topographically correct, the Court is entitled to look at the Amin's report as explanatory of the map.—Mahomed Anwar v. Raj Chunder, 17 W. R. 521.

It is not compulsory on the appellate Court to direct a fresh investigation when it is dissatisfied with the map and report of the Amin. No error of law is committed in deciding on the other evidence before it.—Manindra v. Saradindu, 27 C. L. J. 599; 23 C. W. N. 593; 45 I. C. 408 (30 C. 291 referred to).

in law in taking an-hem the sole basis and other evidence on the

In a suit for rent upon a jungleburi lease, which provided that the area of land brought under cultivation should be ascertained by measurement, the only evidence of measurement was a report of an Amin in a previous suit, the accuracy of which was not proved in the present suit. Held, that the report itself was not admissible in evidence.—Denobundhu v. Nistarini, 12 C. L. R. 50.

Amin giving credit to local rumour.—Held, that the Judge had no right to take the report of an Amin who gave credit to the defendant's witnesses on account of something he heard in the neighbourhood, but that he ought himself to have examined those witnesses.—Tweedie v. Poorno Chunder, 12 W. R. 138.

(b) Report of Amin on question of possession.—The report of an Amin, however valuable in clearing up difficulties as to the identity and position of land, is, generally speaking, of no value in determining questions connected with the possession of land in dispute in past times.—Pran Nauth v. Mrinmoyee, W. R. Sp. Number (F. B.) 39. Amin's report held not sufficient of itself to prove possession.—Ameenooddeen v. Asgar Ali, 8 W. R. 464. A Judge is bound to take notice of, and pronounce an opinion upon, evidence taken by an Amin as to possession.—Jannabee Chowdhrair v. Collector of Mymensingh, 8 W. R. 287.

(c) Report of local investigation by Judicial Officers.—Under the present Code, the Court has power to inspect any property or thing at any stage, see Or. XVIII, r. 18.

A Munsif's report of a local investigation, when not shown to be substantially erroneous in its data or reasoning, should convey the greatest weight as evidence of the facts it sets forth.—Wise v. Ameroonissa, 3 W. R. 219.

Facts observed by a Judge, but not proved by any evidence, should be taken notice of, and the Judge should put the result of his investigation upon paper.—Joy Coomar v. Bundhoo Lall, 9 C. 363 : 12 C. L. R. 490.

The information derived from a local investigation by a Judge, though not evidence as defined in the Evidence Act, is a matter which he can take into consideration, in order to determine whether a fact is "proved" within the meaning of the Act.—Dwarka Nath v. Prosunno Kumar, 1 C. W. N. 682 (9 C. 363 referred to).

A Judge is at liberty himself to inspect the property in dispute and inform himself by the observation of his senses of matters which may help him in understanding the evidence and in deciding the case, and specially such matters which do not require scientific knowledge. He can do so without giving notice to the parties. It is generally desirable that a Judge should place upon record the result of his investigation.—Moran v. Bhagbat Lal, 33 C. 133 : 2 C. L. J. 100-n (9 C. 363 : 1 C. W. N. 682, referred to).

At the desire of the parties, the Judge proceeded to the spot, made inspection and examined witnesses on the spot. The depositions of the witnesses were taken by a clerk in vernacular. Held, that the procedure was not illegal.—Ramaya v. Devappa, 30 B. 109 : 7 Bom. L. R. 642.

(d) Report of investigation by ministerial officers.—The report of a Nazir deputed to inquire into the condition of property in dispute is admissible in evidence, although he was not an Amin appointed under Act XII of 1856.—Buzl Ruhim v. Lutafut Hossen, W. R. (1864) 171.

The report of a Sheristadar, after local investigation, cannot be legal evidence unless it is shown that no Civil Court Amin was available for the duty in the district.—Goluck Chunder v. Dookhee Ram, 12 W. R. 209 ; Byjnath Singh v. Indurjeet Koer, 8 W. R. 331.

The proviso to r. 9 has made it imperative on a Court to employ in the first instance the regular officer of the Court to hold a local inquiry.—Ram Doss v. Nil Kanto, 8 W. R. 6 ; Byjnath v. Indurjeet, 8 W. R. 331 ; Bahadur Ali v. Domun, 7 W. R. 27. But since the repeal of the Civil Court Amin's Act (XII of 1856) by Act II of 1899, B. C., the Courts are not bound to employ the Civil Court Amins for the purpose of local investigation.

"May examine the Commissioner personally."—A Court cannot arbitrarily withhold permission to examine a Commissioner for accounts asked for by one of the parties to the suit. The object of the Legislature in enacting r. 10 (2) of Or. XXVI is to afford protection to the Commissioner who is a quasi-judicial officer. Such protection is afforded on grounds of public policy, so as to make it impossible for either of the parties to subject the Commissioner to a vexatious examination.—Sitaram v. Ramprosad Ram, 19 C. L. J. 87 : 18 C. W. N. 697 : 22 I. C. 858.

It is within the discretion of a Judge to accept the Commissioner's Report. A Court is bound to see that there is some real ground for examining a gentleman who had undertaken the duty of a Commissioner. It has a discretion in such matter to permit or refuse a party to examine the Commissioner.—Jadavendra v. Gajendra, 28 C. L. J. 203 : 47 I. C. 650.

Objections to Commissioner's report.—A Court is bound to inquire into charges against a Civil Court Amin (such as can be readily inquired into and their truth either disproved or proved).—Abdool Kureem v. Campbell, 8 W. R. 172.

Objections to the Amin's report should be inquired into if taken within a reasonable time from the return of the report, even when the case has been struck off the file.—Issur Chunder v. Syam Khan, 11 W. R. 95.

When clear instructions as to a local inquiry ordered by the Court are given to an Amin in the presence of both the parties, and no objection is made to them by either party then and there, they have no ground of complaint, after the Amin has carried out his instructions, if the Court acts upon his report.—Bissessur Roy v. Kanchun Roy, 11 W. R. 155.

A party who refuses to appear before an Amin at the time he holds his local inquiry is not at liberty afterwards to take any objection to the Amin's report.—Bamun Doss v. Brojo Kishore, 6 W. R. 130.

Reasonable notice must be given of the time fixed for hearing objections to the report.—Ram Narain v. Goburdhun Lall, 21 W. R. 2.

Report of the Commissioner is not binding.—A Commissioner's report is only evidence in a case, but it is no way binding on the Court. If such report is not satisfactory, it is in the Court's discretion to order another Commissioner to be appointed ; Sone Kuer v. Baidyanath, 96 I. C. 337 : A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 462 (distinguishing Tirthabasi v. Bepin Krishna, 23 C. L. J. 600).

"Where the Court is for any reason dissatisfied with proceedings of the Commissioner."—It is not compulsory on the appellate Court to direct a fresh investigation when it is dissatisfied with the map and report of the Amin. No error of law is committed in deciding on the other evidence before it; Manindra v. Saradindu, 27 C. L. J. 599 : 23 C. W. N. 593 : 45 I. C. 408 (30 C. 291 refd. to). Where the result of a local investigation is unsatisfactory, the Court is not bound to order another inquiry. It can decide the case on the other evidence on record, Goribullah v. Madhu, 50 I. C. 301; Jadavendra v. Gajendra, 23 C. L. J. 203 : 47 I. C. 650.

Further evidence after Commissioner's report.—Under Or. XXVI, rr. 9 and 10 there is no absolute right in any party to a local investigation, to adduce evidence before the Court after a Commissioner's report, and the question of adducing further evidence must be decided on general principles according to the facts of each case.—Girish Chunder v. Soshee Shikhareswar, 27 I. A. 110 : 27 C. 951 (P. C.) : 4 C. W. N. 631 (17 W. R. 270, commented on).

Disregard of a report on local investigation is not any error or defect in the procedure within the meaning of S. 584, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 100).—Lakhi Narain v. Jadu Nath, 21 I. A. 39 : 21 C. 504 (P. C.).

The practice of appointing a second Commissioner without formally recording objections to the first Commissioner's report and without considering whether the first Commissioner's report should be superseded or not is a practice which cannot be too strongly condemned. Reasons for superseding the first Commissioner's report must be recorded in writing by the Court.—Visvanadham v. Mangamma, 120 I. C. 737 : A. I. R. 1930 Mad 236 (following 45 M. 79). See also Kunhi Kutti v. Muhammad Haji, 54 M. 239 : (1930) M. W. N. 1113 : 60 M. L. J. 450 : 130 I. C. 470 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 73.

COMMISSIONS TO EXAMINE ACCOUNTS.

11. In any suit in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a Commission to examine or adjust accounts. to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such examination or adjustment. [S. 394.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 394, C.P. Code, 1882.

"Is necessary."—The words of this rule clearly show that no order can be made for the appointment of a Commissioner unless the examination or adjustment of accounts is considered necessary; Bharat Chandra v. Kiran Chandra, 52 C. 766 : 90 I. C. 944 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1069.

Commissioner to take accounts—Procedure on taking accounts.—Commissioner appointed to examine accounts—Duty of Commissioner pointed out—Commissioner when to take evidence—Commissioner is not a Judge or an arbitrator—Value of the decision of the Commissioner.—Tincowri Debi v. Suttya Doyal, 6 C. L. J. 105.

The principles on which accounts will have to be taken in different classes of cases have been elaborately explained in the case of Bharat Chandra v. Kiran Chandra, 52 C. 766 : 90 I. C. 944 : A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 1069.

As a general rule, it is better for the Court itself to settle the exact terms of the order to the Commissioner, that is, not to make him a sort of inferior Judicial officer. It is generally the business of the Court to ascertain which books are true or false, which party is or is not keeping back the books, what documents are relevant and the like and it is as a general rule desirable that these matters should be decided before a Commissioner is appointed, Assarmal v. Hundomal, 91 I. C. 766.

No objection can be taken to the order of a Judge appointing a Commissioner for taking accounts from a guardian of property. It is impracticable for him to determine precisely what property came into the hands of the guardian at different times which is the work to be done by a Commissioner.—Gauri Lal v. Raja Babu, A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 626.

A question whether a certain contract is authorized or not cannot be referred to a Commissioner for taking accounts under Or. XXI, r. 11, C. P. Code. The report of a Commissioner is only to be treated as evidence in the case and is not a decision which has to be accepted; Vishindas v. Nazarali, 75 I. C. 1014.

It is as a rule inexpedient to refer to a local Commissioner mixed questions of law and fact, e.g., whether a particular business was of a gambling nature. The distinction between contracts which are genuine and legitimate trading transactions of a speculative nature and contracts which are simply gaming and wagering transactions is frequently a narrow one and difficult of determination, and such a question cannot safely be left to the decision of a local Commissioner.—Sri Thakur Ram Krishna v. Ratanchand, 53 I. A. 173 : 53 A. 190 : 29 A. L. J. 453 : 35 C. W. N. 841 : 53 C. L. J. 561 : 33 Bom. L. R. 988. (1931) M. W. N. 733 : 61 M. L. J. 665 : 132 I. C. 613 : A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 136.

In a suit by a principal against his agent for account and for recovery of money that may be found due : Held, that no decree could be made for the sums mentioned, or any other sum, until an account had been taken and the amount due from the defendant ascertained. Method to be followed on taking of accounts in the mofussil stated.—Annoda Persad v. Dwarka Nath, 6 C. 754 : 8 C. L. R. 321.

In a suit for an account by a principal against his agent, the procedure prescribed by Ss. 394 and 395, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or. XXVI, rr. 11, 12) should be followed. If the defendant is found liable to render an account for a certain period, the Court should make an interlocutory decree declaring that he is so liable and direct him to file an account within a fixed period. This decree may be enforced under S. 260, C. P. Code, 1892 (Or. XXI, r. 32). When the accounts have been taken the Court must determine the amount due, and the final decree should be for the payment of this amount, and also, if necessary, for the delivery of any papers, vouchers or other documents which have come into the hands of the agent in the course of his employment.—Dejamber v. Kally Nath; 7 C. 654 : 9 C. L. R. 265.

In a suit against a gomasta to obtain accounts of moneys which had come into his hands, it was held that it was not enough for the lower Courts to make a decree ordering the defendants to render nikash papers to plaintiff; it was the business of the Court to have these papers brought before it and examined, and to determine whether they were correct and fair accounts between the parties.—Shushee Shekhar v. Suleem Biswas, 22 W. R. 191.

Where a decree requires an agent to render accounts, he can only discharge himself by accounting for all the moneys that have come into his hands, and it is always open to the decree-holder to show that this has not been done.—Wooma Nath v. Sree Nath, 15 W. R. 260.

Suit by a principal against his agent for account—Object of a decree for an account as distinguished from a decree made upon the hearing—Method to be followed in taking accounts.—Hurri Nath v. Krishna Kumar, 13 I. A. 123 : 14 C. 147 (P. C.).

Observations on the procedure to be adopted and the burden of proof on the taking of the account.—Thiru Kumaresan v. Subbaraya, 20 M. 313.

Where a defendant refused to render accounts and there was evidence of the destruction of the account-books, the Court charged him with the principal sum for which he was accountable, with interest at 12 per cent. per mensem in lieu of the profits he failed to account for.—Ram Pershad v. Sheo Churn, 10 M. I. A. 490.

Where the plaintiff had filed his account books in Court, and did not allege that they had been falsified, he should have balanced the account himself, and the lower Court should not have deputed an Amin to investigate the accounts.—Chand Ram v. Brojo Gobind, 19 W. R. 14.

Form.—For form of commission to examine accounts, see App. H, Form No. 9.

12. (1) The Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such instructions as appear necessary, and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings which he may hold on the inquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination.

Court to give Commissioner necessary instructions.

Proceedings and report to be evidence Court may direct further inquiry.

(2) The proceedings and report (if any) of the Commissioner shall be evidence in the suit, but where the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, it may direct such further inquiry as it shall think fit. [S. 395.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 395, C. P. Code, with some additions and alterations.

The only change made in sub-rule (1) is the omission of the word "detailed" which stood before the word "instructions" in the third line.

In sub-rule (2) the word "report" has been added after the word "proceedings," and the words "but where the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, it may direct such further enquiry as it shall think fit," have been substituted for the words "unless the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, in which case the Court shall direct such further inquiry as is requisite." By this substitution no change has been made in the meaning, but the provisions have been made more clear. Under the provisions of this sub-rule, the proceedings and report of the Commissioner shall be evidence in the suit only if the Court has no reason to be dissatisfied with it; but his report cannot be considered as a decision.

Report of Commissioner to examine accounts and its value.—

Duty of a Commissioner appointed to examine accounts—Value of his report—Commissioner is not a Judge or arbitrator.—Tincowri Devi v. Sultya Doyal, 6 C. L. J 105.

Although a Commissioner's report should have very great weight attached to it, it is not absolutely binding.—Kankatala v. Poleshetti, 6 M. H. C. R. 36 (Venkata Reddi v. Venkataramaiya, 1 M. H. C. R. 418, dissented from). A party dissatisfied with the report is not precluded from adducing evidence in support of his contention. Nor can it be said that the Court should accept the report of the Commissioner at its face value and should refrain from adjudicating upon the objections raised by the parties. It is the duty of the Court to afford the party a reasonable opportunity to produce evidence in support of their objections and then to come to an independent finding upon these objections.—Hans Raj v. Nathu Mal, 30 P. L. R. 501: 119 I. C. 490: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 782. There is nothing in Or. XXVI, which prevents a Court from accepting evidence on a debatable point between the parties where a Commission has been appointed to examine and report on the accounts.—Joti Prasad v. Hardwari, 53 A. 54: 137 I. C. 334: A. I. R. 1932 All. 128.

An error in the principle on which an account is taken is not the only ground on which a Court should enquire into the correctness of the report of a Commissioner. It is competent to an appellate Court to examine the accounts even if no exception has been taken to them in the Court appointing the Commissioner.—Ahmed Valad Nanhubhai v. Khasaji Valad Karimbhai, 6 B. H. C. R. 189 (Sarapu v. Malai, 1 M. H. C. R. 1; and Venkata Reddi v. Venkataramaiya, 1 M. H. C. R. 418, dissented from).

The report of the Commissioner, if accepted by the Court, is only evidence in the suit of facts found by him, but is not a decision upon it. It is for the Court to make it operative as a judgment confirming the report of the Commissioner. The Court to deal with the report on matters of fact, and its powers are not limited to questions of principle when examining such report.—R. M. S. Chetty v. Mohamed Essa, 5 C. W. N. 693 (referring to 6 B. H. C. R. 149, 6 M. H. C. R. 36 and 1 I. A. 346; and distinguishing 4 C. W. N. 809).

The nature of a certificate or report of the Commissioner appointed to examine accounts and what it should contain, considered.—Rustomji v. Kessowji, 3 B. 161.

Quere.—Whether it would be competent to the Court to re-open a question of account against a clear finding upon a question of fact relating to the account, and made by the Commissioner upon the evidence properly before him.—Watson v. Aga Mehmed Sherazee, 1 I. A. 346.

Motion to vary or discharge Commissioner's report.—In moving to discharge or vary the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts, the right practice is to move on a memorandum of objections filed in the Prothonotary's office, and upon the evidence taken by, and the proceedings before the Commissioner, and not on affidavit made for the purpose of the motion. In such a motion, affidavits should only be filed (a) when ordered by the Court if it desires fresh evidence; or (b) by special leave of the Court for the purpose of advancing a fact which does not appear on the face of the proceedings before the Commissioner.—Sumar Ahmed v. Ismail Haji, 1 B. 158.

A party desiring to move to vary a report made by the Commissioner must not only file his exceptions to such report, but must also make his motion to vary it within 20 days after the filing of the report; or, if the Court has allowed him further time for such application, then within the further time so allowed.—Narottam v. Hari Chand, 13 B. 368.

In making an application to discharge or vary a report, it is necessary that notice should be given within the time required by Rule No. 565 of the Rules of the High Court, and that such notice should be accompanied with the grounds of exceptions relied on by the party objecting to the report.—Lutchmee Narain v. Byjanauth, 24 C. 437.

Appeal against order directing accounts to be taken.—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and an account, an order directing accounts to be taken is a decree within the meaning of S. 2, Civil Procedure Code, and is therefore appealable.—Biswa Nath v. Bankanta, 23 C. 406. See also the observations of Maclean, C. J., in Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein, 5 C. W. N. 617 (F. B.) at p. 619: 29 C. 758. But an order directing an account in an administration suit is not an order in the nature of a final decree and is therefore not appealable.—Sree Nath v. Radha Nath, 9 C. 773.

Order of a Judge confirming the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts by which he refused to require the defendants to give inspection of certain books, is not appealable as a decree.—Rustomji Burjorji v. Kessowji, 8 B. 287.

During the pendency of an appeal against a preliminary order directing accounts to be taken, the High Court has jurisdiction to make an order staying the carrying out of such order.—Balkishen v. Khugnu, 31 C. 722 (F. B.): 8 C. W. N. 572.

As for costs of commission, see notes under r. 15.

COMMISSIONS TO MAKE PARTITIONS.

13. Where a preliminary decree for partition has been passed, the Court may, in any case not provided for by section 54, issue a commission to make partition of immovable property, such person as it thinks fit to make the partition or separation according to the rights as declared in such decree. [S. 396, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to para. 1 of S. 396, C. P. Code, 1882. The language of the present rule is quite different from that of the C. P. C.—124

this subrule, the proceedings and report of the Commissioner shall be evidence in the suit only if the Court has no reason to be dissatisfied with it; but his report cannot be considered as a decision.

Report of Commissioner to examine accounts and its value.—Duty of a Commissioner appointed to examine accounts—Value of his report—Commissioner is not a Judge or arbitrator.—Tincowri Devi v. Suttja Doyal, 6 C. L. J. 105.

Although a Commissioner's report should have very great weight attached to it, it is not absolutely binding.—Kankatala v. Poleshetti, 6 M. H. C. R. 36 (Venkata Reddi v. Venkataramaia, 1 M. H. C. R. 418, dissented from) A party dissatisfied with the report is not precluded from adducing evidence in support of his contention. Nor can it be said that the Court should accept the report of the Commissioner at its face value and should refrain from adjudicating upon the objections raised by the parties. It is the duty of the Court to afford the party a reasonable opportunity to produce evidence in support of their objections and then to come to an independent finding upon these objections.—*Hans Raj v. An error in the principle on which an account is taken is not the only ground on which a Court should enquire into the correctness of the report of a Commissioner. It is competent to an appellate Court to examine the accounts even if no exception has been taken to them in the Court appointing the Commissioner.—*Ahmed Valad Nanhubhai v. The report of the Commissioner, if accepted by the Court, is only evidence in the suit of facts found by him, but is not a decision upon it. It requires affirmation by an order of Court to make it operative as a judgment of a Court. In an appeal from an order confirming the report of the Commissioner, it is open to the appellate Court to deal with the report on matters of fact, and its powers are not limited to questions of principle when examining such report.—R. M. S. Chetty v. Mohamed Essa, 5 C. W. N. 699 (referring to 6 B. H. C. R. 149, 6 M. H. C. R. 36 and 1 I. A. 346; and distinguishing 4 C. W. N. 808).

The nature of a certificate or report of the Commissioner appointed to examine accounts and what it should contain, considered.—Rustomji v. Kessowji, 3 B. 161.

Quere.—Whether it would be competent to the Court to re-open a question of account against a clear finding upon a question of fact relating to the account, and made by the Commissioner upon the evidence properly before him.—Watson v. Aga Mehmed Sherazee, 1 I. A. 346.

Motion to vary or discharge Commissioner's report.—In moving to discharge or vary the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts, the right practice is to move on a memorandum of objections filed in the Prothonotary's office, and upon the evidence taken by, and the proceedings before the Commissioner, and not on affidavit made for the purpose of the motion. In such a motion, affidavits should only be filed (a) when ordered by the Court if it desires fresh evidence; or (b) by special leave of the Court for the purpose of advancing a fact which does not appear on the face of the proceedings before the Commissioner.—Sumar Ahmed v. Ismail Haji, 1 B. 158.

A party desiring to move to vary a report made by the Commissioner must not only file his exceptions to such report, but must also make his motion to vary it within 20 days after the filing of the report; or, if the Court has allowed him further time for such application, then within the further time so allowed.—Narottam v. Hari Chand, 13 B. 368.

In making an application to discharge or vary a report, it is necessary that notice should be given within the time required by Rule No. 565 of the Rules of the High Court, and that such notice should be accompanied with the grounds of exceptions relied on by the party objecting to the report.—Lutchmee Narain v. Byjanauth, 24 C. 437.

Appeal against order directing accounts to be taken—In a suit for dissolution of partnership and an account, an order directing accounts to be taken is a decree within the meaning of S. 2, Civil Procedure Code, and is therefore appealable.—Biswa Nath v. Banikanta, 23 C. 406. See also the observations of Maclean, C. J., in Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein, 5 C. W. N. 617 (F. B.) at p. 619; 29 C. 758. But an order directing an account in an administration suit is not an order in the nature of a final decree and is therefore not appealable.—Sree Nath v. Radha Nath, 9 C. 773.

Order of a Judge confirming the report of the Commissioner for taking accounts by which he refused to require the defendants to give inspection of certain books, is not appealable as a decree.—Rustomji Burjorji v. Kessowji, 8 B. 287.

During the pendency of an appeal against a preliminary order directing accounts to be taken, the High Court has jurisdiction to make an order staying the carrying out of such order.—Balkishen v. Khugnu, 31 C. 722 (F. B.); 8 C. W. N. 572.

As for costs of commission, see notes under r. 15.

COMMISSIONS TO MAKE PARTITIONS.

13. Where a preliminary decree for partition has been passed, the Court may, in any case not provided for by section 54, issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit to make the partition or separation according to the rights as declared in such decree. [S. 396, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to para. 1 of S. 396, C. P. Code, 1882. The language of the present rule is quite different from that of the C. P. C.—124 old section ; but no change seems to have been made in the meaning. In the old section the word " person " was used in the plural number and hence there was diversity of judicial opinion regarding its meaning. The old section ran as follows :—

" In any suit in which the partition of immoveable property not paying revenue to Government appears to the Court to be necessary, the Court after ascertaining the several parties interested in such property and their several rights therein, may issue a commission to such persons as it thinks fit to make a partition according to such rights."

" Issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit."—The singular " person " has been substituted for the plural " persons " which occurred in the corresponding S. 396 of the old Code. Under the old section it was held that the use of the plural " persons " showed that the Court could not issue a commission to make a partition to a single Commissioner ; Mul Chand v Muhammad Ali, 29 A. 235 (F. B.) : 4 A. L. J. 76; Bhucaji v. Narayan, 6 Bom. L. R. 586 ; Kanshi Nath v. Balak Das, 124 P. R. 1893. The present rule makes it clear that a commission to make a partition may be issued to a single Commissioner.

Where no application was made for the appointment of a Commissioner to make the partition and the plaintiff did not turn up on two successive dates fixed for the purpose and the suit was consequently dismissed, and subsequently an application for restoration of the suit was dismissed as being out of time and also an application for a final decree was dismissed on the ground that the Court had no jurisdiction to pass a final decree in the suit which was not on its file : Held in revision that the order of the lower Court was valid in law and that the remedy of the aggrieved party was to have the order dismissing the suit revised by the High Court.—Sreeramulu v. Naghabushanam, (1928) M. W. N. 542 : 112 I. C. 19 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 963.

14. (1) The Commissioner shall, after such inquiry as may be necessary, divide the property into as many shares as may be directed by the order under which the commission was issued, and shall allot such shares to the parties, and may, if authorized thereto by the said order, award sums to be paid for the purpose of equalizing the value of the shares.

(2) The Commissioner shall then prepare and sign a report or the Commissioners (where the commission was issued to more than one person and they cannot agree) shall prepare and sign separate reports appointing the share of each party and distinguishing each share (if so directed by the said order) by metes and bounds. Such report or reports shall be annexed to the commission and transmitted to the Court; and the Court, after hearing any objections which the parties may make to the report or reports, shall confirm, vary or set aside the same.

(3) Where the Court confirms or varies the report or reports, it shall pass a decree in accordance with the same as confirmed or varied ; but where the Court sets aside the report or reports, it shall either issue a new commission or make such other order as it shall think fit. [S. 396, PARAS. 2 & 3.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the Rule.—This rule corresponds to paras. 2 and 3 of S. 396 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

In sub-rule (1), which corresponds to para. 2 of the old section, the words "after such enquiry as may be necessary" have been substituted for the words "ascertain and inspect the property" which occurred in the old section. The other changes are merely verbal.

In sub-rule (2), which corresponds to para. 3 of the old section, the words "or the Commissioners (where the commission was issued to more than one person and they cannot agree) shall prepare and sign separate reports" have been added, and the words "shall confirm, vary or set aside the same," have been substituted for the words "shall either quash the same." Under the wordings of the old section it was held that the Court must either accept the report or reject the report and that it had no power to vary it; Janki Prasad v. Gouri Sahai, 28 A. 75 · 2 A. L. J. 709: (1905) A. W. N 188. The word "vary" has been added in sub-rule (2) to enable the Court to modify the report in a proper case.

Sub-rule (3) is almost new with the exception of the words "pass a decree in accordance" and the words "either issue a new commission" which occurred in the concluding part of para. 3 of the old section. The object of the above amendment is to meet the case of Janki Prasad v. Gouri Sahai, 28 A. 75 · 2 A. L. J. 709: (1905) A. W. N 188, where it has been held that in a suit for partition of immoveable property where a Commissioner has been appointed to ascertain the shares of the parties, the Court when passing its final decree must either accept or reject the report of the Commissioner in toto, but is not competent to modify it. The old section was rather defective and in order to remedy the defect, sub-rule (3) has been inserted.

Resistance to Commissioner.—Where a commission has been issued to make a partition, the circumstance that the plaintiff or his agent resists the Commissioner is not sufficient to justify the dismissal of a suit.—Masumunnissa v. Latifan, 32 A. 319 · 5 I. C. 872 7 A. L. J. 196.

Partition of non-revenue paying immoveable property.—The intention of this rule is that, upon the first hearing of a suit, the Court shall determine whether the plaintiff is entitled to a partition, and shall ascertain the several persons interested in the property, and their rights therein, and shall direct by a preliminary decree or order that Commissioners be appointed to make the partition. The word "Commissioners" in this rule may be read in the singular number.—Gyan Chunder v. Durga Churn, 7 C. 318: 8 C. L. R. 415 In the present rule (r. 14) the word "Commissioner" has been used in the singular and thereby Mulchand v. Muhammad, 29 A.

235 (F. B.): 4 A. L. J. 76, in which a contrary view was taken has been rendered obsolete.

Mode of effecting partition.—In making a partition of joint family property, if it appears that some of the members have enhanced the value of a portion of the lands of the joint estate and that other lands of similar description are not available, compensation should be allowed to each co-sharer for any private expenditure.—Kaltian Banerji v. Modhu Sudan Banerji, 8 C. L. R. 259.

It is a well-known principle of equity, which must be adopted in all partition cases that where partition is inconvenient, the property must be left in the possession of the person in occupation, and the other person who cannot conveniently get actual possession, compensated.—Basant Kumar v. Moti Lal, 6 C. L. J. 8-n.

Where, in a suit for partition, possession was sought of a definite share of a property consisting of a number of houses, held, that the principle in such cases is, that if a property can be partitioned without destroying the intrinsic value of the whole property or of the shares, such partition ought to be made, but where partition cannot be made without destroying the intrinsic value of the property, then a money compensation should be given.—Ashanullah v. Kali Kinkur, 10 C. 675.

The casting of lots by a Commissioner appointed to make a partition for the purpose of allotting shares to the parties, is not opposed to the provisions of Or. XXVI, r. 14, and is the most equitable way of assigning properties to co-parceners in a division.—Ananta v. Subraya, 29 I. C 245.

In execution of a decree for partition of family dwelling-house, the Court, with the consent of all the co-parceners, is competent to order that any part of the property should remain joint.—Raj Coomaree v. Gopal Chunder, 3 C. 514.

In a suit for partition, the land in dispute being in the exclusive possession of a single co-sharer, should fall as a whole in the share of one or other of the co-owners, and not be sub-divided among them.—Puddomonee v. Dwarka Nath, 25 W. R. 335.

Where a party concerned objects to a partition of land fairly allotted according to value, as not being convenient, it is not enough to show that his own convenience would have been better consulted by a different arrangement. He is bound to show some arrangement which would better satisfy all parties and be more equitable for all.—Summun Jha v. Bhooput Jha, 18 W. R. 498.

Where A mortgaged to the plaintiff his undivided share in certain land which he held jointly with B, and subsequent to the mortgage, by a decree in a partition suit, to which the plaintiff was not a party, the mortgaged property was allotted to B, other property in substitution being allotted to A: Held, in a suit to recover the sum due on the mortgage by sale of the mortgaged property, that the plaintiff could not proceed against the mortgaged property, which had been allotted on partition to B, but should be allowed to proceed against that which had been allotted in substitution to A, his mortgagor.—Hem Chunder v. Thako Moni, 20 C. 533 (Byjnath v. Ramoodin, 1 I. A. 106 : 21 W. R. 233 (P. C.). followed).

Partition Act IV of 1893—Partition of joint family dwelling-house.—Muhammadans are not excluded from the benefit of S. 4 of the Partition Act IV of 1893.—Sultan Begam v. Debi Prasad, 30 A. 324 (F. B.): 5 A. L. J. 352 (29 A. 308, overruled; 13 A. 282, referred to).

Where, in a suit for partition, a Commissioner appointed under this rule to make a partition after the preliminary decree had been passed, submitted a report and the Court, in consideration of the report, was of opinion that the land in suit was very small and could not be conveniently partitioned and then passed an order for sale of the property under S. 2 of Act IV of 1893: Held, that the Court could pass an order under S. 2 of the Act for sale of the property, and the fact that a preliminary decree had been passed was no bar to his proceeding under that section.—Hiramoni v. Radha Churn, 5 C. W. N. 128.

Section 2 of the Partition Act applies not only where a Court has to pass a decree for partition, but also where, after the Court has passed such a decree directing the partition to be effected in a particular mode, it is found that that mode is impracticable or inexpedient and one of the parties asks the Court to modify the decree by passing an order under this rule.—Bai Hira Kore v. Trikamdas, 32 B. 103: 10 Bom. L. R. 23 (24 M. 639 5 C. W. N. 128, followed).

Section 2 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893), which empowers a Court to order a sale of property instead of a division, in partition suits, may be applied though a preliminary order defining the share of a plaintiff and directing partition has been passed.—Kadir Bacha v. Abdul Rahman, 24 M. 639.

It is only in the event of a suit being one for partition, and the person desirous of buying being a member of the family, that the privilege conferred by S. 4 can be rendered available.—Kali Kumar v. Brahmananda, 7 C. L. J. 98: 12 C. W. N. xvi (16-n).

Section 4 of the Partition Act (IV of 1893), applies only where the transferee sues for partition. Where the suit is brought by the sharer against the transferee, S. 2, must be applied. In cases where the section applies the Judge should make a valuation of the share of the transferee only, and direct its sale.—Balshet v. Miran Saheb, 23 B. 77.

Section 4 of Act IV of 1893 applies to a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided joint family; but re-acquisition by members of such family after it has been sold to a stranger, does not give any right under that section as against such stranger.—Vaman v. Vasudev, 23 B. 73.

Held, that S. 10 of Act IV of 1893 would apply to a suit for partition in the stage where an interlocutory decree for partition has been made, but that decree had not become final by the Court's acceptance of the lots prepared by the officer appointed for that purpose.—Abdus Samad v. Abdur Razzag, 21 A. 409.

Partition suit pending till final decree—Final decree to be engrossed on stamped paper.—A suit for partition is a pending litigation, until the Court signs the final decree. A decree for partition to be operative must be engrossed on stamped paper, as required by the Stamp Act (II of 1899), S. 2 (15), Sch. I, Art. 45, and until the Judge signs the decree so engrossed, it cannot be said that the suit has terminated; and an order directing a party to be added under S. 32, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. I, rr. 8, 10, 11) can be made in such a suit before it has actually terminated.—Jolindra Mohan v. Bejoy Chand, 32 C. 483.

A decree for partition must be stamped as an instrument of partition under S. 2 (15) of the Indian Stamp Act (II of 1899).—Balaram v. Ram Krishna, 29 B. 366; 7 Bom. L. R. 308.

It is not obligatory, but discretionary with the Court in a partition suit to appoint a Commissioner under r. 13; and such a decree is not, in all cases, to be considered pending till action is taken under that rule.—Krishnamachariar v. Kuppammal, 31 M. 540.

Preliminary decree in a partition suit—Appeal.—Where a preliminary decree in a partition suit not followed by action under r. 13, is treated by the Court and by the parties as a final decree in execution proceedings, it is not open to a party subsequently to contend that the decree had not become final.—Krishnamachariar v. Kuppammal, 31 M. 540.

Order declaring the rights of parties to a partition suit in certain specific shares is a decree within the meaning of S. 2 of the C. P. Code, and is therefore appealable.—Dulhin Golab Koer v. Radha Dulari, 19 C. 463 (followed in Boloram Dey v. Ram Chundra, 23 C. 279). See also Bhola Nath v. Sonamont, 12 C. 273; Bipin Behari v. Lal Mohun, 12 C. 209; Krishna Sami v. Rajagopala, 18 M. 73; and Khadem Hossein v. Emdad Hossein, 5 C. W. N. 617 (F. B.): 29 C. 768.

Where in a partition suit an order was made in the course of such proceedings by which the position of some of the parties to the suit was determined, but no declaration was made of the exact rights of each of the parties: Held that it was a mere interlocutory order and no appeal would lie from it.—Bhoobun Moyi v. Shurut Sundery, 12 C. 275.

An order passed in a suit for partition, subsequent to the preliminary decree appointing a Commissioner to make the partition, is an interlocutory order pending the suit which has not been finally decided, and is not an order in execution, and is therefore not appealable under S. 244, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 47). In an appeal against the final decree the appellant can take objection to such an order.—Jogodishury v. Kailash Chundra, 24 C. 725 (F. B.): 1 C. W. N. 374 (16 C. 203 followed; 23 C. 679 overruled).

The definition of the expression "preliminary decree" is given in the explanation attached to S. 2. Section 97 of the present Code provides that if no appeal is preferred against the preliminary decree, the party aggrieved by such a decree shall be precluded from disputing its correctness in an appeal preferred against the final decree.—See notes under S. 97.

Objection to Commissioner's report.—An appellate Court has the same powers in dealing with objections to the report of a Commissioner as the Original Court, and a party cannot be heard in the appellate Court unless he had filed his objections before the Original Court.—Ma Deve v. Ma Tin Lun, 12 Bur. L. T. 228 (5 C. W. N. 692 followed). A party who does not object to the Commissioner's report in the lower Court is not justified in urging the objections after coming up to the High Court in appeal, although the Court has power to consider whether the report of the Commissioner was—outside or within the scope of his warrant under Or. XXVI, r. 14.—Krishna v. Ramantuja, 114 I. C. 232 : A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 492.

In a partition suit, the Court has inherent power to fix a time within which objections to the Commissioner's report are to be filed, and if its order is not complied with the Court is justified in refusing to hear the objections.—Sheikh Sirajuddin v. Sheikh Sharfuddin, 17 A. L. J. 498 : 50 I. C. 152.

Appeal.—No appeal lies against an order of Court confirming or varying the report of a Commissioner made in a partition suit under Or. XXVI, r. 14 (3); Pirthipal v. Bhaskor, 91 I. C. 317 : A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 195.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

15. Before issuing any commission under this Order, the Court may order such sum (if any) as it thinks reasonable for the expenses of the commission to be, within a time to be fixed, paid into Court by the party at whose instance or for whose benefit the commission is issued. [S. 397.]

Expenses of Commission to be paid into Court.

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 397, C. P. Code, 1882.

Expenses of commission—Mode of payment and realization.—The Court will not order the costs of a commission to examine a defendant, who is a pardanashin lady, to be paid by her, or order the estimated cost of the commission to be paid into Court, although the application for the commission is made by the lady herself.—Monindro Bhoosun v. Shoshee Bhoosun, 5 C. 866.

When after the issue of a commission it is found that the work is in excess of the amount paid in for the costs of commission, and the party at whose instance the commission was issued is not willing to pay, the only way in which the additional costs can be realized is by making the amount part of costs of the suit and entering the same in the decree.—Tadhin Proshad v. Sardar Coomar, 10 C. W. N. 234.

The Commissioner's fee in a partition suit should be realised from the decree-holder and the decree should not be drawn up until such sum has been deposited.—Nanda Lal v. Benode Behary, 15 C. W. N. 221.

Where a Commissioner was appointed to take accounts at the request of the plaintiffs and his costs were not prepaid. Held, in a suit by the Commissioner against the plaintiffs for remuneration of his labour, that the plaintiffs were liable.—Gopalaratnamayyar v. Bupala Narasimma, 4 M. 399.

Where, in a suit in India, a commission to take evidence has been issued in England, costs of such commission to be taxed on the same scale, and on the same principle as would be adopted in England.—Goculdas Bulabdas v. Scott, 15 B. 209.

A Court cannot refuse to use the Amin's reports and the evidence taken by him as evidence in the suit for failure of a party to pay the Amin's fees, inasmuch as a commission issued to an Amin to hold a local investigation is not a process within the meaning of S. 20 of the Court Fees Act; and, therefore, the rules framed by the High Court under that section regarding process fees are ultra vires, and cannot be enforced.—Jagat Kishore v. Dina Nath, 17 C. 281.

The Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the dismissal of a suit on refusal or failure of a party to deposit the amount ordered by the Court as remuneration to a Commissioner appointed under S. 394, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXVI, r. 11), to examine accounts. The remuneration of a Commissioner, appointed by the Court to examine accounts should, as a rule, be a definite amount and not at a monthly allowance.—Ragava Chariar v. Vedanta Chariar, 3 M. 259.

Under S. 36 of the present Code, the order of the Court regarding payment of Commissioner's costs may be executed as a decree. There was no such express provision in the old Code.

Reduction of Commissioner's bills, when justified.—There must be some confidence reposed in the Commissioners, who are pleaders and officers of the Court, and their reports as to the amount of work done by them can only be set aside on substantial and definite grounds; Bhagwat Sahai v. Brijbhukhan Prasad, 1 P. L. T. 171 : 57 I. C. 291.

The District Judge has no power to disallow a portion of the remuneration claimed by a Commissioner for local investigation in connection with a suit pending in the Court of the Subordinate Judge. The matter is one which must be dealt with by the Subordinate Judge in whose Court the suit is pending.—Panchanan v. Madhu Sudan, 44 I. C. 496.

16. Any Commissioner appointed under this Order may, unless otherwise directed by the order of appointment,— Powers of Commissioners.

- (a) examine the parties themselves and any witness whom they or any of them may produce, and any other person whom the Commissioner thinks proper to call upon to give evidence in the matter referred to him ;
- (b) call for and examine documents and other things relevant to the subject of enquiry ;
- (c) at any reasonable time enter upon or into any land or building mentioned in the order. [S. 398.]

COMMENTARY.

No alteration.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 398, C. P. Code, 1882.

Powers of Commissioner.—There are no limits to the powers conferred by the Code on a Commissioner for the purpose of making an investigation.—Mohun Lall v. Unnopoorna, 9 W. R. 566. He has the widest power and discretion to enquire into the matters referred to him for investigation unless limited by the wordings of the commission; Shibo Soonduree v. Ram Chunder, 17 W. R. 469; but he cannot go beyond the points referred to him for enquiry; Ram Dhun v. Ram Monee, 21 W. R. 280; Bustee Sahoo v. Jee Narain, 24 W. R. 338.

An Amin appointed to hold a local investigation has power to examine witnesses relative to the matter he has to enquire into, but the Court has no power to direct the Amin to try the whole case.—Raghu Nath v. Raj Krishna, 1 B. L. R. S. N. 2. A Commissioner has power under this rule to take evidence in the matter referred to.—Tincowri Devi v. Suttia Doyal, 6 C. L. J. 105.

It is the duty of the party obtaining a commission for the examination of witnesses to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the attendance before the Commissioner of the witnesses he desires to examine.—Lekhranj v. Palee Ram, 2 N. W. P. H. C. R. 210.

17. (1) The provisions of this Code relating to the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses, and to the remuneration of and penalties to be imposed upon, witnesses, shall apply to persons required to give evidence or to produce documents under this Order whether the commission in execution of which they are so required has been issued by a Court situate within or by a Court situate beyond the limits of British India, and for the purpose of this rule the Commissioner shall be deemed to be a Civil Court.

Attendance and Commissioners.

(2) A Commissioner may apply to any Court (not being a High Court) within the local limits of whose jurisdiction a witness resides for the issue of any process which he may find it necessary to issue to or against such witness; and such Court may, in its discretion, issue such process as it considers reasonable and proper. [S. 399.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 399, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

Sub-rule (2).—Sub-rule (2) is new. There was no similar provision in the old section. It has been framed to meet the case of Mahomed Ali v. Wazid Ali, 23 C. 404, noted below. Under the old section although the Commissioner had all the powers of a Civil Court to summon witnesses and to examine them, he had no machinery to cause the service of processes, etc., and hence sub-rule (2) has been inserted.

On an application to the High Court to authorize a Commissioner to issue process for the purpose of compelling the attendance of witnesses before him, held, that the Commissioner should return the commission to the High Court. The High Court may then send the commission to a Civil

A Court cannot refuse to use the Amin's reports and the evidence taken by him as evidence in the suit for failure of a party to pay the Amin's fees, inasmuch as a commission issued to an Amin to hold a local investigation is not a process within the meaning of S. 20 of the Court Fees Act; and, therefore, the rules framed by the High Court under that section regarding process fees are ultra vires, and cannot be enforced.—*Jagat Kishore v. Powers of Commissioner.—There are no limits to the powers conferred by the Code on a Commissioner for the purpose of making an investigation.—Mohun Lall v. Unnopoorina, 9 W. R. 566. He has the widest power and Court within the limits of whose jurisdiction the witnesses to be examined reside.—Mahomed Ali v. Wazid Ali, 23 C. 401.

During the examination of a witness on commission one of the parties died and in spite of the fact that the same was brought to the notice of the Commissioner the examination was finished and the commission was returned. Held, that the proceeding before the Commissioner was invalid and that the evidence was inadmissible. Held also that the remedy of the party was to take out a fresh commission and not to continue the examination from the stage when the death of the party was known.—Sabitri v. Suraj Mohan, 115 I. C. 240; 10 P. L. J. 51; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 101.

Statements recorded on commission are admissible in evidence and it is open to the Court to grant sanction for perjury in respect of such a statement notwithstanding that it was not read over to the witness.—Feroza Jan v. Mirza Amir Ali, 9 O. L. J. 593; 74 I. C. 445.

18. (1) Where a commission is issued under this Order, Parties to appear before Commissioner. the Court shall direct that the parties to the suit shall appear before the Commissioner in person or by their agents or pleaders.

(2) Where all or any of the parties do not so appear, the Commissioner may proceed in their absence. [S. 400.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 400, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations.

In sub-rule (2), the words "where all or any of the parties" have been substituted for the words "if the parties," and the words "in their absence" have been substituted for the word "ex parte" which occurred in the old section.

Parties to appear before the Commissioner.—Though there is no express provision in the Code to that effect, yet it is necessary to give notice to parties of the time when a local investigation ordered by the Court is to be held.—Kistomonee v. Eglinton, 12 W. R. 139.

A party who refuses to appear before an Amin at the time he holds his local investigation, is not at liberty afterwards to take any objection to the Amin's report.—Bamun Doss v. Brojo Kishore, 6 W. R. 130.

A party who has not joined in a commission is entitled to cross-examine the witnesses who are examined under the commission.—Gregory v. Dooley Chund, 14 W. R. O. C. 17.

Where evidence was taken in the absence of the other side, held that that fact by itself was not a reason to exclude the deposition of the witness as inadmissible.—Ram Chand v. Kaminee Debea, 10 W. R. 236.

When the Commissioner examined the witness ex parte in the absence of the defendant, the Court ordered the issue of a fresh commission for the examination of the witness, on condition that the costs of such commission

ORDER XXVII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT OR PUBLIC OFFICERS IN THEIR OFFICIAL CAPACITY.

Suits by or against Government 1. In any suit by or against the Secretary of State for India in Council, the plaint or written statement shall be signed by such person as the Government may, by general or special order, appoint in this behalf, and shall be verified by any person whom the Government may so appoint and who is acquainted with the facts of the case. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Addition.—This rule is new. There was no similar section in the old Code.

Suits by or against Government.—See S. 79, post.

Notice in suits against Secretary of State or public officer.—See S. 80, post.

Persons authorised to act for Government 2. Persons being ex-officio or otherwise authorised to act for the Government in respect of any judicial proceeding shall be deemed to be the recognized agents by whom appearances, acts and applications under this Code may be made or done on behalf of the Government. [S. 417.]

COMMENTARY.

In the Punjab all Government pleaders are authorised to act for Government as their recognised agents without any power of attorney. Such pleaders are recognised agents within the meaning of this rule.—East Indian Ry. Co. v. Piyare Lal, 10 L. 360: 112 I. C. 736: A. I. R. 1928 Lab. 774.

Plaints in suits by or against Government. 3. In suits by or against the Secretary of State for India in Council, instead of inserting in the plaint the name and description and place of residence of the plaintiff or defendant, it shall be sufficient to insert the words "The Secretary of State for India in Council." [S. 418.]

Agent for Government to receive process. 4. The Government pleader in any Court, or such other person as the Local Government may for any Court appoint in this behalf, shall be the agent of the Government for the purpose of receiving processes against the Secretary of State for India in Council issued by such Court. [S. 419.]

(b) upon an application by a law officer of the Local Government acting under instructions from the Local Government.

21. A commission under rule 19 may be issued to any Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the witness resides, or, where the High Court is established under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, or the Government of India Act, 1915, and the witness resides within the local limits of its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction, to any person whom the Court thinks fit to execute the commission.

22. The provisions of rules 6, 15, 16, 17 and 18 of this Order in so far as they are applicable shall apply to the issue, execution and return of such commissions, and when any such commission has been duly executed it shall be returned, together with the evidence taken under it, to the High Court, which shall forward it to the Governor-General in Council, along with the letter of request for transmission to the foreign Court.

COMMENTARY.

Additions.—The heading with rr. 19 to 22 were added by Act No. X of 1932 (an Act to further amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 for certain purposes).

5. The Court, in fixing the day for the Secretary of State for India in Council to answer to the plaint, shall allow a reasonable time for the necessary communication with the Government through the proper channel, and for the issue of instructions to the Government pleader to appear and answer on behalf of the said Secretary of State for India in Council or the Government and may extend the time at its discretion. [S. 420.]

6. The Court may also, in any case in which the Government pleader is not accompanied by any person on the part of the Secretary of State for India in Council, who may be able to answer any material questions relating to the suit, direct the attendance of such a person. [S. 421.]

7. (1) Where the defendant is a public officer and, on receiving the summons, considers it proper to make a reference to the Government before answering the plaint, he may apply to the Court to grant such extension of the time fixed in the summons as may be necessary to enable him to make such reference and to receive orders thereon through the proper channel.

(2) Upon such application the Court shall extend the time for so long as appears to it to be necessary. [S. 423.]

8. (1) Where the Government undertakes the defence of a suit against a public officer, the Government pleader, upon being furnished with authority to appear and answer the plaint, shall apply to the Court, and upon such application the Court shall cause a note of his authority to be entered in the register of civil suits. [S. 426.]

(2) Where no application under sub-rule (1) is made by the Government pleader on or before the day fixed in the notice for the defendant to appear and answer, the case shall proceed as in a suit between private parties :

Provided that the defendant shall not be liable to arrest nor his property to attachment, otherwise than in execution of a decree. [S. 427.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—These rules are almost similar to the corresponding sections of the old Code. The changes introduced in these rules are of a mere verbal character.

ORDER XXIX.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

1. In suits by or against a corporation, any pleading may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case. [S. 435.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—This rule corresponds to S. 435, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The words "or by a company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee," which occurred in the old section, have been omitted and the reason of such omission, as stated in the Report of the Select Committee, is that "companies authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee must be very few, if indeed any exist, and they do not appear to call for special treatment."

The above omission seems also to have been made on the ground that the word "corporation" includes a company registered under the Indian Companies Act of 1882, and most companies are now-a-days registered.

The words "or against" have been added so as to include a defendant corporation; hence the word "pleading" has been substituted for the word "plaint" which occurred in the old section.

The word "corporation" has not been defined in this Code. It means "a fictitious body invested by law with the attributes of a person having a corporate name, by which it can sue and be sued and hold property, but enjoying immortal existence by reason of a perpetual succession of its members."—See Williams on Real Property, 20th Ed., pp. 295-296.

Form of suit by or against corporations.—A corporation or company should be sued in its corporate name, and not in the names of its agents or servants.—Ram Das Sen v. Collector of Moorshedabad, 2 B L. R. S. N. 6: 10 W. R. 366; and Nubeen Chunder v. Stephenson, 15 W. R. 534.

Order XXIX, r. 1 applies only to corporations strictly so called, i.e., to bodies authorized by law to act as a person in law and not to unincorporated bodies or associations of men; Ma Gyi v. Pat Lon, 9 Bur. L. T. 247: 38 L. C. 572.

In the case of an unincorporated or unregistered company, the plaintiff, if he does not know of what persons the company is composed, may sue the company by the name under which they are carrying on business, stating in his plaint his inability to describe them better.—Koylash Chunder v. Ellis, 8 W. R. 45. But see Ganesh Singh v. Mundi Forest Company, 21 A. 346; and Panchaiti Akhara, etc. v. Gouri Kuar, 20 A. 167, in which

A European soldier doing duty as an army schoolmaster, not being liable to a Court of Requests, is not exempted from the jurisdiction of a cantonment Court of Small Causes. The Military Acts give soldiers no privileges as to liability to jurisdiction on actions.—Marwady Deejarajoo v. Haynes, 6 M. H. C. R. 88.

Section 99 of the Military Act (30 and 31 Vict., cap. 13) exempts officers in all places in India, where anybody of Her Majesty's force may be serving, from the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in respect of personal actions.—Hossein v. Dickenson, 2 B. L. R. S. N. 3: 9 W. R. 112.

COMMENTARY.

Reference to the High Court regarding the amenability of European soldiers and their native wives to Small Cause Courts in actions for debt.—Denis Kefee v. Liset Christie, 5 W. R. S. C. C. Ref. 21.

2. Any person authorized by an officer, soldier or air-man to prosecute or defend a suit in his stead may prosecute or defend it in person in the same manner as the officer, soldier or air-man could do if present; or he may appoint a pleader to prosecute or defend the suit on behalf of such officer, soldier or airman. [S. 466.]

Person so authorized may act personally or appoint pleader.

3. Processes served upon any person authorized by an officer, soldier or air-man under rule 1 or upon any pleader appointed as aforesaid by such person shall be as effectual as if they had been served on the party in person. [S. 467.]

Service on person so authorized or on his pleader to be good service.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The words in italics have been inserted by S. 2 and first Schedule of the Repealing and Amending Act X of 1927.

The provisions of S. 468 of the C. P. Code of 1882, which prescribed the rules for service of summonses on military officers, have been embodied in Or. V, rr. 28 and 29.

ORDER XXIX.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

1. In suits by or against a corporation, any pleading may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case. [S. 435.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule—This rule corresponds to S. 435, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The words "or by a company authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee," which occurred in the old section, have been omitted and the reason of such omission, as stated in the Report of the Select Committee, is that "companies authorized to sue and be sued in the name of an officer or of a trustee must be very few, if indeed any exist, and they do not appear to call for special treatment."

In the case of an unincorporated or unregistered company, the plaintiff, if he does not know of what persons the company is composed, may sue the company by the name under which they are carrying on business, stating in his plaint his inability to describe them better.—Koylash Chunder v. Ellis, 8 W. R. 45. But see Ganesha Singh v. Mundi Forest Company, 21 A. 346; and Panchaiti Akhara, etc. v. Gouri Kuar, 20 A. 167, in which it has been held that where a company is not registered under Act VI of 1892, a plaintiff bringing a suit against such company must make each individual member of the company a defendant in the suit, and he cannot escape from this obligation by stating his inability to do so. See also The Muhammadan Association of Meerut v. Bakhshi Ram, 6 A. 284; Hriday Nath v. Akhil, 49 C. L. J. 357 : A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 445.

When a suit is brought against two companies, they should be described by their proper names.—India General S. N. & Railway Co. v. Lalmohon Saha, 43 C. 441 : 23 C. L. J. 241. A suit against the agent may be treated as a suit against the company where the relief sought was really against the company, it being an error of misdescription.—Radhe Lal v. East Indian Railway Co., 5 P. 128 : 90 I. C. 680 : A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 40.

Unless a company is incorporated under Act VI of 1892, and authorized to sue or be sued in the name of an officer, it cannot sue by any of its officers.—Campbell v. Jackson, 12 C. 41. See also Ghulam Muhammad v. The Himalaya Bank, 17 A. 292.

The Cantonment Committee of Poona is a body corporate, and is liable to be sued for damages in its corporate name on contracts entered into in its corporate character.—Cantonment Committee, Poona v. Barjorji Bamanji, 14 B. 286.

An action to recover the price of goods supplied to a member of a non-proprietary club, or on his responsibility, cannot be brought in the name of the Secretary of the club.—Michael v. Briggs, 14 M. 362.

The Secretary of a Government aided school can maintain an action for the benefit of the school.—Sreehury Roy v. Hills, 6 W. R. Civ. Ref. 21. See also Bhoyabhai v. Hayern, 22 B. 754.

Foreign Corporation.—A foreign corporation is entitled to sue in its corporate character in this country without being registered under the Indian Companies Act of 1913 or an Act of Parliament. Thus a plaint filed in the Delhi Court on behalf of the Singer Manufacturing Company, which is incorporated in the United States of America, may be verified by an agent holding a general power of attorney from the Company as a "principal officer" of the Company within the meaning of this rule; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Baijnath, 30 C. 103; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Yar, Mahummad, 8 P. R. 1912.

Subscription and verification of pleadings.—Section 51, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. VI, rr. 14, 15), regulating proceedings by or on behalf of ordinary plaintiffs, does not apply in the case of a corporation or company, but this rule is applicable. An acting manager of a corporation or company is a principal officer within the meaning of this rule, and can subscribe and verify the plaint on behalf of the company or corporation.—Delhi and London Bank v. Oldham, 20 I. A. 139 : 21 C. 60 (P. C). See also Allen Brothers v. Aruri Mal, 7 L. L. J. 66 : 88 I. C. 546 : A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 338.

Order XXIX of the C. P. Code deals with the subscription and verification of pleadings in suits by or against a corporation. It says nothing about the manner in which the suit itself is to be framed; Sinehi Ram Bihari Lall v. The Agent East India Ry. Co., 2 P. L. T. 679.

This rule does not require a "principal officer" of a corporation to verify a plaint from actual personal knowledge. The rule shows that a verifier may depose upon his information and belief.—The Port Canning and Land Improvement Co. v. Dharnidhar, 9 C. W. N. 603.

Where a suit was filed by an agent of an unincorporated society, viz., the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church of New York; held that it was not a corporation or company authorized to sue or be sued in the name of an officer or trustee within the meaning of this rule, and also that as the person signing the plaint did not profess to be suing on his own possessory title to the land in respect of which ejectment was claimed, the suit must be dismissed.—Yusuf Beg v. Board of Foreign Missions, 16 A. 420.

It was held that a plaint in a suit by a bank in liquidation in which the plaintiff was described as "The Official Liquidator, Himalaya Bank," and which was also subscribed and verified in the same terms was not a valid plaint.—Ghulam Muhammad v. Himalaya Bank, 17 A. 292

The signing of a plaint by the principal officer of a corporation is, notwithstanding that he is an Ammuktear, a sufficient compliance with the provisions of this rule.—Chandra Sekhar v. Ram Coomar, 20 C. L. J. 39.

Order XXIX is merely permissive and not mandatory. The words "other good cause" in Or. VI, r. 14 apply to the case of a company. The company can therefore always authorise some person to sign on behalf of the company. If the company does not choose to do that, it can act under Or. XXIX, r. 1, i.e., it can rely on that order as in fact constituting an agent to sign without the necessity of giving an express authority (20 I. A. 139 explained) —Calico Printers' Association v. Karim, 32 Bom. L. R. 1305: 123 I. C. 557: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 566. See also Osborne Garrett v. Abdulla, 134 I. C. 1170: A. I. R. 1931 Sind. 178; Ramjas Aggarwal v. Mangat Ram, 32 P. L. R. 655.

"Who is able to depose to the facts of the case"—Where a petition by the Bank of Bengal was verified by a person described as the officiating Inspector of Branches, Bank of Bengal, and there was nothing to show that he was not the officer authorized to sue or verify the petition on behalf of the Bank at Chittagong, or that he was not able to depose to the facts of the case: Held, that the petition was properly verified under this rule — Ram Komal v. Bank of Bengal, 5 C. W. N. 91.

A plaint or a written statement may be signed and verified on behalf of the corporation by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer of the corporation who is able to depose to the facts of the case. Sreenath v. East Indian Railway Co., 22 C. 268.

Where the defence raises the question of the competency of the director to sign and verify the plaint, the defendants are entitled so to cross-examine him. It is only when all comes to a finding as to the case.—Ram Raghubir Lal v. United Refineries Burma Ltd., 130 I. C. 843: A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 54.

The fitness of the person purporting to verify any pleading in a suit by a corporation must be proved by affidavit.—International Continental Caoutchouc Co. pagnie v. Mehta & Co., 31 C. W. N. 1030: 105 I. C. 563: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 780.

Dismissal of suit.—Where the plaint is signed and verified by an officer other than the principal officer of the corporation, the suit ought to be dismissed; Yusuf Beg v. Board of Foreign Missions, 16 A. 420.

2. Subject to any statutory provision regulating service of process, where the suit is against a corporation, the summons may be served—

(a) on the secretary, or on any director, or other principal officer of the corporation, or

(b) by leaving it or sending it by post addressed to the corporation at the registered office, or if there is no registered office then at the place where the corporation carries on business. [S. 436.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to the first part of S. 436, G. P. Code, with some omissions and alterations. The section has been re-arranged, and except the change in its wording and phraseology, no other material change has been made.

Service by post.—The Committee have enlarged the language of the Code so as to allow of service by post on corporations having a Registered Office, and by this means the rule is brought into line with the provisions of the "Indian Companies Act."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Service on corporation.—An Executive Engineer of a Railway Company is not an officer on whom a service may be made under this rule; and for the purposes of summons, a Railway Company must be deemed to dwell at its principal office—Hanion v. Indian Branch Railway Company, 1 Hyde. 197.

The Traffic Superintendent is not the Manager's Agent, and notice to him is not notice to the Railway Administration within the meaning of S. 77 of the Indian Railway Act (IX of 1890).—Secretary of State v. Dipchand, 24 C. 306. See also Perannan Chetti v. South India Railway Company, 22 M. 137.

3. The Court may, at any stage of the suit, require the personal appearance of the secretary or of any director, or other principal officer of the corporation who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit.

[S. 436, LAST PARA.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to the last para. of S. 436, G. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "at any stage of the suit."

ORDER XXX.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST FIRMS AND PERSONS CARRYING ON BUSINESS IN NAMES OTHER THAN THEIR OWN.

1. (1) Any two or more persons claiming or being liable as partners and carrying on business in British India may sue or be sued in the name of the firm (if any) of which such persons were partners at the time of the accruing of the cause of action, and any party to a suit may in such case apply to the Court for a statement of the names and addresses of the persons who were, at the time of the accruing of the cause of action, partners in such firm, to be furnished and verified in such manner as the Court may direct.

Suing of partners in name of firm.

(2) Where persons sue or are sued as partners in the name of their firm under sub-rule (1), it shall, in the case of any pleading or other document required by or under this Code to be signed, verified or certified by the plaintiff or the defendant, suffice if such pleading or other document is signed, verified or certified by any one of such persons.

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope—This order is new and is a reproduction of the principal rules comprised in Order XLVIII-A of the English Rules. It deals with suits by or against firms and persons carrying on business in names other than their own; Ram Prosad v. Anundji & Co, 49 C. 524 : A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 408.

"The Committee have adopted, with the necessary alterations, the English procedure in relation to suits against firms. This new procedure has been in force for sometime in the Presidency towns of Calcutta and Bombay and has worked satisfactorily. It is hoped that its general application will be found useful by the mercantile community, for the rules remove the technical obstacles which under the present procedure may seriously impede this class of litigation, as where a partner has died."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

The Code of 1908 merely provides a new procedure. It does not affect the law that a plaintiff bringing a suit against a firm may implead all the members of the firm as defendants.—Kazmi Begam v. Lachhman Lal, 9 P. 717 : 127 I. C. 575 : A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 239.

The word "firm" has not been defined in the Code. In S. 239 of the Indian Contract Act IX of 1872, the following definition has been given : "Partnership is the relation which subsists between persons who have agreed to combine their property, labour or skill in some business, and to share the profits thereof. Persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called collectively a firm."

The Indian Partnership Act (IX of 1932), S. 4 says,—

"Partnership" is the relation between persons who have agreed to share the profits of a business carried on by all or any of them acting for all. Persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called individually "partners" and collectively "a firm," and the name under which their business is carried on is called the "firm name."

The provisions of Or. XXX are applicable to suits only and do not apply to proceedings under the Arbitration Act—E. D. Sassoon & Co. v. Shuji Ram, 115 I. C. 536 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 228. The provisions previous to an award which is subsequently filed in Court and becomes enforceable as a decree though leading up to the decree cannot be said to be a suit so as to attract the provisions of Or. XXX, and Or. XXI, r. 50 (1).—Bombay Co. v. Kahan Singh, 134 I. C. 1026 : A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 736. Order XXI, r. 50 should be read subject to the provisions of Or. XXX. It is open to a partner against whom execution is applied for of a decree obtained against the firm to deny in the first instance that he is a partner and in the alternative if that plea is unsuccessful to plead that the decree cannot be executed as none of the partners had any authority to enter into the transaction which gave rise to the liability. In re Malabar Forests and Rubber Co. Ltd., 34 Bom. L. R. 617 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 334.

Where a party elects to proceed against a firm, the question whether a particular person is or is not a partner of such firm and is bound by the decree or the award as the case may be is a question which can be dealt with either in execution proceedings or in a separate suit.—Babu Kirparam v. Jawahar Singh, 34 Bom. L. R. 787 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 375.

If an action is brought for recovery of a debt against a firm, one of the partners cannot bind the firm by consenting to the Judge's order referring all matters in dispute to arbitration.—Bhagwan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 516.

A decree obtained by a firm consisting of one partner only cannot be executed by the son of the decree-holder without the production of a succession certificate.—Bhagwan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 516.

A firm is dissolved by the death of one of the partners but a decree passed in its favour is nonetheless executable at the instance of the surviving partners—Ganesh Das v. Hari Singh, 33 P. L. R. 290.

The mere fact that a certain person was partner with a firm in respect of certain transactions does not make him a partner of that firm as such, and a suit brought in respect of the particular transactions without making him a party is not maintainable.—Firm of Khanumal v. Karim Mahomed & Co., A. I. R. 1932 Sind 78.

Two or more persons carrying on business in the name of a firm in British India are liable to be sued in British India in the name of the firm, and would be amenable to the jurisdiction of any competent Court in British India irrespective of whether they are British subjects or foreigners.—Tarabai v. Chogmal, 28 N. L. R. 118 : A. I. R. 1932 Nag. 114.

A plaint in the name of a firm may be signed by one of the partners in such capacity.—Haji Karim Bux v. Rahman, 1 N. L. R. 116.

A firm may sue on a promissory note passed to one of its members though the note has been passed to him in his name.—Brojo Lal v. Budh Nath, 55 C. 551 : 105 I. C. 549 : A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 148.

"Any two or more persons."—A firm consisting of one proprietor cannot bring a suit in the name of the firm but must sue in his own name.—Samrathrai v. Kasturbhai, 137 I. C. 412: 32 Bom. L. R. 212: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 216; Bhagwan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112: A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 516.

The position of a single person carrying on business in a firm name is only that of a person with an alias; if he dies during the suit, substitution must be made.—*Hari Bandhu v. "Carrying on business in British India."—The rule applies to the case of persons who are carrying on business in partnership in British India. "Carrying on business" means the possession in British India of a place of business held in the name of the firm, whether business is carried on on behalf of the firm by a partner or by a person or persons in the pay of the firm. It makes no difference whether the partners are or are not out of British India, or whether or not they have another place out of British India. If they are carrying on business in British India in the firm's name, they can be sued as an Indian firm; Worcester & Co. v. Fir Bank Pauling & Co., (1894) 1 Q. B. 784; Shepherd v. Hirsch & Co., 45 C. D. 231; Lysaght v. Clark, 1 Q. B. 552. A firm can be an agriculturist within the meaning of S. 2 of the Dekkhan Agriculturists Relief Act 1879, if that firm by itself or by its servants or by tenants earns its livelihood wholly or principally by agriculture. The mere fact that one or all the members of the firm earn their livelihood principally from agricultural income does not make the firm itself an 'agriculturist' within the meaning of that Act.—Dharamsey v. Balkrishna, 53 B. 787: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 378.

"At the time of the accruing of the cause of action."—These words indicate that a suit contemplated by this rule may be brought by or against a firm in the firm's name, even though the firm may have been dissolved before the date of the suit, provided the cause of action arose before the dissolution; Pulin v. Mahendra, 34 C. L. J. 405; Harjibandas v. Bhagwandas, 49 C. 394: 69 I. C. 236: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 390. A suit against a firm is maintainable even if one of the partners is dead on the date of the institution of the suit provided the cause of action arose before such death.—Baldeo Prasad v. Hayi Ali, 27 A. L. J. 73: 112 I. C. 715.

Suing of partners in name of firm.—The effect of the provisions regarding suits against partners in the firm's name is merely to give a compendious mode of describing in the writ the partners who compose the firm; in effect the partners are sued individually. The firm's name is a mere expression and not a legal entity; Ramprosad Chimonlal v. Anundji & Co., 49 C. 524: A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 408; Gopal Das v. Baij Nath, 48 A. 239: A. I. R. 1926 All. 238

Where a suit is filed against a firm, but the defendant is also described as the owner of the firm and a question of limitation is pressed by the heirs of the defendant who are subsequently impleaded, the suit must in effect be treated as one against a firm and the subsequent words of description mere surplusage; Motilal Jasraj v. Chand Mal Hindu Mal, 25 Bom. L. R. 1081.

The Indian Partnership Act (IX of 1932), S. 4 says,—

"Partnership" is the relation between persons who have agreed to share the profits of a business carried on by all or any of them acting for all. Persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called individually "partners" and collectively "a firm," and the name under which their business is carried on is called the "firm name."

The provisions of Or. XXX are applicable to suits only and do not apply to proceedings under the Arbitration Act—E. D. Sassoon & Co. v. Shieji Ram, 115 I. C. 536 : A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 228. The provisions previous to an award which is subsequently filed in Court and becomes enforceable as a decree though leading up to the decree cannot be said to be a suit so as to attract the provisions of Or. It is open to a partner against whom execution is applied for of a decree obtained against the firm to deny in the first instance that he is a partner and in the alternative if that plea is unsuccessful to plead that the decree cannot be executed as none of the partners had any authority to enter into the transaction which gave rise to the liability. *In re Malabar Forests and Rubber Co. Where a party elects to proceed against a firm, the question whether a particular person is or is not a partner of such firm and is bound by the decree or the award as the case may be is a question which can be dealt with either in execution proceedings or in a separate suit.—Babu Kirparam v. Jawahar Singh, 34 Bom. L. R. 737 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 375.

If an action is brought for recovery of a debt against a firm, one of the partners cannot bind the firm by consenting to the Judge's order referring all matters in dispute to arbitration.—Bhagwan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 516.

A decree obtained by a firm consisting of one partner only cannot be executed by the son of the decree-holder without the production of a succession certificate.—Bhagwan v. Hiraji, 34 Bom. L. R. 1112 : A. I. R. 1932 Bom. 516.

A firm is dissolved by the death of one of the partners but a decree passed in its favour is nonetheless executable at the instance of the surviving partners—Ganesh Das v. Hari Singh, 33 P. L. R. 290.

The mere fact that a certain person was partner with a firm in respect of certain transactions does not make him a partner of that firm as such, and a suit brought in respect of the particular transactions without making him a party is not maintainable—Firm of Khanumal v. Karim Mahomed & Co., A. I. R. 1932 Sind 78.

Two or more persons carrying on business in the name of a firm in British India are liable to be sued in British India in the name of the firm, and would be amenable to the jurisdiction of any competent Court in British India irrespective of whether they are British subjects or foreigners.—*Tarabai v. Where a suit is filed against a firm, but the defendant is also described as the owner of the firm and a question of limitation is pressed by the heirs of the defendant who are subsequently impleaded, the suit must in effect be treated as one against a firm and the subsequent words of 'mere surplusage'; Motilal Jasraj v. Chand Mal Hindu Mal, 25 L. R. 1091.

Under the old law in suits by or against a firm, all persons who were members of it were necessary parties, that is, in suits concerning partnership business, all the members of the firm were necessary parties. See, 25 W. R. 118; 7 C. L. J. 266; 31 C. 487 (P. C.); 8 C. W. N. 442. In Yeknath Babaji v. Gulabchand, 1 B. H. C. R. 85, it was held that in an action against a firm, the names of the partners should be specified in the plaint. To remove all these technical obstacles the present rules have been framed.

Under the present rule a firm may sue or be sued in the name of the firm, without first ascertaining the names of all the members of the partnership. But at the same time it has been provided in sub-rule (1) that any party to a suit may in such case apply to the Court for a statement of the names and addresses of the persons, who were, at the time of accrual of the cause of action, partners in such firm, that is, who were partners of the firm before the dissolution of the partnership.

Sub-rule (2) provides that in suits concerning partnership business, pleadings, etc., may be signed and verified by one of the members of the firm.

Where a suit is instituted by one of the partners on behalf of the firm as its agent, the suit cannot be dismissed on account of the non-joinder of the other parties. All that the defendant is entitled to is the disclosure of the names of those parties. If the other partners are added as plaintiffs even after the period of limitation, the suit cannot be held to be barred by S. 22 of the Limitation Act.—Marayya Chetty v. Sami Chetti, 28 I. C. 210; 2 L. W. 239. See also Hari Singh v. Firm of Karan Chand, 8 L. 1: 100 I. C. 721; A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 115.

Where a suit is brought against a firm by its managing partner it cannot be said to be against the managing partner personally.—Prem Chand v. Newandmal, 134 I. C. 397; A. I. R. 1931 Sind 121.

Where a suit was originally framed in the name of a partner as representing a firm carrying on business outside British India but objection was taken and an application was made for amendment, held, that the suit as framed was not maintainable at all because it was brought by an entity which had no legal existence, that assuming that the partner and not the firm was the plaintiff, the suit was bad because the other partners had not been impleaded and that an amendment should be allowed on payment of costs.—Vyanhatesh Oil Mill Co. v. Velmahomed, 109 I. C. 99; A. I. R. 1928 Bom. 191; 30 Bom. L. R. 117.

Where a suit was filed and a decree was obtained against a Hindu joint family partnership consisting of father and son, and the son was never individually served and never appeared nor admitted partnership nor was adjudged a partner, and the decree was sought to be executed against the property in the hands of the son, held, that this could not be done without an order of the decreeing Court under Or. XXI, r. 50 (2) of the Code, and that the son was at liberty to agitate all questions as regards his interest in a suit of his own.—Satchidanand v. Pryag Sah, 127 I. C. 573; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 205.

Where the legal representatives of a deceased partner are not impleaded in a suit against a firm the personal estate of the deceased partner cannot be rendered liable, and the decree is only capable of execution against the assets of the partnership.—Ram Narain v. Ram Prasad, 23 A. L. J. 913: A. I. R. 1931 All. 65.

Minor.—Where a suit is brought against a firm, the mere fact that there is a minor member of the firm, does not bring the suit within the purview of Or. XXXII. Where the matter is referred to arbitration, it is not necessary that the Court should give assent under Or. XXXII, r. 7; Sukha Nand v. Behari Ram, 68 I. C. 750.

Where a suit is brought by one firm against another through their representatives, they can agree to refer the dispute to arbitration and the validity of the award is not affected by the fact that the minor members of the firm did not sign the reference to arbitration; Firm Bishambar Mal Pala Mal v. Firm Ganga Sahai Nihal Chand, 5 L. L. J. 5: 71 I. C. 734: A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 212.

Suit against firm—One partner cannot refer the case to arbitration so as to bind others.—Or. XXX, r. 1, sub-cl. (2) does not empower one partner to refer a case to arbitration so as to bind the other partners who have not agreed to or joined in the application for reference. It could never have been in the contemplation of the Legislature to make an agreement for reference to arbitration by only one of the partners binding on all the partners, merely because the suit is against the firm as such; Gopal Das v. Baij Nath, 48 A. 239: 24 A. L. J. 235: 91 I. C. 930 A. I. R. 1926 All. 238.

Title of suit.—The plaintiff who was a minor was described in the title of the plaint as "owner of the shop C." It was stated in para. 4 of the plaint "As the plaintiff the owner of the shop is a minor, this suit is not barred by limitation." The suit was dismissed by the trial Court holding that the plaintiff was the shop and not the minor. Held, the dismissal was wrong.—Ghanbasappa v. Malkappa, A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 368

Verification of plaint.—Two or more persons carrying a business in the name of a firm can institute a suit in the name of the firm itself. When a suit is brought in the name of the firm any of the partners can sign and verify the plaint. It is not necessary that all or even two partners should sign or verify it.—Swarath Ram Ram Saran Ram v. Sarup Lal Ram, 12 A. L. J. 1020.

2. (1) Where a suit is instituted by partners in the name of their firm, the plaintiffs or their pleader shall, on demand in writing by or on behalf of any defendant, forthwith declare in writing the names and places of residence of all the persons constituting the firm on whose behalf the suit is instituted.

(2) Where the plaintiffs or their pleader fail to comply with any demand made under sub-rule (1), all proceedings in the suit may, upon an application for that purpose, be stayed upon such terms as the Court may direct.

(3) Where the names of the partners are declared in the manner referred to in sub-rule (1), the suit shall proceed in the same manner, and the same consequences in all respects shall follow, as if they had been named as plaintiffs in the plaint:

Provided that all the proceedings shall nevertheless continue in the name of the firm. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History and scope.—This rule is new. It has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 2 of the English Rules.

Under this rule, where a suit is instituted in the name of a firm, the plaintiffs or their pleaders shall, on demand by or on behalf of any defendant disclose the names of the partners and in default the proceedings in the suit may be stayed.

Disclosure of partner's names.—If the plaintiff firm has not made a full disclosure of their partners, the proper procedure is not to dismiss the suit, but allow the firm to put in a further declaration making a full disclosure and thus remedy the defect.—Imperial Pressing Co. v. British Crown Assurance Corporation Ltd., 41 C. 581, 585. See also Lakshmansa v. Lakshmansa, 54 B. 285 32 Bom. L. R. 56 124 I. C. 790 : A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 150.

3. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, the summons shall be served either—

Service.

(a) upon any one or more of the partners, or

(b) at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on within British India upon any person having, at the time of service, the control or management of the partnership business there, as the Court may direct; and such service shall be deemed good service upon the firm so sued, whether all or any of the partners are within or without British India :

Provided that, in the case of a partnership which has been dissolved to the knowledge of the plaintiff before the institution of the suit, the summons shall be served upon every person within British India whom it is sought to make liable. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History and scope.—This rule is new, it has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 3 of the English Rules.

This rule provides the mode of service of summonses, notices, etc., in suits concerning a partnership business. Its provisions are somewhat similar to the proviso to S. 74, C. P. Code, 1882.

Service of summons.—This rule prescribes two alternative modes of service of summons in suits instituted against firms. The first mode is by service upon any one or more of the partners. The second mode is by service at the principal place of business of the partnership, within British India, upon the person who has the control or management of the partnership business. If service is effected in either of these modes in accordance with law, there is good service upon the firm as a corporate entity and it is immaterial whether all or any of the partners are within or without British India; Baisnab Charan v. Bank of Bengal, 19 C. W. N. 1008; 19 C. L. J. 581; Adivappa v. Pragji, 26 Bom. L. R. 388. It must be remembered, however, that in the case of service on a partner, it is good service not only upon the firm but also upon the partner personally, though it is not service upon any other member of the firm so as to make such member not served liable in execution proceedings under Or. XXI, r. 50 (1) (c). On the other hand if there has been a service upon the person who has the control or management of the business but is not a partner himself, such service is good service upon the firm but it is not service on any member of the firm so as to make him liable in execution proceedings under Or. XXI, r. 50 (1) (c); In re Ide, 17 K. B. D. 755. Where the mandate to the bailiff is to serve the summons under Or. XXX, r. 3 (b), on the manager or the managing partner of the firm at the place where the firm is carrying on business, and the name of the person to be served is not specified in the summons, it is no duty of the bailiff to deviate from this mandate and attempt to ascertain for himself who the managing partner is or to attempt to serve the summons on such managing partner by affixing it to his residence. Such a service is not proper service under Or. XXX; Manjimal v. Khubchand, 95 I. C. 149; A. I. R. 1926 Sind 208.

Sections 74 and 76, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 11 and Or. V, r. 13), do not apply, where some of the defendants who are interested in the partnership are minors. Those sections are controlled by S. 443, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 3).—Jatindra Mohan v. Srinath Roy, 26 C. 267; 3 C. W. N. 261 (14 C. 204 (F. B.) referred to).

In a suit instituted against a partnership firm, all the members whereof were non-residents at the place in which the business was carried on, service of summons could not be made under S. 80, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 17), on the refusal of the manager of the firm to accept service, by affixing a copy of the summons on the outer door of the house in which the business was located. Section 80, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 17), contemplates that the persons sought to be served should be residing at the house. But service so effected was properly made under S. 74, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. V, r. 11), which contemplates service on the person having management of the business, unless the Court otherwise directs.—Akhoy v. Nagendra, 13 C. W. N. 490.

A person who has been served as a partner and has entered appearance under protest denying that he is a partner, is not entitled to have the question of his partnership tried in the suit. The proper stage to try the question is the execution proceedings.—Jetha Devji & Co. v. Jachir Sing, 26 S. L. R. 228.

Where service has in fact been made upon a partner in a firm, the service is not bad merely because the direction in Or. XXX, r. 3 has not.

been complied with.—Keen Robinson & Co. v. Lily Biscuit Co., 59 C. 496. The words "as the Court may direct" do not occur in the corresponding English rule. If the method of service prescribed by the Court is followed, then prima facie there has been service on the firm.—International Continental Caoutchouc Compagnie v. Mehta & Co., 54 C. 1057; 105 I. C. 356: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 758.

Service in case of suit against a dissolved firm.—An ex parte decree was obtained against a firm which had been sued in the firm's name and served as such with the leave of the Court by registered post. It was alleged in an application to set aside the ex parte decree by the applicant that the summons was not duly served and that the firm had long ceased to carry on business as such firm but was being wound up by the applicant. Held, a suit can be brought against a firm in its firm name even if it be a dissolved firm provided only that the liability arose at a time when the firm was in existence. Under Or. XXX, r. 3, the only way in which such writ can be served is by serving it either upon a partner or by serving it at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on in British India on a person having at the time of service control or management of the partnership business. If r. 11 of Chapter VII of the High Court rules is applied, it is necessary that it should be so applied as to comply with Or. XXX, r. 3; Harjibandas Gordhandas v. Bhagwandas Pursram, A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 390. Where there has been dissolution of the partnership to the knowledge of the plaintiff, he cannot make an outgoing partner liable unless he served the writ of summons upon him. Similarly on the death of a partner his personal estate cannot be made liable unless his legal representative is joined.—Mathuradas v. Ebrahim, 51 B. 986: 105 I. C. 305: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 581. Order XXI, r. 50 (2) is controlled by the proviso to this rule where there has been dissolution to the knowledge of the plaintiff. If the plaintiff was not aware of the dissolution at the time of the institution of the suit, the decree binds all the partners of the firm whether they have been served individually or not.—Gordhandas v. Gautamchand, 27 Bom. L. R. 541: 87 I. C. 1051: A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 331.

Limitation.—Where a suit is instituted against a joint-family firm which has been dissolved before the date of the suit and where one of the partners is served individually the date of institution of the suit as against that partner for the purposes of limitation is the date on which the suit was instituted and not the date on which the said service took place.—Firm of Detaram Ratulal v. Firm of Vishandas Tarachand, 105 I. C. 854: A. I. R. 1928 Sind 57.

"May direct."—The words "may direct" do not indicate express permission.—Akhoy v. Nagendra, 13 C. W. N. 490.

4. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 45 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872, where two or more persons may sue or be sued in the name of a firm under the foregoing provisions and any of such persons dies, whether before the institution or during the pendency of any suit, it shall not be necessary to join the legal representative of the deceased as a party to the suit.

Right of suit on death of partner.

(2) Nothing in sub-rule (1) shall limit or otherwise affect any right which the legal representative of the deceased may have—

(a) to apply to be made a party to the suit, or

(b) to enforce any claim against the survivor or survivors. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope.—This rule is new. Section 45 of the Indian Contract Act IX of 1882, to which reference has been made in this rule, runs as follows: "When a person has made a promise to two or more persons jointly, then, unless a contrary intention appears from the contract, the right to claim performance rests, as between him and them, with them during their joint lives, and, after the death of any of them, with the representative of such deceased person jointly with the survivor or survivors, and after the death of the last survivor, with the representatives of all jointly"

This rule has been framed to meet the following rulings under S. 45 of the Indian Contract Act in which it has been held that S. 45 of the Contract Act relates to partners as well as to other co-contractors. In Motilal Bechardass v. Ghellabhai, 17 B. 6 (11) (following 6 B. 700), it has been held that the right to performance of the contract, as far as the other contracting party is concerned, rests just as much with the representative of the deceased partner as with the surviving partner. This case has been approved in Aga Gulam Husain v. Sassoon, 21 B. 412 (421). See also Gobin Prasad v. Chandar Shekhar, 9 A. 486, and Debi Das v. Nirpat, 20 A. 365. In Vaidyanath v. Rangasami, 17 M. 108 (117), it has been held that a surviving partner can sue alone for the recovery of a partnership debt. In Ram Narain v. Ram Chander, 18 C. 86 (90), it has been held that the representatives of a deceased partner must always be made parties to suits as plaintiffs with the surviving partners. See also Maung Shwe v. Ma Lon, 7 R. 558. Order XXX, r. 4 was enacted to set at rest the doubt that existed in connection with S. 45 of the Contract Act and to provide that where two or more persons may sue in the name of the firm and any of such persons dies it shall not be necessary to join the legal representatives of the deceased partner, but it was not intended that the firm name should be deemed to include the personal representatives of a deceased partner. If the legal representatives of a deceased partner are served with the writ of summons though not added as parties to the suit, leave cannot be granted to the plaintiff to levy execution against the private estate of the deceased partner under Or. XXI, r. 50 (2). If the suit is brought against a firm in the firm name with the knowledge that the firm has been dissolved by death of a partner, the suit as framed does not include the legal representatives as parties, and in order to obtain judgment against their private assets as opposed to partnership assets, they should be made parties.—Mathuradas v. Ebrahim, 51 B. 986; Mohamed Yusuf v. Mohamed Sadulla, 57 M. L. J. 344 (F. B.). See also Hars Singh v. Karam Chand, 8 L. 1 : 100 I. C. 721 : A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 115.

On the death of a partner the right to sue in respect of debts due to the firm survives to the surviving partners.—Bal Kissen v. Kanhya, 17 C. L. J. 648 : 21 I. C. 509

One of several joint contractees may sue to enforce his share of the obligation, if the other co-contractees are joined as defendants. As a general rule, all co-contractors ought to be joined as plaintiffs. A suit by one would not be bad if the others are joined as defendants, and if there are good reasons for not joining them as plaintiffs.—Shital Chandra v. Manik Chandra, 9 C. L. J. 331 : 13 C. W. N. 509 (26 C. 409 referred to and followed ; 6 C. L. J. 558, 25 C. 787 referred to).

Applicability of the rule.—Order XXX, r. 4 of the C. P. Code applies only to a case where the suit is brought in the name of the firm.—Monmohan v. Bidhubhusan, 48 I. C. 309 : 23 C. L. J. 268.

Rule 4 is limited in its operation to suits instituted by or against partners in the name of their firm and not in their individual names. Hence in a suit filed by two partners individually, if one of them dies pending suit, but his legal representatives are not brought on the record, the suit shall abate ; Dost Mahomed v. Mohandas, 91 I. C. 573 : A. I. R. 1926 Sind 81.

The rule applies to a suit on a mortgage in the name of a firm.—Utanka Lal v. Tarak Nath, 48 C. L. J. 357.

Where a suit was brought by the individual owners of a firm and a decree having been passed the defendants appealed, and during the pendency of the appeal the defendants died during the pendency of the appeal, and no legal representatives were not substituted, held that Or. XXX, r. 4 applied, and the appeal was not a joint one, and that the decree being a joint one the whole appeal had abated.—Shri Chand v. Bansidhar, 135 I. C. 245 : 30 A. L. J. 219.

5. Where a summons is issued to a firm and is served in the manner provided by rule 3, every person upon whom it is served shall be informed by notice in writing given at the time of such service, whether he is served as a partner or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business, or in both characters, and, in default of such notice, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner. [NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 4 of the English Rules.

Three capacities.—This rule mentions three capacities in which notices may be served : (1) Notice may be as a partner ; (2) or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business ; (3) or in both characters. If the above provisions are not complied with, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner.

Notice in what capacity served.—The present rule provides that the person served with a summons under r. 3 should be informed, by notice in writing given at the time of the service, whether he is served as a partner of the firm or as a person having the control or management of the partnership business or in both characters. In default of notice, the person served will be deemed to be served as a partner.

Appearance under protest.—See r. 8, below.

In the absence of a written notice as to the capacity of the person on whom summons is served, the person served shall be deemed to be served as a partner and if he wants to contest that, he must appear under protest under r. 8; Baisnab v. Bank of Bengal, 19 C. W. N. 1008; 19 C. L. J. 581.

6. Where persons are sued as partners in the name of their firm, they shall appear individually in their own names, but all subsequent proceedings shall, nevertheless, continue in the name of the firm. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 5 of the English Rules.

Meaning.—Rule 6 implies the right of any partner who has been sued against in the name of the firm to appear in the suit, and if any partner considers that his rights will not be adequately represented by the other partner who has been impleaded or that his interest is adverse to that of the other partner it is just and fair that he should be allowed to appear individually and resist the claim.—Sital Prasad v. Peary Lal, 29 A. L. J. 1212; A. I. R. 1930 All. 701.

"Individually."—Under Or. XXX, r. 1 of the C. P. Code, a plaintiff suing a firm is entitled to know who the persons are who constitute that firm and the information cannot be withheld. Held also, that the word "individually" in r. 6 is not synonymous with "in person": no partner can service in for Co. v.

Shamas Din & Co, 78 P. R. 1918; 155 P. W. R. 1918; 47 I. C. 422; Lal Chand v. Firm of Dwarka Dass Badri Parshad, 103 I. C. 528; A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 528. Where in a suit against a firm, summons was served on a person as partner and not in his individual capacity, and that person filed a written statement in his own name and not as a representative of the firm, but there was nothing individual in the defence, it was held that it was only a technical flaw which could be corrected even at the stage of argument by amending the written statement and converting it into one for the firm.—Pokhardas v. Seivaram, A. I. R. 1929 Sind 192.

"All subsequent proceedings shall continue in the name of the firm."—In every suit against partners sued in the firm's name, the plaint and all subsequent proceedings must be headed with the firm's name as defendants; Ajit Sing v. Grunning & Co., 27 Bom. L. R. 998; A. I. R. 1925 Bom. 494; Pulin v. Mahendra, 34 C. L. J. 405; 67 I. C. 10.

7. Where a summons is served in the manner provided by rule 3 upon a person having the control or management of the partnership business, no appearance by him shall be necessary unless he is a partner of the firm sued. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 6 of the English Rules.

8. Any person served with summons as a partner under rule 3 may appear under protest, denying that he is a partner, but such appearance shall not preclude the plaintiff from otherwise serving a summons on the firm and obtaining a decree against the firm in default of appearance where no partner has appeared. [New.]

Appearance under protest.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from English Or. XLVIII-A, r. 7.

Appearance under protest.—The plaintiff filed a suit against the defendants and served the summons on one N as a partner in the defendants' firm. N entered an appearance under protest and filed a written statement denying that he was a partner in the defendants' firm. The plaintiff got an ex parte order for adjournment of the suit in order that he might serve a duplicate writ of summons on the defendants. N applied that the order should be vacated and that the suit should be placed on board for trial of the issue whether he was a partner in the defendants' firm. Held, that the order for adjournment should stand in order to enable the plaintiff to serve the summons on the defendants' firm; and that N had the right to have the question whether he was a partner in the defendants' firm decided by the Court.—Vithaldas v. Hansraj, 64 I. C. 688.

Where the plaintiff files a suit against the firm the alleged members of which put in their appearance under protest, he has the option of applying to strike out their names and appearance under protest. If he does not do so but simply obtains a decree against the firm, the defendants are entitled to apply to Court for provision to be made for their costs of appearance in the event of the plaintiff not applying for leave to issue execution against them within a reasonable period or so applying but failing to prove that they are partners.—Kodoomal v. Mangatram, 34 Bom. L. R. 640. Where an appearance is entered under protest, the effect is to nullify the service altogether as regards the defendant firm. A party appearing under protest under this rule is not entitled to file written statement on his own behalf even one denying that he is a partner.—International Continental Caoutchouc Compagnie v. Mehta Co., 54 C. 1057: 105 I. C. 356: A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 758. But he is entitled to take any defence in a proceeding against him under Or. XXI, r. 50, in addition to the defence that he was not a partner of the defendant firm, unless to do so will be to negative the provisions of a rule of procedure.—Chhattoo Lal v. Naraindas, 56 C. 704: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 53.

9. This Order shall apply to suits between a firm and one or more of the partners therein and to suits between firms having one or more partners in common; but no execution shall be issued in such suits except by leave of the Court, and, on an application for leave to issue such execution, all such accounts and inquiries may be directed to be taken and made and directions given as may be just. [New.]

Suits between co-partners.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 10 of the English Rules.

Scope.—Rules 6, 7, 8 and 9 are to be read with r. 50 of Or. XXI, which prescribes the mode of execution of a decree against a firm.

Two firms with common partners.—When all the members of one firm are also members of another, a suit cannot be brought by the one against the other for accounts or for balance due; the proper remedy is a suit for a partnership account.—Pokhardas v. Sewaram, A. I. R. 1929 Sind 192.

Suit against person carrying on business in name other than his own. 10. Any person carrying on business in a name or style other than his own name may be sued in such name or style as if it were a firm name; and, so far as the nature of the case will permit, all rules under this Order shall apply. [New.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule has been taken from Or. XLVIII-A, r. 11 of the English Rules.

Scope of the rule.—This rule applies to a single individual who carries on business under an assumed or trading name other than his own name; and in such case the foregoing rules of this Order will apply to such individual, who may be sued either in his own name, or in the trade name.

Such a person may be sued in his trade name but he cannot sue in that name.—Samrathrai v. Kasturbhai, 127 I. C. 412: 32 Bom. L. R. 212: A. I. R. 1930 Bom. 216; Rampratab v. Gavrishankar, 85 I. C. 464: 25 Bom. L. R. 7. A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 109. If a sole proprietor dies, a suit after his death must be brought against his legal representative and not against him in his trade name.—Ibid; Habib Bux v. Samuel Fitz & Co. Ltd., 23 A. L. J. 961: 89 I. C. 22: A. I. R. 1926 All. 161.

See notes under heading "Any two or more persons" in r. 1, ante.

Application of the foregoing rules.—All the rules of this order relating to suits against firms have been made applicable by the latter part of this rule to suits against a person trading in a name other than his own, so far as the nature of the case will permit.

ORDER XXXI.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

1. In all suits concerning property vested in a trustee, executor or administrator, where the contention is between the persons beneficially interested in such property and a third person, the trustee, executor or administrator shall represent the persons so interested, and it shall not ordinarily be necessary to make them parties to the suit. But the Court may, if it thinks fit, order them or any of them to be made parties. [S. 437.]

Representation of beneficiaries in suits concerning property vested in trustees, etc

COMMENTARY.

Changes.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 437, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for "when."

Definitions—The word "trustee" has not been defined in this Code. For the definition of "trustee," see the Indian Trust Act (II of 1882).

For the definition of the words "executor" and "administrator," see S. 3 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865).

This rule applies only when the contention is between the person beneficially interested and a third party; but it does not apply where the contention is between beneficiaries and trustees or between the beneficiaries themselves.—See Sathianama v. Saravanabagi, 18 M. 266 (272), noted below.

Scope.—This rule applies only where the dispute is between the beneficiaries and a third person. It does not apply where the contention is between beneficiaries inter se. This rule does not purport to have been enacted for the purpose of enumerating the cases in which suits may be brought by or against a person in a representative character; they merely provide a mode of disposing of suits concerning property vested in trustees, executors or administrators.—Raghunandan v. Parmeshwar, 39 I. C. 779; 3 P. L. J. 306.

Representation of beneficiaries.—Having regard to this rule the persons acting as trustees in succession under the will of a Parsi testator, made before Act X of 1866 came into operation, but proved subsequently, adequately represented all persons beneficially interested in the estate in all suits relating to it.—Ardesir Jehangir v. Hira Bai, 8 B. 474.

Under the provisions of the C. P. Code, the representatives of trustees are necessary parties to a suit for the recovery of trust property.—Annapurna Dabee v. Noni Mohun, 7 C. W. N. (S. N.) lxviii (68).

A trustee represents the persons beneficially interested, when the suit is concerning property vested in the trustee, and the contention is between the persons beneficially interested and a third party.—Sathianama v. Saravanabagi, 18 M. 266 (272).

r. 1.

A trustee sufficiently represents the beneficiaries for the purposes of a suit, and the beneficiaries entitled under the declaration of trust need not be made parties.—Beresford v. Ramasubba, 13 M. 197.

An executor of the will of a deceased Mahomedan, since the coming into operation of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), cannot claim to represent the estate of his testator until he has taken out probate.—Fatma v. Essa, 7 B. 266. Reversed in appeal.—See Shaik Moosa v. Shaik Essa, 8 B. 241.

Where a suit for possession was brought by an executor in September 1898 and the names of the beneficiaries who took possession of the estate during the pendency of the suit were substituted as plaintiffs in November 1900. Held, that no new plaintiffs were substituted within the meaning of S. 22 of the Limitation Act.—Janhabi v. Brojo Mohini, 7 C. W. N. 817.

The representatives of a testator are entitled to sue for the enforcement of the due performance of the trusts created by him for religious and charitable purposes, and in which they are not personally interested, but their suit will be dismissed, unless upon their plaint they substantially allege a state of circumstances which, if proved, will constitute a distinct breach of trust.—Brojo Mohun v. Hurrolohl, 6 C. L. R. 53; 5 C. 700.

Where a decree for foreclosure was obtained against S who was the executor of his father's estate, and subsequently A, brother of S, and M, a purchaser of some of the mortgaged properties from A, made an application to be made parties and to redeem: Held, that they were not entitled to be made parties.—Mohananda v. Akhoy Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 488.

A creditor of a deceased debtor cannot sue a person named as executor in the will of the deceased unless he has either intermeddled with the estate or proved the will. An action commenced against the heir-at-law cannot be continued against him after the grant of probate, but the executor must be added as defendant.—Dhirendra Kanta v. Kumar Saradindu, 1 C. L. J. 28-n.

A beneficial owner is not a necessary party for setting aside an execution sale. It is competent to the Court to set aside the sale finally and conclusively as against the beneficial owner although his benamdar only, and not he, is made a party to the proceedings.—Baroda v. Chunder Kanta, 29 C. 682; 6 C. W. N. 706.

In the absence of fraud or collusion the decree obtained against an executor or administrator and the sale thereunder, are binding upon their successors.—Bai Meherbai v. Maganchand, 29 B. 96.

Section 85 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), by reference to this rule, indicates, in very clear terms, who are to be regarded as representatives of persons, and they are trustees, executors and administrators.—Lala Suraj Prosad v. Golab Chand, 23 C. 517 (523); 5 C. W. N. 640.

In a suit by one legatee for a legacy bequeathed to him, the executor may apply for his protection that other legatees may be made parties, and in such a case it is discretionary with the Court to make the addition of parties.—Purshottam v. Kala Gorindji, 26 B. 301.

When a suit for rent was brought against two persons as mutwallis, but one of them who was a minor was not properly served and no guardian was appointed on his behalf: Held, that the mutwallis were trustees and the presence of all of them in the suit was essential, and the suit was properly dismissed for defect of parties.—Syed Abdul Rab v. H. C. Eggar, 12 C. W. N. 160.

Where letters of administration, which were obtained by fraud, are not revoked, the grantee to all intents and purposes alone represents the estate, and his receipts are valid discharges for all monies received by him as administrator.—Debendra Nath v. Administrator-General, Bengal, 12 C. W. N. 802 (P. C.)

In an administration suit by a legatee, the executor is the only necessary party, and the other legatees need not be joined as party defendants—Pramatha v. Suprakash, 58 C. 77 : 132 I. C. 904.

When beneficiaries may be added as parties.—Beneficiaries are made parties when the trustee is either wholly uninterested or has an interest adverse to their interest.—Beresford v. Ramasubba, 13 M. 197; Clegg v. Rowland, L. R. 3 Eq. 368. Where a suit for recovery of possession was brought by an executor, and the names of the beneficiaries, who took possession during the pendency of the suit, were subsequently substituted as plaintiffs, it was held that no new plaintiffs were substituted within S. 22 of the Limitation Act; Jankabi v. Brojo Mohini, 7 C. W. N. 817. The beneficial owner can sue to get the benefit of a decree obtained by his trustee; Juggobundhoo v. Nil Comul, W. R. (1864) 190; but he is not a necessary party to a proceeding for setting aside an execution sale; Baroda v. Chunder Kanta, 29 C. 682 : 6 C. W. N. 706.

2. Where there are several trustees, executors or administrators, they shall all be made parties to a suit against one or more of them :

Provided that the executors who have not proved their testator's will, and trustees, executors and administrators outside British India, need not be made parties. [S. 438.]

COMMENTARY.

Changes.—This rule corresponds to S. 438, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

The word "where" has been substituted for "when" and the word "trustees" has been added before the word "executors" and the words "outside British India" have been substituted for the words "beyond the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court." By the above substitutions the scope of the section has been enlarged.

"Several trustees, executors or administrators."—Under this rule, where there are several executors, they must all be made parties, subject to the proviso that an executor living outside British India need not be made a party. The onus is upon the defendant to show that the executor is living within British India.—Kumar Saradindu v. Dharendra Kant, 2 C. L. J. 434.

Where a Mahomedan testator had by his will appointed three executors only one of whom had acted and got possession of the estate, a suit by the testator's widow for administration of the estate was held sufficiently well constituted for the purpose of a motion for receiver, although only the executor who had acted was made defendant, the other two executors not being parties to the suit.—Hafizabai v. Abdul Karim, 19 B. 83.

In a suit against a temple, all the trustees are necessary parties even though there is an agreement between them authorizing one of them to represent the temple; Adiraju v. Pattu, A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 405 : 77 I. C. 842.

3. Unless the Court directs otherwise, the husband of a married trustee, administratrix or executrix shall not as such be a party to a suit by or against her. [S. 439.]

Husband of married executrix not to join.

ORDER XXXII.

SUITS BY OR AGAINST MINORS AND PERSONS OF UNSOUND MIND.

1. Every suit by a minor shall be instituted in his name—Minor to sue by by a person who in such suit shall be called the next friend. next friend of the minor. [S. 440, PARA. 1.]

COMMENTARY

History.—This rule corresponds to para. 1 of S. 440, C. P. Code, 1882, with some omissions. The last sentence of para. 1 of the old section which ran as follows: "And may be ordered to pay any costs in the suit as if he were the plaintiff," has been omitted.

The second para. of S. 440, was added by S. 53-A of Act VIII of 1890, but that section has been repealed by the present Code, and the provisions contained in Ss. 53, 53-A, 53-B, 53-C, 53-D and 53-E, by which Ss. 440, 443, 446, 461 and 464 of the old Code were amended, have been now incorporated in the present Code in an amended form.

Scope—Order XXXII has no direct application in execution-proceedings and in determining whether a minor is sufficiently represented in execution-proceedings the Court is at liberty to look at the substance of the transaction.—Muhammad Shah v. Nawab, 109 I. C. 521.

Minor.—Section 3 of the Indian Majority Act (IX of 1875) enacts that every person domiciled in British India who has not completed the age of 18 years is in law deemed a minor; but a minor of whose person or property a guardian has been appointed by the Court of Justice or whose property is under the superintendence of a Court of Wards shall attain his majority on completing the age of 21 years.

The age of majority of a European British subject not domiciled in British India is 21 years.—Rohilkhand and Kumaun Bank Ltd. v. Row, 7 A. 490.

When a person, who by his father's will is made a guardian of his minor brother, and obtains probate of the will, such a guardian is not one "appointed by a Court of Justice" within the meaning of S. 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875), and the minor attains majority on his completing the age of 18 years.—Jogesh Chunder v. Umatarra, 2 C. L. R. 577.

party to make the minor at 21 period of majority that such minor would, but for such appointment, have attained majority notwithstanding.
at 18.—Suttya Ghosal v. Suttyanund, 1 C. 388.

The intention of the Legislature to be gathered from S. 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875) would appear to be to extend minority to 21 years of age in cases where at the time the minor reaches the age of 18, his person or property is in the hands of a guardian.—Yeknath v. Warubai, 13 B. 285.

When a guardian has once been appointed to a minor under the provisions of Act XL of 1858 or Act VIII of 1890, the disability of infancy will last till the age of 21, whether the original guardian continues to act or not.—Rudra Prokash v. Bhola Nath, 12 C. 612; Joyram v. Mahadeb, 13 C. W. N. 643; Gordhandas v. Harivalubhdas, 21 B. 281; Sadho Lal v. Murlidhar, 29 A. 672 (F. B.): 4 A. L. J. 597; Khwahish Ali v. Surju Prasad, 3 A. 598. But see Birj Mohun Lall v. Rudra, 17 C. 944. But where the order of appointment is subsequently set aside, the period of minority does not extend to 21 years.—Nagardas v. Anandrao, 31 B. 590: 9 Bom. L. R. 495.

When an order is passed appointing a person to be guardian of a minor, the minor becomes a ward of the Court, even though no certificate be taken out by the person so appointed, and the period of this minority is extended to 21 years.—Girish Chunder v. Abdul Selam, 14 C. 55 (8 C. 714, and 9 C. 901 dissented from, 8 C. 967 followed). See Shivram Kondo v. Krishnabai, 31 B. 80: 8 Bom. L. R. 897.

The words "any other person who has not completed the age of 18 years" in S. 3 of the Probate and Administration Act (V of 1881), read with S. 3 of the Majority Act (IX of 1875), mean any other person not domiciled in British India. Section 3 of Act V of 1881 therefore fixes the limit of the period of disability for the purpose of the Act, not only for persons domiciled in British India, but any other persons whether they be aliens or not.—In the goods of Setonarain, 21 C. 911.

Evidence of minority.—The minority should be decided on positive evidence, and not merely on the appearance of the alleged minor.—Ehetter Mohun v. Ramesur, W. R. (1864) 304; Kalee Halder v. Sree Ram, W. R. (1864) 366.

A certificate of guardianship is not evidence of minority when the question of minority is in issue.—Gunjra Kuar v. Ablakh Pande, 18 A. 478; and Satis Chunder v. Mohendro Lal, 17 C. 849 (followed in Hem Chandra v. Bhobo Prosad, 2 C. L. J. 69-n.).

In a suit to set aside a decree on the ground of minority, the plaintiff relied upon a horoscope to prove his age. Held, that the horoscope was not admissible under S. 32 (b) of the Evidence Act.—Satis Chunder v. Mohendro Lal, 17 C. 849; and Ram Narain v. Monee Bibee, 9 C. 613. These cases have been distinguished in Goundan v. Goundan, 17 M. 134, where a horoscope which had been a public record from ante litem motam was admitted in evidence as an "admission" under Ss. 17 and 18 of the Evidence Act, to prove the plaintiff's age.

An entry in a school register as to the age of a boy is not admissible in evidence to prove the age.—Amrita Lal v. Jatindra Nath, 32 C. 165 (163).

Object of having a next friend or guardian ad litem.—As a minor is considered incapable of prosecuting or defending a suit himself, it is necessary that his interests in the suit should be watched by an adult person. Such person is, in the case of a minor plaintiff, called his next friend, and in the case of a minor defendant, his guardian ad litem. But it must be remembered however that neither the next friend nor the guardian ad litem is a party to the suit.—Rupchand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55.

Representation of minors in suits.—Where a suit was brought by a minor without a next friend, and the objection was not taken until the case came on in appeal, when the plaintiff had attained majority, held, that the irregularity was waived.—Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127; Fuli Bibi v. Khokai, 55 C. 712: 111 I. C. 349: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 537.

Where a suit was brought by a manager appointed by the Court of Wards, on behalf of an infant who had a right to sue, an objection to the manager's authority was disallowed as merely technical.—Hardi Narain v. Ruder Perakash, 10 C. 626 (P. C.).

Where the manager of the estate of a minor authorized the plaintiff, in order to save limitation to institute a suit on behalf of the Court of Wards, which refused afterwards to sanction the proceeding with the suit, held, that the Judge rightly ordered that the suit be rejected.—Biseswar v. Sheshi Shikareswar, 17 C. 688 (P. C.).

Where a suit was filed on behalf of two minors by a person who was not the certificated guardian of the minors, there being a guardian duly appointed by a competent Court in existence at the time, held that the suit was wrongly brought having regard to this rule and that the plaint should have been returned for amendment.—Sham Krishna v. Ram Das, 20 A. 162 (13 C. 189 referred to).

The rule of Mahomedan law, that an uncle cannot be the guardian of the property of a minor, does not prevent an uncle representing his infant nephew, under the Code of Civil Procedure as next friend in a suit.—Abdul Bari v. Rash Behari, 6 C. L. R. 413.

A minor may sue for possession in the Mamlatdar's Court by his next friend although the Mamlatdar's Courts Act (III of 1876) makes no provision for such a suit —Dattatraya Keshav v. Vaman Govind, 21 B. 88.

A minor is not bound by the decree passed in a suit in which he was not properly represented as required by S. 2 of the Bombay Minors Act (XX of 1864).—Vishnu Keshav v. Ram Chandra, 11 B. 130. See also Guru Churn v. Kali Kissen, 11 C. 402, and Sham Lal v. Ghasita, 23 A. 459.

The eldest male member of a joint Mitakshara family, who is of full age, and who may have power to manage the estate, is not the guardian of the minor co-proprietors for the purpose of defending a suit brought against the minors, unless he has obtained a certificate under Act XL of 1858, S. 3.—Durgapersad v. Keshapersad, 8 C. 656 (P. C.): 11 C. L. R. 210 (P. C.); and Sham Lal v. Ghasita, 23 A. 459. But see Padmakar v. Mahadev, 10 B. 21.

Defendant improperly impleaded as a minor—No objection raised by the defendant during suit. Held, that it was not competent to the defendant to sue subsequently for a declaration that the decree was not binding upon him; he is estopped from so doing.—Gangaram v. Mihire Lal, 28 A. 416.

No judgment or order passed in a suit to which a minor subject to the provisions of Act XL of 1858 is a party, will bind him on his attaining majority, unless he is represented in the suit by some person who has taken out a certificate, or has obtained the permission of the Court to sue or defend on his behalf without a certificate.—Mrinamoyi v. Jogodishuri, 5 C. 450 : 5 C. L. R. 361.

Where in a suit it was through a bona fide belief that the plaintiff was described as a minor and was represented by his mother as his next friend, held, that in as much as the suit was instituted by the right person, though through another purporting to act as his next friend, the suit was maintainable.—Narayan v. Dulal, 100 I. C. 469 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 477 ; Taqi Jan v. Obaidulla, 21 C. 866. But see Sheorania v. Bharat, 20 A. 90 at p. 91, where a contrary view was taken.

Sufficiency of the plaint was headed on behalf of the r having been framed in accordance with the provisions of this rule, proceedings were bad in law.—Shonai Bewa v. Monoram, 11 C. L. R. 15. There in a suit and guardian the plaint not

Where a suit is brought in violation of this rule or of the provisions of Act XL of 1858, the proper course for a Court to pursue is to return the plaint in order that the error may be rectified.—Russick Das v. Preonath, 10 C. 102.

Ohurn, 14 C. 754: 32 C. 296 (P. C.): 9 C. W. N. 201: 1 C. L. J. 594.

Where, on a construction of the plaint, it is found that the minor is the real plaintiff, the mere fact of the improper description of the minor is not a ground for setting aside the decree, but the decree must be taken to be in favour of the minor as if the suit had been properly framed.—Alim Buksh v. Jhalo Bibi, 12 C. 48; Bhaba Pershad v. Secretary of State, 14 C. 159 (F. B.); Jogi Singh v. Kunj Behari, 11 C. 509; Kedar Prosunno v. Prolap Chunder, 20 C. 11; Suresh Chunder v. Jugul Chunder, 14 C. 204. But see Ganga Prosad v. Umbica Churn, 14 C. 754.

Estoppel.—A minor, who, representing himself to be a major and competent to manage his affairs, collects rents and gives receipts therefor, is estopped by his conduct from recovering again the money once paid to him, by instituting a suit through a guardian.—Ram Ratun v. Shew Nandan, 29 C. 126; 6 C. W. N. 132. Similarly, a minor, who, representing himself to be of full age, sells certain property and executes a registered deed of sale, is estopped from seeking to have the sale set aside on the ground of his minority at the time of the sale.—Ganesh v. Bapu, 21 B. 198. A Court of equity will deprive a fraudulent minor of the benefit of the plea of infancy; but one who invokes the aid of the Court, must prove not only that the minor practised a fraud on him, but also that he was deceived into action by such fraud.—Brohmo Dutt v. Dharmo Das, 26 C. 381.

Applicability of Or. XXXII to execution-proceedings.—The provisions of Or. XXXII, C. P. Code, relating to "suits by or against minors" have no direct application in proceedings in execution after the rights of the parties have merged in a good and valid decree. The lis in respect of which it is essential that a minor defendant should be represented by a duly appointed guardian is at an end after the decree is passed. In determining whether a minor was sufficiently represented in the execution-proceedings, Courts are at liberty to look at the substance of the transaction; Fani Bhusan v. Surendra Nath, 35 C. L. J. 9; 64 I. C. 25. See also Mateur Rasul v. Abdul Soid, 30 C. W. N. 86; 89 I. C. 765; Bansi Dhar v. Mahammad Suleman, 3 L. L. J. 464; 97 I. C. 181; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 490.

Liability of next friend for costs of the suit.—Where a suit brought by a minor through his next friend is dismissed and the Court finds that the suit was not for the benefit of the minor, the Court may direct the next friend to pay the costs personally.—Geereeballa v. Chunder Kant, 11 C. 213; Venkataraman v. Ponnusami, 106 I. C. 131. But in such a case if the Court finds that there were reasonable grounds for instituting the suit and the next friend has acted in good faith the Court will not make the next friend liable for costs but direct its realisation out of the minor's estate.—Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248.

Where suit is instituted without next friend, plaint to be taken off the file.

2. (1) Where a suit is instituted by or on behalf of a minor without a next friend, the defendant may apply to have the plaint taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the pleader or other person by whom it was presented.

(2) Notice of such application shall be given to such person, and the Court, after hearing his objections (if any), may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit. [S. 442.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—This rule corresponds to S. 442, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the words "where a suit is instituted" for the words "if a plaint be filed" which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

Taking the plaint off the file.—This rule refers to a case where the plaint on the face of it appears to have been filed by a person who was a minor.—Beni Ram v. Ram Lal, 13 C. 189 (followed in 44 M. L. J. 515); Rattonbas v. Chabildas, 13 B. 7.

Where the plaintiff who was a minor brought a suit without a next friend and his minority was not apparent on the face of the record but is proved on the trial of an issue in the suit itself, the Court ought not to dismiss the suit at once but should allow a reasonable time for a next friend to come on the record and go on with the suit and it is only if no one comes forward that it should reject the plaint (13 C. 189 relied on). It is no doubt open to the minor on attaining majority to drop the suit as not properly instituted but he is not bound to do so, he could affirm the previous proceeding and continue the suit; Puppooth v. Manakkal, 74 I. C. 309: 44 M. L. J. 515: A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 553.

The Courts, as a rule, only strike the plaint off the file where it appears, on the face of the plaint, that it was filed by a person who was a minor, or when it is proved that it was filed with the knowledge that the plaintiff was a minor, and with the intention of deceiving the Court, and evading the payment of costs in case the plaintiff fails in the claim. When the fact of minority is a bona fide question of evidence, and the defendant's allegation is found correct, then the usual course is to suspend all proceedings, and to allow sufficient time to enable the minor to have himself properly represented by a next friend.—Rattonbas v. Chabildas, 13 B. 7; Mt. Durga Devi v. Gur Narain, 69 I. C. 401.

Where a minor plaintiff sued without a next friend and the defendant had not appeared but the irregularity was apparent on the examination of the plaintiff; held, that it was the duty of the Judge to take notice of the disregard of the provisions of Or. XXXII, r. 1 and to refuse to proceed further with the case so illegally commenced; Maung San v. Maung Nyi, 3 R. 239: 89 I. C. 870: A. I. R. 1925 Rang. 325; Raja Lohar v. Nur Mohammad, 115 I. C. 456. If the defendant appears and does not object, the Court should not reject the plaint but should allow the plaintiff time to get himself properly represented; Ali Ahmad v. Said Mian, 4 L. 390: 75 I. C. 1028: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 188.

Costs to be paid by the pleader, etc.—Where the plaint in a suit was not framed in accordance with the provisions of S. 440, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, r. 1), the High Court, on special appeal, directed that the pleaders of the original and of the lower appellate Court, should be called upon to show cause why they should not be ordered to pay the costs of the suit and the appeal.—Shonai Bawa v. Monoram, 11 C. L. R. 15.

When a suit is instituted by a minor without a next friend, the pleader or any other person presenting the plaint is liable for costs but the Court should not make a minor's estate liable for costs.—Amichand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B. 334.

Decree in suit instituted by minor without next friend.—Where, in a suit instituted by a minor without a next friend, no objection as to the plaintiff's minority is taken by the defendant and a decree is passed, the defendant will be deemed to have waived his objection. The institution of a suit by a minor without a next friend is not a nullity but is merely an irregularity which can be waived by the conduct of the defendant; Kamalakshi v. Ramasami, 19 M. 127; Fuli Bibi v. Khokai, 55 C. 712: 111 I. C. 349; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 537.

Guardian for the suit to be appointed by Court for minor defendant.

3. (1) Where the defendant is a minor, the Court, on being satisfied of the fact of his minority, shall appoint a proper person to be guardian for the suit for such minor. [S. 443.]

(2) An order for the appointment of a guardian for the suit may be obtained upon application in the name and on behalf of the minor or by the plaintiff.

(3) Such application shall be supported by an affidavit verifying the fact that the proposed guardian has no interest in the matters in controversy in the suit adverse to that of the minor and that he is a fit person to be so appointed.

(4) No order shall be made on any application under this rule except upon notice to the minor and to any guardian of the minor appointed or declared by an authority competent in that behalf, or, where there is no such guardian, upon notice to the father or other natural guardian of the minor, or, where there is no father or other natural guardian, to the person in whose care the minor is, and after hearing any objection which may be urged on behalf of any person served with notice under this sub-rule.

[NEW.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para 1 of S. 443, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The last sentence of para. 1, and the whole of para. 2 of the old section have been omitted.

Sub-rules (2) and (3) correspond to para. 1 of S. 456, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes.

Sub-rule (4) is new. This rule has been inserted to protect the interests of the minor. No order under this rule shall be made unless some one interested in the welfare of the minor is served with notice. It seems to have been framed adopting the principle of Suresh Chunder v. Jugut, 14 C. 204 (F. B.) noted below.

"This is based on S. 443. The Committee think it necessary to ensure that notice should reach one, interested in the minor's welfare, and this rule aims at securing this result. The form of application and notice in conformity with this sub-rule will be inserted in the Schedule of Forms."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Duty of Court to appoint guardian ad litem.—It is the duty of the Court to appoint a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant under Or. XXXII, r. 3, C. P. Code. A person who is merely appointed to conduct a case on behalf of a minor is not a lawfully appointed guardian within the meaning of Or. XXXII, r. 3.—Musst. Barkat Bibi v. Mohamed Amin, 33 P. L. R. 551

A decree passed against a minor without a proper guardian ad litem appointed for him is a nullity.—Jamilennessa v. Ijjatannessa, A. I. R. 1929 Cal. 586 (ref. to 31 A. 572 (P. C.) and explg. 25 B. 337 (P. C.)). No person can be appointed guardian without his consent. At the same time where the Court has given sanction and approval for the appearance of same time where no notice or summons is served on the guardian of the minor, and no order was made appointing a guardian for the minor, and there was no appearance by the so-called guardian at any stage of the proceedings, a decree passed against the minor is not binding on him.—Rani Chhattra Kumari v. Panda Radha Mohan, 66 I. C. 137 : 3 P. L. T. 451 (26 C. L. J. 258, 37 A. 179, 20 C. L. J. 469, 2 P. L. T. 617 relied on). It is the duty of the Judge himself to decide who is the proper person to be appointed as guardian ad litem; Ram Chandra v. Joti Prasad, 29 A. 675.

Where certain persons were sued as partners of a firm, the decree passed in the suit was not bad simply because one minor member of the firm was impleaded as a major when really he was a minor.—Gauri Shankar v. Keshab Deo, 114 I. C. 881 : 27 A. L. J. 204 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 148. But the principle that the manager of a joint family represents the whole family does not apply to a case where a minor member is impleaded as such; in such a case it is the duty of the plaintiff to get a proper guardian appointed for the minor, and if this procedure is not followed the decree passed in the suit cannot bind the minor.—Chandi Prasad v. Balaji, 53 A. 427 : 129 I. C. 560 : 29 A. L. J. 152 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 136.

It has been held that Or. XXXII, r. 3, C. P. C. applies to proceedings taken against a minor in the Revenue Courts under S. 81 of the Agra Tenancy Act.—Madho Singh v. Keshab Deo, A. I. R. 1931 All. 656.

Guardian ad litem.—Appointment of a guardian ad litem other than the certificated guardian is a mere irregularity and would not of itself vitiate either the decree passed or a sale consequent upon such a decree.—Jogeshwar Narain v. Lala Mooraliidhar, 7 C. L. J. 270; Dammar Singh v. Pirbhu Singh, 29 A. 290; Midnapur Zemindary Co., Ltd. v. Gobinda, 8 C. L. J. 31 and 31 A. 7.

There is nothing either in the Code or in any of the authorities to lay down that merely because a person has executed a document or entered into a transaction on behalf of a minor, that same person cannot be validly appointed the minor's guardian ad litem in a suit brought against the minor on the document or the transaction; the question is a question of fact not governed by any hard and fast rule, though in a vast majority of cases the appointment of such a person would be wholly undesirable.—Venkatasomeswara Rao v. Lakshmanaswami, 52 M. 275 (F. B.); 115 I. C. 801: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 213: 29 L. W. 135: 56 M. L. J. 175. The mere appointment of the executant of a document (in this case of the father of the minor who had executed a mortgage bond) is, by itself, not void; the question of prejudice has to be gone into.—Sri Maruthiswamiar v. Subramana, 118 I. C. 831: 29 L. W. 393: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 393.

When the Court is satisfied of the fact of the defendant's minority, it should follow the procedure laid down in this rule instead of dismissing the suit.—Rohilkhand and Kumaon Bank Ltd. v. Row, 7 A. 490.

Where no order of appointment of a guardian ad litem is made under Act XX of 1864, there is no appointment of a guardian ad litem for the purpose of the rule.—Raichand, 5 B. 306.

Where a guardian ad litem has once been appointed, his appointment enures for the whole of the lis in the course of which it has been made, including proceedings in execution and appeal.—Jwala Dei v. Pirbhu, 14 A. 35. See also Venkata v. Alakarajamba, 22 M. 187, where it has been held that the appointment of a guardian ad litem in a Court of first instance enures not only for the term of the proceeding in that Court, but also for purposes of appeal; Krishna Pershad v. Gosta Behari, 5 C. L. J. 434; Shambu v. Kanhaya, 44 A. 619: 20 A. L. J. 599; Bhagelu v. Dharma, 45 A. 623: 21 A. L. J. 591; Zarina Bibi v. Wazuddi, 59 C. 1108.

A guardian ad litem is not a party to a suit or appeal. He is merely named in the record as the person appointed by the Court to look after the interest of the minor. So, where a guardian ad litem of a defendant-respondent is not made a party to an appeal filed by the plaintiff, until after the period of limitation for filing such appeal has expired, the appeal is not for this reason time-barred; Rup Chand v. Dasodha, 30 A. 55; Khem Karan v. Har Dayal, 4 A. 37.

In a suit by a husband for divorce under the Parsi Marriage Act (XV of 1865), a guardian ad litem must be appointed, if the defendant be under 21 years.—Sorabji Cawasji v. Buchooabai, 18 B. 366.

Where an ex parte decree was passed against a minor on the footing that he was a major and objection having been raised in execution a guardian ad litem was appointed and a fresh decree was passed. Held that the suit should be taken to have been instituted against the minor on the date it was originally filed. Held also that the restoration of the case and the appointment of a guardian did not amount to the addition of a new party.—Talib Ali Shah v. Piarey Lal, 128 I. C. 438: 23 A. L. J. 938: A. I. R. 1930 All. 614.

In a suit brought against four brothers two of whom were majors and two minors, the minors were represented by their brother and certificated guardian without his formal appointment as guardian ad litem by the Court on formal application by the plaintiff and a decree was passed against the four brothers, the minors being represented as above by a certificated guardian. Held, that in substance the minors were duly represented in the suit and the decree passed against them was binding upon them, the absence of the formal application being a mere irregularity not affecting the merits of the case.—Satyendra v. Panchanon, 128 I. C. 81 51 C. L. J. 362: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 455.

Where a decree is obtained against a minor without having a guardian appointed for him or with a disqualified person appointed as guardian for him, the result is as if the minor was not represented and the decree must be regarded as a nullity. But where a qualified person was appointed guardian but there was some irregularity in the proceedings or where, on account of the fraud of the opposite party the appointment of one person as guardian was obtained instead of another who would have conducted the case better on behalf of the minor, the decree is not ipso facto a nullity. In such a case the irregularity or fraud must be shown to have prejudiced the minor before he is entitled to appropriate relief.—Gangaraju v. Armilli Satyanarayana, 134 I. C. 188: 34 L. W. 317 A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 674.

The real basis of the binding character of a decree against a minor is the fact of his having been duly represented by a proper person and not the mere existence of a formal order appointing a guardian for him. Even if there is the order but the guardian does not properly represent him, the decree should not be binding.—Musst. Siraj Fatima v. Mahmood Ali, A. I. R. 1932 All. 293 (F. B.): 30 A. L. J. 437.

The mere fact that the guardian did not enter appearance and take steps in connection with the appeal does not of itself show that he was either unable or unwilling to act or that he was guilty of neglect towards the minor.—Zarina Bibi v. Wazuddi, 59 C. 1108.

When defendant pleads minority.—When minority is pleaded as a defence to an action, a guardian should be appointed for the defendant, and a preliminary issue should be framed and tried as to whether defendant is or is not a minor. If the defendant is found to be a minor, a guardian ad litem should be appointed for him; but if he is found to be a major, the guardian appointed for the enquiry should cease to act and then he may conduct his own case.—Kasi Dass v. Kassim Sait, 16 M. 344. See also Purna v. Bejoy Chand, 18 C. L. J. 18: 17 C. W. N. 549; Narsey Tokersey v. Sachindranath, 31 Bom. L. R. 1007. Similarly if a dispute arises as to whether a minor is the legal representative of a deceased party, the Court should appoint a guardian ad litem and decide the matter; Rukmani v. Veerasami, 80 I. C. 942: 47 M. L. J. 370: A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 813.

If there is any doubt as to the minority of the defendant, that question ought to be made an issue in the case and the Court ought to decide whether it is a case in which a guardian ought to be appointed. It is not sufficient for the Court by just looking at the defendant to come to a conclusion that he is not a minor; Ram Gobind v. Sital, 96 I. C. 273: A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 489.

Estoppel.—When a person was sued as a minor by his guardian ad litem, and it appeared that he was in fact a major at the date of the suit, and that he knowingly allowed the guardian ad litem to conduct the defence on his behalf: held that he was bound by the decree passed in the suit, and cannot afterwards sue to set aside the decree and Ramachari v. Duraisami, 21 M. 167.

Where no guardian ad litem appointed.—Where appointment of a guardian ad litem of a minor defendant prescribed by this rule and a decree is passed against him, nullity and it cannot be enforced against him.—Bhura Mal v. 24 A. 383 (F. B.) (14 C. 204 referred to); Dakeshur Pershad v. 25; Hanuman v. Muhammad, 28 A. 137; Daji Himat v. Dhirajra; Rasihdunnissa v. Muhammad, 36 I. A. 168; 31 A. 572; 13 C. W. 6 A. L. J. 822; 11 Bom. L. R. 1225; 19 M. L. J. 631; 3 I. Balkesen v. Tapesur, 17 C. W. N. 219, Lala Rampir v. Thakur (1921) P. 335; 2 P. L. T. 617; Pande Satdeo v. Ramayan, 4 P. L. T. 2 P. 335; 71 I. C. 705, Purna v. Bejoy Chand, 18 C. L. J. 18; 17 C. W. 543; Narendra v. Jogendra, 19 C. W. N. 537, Surendra Nath v. Aghore Nath. 25 C. W. N. 525; 62 I. C. 464; Umapati v. Sheikh Masietulla, 37 C. L. J. 496; 72 I. C. 475; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 692.

Where one of the defendants in a suit for a declaration of a right of way is a minor, and he is not represented by a guardian, the suit ought to be dismissed. No effective decree can be made in the absence of one of the persons jointly interested in the servient tenement; Sadhu Charan v. Indira Mohan, 64 I. O. 90 (25 C. W. N. 249 at p. 252 fold.).

Formal order for appointment not absolutely necessary.—Under this rule the Court is bound, after satisfying itself to the fact of minority, to appoint a proper person to act on behalf of a minor in the conduct of a suit; and this rule should be strictly followed. But where the Court by its action has given its sanction to the appearance of a person as such a guardian, the absence of a formal order of appointment is not necessarily fatal to the proceedings.—Walian v. Banke Behari, 30 C. 1021; 7 C. W. N. 774 (P. C.) (14 C. 204 and 16 C. 40 (P. C.) referred to); Pande Satdeo v. Ramayan, 4 P. L. T. 147; 2 P. 335; 71 I. C. 705. See also Vithaldas v. Dattaram, 26 B. 298; Kedar v. Protap, 20 C. 11; Keshawesarin-dra v. Debendrabala, 4 P. L. J. 213; Hanuman Prasad v. Muhammad Ishaq, 28 A. 137; 2 A. L. J. 615; Midnapore Zemindary Co. Ltd. v. Gobinda, 8 C. L. J. 31; Sures Chunder v. Jugut Chunder, 14 C. 204 (F. B.); Hari v. Bhubaneswari, 16 C. 40 (P. C.); Udhan Singh v. Gurdit Singh, 39 P. W. R. 1919; Kairajmal v. Daim, 32 C. 296 (P. C.); 9 C. W. N. 201; 1 C. L. J. 584; 7 Bom. L. R. 1; 2 A. L. J. 71; 32 I. A. 23; Narain Das v. Ralli Brothers, 61 P. R. 1915; 136 P. W. R. 1915; Sat Deo v. Jai Nath, 9 O. L. J. 141; 67 I. C. 808; Rani Chhattra Kumari v. Panda Radhamohan, 3 P. L. T. 451; 66 I. C. 137; Darshan Singh v. Ratan Lal, 9 O. and A. L. R. 463; 74 I. C. 821; Mata Ghulam Singh v. Sital Prasad, 26 O. C. 113; 74 I. C. 409; Phulli v. Debi Parshad, 5 L. 38; 75 I. C. 449; A. I. R. 1923 Lab. 575; Sadasheo v. Karim, 92 I. C. 241; A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 267. In Ramchandra v. Joti Prasad, 29 A. 675; (1907) A. W. N. 225, it has been held that the duty of the Court is not a mere matter of form. It must not only appoint a guardian but satisfy itself that the proposed guardian is a fit and proper person to represent the minor, to put in a proper defence and generally to act in the interests of the minor.

The failure to issue notice to all parties concerned in the matter of the appointment of a guardian and the misdescription of the nature of the

v. Chinniah, 4 L. W. 362; 36 I. C. 794. An order appointing a guardian ad litem of a minor defendant without giving notice to the minor as required by Or. XXXII, r. 3 (4) is without jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside; Rajendra Prasad v. Prabodh, 2 P. L. T. 116; 6 P. L. J. 82; Rani Chhattra Kumari v. Panda Radha Mohan, 66 I. C. 137; 3 P. L. T. 451; Musst. Barkat Bibi v. Mahomed Amin, 33 P. L. R. 551. But no irregularity by way of an omission to send a notice as required by Or. XXXII, r. 3 (4) will operate to render void the presumed representation of the minor in a suit by a guardian ad litem appointed for him, unless such an omission has in fact prejudiced his defence; Tirumala Charyulu v. Ammisetti, 46 M. L. J. 363; Sukha v. Lachmi, 26 A. L. J. 834; 113 I. C. 829; A. I. R. 1928 All. 621; Shaik Abdul Karim v. Thakur Das, 55 C. 1241; 32 C. W. N. 665; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 844; 113 I. C. 843; Sarfaraz v. Dy. Commr., Gonda, 117 I. C. 475; A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 481.

Order XXXII, r. 3 (4) applies only to cases where an application is made for the appointment of a guardian in the name of or on behalf of the minor or the plaintiff; but when on the death, retirement or removal of a guardian, another guardian is appointed in his place, no such notice is necessary; Sri Thakur Radha Krishna v. Lakshmi Narayan, 1 P. L. R. 86; 2 P. 273; 4 P. L. T. 329; 71 I. C. 341; Phulli v. Debi Pershad, A. R. 1923 Lah. 575; 75 I. C. 449.

Costs—There is no authority in the C. P. O. to award costs personally against guardian ad litem.—Narasimha v. Lakshmi pati, 3 M. 263; Sibt Ahmad v. Na Khatoon, A. I. R. 1929 All. 18.

Sindh r.—Since the amended rule (of 1927) no notice is essential.—When all the next of kin of the minors are parties to the suit and their interests are likely to be affected by the result of the suit, no notice need be issued on such relations.—Musst. with those of the minors, no notice need be issued 101; A. I. R. 1929 Sind 32; 32makulsum v. Ghulam Rasul Khan, 114 I. C.

4. (Any person who is of sound mind and has attained majority may act as next friend of a minor or as his guardian for the suit: [Ss. 445 & 457.]

Provided that the interest of the person is not adverse to that of the minor and that he is not, in the case of a next friend, a defendant, or, in the case of a guardian, the case of a plaintiff.

(2) Where a minor has a guardian appointed or declared by competent authority, no person other than such guardian shall act as the next friend of the minor or be appointed his guardian for the suit, unless the Court considers, for reasons to be recorded, that it is for the minor's benefit that another person be permitted to act or be appointed in the case may be. [Ss. 440 & 443.]

(3) No person shall without his consent act as next friend or guardian for the suit.

(4) Where there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit, the Court may appoint any of its officers to be such guardian, and may direct that the costs to be incurred by such officer in the performance of his duties as such guardian shall be borne either by the parties or by any one or more of the parties to the suit, or out of any fund in Court in which the minor is interested, and may give directions for the repayment or allowance of such costs as justice and the circumstances of the case may require. [S. 456, PARA. 2.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations in the rule.—Sub-rule (1) correspond to Ss. 445 and 457 of the C. P. Code, 1882. The provisions of those two sections have been amalgamated in this sub-rule with some alterations and omissions. The words "nor a married woman can be so appointed," which occurred in the concluding part of S. 457 of the old Code, have been omitted; the omission seems to have been made adopting the views in Asrun v. Sharip, 17 C. 488 (F. B.) and Kuttiali Haji v. Kunhi Putha, 29 M. 59, and to set at rest the conflicting rulings on the point. The case (6 C. L. J. 36 : 11 C. W. N. 176-n) in which a contrary view was taken has been overridden by the above omission. Under the present Code, a married woman may be next friend and may also be appointed as guardian ad litem.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of Ss. 440 and 443, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions. The provisions of those two paras have been amalgamated in this sub-rule with some modifications.

Sub-rule (3) is new. It is based on the principles laid down in Uma Sundari v. Ramji, 7 C. 242 : 9 C. L. R. 13 and in Mulji v. Chhagan, 5 B. 306.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 456, with some modifications.

Construction and scope of rule.—Or. XXXII, r. 4 and other rules as with the provisions of r. 3 of guardians.—Nachiappa v.

It has been doubted whether Or. XXXII, r. 4 can be applied to the case of a Hindu idol.—Shri Gopal v. Krishna Sunder, 27 A. L. J. 1251.

Who may be next friend or guardian ad litem.—If in a suit the personal interest of the next friend of a minor conflicts with his duty towards the minor, he is not competent to act as his next friend unless he shows uberrima fides. In such a case the minor is not properly represented and so the decree in the suit is not binding on him.—Bejoy Singh v. Sm. Mathuriya Debye, 56 I. C. 97.

A person who is to succeed to the property of a minor on his death has an interest adverse to the minors; and, if he is not a blood relation of the minor, he is not qualified to act as next friend or guardian ad litem. If appointed by the Court, his appointment is subject to the condition that he shall not have any interest in the property.—

On the re-marriage of a Hindu widow, if neither she nor any other person has been specially constituted by the will of the deceased husband the guardian of the child, a proper male relative of the deceased husband, should ordinarily be appointed guardian of such child in preference to his re-married mother.—Khushali v. Rani, 4 A. 195.

The rule of Mahomedan law, that an uncle cannot be the guardian of the property of a minor, does not prevent an uncle from representing his infant nephew under the C. P. Code as next friend in a suit.—Abdul Bari v. Rash Behari. 6 C. L. R. 413.

A married woman may act as the next friend of an infant plaintiff.—Asirun Bibi v. Sharif Mondul, 17 C. 488 (F. B.) (11 C. 733 overruled).

Guardian ad litem with adverse interest—Decree if binding on minor.—A minor defendant represented in a suit by a guardian ad litem whose interest is adverse to that of the minor, is not represented at all, and any decree passed in the suit is a nullity so far as the minor is concerned (following Rashid-un-nissa v. Muhammad Ismail, 31 A. 572 (F. C.); 3 I. C. 864); Sellappa Goundan v. Masa Nairan, 47 M. 79; 76 I. C. 1018; A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 297; Kasim v. Habibur, 26 A. L. J. 777 (case of a minor belonging to a joint Hindu family, represented by an undivided brother who was shown to have an adverse interest and it was held that there was no adequate representative and that the decree was liable to be set aside), Chiranj Lal v. Syed Ihas Ali, 46 A. 620; 79 I. C. 556; A. I. R. 1924 All. 751. The appointment of a guardian ad litem whose interest is adverse may not render the decree a nullity in every case—Per Rankin, C. J. in Shark Abdul Karim v. Thakurdas, 55 C. 1241; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 844. A mere defect in following the rule as to representation of minors is not necessarily fatal to the proceedings so as to render void a decree against the minor, Kurpusuami v. Kamalammal, 43 M. 842; 39 M. L. J. 375; Ramasuami v. Doraisuami, 44 M. L. J. 299; 73 I. C. 409; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 465; Venkatachalam v. Paramaswami, 52 M. L. J. 709; A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 668.

Where in a suit to enforce a mortgage executed by the manager of a joint Hindu family he is himself appointed guardian ad litem of the minor members impleaded in the suit, and a decree is passed on confession of judgment, the decree is a nullity as against the minors for the manager was not a proper person to be appointed as a guardian; Murliidhar v. Pitambar Lal, 44 A. 525; 20 A. L. J. 329; 66 I. C. 372.

When a person has executed a document or entered into a transaction on behalf of a minor as his guardian, the appointment of such person as guardian ad litem of the minor in a suit brought against him on the document or transaction in question is not necessarily void without any enquiry into the particular circumstances of the case. It is a question of fact governed by no hard and fast rule of law and there is nothing either in the Code or in any of the authorities to lay down not merely that such a person should not as a rule be appointed but cannot in any circumstances be validly appointed; Mudduri Venkatasomeswara Rao v. Lakshmanaswami, 52 M. 375 (F. B.); 115 I. C. 801; A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 213; 29 L. W. 125; 56 M. L. J. 175. See also Sri Maruthi v. Subramania, 118 I. C. 831; 29 M. L. W. 993; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 393.

"Guardian appointed or declared by competent authority."—Section 47 of the Indian Succession Act not being applicable to Hindus, a Hindu father has no statutory power to appoint a guardian to his son after his death. The words "competent authority" in this rule do not include the case of a Hindu father purporting to appoint a guardian under his will. Order XXXII, rr. 1 and 4 do not apply to all guardians, as they cannot apply to natural guardians.—Budhial v. Morarji, 31 B. 413 : 9 Bom. L. R. 553. See, however, Shahu v. Hapiya, 17 B. 560, and In the matter of Srish Chunder Singh, 21 C. 206. In Midnapore Zemindari Co., Ltd. v. Gobinda, 8 C. L. J. 31; and in Dammar Singh v. Pirbhu Singh, 21 A. 290 : 4 A. L. J. 155, it has been held that where the Court acts in contravention of the provisions of rule 4 and overlooking the claims of the certificated guardian appoints some body else guardian of the minor, it is a mere irregularity and the decree and sale thereunder is not void. But it was held in Bhimaji v. Rajabhai Hussain, 39 M. L. J. 239 : 43 M. 803 : 59 I. C. 842 (following 31 A. 572 (P. C.) and 32 C. 296 (P. C.)), that a decree passed against a minor defendant is illegal and liable to be set aside where in spite of the fact, that he had already a Court guardian validly appointed for him the Court appointed another person as his guardian ad litem and passed the decree. See also Sridhar Rao v. Ram Lal, 31 A. 7, and Jogeshwar Narain v. Lala Moorallidhar, 7 C. L. J. 270; Bhimaji v. Rajabhai Hussain, noted ante.

The omission to record reasons under Or. XXXII, r. 4 (2) for the appointment of a Court guardian is only an irregularity and will not by itself vitiate the decree if the minor is in fact properly represented by a guardian appointed by Court. Where, however, the appointment of a guardian is secured by fraud and by false statements and concealment of material particulars, the minor is not bound by the decree passed in the suit or by the sale held in execution of the decree (37 A. 179 followed): Puppooth v. Manakkal, 74 I. C. 309 : 44 M. L. J. 515 : A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 553.

"Another person be permitted to act."—It is not necessary that the permission should be express.—Sridhar Rao v. Ram Lal, 31 A. 7.

No person can be appointed next friend or guardian without his consent.—No person can be appointed a guardian ad litem without his express consent. The question whether the person so appointed consented to act will always be one of importance on the merits.—Radhashyam v. Ranga Sundari, 24 C. W. N. 541. Where the mother of an infant is appointed guardian ad litem without her consent the decree obtained in the suit is liable to be set aside on appeal.—Narendra v. Jogendra, 19 C. W. N. 537 : 20 C. L. J. 469; Umapati v. Shiekh Moseetulla, 72 I. C. 475 : 37 C. L. J. 496; Shroof Sahib v. Ragunatha Sivaji, 18 M. L. T. 401 (17 C. W. N. 219, 35 A. 487 followed). A guardian who has not consented to act as such, is no guardian at all, and the decree is invalid irrespective of any question of prejudice, because the minor has not been represented in the suit; Narendra v. Jogendra, 19 C. W. N. 537; Burendra v. Aghore, 25 C. W. N. 525 : 62 I. C. 464; Shaikh Sajjad v. Sakal Rai, 2 P. 7 : A. I. R. 1922 Pat. 448; Jagadis v. Harihar, 40 C. L. J. 39 : 78 I. C. 219 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1043; Sriramulu v. Lakshminarayana, 47 M. 783 : A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 30; Satishchandra v. Hashemali, 54 C. 450 : 103 I. C. 124 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 489. See also Shaikh Sajjad v. Sakal Rai, 2 P. 7 : 72 I. C. 637 (dissenting from 43 A. 104; 59 I. C. 671).

Where the proposed guardian of a minor does not signify his consent, the Court should not, in contravention of the express direction of Or. XXXII, r. 4 (3), C. P. Code, appoint him as guardian for the suit. When a person has been appointed guardian without his consent, the infant is not represented and a decree made in a suit so constituted has no binding effect (33 C. 296). The provision as to the consent of the person proposed to be appointed guardian of the suit is mandatory and imperative. Order XXXII, r. 4 (3) controls both sub-rules (1) and (2) and places a material restriction upon the power which the Court may exercise thereunder. Order XXXII, r. 4 (3) is applicable as well, to cases under sub-rule (1) as to cases under sub-rule (2). No person who is competent to act as a guardian of an infant either under sub-rule (1) or under sub-rule (2) shall be appointed guardian of the suit without his consent; Annada Prasad v. Upendra Nath, 34 C. L. J. 293: 26 C. W. N. 781.

The consent referred to in this rule may be either express or implied.—Baij Nath v. Radharaman Prasad, 43 I. C. 563; Chatter Singh v. Tej Singh, 43 A. 104: 18 A. L. J. 956: 59 I. C. 671; Jawahar Singh v. Sewa Singh, 5 L. L. J. 487 (followed in Mallayya v. Punnamma, 47 M. 476: 77 I. C. 628). The consent of the guardian ad litem may be presumed from the fact that he accepted the summons in the suit; Venkatachalam v. Paramasivam, 52 M. L. J. 709: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 668. Consent being a question of fact, evidence as to consent may be indirect and circumstantial, or it may be proved by conduct; Sriramulu v. Lakshminarayana, 47 M. 783 (F. B.): 83 I. C. 312: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 30; Jawahar Singh v. Sewa Singh, 5 L. L. J. 487: 79 I. C. 572: A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 97.

In the absence of a provision in the old C. P. Code of 1882, corresponding to Or. XXXII, r. 4 (3) of the present Code, where a certificated guardian was proposed for appointment as guardian ad litem, the Court might unless he declined the appointment, presume his consent.—Sarat Chandra v. Bibhabati, 34 C. L. J. 302; Thakur Tajeswar v. Lakhan Prasad, 2 P. 296: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 231; Chattar v. Tej Singh, 43 A 104: 59 I. C. 671; Sriramulu v. Lakshminarayana, 47 M. 783 (F. B.): 83 I. C. 312: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 30, Saryu Singh v. Dhaniram, 2 Luck. 707: A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 560.

The contravention of the provisions of Or. XXXII, r. 4 (3), does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to decide the case.—Pande Saldeo Narain v. Ramayan Tewari, 4 P. L. T. 147: 2 P. 335.

Neither Act XX of 1864 nor the C. P. Code, empowers any Court to appoint a person against his will to be a next friend, guardian ad litem, or guardian of the person of a minor.—Jadow Mulji v. Chahagan Rai Chand, 5 B. 306.

Wishes of minor—Whether should be considered.—In appointing a guardian ad litem for a minor defendant, it is desirable if possible, that the Court should consider the wishes of the minor as to the person who should be appointed; Rajendra Prasad v. Prabadh, 2 P. L. T. 116: 6 P. L. J. 82; Sri Thakur Radha Krishna v. Lakshmi Narayan, 2 P. 273: 1 P. L. R. 86: 4 P. L. T. 329; Sadaqat Ali v. Muhammad Sajjad Ali, 113 I. C. 901: 30 P. L. R. 17: 11 L. L. J. 180: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 257.

"Where there is no other person fit and willing to act."—Where the Court appointed a Court guardian without funds, to represent a minor defendant when there was a natural guardian available, and ordered the minor to deposit all the costs of the plaintiff before his application to set aside the ex parte decree passed against him could be considered, held, that the order was bad and must be set aside; Rajamanika v. Venkataramana, (1926) M. W. N. 8: 93 I. C. 84: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 950.

Court can appoint any of its officers guardian ad litem.—An officer of the Court who has been appointed guardian ad litem should not be paid for his trouble.—Kerakoose v. Serle, 3 M. I. A. 329. But where the Court appoints an officer of the Court as guardian ad litem of the minor defendant, it must require the party who gets him appointed, to make a deposit for the purpose of defending the case; Rajamanika v. Venkataramana, (1926) M. W. N. 8: 93 I. C. 84: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 950; Mohan Lal v. Ganga Prasad, 45 A. 395: 71 I. C. 975: A. I. R. 1923 All. 298.

A Court can appoint an officer of Court as guardian, only when there is no other person willing to act as guardian—Nachiappa Chetty v. Chinniah Ambalam, 36 I. C. 794 (37 A 179 followed); Dinabandhu v. Mashuda, 16 C. L. J. 318: 17 I. C. 263. It has however been said that the appointment of a Court nazir as the guardian of a minor is objectionable because Court officials have neither the time nor the opportunity to do justice to the cause of minors.—Mahomed Ismail Khan v. Abdul Ghaffar Beg, 6 O. W. N. 1060.

It is necessary for the Court to be satisfied before appointing a Court guardian that there is no other person fit and willing as such guardian; but it cannot be said that because there was no such enquiry by the Court the appointment itself was null and void and the minor was not properly represented.—Htendra Narain v. Sukhdeb, 8 P. 558: 115 I. C. 886: 10 P. L. T. 79: A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 360. The Deputy Registrar who was appointed guardian ad litem of the minor respondents might be appointed to represent them in proceedings for obtaining leave to appeal to the Privy Council, but upon the admission of the appeal he ceases to represent them, the High Court cannot provide for their representation in an appeal to the Privy Council.—B. 55 C. 759: 106 I. C. 867: A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 236.

The Court has power to relieve the nazir of his position as a guardian when the nazir has no funds for the purpose of conducting adequately the defence of the minor.—Gopilal v. Agarsingji, 23 B. 626.

A Vakil is an officer of the Court for purposes of Or. XXXII, r. 4 (4); Mohan Lal v. Ganga Prasad, 45 A. 395: 71 I. C. 975: A. I. R. 1923 All. 298.

Where a clerk of the Court is appointed as a Court guardian of a minor defendant after his father's expression of unwillingness to act as guardian on an affidavit to the effect that there was no other principal guardian for the minor defendant, a decree obtained against the minor is not bad on the ground of his non-representation if it is not shown that the plaintiff procured the appointment of the Court guardian by collusion and false affidavit; Venkata Lakshmikantaraju Garu v. Peda Venkata, 46 M. L. J. 12.

In a suit against several defendants one of whom was an infant, his mother on being proposed as guardian appeared through a pleader and stated that she could not act unless the name was corrected which not being done, she did not defend the suit on behalf of the infant. Held, the mother could not be forced to accept the guardianship (15 C. L. J. 3 followed). If she declined to accept the guardianship for reasons, technical or otherwise, the proper course to follow was to appoint an officer of the Court to conduct the defence on behalf of the infant; Surendra Nath v. Aghore Nath, 25 C. W. N. 525: 62 I. C. 464.

A Sub-Judge who, under this rule appoints the nazir or any other officer of his Court to act as a guardian of a minor plaintiff or defendant in a suit in his Court, has no jurisdiction to hear it, and pass a decree against that officer as guardian ad litem of the minor.—Mohan Iswar v. Haku Rupa, 4 B. 638 (4 Bom. 642-note, followed). But see Issur Chunder v. Nobo Kristo, 7 C. L. R. 407; Babaji v. Maruti, 11 B. H. C. R. 182.

There is no power in the Court to order a plaintiff to pay a fee for the purpose of enabling the nazir who has been appointed guardian ad litem, to put himself in communication with the natural guardians and other friends, but the Court may refuse to go on with the suit, if it should be of opinion that the nazir has been unavoidably prevented from making himself acquainted with the case against the minor.—Narayan Das v. Saheb Hussain, 12 B. 553. But the Court guardian should be afforded facilities to communicate with the minor and his relatives in order to file a written statement and produce evidence and should be provided with funds to defray the costs to be incurred by him in the performance of his duties.—Brij Raj Saran v. Alliance Bank of Simla, 110 I. C. 346.

Whether Or. XXXII, r. 4 applies to non-contentious probate proceedings—Order XXXII, r. 4, does not apply to a non-contentious proceeding in Probate. But where minors are concerned and citations are issued to them, it is necessary for the protection of their interest for the Court to be satisfied not only that a guardian has been appointed but also that he has consented to accept the appointment and take upon himself the onus that by virtue of the appointment falls upon him on behalf of the minors; Sachindra Narain v. Hyonmoyee, 59 I. C. 435; Radhashyam v. Ranga Sundari, 24 C. W. N. 541: 59 I. C. 664.

Leave to sue or defend on behalf of a minor.—The effect of S. 3 of Act XL of 1858, read with Or. XXXII, rr. 1 and 4, is that a minor plaintiff must not only always sue by his next friend, but the person representing the minor must either be a certificated guardian, or must obtain the sanction of the Court for the suit to proceed. The mere admission of a plaint by the Court does not sufficiently indicate that sanction is accorded.—Durga Churn v. Nilmoney, 10 C. 134: 13 C. L. R. 369. Permission granted to sue or defend on behalf of a minor should be formally placed on the record. The mere admission of a plaint by the Court does not sufficiently indicate that sanction is accorded.—Mrinamoyi v. Jogodishuri, 5 C. 450: 5 C. L. R. 361; Ganga Prosad v. Umbica Churn, 14 C. 754; Russick Das v. Preo Nath, 10 C. 102: 12 C. L. R. 405. But see Bhaba Pershad v. Secretary of State, 14 C.

159 (F.B.) ; Parmeshar Das v. Bela, 2 A. 503 ; Pirthi Singh v. Lobban Singh, 4 A. 1 ; Luchmiput v. Amir Alum, 9 C. 176 : 12 C. L. R. 22 ; Suresh Chunder v. Jugut Chunder, 14 C. 204 (F.B.) ; Jogi Singh v. Kunj Behari, 11 C. 509 ; Newaj v. Muksud Ali, 12 C. 131 ; Kedar Nath v. Debidin, 4 A. 165 ; Janki v. Dharam Chand, 4 A. 177 ; Aukhil Chunder v. Tripoora Soonduree, 22 W. R. 525. In all these cases it has been held that a written permission to sue is not absolutely necessary ; but the admission of the plaint by the Court sufficiently indicates that sanction has been given.

Procedure where decree passed against a minor is declared not binding on the ground of want of proper representation.—In a decree giving such a declaration, there was a direction to the minor's guardian ad litem to apply for a review of the judgment in the previous suit in which the invalid decree was passed ; held, that the direction as to review was inappropriate, but that it was open to the Court in which the invalid decree was passed to reopen and proceed with the suit and that it was not a case in which the minor was being for the first time sought to be added as a party.—Raghunatha v. Ghonnu, (1928) M. W. N. 275.

Oudh rule.—In the Province of Oudh the consent of the guardian need not be express ; the Court, however, cannot presume consent where the her refusal
—Naunihal
Oudh 50.

5. (1) Every application to the Court on behalf of a minor, other than an application under rule 10, Representation of minor by next friend or guardian for the suit sub-rule (2), shall be made by his next friend or by his guardian for the suit.

[S. 441.]

(2) Every order made in a suit or on any application, before the Court in or by which a minor is in any way concerned or affected, without such minor being represented by a next friend or guardian for the suit, as the case may be, may be discharged, and, where the pleader of the party at whose instance such order was obtained knew, or might reasonably have known, the fact of such minority, with costs to be paid by such pleader.

COMMENTARY.

History.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 441, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal changes only.

Sub-rule (2) exactly corresponds to S. 444, C. P. Code, 1892.

"Every application."—The words mean every application in connection with the lis ; where a person the appointment is to be treated a proceedings.—Shantabai v. Larm.

A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 185 (dissenting from A. I. R. 1921 Cal. 476 and A. I. R. 1925 Cal. 23).

Effect of an application without next friend or guardian.—Under Or. XXXII, r. 5, no order affecting a minor can legally be made without such minor being represented by a next friend. Neither r. 2 nor r. 5 gives any authority to a Court to make a minor's estate liable for costs.—Amichand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B. 234.

The words "may be discharged" imply that the Court's power is discretionary—Doorga Mohun v. Tahir Ally, 22 C. 274. Rule 5 (2) by its wording gives a discretionary power to the Court and if, therefore, there is already some adult on the record, for example, the manager of the joint-family who does adequately represent the estate and its interests, the mere omission to appoint a guardian for the minor will not invalidate the proceedings; Ramanathan v. Ramanathan, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 275.

In order that the Court's order may be binding on the minor it is necessary that he should be properly represented at the time the order is made.—Mrinamoy v. Jogodishuri, 5 C. 450; Vishnu v. Ramchandra, 11 B. 130; Daji Himat v. Dhirajram, 12 B. 18; Ganga Prosad v. Umbica Churn, 14 C. 754; Jungee Lall v. Sham Lall, 20 W. R. 120; Durga Persad v. Kesho Persad, 8 C. 656, 662 (P. C.); Radha Kristo v. Ram Chunder, 11 W. R. 300; Russick Das v. Preonath, 10 C. 102; Sham Lal v. Ghasita, 23 A. 459.

Under S. 3 of Act (XL of 1858), the Civil Court has no power to refuse to admit a person who has obtained a certificate under the Act to defend a suit on behalf of the minor as his guardian.—Baldeo Das v. Gobind Shankar, 7 A. 914.

A suit was instituted in a mofussil Court against two defendants, one of them being a minor. Before a guardian ad litem had been appointed for the defendant, an application was made to the High Court through a next friend to transfer the case from the mofussil to the High Court. Held, that the application was not informal, and could be made through the next friend.—Jotendronauth v. Raj Kristo, 16 C. 771.

A person who is not a guardian for the suit but who is interested in the minor must be allowed to appear on behalf of the minor to prosecute an application for setting aside a sale held in execution of a decree against the minor if he can show that the guardian ad litem had been neglecting his duties.—Shantabar v. Laxmichand, 26 N. L. R. 173; 124 I. C. 247; A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 185.

Where the general attorney of a minor's guardian taking advantage of his position as attorney instituted a suit on his own behalf and on behalf of the minor's guardian without the latter's knowledge or permission; held that the minor was not properly represented and the judgment was not binding on him.—Ram Das v. Dwarka Dds, 128 I. C. 763; A. I. R. 1930 All. 875.

A next friend of an infant is entitled to an order for change of attorney on the same terms as any other litigant sui juris. So long as he continues to be the next friend, he is entitled to appoint and change his own solicitor.—Dinendra Nath v. T. H. Wilson & Co., 5 C. W. N. 434.

Pleader's liability for costs.—Where the plaint in a suit by minors was not framed in accordance with the provisions of rr. 1 and 4, the High Court directed that the pleader who filed the original suit, and the pleaders who filed the appeal in the lower Court, should be called upon to show cause, why they should not be ordered to pay the costs of the suit and of the appeal.—Shonai Bewa v. Monoram Mundul, 11 C. L. R. 15.

6. (1) A next friend or guardian for the suit shall not, without the leave of the Court, receive any money or other moveable property on behalf of a minor either—

Receipt by next friend or guardian for the suit of property under decree for minor.

(a) by way of compromise before decree or order, or

(b) under a decree or order in favour of the minor.

(2) Where the next friend or guardian for the suit has not been appointed or declared by competent authority to be guardian of the property of the minor, or, having been so appointed or declared, is under any disability known to the Court to receive the money or other moveable property, the Court shall, if it grants him leave to receive the property, require such security and give such directions as will, in its opinion, sufficiently protect the property from waste and ensure its proper application.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This section exactly corresponds to S. 461, C. P. Code, 1883.

Joint Hindu family.—The managing member of a joint Hindu family governed by the Mitakshara School, who is also appointed guardian ad litem of his minor brother for the purpose of a rent suit, in which both the brothers obtained a decree for arrears of rent against their tenant, is exempt from the restrictions imposed by this rule.—Harihar Pershad v. Mathura Lal, 35 C. 561; 12 C. W. N. 598; 8 C. L. J. 256. But on the other hand, a later decision of the Privy Council has decided that a managing member of a joint Hindu family, if he is also a next friend or guardian, is subject to the control of the Court, and that he cannot do any act in his capacity of manager for which the leave of the Court would have been necessary if he had acted as next friend or guardian; Ganesha v. Tuljaram, 36 M. 295 (P.C.); 40 I. A. 132; 19 I. C. 515. See also Narayanan v. Srinivasan, (1930) M. W. N. 1240 (ref. to 29 I. C. 475 and 47 M. 920; and following 36 M. 295 (P. C.)). So where payment under a decree passed jointly in favour of a minor and of the manager of a joint Hindu family was certified by the manager alone as the next friend of the minor, the Court refused to record the payment on the ground that the leave of the Court had not been obtained; Pitchakkuttiya v. Doraiswami, A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 230; 47 M. L. J. 493; 82 I. C. 583.

Whatever may be the case as regards a compromise without the leave of the Court under Or. XXXII, r. 7, as regards a valid discharge the question must always be a construction of the decree in each case as to whether the manager has or has not the power to receive payment; where a redemption decree provided that the manager might receive certain amounts on behalf of the minors on giving security, it was held that he was competent to receive the payments with the sanction of the Court and give a valid discharge.—Murlidhar v. Shivram, 31 Bom. L. R. 963; A I. R. 1929 Bom. 382.

A Court cannot, under this rule, order payment of money to a person not appointed guardian ad litem by any competent authority without demanding security from him.—Krishna Aiyar v. Chakrapani, 29 I. C. 475 (31 B. 418; 9 Bom. L. R. 553 followed).

"The Court shall give such directions."—The order for attachment of a surety's property under Or. XXXII, r. 6 cannot fall within the words "such directions as will, etc." The legislature could not have intended to include such a large power as that of attaching the property of a person not a party to any suit or decree within the cognizance of the Court under the category of mere directions.—Nadanaligi v. Angad, (1917) M. W. N. 490: 39 I. C. 928.

7. (1) No next friend or guardian for the suit shall, without the leave of the Court, expressly recorded in the proceedings, enter into any agreement or compromise on behalf of a minor with reference to the suit in which he acts as next friend or guardian.

Agreement or compromise by next friend or guardian for the suit.

(2) Any such agreement or compromise entered into without the leave of the Court so recorded shall be voidable against all parties other than the minor. [S. 462.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 462, C. P. Code, 1892, with this modification, that the words "expressly recorded in the proceedings" have been added after the words "without the leave of the Court." The above addition has been made in accordance with several rulings of the Privy Council and of the High Courts noted below. By the addition of the above words the cases in which it was held that when the Court permits a compromise, it must be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary that it gave due consideration to the matter, have been superseded.

Object and scope.—The provisions of this rule have been adopted from the rule previously laid down by the Privy Council and are intended to protect the interests of minors.—Rajagopal v. Subramanya, 3 M. 103, 104; Sharat Chunder v. Kartik Chunder, 9 C. 810; Moulvi Abdool v. Mozuffer Hossain, 16 W. R. P. C. 22. A suit relating to the estate or person of a minor and for his benefit has the effect of making him a ward of Court and no act can be done affecting the minor's property unless under the sanction of the Court. The provisions of this rule apply.—Doraswami v. Thungaswami, Or. XXXII, r. 7 do not apply and no which is made on behalf of a minor by the Court of Wards.—Mahomed Shah v. Ghulam Mustafa Shah, 123 I. C.

693 : A. I. R. 1930 Sind 217. Before a compromise decree can be passed in a suit to which a minor is a party it is necessary to take the following steps, viz., (1) an application by the next friend or guardian ad litem to compromise the suit, (2) the granting of permission by the Court to so compromise and (3) the consent of the next friend or guardian to the proposed compromise after the Court's leave is obtained; Aman Singh v. Narain, 20 A. 98. The Court cannot force compromise upon a minor against the wishes of the guardian ad litem or next friend, Hemangini v. Bhagwati, 27 C. W. N. 792; 75 I. C. 682; A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 685; but if the guardian or next friend appears to be refusing to consent to an arrangement which is likely to prove beneficial to the interests of the minor, the Court may take steps for his removal and appoint some other person; Hemangini v. Bhagwati, 27 C. W. N. 792. Where a compromise has been entered into on behalf of a minor and sanction for that compromise has been duly granted under Or. XXXII, r. 7, C. P. C. the permission contemplated by S. 29 of the Guardian and Wards Act is not necessary.—Chet Ram v. Bhum Sam, 122 I. C. 103 31 Punj. L. R. 131; A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 250.

The provisions of the C P Code do not apply en bloc to Courts constituted under the Land Revenue Act. Where an elder brother of a minor entered into a compromise on behalf of the latter in mutation proceedings without leave under Or. XXXII, r. 7; held that this compromise was not bad.—Silla Prasad v. Sarju, 136 I. C. 254; A. I. R. 1932 Oudh 44.

Want of sanction makes the compromise a nullity, so far as the minor is concerned.—Mundakath v. Vishnu, 136 I. C. 350; A. I. R. 1932 Mad 303.

If a guardian has wrongly settled a suit out of Court, that may be a ground for further steps being taken, but that must be at the instance of the minor after he attains majority or a next friend or a guardian during minority; the attorneys who received instructions from the guardian who compromised cannot go behind their instructions.—Abu Baker v. Amiabai, 34 Bom. L. R. 614.

"Without the leave of the Court expressly recorded in the proceedings."—In giving permission to compromise a suit on behalf of a minor, it is usual and desirable that the Court should record an order stating that it considers the compromise to be for the benefit of the minor, but such an order is not essential to the validity of the compromise. The addition of the words "expressly recorded in the proceedings" in Or. XXXII, r. 7 has not changed the pre-existing practice under S. 462 of the old Code.—Bejoy Singh v. Mathuriya Debya, 56 I. C. 97; Ishan Chandra v. Nitratan, 2 P. 538; 4 P. L. T. 311; 1 P. L. R. 217. But see Hanuman Rai v. Jagdis Rai, 35 I. C. 675. The leave must be express, not implied; Rajagopal v. Muttupalem, 3 M. 103; Shorat v. Kartick, 12 C. L. R. 453; 9 C. 810; Rameswar v. Ram Bahadur, 5 C. L. J. 175; 11 C. W. N. 178 (P. C.). The sanction of the Court to a compromise cannot be inferred merely from the fact that the Court passed a decree in accordance with the compromise; Manohar Lal v. Jadunath, 23 A. 285; Partab v. Bhabuti Singh, 35 A. 487 (P. C.); 40 I. A. 182; 21 I. C. 238; Sharat v. Kartick, 9 C. 810; Ramgulam v. Durga Pershad, 6 P. L. J. 190; 60 I. C. 930; Har Sarup v. Tohfa Singh, 111 I. C. 156; A. I. R. 1923 All. 534. In order to show that the provisions of the rule have been complied with there ought to be evidence that the attention of the Court was directly called to the fact that a minor was a party to the compromise, and it ought to be shown clearly that the leave of the Court was obtained; the fact that the minor was so described and appearing by a guardian, that the compromise was before the Court and that the Court acted upon the agreement are not sufficient for the assumption that the Court granted leave.—Banwari v. Jamna, 125 I. C. 587: 29 A. L. J. 76. But an order of the Court sanctioning a compromise need not, on the face of it, state in so many words that the Court had considered the terms of the compromise and regarded them to be beneficial to the minor; Janki v. Naunihal, 36 P. R. 1917: 39 I. C. 53; Rajagopalan v. Subbarama, (1919) M. W. N. 356: 53 I. C. 354.

Compromise under misapprehension of material facts.—Where it appears that the compromise has been entered into by the parties and sanctioned by the Court, under a misapprehension of material facts, the minor is entitled to have the compromise set aside, and the parties are entitled to be restored to their rights in the former suit as at the time it was effected.—Bibee Solomon v. Abdool Azeez, 6 C. 637: 8 C. L. R. 169; Jhanda Singh v. Lachmi, 56 I. C. 878: 1 L. 344; Badar Din v. Mt. Natho, 11 L. L. J. 14: 30 P. L. R. 116: A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 279.

Materials to be considered by Court in sanctioning a compromise on behalf of a minor.—The Court must exercise its discretion in a judicial manner when sanctioning a compromise on behalf of a minor. If it does, it cannot be set aside in a subsequent suit. What materials the Judge must consider before sanctioning the compromise will depend upon the facts of each case. There is no general rule.—Dhairyasinh v. Kissandas, 23 Bom. L. R. 363: 94 I. C. 104: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 291. Minor's benefit is the test.—Suresh v. Jogendra, 32 C. W. N. 459. There should be an affidavit by the guardian to the effect that the compromise is for the minor's benefit; and in heavy cases there should be an opinion of counsel or else a statement by counsel at the bar that in his opinion the compromise is beneficial to the minor.—Chandulal v. Nagindas, 119 I. C. 663: 31 Bom. L. R. 631: A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 350. Whether sanction should or should not be granted is a matter mainly for the Judge and where granted the compromise should not be set aside unless it is proved that there has been some fraud or misrepresentation inducing it or that the Judge acted under a misapprehension of material fact; in the absence of any proof to the contrary it should be assumed that the Judge duly appreciated and weighed the facts before him.—Chet Ram v. Bhim Sam, 122 I. C. 103: 31 Punj. L. R. 131: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 250; Sudhiredra v. Ranendra, 51 C. L. J. 364: 127 I. C. 785: A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 539. Where the Judge failed to consider whether the compromise was for the benefit of the minor, held that the compromise was not binding on the minor.—Musst. Barkat Bibi v. Mohamed Amin, 33 P. L. R. 551.

In the case of Vaishno Dibi v. Rameshri, 113 I. C. 1 (P. C.): A. I. R. 1923 P. C. 294, their Lordships of the Judicial Committee expressed no opinion on the question whether a compromise entered into on behalf of a minor defendant by his guardian ad litem and duly approved and sanctioned by the Court as being in the best interests of the minor could be impeached by the minor and invalidated on the ground that he had been represented by a person with an adverse interest and so contrary to Or. XXXII, r. 4.

Compromise of execution proceedings.—This rule applies to a compromise of execution proceedings. Hence an adjustment of a decree to which a minor is a party requires under this rule the sanction of the Court.—Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 26 B. 109; the provisions of this section apply to compromises after decree and no adjustment by compromise of a decree by the guardian of a minor can be certified under S. 258, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 2), without the leave of the Court under this rule.—Arunachellam v. Ramanadhan, 29 M. 309; Davud Rowther v. Paramaswami, 35 I. C. 70; 31 M. L. J. 207. See also Ramgulam v. Shamsahar Dass, 5 P. L. J. 379; Gurumallappa v. Mallappa, 22 Bom. L. R. 725; and Sadashiv v. Trimbak, 44 B. 202; 22 Bom. L. R. 266; 56 I. C. 399.

Sanction of Court if necessary to transfer of decree in favour of minor by guardian or next friend.—The next friend of a minor cannot transfer a decree which he had obtained on behalf of the minor, to a third party without obtaining the leave of the Court; Kancherla Kanakayya v. Mulpure Kottayya, 41 M. L. J. 75; 13 L. W. 637. But see Govindarajulu v. Ranga Rao, 40 M. L. J. 124; 13 L. W. 97, where a contrary view was taken.

Conditions necessary to make binding compromise by minor's guardian.—When a compromise of the suit is made, it ought to be carried out by proper deeds and filed in Court, particularly when infants are concerned, so as to have the assent of the Court at the time, instead of its being totally concealed from them.—Abdool Ali v. Mozuffer Hussein, 16 W. R. 22 (P. C.).

In order that a compromise may be binding upon a minor the leave must be express and the Court in sanctioning a compromise under this rule should record the fact that the application was made to it by the next friend or guardian, that the terms of the compromise were considered by it, and should in terms state that the question whether the compromise was for the benefit of the infant was considered. From the mere fact that the Court passed the decree in accordance with the compromise it cannot be inferred that any of those steps preliminary and necessary to the making of the decree had been taken by the Court.—Biku Halwai v. Mohesh Halwai, 8 C. L. J. 266 (16 W. R. 232; 26 B. 109, followed). See also Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 26 B. 109; Govindasami v. Alagirisami, 29 M. 104; Krishna Parshad v. Romes Chunder, 8 C. L. J. 274; 13 C. W. N. 163; Manohar Lal v. Jadu Nath, 28 A. 585 (P. C.); 4 C. L. J. 8; 10 C. W. N. 893; Rajagopalan v. Subrahmanya, (1919) M. W. N. 356; Lala Majlis Sahai v. Narain Bibi, 7 C. W. N. 90; Kalavati v. Chedi Lal, 17 A. 531; Sharat Chunder v. Kartik Chunder, 9 C. 810; 12 C. L. R. 453; Raja Gopal v. Mutlupalem, 3 M. 103; Arunachalam v. Meyyappa, 21 M. 91; Ram Gulam v. Durga Pershad, 6 P. L. J. 190; 2 P. L. T. 325; Dhairyasinh v. Kissandas, 28 Bom. L. R. 363; 94 I. C. 104; A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 291. But see Aman Singh v. Narain Singh, 20 A. 98 and Nirvanaya v. Nirvanaya, 9 B. 365; Midnapore Zemin-dari Co. Ltd. v. Gobinda, 8 C. L. J. 31.

No compromise, even though with the Court's leave, will be binding on the minor if at the time when the guardian entered into it the minor had in fact attained majority.—Lanka Sanyasi v. Lanka Lakshman Naidu, 51 M. 763; A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 294; 55 M. L. J. 374.

Effect of compromise without leave of Court.—In cases to which this rule applies it should be clearly shown that the leave of the Court was obtained and that the attention of the Court was drawn to the fact that there was a minor.—Partab Singh v. Bhabuli Singh, 35 A. 487 (P. C.): 18 C. L. J. 384: 17 C. W. N. 1165; Ishan Chandra v. Nilratan, 2 P. 538: 4 P. L. T. 311. Otherwise the compromise is not enforceable against the minor.—Subramanian v. Rajeswara, 39 M. 115 (P. C.): 20 C. W. N. 201; Jamna Bai v. Vasanta Rao, 39 M. 409 (P. C.) (on appeal from 34 M. 314).

Where the guardian of a minor litigant fails to obtain the leave of the Court to enter into a compromise on behalf of a minor, it is open to the minor under Or. XXXII, r. 7 to avoid the compromise. In the absence of an order granting permission to the guardian to enter into a compromise, the presumption is that no such permission was granted.—Badra Prasad v. Gopal Behari Lal, 41 A. 553: 17 A. L. J. 789: 50 I. C. 752.

A compromise in a suit made without the leave of the Court though not binding on the minor will be binding on the other parties.—Charu Chandra v. Sambhu Nath, (1918) P. 193: 3 P. L. J. 255: 4 P. L. W. 393.

If a compromise is entered into by a guardian on behalf of a minor without the leave of the Court and a decree is passed in accordance with the terms of the compromise, such a decree is not a nullity but is voidable at the instance of the minor; Jita Singh v. Man Singh, 2 L. 164: 62 I. C. 794 (26 B. 109; 95 P. R. 1912 (F. B.) folld; 28 A. 137, 35 A. 487 (P. C.) distd.), Chellaram v. Kimatram, 14 S. L. R. 245: 61 I. C. 118.

Compromise of suit by guardian ad litem—Leave of Court not obtained—Withdrawal from compromise by the guardian—Suit to have the compromise enforced Held that in as much as leave of the Court had not been asked for, and the guardian had objected to the Court passing a decree in terms of the compromise, the Court had no power to enforce a compromise, even though the terms of it might appear to be beneficial to the minor.—Ranga Rao v. Rajagopala Raja, 22 M. 378 See also Gurdevi v. Khairati Mal, 10 L. L. J. 23. If on account of absence of leave a compromise is bad, hardship of the other party or impossibility to restore him to the original position cannot make it enforceable — Suresh v. Jagendra, 32 C. W. N. 459.

Compromise when can be set aside.—A compromise sanctioned by a Court under this rule cannot be set aside merely on the allegation that the compromise was not in the interests of the minor and was unconscionable. The Court has to consider the question whether the compromise is for the benefit of the minor before it sanctions it, and so there must be something amounting to fraud before the Court can set it aside.—Maharaj Bhanudas v. Krishnabai, 50 B. 716: 23 Bom. L. R. 1225: A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 11. A man cannot complain of fraud simply because he regrets a bargain into which he entered with his eyes open; nor can a minor attack a compromise sanctioned by the Court on his behalf by merely proving that the compromise was not profitable to him or that his opponent put forward a false plea, but he must prove that the Court was deceived into believing a false plea or as regards the facts of the case or into believing that the compromise had been accepted by the minor's next friend or guardian when in fact, it had not been so accepted.—Ramaswami v. Alagathai, (1928) M. W. N. 654: 116 I. C. 116: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 96. Where leave is granted under a misapprehension and the compromise is not to him.—Badar Din v. Natho, 111

A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 279. If fairly and honestly made and sanctioned fairly and honestly obtained for it, the compromise cannot be set aside merely because subsequent events show that from the infant's point of view it has worked out ill.—Sudhirendra v. Ravendra, 127 I. C. 785; 51 C. L. J. 364; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 539.

Agreement to refer to arbitration, whether under this rule.—An agreement entered into by a next friend or guardian ad litem to refer any matter in dispute in the suit to arbitration is an "agreement" falling within this rule and the Court's sanction is therefore necessary; Lakshmana v. Chinnathambi, 24 M. 326; Vijaya v. Venkatasubba, 39 M. 853; Atmaram v. Bhila, 15 Bom. L. R. 223; Sadashivappa v. Gangappa, 134 I. C. 1231; 33 Bom. L. R. 1033; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 500; Ganesha v. Mul Chand, 95 P. R. 1912; Muhamad Ibrahim v. Allah Baksh, 145 P. R. 1919; Chhajju Mal v. Tarioki Nath, 8 L. L. J. 414; 96 I. C. 748; A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 666. It has been held by the Allahabad High Court that such an agreement is not within this rule, and the sanction of the Court is not necessary.—Hardeo v. Gauri Shanker, 28 A. 35, Lutawan v. Lachaya, 36 A. 69 (F. B.); 21 I. C. 989.

The agreement contemplated in Sch. II, C. P. Code, para. 1, et seq., is an "agreement with reference to the suit" under Or. XXXII, r. 7, and it is not validly entered into on behalf of a minor where the guardian of the minor purports to bind the minor without the leave of the Court expressly recorded and thus exceeds the authority given to him by the said rule—Davuluru Vijaya v. Davuluru Venkatasubba, 39 M. 853; 30 M. L. J. 465. The Lahore High Court has held to the same effect; Bakhtawar v. Kesar Singh, 59 I. C. 31; Sadaqat Ali v. Muhammad Sajjad Ali, 113 I. C. 901; 11 L. L. J. 130; 30 Punj L. R. 17. A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 257. But the Allahabad High Court, in Hardeo v. Gauri Shankar, 28 A. 35, has held that such an agreement is not within this rule, and the Court's sanction is therefore not necessary. This has been approved by the Calcutta High Court in Annada Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294. It has been held by the Calcutta High Court that as in the case of a compromise, so in the case of an agreement to refer to arbitration, the objection that the guardian acted without the leave of the Court under Or. XXXII, r. 7 (2) can be taken by the minor himself and by no other party and that not by an appeal from the decree but by way of an application for review in the trial Court or by a separate suit; the minor may seek such relief either on attaining majority or before then by a next friend.—Golnur Bibi v. Abdus Samad, 35 C. W. N. 238.

Where a partition suit was referred to arbitration and the minors were fully represented by their father whose interest was not adverse to that of the minors and they got as much as their major brothers, held, that the minors were bound by the award, and that the position would be the same if they were represented not by their father but by the manager of the family.—Vasudeva v. Sundararaja, 124 I. C. 209; 30 L. W. 868; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 38.

A manager of a joint Hindu family has the power to bind the family by reference of a dispute with any outsider regarding any family property to arbitration. Minors in the family are bound by the reference and consequently the award made upon it.—Balaji v. Nana, 27 B. 287. See also Vithaldas v. Dattaram, 26 B. 298.

A joint application signed by pleaders of both the parties by which they agreed to abide by the decision of the Court after local inspection is not a reference to arbitration but a compromise; if no leave of the Court is obtained for it, the minor can have it set aside.—Banwari v. Jamna, 125 I. C. 587; 29 A. L. J. 76; A. I. R. 1930 All. 731.

Withdrawal of suit by next friend.—When a person acting for a minor has fraudulently withdrawn the minor's suit, without obtaining leave to bring a fresh suit, it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of fraud in one of three ways, viz.: (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by a regular suit to set aside the judgment founded upon the withdrawal; (3) by bringing a fresh suit for the same purpose, and setting up the fraud as an answer to the statutory bar.—Eshan Chundra v. Nundamoni, 10 C. 357 (approved in Virupakshappa v. Shidappa, 23 B. 620). See also Ram Sarup v. Shah Latifat Hossein, 29 C. 735; Rajada v. Ghulia, 59 P. R. 1919. In Doraswami v. Thungasami, 27 M. 377, the order of withdrawal was set aside by the High Court on revision.

Power of a guardian to bind the minor by the oath of the opposite party.—The offer of the guardian of a minor defendant to be bound by the oath of the opposite party, stands on a very different ground from an agreement or compromise contemplated by this rule. In such a case, the minor is bound by the consent of his guardian, although given without the leave of the Court, provided that there is no fraud or gross negligence on the part of the guardian.—Sheo Nath v. Sukh Lal, 27 C. 229; 4 C. W. N. 327 (followed in Hardeo Sahai v. Gauri Shankar, 28 A. 35; Mahammad Mahmud Choudhury v. Behary Lal, 34 C. W. N. 310; 129 I. C. 408; A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 463). See also Ohengal Reddi v. Venkata Reddi, 12 M. 489, and Annanda Krishna v. Jogendra Nath, 8 C. L. J. 294. So also an agreement to be bound by the statement on oath of a witness.—Deoraj v. Abhai Raj, 49 A. 842; 102 I. C. 38; A. I. R. 1927 All. 584.

Whether the Court can force compromise against the wishes of the guardian ad litem or next friend.—Although the Court can and must approve of a compromise on behalf of infants, it cannot and will not force one upon them against the opinion of the next friend or guardian ad litem in the action. No doubt if the Court found that a guardian or next friend, was acting improperly and against the infants' interest in refusing to assent to an arrangement which appeared clearly beneficial to them, steps might be taken to remove him and substitute some other person.—Hemangini Dasi v. Bhagwati Sundari, 27 C. W. N. 792; 75 I. C. 682. Where a guardian had entered into a compromise but before the Court granted sanction resiled from it, it was held that the Court had the power to pass a decree in accordance with it.—Sambhunath v. Abdul Kader, 107 I. C. 477; A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 247.

Gross negligence or fraudulent conduct of next friend or guardian ad litem vitiates proceedings.—An infant has a remedy either by application for review of judgment or by separate suit when either gross laches or fraud or collusion is found in the next friend. The result appears to be that the negligence or laches of the guardian which entitles the minor to avoid the decree must be of a gross character.—Ram Sarup v. Shah Latifat Hossein, 29 C. 735. It is not every kind of negligence nor any amount of negligence which would render proceedings, otherwise regular and proper, liable to be re-opened. It must be such negligence as leads to the loss of a right which, if the suit had been conducted or resisted with due care, must have been successfully averted. It is not sufficient to show that the guardian ad litem absented himself; it must also be proved that there was an available good ground of defence which was not put forward owing to the default of the guardian ad litem to appear at the trial. The test in such a case is whether or not there has been culpable neglect of the interests of the minor, whether there has there been, in the conduct of the suit, any act or omission on the part of the guardian ad litem which, in the result, has brought prejudice to the minor's interests.—Brijraj v. Ram Sarup, 48 A. 44 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 36; Parmeswari v. Sheo Dutt, 6 C. L. J. 448; Lekhray Roy v. Mahtab Chand, 14 M. I. A. 393 : 17 W. R. 117; Aramita v. Audithrao, 105 I. C. 537 : 29 Bom. L. R. 1357 : A. I. R. 1927 Bom. 613

A suit by a minor to set aside a compromise decree on a ground other than fraud is maintainable. When and under what circumstances such a suit is maintainable explained and pointed out —Surendra Nath v. Hemangini, 34 C. 83 (10 C. 612 and 2 C. L. J. 503, referred to). See also Barhamdeo v. Banarsi, 3 C. L. J. 119, and Banarsi v. Ram Narain, 30 A. 105 : 5 A. L. J. 35.

The proper course for a minor to set aside a compromise entered into by his guardian without the leave of the Court and the decree based upon it, is by way of an application for review in the first Court or by a separate suit; but not by an appeal from the compromise decree —Rakhal Moni v. Adwya Prosad, 30 C. 613 : 7 C. W. N. 419. See also Biraj Mohini v. Chinta Moni, 5 C. W. N. 877.

Form of the compromise decree.—The Court is not obliged to pass a formal decree in the exact form which the parties propose. Very often it may be more convenient to set out in a schedule the precise compromise agreed upon by the parties and then in the order itself merely the operative portion which the parties want.—Chandulal v. Nagindas, 119 I. C. 663 : 31 Bom. L. R. 621 : A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 350.

In addition to the cases noted above, see the cases noted under Or. XXIII, r. 3 on this point, under the heading "Compromise by the minor's next friend and guardian and its effects."

8. (1) Unless otherwise ordered by the Court, a next friend shall not retire without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place and giving security for the costs already incurred.

(2) The application for the appointment of a new next friend shall be supported by an affidavit showing the fitness of the person proposed, and also that he has no interest adverse to that of the minor.

[S. 447.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 447, C. P. Code, 1882.

Retirement of next friend.—This rule directs that a next friend shall not retire at his own request without first procuring a fit person to be put in his place and without giving security for the costs already incurred. Where the same person is both a certificated guardian and guardian ad litem to a minor plaintiff, the fact that one of such plaintiffs has come of age and has been appointed certificated guardian of the persons and property of the others would not relieve the original guardian of his duties as guardian ad litem: to do this requires a special order under this rule.—Banarsi Prasad v. Ram Narain, 30 A. 105: 5 A. L. J. 35.

9. (1) Where the interest of the next friend of a minor is adverse to that of the minor or where he is so connected with a defendant whose interest is adverse to that of the minor as to make it unlikely that the minor's interest will be properly protected by him, or where he does not do his duty, or, during the pendency of the suit; ceases to reside within British India, or for any other sufficient cause, application may be made on behalf of the minor or by a defendant for his removal; and the Court, if satisfied of the sufficiency of the cause assigned, may order the next friend to be removed accordingly, and make such other order as to costs as it thinks fit.

(2) Where the next friend is not a guardian appointed or declared by an authority competent in this behalf, and an application is made by a guardian so appointed or declared, who desires to be himself appointed in the place of the next friend, the Court shall remove the next friend unless it considers, for reasons to be recorded by it, that the guardian ought not to be appointed the next friend of the minor, and shall thereupon appoint the applicant to be next friend in his place upon such terms as to the costs already incurred in the suit as it thinks fit.

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 446, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The word "where" has been substituted for the word "if" wherever it occurred in the old section; and the words "and make such order as to costs as it thinks fit," have been added.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 446 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the following words: "and shall thereupon appoint the applicant to be next friend in his place upon such terms as to the costs already incurred in the suit as it thinks fit."

"The Committee think it expedient that where a guardian insists on his right to be appointed next friend in the place of another there should be—power to require him to become liable or give security for costs in the suit previously incurred."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"Where the next friend does not do his duty."—Where a Court finds that a next friend does not do his duty in relation to a suit, it is its duty not to permit him to prejudice the interests of the minor, but to adjourn the suit in order that some one interested in the minor may apply on his behalf for removal of the next friend and for friend, or in order that the minor plaintiff etc., proceed with the suit or withdraw from 27 M. 377.

Where charges of immorality were brought against the holder of a certificate under Act XL of 1859, it was held to be the duty of the Judge to enquire into the truth of the charges and fitness of the certificate holder.—Mohumuddy Begum v. Oomdutoonissa, 13 W. R. 454.

Adverse interest—When the next friend or guardian of the minor has, for his own advantage or by negligence, allowed time for appeal to run out, the Court may enlarge time for appeal in the minor's favour.—Oursandas v. Ladkavahoo, 20 B 104. If a Court considers that the interest of a next friend of a minor plaintiff is adverse to that of the minor, it should remove the next friend under this rule and then stay further proceedings under the next rule until the appointment of a fresh next friend; Krit Narayan v. Chanchal, 63 I. C. 736; 6 P. L. J. 317.

In a case where the guardian, without any sufficient cause or justification, and without legal advice, withdrew an appeal made to set aside a sale of the estate of the minors, the certificate of guardianship was cancelled.—Pitambar Dey v. Ishan Chunder, 19 W. R. 169.

An application for the removal of guardians must be supported by proof of malversation or misconduct such as would afford sufficient ground for removal.—Rajessuree Debia v. Jogendro Nath, 23 W. R. 278.

Stay of proceedings on removal, etc., of next friend

10. (1) On the retirement, removal or death of the next friend of a minor, further proceedings shall be stayed until the appointment of a next friend in his place. [S. 448.]

(2) Where the pleader of such minor omits, within a reasonable time, to take steps to get a new next friend appointed, any person interested in the minor, or in the matter in issue may apply to the Court for the appointment of one, and the Court may appoint such person as it thinks fit. [S. 449.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 448, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the word "retirement" before the word "removal"

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to S. 449, C. P. Code, 1882, with the substitution of the word "where" for the word "if" which occurred in the old section.

Death of next friend.—On the death of a minor plaintiff's next friend, the suit does not abate, and, therefore, should not be dismissed. If, however, an order of dismissal is passed, it is a nullity and can have no effect upon the rights of the plaintiff. The duty of the Court is either to appoint a new next friend or to allow the suit to be pending till the minor attains majority.—Venkateswara v. Cherasseri, 27 M. L. J. 405: 25 I. C. 597.

11. (1) Where the guardian for the suit desires to retire or does not do his duty, or where other sufficient ground is made to appear, the Court may permit such guardian to retire or may remove him, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit. [S. 458.]

(2) Where the guardian for the suit retires, dies or is removed by the Court during the pendency of the suit, the Court shall appoint a new guardian in his place. [S. 459.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations—Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 458, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced in this rule "If the guardian for the suit of a minor defendant does not do his duty, or if other sufficient ground be made to appear, the Court may remove him, and may order him to pay such costs as may have been occasioned to any party by his breach of duty."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to S. 459, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The word "retires" has been added before the word "dies."

The other changes are merely verbal.

Retirement of guardian.—It is not open to a guardian appointed by the Court to retire at his own sweet will without the permission of the Court. It is a matter of discretion for the Court to permit the guardian to retire.—Narender Singh v. Chatrapal, 94 I. C. 340: A. I. R. 1926 All. 437; Kuppusamy v. Bavaswami, 50 M. 357: 101 I. C. 399: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 533; Thiagaraja v. Kothandapani, 113 I. C. 238: A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 980.

If the Court finds that a guardian is not acting properly or in the interest of the minor it would be the duty of the Court to remove him and to see that the interest of the minor is protected. When a guardian properly appointed takes proper steps in the interest of the minor and then wants to force the hands of the Court by proffering a resignation, it would be the duty of the Court to see whether in the interest of the minor the resignation should be accepted or not. "Claiming an interest adverse to the minor" only means that the interest of the minor would not be safe in the hands of his guardian.—Ram Kishan v. Radhey Lal, 136 I. C. 562: 29 A. L. J. 1102: A. I. R. 1932 All. 130.

"May remove him."—The power of the Court to remove the guardian ad litem and appoint a new guardian instead may be exercised at any time during the pendency of the suit and the same is not taken away by the fact that an order to try the suit ex parte had previously been passed.—Ayya Nadan v. Thanammal, 27 M. L. T. 171: (1920) M. W. N. 241: 55 I. C. 945: 11 L. W. 289.

r. 11.

Appeal—Even for the purposes of the appeal it is only the guardian ad litem appointed by the trial Court who can act, and so long as he has not died, retired or been removed no one else can be allowed to represent the minor in the appeal. After the decree is passed by the trial Court that Court becomes functus officio for the purpose of removing the guardian or making an allegation is that the guardian was another person interested in the minor's application to the appellate Court for removal of the guardian and appointment of a fresh one. But if there is inordinate delay the Court will not interfere.—Latafat v. Mahomed Yar Khan, 52 A. 494; 124 I. C. 474; 28 A. L. J. 771; A. I. R. 1930 All. 456; Punjaji v. Ramanand, 122 I. C. 445; A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 177.

"Court may make such order as to costs as it thinks fit."—The C. P. Code does not authorize a Court to decree costs against the guardian of a defendant except in the case referred to in this rule.—Narasimha Rau v. Lakshmi pati Rau, 3 M. 263; Sibt Ahmed v. Amina, 50 A. 733; 113 I. C. 434; A. I. R. 1929 All. 18.

Where a guardian ad litem of an infant had been guilty of gross misconduct in putting executors to proof of a will which he wished to upset for his own private purpose, and which, the evidence showed, was to his knowledge duly executed by the testatrix in a sound state of mind, held, that he was liable for the costs of the suit.—Goolam Hossein v. Fatmabai, 8 B. 391.

After the dismissal of an administration suit brought by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, the Court ordered the next friend to pay the costs, being of opinion that he was the real actor in the suit, and that the suit was unnecessary.—Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248.

This rule is not, so far as regards payment of costs, applicable to any person appointed to act as guardian ad litem with his previous assent.—Jadow Mulji v. Chhagan Raichand, 5 B. 306.

Death of guardian ad litem.—Where the death of a guardian ad litem takes place pending appeal, and judgment is passed without a new guardian, it is a mere irregularity.—Ramdayal v. Ajudhia, (1906) A. W. N. 40; Gobardhan v. Mahabir, 34 A. 321.

Where a guardian ad litem died during the pendency of the appeal and the appeal was disposed of without a fresh guardian being appointed but a new guardian was appointed in execution proceedings. Held, that no guardian for the minors having been appointed they were to all intents and purposes not parties to the appeal at all and therefore the decree and sale in execution were as against them a nullity.—Chundury Krishnayya v. Koripalli Raju, 31 M. L. J. 39; 35 I. C. 154; Jager Nath v. E. I. Ry Co., 106 I. C. 540; 9 P. L. T. 547; A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 163. But where on the death of a guardian ad litem pending an appeal, though no fresh guardian was appointed, the mother of the minors engaged a counsel and fought out the proceedings on behalf of the minors, held, that the decree against the minors was voidable and not void.—Musst. Phul Kuer v. Najmunissa, 125 I. C. 779; 11 P. L. T. 361; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 473.

Where a minor filed an objection in execution proceedings with a particular person as next friend and in the appeal against the order in those proceedings, the minor was represented by another person and no objection was raised as regards the guardianship, held, it was not a material irregularity and S. 99 of the C. P. Code precluded the Court from reversing the decree on that ground; Abdul Gani v. Barkia, 61 I. C. 605.

Course to be followed by minor plaintiff or applicant on attaining majority.

12. (1) A minor plaintiff or a minor not a party to a suit on whose behalf an application is pending shall, on attaining majority, elect whether he will proceed with the suit or application. [S. 450.]

(2) Where he elects to proceed with the suit or application, he shall apply for an order discharging the next friend and for leave to proceed in his own name. [S. 451, PARA. 1.]

(3) The title of the suit or application shall, in such case be corrected so as to read thenceforth thus :—

“A. B., late a minor, by C. D., his next friend, but now having attained majority.” [S. 451, PARA. 2.]

(4) Where he elects to abandon the suit or application, he shall, if a sole plaintiff or sole applicant, apply for an order to dismiss the suit or application on repayment of the costs incurred by the defendant or opposite party or which may have been paid by his next friend. [S. 452.]

(5) Any application under this rule may be made ex parte: but no order discharging a next friend and permitting a minor plaintiff to proceed in his own name shall be made without notice to the next friend. [S. 453.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The provisions contained in Ss. 450, 451, 452 and 453 of the C. P. Code, 1882, have been amalgamated in this rule with some additions and alterations.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to S. 450, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal alterations. The words “shall” has been substituted for the word “must” and the words “on attaining majority” have been substituted for the words “on coming of age,” which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 451 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The word “where” has been substituted for the word “if”; and the words “with the suit or application” have been substituted for the words “with it,” which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to para. 2 of S. 451 of the C. P. Code, with this modification, that the words “having attained” have been substituted for the words “but now of full age,” which occurred in the last part of para. 2 of the old section.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to S. 452, C. P. Code, 1882, with slight modification. The words “or opposite party” have been added after the word “defendant.”

Sub-rule (5) corresponds to S. 453, C. P. Code, with some additions and alterations. The words "and it must be found by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age," which occurred in the old section have been omitted; and the words "but no order discharging a next friend and permitting a minor plaintiff to proceed in his own name shall be made without notice to the next friend" have been added.

When a suit is instituted on behalf of a person alleged to be, but not, in fact, a minor, and the suit is brought through a next friend, the Court should not dismiss the suit. In such a case the proper remedy is for the defendant to apply to have the plaint taken off the file or amended, and if it be not amended, the next friend's name may be treated as a mere surplusage, and the suit should be allowed to proceed.—Taqur Jan v. Obaidulla, 21 C. 866. Contra in Sheorania v. Bharat Singh, 20 A. 90.

Scope.—Rules 12 and 13 of Or. XXXII, lay down the course that a plaintiff may follow on attaining majority, but there is no corresponding rule relating to a defendant who becomes major during the pendency of a suit. The reason of this omission is that while a plaintiff on attaining majority may put an end to the suit, the defendant cannot do so and the suit must proceed. He has notice of the suit already and so no further notice need be given to him; if he chooses to conduct his own defence he may do so or if he so desires he may allow himself to be represented by his quondam guardian—Umra v. Barkat Ali, 110 I. C. 725: A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 371. The mere circumstance that he has not chosen to come forward will not enable him to have it declared that a judgment pronounced against him as represented by his guardian is not binding on him; but it is otherwise if the case is compromised by his guardian after he has attained majority in which case the compromise though sanctioned by the Court would not be binding on him.—Lanka Sanyasi v. Lanka Lakshman Naidu, 51 M. 763: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 294; 55 M. L. J. 374; 29 L. W. 455; 118 I. C. 294 (39 M. 1031 referred to).

Notice.—Where during the pendency of an appeal the minor attained majority and the counsel who appeared for the next friend did not appear because he had not received a fresh engagement from the quondam minor and the Court dismissed the appeal for want of prosecution; held that the proper course for the Court was to issue notice to the minor to appear and prosecute the appeal or to drop it.—Ishar Singh v. Bakhshish Singh, 115 I. C. 72; 30 Punj. L. R. 273; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 555.

Title to be corrected.—The provision in this rule requiring the title to be corrected, would apply to a pending suit, and not to a suit in which a final decree has been passed, and in which it only remains to proceed in execution.—Doorga Mohun v. Tahir Ally, 22 C. 270.

- 13. (1) Where a minor co-plaintiff on attaining majority desires to repudiate the suit, he shall apply to have his name struck out as co-plaintiff; and the Court, if it finds that he is not a necessary party, shall dismiss him from the suit on such terms as to costs or otherwise as it thinks fit.

Where minor co-plaintiff attaining majority desires to repudiate suit.

(2) Notice of the application shall be served on the next friend, on any co-plaintiff and on the defendant.

(3) The costs of all parties of such application, and of all or any proceedings theretofore had in the suit, shall be paid by such persons as the Court directs.

(4) Where the applicant is a necessary party to the suit, the Court may direct him to be made a defendant. [S. 454.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 454, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of S. 454. The words "where a minor co-plaintiff on attaining majority desires to repudiate the suit, he shall apply" have been substituted for the words "a minor co-plaintiff, on coming of age, and desiring to repudiate the suit, must apply," which occurred in the beginning of the old section.

Sub-rule (2) corresponds with the first part of para. 2 of the old section with the addition of the words "on any co-plaintiff." The words "and it must be proved by affidavit that the late minor has attained his full age," which occurred in the middle of para. 2 of the old section, has been omitted.

Sub-rule (3) corresponds to the last part of para. 2 of the old section with some verbal changes.

Sub-rule (4) corresponds to part 3 of the old section with change of some words, without any change in the meaning.

14. (1) A minor on attaining majority may, if a sole plaintiff, apply that a suit instituted in his name by his next friend be dismissed on the ground that it was unreasonable or improper.

Unreasonable or improper suit.

(2) Notice of the application shall be served on all the parties concerned; and the Court, upon being satisfied of such unreasonableness or impropriety, may grant the application and order the next friend to pay the costs of all parties in respect of the application and of anything done in the suit, or make such other order as it thinks fit. [S. 455.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 455, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations and omissions.

Sub-rule (1) corresponds to para. 1 of the old section, which is reproduced here to mark the distinction: "If any minor, on attaining majority, can prove, to the satisfaction of the Court, that a suit instituted in his name by a next friend was unreasonable or improper, he may, if a sole plaintiff, apply to have the suit dismissed."

Sub-rule (2) corresponds to para. 2 of S 455, C. P. Code, 1882, with the addition of the words "or make such other order as it thinks fit" in the last part.

After the dismissal of an administration suit brought by the next friend of a minor plaintiff, the Court ordered the next friend of the minor to pay the costs of the suit, being of opinion that he was the real actor in the suit, and that the suit was unnecessary.—Devkabai v. Jefferson, 10 B. 248.

When a person acting for a minor has fraudulently withdrawn the minor's suit, without obtaining leave to bring a fresh suit, and by such withdrawal an absolute statutory prohibition is imposed on the minor, from bringing a fresh suit it is open to the minor to relieve himself from the consequences of the fraud in one of the three ways, viz., (1) by an application to the Court in the suit in which the withdrawal took place; (2) by an application to the Court for leave to bring a fresh suit; (3) by an application to the Court for an order setting aside the order of withdrawal; fraud 357.

15. The provisions contained in rules 1 to 14, so far as they are applicable, shall extend to persons adjudged to be of unsound mind and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on inquiry, by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued. [S. 463.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule corresponds to S. 463, C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations. The old section is reproduced below to observe the changes introduced by the present rule: "The provisions contained in Ss. 440 to 462 (both inclusive) shall mutatis mutandis, apply in the case of persons of unsound mind adjudged to be so under Act No. XXXV of 1858, or under any other law for the time being in force."

It would appear on a comparison that the words "and to persons who though not so adjudged are found by the Court on inquiry by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, to be incapable of protecting their interests when suing or being sued" have been added. The additions seem to have followed the principles laid down in 16 B. 132, 24 M. 504, and in 33 C. 1094; 10 C. W. N. 719; 4 C. L. J. 306, and to set at rest the conflicting rulings, all of which have been considered and discussed in the above Calcutta case. The above amendment has overridden 6 M. 380 and 13 B. 656 and the other cases in which a contrary view was expressed.

Scope of the rule.—The matter for determination in lunacy proceedings under Act IV of 1912 is whether the person in respect of whom the question arises is a person "of unsound mind and incapable of managing his property." The question under Or. XXXII, r. 15, is whether a person, not being a person already adjudged to be of unsound mind is "by reason of unsoundness of mind or mental infirmity, incapable of protecting his interests in the suit." The language of the two provisions is not the same. A finding in the negative in lunacy proceedings does not preclude an affirmative finding under this rule.—Chaturbhuj v. Harnand Lal, 50 A. 335: 108 I. C. 141: 25 A. L. J. 1082: A. I. R. 1928 All. 108. Where the pleader informed the Court that lunacy proceedings were pending in the Court of the District Judge and applied for stay of the suit pending the decisions in the lunacy proceedings but was refused, it was held that though no revision lay, the case was a fit one for the exercise of the inherent powers of the Court and stay should be granted.—Harnand Lal v. Chaturbhuj, 48 A. 356: 93 I. C. 285: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 212.

"Mental infirmity."—By the addition of the words "or mental infirmity," the scope of the present rule has been enlarged. The old section was applicable to persons of "unsound mind" only; but the present rule applies to persons of unsound mind as well as to persons who are suffering from any mental infirmity in consequence of which he is incapable of protecting his own interests. In this connection 4 C. L. J. 115 should be consulted in which the words "lunacy, weakness of intellect, and unsoundness of mind" have been clearly explained and distinguished.

"The Committee have extended this rule so as to cover the case of a person incapacitated from protecting his interests by reason of his mental weakness or of his being a deaf-mute."—See the Report of the Special Committee. Order XXXII, r. 15 is intended to cover the case of persons who are absolutely deaf and dumb and on that account are incapable of receiving any communications or communicating their wish or thoughts to others; the case of persons who are partially deaf and dumb and are able to communicate with others with some difficulty stands on a different footing.—Nanak Chand v. Banarsidas, 126 I. C. 579: 12 L. L. J. 254: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 425.

Meaning of the term "unsound mind."—The term "unsound mind" comprehends imbecility, whether congenital or arising from old age, as well as lunacy or mental alienation resulting from disease.—In re Cawasji Beramji, 7 B. 15.

Distinction between lunacy with lucid intervals, and a state of sound mind, subject to occasional unsoundness arising from accidental and temporary causes, considered.—In re Nagappa Chetti, 18 M. 472 (6 C. 539 and 543 referred to).

Mere weakness of intellect is not unsoundness of mind. The distinction between lunacy, weakness of intellect, and unsoundness of mind explained.—Mazharuddin Khan v. Serajuddin Khan, 4 C. L. J. 115 (24 W. R. 124 approved).

"Persons adjudged to be of unsound mind."—Under the Lunacy Act IV of 1912 a person may be adjudged to be of unsound mind. The old Act was Act XXXV of 1858.

Appointment of next friend or guardian ad litem of persons of unsound mind.—A person alleged to be a lunatic, though not adjudged to be so under Act XXXV of 1858, may sue through a next friend, or defend through a guardian ad litem.—Nabhu Khan v. Sita, 20 A. 2. In Uma Sundari v. Ramji Haldar, 7 C. 242: 9 C. L. R. 13, and in Brindabun Chunder v. Kali Dass, W. R. (1864) 268, it has been held that a person alleged to be a lunatic though not found so under Act XXXV of 1858, may appear either by vakeel or in person. See also Pransukhram v. Bai Ladhur, 23 B. 653. Although S 443 (Or. XXXII, r. 3), read with S. 463, C. P. Code, 1882 (this rule), does not oblige a Court to appoint a guardian ad litem for a defendant of unsound mind, except when he has been adjudged to be of unsound mind under Act XXXV of 1858, still upon general principles, and in conformity with the practice of the Court of Chancery, the Court should assign a guardian ad litem for the defendant if it finds, on enquiry, that he is of unsound mind so as to be unfit to defend the suit.—Venkataramana v. Timappa, 16 B. 132. This case has been followed in Kadala Reddi v. Narisi, 24 M. 504. See also Lakhya Dasya v. Uma Kanta, 14 C. W. N. 256; Kamini Kumar v. Shib Sundari, 62 I. C. 770; Rasik Lal v. Bidhumukhu, 33 C. 1094: 10 C. W. N. 719: 4 C. L. J. 306, where all the cases on this point have been referred to. But in Subbaya v. Buthaya, 6 M. 380 and in Tukaram Anant v. Fithal Joshi, 13 B. 656, a contrary view was taken by holding that provisions of S 463 of the C. P. Code (this rule) applied only to those who were previously adjudicated lunatics under Act XXXV of 1858. These latter cases have been superseded by the amendment.

A guardian of the person only of a lunatic is not competent to sue in respect of the lunatic's estate. The manager of the lunatic's estate is the only person who can institute such a suit. The word "guardian" in S. 440, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXII, rr. 1, 4), when applied to a lunatic, means the manager of his estate. Under this rule a person other than the guardian of the estate can also sue with the leave of the Court.—Bai Divali v. Hira Lal, 23 B. 403.

The mere absence of a formal adjudication of lunacy under Act XXXV of 1858, cannot invalidate the charge assumed by the Court of Wards, and a lunatic is properly represented in a suit brought by the Collector as guardian of the lunatic.—Sanku v. Puttamma, 14 M. 289 (13 M. 197 referred to).

Power of guardian of persons of unsound mind.—The Lunacy Act (XXXV of 1858) does not affect the general provisions of Hindu law, as to guardians who do not avail themselves of the Act, and the managing member of a joint Hindu family, one of the members of which is a lunatic, may, in case of necessity, sell joint family property including the lunatic's share, although he does not hold a certificate under the said Act.—Kanti Chunder v. Bisheswar, 25 C. 585 (F. B.): 2 C. W. N. 241 (4 C. 929 followed in principle; 10 B. L. R. 364, 19 W. R. 163 disapproved).

When a person is appointed manager of a lunatic's estate under Act XXXV of 1858, he can only make a valid alienation in accordance with the provisions of that Act, although he may be a de facto manager of the family property.—Anpurna Bai v. Dargapa, 20 B. 150.

A guardian of a lunatic's person is, in matters connected with the guardianship, subordinate to the District Court which appointed him.—In the matter of Basharat Ali, 24 C. 133.

A District Judge has power to make an order requiring the guardian to obtain his permission before marrying the lunatic.—Chellathammal v. Ammayappa, 32 M. 253 (24 C. 133, 32 B. 50, 12 B. 480, referred to).

ORDER XXXIII.

SUITS BY PAUPERS

1. Subject to the following provisions, any suit may be instituted by a pauper.

Suits may be instituted in forma
pauperis

Explanation.—A person is a "pauper" when he is not possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law for the plaint in such suit, or, where no such fee is prescribed, when he is not entitled to property worth one hundred rupees other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit.

[S. 401.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—The rule corresponds to S. 401, C. P. Code, 1882, with slight modifications. The word "provisions" has been substituted for the word "rules" after the word "following", and the word "institute" has been substituted for the word "brought" which occurred in the old section.

Object and scope of the order.—A person instituting a suit in a Civil Court is bound, according to the ordinary rules, to pay the Court-fee prescribed by law for the plaint and subsequent proceedings in the suit. The object of this order is to enable a person, who is too poor to pay the Court-fee, to institute and prosecute his suit without payment of Court-fees.—Jotindro v. Dwarka, 20 C. 111. The exemption does not extend to fees for service of process and such fees must under r. 8 be paid by him.

Where the plaintiff was allowed to sue as a pauper but an order was made making payment of costs of adjournment a condition precedent for allowing time to amend the plaint, held that the order was not illegal.—Lim Pin Sin v. Eng Wan Hock, 6 R. 561: A. I. R. 1928 Rang. 306: 114 I. C. 677. In spite of the mandatory provisions of Or. XXXIII, r. 5 the provisions of Or. VI relating to amendment of pleadings apply to petitions under Or. XXXIII.—Amarnath v. Rattan Chand, 138 I. C. 652: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 548. But it has been held that an order for payment of costs in cash for allowing an amendment as a condition precedent is bad.—Ambaji Balwantrao v. Hanmantrao, 47 B. 104. Where a plaintiff is allowed to sue as pauper but an order is made on him to furnish security, on the application of the defendant, for costs, such order cannot be justified except for exceptional circumstances; and in the absence of exceptional circumstances the order is a material irregularity as it is almost impossible for a pauper to furnish security.—Harkaur v. Chamba, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 960.

Person.—A firm can be considered to be a person under this rule.—D. K. Cassim & Sons v. Abdul Rahman, 127 I. C. 175: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 279. The word means a natural person and not a juridical person such as a Receiver.—S. M. Mitra v. Corporation, 126 I. C. 650 : A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 259.

"Pauper."—Pending the investigation into pauperism under rr. 6 and 7, the defendant appearing deposited in Court some of the articles claimed by the petitioners to which he admitted they were entitled. The value of the articles deposited was Rs. 100. The petitioners admitting that the articles were their property declined to take possession of them. Held, that the petitioners were not "paupers" as defined in this rule, being possessed of property worth Rs. 100, other than the subject-matter of the suit.—Dwarka Nath v. Madhavray, 10 B. 207 ; Mahalakshmi Ammal, In re, 50 M. L. J. 114 : 94 I. C. 337 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 567. But see Fatmabai v. Dossabhoj, 34 B. 638, in which it was held (per Macleod, J.) that in such a case the petitioner could not be said to be entitled to property worth Rs. 100 inasmuch as every application to sue as a pauper may be defeated by the respondent paying into Court Rs. 100 out of the amount claimed.

A Hindu widow applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis for the recovery of maintenance and her stridhanam jewels and cash withheld by the defendant. The defendant admitted liability for the jewels and cash and produced them in Court. It was found that the jewels and cash were more than sufficient to pay the Court-fee and the Court dispaupered her. Held, on revision, that the order of the Court was improper and it could not be said that owing to the defendant's offer the plaintiff was possessed of sufficient means to pay the prescribed Court-fee.—Bai Balagauri v. Motilal, 47 B. 523 : 25 Bom. L. R. 199 : A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 247.

In an application to file a suit in forma pauperis on a claim which required the Court-fee of Rs. 1,775 on the plaint, it was found that the applicant had property worth Rs. 1,600. Held, that the possession of Rs. 1,600 would not enable the applicant to pay Rs. 1,775 which was the fee prescribed by the law for the plaint.—Ganga Bai v. Shridhar Annaji, 8 Bom. L. R. 642.

The mere fact that a person's hand has property is not a sufficient reason for granting leave to sue as a pauper.—Sharfunnessa v. I 3 P. L. J. 178.

A person who applies for permission to sue as a pauper is not bound to try and raise funds by mortgaging his claims. Notwithstanding that he might do so, he may be a pauper under this rule.—Vedanta v. Perindeamma, 3 M. 249.

"On an application to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is required to deal with the question of the applicant's pauperism, with reference to the definition as given in this rule, and in deciding it, to ascertain the exact property, its market-value and the title thereto, and then to deal with the case under Or. XXXIII, r. 5, irrespective of any surmises as to the reason why the applicant has valued his claim at a high figure.—Mahammad Hussain v. Ajudhya Prasad, 10 A. 467.

On proof of pauperism, a company represented by its liquidator can be granted leave to sue in forma pauperis for the recovery of a debt due to the company. The word "person" in the Explanation to Or. XXXIII, r. 1.

includes a company or association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not.—Perumal Goundan v. Thirumalarayapuram, 41 M. 624 : 34 M. L. J. 421 : 45 I. C. 164.

"Is not possessed of sufficient means."—A debt which is due to the applicant from a third person cannot be said to be "means of which the applicant is possessed." The words "is not possessed of" must mean that the applicant has no actual control over it.—Mabia Khatun v. Sheikh Sathari, 45 C. L. J. 68 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 309 : 100 I. C. 264. It cannot be assumed that the framers of Or. XXXIII, r. 1 thought that every one who is entitled to property is possessed of means to the value of that property.—Dwarkabai v. Sakham, 119 I. C. 697 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 319.

An applicant to be disqualified to sue as pauper must be possessed of means sufficient to pay court-fees and not merely entitled to property of that value.—Kishan v. Manjai, A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 24. The word 'means' in Or. XXXIII, r. 1 is intended to cover and include all forms of realisable assets which can be converted into cash and as such can be used for financing the litigation; where the applicant had an interest in a decree which prima facie was more than sufficient for the court-fees, held that the application should be rejected.—Lal Chand v. Musst. Pisto, 110 I. C. 122 : 10 L. L. J. 159 : 29 Punj. L. R. 229 : A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 271. Following this last mentioned case and dissenting from 45 C. L. J. 68 it has been held that a mortgage in petitioner's favour is 'means' within the meaning of this rule.—Nand Kishore v. Prabhu Dayal, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 821. In considering the question of pauperism the Court must look at the matter as it stood at the date of the suit. If his circumstances at the date of the application bring him within the terms of the Explanation, the immunity in respect of payment of Court-fees will be enjoyed by him till the termination of the suit or until such time when sufficient materials would be forthcoming to justify an order cancelling the permission; the word 'possession' indicates that any amount which forms the subject-matter of the suit and is not in the actual possession of the petitioner cannot be taken into account in determining his 'means'; injunction may be issued restraining him from receiving an amount until orders regarding court-fees are passed.—Pravash Chandra v. Municipal Commissioner, Howrah, 125 I. C. 102 : 57 C. 980 : 34 C. W. N. 188 : A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 147.

"Other than his necessary wearing apparel."—Ornaments which a woman ordinarily wears are of the same class of personal property as her wearing apparel and cannot be taken into consideration in determining whether she has sufficient means to pay the court-fees.—Mabia Khatun v. Sheikh Sathari, 45 C. L. J. 68 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 309 : 100 I. C. 264.

Subject-matter of the suit.—The words "other than his necessary wearing apparel and the subject-matter of the suit" in the Explanation do not qualify that part of the Explanation which requires that the person should not be possessed of sufficient means to enable him to pay the fee prescribed by law, but only the condition that the applicant is not entitled to property worth Rs. 100.—Krishnabai Janardan v. Manohar Sundarrao, 30 B. 593 : 8 Bom. L. R. 671. See also Dwarkabai v. Sakham, 119 I. C. 697 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 319.

Where a mortgagor sues the mortgagee for redemption of the mortgage, his equity of redemption is no part of the subject-matter of the suit and its value therefore should be taken into consideration in determining whether he is a pauper.—Kapil Deo v. Ram Rikha, 33 A. 237; Achal Singh v. Seth Jibandas, 19 N. L. R. 165.

Suit instituted in the ordinary form may be continued in forma pauperis.—A Court has power under this Chapter (rule) to allow a suit, instituted in the ordinary form, to be continued in forma pauperis.—Thompson v. Calcutta Tramway Co. Ltd., 20 C. 319. The power to allow a suit ordinarily instituted to be continued as a pauper is included in the power given to the Court to allow a suit to be instituted in forma pauperis.—Surendra v. Showdamini, 36 C. W. N. 1035 : 56 C. L. J. 148. See also Nirmul Chandra v. Doyal Nath, 2 C. 130; Revji Patil v. Sakharam, 8 B. 615; Subbarao v. Venkataratnam, A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 828 : 30 L. W. 637 : 57 M. L. J. 677. But a contrary view has been taken in Selima Sheehan v. Hafez Mohammed, 36 C. W. N. 567 (doubting 20 C. 319).

Pauper defendant.—Although this Chapter (rule) of the C. P. Code only provides for suits to be brought by a pauper, the Court has power to allow a defendant to defend in forma pauperis.—Doorga Churn v. Nittokally, 5 C. 819 : 6 C. L. R. 120. But see Coates v. Secretary of State, 54 P. R. 1905 : 121 P. L. R. 1905, where it has been held that the defendant cannot be allowed to defend a suit in forma pauperis, in as much as there is no provision in the Code authorizing such a course.

Suit by next friend, administrator, executor, trustee, or legal representative.—The next friend of a minor who is not himself a pauper may sue in forma pauperis on behalf of a pauper minor.—Venkatanarasayya v. Achemma, 3 M. 3; Nanibala v. Jamini Sundari, 37 C. L. J. 394; Nemi Chand Bhick Chand v. Keval Chand, 26 Bom. L. R. 380. A suit can be brought in forma pauperis by a next friend who is also a pauper.—Galaupmonee v. Prosonnomoye, 11 B. L. R. 373.

There is no necessity for an enquiry whether an alleged legal representative of an admitted pauper plaintiff is a pauper or not. The Court, if satisfied that he is the legal representative, ought to admit him to carry on the suit.—Bhagbut Doss v. Buloram Doss, 3 W. R. Mis. 20. The question whether the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff who had filed his suit in forma pauperis can continue the suit in forma pauperis depends not on the property possessed by the legal representative personally in his own right.—Ammakannu Ammal v. Damodara, 109 I. C. 258 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 66 (relying on 7 M. 390, 41 M. 624 and A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 765; and dissenting from 18 B. 237); nor is the capacity of his next friend or relations to be considered.—Sharan Singh v. Musst. Man Kaur, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 746. But see Manaji v. Khandoo, 36 B. 279, in which it has been held that in such a case the legal representative may be permitted to continue the suit in forma pauperis if he himself is a pauper. See also Lalit Mohan v. Satis Chandra, 33 C. 1163 : 4 C. L. J. 234 (followed in Farzand Ali Khan v. Mir Amir Haider, 26 I. C. 714 : 1 O. L. J. 709), where it has been held that the right to apply for leave to sue in forma pauperis being a personal right, if the applicant dies before the leave is granted, his legal representative is not entitled to continue the application. See also Rao Saheb Manaji Rajuji v. Khandoo, 13 Bom. L. R. 577; Kavuri v. Yabursu, 54 M. L. J. 582 : 51 M. 697 : 110 I. C. 318 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 278.

Where a guardian obtains permission to sue in forma pauperis on behalf of a minor, the dismissal of the suit is no ground for throwing the costs of the suit on the guardian.—Brijessurce v. Kishore Doss, 25 W. R. 316.

A shebait who is not possessed of sufficient means to pay court-fees both personally and as a shebait may apply for leave to sue in forma pauperis for recovery of certain endowed properties from his *co-shebait*s.—Nanda v. Dwarka, 16 G. W. N. 93. A trustee or shebait not possessed of sufficient property of the trust may be allowed to sue as a pauper although he has sufficient personal property of his own.—Mabia v. Sheikh Satkari, 45 C. L. J. 63 : 100 I. C. 264 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 309.

The administrator of the estate of a deceased person may apply to sue in forma pauperis under the provisions of this Chapter (rule).—In re Bill, 7 M. 390.

Where an executor is not in possession of the property of his testator, and cannot get possession of it, and he has not himself the means of paying the necessary fees, he may be allowed to petition for, and, if entitled thereto, to obtain probate in forma pauperis—In the matter of the Will of Dawubai, 18 B. 237.

The provisions of this Chapter (rule) do not preclude a person, who has obtained leave to sue under S. 18 of the Religious Endowment Act (XX of 1863), for the removal of the trustees of a temple, from being permitted to sue in forma pauperis.—Gurusami v. Krishnasami, 24 M. 419.

The plaintiff in a suit brought in forma pauperis died, but in ignorance of her death the Court passed a decree in her favour. The defendant appealed, making respondent a lady who he alleged was the legal representative of the deceased plaintiff and an order was passed by consent of the parties sending back the suit for re-trial on the merits. On re-trial the suit was again decreed. Held, that the defendant was estopped from disputing the right of the representative of the original plaintiff to sue as a pauper.—Akbar Husain v. Alia Bibi, 25 A. 137.

Plaintiff suing in representative capacity—His personal property should not be taken into account.—When a plaintiff sues in a representative character, such as a mutwalli, trustee or a shebait, unless it is shown that the plaintiff has in his possession property belonging to the wakf estate or trust or the idol for whom he sues, sufficient to enable him to pay the requisite Court-fee prescribed by law, he may be allowed to sue as a pauper even if it is shown that he has sufficient personal property of his own. The capacity of a person suing in a representative character must be kept distinct from his personal capacity.—Matia Khatun v. Sheikh Satkari, 45 C. L. J. 68 : A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 309 : 100 I. C. 264. See also Nanak Chand v. Harnam, 125 I. C. 611 : A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 735.

Formerly excepted suits—Section 402, C. P. Code, 1882, which ran as follows: "No suit shall be brought by a pauper to recover compensation for loss of caste, libel, slander, abusive language, or assault," has been omitted.

"The Committee have not preserved S. 402. In the light of the case-law it is misleading so far it suggests that a suit will lie for loss of caste or abusive language, and they can see no sufficient reason for withholding from a pauper a right to sue as such in respect of a defamation or assault."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

2. Every application for permission to sue as a pauper shall contain the particulars required in regard to complaints in suits: a schedule of any moveable or immoveable property belonging to the applicant, with the estimated value thereof, shall be annexed thereto; and it shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed for the signing and verification of pleadings. [S. 403.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 403, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only. Some of the words of the old section have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words. The procedure laid down in r. 2 is to be followed when a suit is proposed to be instituted in forma pauperis.

Contents of application.—Where a pauper applicant omits to mention his immoveable property and also fails to submit a list of such property when required, the application is not in proper form.—Sheo Narayan Lal v. Mt. Munagga, 9 O. L. J. 610: 74 I. C. 344: A. I. R. 1923 Oudh 118. But a mere omission to mention some item of property does not amount to non-compliance with this rule.—Birj Ballab Lallji v. Beney Krishna, A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 28. There must, however, be utmost good faith in the disclosure of assets, and if it is revealed that the applicant has not stated with the utmost good faith the whole of his assets, the application must be rejected at the very earliest stage.—Durga Prasad v. Srinivas Sureka, 123 I. C. 398: 11 P. L. T. 567: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 368.

The object of the rule that a pauper should set out the list of his properties is to help the Government in ascertaining whether the applicant is in a position to pay the court-fee payable on the plaint. Omission of a few articles of trifling value, unless due to bad faith, is of little importance.—Musst. Chamela Kuar v. Pursottam Das, 13 P. L. T. 538.

Verification.—Where the petitioner did not verify the contents of the petition at the foot of the petition, but he did so by a separate affidavit in which the statements contained in the several paragraphs of the petition were said to be true and no part of them was false and nothing had been concealed, held, this affidavit being annexed to the petition must be treated as a part of it; Pirji Ashraf Ali v. Rameshwar Nath, A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 684.

There is no provision which requires the schedule to the application to sue in forma pauperis to be verified; in any case if the signature and verification of the applicant is necessary, the proper procedure is to return the plaint in order to remedy the defect.—Amar Nath v. Rattan Chand, 139 I. C. 652: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 548.

Death of applicant.—The right to obtain permission to sue as a pauper is only a personal right, and on the death of the applicant his legal representative cannot come in as such and be substituted in his place but if he is a pauper himself he can file a fresh application for leave to sue in forma pauperis.—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163 : 4 C. L. J. 234 ; Subbiah v. Bala, 51 M. 697 : 110 I. C. 318 : A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 278.

3. Notwithstanding anything contained in these rules, the application shall be presented to the Court by the applicant in person, unless he is exempted from appearing in Court, in which case the application may be presented by an authorized agent who can answer all material questions relating to the application, and who may be examined in the same manner as the party represented by him might have been examined had such party attended in person. [S. 404.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 404, C. P. Code, with some alterations of a verbal character.

The words "in these rules" have been substituted for the words "in S. 36," the words "under Ss. 640 or 641," which stood after the words "from appearing in Court," and the word "duly" which stood before the words "authorized agent" in the old section have been omitted.

"Shall be presented in person."—The provisions of this rule requiring the petition for permission to sue in forma pauperis to be presented by the petitioner in person is imperative and must be held to control the provisions of Or. III, r. 1.—Ex parte Divgir, 4 B. H. C. R. 91.

Presentation need not be to the Court itself. Presentation to the proper officer of the Court is sufficient.—Chidambaram v. Kadar Mohideen, 48 M. 785 : A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 901.

This rule which requires an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis to be presented (except in certain circumstances) by the applicant in person, does not apply to an application under S. 592, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XLIV, r. 1), to be allowed to appeal as a pauper.—Maitli v. Somappa Banta, 26 M. 369. But see In re Narise, 8 M. 504 (21 W. R. 303 referred to). Where a plaint is validly presented in person and is subsequently returned for presentation to a proper Court and a memorandum is filed by both the parties that the suit should be proceeded with, the objection that the plaint should have been presented in person to the latter Court cannot be upheld but the question of pauperism may be gone into afresh.—Papathi Ammal v. Karuppiak, (1930) M. W. N. 582.

Authorized agent—"Authorized Agent" in r. 3 clearly does not include a recognised agent or pleader. In order to bring him within the rule he must be specially authorized for the purpose.—Sakina Bibi v. Charnjit Singh, 80 P. L. R. 1915 : 23 I. C. 448 (21 W. B. 303 referred to). There is nothing to show that the authority of the agent must be in writing.—Musst. Bibi Sogra v. Radha Kishun, 7 P. 825.

The Court rejected a petition of appeal presented on behalf of a pauper by a pleader who was retained under an ordinary Vakalatnama, but was not specially authorized to sign as attorney for the applicant.—Bhugobutty v. Gunesh, 21 W. R. 308.

The mere fact that several persons jointly present an application for permission to sue as pauper, does not authorize the Court to entertain it on behalf of the applicants who do not appear in person.—Burgess v. Sidden, 10 M. 193.

Pardanashin woman.—Where an appeal in forma pauperis by a pardanashin woman, who had sued as a pauper in the first Court, was presented by a person, other than an advocate, vakil or attorney, or the suitor in person, but by her duly authorized agent, held, that was a good presentation.—Wazirunnissa v. Ilahi Bakhsh, 24 A. 172.

Limitation.—If the application for leave to sue in forma pauperis has been presented at the office within the period of limitation, the fact that the application was signed or verified a little later does not matter.—Vora v. Japan Cotton Trading Co. Ltd., 32 Bom L. R. 1343: 128 I. C. 625: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 47.

See Or. XLIV as to Appeal in forma pauperis.

4. (1) Where the application is in proper form and duly presented, the Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, or his agent when the applicant is allowed to appear by agent, regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant.

If presented by agent, Court may order applicant to be examined by commission.

(2) Where the application is presented by an agent, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order that the applicant be examined by a commission in the manner in which the examination of an absent witness may be taken.

[S. 406.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 406, C. P. Code, 1892, with some verbal alterations. Some of the words of the old section have been changed and replaced by more appropriate words.

Scope of the enquiry.—In an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, C. P. Code, the Court cannot take evidence (except the evidence of the applicant himself) on the merits of the claim. Rule 4 expressly gives power to the Court to examine the applicant regarding the merits of the claim and the property of the applicant, so that there is no doubt that the applicant himself can be examined not only with reference to the question of pauperism but also with reference to the merits of the claim.—Jogendra Narayan v. Durga Charan, 46 C. 651: 52 I. C. 610.

The Court when making an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, rr. 4 and 7, cannot take any evidence except that of the applicant himself on the merits.

of the claim. The Court has to determine whether the allegation in the petition and the examination of the petitioner himself disclose a cause of action.—Sita Nath v. Radha Raman, 50 I. C. 676.

Examination of applicant.—The C P. Code does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper, and his allegations disclose a right to sue in forma pauperis is made, to the merits of the claim.—Re . . . M. 323; Naraini Kuar v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526, and Abbasi Begam v. Nanhi Begam, 18 A. 206. See also Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram, 2 C. W. N. 474 and Gopal v. Bigoo, 8 C. W. N. 70, noted under r. 5 (b) and (d).

When a plaintiff applies for permission to sue in forma pauperis and is examined under Or. XXXIII, r. 4, the opposite party is entitled to cross-examine the applicant on the merits of his claim to test the statements he makes in his examination; Radha Raman v. Sitanath, 60 I. C. 738.

Rejection of application. 5. The Court shall reject an application for permission to sue as a pauper—

- (a) where it is not framed and presented in the manner prescribed by rules 2 and 3, or
- (b) where the applicant is not a pauper, or
- (c) where he has, within two months next before the presentation of the application, disposed of any property fraudulently or in order to be able to apply for permission to sue as a pauper, or
- ✓ (d) where his allegations do not show a cause of action, or
- (e) where he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the proposed suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter.

[Ss. 405 & 407.]

COMMENTARY.

Alterations.—This rule has embodied the provisions of Ss. 405 and 407 of the C. P. Code, 1882, with some additions and alterations.

Clause (a) corresponds to S. 405 of the old Code with some verbal changes only.

Clause (b) is similar to Cl. (a) of the old S. 407.

Clause (c) is similar to Cl. (b) of the old S. 407 with change of some words and phrases.

Clause (d) has been substituted for Cl. (c) of the old S. 407, which ran as follows: "That his allegations do not show a right to sue in such Court." These words gave rise to several conflicting rulings: and in order to set at rest the several conflicting rulings, the words "cause of action" have been substituted for the words "right to sue in such Court" which occurred in the old section. The conflicting rulings have been noted under Cl. (d). For the meaning of the words "cause of action," see notes under S. 20 and Or. XI, r. 2.

Scope of rule.—By the above amendment the scope of the present rule has been enlarged, as the words "cause of action" are wide enough to include the cases mentioned in 7 A. 661 (F. B.), 20 A. 299, 19 M. 197, 13 B. 126 and 27 M. 37. The object of the amendment will be clearly understood on reference to the above cases.

Clause (e) corresponds to Cl. (d) of the old S. 407.

It is true that under Or. XXXIII, r. 5 the Court is bound to reject an application which is not framed and presented in the manner prescribed by rr. 2 and 3, but from this it does not follow that rr. 2 and 3 should be meticulously interpreted against the petitioner and used as a trap.—Praphull v. Sham Lal, A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 328.

That the applicant is not able to name all the persons in possession of the property left by the deceased in an administration suit, is no ground for dismissing the application.—Praphull v. Sham Lal, A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 328.

Clause (a)—Where application not properly framed.—If an application is improperly framed through misjoinder of causes of action and reliefs, the Court has got the power to amend the application under S. 141 of the C. P. Code.—Kanagammal v. Panchapakesa, 26 M. L. J. 343; (1914) M. W. N. 327; 23 I. C. 82. But see Kalikumar v. N. N. Burjorjes, 20 I. C. 640; 7 L. B. R. 60; 6 Bur. L. T. 141, where it was held that an application ought to be rejected as being improperly framed, where it was not accompanied by a schedule of the applicant's moveable and immoveable properties.

Where an applicant has not calculated the court-fees in accordance with S. 7 (v) (b) of the Court-fees Act, his application to sue as a pauper must be rejected.—Maung Pe Kye v. Ma Shwe Zin, 7 R. 359; 118 I. C. 415; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 128 (case in which it was observed that the rejection of the application would not bar a fresh application being presented).

The fact that a joint pauper application by two persons was dismissed is no ground for dismissing a subsequent pauper application by one of them.—Praphull v. Sham Lal, A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 328 (referring to A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 128).

Clause (b)—Where applicant not a pauper.—On an application to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is required to deal with the question of the applicant's pauperism with reference to the definition of that word as given in the Explanation to Or. XXXIII, r. 1 and, in deciding it, to ascertain the exact property, its market-value, and the title thereto, and then to deal with the case under r. 5, irrespective of any surmises as to the reason why the applicant has valued his claim at a high figure.—Muhammad Husain v. Ajudhia Prasad, 10 A. 467.

The Code of Civil Procedure does not authorize the rejection of an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for want of merits when the applicant is found to be a pauper, and his allegations disclose a right to sue. When an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made, the Court should not go into the evidence as to the merits of the claim.—Ranganayaka Ammal v Venkatachellapati, 4 M. 323. See also Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram, 2 C. W. N. 474 (followed in Gopal v. Bigoo, 8 C. W. N. 70).

Where an application is made for leave to sue in forma pauperis, the Court is bound to proceed on the valuation put upon the suit by the plaintiff and to investigate whether he has sufficient means to enable him to pay the court-fee on the plaint as presented by him. It is not open to the Court to investigate his claim in order to enable him to sue as a pauper; Tulshi Mahatani v. Gajadhar, 61 I. C. 891.

At an enquiry under this rule, if it be found that the petitioner is possessed of property which is within his reach and can be made use of by him to carry on his litigation, such property cannot be excluded from consideration.—Dwarka Nath v. Madhavray, 10 B. 207.

The father as next friend of a minor applied for leave to sue in forma pauperis for damages for serious bodily injuries received by her. The Court rejected the application under Or. XXXIII, r. 5, on the ground that the next friend, the father of the plaintiff, was not a pauper. Held, that the order should be set aside and the matter inquired into under Or. XXXIII, r. 6 of the C. P. Code.—Musst Amirmon v. Secretary of State, 23 C. W. N. 955

The capacity of the relations cannot be considered.—Sharan Singh v. Musst. Man Kaur, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 746. Where the applicant was a Burmese Buddhist wife having no property except a house belonging jointly to her and her husband it was held that she had no definite share in the house nor any separate property and so should be permitted to sue as a pauper.—Ma Bok v. Maung Sein, 128 I. C. 848; A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 324. Husband's means may be considered for inferring therefrom the wife's financial condition but the inference must not be a conjecture.—Ma Ma Gale v. Ma Mi, A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 318.

Clause (d)—Where allegations do not show cause of action.—It is open to the Court to consider not only the statement made in the plaint but also the statements made in his examination by the applicant before the Court, in determining whether his allegations disclose a cause of action as laid down in Or. XXXIII, r. 5, Cl. (d). But the Court cannot examine the witnesses for deciding the question of limitation or any other question other than the pauperism of the applicant.—Jogendra Narayan v. Durga Charan, 46 C. 651; 52 I. C. 610. See also Sita Nath v. Radha Raman, 50 I. C. 676; Nawab Bahadur of Moorsheadabad v. Harish Chandra, 13 C. L. J. 593. There is a clear distinction between a plaint not disclosing a cause of action and a suit being barred by limitation.—Allah Wasai v. Ramzan, 117 I. C. 95; A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 498. The merits of a cause of action cannot be gone into.—Ma E. Htai v. U Hmai, 131 I. C. 64; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 79.

The non-existence of a cause of action should appear clearly on the face of the application itself, which alone would justify the Court in rejecting the application; Govindasami v. The Municipal Council, 41 M. 620; U Ba Dwe v. Maung Lu Pan, A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 107 (F. B.). The Court would be acting without jurisdiction if it should travel beyond the four corners of the application and take into consideration matters not stated therein or consider any document or other evidence in order to determine whether there is a cause of action or not; Ramachandra v. Venkiah, 101 I. C. 18 : 52 M. L. J. 380 : A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 441. Where the allegations made in the application for leave to sue as a pauper show a cause of action, the Court cannot dismiss the application by going beyond the allegations and taking into consideration the evidence of the defendant to the suit.—U Maung Gyi v. Naungbo Co-operative Credit Society, A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 209. It is open to the Court to consider not only the statements made in the plaint but also the statements made by the petitioner in his examination before determining whether a cause of action is disclosed.—Ma Shopjambi v. Mubarak Ali, 7 R. 361 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 273 (relying on 46 C. 651 noted ante). But the Court cannot ask the applicant to produce evidence to show that he has a good case or reject the application because the evidence adduced does not prove that he has a good case.—Ram Lal Sah v. Allahabad Bank, Ltd., 118 I. C. 669 : 27 A. L. J. 1059.

Clause (d) does not refer solely to a question of jurisdiction, but the applicant must make out that he has a good subsisting prima facie cause of action capable of enforcement in Court and calling for an answer, and not barred by res judicata, limitation, or any other law.—Chattarpal Singh v. Raja Ram, 7 A. 661 (F. B.) (followed in 134 P. R. 1919 : 53 I. C. 441). See also Kamarak Nath v. Sundar Nath, 20 A. 299 (4 M. 323 dissented from); Vijendra Tirtha v. Sudhindra Tirtha, 19 M. 197; Dulari v. Vallab Das, 13 B. 126; and Amirtham v. Alwar Manikkam, 27 M. 37 (20 A. 299 followed).

Where the lower Court dismissed an application to sue in forma pauperis on the ground that the case was founded on Government Pleader intended to dispute the pauperism and the Court did not enquire as to a pauper or not, held that the order must be set aside.—Sumatra Devi v. Hazari Lal, 126 I. C. 1 : 28 A. L. J. 901 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 768.

A Court shall reject an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis, if 585. But it has been held in Kamaya v. Vadamalai, A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 135, that it is undesirable, on an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis, to go into a complicated question of limitation. See also Bhajja v. Mohammad, 138 I. C. 396 : 30 A. L. J. 489 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 543.

is, the Court made by the
 of action.—

In an enquiry under Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (d), if there is nothing to show from the allegations in the plaint as they stand, that the petitioner has no right to sue, then the Court is justified in rejecting the application. But where a Judge in making an enquiry finds that the applicant is a pauper and then addresses himself to the merits of the case, to the rights of parties, and to matters which are entirely foreign to the enquiry that he has to make, he exceeds his jurisdiction, and the High Court has power to interfere under S. 622, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 115).—Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram Charn, 2 C. W. N. 474 (followed in Gopal Chundra v. Bigoo Mistry, 8 C. W. N. 70); Natesa Ayyar v. Manogya Ayyar, 10 L. W. 589 (2 C. W. N. 474 relied on). It is not permissible in a pauper petition to go into an elaborate enquiry on the merits of the plaintiff's case; Charukonda v. Lakshmananna, 97 I. C. 349 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1160.

Where an application is made for leave to sue in forma pauperis, it is open to the Court to dismiss the application on the ground that though the plaint discloses a cause of action, the plaintiffs' case would fail on the merits.—Bolimati Muriqadu v. Nalla Bapadu, 18 L. W. 53; 73 I. C. 946 : (1923) M. W. N. 412; or that the claim is doubtful; Mt. Rupibai v. Sadashiv, 75 I. C. 744.

Where the applicant sued in ejectment alleging that he was the sole surviving sanyasi, but was not the successor nominated by the last mohant, nor appointed to the guddi by the electoral body; held that the applicant has no cause of action and his application should be dismissed.—Parmath Gir v. Ram Sarup, 30 A. L. J. 303.

For the purpose of determining whether the applicant has complied with the provisions of r. 5 (d) it is not competent to the Court to allow the applicant to be examined under rr. 6 and 7 upon the merits of the case, nor the Government pleader or the opposite party to adduce evidence under these rules, though the parties can present arguments in that behalf — U Ba Dwe v. Maung Lu Pan, A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 107 (F. B.).

Where a petition in a suit in forma pauperis had been admitted and the case came on for hearing under Or. XXXIII, r. 7, it was proposed for the defendant to show by examination of the plaintiff that on the facts stated in the petition, she had no cause of action. The Court allowed the plaintiff to be examined to show that, on her own evidence, she had no cause of action, but refused to allow other witnesses to be called upon.—Tarramoney v. Hurro Mohun, 11 B. L. R. App. 23. But In re Gunga Dass, 11 B. L. R. App. 23 note: 14 W. R. 291, it was held that where on the day fixed for hearing evidence on the question of pauperism the defendant brought to the notice of the Court any ground on which it would have been bound to refuse to allow the petitioner to sue as a pauper, it would be the duty of the Court, at any rate it would be in the discretion of the Court upon being so informed to refuse leave. Cited in Vijendra Tirtha v. Sudhindra Tirtha, 19 M. 197.

... leave to sue her husband for
... to express her intention of
... leave to do so as a pauper.
... application does not amount to a demand by way of action. A counter-petition by the husband objecting to the pauper suit being allowed, and denying his liability to pay the dower, does not alter the character of the proceedings, since no opposition on his part can constitute a cause of action, unless there has been a previous demand by the wife.—Khajooroonnissa v. Saifoolla, 15 B. L. R. 306 (P. C.): 24 W. R. 163 (P. C.) (reversing 5 B. L. R. 84; 13 W. R. 371).

The subsequent insolvency of the petitioner is no ground for rejecting the application.—Chidambaram v. Kother, 48 M. L. J. 491: 87 I. C. 720: A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 791.

Rules 5 and 7 of Or. XXXIII do not directly apply to pauper appeals. The appellate Court cannot address itself to the question whether the plaint shows a cause of action.—Somasundaram v. Arunachalam, (1932) M. W. N. 537: A. I. R. 1932 Mad. 523: 63 M. L. J. 28.

Clause (a)—Transfer of interest in subject-matter—Whether benamdar plaintiffs can be allowed to sue as paupers.—The provisions of Or. XXXIII of the C. P. Code have been designed to aid bona fide litigants and must be strictly confined to such litigants. It cannot have been the intention of the Legislature that a litigant, fully able to comply with the terms of the fiscal law, should, by setting up a pauper as a nominee, be entitled to evade the claim of the State. The effect of permitting a benamdar to sue as a pauper would be to give a person who is not a pauper the right to evade the fiscal law and to infringe the provision of Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (e) of the C. P. Code.—Srimuty Charu Sila v. Haran Chandra, (1919) P. 232: 50 I. C. 520.

On an application by two persons for permission to sue in forma pauperis, it appeared that they had entered into an agreement with the pleader to pay his remuneration out of the proceeds of the property in dispute after its recovery. Held, that such an agreement was within the scope of Cl. (e), and their application to sue as paupers was to be rejected.—Monohar Ramchandra v. Lakshman, 9 B. 371. No leave to appeal in forma pauperis can be given when at the date of suit there was subsisting an agreement falling within this clause.—Hanufa Bai v. Haji Siddick, 30 M. 547: 17 M. L. J. 447.

Where the applicant in his examination said:—"I have not yet paid any fees to him (his pleader) but I have undertaken to pay him fees when I obtain a decree for my share." Held that the statement does not amount to giving any definite interest in the subject-matter to the pleader within the meaning of r. 5 (e).—Skeena Bi Bi v. Abdul Aziz, A. I. R. 1932 Rang. 69.

Revision.—There is some conflict of authority on the point whether an order not. The not a pat revision lies from an order rejecting an application for leave to sue as a pauper.—Mahadeo v. Secretary of State, 44 A. 248: 65 I. C. 255: A. I. R. 1922 All. 1: 20 A. L. J. 55; Shankar v. Ram Dei, 48 A. 493: 94 I. C. 484: A. I. R. 1926 All. 446 (following Budhu Lal v. Mewa Ram, 43 A. 564 (F. B.): 63 I. C. 15). But the same High Court in Secretary of State v. Jillo, 21 A. 133 (F. B.) while holding that no appeal lay from an order rejecting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis, entertained the matter of their own motion in revision saying "the order passed by the Subordinate Judge is so extraordinary that we direct this case to be treated as a case in revision".—In Shauran Bibi v. Abdus Samad, 45 A. 549: 73 I. C. 538: A. I. R. 1923 All. 577: Lachmi v. Ram Bahadur, 86 I. C. 781: A. I. R. 1925 All. 275; Mussi. Sumatra Devi

C. 703, the same High Court exercised revisional powers where leave to sue as a pauper was refused. See also Ghulam v. Dwarka Prasad, 18 A. 163 and Debi Das v. Ejaz Husain, 28 A. 72: 2 A. L. J. 749: (1905) A. W. N. 19. In Malik Mohammad Ayub v. Malik Mohammad Mahmood, 6 I. C. 831: 32 A. 623, the same High Court held that a distinction is to be drawn between the cases in which an application in forma pauperis is rejected and cases in which it is granted. When it is rejected, the "case" of the application comes to an end and an application for revision lies in such cases; but when the application is granted the "case" of a pauper is not decided within the meaning of S. 115 and in such a case the High Court cannot interfere in revision. The other High Courts have held that a revision petition lies against an order of the Court rejecting an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis.—Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram Charn, 2 C. W. N. 474 (folded in Gopal v. Bigoo, 8 C. W. N. 70); Ramachandra v. Venkiah, 101 I. C. 18: 52 M. L. J. 380: A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 441; Ma Ma Gale v. Ma Ma, A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 318; *Ma Mya Thin v. 6. Where the Court sees no reason to reject the application on any of the grounds stated in rule 5, it shall fix a day (of which at least ten days' clear notice shall be given to the opposite party and the Government pleader) for receiving such evidence as the applicant may adduce in proof of his pauperism, and for hearing any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof. [S. 403.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 408, C. P. Code, 1882, with some verbal changes only.

"Notice shall be given to the opposite party."—Where a Munsif disposed of an application for leave to sue as a pauper, without taking such evidence as the opposite party had offered before the Court, and without notice to the opposite party and the Government: Held, the Court acted without jurisdiction in dealing with the pauper application, and a revision lay, Noni Krishna v. Nabamonyuri, A. I. R. 1937 Cal. 464: 100 I. C. 726.

Evidence in disproof of applicant's pauperism.—A defendant is entitled at the hearing to adduce evidence in disproof of the alleged pauperism of the plaintiff. Therefore a Court should not allow a plaintiff to sue in forma pauperis, without opportunity afforded to the defendant to prove that the plaintiff is not a pauper.—Zillar Rahman v. Guzunfur Hossain, 23 I. C. 974 (10 B. 207; 30 B. 593; 8 Bom L. R. 671 relied on).

The only matter in regard to which evidence may be taken is the question of the pauperism or otherwise of the applicant. Rule 6 does not empower the Court to try the question of the plaintiff's title after taking evidence on that question and in fact to try the suit on the merits before the application for leave to sue is granted (46 C. 651 applied; 20 A. 299 distd.); Shauran Bibi v. Abdus Samad, 45 A. 548; 21 A. L. J. 441. But it has been held that though in an application for permission to sue as a pauper the opponent has no right to examine the applicant on the merits of the claims, it is open to the Court to do so both before and after the issue of the notice referred to in r. 6 and for that purpose the Court may avail of such help as the opponent may render.—Vasanbai v. Radhibai, 103 I. C. 657; A. I. R. 1928 Sind 118.

7. (1) On the day so fixed or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, the Court shall examine the witnesses (if any) produced by either party, and may examine the applicant or his agent, and shall make a memorandum of the substance of their evidence.

(2) The Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether, on the face of the application and of the evidence (if any) taken by the Court as herein provided, the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in rule 5.

(3) The Court shall then either allow or refuse to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper. [S. 409.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 409 of the C. P. Code, 1892.

Scope of enquiry.—In an enquiry on an application to sue in forma pauperis under Or. XXXIII, rr 4, 5 and 7, C. P. Code, the primary question which the Court should consider is the fact of the petitioner's pauperism and the Court should not go into the merits of the petitioner's claim and determine a complicated question of law such as limitation.—Kalliani Amma v. Matathil Veetil, 37 M. L. J. 309; (1919) M. W. N. 573; 53 I. C. 239. See also Sitanath v. Radha Raman, 50 I. C. 676; Jogendra v. Durga Charan, 46 C. 651; 52 I. C. 610; Mt. Bhagwanti v. Bua Ditta, 76 I. C. 40; Ma Shopjambi v. Mubarak, 7 R. 361; A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 273.

The burden of proving that the value of the petitioner's property does not exceed the amount required for court-fees lies on the petitioner.—Nand Kishore v. Prabhu Dayal, A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 821.

r. 7.

Mode and subject of examination.—The examination of the applicant to be conducted by the Judge in person and not by any officer of the Court.—In re Eknath, 1 B. H. C. R. 102. See also In re Gunga Dass, 11 B. L. R. App. 23 note; 14 W. R. 281.

Where a Judge in making an enquiry finds that an applicant is a pauper and then addresses himself to the merits of the case, to the rights of the parties and to matters which are entirely foreign to the enquiry that he has to make, he exceeds his jurisdiction.—Debo Das v. Mohunt Ram Charn, 2 C. W. N. 474; Gopal Chandra v. Bigoo Mistry, 8 C. W. N. 70.

"The Court shall hear argument."—Order XXXIII, r. 7 which provides that "the Court shall also hear any argument which the parties may desire to offer on the question whether on the face of the application and of the evidence the applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in r. 5," enables the parties to argue the question if they so desire but does not preclude the Court if no argument is offered, from considering that question of its own motion.—Amirtham v. Alwar Manikkam, 27 M. 37.

On hearing a petition under S. 409 of the Code of 1882 (Or. XXXIII, r. 7) for leave to sue in forma pauperis, the Court must decide whether the petitioner has at the date of the petition a subsisting cause of action capable of enforcement, and where the cause of action is barred by res judicata or limitation, the petition must fail.—Vijendra Tirtha v. Sudhindra Tirtha, 19 M. 197.

Evidence.—The evidence to be taken under r. 7 is confined to the evidence which may be adduced by the applicant in proof of pauperism and any evidence which may be adduced in disproof thereof as laid down in r. 6.—Jogendra v. Durga Charan, 46 C. 651 : 52 I. C. 610 (20 A. 299, 13 B. 126; 13 C. L. J. 593 followed). See also Srimaty Charu Sila v. Haran Chandra, (1919 P. 232; 50 I. C. 520) The Court should pass orders only after hearing the evidence; where an order was passed without taking evidence on the question whether certain sums of money belonging to the minor (applicant) were at the time of the family partition handed over to his guardian as alleged by the defendant, held that the order could not stand.—Subba Reddy v. Kadaswamy, (1928) M. W. N. 235.

"The applicant is or is not subject to any of the prohibitions specified in r. 5."—On this point see notes under Cls. (b), (d) and (e) of r. 5.

Where an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is rejected for want of prosecution, the order rejecting the application is an order under this rule, and operates as a bar under S. 413, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXXIII, r. 15), to the entertainment of the second application in the same right.—Rancho Morar v. Bezany, 20 B. 86. But in Kedar Nath v. Tula Bibi, 10 C. W. N. civ (104-n), it was held (dissenting from 20 B. 86) that there having been no adjudication on the former occasion on the question of pauperism, this rule was no bar.

Limitation where application refused.—Where an application to sue as a pauper is refused, and a suit in the ordinary way in respect of the same subject-matter is subsequently instituted by the applicant, the suit, for the purposes of limitation, will be deemed to have been instituted on the date on which the plaint is presented, and not the date on which the rejected application was filed.—Naraini v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526; Abhoya v. Bissesswari, 24 C. 889; Keshav v. Krishna Rao, 20 B. 508.

Limitation where application is converted into a plaint on payment of Court-fees.—Where a person applies for converting his application for leave to sue as a pauper into a plaint on payment of the necessary court-fees, the suit will be deemed to have been instituted, for the purposes of limitation, on the day on which the application for leave to sue as a pauper was filed, and not the day on which the court-fees were paid.—Sook Lal v. Dal Chand, 1 R. 196; 74 I. C. 835; A. I. R. 1923 Rang. 256; Janakdhary v. Janki, 28 C. 427; Naraini v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526. That is also the case when the application is granted.—Kaman v. Mallai, 91 I. C. 302; 49 M. L. J. 538; A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 159.

Appeal from orders under this rule.—An order rejecting an application for permission to sue as a pauper, and striking the case off the Court's file, on the ground that the applicant had previously withdrawn the application and entered into a new contract with the defendants, is appealable as a decree.—Baldeo v. Gula Kuar, 9 A. 129 (referred to in Ranchod Morar v. Bezanti, 20 B. 86). But see The Secretary of State v. Jillo, 21 A. 133, where it has been held that no appeal lies from an order rejecting an application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis.

Where after consideration of an application for leave to sue as a pauper, the Court of first instance has allowed the suit to be instituted in forma pauperis, and has passed a decree in favour of the plaintiff, it is not open to the defendant in appeal to question the propriety of the first Court's order permitting the plaintiff to sue as pauper.—Mumtazan v. Rasulan, 23 A. 364.

Order under this rule subject to review.—An order under this rule refusing leave to sue as a pauper is subject to review under S. 623, C. P. Code, 1882 (S. 114 and Or. XLVII, r. 1).—Adarji v. Manikji, 4 B. 414. See also In the matter of the petition of Rani Umasundari, 5 B. L. R. App. 29; and Mahomed Gazi v. Dullab Bibi, 5 B. L. R. 318-note; 11 W. R. 22.

8. Where the application is granted, it shall be numbered and registered, and shall be deemed the plaint in the suit, and the suit shall proceed in all other respects as a suit instituted in the ordinary manner, except that the plaintiff shall not be liable to pay any court-fee (other than fees payable for service of process) in respect of any petition, appointment of a pleader or other proceeding connected with the suit. [S. 410.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 410, C. P. Code, 1882, with some alterations of a verbal character.

Procedure.—An application to sue in forma pauperis, which was filed in the Subordinate Judge's Court, was transferred to the Court of the District Judge, who granted the application. Held, that the District Judge had no power subsequently to transfer the pauper suit thus initiated to the file of the Sub-Judge.—Nandan Prasad v. W. G. Kenney, 24 A. 356.

No security for costs ought to be demanded from a person who has been allowed to sue as a pauper under this rule.—Hafizan v. Abdul Karim, 1 C. L. J. 312 : 12 C. W. N. 163 (17 W. R. 68 relied on).

Mode of computing period of limitation in pauper suits.—Where an application for leave to sue as a pauper is granted, limitation will run from the date of filing the application, and not from the date on which the application is numbered and registered as a suit (S. 4, Limitation Act).—Thangathammal v. Iravatheswara, 28 I. C. 504 : (1915) M. W. N. 228. But when the application is refused, and the applicant then institutes a suit on the same subject-matter in the ordinary way, the suit will, for the purposes of limitation, be deemed to have been instituted on the date on which the plaint is presented, and not the date on which the rejected application was filed.—Naraini v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526 ; Keshav v. Krishnarao, 20 B. 508 ; Aubhoya v. Bissesswari, 24 C. 899.

Where an application for leave to sue in forma pauperis is made in good faith, but the applicant, before an order is passed under this rule, converts his application into a plaint by paying the necessary court-fees, the suit would be deemed to have been instituted on the day on which the application was filed and not on the day on which the court-fees were paid; but if the application is found to have been made in bad faith, the day on which the court-fees were paid would be taken to be the date on which the suit was instituted.—Stuart Skinner v. Orde, 2 A 241 (P. C.) (reversing 1 A. 230) Followed in Janakdhary v. Janki Koer, 28 C. 427 (18 A. 206 dissented from) and in Alayakammal v. Subbaraya, 28 M. 493 : 15 M. L. J. 219. See also Jumnabai v. Vissondas, 21 B. 576 ; Bai Ful v. Desai Manorbhai, 22 B. 849 ; Girwa Lal v. Lakshmi Narain, 26 A. 329 ; and Durga Charan v. Dookhiram, 26 C. 925. For this purpose it is essential that a finding should be arrived at on the question of fact whether the original application to sue as a pauper was a fraudulent and malafide or a bona fide one.—Model Mills Ltd. v. Kurban Hussain, A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 296. But see Chunder Mohun v. Bhubon Mohini, 2 C. 389 ; Bishnath v. Jagarnath, 13 A. 305 ; Ram Sahai v. Maniram, 5 C. 807 ; 6 C. L. R. 223 ; Keshav v. Krishnarao, 20 B. 508 ; Naraini v. Makhan Lal, 17 A. 526 ; Abbas Begam v. Nanhi Begam, 18 A. 206 ; Aubhoya v. Bissesswari, 24 C. 899 (20 B. 508, 17 A. 526, 18 A. 206, followed ; 2 A. 241 (P. C.) distinguished).

Where a petition to sue in forma pauperis was presented in a wrong Court, the time spent in that Court was to be deducted in computing the period of limitation.—Skinner alias Mirza v. Orde, 6 N. W. P. 225.

There is no limitation of time within which a mere applicant to sue as a pauper is bound to apply for the substitution of the name of a deceased opponent's heir, in place of such opponent.—Janardan v. Anant, 7 B. 373.

Exception from liability to pay further court-fee.—Where an applicant is allowed to sue in forma pauperis, that applicant is not liable to pay any court-fee.—Umda

The payment of court-fees as such is not merely suspended, but it has not got to be paid at all.—Panalal v. Collector of Mandalay, 8 B. 294 : 137 I. C. 606 : A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 342.

Under this rule, a pauper cannot claim exemption from liability to pay any further stamp duty or penalty in respect of a document on which he relies, and which, owing to a defect in the stamp, is inadmissible as evidence in the suit.—Golam Guffoor v. Ekram Hossein, 10 W. R. 357.

Appeal from orders under this rule.—See notes under rule 7.

Doctrine of lis pendens applies to an application for permission to sue as a pauper, see 30 A. 95, noted under rule 5.

9. The Court may, on the application of the defendant, or of the Government pleader, of which seven days' clear notice in writing has been given to the plaintiff, order the plaintiff to be dispaupered—

Dispaupering.

(a) if he is guilty of vexatious or improper conduct in the course of the suit ;

(b) if it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper ; or

(c) if he has entered into any agreement with reference to the subject-matter of the suit under which any other person has obtained an interest in such subject-matter. [S. 414.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 414, C. P. Code, 1882, with change of some words and phrases. No change has been made in the meaning.

Object and scope of rule.—The object of this rule is, that if after the permission to sue in forma pauperis has been granted, it is found that, for the grounds mentioned in the rule, the applicant should not be allowed to continue the suit in forma pauperis, then on the application of the defendant or of the Government pleader, the Court may order the plaintiff to be dispaupered.

"If it appears that his means are such that he ought not to continue to sue as a pauper."—The word "means" in this clause is to be interpreted with the help of the definition of "pauper" in Or. XXXIII, r. 1. To apply Cl. (b) of r. 9, the Court could dispauper her when her means are such as to enable her to pay the court-fee of Rs. 3,000 upon the plaint in the case.—Srimoti Savitri v. Secretary of State for India, 2 P. 879: 4 P. L. T. 538.

The mere fact that the plaintiff was appearing through eminent counsel would not be sufficient to dispauper the plaintiff.—Srimoti Savitri v. Secretary of State for India, 2 P. 879: 4 P. L. T. 538.

Where a person found to be a pauper on the date of her application received a large sum immediately after, which she alleged, she had paid away for the purpose of her suit, she was not to be dispaupered, as she had been in possession of funds after her application, and it was not relieved by her paying the money away. The Court had no jurisdiction to grant her leave to sue in forma pauperis, once it had ascertained that she had ceased to be a pauper after the date of her application — Gadigi Muddappa v. Rudramma, 13 L. W. 76: 61 I. C. 958.

r. 9, 10.

The heir of a pauper plaintiff who desired to continue the suit on the death of the latter was found to be possessed of sufficient means and as he desired to continue the suit in his personal capacity and not in his representative capacity: held, that he could be dispaupered. — Arumuga v. Subramania, 131 I. C. 828: (1931) M. W. N. 199: 33 L. W. 446: A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 324.

"Vexatious or improper conduct." — Though concealment of property may amount to improper conduct which by itself would entitle the Court to dispauper a plaintiff under Or. XXXIII, r. 9, the facts which came to light in this case only demanded a further scrutiny by the Court to ascertain whether the plaintiff had means so that he ought not to be allowed to continue the suit as a pauper — Shankarbhut v. Sakherambhat, 46 B. 1017: A. I. R. 1922 Bom. 215 70 I. C. 964. If the pauper purposely delays in bringing the legal repr . . . record, the Court may punish him . . . XXXIII, r. 9 (a) read with S. . . improper or under S. 151 as an abuse of the process of the Court. — Khatijan Bai v. Nur Mahomed, 116 I. C. 111: A. I. R. 1929 Sind 136.

"Agreement with reference to subject-matter of suit." — This expression is not limited to an agreement by way of champerty or maintenance, but is intended rather to prevent a party continuing his suit as a pauper, after a third party not necessarily a pauper had for any cause whatever obtained an interest in the subject-matter of the suit and consequently an interest in paying the court-fees due to Government. — Edulji Cowasji v. Dadabhoy, 7 S. L. R. 52 (18 B. 464 referred to).

Appeal in forma pauperis. — Compromise of suit pending appeal and withdrawal of appeal — Application by Government pleader for payment of all costs payable to Government on account of institution fees, etc. — Opposition by parties to such application — Second application by Government pleader to dispauper the appellants under this rule. Held, that the appeal having been withdrawn, no order could be made either under S. 412 (Or. XXXIII, r. 11) or under S. 414 (Or. XXXIII, r. 6), C. P. Code, 1882. — Bai Chandaba v. Kuver Saheb, 18 B. 464.

10. Where the plaintiff succeeds in the suit, the Court shall calculate the amount of court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; such amount shall be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same, and shall be a first charge on the subject-matter of the suit. [S. 411.]

Costs where pauper succeeds.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule exactly corresponds to S. 411, C. P. Code, 1882.

Right of Government to realize court-fees.—The Crown has the first claim to the proceeds of a pauper-suit to the extent of the amount of the court-fees that would have been payable at the institution of the suit had the plaintiff not been a pauper.—Ganpat Putaya v. Collector of Kanara, 1 B. 7 (referred to in Gayanoda Bala v. Butto Kristo, 33 C. 1040; 10 C. W. N. 857; Gulzari Lal v. Collector of Bareilly, 1 A. 596). But in the Full Bench case of Dost Muhammad v. Mani Ram, 29 A. 537; 4 A. L. J. 720, it has been held that the sale subject to a mortgage of property belonging to the defendant in a suit brought in forma pauperis for the purpose of realizing the court-fee payable to Government by the plaintiff, does not preclude the mortgagee from bringing to sale the same property in execution of a decree for sale on his mortgage (2 A. 196 overruled; 1 B. 7 distinguished).

Where a pauper plaintiff succeeded only partially in the suit he brought and the amount decreed to him was less than what he had to pay the defendant as costs under the decree, held, that the Government could recover nothing out of the amount decreed towards the court-fees due to it.—T. V. Chakrapani v. The Government of India, (1921) M. W. N. 805; 14 L. W. 529; 69 I. C. 743; A. I. R. 1922 Mad. 125.

Costs where plaintiff succeeds.—The defendant is liable to pay court-fees proportionately where plaintiff succeeded only in part and failed as regards the rest of the claim.—Ganga Dahal v. Gaura, 14 A. L. J. 657; 38 A. 469; Srinirasa v. Lakshmi, 108 I. C. 712; A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 216; 54 M. L. J. 530; Chandrareka v. Secretary of State, 14 M. 163; Rami Reddi v. Polamma, 53 M. 780; 129 I. C. 66; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 1000. Where the suit is compromised, proper orders as to apportionment of court-fee may be passed.—Badrinath v. Jagdip, 122 I. C. 152; 11 P. L. T. 267; A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 353.

The discretion given to the Court under r. 10 is sufficient to enable the Court to mould its decree in view of the circumstances of the case according to what the justice of the case requires in reference to court-fees payable; and the words in the rule "that such amount shall be recoverable by the Government from any party ordered by the decree to pay the same" leave the discretion entirely with the Court to direct which of the parties should pay the court-fees due to the Government.—Rohini Kumar v. Kusum Kamini, 55 C. 488.

Mode of recovery of court-fees by Government.—The amount of stamp in a pauper case cannot be claimed as a lien or charge upon the decree in favour of Government, but is recoverable in the same manner as the costs of the suits, Government being, as regards its claim in such a case, in no higher position than an ordinary judgment-creditor.—Pran Kristo v. Collector of Moorshedabad, 15 W. R. 205. But in Puthia Valappil v. Veloth Assenar, 25 M. 733, a contrary view seems to have been taken.

The decree-holder is entitled to take out execution against the judgment-debtor if he is able to state either that he had already paid the amount to the Secretary of State or was prepared to assure the Court that the money would be paid to the Secretary of State. If the decree-holder does not give any such assurance to the Court, the Court should pay it over direct to the Secretary of State.—Surjan v. Shantanand, 118 I. C. 191: A. I. R. 1929 All. 905.

The proper method of recovering court-fee decreed as payable to Government from a pauper plaintiff, whenever plaintiff's property is confined to a right to future maintenance, is by the Court appointing a receiver to collect the maintenance amount and pay to Government the fee due by plaintiff.—Secretary of State v. Sarvepalli, 49 M. 567: 50 M. L. J. 279; Rajindra v. Sundar Bibi, A. I. R. 1925 P. C. 176.

Where a decree in a pauper-suit directs that the court-fee should be recoverable from the defendant in the same manner as the costs of the suit, held, that the same might be realized in execution and not by a separate suit.—Ram Das v. Secretary of State, 18 A. 419 (followed in Babui Girija Kuer v. Secretary of State, 4 P. L. J. 166: 50 I. C. 315).

Cross-decrees in the same suit or in a cross-suit are not enforceable against the right of Government to recover court-fees in a pauper suit.—Janki v. Collector of Allahabad, 9 A. 64.

The provisions of this rule do not justify the Court in selling a decree upon the application of the Collector, in as much as it provides that persons who have been successful as paupers shall, so far as the subject-matter of their success is concerned, be liable to satisfy, out of what they recover the amount of the fees, which have been for a time, pending the decision of their suit, remitted to them.—Jotindra Nath v. Dwarka Nath, 20 C. 111 (2 A. 290 and 6 M. 418 followed).

Sale of property for the purpose of realizing court-fees erroneously supposed to be due to Government. Held, that an order for sale and resale under such order were ultra vires and nullities when in fact there was no jurisdiction in the Court to make the order.—Balwant Rao v. Muhammad Husain, 15 A. 324 (12 C. 307 referred to).

After the decree in a pauper-suit and order for payment of costs by plaintiff and defendant in proportion to their success, the Court, on motion by the Government, altered its original order with respect to the payment of costs, and declared that the costs should be realized from both the parties jointly. Held, that the Court had no authority to make the second order in favour of Government.—Shostee Churn v. Collector of Chittagong, 13 W. R. 155.

Appeal.—All questions arising between the Government and any party to the suit under this rule would come within the purview of S. 47 as relating to the "execution, discharge and satisfaction" of a decree. An appeal will therefore lie from an order passed under this rule deciding any such question.—See S. 2, Cl. (2), S. 96, and Secretary of State v. Narayan, 35 B. 448.

11. Where the plaintiff fails in the suit or is dispaupered, or where the suit is withdrawn or dismissed,—

Procedure where pauper fails.

- (a) because the summons for the defendant to appear and answer has not been served upon him in consequence of the failure of the plaintiff to pay the court-fee or postal charges (if any) chargeable for such service, or
- (b) because the plaintiff does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing.

the Court shall order the plaintiff, or any person added as a co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper. [S. 412.]

COMMENTARY.

Alteration.—The word "withdrawn" has been newly added, and para. 2. of the old section, which contained the provision for the punishment of the pauper, has been omitted. The old section is reproduced here for observing the changes introduced by this rule.—"If the plaintiff fails in the suit, or if he is dispaupered, or if the suit is dismissed under Ss. 97 or 98, the Court shall order the plaintiff or any person made, under S. 32, co-plaintiff to the suit, to pay the court-fees which would have been paid by the plaintiff if he had not been permitted to sue as a pauper; and if it finds that the suit was frivolous or vexatious, it may also punish the plaintiff with fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to a month, or with both."

"Where the suit is withdrawn."—The above change has been introduced on account of several conflicting rulings regarding the meaning of the expression "if the plaintiff fails in the suit," as will appear from the cases noted below. In some of the Bombay cases, it was held that S. 412 of the old Code applied only to cases of adjudicated failure (15 B. 77 and 18 B. 464); and in some cases doubts were expressed as to whether "failure" includes withdrawal of suits. With a view to clear away this conflict, the word "withdrawn" has been added in the present rule, adopting the law as laid down in the Full Bench case in Secretary of State v. Bhagirathibai, 31 B. 10; by which 15 B. 77 and 18 B. 464 have been overruled.

Where a pauper plaintiff withdraws from a suit without permission under S. 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1) as the result of a compromise, by which he obtains a substantial part of the relief claimed, he falls in the suit within the meaning of this rule—Secretary of State v. Bhagirathibai, 31 B. 10 (F. B.): 8 Bom. L. R. 689 (15 B. 77 and 18 B. 464 overruled).

The words "if the plaintiff fails in the suit" in S. 412, C. P. Code, 1882: (Or. XXXIII, r. 11), apply to the withdrawal of a suit under S. 373, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXIII, r. 1). Where a pauper plaintiff withdraws a suit with liberty to bring fresh suit, he is liable to pay to Government court-fees.—Secretary of State v. Narayan Balkrishna, 29 B. 102 (15 B. 77 and 18 B. 464 distinguished; 21 M. 113 referred to).

rr. 11, 12

If the plaintiff fails in his suit brought in forma pauperis, he is liable to pay to Government the amount of court-fees.—Balwant Singh v. Roshan Singh, 18 A. 253, p. 255.

"The Court shall order the plaintiff to pay the court-fees."—The terms of this rule are mandatory, and it is obligatory upon the Court, when passing the decree, to provide in the decree for the payment of court-fees.—Secretary of State v. Bhagwanti Bibi, 13 A. 326, 329. When the Court omits to pass such an order, it is now provided by r. 12 that the Government has the right to apply to the Court for an order as to costs at any time. Under the old Code it was held that the Government not being a party to the suit, it had no right of appeal in case of such omission but could proceed only by an application for review.—Collector of Ratnagiri v. Janardan, 6 B. 590; Collector of Kanara v. Krishnappa, 15 B. 77; Chandaba v. Kuver, 18 B. 464.

The Madras High Court has held that there is no inconsistency between the Madras H. C. Fees Rules (O. S.) Or. II, r. 2 and rr. 10 and 11 of Or. XXXIII of the Code, and that the said rules of the Code are not ultra vires of the Indian Legislature since there is nothing to prevent the Indian Legislature from making rules relating to court-fees applicable to the Original Side of the High Court.—Yelumalai v. Kupppammal, 109 I. C. 173: 27 L. W. 760: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 385: 54 M. L. J. 263.

Where an application to sue in forma pauperis was rejected solely on the ground of the minority of the plaintiff, and that such minor was not properly represented by a next friend or guardian, without any enquiry as to his pauperism, and the Court ordered all costs to be paid out of the minor's estate, held, that, as no enquiry was made as to the pauperism of the minor, the order for costs against the minor's estate could not be passed under this section (rule), and that the order was illegal and ultra vires.—Amichand Talakchand v. Collector of Sholapur, 13 B. 234.

Costs.—This rule does not deal with the cost of a successful defendant in a pauper-suit. The costs of defendant in such a case are to be dealt with under S. 35, C. P. Code, and the Court of original or appellate jurisdiction has full power to give and apportion costs in any manner it thinks fit.—Jetha Mulchand v. Gulraj Jasrup, 8 B. 577 (F. B.).

12. The Government shall have the right at any time to apply to the Court to make an order for the payment of court-fees under rule 10 or rule 11.

Government may apply for payment of court-fees

[New.]

COMMENTARY.

History and Object.—This rule is new. It has been framed to meet the following cases. In 4 M. 155, it was held that an application by Government for the payment of court-fees is governed by three years' rule of limitation. But under the present rule the Government shall have the right to apply at any time. No question of limitation will arise.—See Shami Mohammed v. Mohammed Ali Khan, 3 B. L. R. App. 22: 11 W. R. 67, where it has been held that the right of Government to recover the stamp-fees in pauper suits is not affected by the rule of three years' limitation laid down in the Limitation Act.

"At any time."—See Secretary of State v. Narayan, 13 Bom. L. R. 686: 35 B. 448.

Appeal.—An order under this rule is appealable as an order under S. 47.—Secretary of State v. Narayan, 35 B. 448: 13 Bom. L. R. 686.

13. All matters arising between the Government and any party to the suit under rule 10, rule 11 or rule 12 shall be deemed to be questions arising between the parties to the suit within the meaning of section 47. [New.]

Government to be deemed a party.

COMMENTARY.

Object and scope.—This rule is new. It has been framed to set at rest the following conflicting decisions under the old Code by providing that though the Government is not actually a party to the suit, it shall be deemed to be a party to the suit for the purposes of S. 47 of the C. P. Code.

Where a decree in a pauper suit did not contain any order as to the payment of stamp-fees, and the Government applied to have the decree amended in that respect, held, that the Government, not being a party to the suit, had no right to be heard in the matter.—In the matter of the petition of Secretary of State, 2 C. L. R. 461. But see Collector of Kanara v. Krishnappa, 15 B. 77, where it has been held that the Government, though not a party to the suit, was entitled to move the High Court under S. 622, C. P. Code, 1882, (S. 115), on the question of court-fees. See also Collector of Kanara v. Rambhat, 18 B. 454 (6 B. 590 followed).

In a suit in forma pauperis the Court decreed the plaintiff's claim in part and dismissed it in part, but omitted to make any provision for payment to Government of the court-fee on the portion dismissed. The Government preferred an appeal in respect of the court-fee on the portion of the claim dismissed. Held, that such an appeal would lie.—Secretary of State v. Bhagwanti Bibi, 13 A. 326 (9 A. 64 referred to). But see Collector of Kanara v. Rambhat, 18 B. 454, where it has been held, on the authority of The Collector of Ratnagiri v. Janardan, 6 B. 590, that no appeal by Government would lie in such a case, and that in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction, the High Court would rectify the decree by directing the plaintiff to pay the costs of Government. The Bombay cases have been followed in Collector of Trichinopoly v. Sivaramakrishna, 23 M. 73.

14. Where an order is made under rule 10, rule 11 or rule 12, the Court shall forthwith cause a copy of the decree to be forwarded to the Collector. [New.]

Copy of decree to be sent to Collector.

COMMENTARY.

History and object.—This rule is new.

Under the old Code the copy of the decree had to be given to the Government pleader. A copy of a decree passed in favour of a pauper should

All that the Code directs the Court to do is to send to the Collector a copy of the decree; what the Collector does on receipt of the same is no concern of the Court; a forwarding letter by the Court "for necessary action" is not justified.—Panalar v. Collector of Mandalay, 8 R. 294: 127 I. C. 606: A. I. R. 1930 Rang. 342.

15. An order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature by him in respect of the same right to sue ; but the applicant shall be at liberty to institute a suit in the ordinary manner in respect of such right, provided that he first pays the costs (if any) incurred by the Government and by the opposite party in opposing his application for leave to sue as a pauper. [S. 413.]

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 413, C. P. Code, 1882, with some modifications. The words "an order refusing to allow" have been substituted for the words "an order of refusal made under S. 409" which occurred in the old section, and the words "and by the opposite party" have been added, after the word 'Government,' as there was no express provision in the old Code for the payment of costs of the successful defendant. See 8 B. 577, noted under r. 11.

Object and scope of rule—Order XXXIII, r. 15 is to be read along with the provisions of rr. 5, 6 and 7. Rule 5 contemplates a summary of the proceedings. Rule 7 contemplates a waiver on the fourth ground if the petitioner do not show a cause of action. Rule 15 contemplates the refusal of a second application when it is in respect of the same right to sue, that is, the right to sue which formed the basis of the previous application.—Ratnamala v. Kamakshya, 31 C. L. J. 351.

The provisions of Or. XXXIII, r. 15 are mandatory ; a person cannot institute a suit in the ordinary way without paying the costs incurred on an application to sue in forma pauperis which has been dismissed.—Mahadeo v. Secretary of State, 30 A. L. J. 254 A. I. R. 1932 All 312.

Subsequent application.—An application for leave to sue in forma pauperis for redemption of a mortgage for prosecution. Subsequently an application for the redemption of the mortgage was registered and the application was granted, and the plaintiff's first application was refused, and that it operated as a bar to a second application.—Ranchod Begum v. Jafar Hassan.

This rule does not bar a second application when the first application was rejected under r. 5 (a) as not having been accompanied by a schedule of moveable and immoveable property.—Mussammatt Bal Kaur v. Shib Das, 1 L. 151 (42 I. C. 803 (F. B.) referred to; 33 I. C. 812 distinguished).

Where an application to sue in forma pauperis is summarily rejected under Or. XXXIII, r. 5 (a), a second application to sue as a pauper is not barred by the provisions of this rule.—Chinnammal v. Papathi Ammal, A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 986; Krishnamoorthy v. Ramayya, 50 M. 63 : 51 M. L. J. 79 : 96 I. C. 962 : A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 875.

"Refusal" implies a consideration of the application on its merits; where the application is withdrawn and consequently dismissed a fresh application is not barred.—Ma E Htai v. U Hmai, 131 I. C. 64 : A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 79.

Where an application for permission to sue in forma pauperis was dismissed on the ground that the application was not framed and presented in accordance with the rules, and a subsequent application for the same purpose was dismissed for default, neither side appearing at the hearing, held, that a third application to sue as a pauper was not barred by the two earlier applications because they had not reached the stage of refusal within the meaning of this rule, and that such an application is expressly provided for by Or. IX, r. 4.—Ma Sein v. Ma Kya Hmyin, 4 R. 245 : A. I. R. 1926 Rang. 200 : 98 I. C. 26; Maung Pe v. Maung Shwe, 118 I. C. 415 : 7 R. 359 : A. I. R. 1929 Rang. 128.

A dismissal of an application to sue in forma pauperis for default is not an order refusing permission to sue as a pauper and hence is no bar to an application.—Maung Aung Tun v. Ma E. Kin, 2 Bur. L. J. 217.

Where the petitioner claims maintenance from the opposite party, her husband, and applies for leave to sue in forma pauperis but her application is dismissed under r. 5 (d) as disclosing no cause of action and she applies more than two years after such dismissal for leave to sue in forma pauperis to recover maintenance for a period subsequent to the date when her first application was filed, held, that the subsequent application to sue in forma pauperis was not barred under this rule.—Ratnamala v. Kamakshya, 31 C. L. J. 351. Though in such a case it was open to the applicant to file a suit in the ordinary way on payment of costs.—Srimatya Baroda Dasi v. Upendranath, 52 I. C. 562.

Where there has been no refusal of the application to sue as a pauper, but it is dismissed for default by non-appearance, the applicant may revive his application for leave to sue.—Bhoj Singh v. Mahakonwer, 3 Agra. Mis. 1.

A Court has power to entertain an application under S. 114 to review an order refusing under r. 7 a petition for leave to sue in forma pauperis. The provisions of this rule do not affect the right of a person, against whom such order has been made, to obtain a review.—Adarji Edulji v. Manikji Edulji, 4 B. 414; In the matter of the petition of Rani Umasundari, 5 B. L. R. App. 29; and Mahomed Gazi v. Dullab Bibi, 5 B. L. R. 318-note.

rr. 15, 16.

There is a marked distinction between "a right to sue" and a right to make an application for permission to sue as pauper; and this distinction is clearly indicated in this rule. The right to make such an application is obviously a personal right, and cannot survive in the legal representative who may or may not be a pauper himself.—Lalit Mohan v. Satish Chandra, 33 C. 1163 : 4 C. L. J. 234.

The bar to a subsequent application being a bar to the jurisdiction of the Court, the Court is competent and bound to take notice of it at any stage of the suit.—Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Edulji, 20 B. 86; Khondkar Ali Afzal v. Purna, 40 C. L. J. 188 : 84 I. C. 703 : A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 1039.

Costs incurred.—Under this rule, a person whose application to sue in forma pauperis has been rejected, must, in order to institute a suit in the ordinary way in respect of the same right, first pay the costs due to Government, but the suit ought not to be dismissed for default in payment of such costs unless demand for payment has been made either on behalf of the Government or by the Court.—Mrinalini v. Tinkauri, 16 C. W. N. 641.

16. The costs of an application for permission to sue as a pauper and of an inquiry into pauperism shall be costs in the suit. [S. 415.]

Costs.

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 415, C. P. Code, 1882, with this modification that the words "shall be costs" have been substituted for the words "are costs" which occurred in the old section.

Costs.—The amount of stamps in a pauper case cannot be claimed as a lien or charge upon the decree in favour of Government, but is recoverable in the same manner as the costs of suit, Government being, as regards its claim in such a case, in no higher position than an ordinary judgment-creditor.—Pran Kristo v. Collector of Moorshedabad, 15 W. R. 205. But see 25 M. 733.

For the meaning of the word "costs" in the suit, see Collector of Trichinopoly v. Sivaramakrishna, 23 M. 73 (79).

ORDER XXXIV.

SUITS RELATING TO MORTGAGES OF IMMOVEABLE PROPERTY.

1. Subject to the provisions of this Code, all persons having an interest either in the mortgage-security or in the right of redemption shall be joined as parties to any suit relating to the mortgage.

Parties to suits for foreclosure, sale and redemption.

Explanation.—A puisne mortgagee may sue for foreclosure or for sale without making the prior mortgagee a party to the suit; and a prior mortgagee need not be joined in a suit to redeem a subsequent mortgage. [S. 85.]

COMMENTARY.

History.—This rule corresponds to S. 85 of the T. P. Act of 1882 with some additions and alterations as will appear on a comparison of this rule with the old section which is reproduced here: "Subject to the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, S. 437 (now Or. XXXI, r. 1), all persons having an interest in the property comprised in a mortgage must be joined as parties to any suit under this chapter relating to such mortgage: Provided that the plaintiff has notice of such interest."

The proviso to S. 85 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882), has been omitted, and the reason for the omission will appear from the following Report of the Special Committee:—

"Another amendment of importance which we have introduced is in regard to mortgage suits. These are very numerous and involve complicated questions of law. Hitherto some confusion has been occasioned by the co-existence of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act and of the Code in regard to execution in mortgage suits. We think that the provisions regulating this matter should be dealt with in their entirety in the Code, and we have therefore introduced rules in Or. XXXIV to give effect to our view. We propose that the sections of the Transfer of Property Act affected by this change should be repealed. We desire to call the attention of those Provinces to which that Act does not apply to the effect of these changes. The proviso to S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, has given rise to certain doubts which the Committee have sought to remove by substituting for it the words now added with a view to making it clear that a person not a party is not bound by a decree (Ram Nath Rai v. Lachman Rai, 21 A. 193).

"The explanation has been inserted in order to remove doubts which have arisen from the conflict of authorities on the point."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Sections 85 to 90 inclusive, 92 to 94 inclusive, 96, 97 and 99 of the "Transfer of Property Act, 1882, have been repealed, and the words in S. 100

r. 1.

"and all the provisions hereinbefore contained as to a mortgagee instituting a suit for the sale of the mortgaged property" have been omitted.

The Explanation attached to this rule is new. It has been inserted to meet the conflicting rulings on the point adopting the principles laid down in certain Calcutta decisions, e.g., the cases of Debendra Narain v. Ramtaran, 30 C. 599 (F. B.); 7 C. W. N. 766, Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C. 737; Surjiram v. Barhamdeo, 1 C. L. J. 337 (351) and Gurdeo v. Chandrikah, 36 C. 193; 5 C. L. J. 611. In all these cases it was held that in a suit to enforce a second mortgage, the first mortgagee was not a necessary party, while there were decisions of the other High Courts to the contrary.

The effect of the omission in Or. XXXIV, r. 1 of the proviso to S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act relating to the mortgagee's notice and of the omission in Or. XXXIV, r. 5 of the words in S. 89 of the Act to the effect that on the passing of an order absolute for sale the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished is that the mortgage is kept alive for all purposes as regards persons having an interest but not made parties to the mortgagee's suit.—Venkat Reddy v. Kunjappa, 47 M. 551.

Object.—The object of Or. XXXIV, r. 1 is that all claims affecting the equity of redemption should be disposed of in one suit.—Ramarayanimgar v. Maharaja of Venkatagiri, 50 M. 180 (P. C.) : 45 C. L. J. 395.

Under the Transfer of Property Act it was observed that there was nothing in the provisions of that Act, which required that a decree in a mortgage suit should in terms reserve rights admitted by all the parties and order the sale to be subject to them and that S. 96 of the Act did not militate against that view and it was doubted whether S. 85 of the Act required such persons whose rights were admitted should be made parties.—Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 29 M. 84. It was also held that the rule that all persons interested in the actual subject of the suit should be before the Court, in order that, as between them, complete justice might, as far as possible be done, cannot be taken as authorizing a Court to complicate a suit by a mortgagee, by introducing into it controversy, in which the mortgagee is not really interested.—Krishna Ayyar v. Muthukumarasawmiya, 29 M. 217.

Subject to the provisions of the Code—"Shall."—Under the Transfer of Property Act, 1892, S. 85, it was held that the word 'must' in that section which is one of the strongest words of compulsion which the legislature can employ must be given its full significance and that therefore the non-joinder of persons interested in the mortgaged property was a fatal defect, unless cured by the Court, under S. 32 of the Code by the addition of parties by the Court.—Mata Din v. Kazim, 13 A. 432 (F. B.) (Mahmood, J. dissentiente); Janki Prasad v. Kishen Dat, 16 A. 478 (F. B.), Bhawani v. Kallu, 17 A. 537 (F. B.), Ghulam v. Mustakim, 18 A. 109. In Jamuna v. Ganga, 19 C. 401; Sorabji v. Ruttonji, 22 B. 701; Tikam Singh v. Thakur Kishore, 20 A. 188; and Kundan v. Faqir, 27 A. 75, it was held that the defect did not entail a dismissal of the suit but that the parties omitted should be added. See also Ramasamayyan v. Pirasami Ayyan, 21 M. 222; and Palani v. Rangayya, 22 M. 207. The effect of the alteration of "must" into "shall" and the deletion of the words "Section 437" from S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1892 (now Or. XXXI, r. 1) has been to make all the provisions of the Code applicable to mortgage-suits. See notes under heading "History," ante.

Order I, r. 9 says that no suit shall be defeated merely for non-joinder of parties; and under Or. I, r. 10 the Court has the power to add parties at any stage. Consequently unless the party omitted is a 'necessary' party as distinguished from a 'proper' party and the plaintiff has refused to join him as a party though called upon by the Court to do so, the Court will have, under Or. I, r. 9 to deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. Order I, r. 9 applies to mortgage suits as well as to other suits.—Harchandra v. Mahmud, 25 C. W. N. 594; Kherodamoyi v. Habib, 29 C. W. N. 51; 82 I. C. 638; Haidarali v. Safiuddin, 54 C. L. J. 113; 134 I. C. 1068; Shahasahab v. Sadashiv, 43 B. 575; 51 I. C. 223; Shivubai v. Siddheshwar, 45 B. 1009; Sital v. Asho, 2 P. 175; 69 I. C. 677; Waleyatunnissa v. Chalakhi, 10 P. 341; 132 I. C. 100; A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 164; Girwarnarain v. Makliunnissa, 1 P. L. J. 468. This view has also been adopted by the Allahabad High Court in its more recent decisions though, as observed above, it had previously held otherwise.—See Sheo Tahal v. Sheodan, 28 A. 174 (F. B.); Sanwal v. Ganeshi, 35 A. 441; Parshadi Lal v. Laiq Singh, 21 A. L. J. 701; 74 I. C. 943; Ganeshi Lal v. Charan Singh, 35 A. 247; 19 I. C. 614; Alam Singh v. Gokal Singh, 35 A. 484; 11 A. L. J. 749; 21 I. C. 271 (in which it was held that the non-joinder of a subsequent mortgagee by the plaintiff who deliberately refused to make him a party though called upon by the Court to do so, should not result in a dismissal of the suit but only of so much of it as related to that portion of the property which was covered by the subsequent mortgage); Baldeo v. Bhola Nath, A. I. R. 1929 All. 941.

Persons having an interest either in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption.—The words in S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, were "persons having interest in the property comprised in a mortgage." These words gave rise to considerable conflict of judicial opinion. The Allahabad High Court in the Full Bench case of Mata Din v. Kazim, 13 A. 432 (F. B.) (Mahmood, J. dissentiente) held that the term property as used in Chapter IV of Act IV of 1882 meant an actual physical object and did not include mere rights relating to physical objects, and that the property to be sold within the meaning of S. 67 or S. 89 of the Act must mean the immoveable property and that in neither section can the word 'property' mean merely the bare rights and interests of a mortgagor, namely, the equity of redemption. On that view the frame of the suit should be such as to enable a proper sale of the property itself, as a physical object, to take place, and therefore persons who may not have any interest in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption would be proper parties and even 'necessary' parties in view of the meaning of the word 'must' in S. 85 of the Act. This view obtained in that Court in later decisions also, some of which are noted under the heading "Subject to the provisions of the Code," ante. A contrary view prevailed in the Calcutta High Court (e.g., Kanti Ram v. Kutubuddin, 22 C. 33; Beni Madhub v. Sourendra, 23 C. 795; Jaggewar v. Bhuban Mohan, 33 C. 425; 3 C. L. J. 205). This contrary view has been given effect to by the legislature in enacting this rule.

See notes under heading "Sale of property subject to prior mortgage and application of proceeds" under rule 13, post.

Effect of addition of parties after period of limitation.—A subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged property either at an execution or at a private sale is a necessary party to a mortgage suit. But when in the course of a mortgage suit, the purchaser of a portion of the mortgaged property is made a party defendant after the prescribed period of limitation, the suit as against him is barred by limitation. Quere—Whether the portion of the mortgaged property in the hands of the added defendant is thereby exempted from liability under the mortgage.—Ram Kinkar v. Akkil Chandra, 35 C. 519 (F. B.); 11 C. W. N. 350; 5 C. L. J. 242. This Full Bench decision approved of an earlier decision in which it had been held that when a Court adds a party at the instance of a plaintiff S. 22 of the Limitation Act applies and the suit against the added defendant shall be deemed to have been instituted when he was so made a party.—Imam Ali v. Baij Nath, 33 C. 613; 10 C. W. N. 551.

Where out of several persons who apparently had a right to bring a suit on a mortgage as co-plaintiffs some only appeared as plaintiffs and joined the others as co-defendants, held that the suit should not have been dismissed merely because the plaintiffs failed to show that the persons whom they joined as co-defendants refused to appear with them as co-plaintiffs.—Biri Singh v. Nawal Singh, 24 A. 226. See also Mariyl v. K. M. Narayanan, 26 M. 461, in which Savitr v. Raman, 24 M. 296 was distinguished and doubted.

Omission to join all the heirs of a purchaser of the mortgaged property within the period of limitation, is no ground for dismissal of a suit, unless it is found that the mortgagor was aware, at the date of the suit, of the interest of those persons in the mortgaged property. The proper procedure was to add those heirs as parties, and, if it appeared, that at the date of the suit, the plaintiff was not aware of their interest in the property, to ascertain what proportion of the debt was due by the heir who had been made a party in time, and to pass a decree against his share for that amount.—Basiruddin v. Debendro Nath, 12 C. W. N. 911 (18 A. 109, 30 C. 755; 7 C. W. N. 723, referred to); Har Chandra v. Mahumed Husein, 25 C. W. N. 594. See also Shahasaheb v. Sadashiv, 43 B. 575; 21 Bom. L. R. 369, in which it has been held that the test both under Or. XXXIV, r. 1 and S. 22 of the Limitation Act is the same: Was the suit properly constituted at date of the plaint so as to enable the Court to adjudicate as between the parties impleaded?

Some of the heirs of a mortgagor sued to redeem the mortgage a few days before the expiry of the period of limitation. To meet an objection raised for non-joinder of parties, the plaintiffs subsequently applied to make the remaining heirs party defendants to the suit. The lower Courts declined to make them parties on the ground that the claim as regards them was barred by S. 22 of the Limitation Act. Held the plaintiffs' right to redeem which they had was not lost by their omission to make the remaining heirs party defendants to the suit, they were only necessary parties to save multiplicity of suits and to prevent the mortgagee from being subjected to suits being filed against him in succession by various parties entitled to the equity of redemption.—Shivubai v. Siddheshwar, 45 B. 1009.

Where an application for adding certain mortgagees as parties is made, the limitation for them to sue as plaintiffs having elapsed, the Court should in compliance with Or. XXXIV, r. 1 and Or. 1, rr. 9 and 10 (2) add necessary parties and then apply S. 22 of the Limitation Act to see the result on the relief asked for; the Court should not refuse to add a person as defendant merely on the ground that if he were added the plaintiff's suit would be barred, when the plaintiff does not ask for any relief against him, nor does he get any relief by being so added.—Baldeo v. Bhola Nath, A. I. B. 1929 All. 941.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Prior mortgagee, in a suit for foreclosure or sale by the puisne mortgagee.—The prior mortgagee is not a necessary party in a suit for foreclosure or sale by a puisne mortgagee.—Gurdeo Singh v. Chandrikah Singh, 36 C. 193: 5 C. L. J. 611 (1 C. L. J. 337 (351), referred to). See also Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C. 737; Debendra Narain v. Ramtaran, 30 C. 599 (F. B.): 7 C. W. N. 766; Raj Coomary v. Preo Madhub, 1 C. W. N. 453; Srinivasa v. Yamunabhai, 29 M. 84: 16 M. L. J. 50, Nawaba Waziri Begam v. Sashi Bhusan, 4 P. L. T. 546: 74 I. C. 820.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Puisne mortgagee in a suit for foreclosure or sale by prior mortgagee.—A puisne mortgagee is a necessary party to a suit by a prior mortgagee to enforce his mortgage as he is entitled to redeem and if he is not made a party his right of redemption is not affected by the decree.—Het Ram v. Shadi Ram, 45 I. A. 130: 40 A. 407 (P. C.): 22 C. W. N. 1033: 35 M. L. J. 1: 45 I. C. 798; Matru Mal v. Durga Kunwar, 47 I. A. 71: 42 A. 364 (P. C.): 55 I. C. 969; Ram Narain v. Bandi Pershad, 31 C. 737; Omnes v. Zahur Fatima, 18 C. 164 (P. C.); Namdar v. Karam Raji, 13 A. 315, Muhammad Samiuddin v. Man Singh, 9 A. 125; Gajadhar v. Mul Chand, 10 A. 520; Baldeo Singh v. Jaggu Ram, 23 A. 1; Kudratullah v. Kubra, 23 A. 25; Alam Singh v. Gokal Singh, 35 A. 484: 11 A. L. J. 749; Maung Shwe v. Karambu, 6 R. 122: 110 I. C. 701: A. I. R. 1923: Rang. 127; Pandurang v. Sakharchand, 31 B. 112; Goverdhan v. Veerasami, 26 M. 537; Sital v. Asho, 2 P. 175: 69 I. C. 677.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Persons having an interest in the mortgage security or in the right of redemption.—Order XXXIV, r. 1 requires that not only a person having an interest in the mortgage security but also a person having an interest in the right of redemption shall be joined as a party to any suit relating to the mortgage. But S. 85 of the T. P. Act which is repealed by Or. XXXIV, r. 1 required that a person having an interest in the mortgage security only should be made a party to such a suit.—Shananda Chandra v. Sri Nath, 17 C. W. N. 871: 17 I. C. 432.

The only persons who are proper parties to a suit to enforce a mortgage are persons having an interest in the property comprised in the mortgage, that is, the interest which a mortgagor is competent to transfer by way of mortgage at the date of the transaction.—Jaggewar Dutt v. Bhuban Mohan, 33 C. 435: 3 C. L. J. 205. The rule does not require the joinder in a suit on a prior mortgage of a subsequent mortgagees whose mortgage was only executed subsequent to the filing of such suit; it was so held under S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.—Ishaq Ali v. Chunni, 21 A. 149. A person having no interest at the date of the suit need not be joined as a party.—Ragho v. Daud, 13 B. 51; Trimbak v. Sakharam, 16 B. 599.

Part owners of a mortgaged property who did not execute the indenture of mortgage and did not receive any money and were not interested in the equity of redemption are not necessary parties in a suit to enforce a mortgage.—Mon Mohini v. Parvati, 32 C. 746.

Persons interested in the right of redemption would of course include such persons as are specifically mentioned in S. 91 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The expression would include (a) any person (other than the mortgagee of the interest sought to be redeemed) who has any interest in or charge upon the mortgaged property or in or upon the right to redeem the same; (b) any surety for the payment of the mortgage debt or any part thereof; and (c) any creditor of the mortgagor who has in a suit for administration of his estate obtained a decree for the sale of the mortgaged property. The interest referred to in Cl. (a) of S. 91 is a present interest and not a mere contingent right such as the reversionary heirs of the deceased husband the mortgagor have during the life-time of his widow.—Ram Chandar v. Kallu, 30 A. 397; 5 A. L. J. 631: (1903) A. W. N. 225; Pramatha v. Bhuvan, 25 C. W. N. 585. A person with an inchoate title need not be made a party.—Nanjundepa v. Hemapa, 9 B. 10. But a person who has a vested remainder is a necessary party in a suit for foreclosure against the life-estate holder in which a decree is obtained on the basis that he is an absolute owner.—Swami Dayal v. Ramadhar, 134 I. C. 865; 8 O. W. N. 566; A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 353.

Any person entitled to a maintenance charged upon the property should be made a party; but the mere fact that a person is entitled to be maintained out of the income of the property is not sufficient.—Roshan v. Balwant, 22 A 191 (P. C.) (affirming 18 A. 253).

In a suit for redemption by one co-mortgagor the other co-mortgagors who are not suing have a right to redeem and so are necessary parties.—See Ahmed Husain v. Muhammad Qasim, 48 A 171; 24 A. L. J. 88, Musst. Ghura v. Bishun Ram, 119 I. C. 97; 27 A. L. J. 908; A. I. R. 1929 All 814.

The interest possessed by Government in property attached under S. 88 (7), Criminal Procedure Code is not that of a mere attaching creditor but is at least analogous to that of a receiver, and the Government's right of redemption is not affected if it is not made a party.—Alagammal v. Sadasiva, 60 M. L. J. 72; A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 1017; 129 I. C. 47.

A Receiver appointed in a partition suit previous to the suit for enforcement of the mortgage is not a necessary party.—Elizabeth Toomey v. Bhupendra, 111 I. C. 57; 7 P. 520; A. I. R. 1928 Pat. 304

In a suit for account against the assignee decree-holder who had purchased the mortgaged properties and who had been declared by the Court to hold the properties as trustee for the co-mortgagors who owned distinct interests therein, and a suit brought by some one of them without joining the others is bad for non-joinder of parties.—Naba Kumar v. Radhashyam, 54 C. L. J. 274 (P. C.); 35 C. W. N. 977; 61 M. L. J. 294; A. I. R. 1931 P. C. 229; 134 I. C. 654.

In execution of a Small Cause Court decree the appellant attached the stock in trade of the judgment-debtor. The respondent then put in a claim to the attached property and the property was released from attachment on the respondent's undertaking to pay the decretal sum if the claim failed. The claim failing, the respondent instituted the suit alleging that the stock.

in trade of the judgment-debtor had been hypothecated to him and praying for enforcement of the charge, and in that suit he impleaded the appellant. Held the appellant had no interest in the property from the moment as he got the undertaking and the suit was not maintainable against him.—Padamchand v. Bhicum Chand, 36 C. W. N. 397.

A creditor who purchases under an execution against the general assets of a testator's estate, takes subject to a mortgage created in pursuance of a power contained in the Will; and in a suit to foreclose, the purchaser is rightly made a party.—Nilkant v. Peari Mohan, 3 B. L. R. 7: 11 W. R. 21.

Under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, in a suit for redemption of a mortgage, only those parties should be joined who claim an interest in the mortgage security or in the right to redeem; outsiders who claim a title to the property independently of the rights of the mortgagor and the mortgagee need not be made parties.—Satagauda v. Satappa, 22 Bom. L. R. 815.

A co-heir of the plaintiff having an interest in the mortgage at the time of the redemption suit, is a necessary party to it, but not otherwise.—Trimbak Jivaji v. Sakharam Gopal, 16 B. 599.

In a suit for redemption, all persons jointly entitled to the right of redemption, e.g., all the heirs of a mortgagor, must be joined.—Bhauddin v. Ismail, 11 B. 425.

In a suit for redemption of a mortgage, persons who are alleged to be the tenants of the mortgagee are proper parties, where they set up a title which requires adjudication; the case being an exception to the general rule that a question of paramount title cannot be gone into in a mortgage suit.—Krishna v. Vithal, 28 Bom. L. R. 759: A. I. R. 1926 Bom. 522.

Where in a suit for redemption of a mortgage effected in favour of three persons, the mortgagor plaintiff withdrew the suit as against one of them, held, that the suit was liable to be dismissed under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, for non-joinder of parties.—Dhuri Patak v. Timal Singh, 4 P. L. W. 391: 45 I. C. 650.

Where a joint family property, though held in certain shares by the several co-parceners, was mortgaged as a whole and redeemable on payment of the whole sum, held, in a suit by one of joint tenants, or tenants in common to redeem the whole estate, that all persons in whom portions of equity of redemption were vested must be made parties to the suit.—Naro Hari v. Vithalbhat, 10 B. 648.

Where out of three properties subject to one mortgage two had been redeemed by payment of a proportionate part of the mortgage-debt and the third alone was the subject of a suit for redemption upon payment of the balance of the mortgage money, a person, having an interest in one of the properties already redeemed, is not a necessary party to such a suit.—Nazir Husain v. Nihalchand, 2 A. L. J. 628: (1905) A. W. N. 156.

The transferee of a mortgaged property in breach of a covenant against lienation may be made a party to a foreclosure suit.—Taj Singh v. Patiram, 55 I. C. 433.

For other cases see notes under other headings in this rule and also in the other rules, post.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Persons with paramount title.—Whether or not S. 85 of the T. P. Act, 1882, refers solely to persons interested in the equity of redemption, it is not essential to join a party defendant, in a suit for sale on mortgage, a person whose interest in the mortgaged property, if it exists, would be antagonistic to the claims of both mortgagor and mortgagee.—Khairati v. Banni Begam, 30 A. 240: 5 A. L. J. 604 (33 C. 425 referred to); Joti Prasad v. Aziz Khan, 31 A. 11: 1 I. C. 53; Gobardhan v. Munna Lal, 40 A. 584: 46 I. C. 559; Sataganda v. Satapa, 44 B. 698: 57 I. C. 577; Jogo Mohan v. Daudong, 12 C. W. N. 94. An outsider who claims a title in the property independently of the rights of the mortgagor and mortgagee should not be made a party.—Radhakunwar v. Resti Singh, 43 I. A. 187: 38 A. 489 (P. C.): 20 C. W. N. 1279: 24 C. L. J. 303: 35 I. C. 939; Bisnath v. Must. Ram Kali, A. I. R. 1927 Oudh 607; Ishwar Das v. Hira Lal, 130 I. C. 105: 26 N. L. R. 359: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 20; Brij Lal v. Punjab & Kashmir Bank Ltd., 136 I. C. 728: 33 P. L. R. 240. A question of paramount title ought not to be agitated in mortgage suits since it introduces a different cause of action in which some only of the several defendants are substantially interested.—Tinkarhi v. Narendra, 59 C. 548 (discussing and explaining 29 C. W. N. 784). But see Gokul Chandra v. Rashesewari, 14 C. L. J. 108, in which it has been held that the rule laid down in Jaggewar v. Bhuban, 33 C. 425, that in a suit to enforce a mortgage, persons claiming under a title adverse to that of both the mortgagor and the mortgagee are not proper parties, is not inflexible. Order XXXIV, r. 1, C. P. Code, does not prohibit a person claiming a title paramount or opposed to that of a mortgagor being made a party to a mortgage suit.—In re Obalampalli, (1914) M. W. N. 623: 22 I. C. 976: 4 P. L. W. 417; Jaggewar v. Bhuban, 33 C. 425; Gobardhan v. Munna Lal, 40 A. 584: 16 A. L. J. 639; Hari Das v. Girindra, 33 C. L. J. 301; Galstaun v. Mirza Abid Husain, 10 O. L. J. 263: 73 I. C. 428; Nirode v. Nripendra, 96 I. C. 698: A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 1192. Although in a mortgage suit it is not proper that the title of a person who claims adversely to the mortgagor should be gone into, it is fair that an issue as to whether the property was ancestral or self-acquired should be raised and determined if the necessary parties are before the Court and should not be left over to be determined in execution.—Muthiah Servai v. Somasundaram, 107 I. C. 814: A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 199. See also Ramasamy v. Marimuthu, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 764.

A Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court has held that under Or. XXXIV, r. 1 a puisne mortgagee may sue for sale without making a prior mortgagee a party to the suit; that if he seeks to redeem a prior mortgagee in his suit for sale he may make the prior mortgagee a party and a complete decree may then be made as prescribed in the Form laid down in the Code; but that if a person is joined as a defendant for enforcement of the right under a mortgage he should be dismissed from the action as soon as he sets up a prior title.—Sayamali v. Anisuddin, 50 C. L. J. 152 (F. B.) (following Nilkant v. Suresh, 12 I. A. 171: 12 C. 414 (P. C.)).

Persons claiming a paramount title and not interested in the equity of redemption are not necessary parties to a mortgage suit. But this general rule is subject to exceptions. And where a paramount title has been adjudicated on in a mortgage or redemption suit the defeated party will not be allowed to raise a plea that the Court was wrong to decide the contention.—Ganshyam v. Ragho, 10 P. 234: 130 I. C. 257: A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 64.

• Parties in suits on mortgages—Where a party has been wrongly joined.—Where a prior mortgagee is impleaded by mistake the decree should ordinarily be for sale of the property subject to the prior mortgage.—Phool Kuari v. Bhagwan Das, 52 A. 426 : 124 I. C. 476 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 113.

A prior mortgagee impleaded as such in a puisne mortgagee's suit is not bound to set up his prior mortgage in defence of his rights ; but if he has a subsequent mortgage as well he is a necessary party in such a suit and then he must set up not merely his later but his prior mortgage as well failing which he will be debarred by the rule of res judicata from suing to enforce his earlier mortgage.—Krishna Doyal v. Syed Md., 19 C. W. N. 942 : 26 I. C. 673. The rule that a question of paramount title cannot be investigated is subject to exceptions, and so where a defendant in a mortgage suit has a two-fold character, namely, purchaser, of the equity of redemption and also the holder of a paramount title, though he is impleaded in the former capacity only he could set up the latter title also, and consequently if he does not plead it the decree in the mortgage suit is binding on him.—Srimanta v. Bindubasini, 38 C. L. J. 183. This has been doubted on the view that a paramount title cannot be pleaded, and it has been held that in a subsequent suit he may assert such title.—Sonahannessa v. Abdul, 35 C. W. N. 510 : 134 I. C. 892 : A. I. R. 1932 Cal. 12 : 58 C. 1222.

The accident that two capacities reside in one person will not simplify the proceedings or essentially alter the position. In assuming the capacity of a holder of a paramount title and setting up such title the defendant becomes in effect a third party and sets up pleas so that the case will not be covered by Or. III, r. 2 as the two causes of action will not be against the same defendant within the meaning of the rule.—Ramasamy v. Marimuthu, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 764.

The following propositions have been deduced from authoritative judicial decisions :—(1) Where a party who is a prior mortgagee and nothing more is impleaded and nothing is alleged in derogation of his priority he will be taken to have been impleaded under Or. XXXIV, r. 12 and his priority is not affected ; (2) where the party impleaded is a prior mortgagee and nothing more and an allegation is made in the plaint detracting from his priority, his priority is barred ; (3) where the party impleaded is a puisne mortgagee and therefore a necessary party but claims priority he must assert and prove his priority.—Brijmohan v. Dukhan, 9 P. 816 : 130 I. C. 168 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 33 [referring to Radha Krishna v. Khurshed, 47 I. A. 11 : 47 C. 662 (P. C.) : 55 I. C. 959 : A. I. R. 1920 P. C. 81 ; *Srigopal v. A firm A as prior mortgagees, sued the mortgagors impleading a firm S as subsequent mortgagees. The suit was decreed in terms of an agreement arrived at between the mortgagors and the A firm. The Court added to the decree a note dismissing the suit against the S firm who did not put in appearance. The mortgagors not having made payments according to agreement, the property was put up for sale and purchased by the A firm in execution of its decree. Meanwhile the S firm also obtained a decree on the mortgage. On a contest as to priority, held that the more fact that the puisne mortgagees were brought on the record and the suit was dismissed against them did not affect the priority of the A firm or their right to keep their first mortgage as a shield.—S. K. & Co. Chettyar Firm v. A. L. & Co. Chettyar Firm, 9 R. 1: 132 I. C. 281: A. I. R. 1931 Rang 105.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Members of a joint Hindu family.—In the earlier cases a good deal of conflict is noticeable on the question whether in suits on mortgages by or against the manager of a joint Hindu family, the other members are necessary parties. These cases have now lost much of their importance. The Judicial Committee in the case of Sheo Shankar v. Jaddo Kunwar, 36 A. 383 (P. C.) upheld the decision of the Allahabad Court on the ground that the plaintiffs, who sued to redeem a mortgage after foreclosure on the plea that they had not been parties to the mortgage suit, were properly and effectively represented in the suit by the managing member of the Hindu joint family of which the plaintiffs were also members, and their Lordships saw no reason to dissent from the Indian decisions which showed that there were occasions including foreclosure actions when the managers of a Hindu joint family effectively represented all the members of the family as a whole. In the case of Kishan Prasad v. Har Narain, 38 I. A. 45: 33 A. 272 (P. C.): 15 C. W. N. 321: 13 C. L. J. 345: 9 I. C. 739, their Lordships held further that the plaintiffs in that case were entitled as the sole managers of the family business, to make in their own names the contracts which gave rise to the claim, and thus they could sue on such contracts without joining the other members of the family. So in Allahabad and in Madras it has been held that in suits on mortgages by or against the manager the other members were necessary parties.—See Hori Lal v. Nimman, 34 A. 549 (F. B.): 15 I. C. 126; Madan v. Kishan, 34 A. 572: 15 I. C. 138; Chetan v. Sartaj, 46 A. 709 79 I. C. 1001; Sheikh Ibrahim v. Rama Aiyar, 35 M. 685 10 I. C. 874. The Patna High Court has also taken the same view and has held that a suit by a Karta of a Mitakshara joint family on behalf of all the members is a valid suit under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, and it is not necessary that the Karta should mention expressly that the suit is instituted by him in his capacity as Karta, provided the fact that the suit is brought by him in his representative capacity is obvious from the pleadings in the case.—Jag Sah v. Ramchandra, 2 P. L. T. 553: 63 I. C. 564; Shahk Abdul Rahman v. Shib Lal, 2 P. L. T. 572: 63 I. C. 570. See also Girwar v. Musst. Makbulunnissa, 1 P. L. J. 463: 36 I. C. 542; Raghunandan v. Parmeshwar, 2 P. L. J. 306: 39 I. C. 779; Sital v. Asho, 2 P. 175: 69 I. C. 677. Parmeshwar v. Raj Kishore, 3 P. 825: 80 I. C. 34. The Calcutta High Court refused to accept the view propounded in Hori Lal v. Nimman, 34 A. 549 (F. B.): 15 I. C. 126 and Madan v. Kishan, 34 A. 572 (F. B.): 15 I. C. 138 and held that where the Karta of a joint Hindu family, who was the holder of a usufructuary and a simple mortgage brought a suit on the latter without joining as party one of the members of the family, who had a joint interest with him in the usufructuary mortgage, the plaintiff was under the terms of S. 85 of the Transfer of Property Act, and Or. XXXIV, r. 1, C. P. C. bound to make him a party.—Debi Prasad v. Dharamjit, 41 C. 727 (following Lala Surja Prasad v. Golabchand, 27 C. 794 and 28 C. 517). See also Biswanath v. Jagdip, 40 C. 342; Sidheswari v. Dharamjit, 19 C. L. J. 437. The position has been reviewed by Mookerjee, J. in an elaborate judgment in Kalipada v.

Raja Sati Prasad, 36 C. L. J. 234 in which the Calcutta view has been dissented from and it has been observed thus:—

"The proposition that in suits relating to transactions affecting a joint Hindu family, all the members thereof need not always be joined, was fore-shadowed by Sir James Colville in Jogendro v. Funindro, 14 M. L. A. 367: 17 W. R. 104; when he observed that cases sometimes occur "wherein the interest of a joint and undivided family being in issue, one member of that family has prosecuted a suit or has defended a suit, and a decree has been made in that suit, which may afterwards be considered as binding upon all that members of the family, their interest being taken to have been sufficiently represented by the party in the original suit". This assumes that in respect of the subject-matter of the litigation, the members of the family had no conflicting interests inter se. This principle has been reiterated by the Judicial Committee in two recent decisions. In Kishan Prasad v. Har Narain, 38 I. A. 45: 33 A. 272: 13 C. L. J. 345, where the Judicial Committee reversed the decision of the Allahabad High Court in Shamrathi v. Kishan, 29 A. 311, Lord Robson observed as follows:

"The Indian decisions as to the powers of the managing members of an undivided Hindu joint family are somewhat conflicting. It is, however, clear that where a business like money-lending has to be carried on in the interests of the family as a whole, the managing members may properly be entrusted with the power of making contracts, giving receipts and compromising or discharging claims ordinarily incidental to the business. Without a general power of that sort, it would be impossible for the business to be carried on at all."

"Again, in Seo Sankar v. Jaddo Kunwar, 41 I. A. 216: 36 A. 383 (P. C.): 18 C. W. N. 968: 20 C. L. J. 282, where the Judicial Committee affirmed the decision of the Allahabad High Court in Jaddo v. Sheo Shaukar, 33 A. 71, Lord Moulton observed as follows:

"There seems to be no doubt upon the Indian decisions, from which their Lordships see no reason to dissent, that there are occasions, including foreclosure suits, when the managers of a joint Hindu family so effectively represent all other members of the family that the family as a whole is bound. It is quite clear from the facts of this case and the findings of the Courts upon them, that this a case where this principle ought to be applied. There is not the slightest ground for suggesting that the managers of the joint family did not act in every way in the interests of the family itself."

"These pronouncements by the Judicial Committee weaken the effect of the decisions in Bal Kishan v. Topenwar, 15 C. L. J. 446: 17 C. W. N. 219; Lala Suraj Prasad v. Golab Chand, 28 C. 517; Debi Prasad v. Dharamjit, 41 C. 727; and Biswanath v. Jagdip, 40 C. 342, which has already been doubted by the Full Bench in Brijnandan v. Bidya Prasad, 42 C. 1068: 21 C. L. J. 543, namely, that all the co-parceners are necessary parties to a suit on a mortgage of joint-family property, so that if a decree is passed in such a suit without their being joined as parties, the decree is not binding on them, and they are entitled to sue for a declaration that their interests are not bound thereby. The opinion expressed by the Judicial Committee, namely, that where a suit is brought on a mortgage by or against a manager of a joint Hindu family in his representative capacity, the other members of the family are not necessary parties to the suit, which will consequently not fail by reason of their non-joinder, harmonises with the rule enforced in Allahabad in Hori Lal v. Nimman, 34 A. 549 (F. B.) and Madan Lal v. Kishan Singh, 34 A. 572 (F. B.); in Madras in Sheik Ibrahim v. Rama Aiyar, 35 M. 685, and in Patna in Abdul v. Shibli, 2 P. L. T. 572; *Baij Nath v. In Bombay, a similar result has been reached by a circuitous process, for although it has been held that all the co-parceners are necessary parties to a suit brought on a mortgage by or against the manager, the decree in a suit, not so constituted against all the members, but brought against the manager alone in his representative character, when executed, passes the interest of the other co-parceners also in the property, though the sale may be avoided by them on the ground that they were not liable for the debt contracted by the manager; see Ramchandra v. Shripatrao, 40 B. 248; Laxman v. Vinayak, 40 B. 329, Ohimna v. Sada, 12 Bom. L. R. 811; Ramkrishna v. Vinayak, 34 B. 354; Madhusudan v. Bhanu, 15 Bom. L. R. 36. The true position is tersely put by Benson and Sundara Iyer, JJ. in Sheik Ibrahim v. Rama Aiyar, 35 M. 685.

"The ordinary rule no doubt is that all persons in whom the right to any relief exists should be joined as plaintiffs. But this rule is not of universal application. The language of S. 26 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1882, corresponding to Or. I, r. 1 of the present Code is that 'all persons may be joined in one suit as plaintiffs, in whom the right to any relief is alleged to exist, whether jointly, severally, or in the alternative'. Section 30 of the Code of 1882, corresponding to Or. I, r. 8, lays down the general rule of procedure where one or more persons which to sue on behalf of or for the benefit of themselves and other persons having the same interest in a suit. But it cannot, in our opinion, be laid down that in no case has a person a right to sue on behalf of himself and others, where the procedure laid down in S. 30 is either not applicable or has not been taken advantage of. There are several statutory exceptions to the rule, and there is no reason why there should not be other exceptions based not on any legal to the parties. The v. Har Naram, 38 I. C. 345 already referred to, shows that the case of the manager of a Hindu family is such an exception."

This view does not militate against the decisions of the Judicial Committee in Balwant Singh v. Rockwell Clancy, 39 I. A. 109 : 34 A. 296 : 15 C. L. J. 475; and Ganesha Row v. Tuljaram, 40 I. A. 132 : 36 M. 295 : 17 C. W. N. 765 : 18 C. L. J. 1

The Calcutta High Court, however, laid down that where the doctrine of representation is properly applicable to the facts and where it is established that that the mortgagee was not aware of the existence of a member of a joint Mitakshara family as interested in the equity of redemption and consequently did not bring him before the Court in the mortgage suit, the

The Calcutta High Court, however, laid down that where the doctrine of representation is properly applicable to the facts and where it is established that that the mortgagee was not aware of the existence of a member of a joint Mitakshara family as interested in the equity of redemption and consequently did not bring him before the Court in the mortgage suit, the principle laid down by the Judicial Committee in Sheo Shankar v. Jadoo-Kunwar, 36 A. 383 (P. C.) should be applied in preference to that adopted in Lala Suraj Prosad v. Golab Chand, 28 C. 517.—Raghoram v. Rajani, 21 C. L. J. 452. See also Halli Jha v. Bhyia Lal, 21 C. L. J. 454.

The mere omission to describe the Karta of a family as such in the plaint does not debar the plaintiff from claiming or proving that the managing-member represents the family for the purposes of the suit.—Gobind v. Baldeo, 126 I. C. 369; A. I. R. 1980 Pat. 293.

The more recent decisions of the Judicial Committee in Ganpat v. Bindbasini, 47 I. A. 91; 47 C. 924 (P. C.); 24 C. W. N. 924; 56 I. C. 274 and Lingangowda v. Basangowda, 54 I. A. 122; 51 B. 450; 101 I. C. 44 are ample authority for the proposition that the manager represents all the other members of the family and so it does not matter whether any individual member is a party or not. Sons are not necessary parties to suits on mortgages of self-acquired properties executed by the father; in such a suit the other members are not necessary parties.—Vadilal v. Shah Khushal, 27 B. 157. In a suit for sale in respect of a mortgage of ancestral properties the plaintiffs' father and grand-father, the latter having executed the mortgage, were parties, but the plaintiffs were not and a decree was obtained. Plaintiffs then sued for a declaration that the property was not liable to be sold as they had not been made parties to the suit. Held on the finding that the mortgage was for discharging antecedent debts and bound the plaintiffs' estate, and that they had been effectively represented by their father — Madhusudan v. Bhagwan, 53 B. 444; A. I. R. 1929 Bom. 213 (referring to the propositions laid down in Brij Narain v. Mangal Prasad, 51 I. A. 129; 46 A. 95 (P. C.); A. I. R. 1924 P. C. 50).

In the Punjab under the customary law a son, in the presence of his father, has no interest in the property to give him a title to be impleaded in the suit against the father for the sale of property mortgaged by him.—Shir Dev Singh v. Jai Ram, 125 P. R. 1919; 53 I. C. 411.

Parties to suits on mortgages—Mahomedan heirs.—There is no right of representation under the Mahomedan law and the property on the death of a Mahomedan descends in different shares and is not contingent on the payment of his debts, the doctrine of representation not applying, the question arises as to whether a suit against some of the heirs of the mortgagor is maintainable or what passes at a sale in execution of a decree passed in such a suit. A Mahomedan effected a simple mortgage and died; on his death the mortgagee instituted a suit against one only amongst several of his heirs, and when objection was taken added the other heirs as defendants but after the period of limitation was over. It was contended by the added defendants that the suit as against them was barred under S. 22 of the Limitation Act. It was held thus:—"The suit was properly brought by the plaintiff to enforce payment of money charged upon immovable property within 12 years of the date when the money sued for became due. The money was specifically charged on the whole property and the property was liable to be sold in satisfaction of the mortgage in priority to the satisfaction of any interest derived from the mortgagor subsequent to the date of the mortgage. A decree for sale obtained after contest in the suit as originally constituted would have been binding on the other heirs."

even though they had not been added. The suit therefore was, as originally filed, one in which the plaintiff could have obtained the relief sought...As pointed out in Guruvayya v. Dattatraya, 23 B. 11 the addition of parties after the expiry of the time for the institution of the suit does not necessarily involve its dismissal under S 22."—Virchand v. Kondu, 39 B. 729: 31 I. C. 180.

The plaintiff, a mortgagee, sued to recover the mortgage-debt by sale of the mortgaged properties; the original mortgagor, who was a Mahomedan, having died before the suit, only his widow and daughters were made defendants. It was contended that the suit was bad for non-joinder of other heirs of the mortgagor. Held that the non-joinder of parties was not fatal to the suit, in as much as the suit was properly constituted at the date of the plaint, so as to enable the Court to adjudicate as between the parties impleaded, and that a decree as against the shares of those parties might be passed; but the observation in Virchand v. Kondu, 39 B. 729: 31 I. C. 180, that the mortgage-decree would have been binding on the Mahomedan co-heirs who were not parties was dissented from.—Shahasaheb v. Sadashiv, 43 B. 575. 51 I. C. 223: 21 Bom. L. R. 369.

In a suit on a mortgage by an executor under a Mahomedan Will two of the beneficiaries under the Will were impleaded but the suit was dismissed as they were not served with summons. Held that by virtue of Or. XXXI, r. 1 the executor sufficiently represented the estate.—Athronee v. Ahmed, 33: Bom. L. R. 1056: A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 533.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Sub-mortgagees.—See notes under rr 2 and 3, rr. 4 and 5 and rr. 7 and 8, post.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Attaching creditor.—An attaching creditor, under the Transfer of Property Act as it stood before the amendments of 1929, had the right to redeem. In a large number of decisions it has been held that the creditor of a mortgagor who obtains execution of his decree by attachment of the mortgagor's interest in the mortgaged property or part of it is entitled to redeem.—Ghulam Husain v. Dina Nath, 23 A. 467; Dina Nath v. Lachmi Narain, 25 A. 446; Kedarnath v. Uma Charan, 6 C. W. N. 57; Venkata v. Venkataramayya, 37 M. 418; Lakshpat v. Fakhruddin, 39 A. 536; 15 A. L. J. 471. It was held that where a mortgaged property was attached by a holder of a money-decree and after attachment... a decree for sale... the order for sale... Sedula, 15 I. C. 334.

But it has been also held that although an attaching creditor is entitled to redeem he has no interest in the mortgaged property, a purchaser at a sale held under such attachment has no right to redeem the purchaser at the mortgage-sale or to resist his getting possession of the property.—Shananda v. Sri Nath, 17 C. W. N. 871; Veyindramuthu v. Maya, 43 M. 696; Chamiyappa v. Rama, 44 M. 232 (a Court-sale of the judgment-debtor's interest in attached property puts an end to the attachment and incidentally to the attaching creditor's right of redemption under S. 91 of the Act); Subramania v. Sinnammal, 53 M. 891 (F. B.); 127 I. C. 624; 59 M. L. J. 634: A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 801; Kiernander v. Benimadhab, 59 C. 598: 134 I. C. 561: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 763; Koramal v. Raghubir, A. I. R. 1929 All. 861.

Certain paddy land was mortgaged to the plaintiffs with the standing crops. A creditor of the mortgagor attached the paddy after the crops had been cut and realized the sale-proceeds. The mortgagee instituted a suit to enforce his mortgage impleading the mortgagor and attaching creditor as parties. Held, that as the claim against the mortgagee was based on contract and that against the attaching creditor was based on trust the joinder of the two causes of action in the same suit was not justified under 'Or. I, r. 3.—O. T. & Co. Chettyar v. N. S. & Co. Chettyar Firm, 133 I. C. 482; A. I. R. 1931 Rang. 108.

By the amendments of 1929 Cl. (f) of S. 91 has been omitted as attachment does not create any interest such as a charge or a lien on the property attached (29 C. 428 (F. B.); 32 M. 429) and there is no reason why an attaching creditor should have the right to redeem.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Trustees, etc.—On account of the rule of representation of Trustees, Executors and Administrators contained in Or. XXXI, r. 1, in mortgage suits by or against them in respect of property vested in them the beneficiaries need not be parties.—See Athronce v. Sheikh Ahmed, 33 Bom. L. R. 1056; A. I. R. 1931 Bom. 533.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Benamdars.—There was a conflict of judicial opinion on this question also, but it has been set at rest by the decision of the Judicial Committee in Gur Narayan v. Sheoklal, 46 I. A. 1: 46 C. 566 (P. C.); 23 C. W. N. 521; 49 I. C. 1, in which it was explained that a benamdar though he has no beneficial interest in the property or business standing in his name, represents in fact the real owner, and is, as far as their relative legal position is concerned, a mere trustee for him. The conflicting cases are noted in the arguments in that case.

A person who is named in a mortgage deed as a mortgagee, although in fact merely a benamdar for those beneficially interested, can institute a suit in his own name, either for foreclosure or sale and the suit should not be dismissed merely because the beneficial owner is not added as a party. The principle extends to a mortgage taken by some only of the members of a joint Hindu family who, unlike as in the cases of a benamdar, have a beneficial interest themselves in addition to their authority to act on behalf of the family.—Hit Lal v. Jiboo Mahton, 75 I. C. 378.

See also the following cases in which the benamdar's right to maintain a suit on a mortgage has been upheld.—Bhola Prashad v. Ram, Lal, 24 C. 34; Surendra v. Khitindra, 29 C. L. J. 434; Yad Ram v. Umrao Singh, 21 A. 380; Vaitheswara v. Srinevasa, 42 M. 348 (F. B.); Ravji v. Mahadev, 22 B. 672.

Parties in suits on mortgages—Persons holding subordinate interests.—The expression "any interest or charge upon property" is not necessarily confined to rights of ownership but includes such minor interest as that of a tenant or of a person holding a charge.—Paya Malathil v. Kovamel, 19 M. 151; Baikuntha v. Mohesh, 22 C. W. N. 128 (dismissing from Girish v. Juramoni, 5 C. W. N. 83). A putnidar is a necessary party, so that he may have the opportunity to redeem.—Kasimunnisa v. Nilratna, 8 C. 79; 9 C. L. R. 173; Kokil v. Duli Chund, 5 C. L. R. 243; Jugul v. Kartic, 21 C. 116. If not so joined a putnidar or durputnidar is entitled to redeem by a separate suit.—Jnanendra v. Shorashi Oharan, 49 C. 626. A sureshgidar is also a necessary party.—Radha Pershad v. Monohur, 6 C. 317:

7 C. L. R. 293. So also a permanent lessee.—Raghuuandan v. Ambika, 29 A. 679 : 4 A. L. J. 703.

But a person having a merely ryoti interest is not, because his interest is not such as will entitle him to redeem.—Girish v. Juramoni, 5 C. W. N. 83. Nor the holder of a maurashi mokurari potta under the mortgagor.—Sripoti v. Mohip, 9 C. 643 : 13 C. L. R. 119; but see Musst. Nand Kuar v. Kunj Behari Lal, 109 I. C. 750, in which it was held that the mokarraridar was entitled to redeem and consequently the plaintiff mortgagee's remedy lay in a suit not for possession but for sale (relying on Hargu Lal v. Gobind, 19 A. 541 (F. B.); Madan Lal v. Bhagwan, 21 A. 235 (F. B.); and Balli v. Bindeswari, 35 I. C. 532 : 1 P. L. J. 139).

Explanation.—The object of the explanation has been stated in the notes under the heading "History," ante. The prior mortgagee has a paramount claim outside the controversy; if without the prior mortgagee being made a party a decree is passed the property would be sold subject to the prior mortgage; even if he is made a party, the decree for sale would be subject to his rights unless it can be established that his mortgage was impugned and the plaintiff puisne mortgagee did in point of fact seek to displace the title of the prior mortgagee and to postpone it to their own.—Radha Kishun v. Khurshed Hossain, 47 I. A. 11 : 47 C. 662 (P. C.) : 25 C. W. N. 417 : 55 I. C. 959.

If a person holds two independent mortgages of different dates he may sue on the later mortgage subject to his rights under the earlier mortgage unless restrained by a covenant to the contrary; Subramania v. Balasubramania, 38 M. 927 (F. B.) : 30 I. C. 317; Jagernath v. Mohra, 2 P. L. J. 118 : 39 I. C. 76; Nawaba Waziri Begum v. Shashi Bhusan, 2 P. 874 : 74 I. C. 820; Keshav Ram v. Ranchhod, 30 B. 156; Dhondo v. Bhikaji, 39 B. 138 : 27 I. C. 1005; Lakshmanan v. Muthaya, 40 M. L. J. 126 : 62 I. C. 833; Ram Saran v. Abdul, 50 A. 742 : 26 A. L. J. 529 : A. I. R. 1928 All. 378 : 114 I. C. 38. A doubt was expressed in the Calcutta High Court in Hari Narain v. Kusum Kumari, 37 C. 589; but the same view was expressed in Nilu v. Asirbad, 25 C. W. N. 129 : 33 C. L. J. 232 : 60 I. C. 809.

The explanation implies that on a decree for sale by a puisne mortgagee the decree should ordinarily be for the sale of the property subject to the prior mortgage and the interest of the prior mortgagee would not be affected.—Phool Kuari v. Bhagwan, 52 A. 426 : 124 I. C. 476 : 28 A. L. J. 321 : A. I. R. 1930 All. 113.

Mortgages of immoveable property.—They are defined in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, S. 58, being Simple Mortgages, Mortgages by Conditional Sale, Usufructuary Mortgages, English Mortgages, Mortgages by deposit of Title Deeds and Anomalous Mortgages.

Section 67, Cl. (a) of the Act says :—"Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorize any mortgagee other than a mortgagee by conditional sale or a mortgagee under an anomalous mortgage by the terms of which he is entitled to foreclose, to institute a suit for foreclosure, or an usufructuary mortgage as such or a mortgage by a conditional sale as such to institute a suit for sale". Section 96 of the Act says :—"The provisions hereinbefore contained which apply to a simple mortgage shall, so far as may be, apply to a mortgage by deposit of title deeds". The result of these provisions now is as follows :—A suit for sale can only be brought by an English mortgagee or a simple mortgagee or a mortgagee by deposit of title deeds (to whom a period of 2 years, i. e., up to the 1st April 1932 has been given, so far as Bombay is concerned, to enforce his remedy by way of foreclosure by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929). A simple mortgagee or an English mortgagee cannot institute a suit for foreclosure, a usufructuary mortgagee as such cannot institute a suit either for sale or for foreclosure. A mortgagee by conditional sale can institute a suit for foreclosure but not a suit for sale; an anomalous mortgagee can institute a suit for foreclosure only if the terms of his bond entitle him to foreclose, and his rights and liabilities shall be determined by the contract in the mortgage deed and, so far as such contract does not extend, by local usage (S. 98). A mortgagor has the right to redeem (S. 60). And a usufructuary mortgagor has the right to recover possession (S. 62).

Simple mortgage, mortgage by conditional sale, usufructuary mortgage.—See S. 58, (b) (c) and (d) of the Transfer of Property Act.

English mortgage.—In an English mortgage there is a conveyance by the debtor of his property to the creditor and a covenant to pay the debt within a certain time, and a proviso that on this condition being fulfilled the property shall be reconveyed by the mortgagee to the mortgagor. The three essentials of an English mortgage, as defined in S. 58 (c) of the T. P. Act, are (1) that the mortgagor should bind himself to repay the mortgage-money on a certain day, (2) that the property mortgaged should be transferred absolutely to the mortgagee, (3) that such absolute transfer should be made subject to a proviso that the mortgagee will reconvey the property to the mortgagor, upon payment by him of the mortgage-money on the day on which the mortgagor bound himself to repay the same. See Narayana Ayyar v. Venkataramana, 25 M. 220 (F. B.). An English mortgage is somewhat similar to a mortgage by conditional sale. The main distinction between these two classes of mortgages is, that in an English mortgage, the possession usually remains with the mortgagor and it is not essential to the mortgagee's title that he should take possession. English mortgages made between Hindus in the mofussil have been treated as mortgages by conditional sale.—Shurnomoyee v. Srinath Das, 12 C. 614.

Equitable mortgage.—Equitable mortgage had not been defined in S. 58 of the T. P. Act prior to its amendment in 1929 but its validity was recognized in the towns of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karachi and Rangoon in the last para. of S. 59 of the T. P. Act. An equitable mortgage is created by deposit of the title deeds of property, in order to secure the advance of money required to prevent the sale of such property. In order to give the creditor an equitable mortgage it must appear that money had already been advanced when the deposit took place, and then it is not material that they were deposited for the purpose of having a mortgage executed, nor is it necessary that all the title deeds should be deposited. It is now defined in S. 58 (f) of the Act.

In India, there is no such distinction between legal and equitable estates as is known in English law. The deposit of mortgage deeds by a mortgagor with the agent of his creditors at Calcutta as security for the debts due to the creditors created a good equitable sub-mortgage and the mortgage is concluded on the day the deposit is made and is a valid mortgage. A deposit of title deeds of certain property under a verbal arrangement to secure payment of a debt, is not an oral agreement or declaration within the meaning of S. 48 of the Registration Act. A letter containing an admission of a previous mortgage as having been already made does not require registration.—Gokul Dass v. The E. M. Co., 33 C. 410: 10 C. W. N. 276: 4 C. L. J. 102 (31 C. 57, 8 C. W. N. 41, 11 C. 158, referred to as to registration; 20 W. R. 150 followed).

Where a loan is taken in Calcutta by deposit of title deeds of property in order to secure the advance of money required to prevent the sale of such property, held, that there is an equitable mortgage in favour of the creditor. —Priority of a subsequent simple mortgage over a prior equitable mortgage. —Giridhari Lal v. Paresh Nath, 4 C. L. J. 495: 11 C. W. N. 1.

The defendant borrowed money from the plaintiff by deposit of title deeds relating to immoveable properties situate partly inside and partly outside the town of Calcutta, as collateral security. Held, that the mortgage was valid as an equitable mortgage, and the appropriate remedy for such a mortgage is a decree for sale.—Raja Sreenath v. Gadadhar Das, 24 C. 348: 1 C. W. N. 225 (14 B. 238 and 269, referred to). See also Madho Das v. Ram Kishen, 14 A. 238, and Himalaya Bank v. Quarry, 17 A. 252.

Where a mortgage deed for Rs. 25,000 was executed and subsequently an advance of Rs. 8,000 on a promissory note was made and it was agreed that the said sum should constitute a further charge on the properties included in the mortgage, the title deeds of which were in the possession of the mortgagee, held that a mortgage with deposit of title deeds will cover future advances if such is the agreement when the first advance is made.—Grinder Coomar v. Kumud Kumari, 2 C. W. N. 356: 25 C. 611.

The following recent cases are important.—In the case of Paranji-van Das Metha v. Chan Ma Phee, L. R. 43 I. A. 122: 43 C. 895 (P. C.): 20 C. W. N. 925: 24 C. L. J. 314, the Judicial Committee laid down the law as follows:—

"The law upon the subject is beyond any doubt: (1) where titles are handed over with nothing said except that they are to be security, the law supposes that the scope of the security is the scope of the title; (2) where, however, titles are handed over accompanied by a bargain, that bargain must rule; (3) lastly when the bargain is a written bargain, it, and it alone must determine what is the scope and extent of security."

Their Lordships then quoted from Shaw v. Foster, L. R. 5 H. L. 321, the words of Lord Cairns:—

"Although it is a well established rule of equity that a deposit of a document of title without more, without writing, or without word of mouth, is sufficient to create a mortgage, I apprehend that where a deposit is accompanied by a bargain, the court must refer to the terms of the written document, and any implication that might be raised, supposing there was no document, is put out of the case and reduced to silence by the documents by which alone you must be governed."

In the case of Subramonian v. Lutchman, L. R. 50 I. A. 77 : 50 C. 338 (P. C.) : 28 C. W. N. 1 : 38 C. L. J. 41 : 71 I. C. 650 : 44 M. L. J. 602, their Lordships quoted the dictum of Couch, C. J. in the case of Kedar Nath v. Sham Loll, 11 B. L. R. O. C. J. 405 and the passage in Pranjivandas Mehta v. Chan Ma Phee, 43 I. A. 122 : 43 C. 895 (P. C.) noted ante and Shaw v. Foster, L. R. 5 H. L. 321, referred to above and then proceeded to consider whether the document before them constituted the bargain between the parties or whether it was merely the record of an entirely completed transaction. On the evidence and upon the terms of the document their Lordships held that the memorandum in question was the bargain between the parties.

In the case of Obla Sundara Chariar v. Narayana Ayyar, 58 I. A. 68, their Lordships referring to the case of Subramonian v. Luchman, 50 I. A. 77 noted ante, observed thus :—

“While their Lordships do not think that the language of Lord Carson “conveys or was intended to convey the meaning that no memorandum relating to the deposit of title deeds can be within S. 17 of the Registration Act unless it embodies all the particulars of the transaction of which the deposit forms part, their Lordships are of opinion that no such memorandum can be within the section unless on its face it embodies such terms and is signed and delivered at such time and place and in such circumstances as to lead legitimately to the conclusion that so far as the deposit is concerned it “constitutes the agreement between the parties.”

It should be observed here that in Subramonian's case their Lordships considered the oral evidence relating to the transaction and laid stress on the terms of the memorandum in which the words were “we hand you herewith the title deeds” and “please also hold this as further security” and came to the conclusion that the memorandum in question constituted the bargain between the parties. It should further be noted that in Obla Sundara Chariar's case although the promissory note and the memorandum were dated one and the same day and were handed to the lender at one and the same time, their Lordships referred to the evidence relating to antecedent negotiations and referred to the words of the memorandum which were, “As agreed upon in person I have delivered to you the undermentioned documents as security,” and held that the memorandum merely recorded the particulars of the deeds, the subject of the deposit, and held that it did not require registration.

Although the proviso to S 59 of the Transfer of Property Act merely provides that nothing in that section shall render invalid mortgages by deposit of title deeds at the places mentioned therein, but does not itself validate such mortgages, the validity of such mortgages must be deemed as recognised by the Act. When, therefore, such a mortgage is created at one of the places mentioned in the proviso and the property is situated at a place where too the Transfer of Property Act wholly applies, the onus is on the party impugning the validity of the mortgage to establish its invalidity by proving some special prohibition. The onus is not on the mortgagee to prove the validity of the mortgage independently of the Act on the ground that the Act does not expressly recognize such mortgages.—Varden Seth Sam v. Luckpathy Royjee Lallah, 9 M. I. A. 303 referred to.—Parish Naidu v. Naganatha Sethupathi, 35 C. W. N. 1061 (P. C.).

Anomalous mortgage.—Section 98 of the Transfer of Property Act, which contained a definition of 'Anomalous Mortgage' has been repealed and the definition is now given in S. 58 (g) by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 1929. As to the nature and effect of such mortgages and the rights and liabilities of parties under them, see Hikmatulla v. Imam Ali, 12 A. 203; Vistalinga v. Palaniappa, 21 M. 1; Amarchand v. Kila Morar, 27 B. 600; Neelakandan v. Ananthakrishna, 30 M. 61; 16 M. L. J. 462; Gopalan Nair v. Kunhan Menon, 30 M. 300; 17 M. L. J. 189; Tukaram v. Ramchand, 26 B. 252 (F. B.).

When a plaintiff, in the case of an anomalous mortgage providing both for foreclosure and for sale at his option, sues for foreclosure only, the mortgagor cannot compel him to accept a decree for sale. There is nothing in Or. XXXIV, r. 1, Cl. 2, which can override the provisions of S. 98 of the T. P. Act—Baqar Hussain v. Balak Ram, 18 I. C. 24.

Where there was a mortgage with possession under a deed which contained also a personal covenant to pay principal and interest and there was, further, a lease of the property to the mortgagor on a rent equal to the interest of the mortgage amount, to be realised, in default of payment, from the income of the property mortgaged and leased back: Held—That the mortgage in question was not a pure usufructuary mortgage but an anomalous mortgage or a combination of simple and usufructuary mortgage to which S. 62 of the Transfer of Property Act could not apply. The section applicable was S. 61 under which the mortgagor was entitled to redeem only if he paid off both the mortgage money and the arrears of rent under the lease. That the mortgage and the lease were parts of the same transaction, the latter being in the nature of machinery for realising the interest. That under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, C. P. C. all claims affecting the equity

Pledge—Lien Hypothecation of moveables—Mortgage of intangible property.—A pledge as defined in the Contract Act is the bailment of goods as security for payment of a debt or performance of a promise (S. 172). A bailment as defined in the said Act is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them (S. 148). There must be delivery of the goods to the pledgee and a keeping of them by him; the delivery need not be simultaneous with the lending of the money; the delivery may be a de facto or an actual delivery, e. g., a manual delivery if the goods are not bulky; the delivery may also be symbolical or constructive, e. g., by delivery of the key of the warehouse where the goods are stored, or something may be done which is equivalent to delivery, e. g., a keeping of the goods, without any actual delivery or when the pledgee already has the goods.—Beal on the Law of Bailments, p. 143.

Mortgage of goods at common law has no analogy to a simple mortgage. The distinction between a mortgage of goods at Common Law and a lien or pledge is thus explained:—Lien arises from the mode of dealing between.

In the case of Subramonian v. Lutchman, L. R. 50 I. A. 77 : 50 C. 338 (P. C.) : 28 C. W. N. 1 : 38 C. L. J. 41 : 71 I. C. 650 : 44 M. L. J. 602, their Lordships quoted the dictum of Couch, C. R. 5 H. L. 321, referred to above and then proceeded to consider whether the document before them constituted the bargain between the parties or whether it was merely the record of an entirely completed transaction. On the evidence and upon the terms of the document their Lordships held that the memorandum in question was the bargain between the parties.

In the case of Obla Sundara Chariar v. Narayana Ayyar, 58 I. A. 68, their Lordships referring to the case of Subramonian v. Lutchman, 50 I. A. 77 noted ante, observed thus:—

"While their Lordships do not think that the language of Lord Carson 'conveys or was intended to convey the meaning that no memorandum relating to the deposit of title deeds can be within S. 17 of the Registration Act unless it embodies all the particulars of the transaction of which the deposit forms part, their Lordships are of opinion that no such memorandum can be within the section unless on its face it embodies such terms and is signed and delivered at such time and place and in such circumstances as to lead legitimately to the conclusion that so far as the deposit is concerned it constitutes the agreement between the parties.'

It should be observed here that in Subramonian's case their Lordships considered the oral evidence relating to the transaction and laid stress on the terms of the memorandum in which the words were "we hand you herewith the title deeds" and "please also hold this as further security" and came to the conclusion that the memorandum in question constituted the bargain between the parties. It should further be noted that in Obla Sundara Chariar's case although the promissory note and the memorandum were dated one and the same day and were handed to the lender at one and the same time, their Lordships referred to the evidence relating to antecedent negotiations and referred to the words of the memorandum which were, "As agreed upon in person I have delivered to you the undermentioned documents as security," and held that the memorandum merely recorded the particulars of the deeds, the subject of the deposit, and held that it did not require registration.

Although the proviso to S. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act merely provides that nothing in that section shall render invalid mortgages by deposit of title deeds at the places mentioned therein, but does not itself validate such mortgages, the validity of such mortgages must be deemed as recognised by the Act. When, therefore, such a mortgage is created at one of the places mentioned in the proviso and the property is situated at a place where too the Transfer of Property Act wholly applies, the onus is on the party impugning the validity of the mortgage to establish its invalidity by proving some special prohibition. The onus is not on the mortgagee to prove the validity of the mortgage independently of the Act on the ground that the Act does not expressly recognize such mortgages—Varden Seth Sam v. Luckpathy Royjee Lallah, 9 M. I. A. 303 referred to.—Papiah Naidu v. Naganatha Sethupathi, 35 C. W. N. 1061 (P. C.).

Anomalous mortgage.—Section 98 of the Transfer of Property Act, which contained a definition of 'Anomalous Mortgage' has been repealed and the definition is now given in S. 58 (g) by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 1929. As to the nature and effect of such mortgages and the rights and liabilities of parties under them, see Hikmatulla v. Imam Ali, 12: A. 203; Visvalinga v. Palaniappa, 21 M. 1; Amarchand v. Kila Morar, 27 B. 600; Neelakandan v. Ananthakrishna, 30 M. 61: 16 M. L. J. 462; Gopalan Nair v. Kunhan Menon, 30 M. 300: 17 M. L. J. 189; Tukaram v. Ramchand, 26 B. 252 (F. B.).

When a plaintiff, in the case of an anomalous mortgage providing both for foreclosure and for sale at his option, sues for foreclosure only, the mortgagor cannot compel him to accept a decree for sale. There is nothing in Or. XXXIV, r. 1, Cl. 2, which can override the provisions of S. 98 of the T. P. Act.—Baquar Hussain v. Balak Ram, 18 I. C. 24.

Where there was a mortgage with possession under a deed which contained also a personal covenant to pay principal and interest and there was, further, a lease of the property to the mortgagor on a rent equal to the interest of the mortgage amount, to be realised in default of payment, from the income of the property mortgaged and leased back: Held—That the mortgage in question was not a pure usufructuary mortgage but an anomalous mortgage or a combination of simple and usufructuary mortgage to which S. 62 of the Transfer of Property Act could not apply. The section applicable was S. 61 under which the mortgagor was entitled to redeem only if he paid off both the mortgage money and the arrears of rent under the lease. That the mortgage and the lease were parts of the same transaction, the latter being in the nature of machinery for realising the interest. That under Or. XXXIV, r. 1, C. P. C. all claims affecting the equity of redemption should be disposed of in one and the same suit and the mortgagee being entitled to be paid off the mortgage-money as well as the rent under the lease was not bound to institute a separate suit for the latter charge.—Panaqanti Ramarayanimgar v. Maharaja of Venkatagiri, 31 C. W. N 670 (P. C.): 45 C. L. J. 395.

Pledge—Lien Hypothecation of moveables—Mortgage of intangible property.—A pledge as defined in the Contract Act is the bailment of goods as security for payment of a debt or performance of a promise (S. 172). A bailment as defined in the said Act is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them (S. 148). There must be delivery of the goods to the pledgee and a keeping of them by him; the delivery need not be simultaneous with the lending of the money; the delivery may be a de facto or an actual delivery, e. g., a manual delivery if the goods are not bulky; the delivery may also be symbolical or constructive, e. g., by delivery of the key of the warehouse where the goods are stored, or something may be done which is equivalent to delivery, e. g., a keeping of the goods, without any actual delivery or when the pledgee already has the goods.—Beal on the Law of Bailments, p. 143.

In the case of Subramonian v. Lutchman, L. R. 50 I. A. 77 : 50 C. 338 (P. C.) : 28 C. W. N. 1 : 38 C. L. J. 41 : 71 I. C. 650 : 44 M. L. J. 602, their Lordships quoted the dictum of Couch, C. R. 5 H. L. 321, referred to above and then proceeded to consider whether the document before them constituted the bargain between the parties or whether it was merely the record of an entirely completed transaction. On the evidence and upon the terms of the document their Lordships held that the memorandum in question was the bargain between the parties.

In the case of Obla Sundara Chariar v. Narayana Ayyar, 58 I. A. 68, their Lordships referring to the case of Subramonian v. Lutchman, 50 I. A. 77 noted ante, observed thus :—

Pledge—Lien Hypothecation of moveables—Mortgage of intangible property.—A pledge as defined in the Contract Act is the bailment of goods as security for payment of a debt or performance of a promise (S. 172). A bailment as defined in the said Act is the delivery of goods by one person to another for some purpose upon a contract that they shall, when the purpose is accomplished, be returned or otherwise disposed of according to the directions of the person delivering them (S. 148). There must be delivery of the goods to the pledgee and a keeping of them by him; the delivery need not be simultaneous with the lending of the money; the delivery may be a de facto or an actual delivery, e. g., a manual delivery if the goods are not bulky; the delivery may also be symbolical or constructive, e. g., by delivery of the key of the warehouse where the goods are stored, or something may be done which is equivalent to delivery, e. g., a keeping of the goods, without any actual delivery or when the pledgee already has the goods.—Beal on the Law of Bailments, p. 143.

Mortgage of goods at common law has no analogy to a simple mortgage. The distinction between a mortgage of goods at Common Law and a lien or pledge is thus explained :—Lien arises from the mode of dealing between, the parties, the usage of the trade on it is given by express contract. It is the right of a creditor to retain the goods until the debt is paid or satisfied. Pledge is a delivery of goods to the creditor as security for his debt and the right to the property vests in the creditor so far as is necessary to secure the debt. The pledgee has a special property in the goods pledged. Mortgage is more than a pledge, it is a conveyance of the goods to the mortgagee conditionally that if the goods are not redeemed at the time stipulated the title of the mortgagee becomes absolute at law.—Beal on the Law of Bailments, p. 133. The distinction between such a mortgage and a pledge has been explained in Ryall v. Rolle, (1749) Atk. 164; Jones v. Smith, (1794) 2 Ves. 372; Re Morrit, Ex parte Official Receiver, (1886) 18 Q. B. D. 22, C. A. See also Story on Bailments, 9th Edn., S. 287.

Hypothecation of moveables, though not accompanied by delivery of possession has been recognized in this country and had sometimes been enforced even against bona fide purchasers.—Deane v. Richardson, 3 N. W. P. 54; Shamsundar v. Oheita, 3 N. W. P. 71; Ko Kywetnee v. Ko Koun, 5 W. R. 189; Sitaram v. Dhan, 4 Bom. L. R. 577; Shrish v. Mungri, 9 C. W. N. 14; Damodar v. Atmaram, 8 Bom. L. R. 344; In the matter of Summers, 23 C. 592; Punithavelu v. Bhashyam, 25 M. 406.

Hypothecation of property to come into being in future, is also valid. It is not governed by the Transfer of Property Act or by the Contract Act. "The creditor had a mortgage security on existing chattels and also the benefit of what was in form an assignment of non-existing chattels which might be afterwards brought on the premises. That assignment, in fact, constituted only a contract to give him the after-acquired chattels. A man cannot in equity any more than at law assign what has no existence. A man can contract to assign property which is to come into existence in future and when it has come into existence, equity, treating as done that which ought to be done, fastens upon that property, and the contract to assign thus becomes a complete assignment."—Per Jessel, M. R. in Collyer v. Isaacs, L. R. 19 Ch. 342. See also Holroyd v. Marshall, L. R. 10 H. L. 191.

Mortgage of indigo crops that may be grown upon a certain plot of land is a valid transaction and is in the nature of an agreement to mortgage moveable property that may come into existence in future.—Misri Lal v. Mozhar Hossain, 13 C. 262. Hypothecation of property to come into existence in future has been recognized in this country.—See Bansidar v. Sant Lal, 10 A. 183; Palaniappa v. Lakshmanan, 16 M 429; Baldeo v. Miller, 31 C. 667; Ram Sarup v. Mohan Lal, 75 I. C. 816; Baluram v. Ram Sarup, 89 I. C. 410.

Mortgage of palas or turns of worship in the temple at Kalighat is warranted by custom though in a limited market and a suit for foreclosure of such a mortgage by way of conditional sale was upheld in Mahamaya v. Haridas, 42 C. 455; 20 C. L. J. 183; 27 I. C. 400.

The rules of Or. XXXIV are based on the principle of equity, which, in the absence of statutory provisions, apply to suits on mortgages of moveables as in Ltd. v. Surendra, 36 C. W. N. 263.

Distinction between mortgage and charge.—See notes under Or. XXXIV, r. 15, post.

Floating security.—In Houldsworth v. Yorkshire Woolcombers' Association Limited, (1903) 2 Ch. 284, Romer, L. J. said.—“I certainly do not intend to give an exact definition of the term ‘floating charge,’ nor am I prepared to say that there will be a floating charge within the meaning of the Act which does not contain all the three characteristics that I am about to mention but I certainly think that if a charge has the three characteristics that I am about to mention it is a floating charge: (1) if it is a charge on a class of assets of a company, present or future; (2) if that class is one which in the ordinary course of business of the company, would be changing from time to time; and (3) if you find that by the charge it is contemplated that until some future step is taken by or on behalf of those interested in the charge, the company may carry on its business in the ordinary way as far as concerns the particular class of assets I am dealing with.”

In the same case Cozens Hardy, J. said.—“My view is that the floating charge need not be on the whole undertaking nor the whole property of the company. It must, I think, embrace both present and future property and property of a particular class. It must I think contain expressly or by necessary implication a right to the company to deal with it for a certain time as though the charge had never been executed. When these conditions are found, I think you have a floating charge within the meaning of the Act.”

A floating security is not a future security, it is a present security which presently affects all the assets of the company expressed to be included in it. On the other hand it is not a specific security. The holder cannot affirm that the assets are specifically mortgaged to him. The assets are mortgaged in such a way that the mortgagor can deal with them without the concurrence of the mortgagee. A floating security is not a specific security of the assets plus a licence to the mortgagor to dispose of him in the course of his business, but is a floating mortgage applying to every item comprised in the security but not affecting any item until some event occurs or some act on the part of the mortgagee is done which causes it to crystallize into a fixed security.—Per Buckley, L. J. in Evans v. Rival Granite Quarries Ltd., (1910) 2 K. B. 979.

‘Floating security’ has also been explained in Wheatley v. Silkstone and High Moor Coal Co. Ltd., (1885) 29 Ch. D. 715; Tailby v. Official Receiver, (1889) L. R. 13 A. C. 523; Driver v. Broad, (1893) 1 Q. B. 744; Government Stock and other Securities Investment Co. v. Manila Railway Co., (1897) A. C. 81; Illingworth v. Houldsworth, (1904) A. C. 355; National Provincial Bank of England v. United Electric Theatres Ltd., (1916) 1 Ch. 132; Hamer v. London City and Midland Bank Ltd., (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 973. See also *J. D. Jones & Co. Preliminary decree in foreclosure suit.

2. (1) In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a preliminary decree—

- (a) ordering that an account be taken of what was due to the plaintiff at the date of such decree for—
 - (i) principal and interest on the mortgage,

- (ii) the costs of suit, if any, awarded to him, and
 - (iii) other costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by him up to that date in respect of his mortgage-security, together with interest thereon; or
- (b) declaring the amount so due at that date; and
- (c) directing—
- (i) that, if the defendant pays into Court the amount so found or declared due on or before such date as the Court may fix within six months from the date on which the Court confirms and countersigns the account taken under clause (a), or from the date on which such amount is declared in Court under clause (b), as the case may be, and thereafter pays such amount as may be adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges and expenses as provided in rule 10, together with subsequent interest on such sums respectively as provided in rule 11, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant, or to such person as the defendant appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the defendant at his cost free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the defendant in possession of the property; and
 - (ii) that, if payment of the amount found or declared due under or by the preliminary decree is not made on or before the date so fixed, or the defendant fails to pay, within such time as the Court may fix, the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest, the plaintiff shall be entitled to apply for a final decree debarring the defendant from all right to redeem the property.

(2) The Court may, on good cause shown and upon terms to be fixed by the Court, from time to time, at any time before a final decree is passed, extend the time fixed for the payment of the amount found or declared due under sub-rule (1) or of the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest.

(3) Where, in a suit for foreclosure, subsequent mortgagees or persons deriving title from, or subrogated to the rights of, any such mortgagees are joined as parties, the preliminary decree shall provide for the adjudication of the respective rights and liabilities of the parties to the suit in the manner and form set forth in Form No. 9 or Form No. 10, as the case may be, of Appendix D with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require.

3. (1) Where, before a final decree debarring the defendant from all right to redeem the mortgaged property has been passed, the defendant makes payment into Court of all amounts due from him under sub-rule (1) of rule 2, the Court shall, on application made by the defendant in this behalf, pass a final decree—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents referred to in the preliminary decree, and, if necessary,—

(b) ordering him to re-transfer at the cost of the defendant the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree,

and, also, if necessary,—

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where payment in accordance with sub-rule (1) has not been made, the Court shall, on application made by the plaintiff in this behalf, pass a final decree declaring that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him are debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the defendant to put the plaintiff in possession of the property.

- (ii) the costs of suit, if any, awarded to him, and
 - (iii) other costs, charges and expenses properly incurred by him up to that date in respect of his mortgage-security, together with interest thereon; or
- (b) declaring the amount so due at that date; and
- (c) directing—
- (i) that, if the defendant pays into Court the amount so found or declared due on or before such date as the Court may fix within six months from the date on which the Court confirms and countersigns the account taken under clause (a), or from the date on which such amount is declared in Court under clause (b), as the case may be, and thereafter pays such amount as may be adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges and expenses as provided in rule 10, together with subsequent interest on such sums respectively as provided in rule 11, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant, or to such person as the defendant appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the defendant at his cost free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the defendant in possession of the property; and shall be entitled to apply for a final decree debarring the defendant from all right to redeem the property.
 - (ii) that, if payment of the amount found or declared due under or by the preliminary decree is not made on or before the date so fixed, or the defendant fails to pay, within such time as the Court may fix, the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest, the plaintiff

(2) The Court may, on good cause shown and upon terms to be fixed by the Court, from time to time, at any time before a final decree is passed, extend the time fixed for the payment of the amount found or declared due under sub-rule (1) or of the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest.

(3) Where, in a suit for foreclosure, subsequent mortgagees or persons deriving title from, or subrogated to the rights of, any such mortgagees are joined as parties, the preliminary decree shall provide for the adjudication of the respective rights and liabilities of the parties to the suit in the manner and form set forth in Form No. 9 or Form No. 10, as the case may be, of Appendix D with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require.

3. (1) Where, before a final decree debarring the defendant from all right to redeem the mortgaged property has been passed, the defendant makes payment into Court of all amounts due from him under sub-rule (1) of rule 2, the Court shall, on application made by the defendant in this behalf, pass a final decree—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents referred to in the preliminary decree, and, if necessary,—

(b) ordering him to re-transfer at the cost of the defendant the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree,

and, also, if necessary,—

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where payment in accordance with sub-rule (1) has not been made, the Court shall, on application made by the plaintiff in this behalf, pass a final decree declaring that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him are debarred from all right to redeem the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the defendant to put the plaintiff in possession of the property.

(3) On the passing of a final decree under sub-rule (2), all liabilities to which the defendant is subject in respect of the mortgage or on account of the suit shall be deemed to have been discharged.

COMMENTARY.

History.—The above rr. 2 and 3 were substituted for the old rr. 2 and 3 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act 1929 which came into operation on the 1st April, 1930. The old rules are reproduced below:—

Preliminary 2. In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, decree in foreclo- the Court shall pass a decree—sure suit.

(a) ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage, and for his costs of the suit (if any) awarded to him on the day next hereinafter referred to, or

(b) declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and directing—

(c) that if the defendant pays into Court the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to defendant, or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property to the defendant free from the mortgage and from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims, and shall also, if necessary, put the defendant in possession of the property, but

(d) that, if such payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall be debarred from, all right to redeem the property. [S. 86.]

3. (1) Where, on or before the day fixed, the defendant pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up, and, if so required,

(b) ordering him to re-transfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree, and also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the plaintiff, pass a decree that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred from all right to redeem.

the mortgaged property and also, if necessary, ordering the defendant to put the plaintiff in possession of the property :

Power to enlarge time.

Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shown and upon such terms (if any) as it thinks fit, from time to time postpone the day fixed for such payment.

(3) On the passing of a decree under sub-rule (2), the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged [S. 87.]

Section 86 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1892, was in these words:—"In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall make a decree, ordering that an account be taken of what will be due to the plaintiff for principal and interest on the mortgage, and for his costs of the suit, if any, awarded to him, on the day next hereinafter referred to, or declaring the amount so due at the date of such decree, and ordering that, upon the defendant paying to the plaintiff or into Court, the amount so due on a day within six months from the date of declaring in Court the amount so due, to be fixed by the Court, the plaintiff shall deliver up to the defendant or to such person as he appoints, all documents in his possession or power relating to the mortgaged property, and shall transfer the property to the defendant free from all incumbrances created by the plaintiff or any person claiming under him, or, where the plaintiff claims by derived title, by those under whom he claims; and shall, if necessary, put the defendant into possession of the property; but that, if the payment is not made on or before the day to be fixed by the Court, the defendant shall be absolutely debarred of all right to redeem the property."

Clauses (a) and (b) of old r. 3 corresponded to the first para. of the old section with some change of words only.

Clause (c) corresponded to para. 2 of the old section with some modifications. The words "that if the defendant pays into Court the amount so due" were substituted for the words "that upon the defendant paying to the plaintiff or into Court the amount so due," which occurred in the beginning of para. 2 of the old section; and the words "and shall, if so required, re-transfer the property" were substituted for the words "transfer the property" which occurred in the old section after the words "mortgaged property"; and the words "free from mortgage" were added before the words "all incumbrances." The other changes were merely verbal.

Clause (d) was almost similar to para. 3 of the old section with the omission of the word "absolutely" which stood before the word "debarred" in the old section. The omission seems to have been made in view of sub-rule (3) of r. 69, Or. XXI, which is applicable to all sales under this Code including sales of mortgaged property.

The reasons given were as follow :—

"The Committee have inserted the words 'if necessary' before 're-transfer,' as, according to mufassil practice, a re-transfer, is not ordinarily required and they think this practice should be altered."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

"The Committee have omitted the provisions as to the defendant paying money to the plaintiff. They think it better that in every case he should pay it into Court."—See the Report of the Special Committee.

Section 87 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, was in these words:—"If payment is made of such amount and of such subsequent costs as are mentioned in S. 94, the defendant shall (if necessary) be put into possession of the mortgaged property. If such payment is not so made, the plaintiff may apply to the Court for an order that the defendant and all persons claiming through or under him be debarred absolutely of all right to redeem the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass such order, and may, if necessary, deliver possession of the property to the plaintiff: Provided that the Court may, upon good cause shewn, and upon such terms, if any, as it thinks fit from time to time postpone the day appointed for such payment. On the passing of an order under the second paragraph of this section, the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged. In the Code of Civil Procedure, Sch. IV, No. 129, for the words 'Final decree,' the words 'Decree absolute' shall be substituted."

Sub-rule (1) of old rule 3 corresponded to para. 1 of the old section, with several additions and alterations. Clauses (a) and (b) were new.

Sub-rule (2) corresponded to para. 2 of the old section with several modifications. The most important change seems to have been the omission of the word "absolutely" which stood after the word "debarred" in the old section. The omission seems to have been made in view of sub-rule (3) of r. 79, Or. XXI, as that rule is applicable to all sales under this Code. The proviso was almost similar to the proviso to the old section; the only change made in it being the substitution of the word "fixed" for the word "appointed," which occurred in the old section.

Sub-rule (3) corresponded to para. 4 of the old section with some verbal changes only.

The last para. of the old section was omitted as unnecessary.

Present changes.—They may be summarized as follows:—

(1) The old rr. 2 and 3 spoke of a 'decree.' The new r. 2 expressly states that the Court shall pass a 'preliminary decree' and the new r. 3, a 'final decree.'

(2) Under the old r. 2 if an account was to be taken it was to be with reference to 'the date next hereinafter provided'. The expression was not very clear and might mean 'the date of such decree' or 'the day fixed by the Court.' This has been made clear in the new r. 2 which says that the account is to be taken up to the date of the preliminary decree.

(3) The provision in the new r. 2 for including in the account other costs, charges and expenses is new.

(4) The new r. 2 in sub-rule (1) (c) (i) makes it clear that a date is to be fixed for payment. For this there was no provision in the old r. 2.

(5) The provision as to 'subsequent costs, charges and expenses as provided in r. 10' which was in old r. 3 has been transferred into the new r. 2.

(6) The provision as to subsequent interest in the new r. 2 is new.

(7) Sub-rule (1) (c) (i) of the new r. 2 provides that the costs of re-transfer are to be borne by the mortgagor. This is new.

r. 3.

(8) Sub-rule (1) (c) (ii) of the new r. 2 expressly states that in case of default of payment by the mortgagor the plaintiff shall be entitled to apply for a final decree. This is new.

(9) The provision in the proviso to old r. 3 sub-rule 2 as regards the power of the Court to extend the time for payment has been reproduced in the new r. 2, sub-rule (2).

(10) Sub-rule (3) of the new r. 2 refers to the Forms which are applicable. This is new.

(11) The words 'on or before the day fixed' which occurred in old r. 3, sub-rule (1) have been substituted by the words 'before the final decree debarring the defendant from all right to redeem the mortgaged property' in the new r. 3.

(12) It is expressly provided in the new r. 3 sub-rule (1) that the final decree is to be passed 'on the application made by the defendant in this behalf.'

(13) It is expressly provided in the new r. 3 sub-rule (3) that on the passing of a final decree for foreclosure 'all liabilities to which the defendant is subject in respect of the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged.'

Foreclosure suit.—A suit to obtain a decree that the mortgagor shall be absolutely debarred of his right to redeem the mortgaged property, is called a suit for foreclosure. See S 67, Transfer of Property Act. Rules 2 and 3 relate to decrees in suits for foreclosure.

Who can institute a suit for foreclosure.—Until the 1st April, 1930 on which date the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 1929 came into operation a suit for foreclosure could be brought only by an English mortgagee and a mortgagee by way of conditional sale. Since that date it is no longer open to an English mortgagee to sue for foreclosure. The remedy by way of foreclosure was held to be open in case of mortgagees by deposit of title deeds in Bombay and this has been allowed to continue for two years, i.e., till the 1st April, 1932 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, S. 15 (2) The Transfer of Property (Amendment) Act 1929 has allowed the remedy by way of foreclosure in cases of mortgages by way of conditional sale and anomalous mortgages where there is an express stipulation in that behalf (Ss 67 and 98).

Effect of foreclosure decree and discharge of the debt.—Foreclosure proceedings to which a purchaser from the mortgagor is not made a party, cannot affect the purchaser.—Brajanath v. Khilatchandra, 8 B. L. R. 104 (P. C.) : 16 W. R. 33 (on appeal from 6 W. R. 269).

A preliminary decree for foreclosure does not extinguish the right of the mortgagor to redeem the mortgage.—Mohan Lal v. Ram Charan, 130 I. C. 196 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 223 : 29 A. L. J. 265.

Until foreclosure, the vendee, under a bond of conditional sale, holds the lands, the subject of the bond, only as a security for the money lent. The effect of foreclosure is to put an end to the original conditional sale and to make the property ab initio the immoveable property of the person who advanced the money.—Sham Narain v. Rughoobur Dyal, 3 C. 503 : 1 C. L. R. 343.

The mortgage security does not lose its character until an order absolute for foreclosure is passed. It remains a debt secured upon the property. It is only when the order absolute for foreclosure is passed that the debt is discharged and, in lieu of it, the mortgagee acquires the absolute ownership of the property.—Sham Sundar v. Muhammad Ihtisham Ali, 27 A. 501 (F. B.): 2 A. L. J. 180.

In the case of a mortgage by way of conditional sale until the order in terms of sub-rule (2) is made by the Court on an application by the mortgagee debarring the mortgagor absolutely from redeeming the property, the mortgagor is entitled to redeem, even though an order absolute in terms of S. 89 of the T. P. Act, 1882, has been made.—Alimea v. Roshun Ali, 3 C L. J. 533.

Where land was sold with an agreement to re-purchase, it was held to be a mortgage by conditional sale. In such a mortgage it is not necessary that the mortgagor should make himself personally liable for the repayment of the loan. The mortgaged property is the only security which the mortgagee must look to for the satisfaction of his debt. There is no covenant on the part of the mortgagor by conditional sale, to indemnify his creditor for the inadequacy of his security.—Balkishen Das v. W. F. Legge, 22 A. 149 (P. C.): 4 C. W. N. 153 (19 A. 434 confirmed). The old r. 3, sub-rule (3) provided that on the passing of a final decree for foreclosure the debt secured by the mortgage shall be deemed to be discharged. The recent amendment has changed the position and the new r. 3, sub-rule (3), says on the passing of a final decree for foreclosure all liabilities to which the defendant is subject in respect of the mortgagor on account of the suit that is to say all costs, charges and expenses, vide r. 2 (1) (a) (iii) shall be deemed to have been discharged.

"That an account be taken of what will be due"—Principles of accounting in mortgage suits.—The scheme and intention of the T. P. Act IV of 1882, was that a general account should be taken once for all, and an aggregate amount be stated in the decree for principal, interest and costs due on a fixed day, and that after the expiration of that day, if the property should not be redeemed, the matter should pass from the domain of contract to that of judgment, and the rights of the mortgagee should henceforth depend, not on the contents of the bond, but on the directions in the decree.—Sundar Koer v. Rai Sham Krishen, 34 C. 150 (P. C.): 11 C. W. N. 249: 5 C. L. J. 106.

In order to avoid a multiplicity of mortgage suits, if in a mortgage suit all mortgagees, prior and subsequent, are parties, a decree for accounts is made on the plaintiff's mortgagee, and the defendants if they appear and prove the mortgages, are entitled to ask for a decree for an account on each of their mortgages and a declaration of their right to participate in the surplus sale proceeds in order of priority. An account is then taken of what is due on each mortgage and the sums so found due to each mortgagee are included in one report, and the sale proceeds are divided subsequently between the plaintiff and the puisne mortgagees in accordance therewith.—Berhamdeo v. Tara Chand, 33 C. 92.

The essence of a foreclosure and redemption suit is, that in such suits each party is entitled to enforce his rights. A plaintiff claiming foreclosure is bound, upon accounts being taken, if the balance is against him, to pay that balance; on the other hand, a plaintiff claiming a redemption, must submit to a decree for sale or foreclosure, if he makes default in payment; and to avoid a multiplicity of suits, it is necessary under a decree for foreclosure or redemption that the accounts between the parties should be settled and discharged, if the balance is against any party he must pay it (6 C. 377, 16 C. 682 referred to). In a redemption suit, the mortgagor is entitled, as in a question with his mortgagee, to have a general account taken of what is due upon the mortgage, and the fact that the mortgagor then declared in his pleading his intention of bringing a separate action for recovery of the profits received by the mortgagee after refusal of his tender, does not entitle him to maintain an action for damages for wrongful detention of property after the tender, which would have been wholly unnecessary, if the claim urged in the latter action, had been put forward and given effect to in that litigation.—Satyabadi Behara v. Hira Bati, 5 C. L. J. 192: 34 C. 223 (20 C. 322 referred to).

When a mortgagee undertakes to collect rents from the tenants of the property comprised in his security and to apply them in satisfaction of his dues, if he himself is one of the tenants he must, when accounts are taken, allow credit for the rents payable by him, although, if, at that time, a suit was brought for recovery of the rent, it might be held to be barred by limitation.—Ram Nath v. Brahmamoyi, 1 C. L. J. 531. See also Sheo Saran Singh v. Mahabir Pershad, 32 C. 576: 2 C. L. J. 73.

Where a mortgage-deed is silent as to possession, and there is no agreement to the contrary, a mortgagee, who takes possession, takes also the obligation upon him to account for the rents and profits during the time he is in possession.—Madari v. Baldeo Prasad, 27 A. 351 (F. B.) See also Ganga Mulik v. Bayaji, 6 B. 669, 670.

Where a person who had an interest in the mortgaged property was not made a party in the suit brought by the mortgagee, his rights are not affected and he is still entitled to redeem. In allowing him to redeem, accounts must be taken on the footing of a mortgage which subsists and which it is sought to redeem and not merely on payment of the decretal amount: In calculating the amount payable, interest should be made payable at the mortgage-rate up to the date fixed in the decree for redemption.—Jnanendra Nath v. Shorashi Charan, 49 C. 626.

In a suit for redemption of an usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagee is not responsible for the amount of the gross rental as shown in the jamabandi, but only for such sums as were actually received by him or on his behalf and such sums, if any, as might have been received by him, but for his own neglect or fault.—Banarsi Parshad v. Ram Narain, 7 C. W. N. 514 (P. C.).

In a suit for redemption, mode of taking accounts and calculating interest pointed out.—Nandu Sahu v. Ram Lakhan, 9 C. L. J. 633.

A mortgagor seeking to redeem must prove how much of the debt and interest has been repaid. The duty of the mortgagee in possession is to keep a full, true and accurate account of the actual receipts and disbursements. The mode of taking accounts pointed out.—Kundanmal v. Kashibai, 26 B. 363.

Ordinarily, a suit for an account upon a mortgage cannot be maintained by a mortgagor unless he asks for redemption also.—Hari v. Lakshman, 5 B. 614 and Shankarappa v. Danappa, 5 B. 604.

The fact that a purchaser of the equity of redemption received a certain sum for payment to the mortgagee does not preclude him from claiming from the mortgagee an account of the income of the mortgaged property.—Jafree Begum v. Gunga Ram, 3 Agra 91.

In a redemption suit, a mortgagee is entitled to credit for reasonable costs of repairs, if he renders an account of rents and profits.—Lakshman v. Hari. 4 B. 584.

Under the ordinary law of mortgage, the mortgagor is bound, so long as the equity of redemption remains with him, to indemnify the estate against expenses incurred in protecting the title.—Damodar v. Vamanrav, 9 B. 435. See Pokree Saheb v. Pokree Beary, 21 M. 32.

In a suit for account and redemption, if the mortgagee, on taking the accounts, is found to have been overpaid, the general practice is to order the payment, by him, of the balance due to the mortgagor with interest from the date of the institution of the suit.—Janoji v. Janoji, 7 B. 185. See also Ramchandra v. Janardan, 14 B. 19.

In a suit by a mortgagor for redemption, the assignee of a mortgagee is bound by the state of the account between the mortgagor and the mortgagee, where the assignment was made without the knowledge of the mortgagor.—Chinnayya v. Chidambara Chetti, 2 M. 212.

In a suit for redemption of land which has been sub-mortgaged by the mortgagee in which the sub-mortgagees are co-defendants, the mortgagee is entitled to have an account taken of the sub-mortgage. The judgment should direct an account of what is due to the original mortgagee and then of what is due to the sub-mortgagees. The latter are entitled to the sum due to them and on payment of the sum due to the original mortgagee both shall be released.

Where a mortgagee in possession pays the Government revenue which was payable by the mortgagor, he has a right to tack on the amount so paid to his mortgage debt.—Imdad Hasan v. Badri Prasad, 20 A. 401; Kamaya Naik v. Devapa, 22 B. 440. See also Jaijit v. Gobind, 6 A. 303.

A mortgagee in possession is bound to produce the accounts of collection and disbursement and to swear to them.—Mokund Lal v. Goluck Chunder, 9 W. R. 592; Goluck Chunder v. Mohun Lall, 5 W. R. 271; Ram Lochun v. Kunhya Lall, 6 W. R. 84; and Ramphul v. Wahed Ali, 14 W. R. 66.

A mortgagee is entitled to claim the value of lasting improvements if they are reasonable ones but he should not be allowed to improve the property to such an extent as to deprive the mortgagor, in effect, of the right to redeem.—Nyalingappa v. Chaubasawa, 43 B. 69; Dnyanu Laxman v. Fakira, 45 B. 1301. Where a mortgagee in possession of a mortgaged garden-land voluntarily planted fruit trees in it; held that he was not entitled to compensation for the value of the trees on redemption by the mortgagor.

because they were not an accession necessary for the preservation of the property and they were not planted with the consent of the mortgagor.—Ma E v. Maung Po Ko, 8 R. 233 (ref. to Nageshar v. Nand Lal, 48 A. 70).

As to the mode of taking accounts where the defendant is a mortgagee, in possession, see Hunooman Pershud v. Munraj Koonweree, 6 M. I. A. 393: 18 W. R. 81-n.

As to the mode of taking accounts, see also Jaijit Rai v. Gobind Tiwari, 6 A. 303 and 310, and Madari v. Baldeo, 27 A. 351 (F. B.).

Decrees in foreclosure suit.—The decree passed under this rule is not a money-decree. The order absolute for foreclosure, so far from directing the payment of the mortgage-debt, has the effect of discharging the debt. If, in a foreclosure suit, the mortgagor thinks fit to pay the mortgage-debt, and thus save his interest in the property, he does so by reason of the obligation, which he undertook when he executed the mortgage security, and with a view to preserve the property, and not in obedience to the order of the Court. Any payment made by him will not be in execution of the decree. The decree nisi puts him under no obligation to pay the debt, but simply declares what the consequences of the non-payment will be.—Sham Sunder v. Muhammad Ihtisham Ali, 27 A. 501: 2 A. L. J. 180 (F. B.).

Where in a suit upon a mortgage by conditional sale, the plaintiff mortgagee prayed that the defendant should be debarred from the right to redeem in case the money was not paid within a certain time and the Court passed a decree in the following terms, "that the claim be decreed with costs and interests and that the defendant do pay to the plaintiff the decretal money within two months." Held, that the decree though irregular as to the form, was, in effect, a decree for foreclosure within the meaning of this rule and that after the decree had been made absolute, it was not open to the defendant to object to the delivery of possession.—Jogendra Chandra v. Rama Nath, 4 C. L. J. 533.

Pendency of an appeal against a preliminary decree made under this rule does not prevent the Court which passed the decree from making it absolute.—Madan Mohon v. Ram Hur, 1 C. W. N. 197

A foreclosure decree obtained by a prior mortgagee was redeemed by a puisne mortgagee, who was a party to the suit. Held, that the puisne mortgagee acquired all the rights and powers of the prior mortgagee as such; but the rights so acquired were not such as could be worked out in execution of the decree made in favour of the prior mortgagee, that decree having been discharged by payment. A separate suit to enforce the rights was not barred by S. 244, C P Code, 1882 (S. 47). The form of order given in this rule contemplates a suit between one mortgagee and the mortgagor only and should be treated as a common form not to be literally followed in every suit for foreclosure, but to be adapted to the particular circumstances of each case.—Gopi Narain v. Bansidhar, 32 I. A. 123: 9 C. W. N. 577 (P. C.): 2 C. L. J. 173 (24 A. 179 reversed).

In case of several incumbrances, the second mortgagee has the first right to redeem, and is liable to be foreclosed in default of payment. After the foreclosure of the second mortgagee, the third mortgagee is entitled to redeem on payment of the amount originally certified to be due to the first.

Ordinarily, a suit for an account upon a mortgage cannot be maintained by a mortgagor unless he asks for redemption also.—Hari v. Lakshman, 5 B. 614 and Shankarappa v. Danapa, 5 B. 604.

mortgagee together with the subsequent interest and costs due to the first mortgagee. In default, he is foreclosed. The process continues in this way until the mortgagor is reached, and if the mortgagor fails to redeem, the mortgaged property becomes vested in the mortgagee free from all incumbrances.—Narayan Venkoba v. Debi Prasad, 28 A. 638: 3 A. L. J. 548.

Sub-mortgagee's right to sue for foreclosure.—A sub-mortgagee may sue for foreclosure or sale to the same extent as the mortgagee himself.—Muthu Vijia v. Venkatachallam, 20 M. 35; Zaki Hasan v. Deonath, 10 C. L. J. 470. For other cases, see notes under rr. 4 and 5 post under heading "Sub-mortgagee's right to sue for sale."

Effect of appeal on the date fixed for payment.—Where, in a suit on a mortgage, the decree of the appellate Court simply dismisses the appeal leaving the decree of the first Court untouched, the time for redemption would run from the date of the decree of the first Court.—Bhola Nath v. Kanti Chundra, 25 C. 311 (11 B. 172 distinguished). Approved in Faizuddi Sardar v. Asimuddi Biswas, 11 C. W. N. 679, Basanta Kumar v. Radharani, 26 C. W. N. 440: 36 C. L. J. 159: 70 I. When a decree gives a right of redemption within a certain specified period with a certain specified result to follow, if redemption is not made within such period, the mere fact of an appeal does not suspend the operation of such a decree, nor does it extend the period limited by the origin; it will be barred if not exercised within the period.—Dharam Singh, 18 A. 455 (18 A. 223 applied). The mere fact of an appeal having been preferred does not operate to stay the proceedings under Or. XXXIV, r. 3.—Rajbans v. Askaran, 125 I. C. 113: A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 227.

But the Court should, when the appeal is dismissed, give the mortgagor an opportunity to make an application for extension of time.—Manavikraman v. Unniappan, 15 M. 170.

The summary dismissal of an appeal cannot have the effect of extending the time fixed for payment under the decree appealed from.—Dattatraya v. Wasudeo, 47 B. 956: 76 I. C. 1023: A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 98. Withdrawal of the appeal does not give a fresh period.—Patloji v. Garuu, 15 B. 370; Ohudasama v. Mohant Ishwargar, 16 B. 243.

Delivery of title deeds.—Where the preliminary and the final decree in a mortgage suit directed defendants to deliver up to plaintiffs all documents in their possession or power relating to the plaint property but did not provide for an alternative relief, viz., payment of damages, in the event of non-delivery, held, that the Court could not grant such alternative relief by way of execution; Marath Sivaraman v. Sesha Pattar, 42 M. L. J. 356: 16 L. W. 589.

Partial foreclosure.—Where several parties have an interest in a mortgage, it is not competent for one of them to foreclose in respect of his fractional share.—Bhora Roy v. Abilack Roy, 10 W. R. 476.

A suit for foreclosure was partly decreed and partly dismissed, and the plaintiff appealed against the portion of the claim dismissed. The appeal was also dismissed and within three years from the dismissal of the appeal the decree-holder applied for an order absolute for foreclosure. Held, that the application was not barred; the proceedings to foreclosure must be proceedings to foreclose the mortgage as a whole. There can be no partial foreclosure.—Sham Sundar v. Muhammad Ihtisham, 27 A. 501 (F. B.): 2 A. L. J. 110. See also Fitzholmes v. Bank of Upper India Ltd., 54 I. A. 52: 8 L. 253: 100 I. C. 22: A. I. R. 1927 P. C. 25.

Where the whole of a mortgage-debt was due to the persons claiming under the mortgage jointly and not severally, and a person entitled to one moiety of the debt foreclosed the mortgage as to that moiety, and sued the different mortgagors for possession of a moiety of their interests in the mortgaged property in virtue of the mortgage and foreclosure; held, that the foreclosure was invalid and the suit was not maintainable.—Bishan Dial v. Mann; Ram, 1 A. 297. See also Chandika Singh v. Pohkar Singh, 2 A. 906. But see Bisheshar Singh v. Laik Singh, 5 A. 257.

If an order absolute for foreclosure or sale can be made without notice to the mortgagor.—An order absolute for the foreclosure under this rule cannot be made without previous notice to the mortgagor.—Venkata Narayana v. Papayya, 8 M. L. J. 205: 22 M. 133; Tara Prosad v. Bhobodeb, 22 C. 931. But see Krishna v. Muthusami, 25 M. 506; Pandu Prabhu v. Juje Lobo, 27 M. 40; Tara Pado v. Kamini, 29 C. 644 and Mallikarjunadu v. Lingamurti, 25 M. 244 and 300; Mahadeo v. Sobha Nath, 97 I. C. 277: 24 A. L. J. 914: A. I. R. 1926 All. 757, where a contrary view was taken. In the Full Bench case of Bibi Tasliman v. Harihar Mahto, 32 C. 253 (F. B.): 9 C. W. N. 81, it has been held that where an order absolute has been made under Ss. 87 or 89 of the T. P. Act, without notice to the mortgagor, the Court has an inherent power to deal with an application to set aside the substantiated 10 C. W. N.

In Mahomed Taki v. W. A. Thomas, 4 C. L. J. 317, it has been held that no notice to the mortgagor is necessary before an order absolute for sale and that the Full Bench case of Bibi Tasliman v. Harihar Mahto, 32 C. 253 (F. B.) does not lay down any such rule.

Notice to the judgment-debtor is not prescribed by law before making a final decree on the application of the decree-holder but in practice it is given on the principle that it is just and proper to hear the opposite party; Babooji v. Ram Gopal, 19 N. L. R. 124: 73 I. C. 32; Rasan v. Rangayan, 30 L. W. 551: (1929) M. W. N. 867. It must be given where no date has been fixed for the passing of a final decree.—Sri Maruthi v. Subramania, 118 I. C. 831: A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 393.

In a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage in which a minor defendant was interested the plaintiffs named the minor's father as his guardian and on his not appearing the Nazir of the Court was appointed guardian. A preliminary decree was passed. At the time of the final decree notice was served on the father and not on the Nazir. On a suit by the minor to have the final decree set aside, held that the minor was not prejudiced and so was not entitled to the relief claimed.—Mahadeo v. Somnath, 48 A. 828 : 97 I. C. 277 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 757. So far as the Central Provinces are concerned there is a practice of giving notice ; and if the notice has not been served the Court has jurisdiction to set aside an ex parte decree so made.—Pochanna v. Pochanna, 120 I. C. 332 : A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 136 Though not obligatory, notice should be given, and if it is not given the Court does not act ultra vires—Venkatarama v. Marudachala, A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 795.

Defendant absent at the passing of final decree—Decree is ex parte and Or. IX, r. 13 applies.—Although no notice to the defendant has been prescribed under r. 3, Or. XXXIV, and thus no notice is necessary, the proceedings between the preliminary and the final decree in a suit for foreclosure, that is, between the decree prescribed by r. 2 and the decree prescribed by r. 3, are proceedings in the suit and for that reason the provisions Or. IX, will attach to those proceedings. A decree passed in the absence of the defendant must be considered an ex parte decree and the provisions of r. 13, Or. IX apply to have it set aside. The Court has therefore jurisdiction to set it aside under r. 13 and the defendant has a right to show, that he was prevented by a sufficient cause from appearing at the passing of the final decree; Mt. Fahiman v. Awadh Behari Lal, A. I. R. 1929 All. 279 : 27 A. I. J. 376 : 119 I. C. 246 (A. I. R. 1926 All. 757, 39 A. 532, A. I. R. 1922 All. 383, 32 C. 253 (F. B.), applied).

Power to enlarge time—In granting time, the Court should take into consideration the magnitude of the sum involved, the arrears of interest and the value of the security, and whether the mortgagor has prospects of raising the required money.—See Fisher on Mortgages, Para 1958.

Under the Transfer of Property Act it was held that in a foreclosure action the mortgagor can redeem at any time until the order absolute is made under this rule.—Poresh Nath v. Ramjodu, 16 C. 246 ; Somesh v. Ram Krishna, 27 C. 705 : 4 C. W. N. 699 ; Narayana v. Papayya, 22 M. 133 ; Nihal v. Mittar Sen, 20 A. 446 ; Alimea v. Roshan Ali, 3 C. L. J. 533 ; Ysaf Ali v. Kasim Ali, 26 C. W. N. 532. In Salig Ram v. Muradan, 25 A. 231 (following 20 A. 446 and 27 C. 705), it has been further held that the mortgagor is not deprived of his right to redeem by the fact that under an order of the Court, not being an order under S. 87 of the T. P. Act, the mortgagee has been put into possession of the mortgaged property. See also Debi v. Jaikaran, 24 A. 479. It has been held under the Code that if the mortgagor deposits the redemption money into Court before the passing of the final decree, though after the date fixed for payment and the deposit is accepted by the Court it becomes an effectual deposit.—Depin Behary v. Mokunda Lal, 36 C. 122 : 1 I. C. 780 ; Ysaf Ali v. Kasim Ali, 26 C. W. N. 532 (following Poresh v. Ramjodu, 16 C. 246 and Alimea v. Roshan Ali, 3 C. L. J. 533). But it has also been held that the proviso to Or. XXXIV, r. 3 (2) gives the Court a discretionary power to extend the time for the payment of the decretal amount, but a mortgagor has no absolute right to pay the money after the expiry of the specified period even though no final decree has up to the time of such payment been made.—Ratnakar v. Chamra, 4 P. L. J. 347 : 51 I. C. 881; Murugesu v. Ramasami, 39 M. 882 : 31 I. C. 200.

The Judicial Committee held that where no good cause is shown there is no jurisdiction in the Court to extend the time specified in the preliminary decree for payment of the mortgage money.—Motilal v. Ujar Singh, 55 I. A. 207 : 55 C. 821 : 26 A. L. J. 600 : 32 C. W. N. 796 : 30 Bom. L. R. 856 : 109 I. C. 467. Notwithstanding this it has been pointed out that where no final decree debarring the defendant from the right to redeem the mortgaged property has been passed, the defendant is entitled to make the payment and to ask for a final decree ordering delivery of documents, re-transfer, and possession.—Sant Bakhsh v. Bhagwandin, 131 I. C. 435 : 8 O. W. N. 142 : A. I. R. 1931 Oudh 121 (in this case the alteration made in 1929 as regards rr. 2 and 3 in this respect has been explained).

In the case of a decree for redemption or for foreclosure, both of which decrees stand in this respect upon the same footing, no extension of time limited by the decree for payment of the decretal amount can be made except for good cause shown.—Ram Lal v. Tulsa Kuar, 19 A. 180 (16 C. 246 dissented from : 16 M. 214 distinguished). See also Raja Ram v. Chunni Lal, 19 A. 205 ; Haryas Rai v. Rameshar, 20 A. 354 ; Akkach Mondal v. Aminuddi Mullik, 23 C. W. N. 439 : 50 I. C. 937. But see Kedar Nath v. Kali Churn, 25 C. 703 (F. B.) ; Musst. Manjari v. Surajmal, A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 333 : 25 N. L. R. 175 : 111 I. C. 294.

Under Or. XXXIV, r. 3 sub-rule (2) in a suit for foreclosure where the payment ordered by the preliminary decree is not made within the time fixed, the Court is bound, on being moved in that behalf by the plaintiff, to pass a final decree for foreclosure. Under the proviso to sub-rule (2), however, the Court has power to enlarge the time for payment. But it is not at liberty to grant even a short extension of jurisdiction to grant an extension.—Hakur Ujar Singh, 109 I. C. 467 : 55 I. A. 207 : 55 C. 821 (P. C.) : A. I. R. 1928 P. C. 137.

The expression 'good cause' should be interpreted liberally with leniency to the debtor.—Narayan v. Sangidas, 109 I. C. 770 : A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 301. It must be alleged and judicially proved.—Wamanrao v. Bhagwan, 119 I. C. 680. The mere fact that the amount was large and the delay small is not sufficient.—Ramnarayan v. Ukanda, 116 I. C. 511 : A. I. R. 1929 Nag. 263.

An application to extend the time fixed by a preliminary decree for foreclosure made after the expiry of that time is entertainable. The question is a question of fact to be decided in each particular case.—Kanhai

Until an order for foreclosure absolute has been made under S. 87 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882 (this rule), the mortgagor may be allowed, on a proper application, to redeem the mortgaged property.—Narayana v. Papayya, 23 M. 133 ; Mallikarjunadu v. Lingamurti, 25 M. 244, 239 (F. B.) ; Vedapuratti v. Vallabha, 25 M. 300 (F. B.) ; Nandram v. Babaji, 23 B. 771 :

Ishwar v. Gopal, 28 B. 102; Shaikh Somesh v. Ram Krishna, 4 C. W. N. 699 (16 C. 246, 22 M. 133 referred to).

This rule does not allow the Court to postpone the date of payment on the application of an outsider. The provision regarding the power of the Court to postpone the date of payment relates to matters as between the mortgagor and mortgagee.—Akshya Kumar v. Surja Kumar, 6 C. W. N. 654.

The mere fact that an appeal has been lodged is not sufficient ground for enlarging the time.—Iswardar v. Chunda Sama, 13 B. 109; Aminab v. Sidu, 17 B. 547. See also Ram Golam v. Barsati Singh, 10 C. W. N. 910, where it has been further held that a Court has no power, of its own motion, to extend the time provided in S. 89 of the T. P. Act, for making an order absolute. The appellate Court, when it affirms the preliminary decree of the lower Court, is neither bound to fix a period of six months for payment after its decree nor is it bound to extend the time for payment fixed by the lower Court.—Magbul v. Pateshri Partab, 27 A. L. J. 976: 118 I. C. 670: A. I. R. 1929 All. 677.

Where no sufficient cause for non-payment is shown and no extension of time is granted the Court is bound to make the preliminary decree final.—Bhanu v. Pratap, 122 I. C. 443: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 178.

Appeal.—An order under r. 3 or 4 or 8 of Or. XXXIV refusing to extend the time for the payment of mortgage money is appealable.—See Or. XLIII, r. 1, Cl. (o).

The preliminary and the final decree are separately appealable.—See S. 97 of the Code.

If the order refusing to extend the time is a part of the order which directs that, the preliminary decree should be made final and a final decree is passed, an appeal from the order refusing the time, on the ground of its being an interlocutory order, is not maintainable.—Tikaram v. Onkar, 124 I. C. 241: A. I. R. 1930 Nag. 240.

* An order dismissing an application for a final decree in a mortgage suit is a decree and appealable as such.—Nathu Mal v. Uda Ram, 137 I. C. 273: 33 P. L. R. 56: A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 214 (following 42 M. 52).

appeal and not from the date fixed for payment by the original decree.—Jorad v. Gendan, 53 I. A. 197: 6 P. 24 (P. C.): 93 I. C. 499: A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 93 (approving Gajadhar v. Kishen, 39 A. 641: 15 A. L. J. 734: 42 I. C. 93: following Abdul Majid v. Jawahir, 36 A. 350 (P. C.): 12 A. L. J. 624: 18 C. W. N. 963: 27 M. L. J. 17, and overruling Madho v. Nihal, 38 A. 21: 13 A. L. J. 985: 30 I. C. 494). See also Nizamuddin v. Bohra, 40 A. 203: 43 I. C. 870; Jayanti v. Damisetti, 44 M. 714: 64 I. C. 470. In the above cases it has been held that the application is governed by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act, the period being 3 years. And it has been held that even if the period of 3 years has elapsed during the pendency of the appeal, still the said period should run from the date of the decree of the appellate Court.—Fitzholmes v. The Bank of Upper India Ltd., 54 I. A. 52: 8 L. 253: 100 I. C. 22: A. I. R.

1927 P. C. 25. In the case of an instalment decree by consent, the limitation is 3 years from date of default and not date of decree.—Nanku v. Parmatmanand, 130 I. C. 487: 29 A. L. J. 58: A. I. R. 1931 All. 340.

The dismissal of an application for a final decree in a mortgage suit for failure to pay batta cannot be construed as a dismissal of the suit itself. After a preliminary decree has been passed the Court has no power to dismiss the suit. Nor does the dismissal of the application preclude another for the same purpose.—Sriramulu v. Firm of K. Sriramulu, 140 I. C. 324: 63 M. L. J. 719: (1932) M. W. N. 1191.

Transferee from mortgagee may apply for a final decree.—See Ratnakar v. Chamra, 51 I. C. 881: 4 P. L. J. 347.

4. (1) In a suit for sale, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a preliminary decree to the effect mentioned in clauses (a), (b) and (c) (i) of sub-rule (1) of rule 2, and further directing that, in default of the defendant paying as therein mentioned, the plaintiff shall be entitled to apply for a final decree directing that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and the proceeds of the sale (after deduction therefrom of the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what has been found or declared under or by the preliminary decree due to the plaintiff, together with such amount as may have been adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest, and the balance, if any, be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same.

(2) The Court may, on good cause shown and upon terms to be fixed by the Court, from time to time, at any time before a final decree for sale is passed, extend the time fixed for the payment of the amount found or declared due under sub-rule (1) or of the amount adjudged due in respect of subsequent costs, charges, expenses and interest.

(3) In a suit for foreclosure in the case of an anomalous mortgage, if the plaintiff succeeds the Court may, at the instance of any party to the suit or of any other person interested in the mortgage-security or the right of redemption, pass a like decree (in lieu of a decree for foreclosure) on such terms as it thinks fit, including the deposit in Court of a reasonable sum fixed by the Court to meet the expenses of the sale and to secure the performance of the terms.

(4) Where, in a suit for sale or a suit for foreclosure in which sale is ordered, subsequent mortgagees or persons deriving title from, or subrogated to the rights of, any such mortgagees are joined as parties, the preliminary decree referred to in sub-rule (1) shall provide for the adjudication of the respective rights and liabilities of the parties to the suit in the manner and form set forth in Form No. 9, Form 10 or Form No. 11, as the case may be, of Appendix D with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require.

5. (1) Where, on or before the day fixed or at any time before the confirmation of a sale made in pursuance of a final decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule, the defendant makes payment into Court of all amounts due from him under sub-rule (1) of rule 4, the Court shall, on application made by the defendant in this behalf, pass a final decree or, if such decree has been passed, an order—

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents referred to in the preliminary decree,

and, if necessary,—

(b) ordering him to transfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree,

and, also, if necessary,—

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where the mortgaged property or part thereof has been sold in pursuance of a decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule, the Court shall not pass an order under sub-rule (1) of this rule, unless the defendant, in addition to the amount mentioned in sub-rule (1), deposits in Court for payment to the purchaser a sum equal to five per cent. of the amount of the purchase-money paid into Court by the purchaser.

Where such deposit has been made, the purchaser shall be entitled to an order for repayment of the amount of the purchase-money paid into Court by him, together with a sum equal to five per cent. thereof.

(3) Where payment in accordance with sub-rule (1) has not been made, the Court shall, on application made by the plaintiff in this behalf, pass a final decree directing that the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with in the manner provided in sub-rule (1) of rule 4.

COMMENTARY.

History.—The above rr. 4 and 5 were substituted for the old rr. 4 and 5 by the Transfer of Property (Amendment) Supplementary Act, 1929 which came into operation on the 1st April, 1930. The old rules are reproduced below:—

4. (1) In a suit for sale, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree to the effect mentioned in Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of r. 2 and also directing that, in default of the defendant paying, as therein mentioned, the mortgaged property or a sufficient part thereof be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court and applied in payment of what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid, together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same.

Preliminary decree in a suit for sale.

(2) In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds and the mortgage is not a mortgage by conditional sale, the Court may, at the instance of the plaintiff or of any person interested either in the mortgage-money or in the right of redemption, pass a like decree (in lieu of a decree for foreclosure) on such terms as it thinks fit including the deposit in Court of a reasonable sum, fixed by the Court, to meet the expenses of sale and to secure the performance of the terms. [S. 88.]

Power to decree sale in foreclosure suit.

5. (1) Where on or before the day fixed, the defendant pays into Court the amount declared due as aforesaid, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree—

Final decree in suit for sale

(a) ordering the plaintiff to deliver up the documents which under the terms of the preliminary decree he is bound to deliver up and, if so required,

(b) ordering him to re-transfer the mortgaged property as directed in the said decree, and also, if necessary,

(c) ordering him to put the defendant in possession of the property.

(2) Where such payment is not so made, the Court shall, on application made in that behalf by the plaintiff, pass a decree that the mortgaged property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale be dealt with as is mentioned in r. 4. [S. 89.]

Old r. 4 corresponded to S. 88 of the T. P. Act, 1882, with some modifications.

In sub-rule (1), the words, "what is declared due to the plaintiff as aforesaid" were substituted for the words "what is found due to the plaintiff" which occurred in the old section; and the words, "together with subsequent interest and subsequent costs," were added before the words "and that the balance (if any)."

In sub-rule (2) the words "if it thinks fit" which occurred after the word "including" in the old section were omitted. The other changes were merely verbal. The old section is reproduced here for comparison:—

"In a suit for sale, if the plaintiff succeeds, the Court shall pass a decree to the effect mentioned in the first and second paragraphs of S. 86, and also ordering that, in default of the defendant paying as therein mentioned, the mortgaged property, or a sufficient part thereof, be sold, and that the proceeds of the sale (after defraying thereout the expenses of the sale) be paid into Court, and applied in payment of what is so found due to the plaintiff, and that the balance (if any) be paid to the defendant or other persons entitled to receive the same.

"In a suit for foreclosure, if the plaintiff succeeds, and the mortgage is not a mortgage by conditional sale, the Court may at the instance of the plaintiff, or of any person interested either in the mortgage-money or in the right of redemption, if it thinks fit, pass a like decree (in lieu of a decree for foreclosure) on such terms as it thinks fit, including, if it thinks fit, the deposit in Court of a reasonable sum fixed by the Court to meet the expenses of sale, and to secure the performance of the terms."

Old r. 5 corresponded to S. 89 of the T. P. Act IV of 1882, with several additions and alterations. The old section was re-cast and re-arranged, and the changes introduced by the old rule will appear more clear on comparison of the rule with the old section. The words "for an order absolute," which occurred in the old section, and the last sentence of the old section which ran as follows, "and thereupon the defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished," were omitted. Section 89, T. P. Act, 1882, ran as follows: "If in any case under S. 88, the defendant pays to the plaintiff or into Court on the day fixed as aforesaid the amount due under the mortgage, the cost (if any) awarded to him, and subsequent costs as are mentioned in S. 94, the defendant shall (if necessary) be put in possession of the mortgaged property; but, if such payment is not so made, the plaintiff or the defendant, as the case may be, may apply to the Court for an order absolute for sale of the mortgaged property, and the Court shall then pass an order that such property . . . of the sale be dealt . . . defendant's right to redeem and the security shall both be extinguished."

The above omissions seem to have been made for the reason that all the provisions of the C. P. Code of 1908, relating to execution and sale shall now apply equally to mortgage decrees. The word "absolute" was omitted because even after the final decree for sale, the defendant would be able to prevent the sale by paying the decretal amount under Or. XXI, r. 69 (3) to the officer conducting the sale (see 31 C. 863 (F. B.); 31 M. 354 and 19 A. 205).

r. 5.

The concluding sentence of the old S. 89 of the T. P. Act, 1882, was omitted for the reason that even after the passing of the final decree under this rule, the judgment-debtor by making a deposit under S. 310-A of the C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 89), would be able to set aside the sale and get back the mortgage security, as by the wording of the old r. 5, the passing of the final decree would not deprive the judgment-debtor of the remedies provided by the rules above referred to. In this connection, see 19 A. 205, 20 A. 354, 25 B. 104, 23 A. 773, 31 M. 354, and 31 C. 863 (F. B.). The concluding words of S. 89 of the T. P. Act (IV of 1882) were subject to much discussion in all the Indian High Courts, and they agreed in holding that those words relate to the actual sale and distribution of the proceeds and not merely to the passing of the order absolute for sale. In other words, by the passing of a final decree for sale, neither the mortgagee's right to redeem nor the mortgage-security will be extinguished. The Allahabad High Court, in Shyam Lal v. Bashiruddin, 23 A. 783, observed as follows: "It is not easy to say what was in the contemplation of the framers of the T. P. Act, in introducing the concluding word of S. 89 of the T. P. Act." In Krishnaji v. Mahadev, 25 B. 104, it had been held that provisions of S. 310-A of the C. P. Code 1882, are applicable to sales held in execution of a mortgage decree passed under the T. P. Act; in Rajaram v. Chunni Lal, 19 A. 205, it had been held that Ss. 291 and 310-A of the C. P. Code, 1882, would apply to a sale held by virtue of an order absolute for sale passed under S. 89 of the T. P. Act. This case was followed in Harjas Rai v. Rameshwar, 20 A. 354. A similar view was taken in Adipuram v. Gopalasami, 31 M. 354. In Bibijan Bibi v. Sachi Bewah, 31 C. 863 (F. B.), it was held that the concluding words of S. 89, T. P. Act, relate to the actual sale and distribution of the proceeds and not merely to the passing of the order absolute for sale. In view of the rulings mentioned above, the Legislature probably considered it useless to retain the words "absolute" and the concluding sentence of S. 89 of the T. P. Act, and hence they were omitted from the rule. The effect of the omission was that the mortgage is kept alive for all purposes as regards persons having an interest but not made parties to the mortgage suit.—Venkat Reddy v. Kunjappa, 46 M. L. J. 391.

As regards the state of the law as it was under the Code of 1908 it is enough to quote the observations of the Judicial Committee in the case of Sukhi v. Ghulam Sufdar, 48 I. A. 465 : 43 A. 469 (P. C.) : 26 C. W. N. 279 : 65 I. C. 151 : 24 Bom. L. R. 590 : 42 M. L. J. 15. Their Lordships said,— "In these rules the words above quoted (meaning the concluding words of S. 89) are omitted. Now the words being gone their Lordships feel no difficulty in holding that the law remains as it certainly was before the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, namely, that an owner of a property who is in the rights of a first mortgagee and of the original mortgagor as acquired at a sale under the first mortgage is entitled at the suit of the subsequent mortgagee, who is not bound by the sale or the decree on which it proceeded, to set up the first mortgage as a shield."—In Muhammad Musa v. Aidal Singh, 65 I. C. 801, it has been held that the right of redemption remains in the mortgagor after the sale and for long afterwards. In any event the right does not remain after confirmation of the sale.—Kalipada v. Basanta Kumar, 35 C. W. N. 877 (authorities discussed).

"The Transfer of Property Act does not contain any provision for the passing of a final decree in cases where payment is made in accordance with the terms of the preliminary decree. This is in our opinion an omission, and we have provided in r. 3 (1), 5 (1) and 8 (1) for the passing of a final decree in such cases."—See the Report of the Select Committee.

This rule prescribes the procedure to be adopted in the case of a decree for sale. If on or before the day fixed the defendant pays into Court the amount declared to be due under r. 4, together with such subsequent costs as are mentioned in r. 10, the Court shall pass a decree in accordance with the directions contained in Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of this rule. No attachment is necessary for the sale of the mortgaged premises, as the direction for sale in the decree is in itself sufficient authority for the sale.—See the cases noted under Or. XXI, r. 54.

The sale was to be regulated now under the Code of Civil Procedure and it might be stopped on the amount of debt and costs being tendered to the officer conducting the sale. See Or. XXI, r. 69 (3), which is now applicable to all sales including the sales of mortgaged property. This rule did lay down, as r. 3 did, that on the passing of the final decree the mortgage debt shall be deemed to be discharged. Therefore, if the proceeds of the sale be found insufficient, then the mortgagee might proceed against the mortgagor personally or against his other properties by adopting the procedure laid down in r. 6.

Present changes.—They may be summarized as follows:—

(1) The old r. 4 spoke of a 'decree.' The new r. 4 expressly states that the Court shall pass a 'preliminary decree.'

(2) Under the new rr. 4 and 5, in case of default of payment on the part of the mortgagor the plaintiff has to apply for a final decree.

(3) In the new r. 4 there is a provision in respect of 'subsequent charges and expenses' which is new.

(4) The new r. 4 in sub-rule (2) makes an express provision empowering the Court to extend the time for payment which was not in the old rule.

(5) Sub-rule (4) of the new r. 4 refers to the forms which are applicable.

(6) The words "or at time before the confirmation of a sale made in pursuance of a final decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule" in sub-rule (1) of r. 5 are new.

(7) Under the new r. 5, if the mortgagor pays the amount into Court he has to apply for a final decree for re-transfer, and if he pays the amount into Court after the sale and before its confirmation he has to apply for an order for re-transfer.

(8) Sub-rule (2) of the new r. 5 is new.

Suit for sale.—A suit to obtain a decree that the property be sold is a suit for sale.—See S. 67, Transfer of Property Act.

Who may obtain decree for sale.—Only the simple mortgagee, the English mortgagee, the equitable mortgagee, and the holder of a charge as defined in S. 100 of the T. P. Act, IV of 1882, can sue for sale. Under Cl. (a) of S. 67 of the T. P. Act, usufructuary mortgagee, as such, has no right to institute a suit for foreclosure or sale. There was, however, considerable difference of opinion as to the right of a usufructuary mortgagee to obtain an order for sale. In Venkatasami v. Subramanya, 11 M 89, in Ramayya v. Guruva, 14 M. 232 and in Sivakami Ammal v. Gopala, 17 M 131 (F. B.), it has been held that a decree for sale may be obtained by an usufructuary mortgagee. But these cases have been dissented from in Luchmeshar Singh v. Dookh Mochan Jha, 24 C. 677 (11 A. 367 referred to), and in Kashi Ram v. Sardar Singh, 28 A. 157, where it has been held (distinguishing 21 A. 4) that a usufructuary mortgage with personal covenant to pay the mortgage debt on demand unaccompanied by any hypothecation of property cannot give the mortgagee a right to sell in the event of non-payment of the mortgage debt. In Kangaya Gurukul v. Kalimuthu, 27 M. 526 (F. B.) it has been held that where there is a combination of a simple and usufructuary mortgage and a covenant to pay personally or to realize the mortgage-money by sale, the mortgagee has a right to a decree for the mortgage-money and for sale.

Decree for sale in a foreclosure suit.—The second paragraph of this rule has been borrowed from the English Conveyancing Act, 1891 (44 and 45, Vict. Cl. 41, S. 25) and can apply to English mortgages. When there are several conflicting claimants to the mortgaged property the proper course is to direct a sale of the mortgaged property and to distribute the sale proceeds amongst the several incumbrancers according to their respective rights and priorities, the surplus, if any, being paid over to the ultimate owner of the equity of redemption.

In a suit upon an English or an equitable mortgage the Court may, in its discretion, order sale instead of foreclosure. The Court will direct a sale in cases where there is such a complication that the ordinary decree cannot conveniently be worked out; but not where it is likely to cause injury or be oppressive to the mortgagor or to other person is interested.

The instances in which the Court in the exercise of its discretionary power should pass a decree for sale instead of foreclosure, are clearly stated in Daniell's Chancery Practice, pp. 1409-1411.

The right of redemption is extinguished with reference to persons who are concluded by the decree for sale by the sale actually taking place. Once the sale has taken place the right does not subsist even till confirmation of the sale; the matter then passes from the domain of contract to that of judgment. That was the law under S. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act, and that was also the law under Or. XXXIV, r. 5 prior to the amendment of 1929; Asia Khatun v. Nurjehan, 36 C. W. N. 955.

The amendment of Or. XXXIV, r. 5 by Act IX of 1929 has no retrospective operation.—Asia Khatun v. Nurjehan, 36 C. W. N. 955.

Preliminary decree in a suit for sale—Court's power to adjust equities—Order in which properties are to be sold.—A bona fide purchaser for value of a portion of the mortgaged property without notice of such mortgage, has no right, in a suit by the mortgagee to enforce his mortgage, to insist that the portion not sold to him must be proceeded against first, and the portion purchased by him must be sold only for the balance, if any due. But it is competent to the Court under S. 88, T. P. Act, 1882 (r. 4), to order a sufficient portion of the mortgaged property to be sold; and if the portion not sold by the mortgagor is sufficient, and if the mortgagee will not be prejudiced, the Court may by its decree direct such unsold portion to be sold first; and if the decree directs the sale of the whole property, the Court, in execution, may first bring to sale the portion unsold and if the sale proceeds be sufficient, stop the sale of the portion sold by the mortgagor.—Appayya v. Rangayya, 31 M. 419 (F. B.) : 18 M. L. J. 229 (29 M. 217 explained; 17 A. 435 referred to).

A decree on a simple mortgage directing the sale of mortgaged property on default of payment within a fixed period is substantially a decree nisi or a conditional decree and cannot be executed unless it is made absolute under r. 5.—Ram Lal v. Narain, 12 A. 539; Siva Pershad v. Nundo Lal, 18 C. 139; Poresk Nath v. Ramjodu, 16 C. 246; Tara Prasad v. Bhobodeb, 22 C. 921; Chunni Lal v. Abdul Ali, 23 A. 331.

Though Or. XXXIV, r. 4, contemplates the sale of the properties mortgaged, the decree must be suitably modified when the mortgaged properties have already been converted into money.—Narendra v. Jogendra, 19 C. W. N. 537 : 20 C. L. J. 469; 27 I. C. 139.

Until a final decree is passed, all proceedings following a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit are proceedings in a pending suit and an application made therein is not an application for execution.—Bhutnath v. Tara Chand, 25 C. W. N. 595 : 33 C. L. J. 115.

Where in a suit for enforcement of a mortgage, a decree was passed holding that the mortgage lien proportionate to the values of the jotes which came to be in plaintiff's possession was discharged and that it remained attached to the other jotes only proportionately to their values, and directing an account to be taken of what was due to the plaintiff and in default of payment within six months directing the sale of the property. Held that it was a preliminary decree for sale under Or. XXXIV, r. 4.—Asharam v. Umesh, 56 C. L. J. 221.

Ordinarily, the right of selling a property in a particular order rests with the decree-holder and, in the absence of any contract between the parties, the decree-holder may proceed to sell the properties in whatever order he thinks best so as to facilitate the realization of his mortgage-debt. But the Court can in the circumstances of a case and in view of the equities arising in various parties, direct under Or. XXXIV, r. 4 the order in which the properties should be sold; Raj Keshwar Prasad v. Mohammad Khalil-ul-Rahman, 3 P. 522; 78 I. C. 796; A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 459. And it is also competent to the Court in executing a mortgage decree to exercise its control in bringing different items of the property comprised in the decree to sale in a particular order to adjust the equities of the parties before it who are interested.—Krishna Ayyar v. Muthu Kumarasawmiya, 29 M. 217. See also Jatadhari Singh v. Baldeolal, 3 P. L. J. 207 : 51 I. C. 444.

The power of the Court to direct the order for sale in order to adjust the equities of transferees or purchasers has been recognised.—See Sitaram v.

Ramrao, 130 I. C. 817; A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 91; Kaisar Beg v. Sheo Shankar, 53 A. 391: 129 I. C. 708: (1931) A. L. J. 108: A. I. R. 1932 All. 85.

The power of the Court to direct the order of sale is expressly set forth in Cl. 4 of r. 4 as now amended; in that clause only subsequent mortgagees are mentioned or persons deriving title from them and that must be taken to include subsequent purchasers also.—Sitaram v. Ramrao, 130 I. C. 817: A. I. R. 1931 Nag. 91.

Award.—An arbitrator is not bound by this rule. A decree in terms of an award may order the sale of the property mortgaged, although no preliminary decree under this rule or final decree under r. 5 has been passed.—Nripendra v. Jhumak, 3 P. 221: 80 I. C. 588: A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 263; Punjab National Bank Ltd. v. Thakur Das, 121 I. C. 79: A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 116.

Consent-decree.—In the case of a consent-decree, an order for the sale of the mortgaged property may be made, although no preliminary decree under this rule or final decree under r. 5 has been passed.—Hemendra v. Fakir, 50 C. 650: 74 I. C. 929: A. I. R. 1923 Cal. 626; Ishan v. Nilratan, 2 P. 538: 72 I. C. 1049: A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 375, Sital Singh v. Baijnath, 44 A. 668: 75 I. C. 485: A. I. R. 1922 All. 383; Kora Lal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 5 L. L. J. 67: 55 I. C. 816; Askari v. Jahangira, 49 A. 297 (F. B.): 100 I. C. 59: A. I. R. 1927 All. 167; Ganganand v. Maharaja Sir Rameshwar, 6 P. 388: 102 I. C. 449: A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 271. See, however, Kashi v. Priyanath, 28 C. W. N. 550: 83 I. C. 424: A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 645, in which it was held that a consent-decree that the plaintiff, in case of default, would be competent to realize the whole amount by execution required to be made absolute on notice, before execution was taken out (following Sundari v. Sovarani, 10 C. W. N. 306; Biswanath v. Bhagwan Din, 14 C. L. J. 648; and Shyam v. Satinath, 24 C. L. J. 523).

A consent-decree directing payment by instalments is a perfectly valid mortgage-decree but it is not covered by Or. XXXIV, r. 5, C. P. Code. Consequently it is not necessary to make a final decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 5. It is open to the parties to a litigation to waive a particular procedure and to agree to a final decree being passed without a preliminary decree in the first instance.—Ishan v. Nilratan, 2 P. 538: 72 I. C. 1049: 4 P. L. T. 311: 1 P. L. R. 217; Nripendra v. Jhumak, 3 P. 221: 80 I. C. 588: 4 P. L. T. 694: 2 P. L. R. 9; Askari Hassan v. Jahangira, 49 A. 297 (F. B.): 100 I. C. 59: 25 A. L. J. 107: A. I. R. 1927 All. 167 (A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 375 and 10 C. L. J. 91 approved; A. I. R. 1922 All. 396 distd.); Utanka Lal v. Tarak, 48 C. L. J. 357; Kunhammad v. Kozhuvam-mal, A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 38: 106 I. C. 395.

But the mere fact of an instalment decree being passed in a mortgage-suit on the consent of parties is not a circumstance which can per se exclude the application of the provisions contained in Or. XXXIV; whether they would apply or not depends on the terms of the decree.—Musst. Manjlabai v. Surajmal, 111 I. C. 294: A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 333.

A preliminary decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 4, may be passed in terms of a compromise by which a longer time than six months is provided for and in such a case a final decree has to be applied for and passed before execution can be taken — Mahomed Unis v. Janeshar, A. I. R. 1929 All. 881.

Whether a decree passed is executable or not depends on its terms.— See Sarat Chandra v. Joy Sankar, 35 C. W. N. 332 : 134 I. C. 80 : A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 546.

Where the compromise on which the decree is based is silent as regards the manner in which the sale of the hypothecated property is to be obtained, the provisions of r. 14 would apply, the decree-holder can proceed against the person and other properties of the judgment-debtor in execution of the consent-decree, but if he desires to have the hypothecated property sold he should institute a suit under Or. XXXIV, r. 4.—Posti Mal v. Radhakishan, 54 A. 763 : 138 I. C. 603 : 30 A. L. J. 486 : A. I. R. 1932 All. 439.

Difference between Or. XXXIV, r. 5, and S. 89, T. P. Act.— There is a substantial difference between the provisions of S. 89 of the T. P. Act and Or. XXXIV, r. 5, C. P. Code, and the former provision governs sales held before the new C. P. Code. As soon as an order absolute was made, the mortgage security was extinguished and the relative rights of the mortgagor and the mortgagee were regulated by the decree. But it does not follow that thereafter the mortgagee is debarred from proving that the description of the property mentioned in the schedule to the decree was itself erroneous.—Nandi Lal v. Jogendra, 29 C. W. N. 403.

Final decree, when can be passed—A final decree in a mortgage suit can be passed only when the preliminary decree has become conclusive between the parties. If there is an appeal pending from the latter, the final decree should be passed only after the disposal of the appeal; Lalman v. Shiam Singh, 93 I. C. 603 : A. I. R. 1926 All. 291; Gajadhar v. Kishan, 39 A. 641 (F. B.) : 42 I. C. 93; Jowad Hossein v. Gendan, 53 I. A. 197 : 6 P. 24 (P. C.) : 98 I. C. 499 : A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 93 : 31 C. W. N. 58 : 44 C. L. J. 63 : 51 M. L. J. 781. But the holder of the preliminary decree may apply for a final decree even though the appeal is pending, when the mortgagor has failed to pay.—Bishamber v. Nizam Ali, 108 I. C. 751. See also other cases noted under heading "Application for a final decree" under Or. XXXIV, rr. 2 and 3, ante. See however, Khairunnissa v. Oudh Commercial Bank, 51 A. 640 : 27 A. L. J. 480 : 119 I. C. 510 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 287, and Somar v. Deonandan, 6 P. 780.

For cases of awards and consent decrees in which a final decree need not be passed, see notes under headings "Award" and "Consent decree," ante.

Rule 4, sub-rule (2)—Rule 5, sub-rule (1).—Under the Transfer of Property Act, 1893 there was no power expressly given to extend the date fixed for payment and it used to be held that the Court was bound to pass a final decree for sale if payment was not made within that date.—Taniram v. Gajanan, 31 B. 300. And a contrary view was also taken, holding that it was quite within the power of the Court to adjourn the sale in order to give the mortgagor time to raise money to pay off the decree.—Shyam Kishen v. Sundar Kuer, 31 C. 373 (distinguishing Kedar Nath v. Kali Ohurn, 25 C. 703 and dissenting from Taniram v. Gajanan, 24 B. 300).

There were conflicting views on the question whether the chapter on execution of the Code of 1882 or Or. XXI, r. 69 and Or. XXI, r. 89 of the Code of 1908 applied to sales under mortgage decrees and so whether the sale could be stopped by deposit of the amount due and costs or set aside by making a deposit.—Rajaram v. Chunni, 19 A. 205; Harjas Rai v. Rameshar, 20 A. 354; Mallikarjunadu v. Lingamurti, 25 M. 244 (F. B.); Adipurana v. Gopalasami, 31 M. 354; Krishnaji v. Mahadev, 25 B. 104; Pramatha v. Khetra, 29 C. 651; Bibijan v. Sachi, 31 C. 863 (S. B.); Jogendra v. Methanes, 6 C. W. N. 769 (in which it was said that the equitable right of the mortgagor to redeem at any time before the property is sold is not based on, but is outside the provisions of, the Transfer of Property Act). See also Syed Shah v. Ismail Hasan, 18 A. L. J. 622; 56 I. C. 172; Kara Lal v. Punjab National Bank Ltd., 55 I. C. 816; Dharam Singh v. Ganeshram, 43 I. C. 399; Moulvi Muhammad Musa v. Aidal Singh, 65 I. C. 801. The words of sub rule (1) of r. 5, "at any time before the confirmation of the sale made in pursuance of a final decree passed under sub-rule (3) of this rule" have removed the conflict.

Sub-mortgagee's right to sue for sale.—The right of a sub-mortgagee who holds the mortgage of the mortgagee's rights but not an assignment of the original mortgage was negatived in Ganga Prasad v. Chunni, 18 A. 113; Ramjatan v. Ramhil, 27 A. 511; and in Ajudhia v. Man Singh, 25 A. 46, a similar view was taken. This view has been overruled by the Allahabad High Court in a Full Bench decision.—See Ram Shankarlal v. Ganesh Prasad, 29 A. 385 (F. B.). The Calcutta High Court has recognised this right.—See Bansi Lal v. Durga Prasad, 9 C. L. J. 429; Zaki Hasan v. Deo Nath, 10 C. L. J. 470; Bhanessar v. Ram Khelawan, 12 C. L. J. 137. Also Madras.—Muthu Vijia v. Venkatachallam, 20 M. 35. The Bombay High Court has denied the right of sale to a sub-mortgagee on the ground that there is no privity between the original mortgagor and the sub-mortgagee.—Padgaya v. Baji, 20 B. 549. In a later case in Bombay it was held that a suit for sale by a sub-mortgagee was maintainable but the mortgagor and the mortgagee were necessary parties.—Someswar v. Naranbat, 9 I. C. 765; 13 Bom. L. R. 90. The same view as to parties has been taken in Allahabad.—Ahmed Ali v. Bilas Rai, 5 A. L. J. 402; (1908) A. W. N. 191. But in Calcutta it has been held that though a suit by a sub-mortgagee in which the original mortgagor is joined as a party is better adapted to the adjudication of the rights of all the parties, his not being so joined does not make the frame of the suit improper.—Bhanessar v. Ram Khelawan, 12 C. L. J. 137.

Right of puisne mortgagee to obtain a decree for sale.—The Allahabad High Court has also held that a puisne mortgagee has no right to obtain a decree for sale without offering to redeem all the prior encumbrances.—Salig Ram v. Har Charan, 12 A. 548; Kali Charan v. Ahmad Shah, 17 A. 48; Mahammad v. Ghaffar, 21 A. 272. But in Venkatachella v. Panjana-dien, 4 M. 213; in Gangadhara v. Sivarama, 8 M. 246; and in Kanti Ram v. Kutubuddin, 22 C. 33, it has been held that a puisne mortgagee is entitled to the prior incumbrancer. See 7 C. W. N. 766; Jageshwar v.

As regards a mortgage suit for sale, the rights of the second mortgagee are very limited: he has the right to redeem the prior mortgage or to receive.

in such a case a final decree has to be applied for and passed before execution can be taken.—Mahomed Unis v. Janeshar, A. I. R. 1929 All. 891.

Whether a decree passed is executable or not depends on its terms.—See Sarat Chandra v. Joy Sankar, 35 C. W. N. 332: 134 I. C. 80: A. I. R. 1931 Cal. 546.

Where the compromise on which the decree is based is silent as regards the manner in which the sale of the hypothecated property is to be obtained the provisions of r. 14 would apply, the decree-holder can proceed against the person and other properties of the judgment-debtor in execution of the consent-decree, but if he desires to have the hypothecated property sold he should institute a suit under Or. XXXIV, r. 4.—Posti Mal v. Radhalishan, 54 A. 768: 138 I. C. 603: 30 A. L. J. 486: A. I. R. 1932 All. 439.

Difference between Or. XXXIV, r. 5, and S. 89, T. P. Act.—There is a substantial difference between the provisions of S. 89 of the T. P. Act and Or. XXXIV, r. 5, C. P. Code, and the former provision governs sales held before the new C. P. Code. As soon as an order absolute was made, the mortgage security was extinguished and the relative rights of the mortgagor and the mortgagee were regulated by the decree. But it does not follow that thereafter the mortgagee is debarred from proving that the description of the property mentioned in the schedule to the decree was itself erroneous.—Nandi Lal v. Jogendra, 28 C. W. N. 403.

Final decree, when can be passed.—A final decree in a mortgage suit can be passed only when the preliminary decree has become conclusive between the parties. If there is an appeal pending from the latter, the final decree should be passed only after the disposal of the appeal; Lalman v. Shiam Singh, 92 I. C. 608: A. I. R. 1926 All. 291; Gajadhar v. Kishan, 39 A. 64: (F. B.): 42 I. C. 93; Jowad Hossein v. Gendan, 53 I. A. 197: 6 P. 24 (P. C.) 98 I. C. 499: A. I. R. 1926 P. C. 93: 31 C. W. N. 58: 44 C. L. J. 63: 51 M. L. J. 781. But the holder of the preliminary decree may apply for a final decree even though the appeal is pending, when the mortgagor has failed to pay.—Bishamber v. Nizam Ali, 108 I. C. 751. See also other cases noted under heading "Application for a final decree" under Or. XXXIV, rr. 2 and 3, ante. See however, Khairunnissa v. Oudh Commercial Bank, 51 A. 640: 27 A. L. J. 480: 119 I. C. 510: A. I. R. 1929 All. 287, and Somar v. Deonandan, 6 P. 780.

For cases of awards and consent decrees in which a final decree need not be passed, see notes under headings "Award" and "Consent decree," ante.

Rule 4, sub-rule (2)—Rule 5, sub-rule (1).—Under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 there was no power expressly given to extend the date fixed for payment and it used to be held that the Court was bound to pass a final decree for sale if payment was not made within that date.—Taniram v. Gajanan, 24 B. 300. And a contrary view was also taken, holding that it was quite within the power of the Court to adjourn the sale in order to give the mortgagor time to raise money to pay off the decree.—Shyam Kishen v. Sundar Kuer, 31 C. 373 (distinguishing Kedar Nath v. Kali Churn, 25 C. 703 and dissenting from Taniram v. Gajanan, 24 B. 300).

he may be regarded as having acquired the equity of redemption as it stood at the date of the mortgage together with the lien of the mortgagee or he may be looked upon as having acquired the property at the date of the sale, the property discharged from the mortgage lien. If the suit is properly constituted the title of the purchaser will be absolute and relate back to the time of the execution of the mortgage and it will make no difference to the rights of the purchaser whichever of the two views be proceeded upon. In cases where the constitution of the suit is defective in the sense that all parties having an interest are not parties, different results follow, and this has led to a divergence of judicial opinion.—Digambar v. Sujan, 33 C. W. N. 100. This conflict has been amply discussed and the conflicting decisions have been referred to in Krishtopada v. Chaitanya, 49 C. 1048: 28 C. W. N. 92 (see the cases referred to in this case).

Where a part of the mortgaged property was, after the execution of the mortgage, sold by the mortgagor to some third parties, but the vendees were not made parties to the suit, held that the auction-purchaser at the mortgage sale had no title to possession as against the vendees, and a subsequent suit against them calling upon them to redeem was not maintainable.—Hargulal v. Gobind Rai, 19 A. 541 (F. B.). Followed in Banwari Lal v. Nand Ram, 49 A. 923 and Madan Lal v. Bagwan Das, 21 A. 235 (F. B.) (case in which in a prior mortgagee's suit on his mortgage the puisne mortgagee and the purchaser at the sale on his mortgage decree to which the prior mortgagee was not a party were not made parties); and Entholi Kizhakk Kandy v. Vallath, 30 M. 500 (case in which a purchaser of some of the mortgaged properties from a mortgagor subsequent to the mortgage was not made a party). A similar view was taken by the Calcutta High Court in Habibullah v. Jugdeo, 6 C. L. J. 609; Grish Chunder v. Iswar Chunder, 4 C. W. N. 452; Aghore v. Deb Narain, 11 C. W. N. 314. It was applied in the case of Krishtopada v. Chaitanya, 49 C. 1048: 28 C. W. N. 92, in which it was held that when a mortgagee brings a suit for sale upon his mortgage without impleading as party to the suit a purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption, he cannot by purchasing the property in execution claim possession as against the purchaser of the equity of redemption. (But in this case any such claim was barred at the date of the suit by the mortgagee purchaser).

Calcutta Cases.—

The above view has been disapproved in the more recent decisions of the Calcutta High Court.—Kalu v. Abhoy, 25 C. W. N. 253; Bhagaban v. Tarak, 45 C. L. J. 4; Bhodai Sheikh v. Baroda Kanta, 46 C. L. J. 570. See also Jugdeo v. Habibullah, 6 C. L. J. 612; Gangadas v. Jagendra, 11 C. W. N. 403.

Defendant No. 4, after having mortgaged a certain property to the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, sold the same to the plaintiffs. Subsequently the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 although aware of the plaintiffs purchase brought a suit upon the mortgage-bond against the defendant No. 4 only and without making the plaintiffs a party, and after having obtained a decree sold the property in execution thereof and purchased it themselves. In a suit by the plaintiffs for confirmation of possession and declaration of title, held that the mortgage-decree was not binding on the plaintiffs, but that the plaintiffs did his mortgage money out of the surplus sale proceeds after satisfaction of the prior mortgage, but he cannot ask for a sale of the property if the prior mortgagee's claim is satisfied before the sale, nor can he ask for sale of some other property included in his own mortgage and for either of these purposes he must bring a separate suit for sale on his own mortgage.—Kalipada v. Basanta, 35 C. W. N. 877 (in which the cases are referred to).

The Madras High Court has also held that in special circumstances the puisne mortgagee has a right of sale.—Gangayam v. Gomperts, 31 M. 425.

Suit for sale—Effect of omission to join proper parties.—It is obligatory upon a mortgagee to bring before the Court all persons interested in the equity of redemption, of whose interest he has notice; if he omits a party of whose interest he has no notice, the decree obtained by him, does not thereby become infructuous. A party excluded from a mortgage suit and who has not been afforded opportunity to redeem, is entitled to exercise his right of redemption upon the same terms, as if he had been made a party to the original suit. The principles upon which a puisne mortgagee, who has been left out of a prior mortgagee's suit, is entitled to have his liability determined, are explained.—Ganga Das v. Jogendra Nath, 5 C. L. J. 315. See also Ganpat Lal v. Bindbasini 47 C. 924 (P. C.); 24 C. W. N. 954; 47 I. A. 91; 56 I. C. 274; Sukhi v. Gulam Safdar Khan, 43 A. 469 (P. C.); 48 I. A. 465; 26 C. W. N. 279; 42 M. L. J. 15; 24 Bom. L. R. 590; 65 I. C. 151; Prabhuling Appa v. Gurunath Balaji, 22 Bom. L. R. 389; 45 B. 453.

If a person interested in the mortgaged property has not been joined as a party to the suit by the mortgagee and he comes in before foreclosure or sale, he has all the right of redemption that his interest in the property gives him. In a suit for sale under a mortgage the mortgagee failed to effectively implead certain persons, interested in the mortgaged property. A decree was passed and the mortgaged property was sold under it and was purchased by the mortgagee. In a suit by the persons who should have been but were not impleaded in the prior suit for a declaration that their right to redeem was not extinguished, held, that after the sale has taken place, the mortgagee held as purchaser and was entitled to raise all the defences that belonged to him as such and that unless the claim to set aside the sale was made in a properly constituted action and properly raised, the Court could not interfere with the possession which had been given him by the purchase;—Ganpat Lal v. Bindbasini, 47 C. 924 (P. C.); 24 C. W. N. 954; 47 I. A. 91; 56 I. C. 274; Sheikh Kalu Sharif v. Abboy Charan, 25 C. W. N. 253.

Suit by first mortgagee—Failure to join second mortgagee as party—Decree and sale thereunder—Purchase by first mortgagee—Subsequent suit for partition and possession Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to obtain possession without paying off the second mortgage, and it was immaterial whether the plaintiff's failure to join the second mortgagee as a party of the previous suit was wilful or due to ignorance of the fact that a second mortgage existed.—Rangasamy v. Komarammal, 26 M. 484; Mt. Danwanti v. Hargobind, 5 P. L. T. 103.

As regards the rights of a purchaser at a mortgage sale where the suit is properly constituted, that is to say where all parties having an interest in the property comprised in the mortgage are parties, two views may be taken;

he may be regarded as having acquired the equity of redemption as it stood at the date of the mortgage together with the lien of the mortgagee or he may be looked upon as having acquired the property at the date of the sale, the property discharged from the mortgage lien. If the suit is properly constituted the title of the purchaser will be absolute and relate back to the time of the execution of the mortgage and it will make no difference to the rights of the purchaser whichever of the two views be proceeded upon. In cases where the constitution of the suit is defective in the sense that all parties having an interest are not parties, different results follow, and this has led to a divergence of judicial opinion.—Digambar v. Sujan, 33 C. W. N. 100. This conflict has been amply discussed and the conflicting decisions have been referred to in Krishtopada v. Chaitanya, 49 C. 1048: 28 C. W. N. 92 (see the cases referred to in this case).

Where a part of the mortgaged property was, after the execution of the mortgage, sold by the mortgagor to some third parties, but the vendees were not made parties to the suit; held that the auction-purchaser at the mortgage sale had no title to possession as against the vendees, and a subsequent suit against them calling upon them to redeem was not maintainable.—Hargulal v. Gobind Rai, 19 A. 541 (F. B.). Followed in Banwari Lal v. Nand Ram, 49 A. 923 and Madan Lal v. Bagwan Das, 21 A. 235 (F. B.) (case in which in a prior mortgagee's suit on his mortgage the puisne mortgagee and the purchaser at the sale on his mortgage decree to which the prior mortgagee was not a party were not made parties); and Entholi Kizhakki Kandy v. Vallath, 30 M. 500 (case in which a purchaser of some of the mortgaged properties from a mortgagor subsequent to the mortgage was not made a party). A similar view was taken by the Calcutta High Court in Habibullah v. Jugdeo, 6 C. L. J. 609; Grish Chunder v. Iswar Chunder, 4 C. W. N. 452, Aghore v. Deb Narain, 11 C. W. N. 314. It was applied in the case of Krishtopada v. Chaitanya, 49 C. 1048: 28 C. W. N. 92, in which it was held that when a mortgagee brings a suit for sale upon his mortgage without impleading as party to the suit a purchaser of a portion of the equity of redemption, he cannot by purchasing the property in execution claim possession as against the purchaser of the equity of redemption. (But in this case any such claim was barred at the date of the suit by the mortgagee purchaser).

Defendant No. 4, after having mortgaged a certain property to the defendants Nos. 1 and 2, sold the same to the plaintiffs. Subsequently the defendants Nos. 1 and 2 although aware of the plaintiffs purchase brought a suit upon the mortgage-bond against the defendant No. 4 only and without making the plaintiffs a party, and after having obtained a decree sold the property in execution thereof and purchased it themselves. In a suit by the plaintiffs for confirmation of possession and declaration of title, held that the mortgage-decree was not binding on the plaintiffs, but that the plaintiffs did not acquire by the purchase any other right than to redeem the mortgage and no decree could be passed in his favour such as he prayed for.—Prolap v. Ishan, 4 C. W. N. 266.

Where the equity of redemption is entirely unrepresented it is possible to take the view that the purchaser at the sale does not acquire any rights under the mortgage, the same having been already extinguished by the order for sale and substituted by the right of sale.—See Digambar v. Surjan, 33 C. W. N. 100 at p. 105 (referring to Helram v. Shadiram, 45 I. A. 130: 40 A. 407 (P. C.): 22 C. W. N. 1033; and Matru Mal v. Durga Kunwar, 47 I. A. 71: 42 A. 364 (P. C.): 32 C. L. J. 121: 22 Bom. L. R. 553: 38 M. L. J. 419: 55 I. C. 969). On the other hand it is possible to take the view that the decree is to be treated as a nullity on general principles because it was passed in respect of property which was entirely unrepresented and to hold that the purchaser acquired nothing.—Ibid.

Where the puisne mortgagee is not made a party to a suit by the first mortgagee his rights are not affected by the decree on sale thereunder and the puisne mortgagee has still the right to redeem the prior mortgage. He may notwithstanding the prior decree bring a suit on his mortgage. When the prior mortgagee brings his suit without impleading the puisne mortgagee, and obtains a decree against the mortgagor only and purchases the property himself and the mortgaged property is sold a second time at the instance of the puisne mortgagee and purchased by the latter, the purchaser under the first decree purchases the outstanding interest of the mortgagor only and the puisne mortgagee's rights are not affected in any way.—Sayamali v. Anisuddin, 50 C. L. J. 152 (F. B.) (following Ramnarain v. Bandi, 31 C. 737; Debendra v. Ramtaran, 30 C. 599 and Gopee Bundhoo v. Kalee Podo. 23 W. R. 338).

A mortgagee who had purchased the properties in execution of his decree cannot be allowed to sue for recovery of possession from the holder of the equity of redemption, if at the time he brought his mortgage suit he had notice of the transfer of the equity of redemption but did not choose to implead the transferee in his suit on the mortgage.—Mahommed Mahar v. Rash Behari, 55 C. L. J. 299.

Bombay Cases —

The view of the Bombay High Court will appear from the following cases :—First mortgagee got a decree without making the second mortgagee a party who was in possession. He purchased the property in the mortgage sale and then sued the defendant for possession. The Courts below held that the plaintiff was bound to redeem the defendant. On appeal the High Court allowed the plaintiff's claim subject to the right of redemption which the defendant could exercise. Here the mortgagor was a party to the suit and no question of notice of the existence of the second mortgage was raised. The principle adopted by the Court was that the plaintiff purchased the property in the same state as it stood at the date of mortgage.—Mohan Manor v. Toju Uka, 10 B. 224.

Mortgagee instituted a suit on the mortgage without making the subsequent purchaser of the equity of redemption a party. He purchased the property and sued the purchaser for possession. This claim was allowed subject to the defendant exercising the right of redemption. Here the equity of redemption, it seems, was wholly unrepresented.—Dadoba v. Damodar, 16 B. 486.

Puisne mortgagee in possession was not made a party. Stranger purchaser in execution sale under the first mortgagee's decree sued for possession : Defendant, puisne mortgagee, allowed to retain possession on payment of the plaintiff's dues.—Desai Lallubhai v. Mundas, 20 B. 390.

Puisne mortgagee defendant has precisely the same rights as he had against the mortgagor and the first mortgagee collectively.—Pandurang v. Sakharchand, 31 B. 112. The same principle was applied in Shankar Venkatesh v. Sadashiv, 33 B. 24.

Subsequent purchaser of equity of redemption was not made a party : mortgagee was himself the purchaser at the sale ; held, suit for possession by the purchaser would not lie. In this case the suit for possession was dismissed as the equity of redemption was wholly unrepresented. The Court held that if plaintiffs were in possession different considerations might have prevailed.—Dattatraya v. Venkatesh, 24 Bom. L. R. 741.

Madras Cases.—

The Madras High Court in a Full Bench decision has held that a first mortgagee who has purchased the mortgaged property in execution of a decree on his mortgage is not entitled to a decree for possession against a puisne mortgagee with possession who was not impleaded in the first mortgagee's original suit, even subject to the puisne mortgagee's right of redemption, and as regards the respective rights of the first and the puisne mortgagees have laid down the following four propositions on an exhaustive review of the case-law :—(1) A second mortgagee is entitled to the same rights as the first mortgagee with reference to his security, having regard to the nature of his mortgage ; (2) the purchaser of the equity of redemption after the first mortgage and the second mortgagee both stand on the same footing with reference to their respective rights against the first mortgagee when they have not been impleaded in the suit instituted by him on his mortgage ; (3) those rights are unaffected by the suit of the first mortgagee to which they are not made parties and the decrees passed therein and the sale made in pursuance thereof ; (4) the purchaser in such a suit, whether it is a first mortgagee or a stranger, does not acquire the rights of the mortgagor as at the date of the first mortgage but only those that subsist in him at the date of the suit.—Mulla Vittil v. Achuthan, 21 M. L. J. 213 (F.B.) (the views taken by the different High Courts on these questions and the cases bearing on them have been discussed in detail in this case). An exhaustive review of the case-law on the point will also be found in Chinnu v. Venkatasamy, 40 M. 77.

Where a simple mortgagee brought a suit for sale against the mortgagor without impleading certain subsequent purchasers of the equity of redemption and the properties were sold in auction in execution of the decree in that suit ; held the purchasers are in the same position as puisne mortgagees and their rights are not affected by the suit and the decree obtained in their absence ; also held that it is open to the simple mortgagee or the purchaser in execution of the mortgage decree to maintain a second suit for sale against the purchasers of the equity of redemption.—Chandramma v. Seethan, 133 I. C. 497 : 61 M. L. J. 316 : A. I. R. 1931 Mad. 542.

Patna Cases.—

The Patna High Court has also held that where the first mortgagee obtained a decree on his mortgage without impleading the second mortgagee and purchased properties in execution including the one mortgaged to the latter, and on failure to get possession brought a suit against the second mortgagee who claimed to redeem all the properties; held that the integrity of the mortgaged property having been broken up by the purchase of the mortgaged properties by the plaintiff, the second mortgagee could only redeem the property mortgaged to him.—Amir Chand v. Moti, 134 I. C. 959 : A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 434.

Allahabad Cases.—

The Allahabad High Court has held in a Full Bench decision thus.—The auction-purchaser in execution of a decree obtained on a prior mortgage without impleading the second mortgagee, the rights of the mortgagor who was a subsequent mortgagee in cases where both the mortgages were pending or the purchase in execution of the prior mortgagee's decree was earlier in point of time. If the first mortgagee be the earlier purchaser, the rights of the mortgagor to obtain possession will ultimately vest in him. If his mortgage is not time-barred, he can compel the subsequent mortgagee to redeem him, but if it is time-barred he must redeem the subsequent mortgage. Where a sale in execution of a decree obtained on foot of a puisne mortgage takes place during the pendency of the suit on the prior mortgage the sale in the subsequent mortgagee's suit is affected by the rule of lis pendens so as to make the purchaser's right subject to the result of the prior mortgagee's suit. If lis pendens does not apply, and the second mortgagee is the earlier purchaser, the prior mortgagee will have the right to take possession as plaintiff if a suit on his mortgage be not time-barred. If the second mortgagee redeems him, the second mortgagee will retain the property. If the prior mortgage has become barred by time, the prior mortgagee cannot obtain possession.—Ram Sanahi Lal v. Janki Prasad, 53 A. 1023 (F. B.) : 134 I. C. 1 : 29 A. L. J. 729 : A. I. R. 1931 All. 466.

In another Full Bench case of the same Court the question referred was—“Is an auction-purchaser at a sale held in execution of a decree, passed on foot of a prior mortgage, to which the second mortgagee was no party, entitled to remove the materials of the building erected by him on a site included in the mortgaged property purchased by him, or is the building liable to be sold as an accession to the mortgaged property for satisfaction of the second mortgage?” Held by the majority that the question should be answered in the negative. Held also, that S. 63 of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply to the case, which is not one of a mortgagee in possession. The auction-purchaser's possession may in one sense be regarded as being analogous to that of a mortgagee in possession, as he is entitled to retain his possession until discharge of the prior mortgage which he can set up as a shield. Even then, as the house is an accession which is not capable of separate possession or enjoyment as a house apart from the land itself, and as it was neither made with the mortgagor's assent nor was it necessary for preservation of the land from destruction, forfeiture or sale, the auction-purchaser cannot remove the materials or claim compensation, under this section.—Nannu Mal v. Ram Chandra, 53 A. 334 (F. B.) (all relevant authorities have been discussed in the separate judgments delivered in that case).

Punjab Cases.—

In the Lahore High Court the following has been held :—Where a second mortgagee instituted a suit on his mortgage without impleading the prior mortgagees as parties and got a final decree for sale, and subsequently the first mortgagees sued on their mortgage impleading the second mortgagee also, but before the final decree was passed the second mortgagee brought the properties to sale in execution of his decree, and later the prior mortgagees also brought the properties to sale and purchased them themselves in execution. Held that the purchasers in the sale in pursuance of the decree on the first mortgage got the properties and were entitled to possession as against the first purchaser.—Ramjidas v. Harjas, A. I. R. 1928 Lah. 505 : 112 I. C. 699.

Burma Cases.—

In the Rangoon High Court it has been held that where in a suit by a mortgagee a subsequent purchaser of the mortgaged property is not made a party and the suit is decreed and the property is sold, the latter cannot sue for a declaration that he is the absolute owner of the property but he is only entitled to a declaration that the mortgage-decree is not binding on him ; his possession, however, cannot be disturbed by anyone without filing a suit against him.—Ram Langam v. Ma Loke Gale, 127 I. C. 371 : A. I. R. 1930 Rang 175.

Other Cases.—

In a suit for sale by the first mortgagee if the second mortgagee is a party, the latter is there in order that he may have an opportunity of redeeming, if he so wished, and in order that he might receive his mortgage-money or part of it out of the surplus sale-proceeds after satisfaction of the first mortgage, but the decree is not really a decree in his favour and he could not insist upon a sale nor get a personal decree in his favour if the first mortgagee was satisfied by the mortgagor before or by means of the sale.—Mackintosh v. Watkins, 1 C. L. J. 31. See also Sarat Chandra v. Nahapiet, 37 C. 907 : 8 I. C. 1142 ; Vedavyasa v. Madura Hindu Sabha, 42 M. 90 : 49 I. C. 36.

Where a subsequent mortgagee seeks to bring to sale the property mortgaged to him and there are parties defendants to the suit, who have purchased the property and paid off prior mortgages, the plaintiff is not entitled to an order for sale unless he pays to such defendants the amount paid by them in respect of the prior mortgages together with the full amount due on such mortgages.—Sri Ram v. Kesri Mal, 26 A. 185.

A prior mortgagee obtained a decree for sale upon his mortgage in a suit to which the puisne mortgagee was a party. The prior mortgagee's decree being partly satisfied by sale of a portion of the mortgaged property, the balance was paid by the puisne mortgagee, who then applied for an order absolute for sale of the property comprised in the prior mortgage and also of some other property comprised in his own mortgage. Held that he was not entitled to any order in respect of his own mortgage.—Jamna Das v. Misri Lal, 26 A. 504 (24 A. 179 referred to).

" Payment into Court "—Before the Code of 1908 came into force it was held that applications for order absolute for sale under S. 89, T. P. Act are applications for execution of the decree under S. 88, T. P. Act. To such applications S. 253, C. P. Code, 1882 (Or. XXI, r. 2), is applicable, and bars recognition of payments made out of Court unless such payments are certified in the manner prescribed by the section.—Hakim Singh v. Ram Singh, 30 A. 248 : 5 A. L. J. 272 (23 M. 473 (F. B.) followed; 8 C. W. N. 103 dissented from). See also Harish Chandra v. Jagabandhu, 12 C. W. N. 282 : 7 C. L. J. 581. But see Pramatha Chandra v. Khetra Mohan, 29 C. 651.

Under the Code of 1908 it has been held that in passing a final decree under Or. XXXIV, r. 5 the Court has no discretion except to follow the statutory form of the decree, when no payment has been made into Court, and that when a payment out of Court has been made it cannot be recognized unless certified under Or. XXI, r. 2.—Piran v. Jitendriya, 25 C. L. J. 553; Singa Raja v. Petlu Raja, 42 M. 61 : 48 I. C. 196. On the other hand it has also been held that Or. XXI has no application to such a case and therefore the payment could be taken into consideration even if it was not certified.—Ramji Lal v. Karan Singh, 39 A. 532 : 40 I. C. 424; Jogendra v. Gouri Shankar, 2 P. L. J. 533 : 40 I. C. 138 (case in which it has been held that Or. XXIII, r. 3 applies to adjustment out of Court in such a case). But it has also been held that the procedure of payment into Court was a restriction deliberately imposed and Or. XXIII, r. 3 cannot be read to override the clear terms of this rule in Or. XXXIV.—Rasan v. Rangayan, 30 L. W. 551 : (1929) M. W. N. 867. See also Musht. Durga v. Nand Lal, 136 I. C. 732 : A. I. R. 1932 Lah. 231. The refusal of a Treasury Officer to take money, tendered in time, is not default on the part of the judgment-debtor.—Mahomed Uns v. Janeshar, A. I. R. 1929 All. 881.

Where the preliminary decree is based on a compromise and is not prepared in such accordance with Or. XXXIV, r. 4 it is open to the judgment-debtor on application made for a final decree, to prove that the preliminary decree has been satisfied out of Court.—Sital Singh v. Baijnath, 44 A. 668 : 20 A. L. J. 602 Order XXI, r. 2 applies to decrees of every description and does not exclude from its operation a mortgage-decree; but Or. XXXIV has no application where a decree in a mortgage-suit is not prepared under that order.—Mangar Sahu v. Bhatoo Singh, 57 I. C. 473 (case of a compromise decree).

One of joint decree-holders cannot alone certify satisfaction of the whole decree; if he does so, the other decree-holder can obtain an order absolute for sale in respect of his own share of the mortgage-debt.—Tamman Singh v. Lachhmin Kunwari, 26 A. 318.

Finality of decrees.—So long as an order under S. 89 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 making a decree absolute for sale under S. 88 of the Act subsists, it is enforceable and its validity cannot be questioned by the judgment-debtor in execution proceedings. If the order under S. 89 is defective, the remedy of the judgment-debtor is to get it set aside in accordance with law.—Ram Jas v. Sheo Prasad, 28 A. 193 (3 A. 424, 13 A. 278, 21 C. 19 distinguished).

After the passing of a preliminary decree on a mortgage the mortgagor died and his sons were brought on the record as his legal representatives; the latter objected that they were not the legal representatives and they also attacked the mortgage-decree on the ground that the mortgage was without consideration and legal necessity. Held that the Court was not entitled to reopen questions which had already been determined by the preliminary decree.—Kaloo v. Niadar, 115 I. C. 462 : 27 A. L. J. 425 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 252.

The correctness of a preliminary decree cannot be questioned on an application to make it absolute.—Murlidhar v. Vishnudas, 40 B. 321.

When application for a final decree is dismissed for default, whether fresh application lies.—Where two applications for final decrees in two suits were dismissed on the ground that the plaintiffs though called upon to file complete lists of mortgaged properties and proper calculations did not comply and were absent under S. 11 or by reason of did not apply (following Le that the applications were Or. XXXIV, r. 5 it was not incumbent on the decree-holder to file fresh lists and that the Court was bound to rectify its own mistakes (following Jodha Singh v. Gokarn, 47 A. 546).—Chandra Shekhar v. Amir Begam, 49 A. 592 : 101 I. C. 676 : A. I. R. 1927 All. 439.

Contents of an application for a final decree.—A plaintiff is not bound to describe in his application for the making of a final decree for sale of mortgaged property, the properties with respect to which he asks for a final decree for sale unless it is his intention that any particular property should be omitted.—Basant Lal v. Basanti, 117 I. C. 102 : 27 A. L. J. 1097 : A. I. R. 1929 All. 551.
